CONCURRENT WORKSHOPS 1

Thursday workshops are located at the Marriott at Moscone Center.

Brief Solution-Focused Child Custody Mediation:
Approaches and Skills ⊗ *⊙◆

What are the mediator skills necessary for working effectively with the parties in a limited amount of time? In any given group of separating parents, some may have minor custody/visitation disagreements, may be near agreement, and, with mediator assistance, can arrive at a mutually agreeable parenting plan in a brief period of time. Learn how some courts utilize “day of court” mediation and others the orientation process to provide these families with a more immediate level of assistance. Learn how brief approaches are supported in the professional literature. Please read the statement regarding this workshop on page 22.

California Dependency Online Guide (CalDOG) Website Training ◆

The California Dependency Online Guide (CalDOG) is a resource website that provides high quality, juvenile dependency-related legal and nonlegal information to California attorneys, judicial officers, social workers, and other child welfare professionals. This workshop will be an introductory training, for those with little or no experience using the website, or users who feel they would like more information about how to use all of the features of the website. There will be an opportunity to ask questions and provide feedback and suggestions. The workshop will be offered twice, at workshop sessions I and II. Following the workshops, the room will remain open through lunch, and CalDOG staff will be available to answer questions and conduct tutorials.

Children's Participation in Family Law Cases *◎◆

Child custody and parenting time cases often involve a host of issues requiring complex decision-making by the court as well as the involvement of attorneys, mediators, and mental health professionals. This workshop will primarily focus on children's participation in family law matters and build on the experience of faculty with juvenile dependency cases where children more routinely participate. Content will include a discussion about why children of various ages often want to testify or participate in court proceedings, and how court-connected professionals and judicial officers can meet new legal requirements while effectively managing witnesses of various ages and appropriately analyzing and weighing children's testimony or input. The panel will cover changes to the Family Code and the new statewide rule of court, effective January 1, 2012. Faculty perspectives will include the views of attorneys representing children and parents, and a judge with both family law and juvenile dependency experience.

Hon. Jerilyn Borack, Judge, Superior Court of Sacramento County

Dr. Frank Dougherty, Attorney

Ms. Lorie Nachlis, Attorney, Nachlis & Fink

Facebook Isn't Just for Friends: Examining the Use of Social Networks by Employers, Law Enforcement, and Others *◎ (Youth-oriented workshop open to youth and adult participants)

Your friends or future friends aren't the only people using social networks. Employers, law enforcement personnel, lawyers, and others are using social networks for far more than socializing. This presentation for youth and adults will examine some of those other uses of social networks and how these uses may affect you from a practical, legal, and policy standpoint. It will also cover recent decisions and laws relating to sexting, cyberbullying, and free speech.

Mr. Shane Witnov, Litigation Associate, Winston & Strawn, LLP

Family Law Legal Update *◎◆

In addition to many legislative changes and new case law this year, several statewide family law rules and form changes will become effective January 1, 2012. This workshop will cover these changes and provide an opportunity for all participants to learn about how these changes might impact their work. The workshop will be relevant to judicial officers, mediators and child custody recommending counselors, evaluators, attorneys, and other court-connected professionals.

Revisioning Juvenile Justice: Developing The Fiscal Argument for Change ♦

States across the nation faced with challenging fiscal times are rethinking prior approaches to juvenile justice and long-term incarceration of youth. Just as California is struggling with realignment and prison downsizing, other states have developed their own new approaches to juvenile incarceration as well as prevention strategies. This workshop will examine innovations and new approaches developed elsewhere, with a particular focus on fiscal drivers of reform. Panelists will also discuss cost/benefit analyses of reform initiatives, and how to use these fiscal arguments to develop bipartisan alliances for change.

The Importance of Domestic Violence Coordinating Councils *⊙♦

In today's environment of limited resources, developing and maintaining the lines of communication among members of the community, community-based services, advocates, justice system entities, and the courts is crucial to fostering victim safety, perpetrator accountability, and child well-being when domestic violence is a factor. This workshop will focus on how to set up a viable domestic violence council, delineate the advantages and some of the pitfalls, and provide concrete examples of the benefits of flourishing domestic violence councils to large and small communities. It will also emphasize the vital role of the court in sustaining a successful council. For judicial officer participants, this course helps meet the requirement of CRC 10.464 for domestic violence education.

Family Law Domestic Violence: New Forms, Rules, and Cases *⊙♦

Many new forms and rules related to domestic violence restraining orders are taking effect January 1, 2012, including a new form and rule for parties to stipulate to parentage. In addition, forms related to restraining orders issued in juvenile, civil harassment, elder abuse, and other case types are changing. Panelists will highlight the major forms and rules changes, new legislation, and key new cases. For judicial officer participants, this course helps meet the requirement of CRC 10.464 for domestic violence education.

Ms. Tamara Abrams, Senior Attorney, AOC Center for Families, Children & the Courts

Family Law Settlement Services: Developing Protocols for Domestic Violence Cases *⊙♦

Many family law cases benefit tremendously from the opportunity to use settlement services to craft resolutions addressing property and financial matters. Given the number of family law cases involving domestic violence allegations, restraining orders, or unreported fear of abuse or retaliation, how can settlement service providers most effectively ensure that programs take safety into account? This workshop will provide participants with examples of protocols and procedures for handling this issue in non-child custody programs and discuss why it is important to consider domestic violence when providing settlement services. For judicial officer participants, this course helps meet the requirement of CRC 10.464 for domestic violence education.

Practical Strategies for Handling Compassion Fatigue, a.k.a. Secondary Trauma *◎◆

Judges, attorneys, social workers, and psychologists who work with children and families, are directly and indirectly affected by the trauma these people often experience when they are involved in difficult court proceedings. Such secondary effects sometimes result in decreased performance and significant health risks. This practical and interactive session introduces stress management techniques and strategies that can be integrated both off and on the job without interrupting productivity. Participants will be encouraged and prompted to understand their vulnerabilities, recognize early their own and colleagues' warning signs of secondary stress, and use self-care strategies to quickly regain a state of neuro-physiological regulation.

Substance Abuse Issues in the Courts: Applying Collaborative Court Principles *◎◆

Courts throughout the state have been addressing substance abuse issues for many years through the use of a variety of approaches, including collaborative courts. However, these courts are being challenged by reductions in resources, increasing demand for services, and changing demographics and needs. This workshop will address how collaborative courts are responding to these challenges with innovative approaches, including the use of evidence-based practices, family systems models, and more effective community collaborations and partnerships. This course qualifies for 1.25 hours of MCLE substance abuse credit.

Coming of Age in Tough Times: Building Our Strength Together ⊗ ◆*

Author of a recent book, Tattoos on the Heart: The Power of Boundless Compassion, and founder of Homeboy Industries, Father Gregory Boyle has worked with gang members in East Los Angeles for over two decades. This year's Beyond the Bench theme is certainly one that Father Boyle sees again and again in his work. "Coming of Age," diverting from the gang path, is not an easy or simple journey. It takes "Strength Together." Homeboy Industries and its programs embody the diversity of approaches, the pieces of the mosaic, to equip youth to move from gang activity to effective contribution to neighborhood, family, and society. Education, parenting classes, case management, specialized services for substance abuse and domestic violence, including Relapse Prevention, 12-step meetings, a court-certified Batterers Treatment Program, and a domestic violence survivors group augment Homeboy Industries job programs. This hope in the individual's ability to transform his/her life, buoyed by a supportive network, is one shared by both Homeboy Industries and family/juvenile/collaborative courts. Programs implement a problem-solving/restorative justice approach by working with one individual and family at a time. Father Boyle will inspire us to "build our strength together." CONCURRENT WORKSHOPS 3

California’s Juvenile Justice System: Re-Tooling or Rudderless? *◎◆

Juvenile Justice reform over the past 10 years has been significant, but where do we go from here? Find out what the new terrain looks like through the eyes of a judge, two youth advocates, and a chief probation officer. This workshop will explore where we have been and where we need to go to improve our delinquency system through realignment. It will examine the changing role of probation under adult and juvenile realignment; the implications of social science research for next steps in juvenile system reform; the role of realignment in addressing the needs of special populations, such as those with mental health care needs; how budgetary factors such as commitment penalties and downsizing proposals may produce unintended consequences; the need for state level policy and leadership in juvenile justice; and other cutting edge issues.

Hon. Kurt Kumli, Judge, Superior Court of Santa Clara County

Ms. Sue Burrell, Staff Attorney, Youth Law Center

Ms. Linda Penner, Chief Probation Officer of the Fresno County Probation Department, President of Chief Probation Officers of California

Mr. David Steinhart, Director, Commonweal Juvenile Justice Program

Collaborative Courts in Action: An Evaluation of Alameda County’s Juvenile Mental Health Court *◎◆

This workshop will provide an overview of mental health courts and results of a recent evaluation of one juvenile mental health court. Panelists will discuss the goals and the essential elements of mental health courts, as well as the outcomes and effectiveness of one juvenile mental health court.

Hon. Leopoldo (Leo) Dorado, Judge, Superior Court of Alameda County

Mr. Brian Blalock, Staff Attorney, Bay Area Legal Aid

Mr. Patrick Gardner, Deputy Director, National Center for Youth Law

Creating and Sustaining a Youth Court ◆

Youth courts provide positive alternative sanctions for first-time youth offenders, which results in reduced recidivism rates. Youth courts in California conduct hundreds of hearings annually, with an overwhelming percentage of respondents completing their sanctions as ordered. Every year, hundreds of young people in California serve as judges, jurors, and advocates. Expanding youth courts is an effective strategy for reducing juvenile delinquency, allowing young people to take responsibility for their actions and learn community engagement skills. This workshop will discuss how to create and sustain a youth court. Panelists include the president and former president of the California Association of Youth Courts.

Cultural Humility: Working in Partnership with Our Multicultural Court Users *◎◆□

This session introduces the concept of cultural humility as we serve a multicultural population using the courts. Besides providing culturally competent services, cultural humility allows us to develop a lifelong commitment to self-evaluation, to redressing power imbalances between providers and consumers, and to developing mutually beneficial and nonpaternalistic partnerships with the communities we serve. Rather than learning to identify and respond to sets of culturally specific traits, using cultural humility the service provider develops and practices a process of self-awareness and reflection.

Family Law: What Teens and Young Parents Need to Know *◎

(Youth-oriented workshop open to youth and adult participants)

This workshop will educate teens and young parents on their legal rights concerning restraining orders, child custody and support, paternity, emancipation, and other issues. We will discuss the family court system and how and when youth should access this system. The workshop will use specific real life stories to explain how family law plays out in the real world for teens and young parents.

Ms. Sharon Balmer-Cartegena, Family Law Attorney, Los Angeles Center for Law and Justice

Human Trafficking: An Overview and Special Focus on Commercially Sexually Exploited Children (CSEC) *◎◆

Human trafficking arises in a wide variety of case types and may involve an array of allegations ranging from sexual exploitation to forced labor. This workshop will provide a brief overview of the legal and social science definitions of human trafficking and where it might arise in a court setting. Faculty will focus in particular on the unique features of commercially sexually exploited children (CSEC) and highlight characteristics of victims, perpetrators, dynamics, and risk factors. The workshop will also address broad goals of services and treatment for exploited children and the increasing need for court leadership in this critical area.

Organizing and Managing the Flow of Family Law Cases *⊙◆

Panelists will discuss the fundamental principles and goals of caseflow management in family law. Specific examples of local court procedures currently used in California family courts to track, organize, and manage cases will be provided. Panelists will also discuss the role of caseflow management as an essential infrastructure to support judicial case management of cases requiring a family-centered case resolution plan.

Is parallel parenting a better approach than co-parenting for some parents and circumstances? During a mediation session, it may become clear that co-parenting may be out of reach for some parents, at least at the present time. Is parallel parenting a better-suited approach to their parenting plan and expectations? Key elements of parallel parenting will be discussed. Insights from the research of John Gottman and from Connie Ahrons' spectrum of separating couples will also be included. Please read the statement regarding this workshop on page 22.

Public Safety Realignment Overview: The Architecture of Change *⊙◆

This workshop, presented by the Legislative Analyst's Office (LAO), will provide an overview of the major components of the 2011 realignment legislation that was approved as part of the 2011–12 state budget. The presentation will focus on the major policy change to shift the responsibility for supervising certain prisoners and parolees from the state to local governments, including how these changes and others are likely to impact the courts, including collaborative courts. The presentation will cover the mechanics of realignment, as well as how it will be funded. The LAO will also discuss its recommendations on how to structure realignment for long-term success, the new evidence-based tools made available to local governments in the legislation, and an overview of how counties are beginning to implement the realignment locally.

Recognition and Enforcement of Tribal Protective Orders *◎◆

Providing for the justice needs of tribal communities is a challenge. One way that tribes, both inside and outside California, seek to meet this challenge is by developing their own court systems. Today there are close to twenty tribal courts operating in California and over 300 tribal courts nationwide. A priority for many of these courts is the development of protective/restraining order protocols to ensure the safety of their citizens. Historically, a lack of awareness and understanding of tribal courts has impeded the effectiveness of restraining orders issued by tribal courts and undermined the safety of tribal victims. In this session, tribal and state court judges will discuss jurisdiction on tribal lands and in tribal court, federal and state law concerning enforcement and recognition of tribal court protective orders, existing procedures for the mutual recognition and enforcement of protective orders, and proposed changes to the California Rules of Court. For judicial officer participants, this course helps meet the requirement of CRC 10.464 for domestic violence education.

How to Encourage More Pro Bono and Limited Scope Representation ♦

With a growing number of litigants coming to court without attorneys, many judges and court administrators are interested in increasing representation for litigants in the courtroom. Pro bono and limited scope representation (also known as unbundling) provide some options. The panelists will discuss what judges can and cannot do to encourage pro bono and limited scope representation, including encouraging attorneys to take portions of juvenile cases that cannot be paid for by court funds. They will review the law on obtaining attorney fees for limited scope representation and share the wide variety of resources available to help attorneys provide those services ethically and appropriately.

The Impact of Recent Criminal Justice Legislation (Realignment) on the Courts, Mediation, and Parent-Child Contact ⊗ *◎◆

How will Family Court Services, the courts, probation departments, and other agencies collaborate on family needs and safety issues when parents who are low-risk offenders move from state prison to county incarceration and supervision? The presenters will provide a basic overview of criminal justice concepts, a timely report of the unfolding of these new initiatives, and some suggested approaches to issues which arise within families with incarcerated and formerly incarcerated parents. As a result of recent criminal justice legislation, beginning October 1, 2011, eligible low-risk prisoners—mothers, pregnant women, and primary care providers of minor children incarcerated in California’s 33 state prisons—began serving the remainder of their sentences on parole in their county of residence. Further, eligible offenders convicted of low-risk felonies (non-violent, non-serious, non-sex offenses) will now serve their sentences in county facilities instead of state prison. Those who are parents may be requesting contact with and/or custody of their children, which may increase caseloads and create challenges for family, dependency, and probate courts. Youth Empowerment through Teen Court

(Youth-oriented workshop open to youth and adult participants)

Teen courts represent an alternative to the traditional juvenile justice system for first-time youth offenders. However, all teen courts are not the same. Hear directly from youth on how their teen court works, their involvement in teen court, the impact teen court has had on their lives and their communities, and the use of restorative justice within their courts. You will learn the difference between teen court and juvenile court when the youth panel compares what would happen if a first-time youth offender commits a crime and is then sent to juvenile court or, in the alternative, is sent to teen court.

WORKSHOPS (Listed alphabetically by time)

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Marriott at Moscone Center
8:45 a.m. – 3:30 p.m.

This collaborative justice track is sponsored by the Judicial Council’s Collaborative Justice Courts Advisory Committee and the AOC Center for Families, Children & the Courts.

This educational program for judges, collaborative court coordinators, and justice system/treatment partners is a full-day program with plenary and concurrent workshop sessions designed to address current trends and public safety realignment issues affecting California’s drug, mental health, reentry, veterans, and other collaborative courts. Participants will be eligible to receive judicial officer, court personnel, BBS, or MCLE training credits. Plenary session workshops are open to all program participants and participants will register to attend one concurrent workshop session in the morning and one concurrent workshop session in the afternoon. The Judges Roundtable (afternoon concurrent session) is limited to judicial officers only.

8:45 – 10:15 a.m. Complications from Combat: Traumatic Brain Injury, Posttraumatic Stress Disorder, and Violence Risk *⊙◆

Many veterans fight a war within to overcome their violent reactions. Behavioral impairments from brain injury, along with an increased activation of the limbic system associated with Post Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD), can perpetuate aggressive and violent behavior. Combat veterans’ courts can assist in the re-entry of such veterans into civilian life, including women service members suffering from sexual trauma. The role of mentors in veterans’ courts is also discussed.

8:45 – 10:15 a.m. Dependency Drug Courts: Focusing on the Children *⊙◆

Often the focus in Family Drug Courts is on the parents and their treatment needs, with all partners assuming the needs of the child are being addressed elsewhere. In fact, the children of parents participating in drug court are at heightened risk for their own developmental, behavioral, mental health and substance abuse concerns. Responding to the needs of the child/family, as well as the parent, significantly increases the chances of successful reunification; decreases the risk of relapse and recurrence of maltreatment; and intervenes in the cycle of generational substance use and child abuse and neglect. This workshop will focus on the impact of parental substance use and co-occurring mental health disorders and trauma on child development; the importance of effective tools and strategies

The legislation created the Regional Partnership Grant (RPG) program, which will improve access to substance abuse treatment and other community services through significant collaborative partnerships and will facilitate the reporting of both child welfare and substance abuse treatment outcomes for children and families. California is home to 9 of the 53 RPG sites. This workshop will provide an overview of the RPG program, including a look at the partners, the strategies being employed by the partnerships, and performance indicator data on over 19,000 children and 12,000 adults participating in services, as well as a summary of performance data from the nine California sites.

FRIDAY: EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS FOR PROFESSIONALS WORKING IN THE JUVENILE COURT (Child Welfare and Juvenile Justice)

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Marriott at Moscone Center
8:00 a.m. – 3:00 p.m.

This juvenile court track is sponsored by the Judicial Council’s Family and Juvenile Courts Advisory Committee, the AOC Center for Families, Children & the Courts, The California Endowment, and the California Social Work Education Center. This program will be located at the Marriott at Moscone Center.

This education program is designed to serve judicial officers, attorneys, probation officers, child welfare workers, Court Appointed Special Advocates (CASAs), and other professionals who serve children and families appearing before California’s juvenile court. Participants will be eligible to receive judicial officer, court personnel, BBS or MCLE (with 4 hours that satisfy the Ethics requirement), and STC training credits. Each of the five rooms is available to all attendees, though each room has a dedicated theme for the day and content will be directed toward a particular target audience. Participants can either remain in one room or choose to attend sessions in any of the available rooms.

Coming of Age in Tough Times: Building Our Strength Together

FRIDAY: EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS FOR PROFESSIONALS WORKING IN THE JUVENILE COURT – WORKSHOPS

ROOM 1: INFORMATION SHARING –

WHO CAN I TELL, WHAT CAN I KNOW, AND WHAT LAWS APPLY?

8:00–11:50 a.m. Overview & Information Sharing (four-hour course) *◎◆◆

This workshop will begin with an overview of the laws that apply to shared information (education records, mental health, medical and substance abuse treatment records), as well as confidentiality/consent vs. privilege issues. An in-depth interactive examination of how information flows between key agencies, courts, schools, service providers, and others, as well as an opportunity to troubleshoot specific issues, will be key components of this informative workshop. This course satisfies the MCLE Ethics requirement. Please see page 33 for STC information.

Ms. Rebecca Gudeman, Senior Staff Attorney, National Center for Youth Law

1:10–3:00 p.m. Master Class on Information Sharing (two-hour course) *◎◆◆

Attendees will ask questions and Ms. Rebecca Gudeman will troubleshoot issues. Please see page 33 for STC information.

Ms. Rebecca Gudeman, Senior Staff Attorney, National Center for Youth Law

ROOM 2: JUVENILE LEGAL INFORMATION

8:00–9:50 a.m. Collateral Consequences *◆◆

Collateral consequences often result from an arrest or an adjudication in juvenile court. The reality is that with increasing consequences being attached to juvenile adjudications, there can be significant consequences that can affect everything from education and future military service to employment. These consequences are not always mitigated by informal probation or even sealing. This workshop will explore how adjudications for offenses often carry with them long-term consequences that are not always contemplated at the time of disposition in juvenile court. Please see page 33 for STC information.

Hon. Jacqueline H. Lewis, Commissioner, Superior Court of Los Angeles County

Hon. Anthony Trendacosta, Commissioner, Superior Court of Los Angeles County

ROOM 3: ACCESSING OUR EDUCATION SYSTEM:

CHALLENGES FACED BY YOUTH IN OUR JUVENILE JUSTICE SYSTEMS

8:00–9:50 a.m. Workforce Development: Building a Well-Trained, Well-Educated Workforce for Our Future *◆◆

As we continue to improve upon our educational system, where does workforce development fit into our long-range goals for youth at risk and youth reentering the community from the justice system? How can we engage businesses and the private sector in promoting youth workforce efforts? What challenges do youth face as they exit the justice system and seek to enter the workforce? What pending federal reforms might help guide and advance these efforts? This workshop will address the challenges facing youth at risk, as well as some innovative approaches to workforce development that have successfully mitigated those challenges. State and national experts will discuss barriers to employment facing youth at risk, describe innovative approaches to workforce development that have successfully mitigated some of those challenges, and provide an overview of national reforms that seek to promote and support employment of youth at risk. Please see page 33 for STC information.

ROOM 3: ACCESSING OUR EDUCATION SYSTEM:

CHALLENGES FACED BY YOUTH IN OUR JUVENILE JUSTICE SYSTEMS

10:00–11:50 a.m. School Discipline and Climate: Issues, Challenges, and New Thinking *◎◆◆

This workshop will explore how our approaches to and thinking about school discipline and school climate issues have evolved over the past ten years. We will hear from local, state and national experts about how some school districts have been successfully built principles of restorative justice into school practices and developed new ways to address school discipline concerns. We will consider what seems to be working in today's climate and why and also address the critical and differing roles of school, judicial, and law enforcement officials in processes of change. Finally, we will discuss how best to build collaborations, develop and promote reforms and engage key leaders and stakeholders in our evolving understanding of what works and why. Please see page 33 for STC information.

FRIDAY: LEGAL AID/SELF HELP TRACK, FAMILY LAW CONFERENCE

WORKSHOPS (Listed alphabetically by time)

9:00-10:30 a.m.

New Developments in the Intersection of Housing, Domestic Violence, and Family Law *◎◆

This presentation will discuss family law and housing law strategies that can be used to address some of the most common housing issues DV survivors encounter. It will include a variety of tools to protect survivors' housing rights, eviction defense, early lease termination, and lock changes for survivors. It will also review the Violence Against Women Act, fair housing laws, DVPA, family laws, civil code, and collaborative community support.

Ms. Protima Pandey, Staff Attorney, Bay Area Legal Aid
Ms. Meliah Schultzman, Staff Attorney, National Housing Law Project

9:00-10:30 a.m.

Working with Domestic Violence Survivors Aged 25 and Under *◎◆

This training will educate participants about working with domestic and dating violence survivors aged 25 and under. Current brain research confirms what youth advocates have been saying for years – our brains are not fully developed when we turn 18. So what can attorneys who work with clients aged 18-25 learn from youth advocates? We will provide the audience with developmentally appropriate tips for working with these clients. We also will review the available legal rights and remedies for domestic and dating violence survivors who are still legally minors.

Ms. Nicole Edwards-Masuda, Youth Program Manager, Family Violence Law Center
Ms. Erin Scott, Director of Programs, Family Violence Law Center
Ms. Kristie Whitehorse, Managing Attorney, Family Violence Law Center

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

AOC San Francisco Office 9:00 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

The Administrative Office of the Courts (AOC) and the Legal Aid Association of California (LAAC) are proud to announce the 2011 Family Law Conference as part of the 2011 Beyond the Bench Conference.

The Family Law Conference is an opportunity to meet with other family law advocates around the state and learn about emerging issues in family law, introductory topics for new advocates, and advanced topics for more experienced advocates. The Family Law Conference is a full-day program with nine workshops run in four sessions and a plenary over lunch. MCLE is available for a total of 6.5 credits, with 1.5 Elimination of Bias credits in one of the workshops.

10:45 a.m.–12:15 p.m. The Vulnerabilities of Immigrant Families: An Overview of Immigration Status and How it Influences Client Interactions *⊙◆

This presentation will offer an overview of how immigration status influences a client's interactions with attorneys and government agencies, including courts, in the legal process. The presentation will provide a familiarity with general immigration vocabulary and an understanding of why immigration law is relevant to legal practice in low-income communities. An additional theme of this course is how deportation fears may affect legal practice and client engagement with immigrant families. This knowledge is fundamental in helping to develop a case, as well as providing competent legal services. A description of what may occur when an undocumented immigrant parent is separated from his/her U.S. citizen child is also reviewed. Additional resources on the intersection of immigration and social work are included.

Ms. Eliana Kaimowitz, Attorney, Equal Justice Works Fellow, California Rural Legal Assistance Foundation

Ms. Yali Lincroft, Policy Consultant, First Focus

12:15–1:30 p.m. Lunch Plenary – Legal Update: New Rules and Forms for Family Law and Domestic Violence ◆

In addition to many legislative changes and case law this year, many family law rules and form changes will become effective January 1, 2012. This workshop will cover these changes and those that are scheduled to come into effect later in the year.

FRIDAY: LEGAL AID/SELF HELP TRACK, FAMILY LAW CONFERENCE

WORKSHOPS CONTINUED (Listed alphabetically by time)

1:45-2:45 p.m. Child Care Issues for Separated Parents *◎◆

The training will cover issues that arise for parents when child care is part of the custody agreement. We will talk about privacy and access to information, drop-off and pick-up issues, the need for court orders, financial obligations, and what to do when there is domestic violence. We will also address how child care subsidies for low-income families can be affected by child support orders or payments ordered through the custody agreement.

Ms. Claire Ramsey, Staff Attorney, Child Care Law Center

1:45-2:45 p.m. Day-of-Court Conflict Resolution: a Collaborative Approach ◆

Santa Clara County Superior Court, Pro Bono Project of Silicon Valley, and volunteer attorneys are collaborating on several day-of-court conflict resolution programs at Family Court. Volunteer attorneys are assigned to select cases on law and motion calendars to address custody and visitation issues using collaborative and mediation models. The panel members include two family law judges who currently have these programs in their courtrooms, and three attorneys involved in implementing the program. They will review the various elements, including identifying the partners and bringing them to the table, determining the appropriate cases, the role of the Self Help Center staff, training and mentoring volunteer attorneys, securing funds in difficult fiscal times, and sustainability.

This session will introduce advocates to asylum claims founded on gender-based violence and violence against children. It will use three case studies that represent common claims: a domestic violence-based claim, a claim involving child abuse, and a claim in which the applicant fears persecution by gang members.

Ms. Stacey Rose Fernandez, Staff Attorney, Center for Gender and Refugee Studies, Asylum Law, UC Hastings

3:00–4:30 p.m. Vulnerable Parents: Overcoming Unique Challenges in Custody and Visitation Cases *◎◆

Working with low-income litigants from vulnerable populations, including parents with criminal records, parents who have histories of drug or alcohol abuse, and parents who are living with mental illness, present unique challenges and obstacles in custody and visitation disputes. Although these parents are often stereotype as ‘bad parents’, the reality is that many of these parents are survivors of trauma, both as children and adults, and are dealing with the effects of multiple socio-economic barriers in their lives. This panel will identify many of the challenges vulnerable parents face in establishing and maintaining relationships with their children, and effective tools and creative strategies practitioners can use to address these issues in the case. First, we will provide an overview of who these vulnerable parents are, and the cyclical relationship between domestic violence and incarceration, addiction, and mental health. Next, we will discuss the legal challenges that many parents in this population face, including modifying juvenile dependency court exit orders and permanent family law orders, rebutting Family Code 3044, and the difference between ‘family reunification’ in family law cases as compared to dependency court cases. We will then use case studies to demonstrate how challenges were identified, assessed, and overcome in custody and visitation disputes in our own practice. Finally, we will open

FRIDAY: EDUCATION FOR JUVENILE AND FAMILY COURT JUDICIAL OFFICERS

(Open to judicial officers only)

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Location: AOC San Francisco Office

8:00 a.m. – 3:50 p.m.

The family law judicial officers track is jointly sponsored by the AOC Center for Families, Children & the Courts (CFCC) and Education Division/Center for Judicial Education and Research (CJER). The juvenile law judicial officers track is sponsored by the AOC CFCC.

The judicial education program is divided into separate tracks for each court type. Juvenile judges will select workshops on disproportionate minority contact, Fostering Connections to Success Act (AB12/212) and Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children (ICPC) v. Interstate Compact on Juveniles (ICJ). For family law judges, workshop selections will cover case management, live testimony, children's testimony, and dividing property. Participants will attend a joint ethics course and receive two hours of ethics credit.

These courses are limited to judicial officers only. A listing of workshops and faculty is available to family and juvenile law judicial officers only and will be distributed at this program. To request a copy after the conference, please contact Alma Balmes at alma.balmes@jud.ca.gov or 415-865-8986.

Thank you for attending Beyond the Bench 21!

Please let us know about your educational experience at the conference by completing an online evaluation. We would appreciate your feedback. The conference evaluation will remain open through February 16, 2012.
