Pursuant to the Supplemental Report of the 2019 Budget Act by the Legislative Analyst's Office, trial courts are required to provide data to the Judicial Council of California on the number of petitions granted for mental health diversion under Penal Code § 1001.36. This 2023 Mental Health Diversion Summary Report reflects data on the number of petitions that were granted beginning January 1, 2020, the start of the required reporting period. Some trial courts voluntarily reported data from the second half of 2019, and this data is included where available.

The Judicial Council is working with courts to collect data on supplemental data elements. Supplemental data will become available beginning with the 2025 Mental Health Diversion Summary Report.

The Judicial Council works with trial courts to collect mental health diversion data, when possible, on supplemental data elements, including the number of petitions denied, the number of individuals who successfully completed the diversion program, and the number of individuals that were terminated from the program. Recent legislative changes expanding access to mental health diversion have created additional pathways to diversion that deviate from the petition process. Data collection on the supplemental data elements is currently limited to the subset of cases where diversion is initiated through the petition process and therefore not inclusive of cases where mental health diversion is accessible through the recent, statutorily created pathways. Due to this limitation, reporting on the supplemental data elements is currently unavailable.

The Judicial Council is examining opportunities to assist trial courts in collecting data that reflect all pathways to mental health diversion and is in the process of updating data definitions to better assist trial courts with reporting on supplemental data elements. Data collection based on the updated data definitions is planned to begin in 2024. The Judicial Council anticipates that supplemental data will be reported beginning with the 2025 Mental Health Diversion Summary Report, which will be the first report to include data collected during the 2024 calendar year.
