

 Court to College: A Collaborative Court Approach to Providing Offenders with Access to Education

Court to College (C2C)

Hon. Peter Paul Espinoza, Superior County of California, County of Los Angeles
 Dr. Renee De Long Chomlak, Dean of Counseling Services, Cerritos College, Norwalk
 Linda Dandy, Director, Division of Recidivism Reduction and Re-entry, California Department of Justice
 Sharon Owelsy, Deputy Director for Programs, Division of Recidivism Reduction and Re-entry, California Department of Justice
 Martha Wright, Moderator, Senior Court Services Analyst, Judicial Council, Criminal Justice Services

 Education Reduces Recidivism

- In California, more than six out of ten persons who leave prison are incarcerated again within three years of release (California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation Office of Research, January 2014)
- A RAND meta-analysis concluded that participating in any kind of education while incarcerated (GED, adult education, high school courses, career technical education [CTE] and college) reduced the chances of recidivism by 43% (L. Davis et al., the RAND Corporation, 2013)

 Education Reduces Recidivism (Continued)

- A college education provides many benefits to all citizens
 - Many jobs require at least some postsecondary education and the demand for a higher education of skilled individuals outweighs the supply (Mukamal, Silbert & Taylor, 2015)
 - By 2025, 41% of jobs will demand at least a Bachelor's degree yet only 35% of working age adults in California will have attained a Bachelor's degree (Bohn, 2014)
- Individuals with criminal histories have even more difficulty obtaining a position that pays them a living wage
 - Approximately 92% of employers across the nation check out the criminal history of job applicants (Society of Human Resource Management, 2010)
 - Incarceration may reduce an individual's earnings annually by 30 to 40% (Western, Russell Sage Foundation, 2006)

Education Reduces Recidivism (Continued)

- The timing is Critical for Court to College (C2C)
 - While California once led the nation by educating current and formerly incarcerated students (programs in every prison, fifteen community colleges and nearly half of CSU campuses), only a few programs currently exist (Mukamal et al., 2015).
 - With benefit to all citizens, education is once again being revisited as a major component of need for those facing incarceration

Why Community College?

- The majority of individuals begin their education at a community college
- There are one hundred and thirteen community colleges across California, providing commuter access to millions of individuals
- The California Community College system is the largest higher education system in the nation, with 2.1 million students (California Community College Chancellor's Office, 2015)
- Community Colleges are the "people's college" and embrace any student eighteen years or older who can "benefit from instruction"
- Community colleges are affordable and financial aid offices assist incoming students
- Community colleges offer a variety of certificate and degree programs

Why Cerritos College?

- Cerritos College has been an active community educational institution since 1956
- Cerritos College has a history and longstanding partnership with the Los Angeles Superior Court
- Cerritos College is dedicated to serving particularly first-generation students of color who may need extra assistance in learning how to navigate the educational system
 - Comment on LA Times "Latino Transfer" article?
 - Mention Puente & Umoja programs?
- In addition to excellent counselors, there are a variety of supportive services which include but are not limited to financial aid, tutoring, orientations, clubs, and student government options

Court to College (C2C)

- Is a collaborative program with Los Angeles County Superior Court
- Target population is age 18-25 felony charge with medium to high risk to recidivate
- Screening includes a modified Wisconsin Risk Assessment
- N= 100 (Two cohorts of 50)
- Guilty plea, agree to 3 years probation
- Participants report to Probation and are sent to Cerritos College Counseling Office
- Counselors determine individual course of study based on students level of education, placement on ACCUPLACER (math , English, reading and interests)
- Other tests may be administered through Career Services including Myers-Briggs and Strong Interest Inventory

Cerritos College C2C

- From the moment participants arrive, their C2C progress is tracked
- They are told by Probation to report within 5 days to Cerritos College
- They are met by a C2C team member to start the regular Cerritos College matriculation process
 - Application then AOC
 - Assessment
 - Orientation
 - Counseling
- Cerritos College C2C team consist of :
 - Dean
 - Counseling Department Chair
 - 1 Full-time and 2 Part-time Counselors
 - Administrative Clerk who tracks the data and reports participant list and progress weekly

“ This initiative can’t be just about recidivism. The value system behind education has to be the betterment of people’s lives. It makes the whole feel of the program different.”

-Vivian Nixon, Executive Director of College and Community Fellowship

 References

Bohn, Sarah. "California's Need for Skilled Workers." (Public Policy Institute of California publication). Sept. 2014. Web. 25 Nov. 2015

California Community Colleges Chancellor's Office. "California Community Colleges Key Fact." Nov. 2014. Web.

California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation Office of Research. comp. 2013 Outcome Evaluation Report. Jan. 2014. Web.

Davis, Lois M. Evaluating the Effectiveness of Correctional Education: A Meta-analysis of Programs That Provide Education to Incarcerated Adults. The Rand Corporation, 2013. Web.

Mukamal, Debbie, Rebecca Silbert, and Rebecca Taylor. Degrees of Freedom: Expanding College Opportunities for Currently and Formerly Incarcerated Californians. Rep. Print.

Western, Bruce. Punishment and Inequality in America (Russell Sage Foundation, 2006)
