Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions

CACI*

* Pronounced "Casey"

As approved at the Judicial Council's Rules Committee October 2024 Meeting and Judicial Council November 2024 Meeting

1

Judicial Council of California

Series 100–2500

Judicial Council of California
Advisory Committee on Civil Jury Instructions

Hon. Adrienne M. Grover, Chair

LexisNexis Matthew Bender
Official Publisher

QUESTIONS ABOUT THIS PUBLICATION?

For questions about the Editorial Content appearing in these volumes or reprint permission, please call or email:

Paul A. Ernest, J.D. at ..... (971) 270-8766
Email: ..... paul.ernest@lexisnexis.com

For assistance with replacement pages, shipments, billing or other customer service matters, please call:

Customer Services Department at . . . . . (800) 833-9844
Outside the United States and Canada, please call . . . . . (518) 487-3385
Fax Number . . . . . (800) 828-8341
LexisNexis® Support Center . . . . . https://supportcenter.lexisnexis.com/app/home/

For information on other Matthew Bender publications, please call

Your account manager or . . . . . (800) 223-1940
Outside the United States and Canada, please call . . . . . (518) 487-3385

ISSN: 1549-7100
ISBN: 978-1-6633-9023-3 (print)

CITE THIS PUBLICATION: Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions (2025 edition)
Cite these instructions: "CACI No. _____."
Cite these verdict forms: "CACI No. VF-_____."

Editorial Office
230 Park Ave., 7th Floor, New York, NY 10169 (800) 543-6862
www.lexisnexis.com

(12/2024–Pub.1283)

Preface to CACI Updates

This edition of CACI includes a number of additions and changes to the instructions, which were first published in 2003. In providing these updates, the Judicial Council Advisory Committee on Civil Jury Instructions is fulfilling its charge to maintain CACI. The committee is also striving to add instructions in new areas of the law and to augment existing areas.

The impetus for the revisions came from several sources including CACI users who detected changes in the law or who simply sought to do a better job of explaining the law in plain English. Responding to feedback from users is consistent with the Advisory Committee's goal to act as a vehicle for maintaining CACI as the work product of the legal community. We hope that our hundreds of contributors view our role in the same way and that they will continue to support us.

November 2024

Hon. Adrienne M. Grover
Court of Appeal, Sixth District
Chair, Advisory Committee on Civil Jury Instructions

The Advisory Committee on Civil Jury Instructions welcomes comments. Send comments by email to: civiljuryinstructions@jud.ca.gov

Or you may send print comments by regular mail to:

Advisory Committee on Civil Jury Instructions—Attn.
Eric Long
Legal Services Office
455 Golden Gate Avenue
San Francisco, CA 94102-3588

Table of New and Revised CACI

December 2024

This 2025 Edition of CACI includes all of the new and revised California Civil Jury Instructions approved by the Judicial Council's Rules Committee at its October 2024 meeting and the Judicial Council at its November 2024 meeting.

Table of Renumbered and Revoked Instructions

214	Revoked December 2012
361	Revoked December 2013
408	Renumbered to 470 May 2017
409	Renumbered to 471 May 2017
410	Renumbered to 428 and replaced by new 410 December 2013
410	Renumbered to 472 410 May 2017
450	Revoked June 2010; replaced by 450A, 450B December 2010
450A	Derived from 450 December 2010
450B	Derived from 450 December 2010
470	Renumbered from 408 May 2017
471	Renumbered from 409 May 2017
472	Renumbered from 410 May 2017
VF-405	Renumbered to VF-411 December 2015
VF-411	Renumbered from VF-405 December 2015
503	Replaced by 503A, 503B April 2007
503A	Derived from 503 April 2007
503B	Derived from 503 April 2007
530	Replaced by 530A, 530B April 2007
530A	Derived from 530 April 2007
530B	Derived from 530 April 2007
605	Renumbered to 4106 December 2007
802	Revoked February 2007
1009	Replaced by 1009A, 1009B February 2007
1009A	Derived from 1009 February 2007
1009B	Derived from 1009 February 2007
1009C	Revoked December 2011
1009D	Derived from 1009B April 2009
1123	Renumbered to 1124 December 2014
1124	Renumbered from 1123 December 2014
1207	Replaced by 1207A, 1207B April 2009
1207A	Derived from 1207 April 2009
1207B	Derived from 1207 April 2009
1240	Revoked June 2010; restored December 2010
VF-1202	Revoked December 2014
1305	Renumbered to 1305A May 2021
1305A	Renumbered from 1305 May 2021
VF-1303	Renumbered to VF-1303A May 2021
VF-1303A	Renumbered from VF-1303 May 2021
1503	Revoked October 2008; replaced by former 1506 December 2013

1504	Revoked October 2008
1505	Renumbered to 1510 June 2013
1506	Renumbered to 1503 June 2013
1709	Renumbered from 1722 November 2017
1722	Renumbered to 1709 November 2017
1722	Renumbered from 1724 November 2017
1724	Renumbered to new 1722 November 2017
1804	Replaced by 1804A, 1804B April 2008
1804A	Derived from 1804 April 2008
1804B	Derived from 1804 April 2008
1806	Revoked December 2007
1808	Revoked June 2015
VF-1805	Revoked December 2007
VF-1806	Revoked December 2007
1905	Revoked December 2013
2203	Revoked December 2013
VF-2302	Revoked April 2008
2402	Revoked November 2018
2407	Renumbered to 3963 November 2018
2433	Renumbered to 3903P November 2018
2440	Revoked June 2013; restored December 2013; renumbered to 4600 June 2015
2442	Renumbered to 4601 June 2015
2443	Renumbered to 4602 June 2015
2521	Replaced by 2521A, 2521B, 2521C December 2007
2521A	Derived from 2521 December 2007
2521B	Derived from 2521 December 2007
2521C	Derived from 2521 December 2007
2522	Replaced by 2522A, 2522B, 2522C December 2007
2522A	Derived from 2522 December 2007
2522B	Derived from 2522 December 2007
2522C	Derived from 2522 December 2007
2543	Revoked June 2013; restored December 2013
2561	Revoked December 2012; restored June 2013
VF-2506	Replaced by VF-2506A, VF-2506B, VF-2506C December 2007
VF-2506A	Derived from VF-2506 December 2007
VF-2506B	Derived from VF-2506 December 2007
VF-2506C	Derived from VF-2506 December 2007
VF-2507	Replaced by VF-2507A, VF-2507B, VF-2507C December 2007
VF-2507A	Derived from VF-2507 December 2007
VF-2507B	Derived from VF-2507 December 2007
VF-2507C	Derived from VF-2507 December 2007
2613	Revoked May 2021
2630	Revoked May 2021
2730	Revoked June 2014; restored December 2014; renumbered to 4603 June 2015
2731	Renumbered to 4604 June 2015

3001	Renumbered to 3020 and replaced by former 3007 December 2012
3002	Renumbered to 3022 and replaced by former 3008 December 2012
3003	Renumbered to 3023 and replaced by former 3009 December 2012
3004	Renumbered to 3024 and replaced by former 3010 December 2012
3005	Renumbered to 3025 and replaced by former 3017 December 2012
3006	Renumbered to 3026 December 2012
3007	Renumbered to 3001 December 2012
3008	Renumbered to 3002 December 2012
3009	Renumbered to 3003 December 2012
3010	Renumbered to 3013 and replaced by new 3010 December 2010; renumbered to 3004 December 2012
3011	Renumbered to 3040 December 2012
3012	Renumbered to 3041 December 2012
3013	Renumbered to 3017 and replaced by new 3013 December 2010; renumbered to 3042 December 2012
3014	Renumbered to 3021 December 2012
3015	Revoked December 2012
3016	Renumbered to 3050 December 2012
3017	Renumbered to 3005 December 2012
3020	Renumbered to 3060 and replaced by former 3001 December 2012
3021	Renumbered to 3061 and replaced by former 3014 December 2012
3022	Renumbered to 3062 and replaced by former 3002 December 2012
3023	Replaced by 3023A, 3023B December 2009; replaced by former 3003 December 2012
3023A	Derived from 3023 December 2009; renumbered to 3063 December 2012
3023B	Derived from 3023 December 2009; renumbered to 3064 December 2012
3024	Renumbered to 3065 and replaced by former 3004 December 2012
3025	Renumbered to 3066 and replaced by former 3005 December 2012
3026	Renumbered to 3067 and replaced by former 3006 December 2012
3027	Renumbered to 3068 December 2012; replaced by new 3027 December 2013
3028	Renumbered to 3069 December 2012
VF-3001	Renumbered to VF-3010 and replaced by former VF-3005 December 2012
VF-3002	Renumbered to VF-3011 and replaced by former VF-3006 December 2012
VF-3003	Renumbered to VF-3012 December 2012
VF-3004	Renumbered to VF-3013 December 2012
VF-3005	Renumbered to VF-3001 December 2012
VF-3006	Renumbered to VF-3002 December 2012
VF-3007	Renumbered to VF-3020 December 2012
VF-3008	Renumbered to VF-3021 December 2012
VF-3009	Renumbered to VF-3022 December 2012
VF-3010	Renumbered to VF-3030 and replaced by former VF-3001 December 2012
VF-3011	Renumbered to VF-3031 and replaced by former VF-3002 December 2012
VF-3012	Renumbered to VF-3032 and replaced by former VF-3003 December 2012
VF-3013	Renumbered to VF-3033 and replaced by former VF-3004 December 2012
VF-3014	Renumbered to VF-3034 December 2012

VF-3015	Renumbered to VF-3035 December 2012
3102	Replaced by 3102A, 3102B October 2008
3102A	Derived from 3102 October 2008
3102B	Derived from 3102 October 2008
3105	Revoked October 2008
3108	Revoked October 2008
3111	Revoked October 2008
3213	Renumbered to 3222 June 2012
3230	Renumbered to 3206 and replaced by new 3230 June 2012
3509	Renumbered to 3509A May 2017
3509A	Renumbered from 3509 May 2017
3511	Renumbered to 3511A May 2017
3511A	Renumbered from 3511 May 2017
3724	Renumbered from 3726 November 2017
3724	Renumbered to new 3726 November 2017
3726	Renumbered from 3724 November 2017
3726	Renumbered to new 3724 November 2017
3903Q	Renumbered to new 3919 May 2022
3919	Renumbered from 3903Q May 2022
3904	Renumbered to 3904A December 2010
3963	Renumbered to 3965 November 2018
4003	Revoked May 2019
4010	Revoked July 2018
4106	Renumbered to 4120 and replaced by former 605 December 2007
4606	Revoked November 2017
4600	Renumbered from 2440 June 2015
4601	Renumbered from 2442 June 2015
4602	Renumbered from 2443 June 2015
4603	Renumbered from 2730 June 2015
4604	Renumbered from 2731 June 2015

Judicial Council Advisory Committee on Civil Jury Instructions

HON. ADRIENNE M. GROVER
Chair

COMMITTEE MEMBERS
HON. SUZANNE RAMOS BOLANOS
MS. KATHLEEN A. BREWER
HON. TANA L. COATES
MR. NICHOLAS P. CONNON
HON. JOHN P. DEVINE
HON. CYNTHIA A. FREELAND
MR. PAUL T. HAYDEN
MR. MICHAEL A. KELLY
MS. MICHELLE G. LEE
MR. JOSEPH P. MCMONIGLE
HON. MARLA J. MILLER
HON. IOANA PETROU
MS. MELINDA PILLING
MR. JULIAN W. POON
MR. RAHUL RAVIPUDI
MR. TODD M. SCHNEIDER
HON. DEBORAH C. SERVINO
HON. MARK T. SMITH
HON. MARK WOOD SNAUFFER
MS. CHRISTINE SPAGNOLI
HON. JENNA M. WHITMAN
HON. JOHN SHEPARD WILEY JR.

ADMINISTRATIVE DIRECTOR, STAFF TO THE JUDICIAL COUNCIL
MS. MICHELLE CURRAN

LEGAL SERVICES OFFICE
MS. DEBORAH BROWN, CHIEF COUNSEL
MR. ERIC LONG, ATTORNEY

Judicial Council of California

Chair
Hon. Patricia Guerrero

Supreme Court
Hon. Carol A. Corrigan

Courts of Appeal
Hon. Stacy E. Boulware Eurie
Hon. Carin T. Fujisaki
Hon. Brad R. Hill

Trial Courts
Hon. Maria Lucy Armendariz
Hon. Bunmi O. Awoniyi
Hon. C. Todd Bottke
Hon. Charles S. Crompton
Hon. Judith K. Dulcich
Hon. Samuel K. Feng
Hon. Maureen F. Hallahan
Hon. Maria D. Hernandez
Hon. Ann C. Moorman
Hon. Tamara Wood

Legislature
Hon. Brian Maienschein
Hon. Thomas J. Umberg

State Bar
Ms. Rachel W. Hill
Ms. Gretchen Nelson
Mr. Craig M. Peters
Mr. Maxwell V. Pritt

Advisory Members
Hon. Khymberli S. Apaloo
Ms. Kate Bieker
Hon. Kyle S. Brodie
Hon. Ryan Davis
Hon. Joan K. Irion
Mr. Charles Johnson
Mr. Darrel E. Parker

Judicial Council of California

Hon. Lisa M. Rogan
Mr. David Yamasaki

Secretary
Ms. Michelle Curran
Administrative Director

The Judicial Council is the policymaking body of the California courts. Under the leadership of the Chief Justice and in accordance with the California Constitution, the council is responsible for ensuring the consistent, independent, impartial, and accessible administration of justice.

Preface

These instructions represent the work of a task force on jury instructions appointed by Chief Justice Ronald M. George in 1997. The task force's charge was to write instructions that are legally accurate and understandable to the average juror. The six-year effort responded to a perceived need for instructions written in plain English and the specific recommendation of the Blue Ribbon Commission on Jury System Improvement.

Jurors perform an invaluable service in our democracy, making important decisions that affect many aspects of our society. The Judicial Council instructions attempt to clarify the legal principles jurors must consider in reaching their decisions. The instructions were prepared by a statewide, broad-based task force consisting of court of appeal justices, trial judges, attorneys, academics, and lay people. They are approved by the Judicial Council as the state's official jury instructions under the California Rules of Court (see now Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 2.1050(a)). The Rules of Court provide that the use of these instructions is strongly encouraged (see now Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 2.1050(e)).

These instructions were prepared with a minimum of three steps: staff attorney drafts, subcommittee refinement, and full task force consideration. Initial drafts of the instructions were prepared by staff attorneys in the former Administrative Office of the Courts (now Legal Services Office) in San Francisco, primarily Lyn Hinegardner. Lawyers throughout the state provided subject-matter expertise and, in some cases, sets of instructions from which the task force began its drafting. These instructions were submitted to the legal community for comment and, in responding, hundreds of attorneys and judges provided valuable assistance. Several organizations, most particularly State Bar sections, provided invaluable input. A list of people and organizations who contributed to this effort follows; we apologize to those who have been omitted through oversight.

We are grateful to the publisher of this work. Representatives of LexisNexis Matthew Bender worked closely with us to prepare the jury instructions for publication. We appreciate their efficiency and courtesy.

We would also like to express our appreciation to our predecessor. The people of California and the legal community have been well served for over 60 years by BAJI, California Jury Instructions, Civil, Book of Approved Jury Instructions, written by a committee of the Superior Court of California, County of Los Angeles. That we have taken a very different approach to drafting of instructions does not detract from the historic importance of work done by the BAJI committee.

We believe that these instructions go a long way toward achieving the goal of a plain-English explanation of the law. These instructions, like the law, will be constantly changing. Change will come not only through appellate decisions and legislation but also through the observations and comments of the legal community. The Judicial Council Advisory Committee on Civil Jury Instructions, which has the responsibility of maintaining these instructions, welcomes your comments and suggestions for improvement.

September 2003

James D. Ward, Former Associate Justice
Court of Appeal, Fourth Appellate District, Division Two

Vice-Chair, Task Force on Jury Instructions
Chair, Civil Instruction Section

Judicial Council Task Force on Jury Instructions
Civil Instructions Subcommittee

Hon. James D. Ward, Chair
Prof. Lee Campbell
Mr. William B. Chapman
Hon. H. Walter Croskey
Hon. Barton C. Gaut
Ms. Janet M. Green
Hon. Joseph B. Harvey
Hon. Harry E. Hull, Jr.
Mr. Michael A. Kelly
Hon. Carolyn B. Kuhl
Ms. Edith R. Matthai
Hon. Michael B. Orfield
Hon. Stuart R. Pollak
Mr. Tyler Pon
Hon. Ignazio J. Ruvolo
Mr. Daniel U. Smith
Ms. Christine Spagnoli
Hon. Lynn O'Malley Taylor

Table of Contents
Volume 1

Volume 2

Volume 1 Table of Contents

Volume 2 Table of Contents

SERIES 3400 CARTWRIGHT ACT

Related Publications from LexisNexis Matthew Bender

Litigation

California Forms of Pleading and Practice

California Points and Authorities

California Forms of Jury Instruction

LexisNexis Automated Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions (CACI)

Judicial Council of California Criminal Jury Instructions (CALCRIM) (LexisNexis Matthew Bender, Official Publisher)

LexisNexis Automated Judicial Council of California Criminal Jury Instructions (CALCRIM)

California Pretrial Civil Procedure Practice Guide: The Wagstaffe Group

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Civil Discovery

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Insurance Litigation

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California E-Discovery and Evidence

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Debt Collection and Enforcement of Judgments

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Civil Appeals and Writs

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Landlord-Tenant Litigation

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Trust Litigation

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California

Johnson, California Trial Guide

Cotchett, California Courtroom Evidence

Imwinkelried & Leach, California Evidentiary Foundations

Cabraser, California Class Actions and Coordinate Proceedings, 2d ed.

DeMeo, California Deposition and Discovery Practice

Hogan & Weber, California Civil Discovery

Johns, California Damages: Law & Proof, 5th ed.

California Judicial Council Forms on HotDocs

Moore's Federal Practice, 3d ed.

Codes

Deering's California Codes Annotated

Matthew Bender and Deering's Desktop Codes

Citations

Related Publications from LexisNexis Matthew Bender

Shepard's Citations

Specialized Publications

Antitrust Laws & Trade Regulation

New Appleman on Insurance Law Library Edition

Wilcox, California Employment Law

California Employment Law Reporter

Selmi & Manaster, California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice

California Insurance Law and Practice

California Products Liability Actions

California Real Estate Law and Practice

California Legal Forms—Transaction Guide

Levy, Golden & Sacks, California Torts

California Uninsured Motorist Law

Hanna, California Law of Employee Injuries and Workers' Compensation

Civil Rights Actions

Long, The Law of Liability Insurance

Nichols on Eminent Domain

For a complete listing of LexisNexis Matthew Bender products, visit the online bookstore at <http://www.lexisnexis.com/store/us/>.

Publisher's Editorial Staff

JAMES V. CODELLA, J.D., LL.M.
Editorial Director

PAUL A. ERNEST, J.D.
Legal Editor

SHARON BURNS
Director, Publishing Operations

ALISA BRANCATELLI
Content Operations Analyst

PAT HEALY
Index Editor

Guide for Using Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions

Ease of understanding by jurors, without sacrificing accuracy, is the primary goal of these Judicial Council instructions. A secondary goal is ease of use by lawyers. This guide provides an introduction to the instructions, explaining conventions and features that will assist in the use of both the print and electronic editions.

Jury Instructions as a Statement of the Law: While jury instructions are not a primary source of the law, they are a statement or compendium of the law, a secondary source. That the instructions are in plain English does not change their status as an accurate statement of the law.

Instructions Approved by Rule of Court: Rule 2.1050 of the California Rules of Court provides: "The California jury instructions approved by the Judicial Council are the official instructions for use in the state of California . . . The Judicial Council endorses these instructions for use and makes every effort to ensure that they accurately state existing law . . . Use of the Judicial Council instructions is strongly encouraged."

Absence of Instruction: The fact that there is no CACI instruction on a claim, defense, rule, or other situation does not indicate that no instruction would ever be appropriate.

Using the Instructions

Revision Dates: The original date of approval and all revision dates of each instruction are presented. An instruction is considered as having been revised if there is a nontechnical change to the title, instruction text, or Directions for Use. Additions or changes to the Sources and Authority and Secondary Sources do not generate a new revision date. Beginning with the 2024 edition (instructions approved November 2023), revision dates marked with an asterisk indicate that changes were to the Directions for Use or title, with no change to the instruction text.

Directions for Use: The instructions contain Directions for Use. The directions alert the user to special circumstances involving the instruction and may include references to other instructions that should or should not be used. In some cases the directions include suggestions for modifications or for additional instructions that may be required. Before using any instruction, reference should be made to the Directions for Use.

Sources and Authority: Each instruction sets forth the primary sources that present the basic legal principles that support the instruction. Applicable statutes are listed along with quoted material from cases that pertain to the subject matter of the instruction. Authorities are included to support the text of the instruction, the burden of proof, and matters of law and of fact.

Cases included in the Sources and Authority should be treated as a digest of relevant citations. They are not meant to provide a complete analysis of the legal subject of the instruction. Nor does the inclusion of an excerpt necessarily mean that the committee views it as binding authority. Rather, they provide a starting point for further legal research on the subject. The standard is that the committee believes that the excerpt would be of interest and relevant to CACI users.

Secondary Sources are also provided for treatises and practice guides from a variety of legal publishers.

Instructions for the Common Case: These instructions were drafted for the common type of case and can be used as drafted in most cases. When unique or complex circumstances prevail, users will have to adapt the instructions to the particular case.

Multiple Parties: Because jurors more easily understand instructions that refer to parties by name rather than by legal terms such as "plaintiff" and "defendant," the instructions provide for insertion of names. For simplicity of presentation, the instructions use single party plaintiffs and defendants as examples. If a case involves multiple parties or cross-complaints, the user will usually need to modify the parties in the instructions. Rather than naming a number of parties in each place calling for names, the user may consider putting the names of all applicable parties in the beginning and thereafter identifying them as "plaintiffs," "defendants," "cross-complaints," etc. Different instructions often apply to different parties. The user should only include the parties to whom each instruction applies.

Personal Pronouns: Many CACI instructions include an option to insert the personal pronouns "he/she/nonbinary pronoun," "his/her/nonbinary pronoun," or "him/her/nonbinary pronoun." It is the policy of the State of California that intersex, transgender, and nonbinary people are entitled to full legal recognition and equal treatment under the law. In accordance with this policy, attorneys and courts should take affirmative steps to ensure that they are using individuals' correct personal pronouns. Although the advisory committee acknowledges a trend for the use of "they," "their," and "them" as singular personal pronouns, the committee also recognizes these same pronouns have plural denotations with the potential to confuse jurors. For clarity in the jury instructions, the committee recommends using an individual's name rather than a personal nonbinary pronoun (such as "they") if the pronoun's use could result in confusion.

Reference to "Harm" in Place of "Damage" or "Injury": In many of the instructions, the word harm is used in place of damage, injury, or other similar words. The drafters of the instructions felt that this word was clearer to jurors.

Substantial Factor: The instructions frequently use the term "substantial factor" to state the element of causation, rather than referring to "cause" and then defining that term in a separate instruction as a "substantial factor." An instruction that defines "substantial factor" is located in the Negligence series. The use of the instruction is not intended to be limited to cases involving negligence.

Listing of Elements and Factors: For ease of understanding, elements of causes of action or affirmative defenses are listed by numbers (e.g., 1, 2, 3) and factors to be considered by jurors in their deliberations are listed by letters (e.g., a, b, c).

Uncontested Elements: Although some elements may be the subject of a stipulation that the element has been proven, the instruction should set forth all of the elements and indicate those that are deemed to have been proven by stipulation of the parties. Omitting uncontested elements may leave the jury with an incomplete understanding of the cause of action and the plaintiff's full burden of proof. It is better to include all the elements and then indicate the parties have agreed that one or more of them has been established and need not be decided by the jury. One possible approach is as follows:

To establish this claim, [plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [plaintiff] and [defendant] entered into a contract (which is not disputed in this case);
2. That [plaintiff] did all, or substantially all, of the significant things that the contract required it to do;
3. That all conditions required for [defendant]'s performance had occurred (which is also not disputed in this case).

Irrelevant Factors: Factors are matters that the jury might consider in determining whether a party's burden of proof on the elements has been met. A list of possible factors may include some that have no relevance to the case and on which no evidence was presented. These irrelevant factors may safely be omitted from the instruction.

Burdens of Proof: The applicable burden of proof is included within each instruction explaining a cause of action or affirmative defense. The drafters felt that placing the burden of proof in that position provided a clearer explanation for the jurors.

Affirmative Defenses: For ease of understanding by users, all instructions explaining affirmative defenses use the term "affirmative defense" in the title.

Titles and Definitions

Titles of Instructions: Titles to instructions are directed to lawyers and sometimes use words and phrases not used in the instructions themselves. Since the title is not a part of the instruction, the titles may be removed before presentation to the jury.

Definitions of Legal Terms: The instructions avoid separate definitions of legal terms whenever possible. Instead, definitions have been incorporated into the language of the instructions. In some instances (e.g., specific statutory definitions) it was not possible to avoid providing a separate definition.

Evidence

Circumstantial Evidence: The words "indirect evidence" have been substituted for the expression "circumstantial evidence." In response to public comment on the subject, however, the drafters added a sentence indicating that indirect evidence is sometimes known as circumstantial evidence.

Preponderance of the Evidence: To simplify the instructions' language, the drafters avoided the phrase preponderance of the evidence and the verb preponderate. The instructions substitute in place of that phrase reference to evidence that is "more likely to be true than not true."

Using Verdict Forms

Verdict Forms are Models: A large selection of special verdict forms accompanies the instructions. Users of the forms must bear in mind that these are models only. Rarely can they be used without modifications to fit the circumstances of a particular case.

Purpose of Verdict Forms: The special verdict forms generally track the elements of the applicable cause of action. Their purpose is to obtain the jury's finding on the elements defined in the instructions. "The special verdict must present the conclusions of fact as established by the evidence, and not the evidence to prove them; and those conclusions of fact must be so presented as that nothing shall remain to the court but to draw from them conclusions of law." (Code Civ. Proc., § 624; see Trujillo v. North County Transit Dist. (1998) 63 Cal.App.4th 280, 285 [73 Cal.Rptr.2d 596].) Modifications made to the instructions in particular cases ordinarily will require corresponding modifications to the special verdict form.

Multiple Parties: The verdict forms have been written to address one plaintiff against one defendant. In nearly all cases involving multiple parties, the issues and the evidence will be such that the jury could reach different results for different parties. The liability of each defendant should always be evaluated individually, and the damages to be awarded to each plaintiff must usually be determined separately. Therefore, separate special verdicts should usually be prepared for each plaintiff with regard to each defendant. In some cases, the facts may be sufficiently simple to include multiple parties in the same verdict form, but if this is done, the transitional language from one question to another must be modified to account for all the different possibilities of yes and no answers for the various parties.

Multiple Causes of Action: The verdict forms are self-contained for a particular cause of action. When multiple causes of action are being submitted to the jury, it may be better to combine the verdict forms and eliminate duplication.

Modifications as Required by Circumstances: The verdict forms must be modified as required by the circumstances. It is necessary to determine whether any lesser or greater specificity is appropriate. The question in special verdict forms for plaintiff's damages provides an illustration. Consistent with the jury instructions, the question asks the jury to determine separately the amounts of past and future economic loss, and of past and future noneconomic loss. These four choices are included in brackets. In some cases it may be unnecessary to distinguish between past and future losses. In others there may be no claim for either economic or noneconomic damages. In some cases the court may wish to eliminate the terms "economic loss" and "noneconomic loss" from both the instructions and the verdict form. Without defining those terms, the court may prefer simply to ask the jury to determine the appropriate amounts for the various components of the losses without categorizing them for the jury as economic or noneconomic. The court can fix liability as joint or several under Civil Code sections 1431 and 1431.2, based on the verdicts. A more itemized breakdown of damages may be appropriate if the court is concerned about the sufficiency of the evidence supporting a particular component of damages. Appropriate special verdicts are preferred when periodic payment schedules may be required by Code of Civil Procedure section 667.7. (Gorman v. Leftwich (1990) 218 Cal.App.3d 141, 148–150 [266 Cal.Rptr. 671].)

November 2024

Hon. Adrienne M. Grover
Chair, Judicial Council Advisory Committee on Civil Jury Instructions

PRETRIAL

100. Preliminary Admonitions

You have now been sworn as jurors in this case. I want to impress on you the seriousness and importance of serving on a jury. Trial by jury is a fundamental right in California. The parties have a right to a jury that is selected fairly, that comes to the case without bias, and that will attempt to reach a verdict based on the evidence presented. Before we begin, I need to explain how you must conduct yourselves during the trial.

Do not allow anything that happens outside this courtroom to affect your decision. During the trial do not talk about this case or the people involved in it with anyone, including family and persons living in your household, friends and co-workers, spiritual leaders, advisors, or therapists. You may say you are on a jury and how long the trial may take, but that is all. You must not even talk about the case with the other jurors until after I tell you that it is time for you to decide the case.

This prohibition is not limited to face-to-face conversations. It also extends to all forms of electronic communications. Do not use any electronic device or media, such as a cell phone or smart phone, PDA, computer, the Internet, any Internet service, any text or instant-messaging service, any Internet chat room, blog, or website, including social networking websites or online diaries, to send or receive any information to or from anyone about this case or your experience as a juror until after you have been discharged from your jury duty.

During the trial you must not listen to anyone else talk about the case or the people involved in the case. You must avoid any contact with the parties, the lawyers, the witnesses, and anyone else who may have a connection to the case. If anyone tries to talk to you about this case, tell that person that you cannot discuss it because you are a juror. If that person keeps talking to you, simply walk away and report the incident to the court [attendant/bailiff] as soon as you can.

After the trial is over and I have released you from jury duty, you may discuss the case with anyone, but you are not required to do so.

During the trial, do not read, listen to, or watch any news reports about this case. [I have no information that there will be news reports concerning this case.] This prohibition extends to the use of the Internet in any way, including reading any blog about the case or about anyone involved with it. If you receive any information about this case from any source outside of the courtroom, promptly report it to the court [attendant/bailiff]. It is important that all jurors see and hear the same evidence at the same time.

Do not do any research on your own or as a group. Do not use dictionaries, the Internet, or other reference materials. Do not investigate the case or conduct any experiments. Do not contact anyone to assist you, such as a family accountant, doctor, or lawyer. Do not visit or view the scene of any event involved in this case or use any Internet maps or mapping programs or any other program or device to search for or to view any place discussed in the testimony. If you happen to pass by the scene, do not stop or investigate. If you do need to view the scene during the trial, you will be taken there as a group under proper supervision.

[If you violate any of these prohibitions on communications and research, including prohibitions on electronic communications and research, you may be held in contempt of court or face other sanctions. That means that you may have to serve time in jail, pay a fine, or face other punishment for that violation.]

It is important that you keep an open mind throughout this trial. Evidence can only be presented a piece at a time. Do not form or express an opinion about this case while the trial is going on. You must not decide on a verdict until after you have heard all the evidence and have discussed it thoroughly with your fellow jurors in your deliberations.

Do not concern yourselves with the reasons for the rulings I will make during the course of the trial. Do not guess what I may think your verdict should be from anything I might say or do.

When you begin your deliberations, you may discuss the case only in the jury room and only when all the jurors are present.

You must decide what the facts are in this case. Do not let bias, sympathy, prejudice, or public opinion influence your verdict.

At the end of the trial, I will explain the law that you must follow to reach your verdict. You must follow the law as I explain it to you, even if you do not agree with the law.

New September 2003; Revised April 2004, October 2004, February 2005, June 2005, December 2007, December 2009, December 2011, December 2012, May 2020

Directions for Use

This instruction should be given at the outset of every case, even as early as when the jury panel enters the courtroom (without the first sentence).

If the jury is allowed to separate, Code of Civil Procedure section 611 requires the judge to admonish the jury that "it is their duty not to converse with, or suffer themselves to be addressed by any other person, on any subject of the trial, and that it is their duty not to form or express an opinion thereon until the case is finally submitted to them."

Sources and Authority

- Constitutional Right to Jury Trial. Article I, section 16 of the California Constitution.
- Instructing the Jury. Code of Civil Procedure section 608.
- Jury as Trier of Fact. Evidence Code section 312.
- Admonishments to Jurors. Code of Civil Procedure section 611.
- Contempt of Court for Juror Misconduct. Code of Civil Procedure section 1209(a)(6).
- Under Code of Civil Procedure section 611, jurors may not "form or express an opinion" prior to deliberations. (See also City of Pleasant Hill v. First Baptist Church of Pleasant Hill (1969) 1 Cal.App.3d 384, 429 [82 Cal.Rptr. 1]. It is misconduct for a juror to prejudge the case. (Deward v. Clough (1966) 245 Cal.App.2d 439, 443–444 [54 Cal.Rptr. 68].)
- Jurors must not undertake independent investigations of the facts in a case. (Kritzer v. Citron (1950) 101 Cal.App.2d 33, 36 [224 P.2d 808]; Walter v. Ayvazian (1933) 134 Cal.App. 360, 365 [25 P.2d 526].)
- Jurors are required to avoid discussions with parties, counsel, or witnesses. (Wright v. Eastlick (1899) 125 Cal. 517, 520–521 [58 P. 87]; Garden Grove School Dist. v. Hendler (1965) 63 Cal.2d 141, 144 [45 Cal.Rptr. 313, 403 P.2d 721].)
- It is misconduct for jurors to engage in experiments that produce new evidence. (Smoketree-Lake Murray, Ltd. v. Mills Concrete Construction Co. (1991) 234 Cal.App.3d 1724, 1746 [286 Cal.Rptr. 435].)
- Unauthorized visits to the scene of matters involved in the case are improper. (Anderson v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (1963) 218 Cal.App.2d 276, 280 [32 Cal.Rptr. 328].)
- It is improper for jurors to receive information from the news media about the case. (Province v. Center for Women's Health & Family Birth (1993) 20 Cal.App.4th 1673, 1679 [25 Cal.Rptr.2d 667], disapproved on other grounds in Heller v. Norcal Mutual Ins. Co. (1994) 8 Cal.4th 30, 41 [32 Cal.Rptr.2d 200, 876 P.2d 999]; Hilliard v. A. H. Robins Co. (1983) 148 Cal.App.3d 374, 408 [196 Cal.Rptr. 117].)
- Jurors must avoid bias: " 'The right to unbiased and unprejudiced jurors is an inseparable and inalienable part of the right to trial by jury guaranteed by the Constitution.' " (Weathers v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1971) 5 Cal.3d 98, 110 [95 Cal.Rptr. 516, 485 P.2d 1132], internal citations omitted.) Evidence of racial prejudice and bias on the part of jurors amounts to misconduct and may constitute grounds for ordering a new trial. (Ibid.)
- An instruction to disregard any appearance of bias on the part of the judge is proper and may cure any error in a judge's comments. (Gist v. French (1955)

136 Cal.App.2d 247, 257–259 [288 P.2d 1003], disapproved on other grounds in Deshotel v. Atchinson, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1958) 50 Cal.2d 664, 667 [328 P.2d 449] and West v. City of San Diego (1960) 54 Cal.2d 469, 478 [6 Cal.Rptr. 289, 353 P.2d 929].) "It is well understood by most trial judges that it is of the utmost importance that the trial judge not communicate in any manner to the jury the judge's opinions on the case submitted to the jury, because juries tend to attach inflated importance to any such communication, even when the judge has no intention whatever of influencing a jury's determination." (Dorshkind v. Harry N. Koff Agency, Inc. (1976) 64 Cal.App.3d 302, 307 [134 Cal.Rptr. 344].)

Secondary Sources

27 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 322, Juries and Jury Selection, § 322.50 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, Ch. 17, Dealing With the Jury, 17.05

California Judges Benchbook: Civil Proceedings—Trial §§ 12.6, 13.50, 13.51, 13.58 (Cal CJER 2019)

101. Overview of Trial

To assist you in your tasks as jurors, I will now explain how the trial will proceed. I will begin by identifying the parties to the case. [*Name of plaintiff] filed this lawsuit. [He/She/Nonbinary pronoun/It] is called a [plaintiff/petitioner]. [He/She/Nonbinary pronoun/It] seeks [damages/specify other relief] from [name of defendant], who is called a [defendant/respondent].

[[*Name of plaintiff] claims [insert description of the plaintiff's claim(s)]. [Name of defendant] denies those claims. [[Name of defendant] also contends that [insert description of the defendant's affirmative defense(s)].]]

[[*Name of cross-complainant] has also filed what is called a cross complaint against [name of cross-defendant]. [Name of cross-complainant] is the [defendant/respondent], but also is called the cross-complainant. [Name of cross-defendant] is called a cross-defendant.]

[In [his/her/*nonbinary pronoun/its] cross-complaint, [name of cross-complainant] claims [insert description of the cross-complainant's claim(s)]. [Name of cross-defendant] denies those claims. [[Name of cross-defendant] also contends that [insert description of the cross-defendant's affirmative defense(s) to the cross-complaint].]]

First, each side may make an opening statement, but neither side is required to do so. An opening statement is not evidence. It is simply an outline to help you understand what that party expects the evidence will show. Also, because it is often difficult to give you the evidence in the order we would prefer, the opening statement allows you to keep an overview of the case in mind during the presentation of the evidence.

Next, the jury will hear the evidence. [*Name of plaintiff] will present evidence first. When [name of plaintiff] is finished, [name of defendant] will have an opportunity to present evidence. [Then [name of cross-complainant] will present evidence. Finally, [name of cross-defendant] will present evidence.]

Each witness will first be questioned by the side that asked the witness to testify. This is called direct examination. Then the other side is permitted to question the witness. This is called cross-examination.

Documents or objects referred to during the trial are called exhibits. Exhibits are given a [number/letter] so that they may be clearly identified. Exhibits are not evidence until I admit them into evidence. During your deliberations, you will be able to look at all exhibits admitted into evidence.

There are many rules that govern whether something will be admitted into evidence. As one side presents evidence, the other side has the right to object and to ask me to decide if the evidence is permitted by the rules. Usually, I will decide immediately, but sometimes I may have to hear arguments outside of your presence.

After the evidence has been presented, I will instruct you on the law that applies to the case and the attorneys will make closing arguments. What the parties say in closing argument is not evidence. The arguments are offered to help you understand the evidence and how the law applies to it.

New September 2003; Revised February 2007, June 2010, May 2019

Directions for Use

This instruction is intended to provide a "road map" for the jurors. This instruction should be read in conjunction with CACI No. 100, Preliminary Admonitions.

The bracketed second, third, and fourth paragraphs are optional. The court may wish to use these paragraphs to provide the jurors with an explanation of the claims and defenses that are at issue in the case. Include the third and fourth paragraphs if a cross-complaint is also being tried. Include the last sentence in the second and fourth paragraphs if affirmative defenses are asserted on the complaint or cross-complaint.

The sixth paragraph presents the order of proof. If there is a cross-complaint, include the last two sentences. Alternatively, the parties may stipulate to a different order of proof—for example, by agreeing that some evidence will apply to both the complaint and the cross-complaint. In this case, customize this paragraph to correspond to the stipulation.

Sources and Authority

- Pretrial Instructions on Trial Issues and Procedure. Rule 2.1035 of the California Rules of Court.
- Order of Trial Proceedings. Code of Civil Procedure section 607.
- "[W]e can understand that it might not have seemed like [cross-complainants] were producing much evidence on their cross-complaint at trial. Most of the relevant (and undisputed) facts bearing on the legal question of whether [cross-defendants] had a fiduciary duty and, if so, violated it, had been brought out in plaintiffs' case-in-chief. But just because the undisputed evidence favoring the cross-complaint also happened to come out on plaintiffs' case-in-chief does not mean it was not available to support the cross-complaint." (Le v. Pham (2010) 180 Cal.App.4th 1201, 1207 [103 Cal.Rptr.3d 606], original italics.)

Secondary Sources

7 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Trial, § 154

Wegner et al., Cal. Practice Guide: Civil Trials and Evidence, Ch. 1, Preparing for Trial, ¶¶ 1:1, 1:2 (The Rutter Group)

48 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 551, Trial, § 551.50 (Matthew Bender)

California Judges Benchbook: Civil Proceedings—Trial § 3.100 (Cal CJER 2019)

102. Taking Notes During the Trial

You have been given notebooks and may take notes during the trial. Do not take the notebooks out of the courtroom or jury room at any time during the trial. You may take your notes into the jury room during deliberations.

You should use your notes only to remind yourself of what happened during the trial. Do not let your note-taking interfere with your ability to listen carefully to all the testimony and to watch the witnesses as they testify. Nor should you allow your impression of a witness or other evidence to be influenced by whether or not other jurors are taking notes. Your independent recollection of the evidence should govern your verdict, and you should not allow yourself to be influenced by the notes of other jurors if those notes differ from what you remember.

[The court reporter is making a record of everything that is said. If during deliberations you have a question about what the witness said, you should ask that the court reporter's records be read to you. You must accept the court reporter's record as accurate.]

At the end of the trial, your notes will be [collected and destroyed/collected and retained by the court but not as a part of the case record/ [*specify other disposition]].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, December 2007

Directions for Use

This instruction may be given as an introductory instruction or as a concluding instruction after trial. (See CACI No. 5010, Taking Notes During the Trial).

The bracketed paragraph should not be read if a court reporter is not being used to record the trial proceedings.

In the last paragraph, specify the court's disposition of the notes after trial. No statute or rule of court requires any particular disposition.

Sources and Authority

- Juror Notes. Rule 2.1031 of the California Rules of Court.
- "Because of [the risks of note-taking], a number of courts have held that a cautionary instruction is required. For example, [one court] held that the instruction should include 'an explanation . . . that [jurors] should not permit their note-taking to distract them from the ongoing proceedings; that their notes are only an aid to their memory and should not take precedence over their independent recollection; that those jurors who do not take notes should rely on their independent recollection of the evidence and not be influenced by the fact that another juror has taken notes; and that the notes are for the note taker's own personal use in refreshing his recollection of the evidence. The jury must be reminded that should any discrepancy exist between their recollection of the evidence and their notes, they should request that the record of the proceedings be read back and that it is the transcript that must prevail over their notes.' " (People v. Whitt (1984) 36 Cal.3d 724, 747 [205 Cal.Rptr. 810, 685 P.2d 1161], internal citations and footnote omitted.)

- "In People v. Whitt, we recognized the risks inherent in juror note-taking and observed that it is 'the better practice' for courts to give, sua sponte, a cautionary instruction on note-taking. Although the ideal instruction would advert specifically to all the dangers of note-taking, we found the less complete instruction given in Whitt to be adequate: 'Be careful as to the amount of notes that you take. I'd rather that you observe the witness, observe the demeanor of that witness, listen to how that person testifies rather than taking copious notes . . . . [I]f you do not recall exactly as to what a witness might have said or you disagree, for instance, during the deliberation [sic] as to what a witness may have said, we can reread that transcript back . . . .' " (People v. Silbertson (1985) 41 Cal.3d 296, 303 [221 Cal.Rptr. 152, 709 P.2d 1321], internal citations and footnote omitted.)

Secondary Sources

California Deskbook on Complex Civil Litigation Management, Ch. 4, Trial of Complex Cases, § 4.21[5] (Matthew Bender)

28 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 326, Jury Instructions, § 326.32 (Matthew Bender)

California Judges Benchbook: Civil Proceedings—Trial § 3.97 (Cal CJER 2019)

103. Multiple Parties

[There are [number] plaintiffs in this trial. You should decide the case of each plaintiff separately as if it were a separate lawsuit. Each plaintiff is entitled to separate consideration of that plaintiff's own claim(s).]

[There are [number] defendants in this trial. You should decide the case against each defendant separately as if it were a separate lawsuit. Each defendant is entitled to separate consideration of that defendant's own defenses.]

[Different aspects of this case involve different parties (plaintiffs and defendants). Each instruction will identify the parties to whom it applies. Pay particular attention to the parties named in each instruction.]

[or]

[Unless I tell you otherwise, all instructions apply to each plaintiff and defendant.]

New September 2003; Revised April 2009, May 2020

Directions for Use

The CACI instructions require the use of party names rather than party-status words like "plaintiff" and "defendant." In multiparty cases, it is important to name only the parties in each instruction to whom the instruction applies. For example, an instruction on loss of consortium (see CACI No. 3920) will not apply to all plaintiffs. Instructions on vicarious liability (see CACI No. 3700 et seq.) will not apply to all defendants. Unless all or nearly all of the instructions will apply to all of the parties, give the first option for the last paragraph.

Sources and Authority

- "We realize, of course, that multiple defendants are involved and that each defendant is entitled to instructions on, and separate consideration of, every defense available and applicable to it. The purpose of this rule is to insure that the jury will distinguish and evaluate the separate facts relevant to each defendant." (Campbell v. Southern Pacific Co. (1978) 22 Cal.3d 51, 58 [148 Cal.Rptr. 596, 583 P.2d 121], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

7 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Trial, § 303

27 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 318, Judgments, § 318.15 (Matthew Bender)

1 California Pretrial Civil Procedure Practice Guide: The Wagstaffe Group, Ch. 10, Determining Initial Parties to the Action, § 10-I

104. Nonperson Party

A [corporation/partnership/city/county/[other entity]], [name of entity], is a party in this lawsuit. [Name of entity] is entitled to the same fair and impartial treatment that you would give to an individual. You must decide this case with the same fairness that you would use if you were deciding the case between individuals.

When I use words like "person" or "he" or "she" in these instructions to refer to a party, those instructions also apply to [name of entity].

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This instruction should be given as an introductory instruction if one of the parties is an entity. Select the type of entity and insert the name of the entity where indicated in the instruction.

Sources and Authority

- Corporations Have Powers of Natural Person. Corporations Code section 207.
- "Person" Includes Corporation. Civil Code section 14.
- As a general rule, a corporation is considered to be a legal entity that has an existence separate from that of its shareholders. (Erkenbrecher v. Grant (1921) 187 Cal. 7, 9 [200 P. 641].)
- "In general, any person or entity has capacity to sue or defend a civil action in the California courts. This includes artificial 'persons' such as corporations, partnerships and associations." (American Alternative Energy Partners II, 1985 v. Windridge, Inc. (1996) 42 Cal.App.4th 551, 559 [49 Cal.Rptr.2d 686], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

9 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Corporations, § 1, p. 775

1 California Pretrial Civil Procedure Practice Guide: The Wagstaffe Group, Ch. 10, Determining Initial Parties to the Action, §§ 10-V[E]–10-V[I]

105. Insurance

You must not consider whether any of the parties in this case has insurance. The presence or absence of insurance is totally irrelevant. You must decide this case based only on the law and the evidence.

New September 2003; Revised May 2019, November 2019

Directions for Use

If this instruction is given, the advisory committee recommends that it be read to the jury before reading instructions on the substantive law.

By statute, evidence of a defendant's insurance coverage is inadmissible to prove liability. (Evid. Code, § 1155.) If evidence of insurance has been admitted for some other reason, (1) this instruction may need to be modified to clarify that insurance may not be considered for purposes of determining liability; and (2) a limiting instruction should be given advising the jury to consider the evidence only for the purpose for which it was admitted.

Sources and Authority

- Evidence of Insurance Inadmissible to Prove Liability. Evidence Code section 1155.
- " 'The evidence [of liability insurance] is regarded as both irrelevant and prejudicial to the defendant. Hence, not only is it subject to objection and exclusion, but any attempt to inject it by question, suggestion or argument is considered misconduct of counsel, and is often held reversible error. [Citations.]' " (Neumann v. Bishop (1976) 59 Cal.App.3d 451, 469 [130 Cal.Rptr. 786].)
- "Evidence of a defendant's insurance coverage ordinarily is not admissible to prove the defendant's negligence or other wrongdoing." (Blake v. E. Thompson Petroleum Repair Co. (1985) 170 Cal.App.3d 823, 830 [216 Cal.Rptr. 568], original italics.)
- "[E]vidence of a plaintiff's insurance coverage is not admissible for the purpose of mitigating the damages the plaintiff would otherwise recover from the tortfeasor. This is the 'collateral source rule.' " (Blake, supra, 170 Cal.App.3d at p. 830, original italics; see Helfend v. Southern California Rapid Transit Dist. (1970) 2 Cal.3d 1, 16–18 [84 Cal.Rptr. 173, 465 P.2d 61].)
- "Both of the foregoing principles are subject to the qualification that where the topic of insurance coverage is coupled with other relevant evidence, that topic may be admitted along with such other evidence. '[para.] It has always been the rule that the existence of insurance may properly be referred to in a case if the evidence is otherwise admissible.' The trial court must then determine, pursuant to Evidence Code section 352, whether the probative value of the other evidence outweighs the prejudicial effect of the mention of insurance." (Blake, supra, 170 Cal.App.3d at p. 831, internal citation omitted.)

- "[T]he trial court did not abuse its discretion by excluding evidence of [plaintiff]'s insured [health care coverage] under Evidence Code section 352. [Plaintiff] had the right to treat outside his plan. Evidence of his insurance would have confused the issues or misled and prejudiced the jury." (Pebley v. Santa Clara Organics, LLC (2018) 22 Cal.App.5th 1266, 1278 [232 Cal.Rptr.3d 404].)
- "[M]ost of these references to Kaiser and Medicare, as well as the single reference to Social Security, merely provided context and background information on [plaintiff]'s past treatment at Kaiser and on some aspects of [defendant]'s experts' calculation of past and future reasonable medical expenses. They were helpful and even necessary to the jury's understanding of the issues. [Plaintiff] has not shown the court abused its discretion in admitting these references to assist the jury's understanding of the facts." (Stokes v. Muschinske (2019) 34 Cal.App.5th 45, 58 [245 Cal.Rptr.3d 764].)

Secondary Sources

7 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Trial, § 312

4 Witkin, California Evidence (6th ed. 2023) Circumstantial Evidence, § 156

Jefferson, California Evidence Benchbook (3d ed. 1997) §§ 34.32–34.36

California Practice Guide: Civil Trials and Evidence, Ch. 5-G, Jury Selection—Scope of Permissible Voir Dire—Proper vs. Improper Questions ¶ 5:371 (The Rutter Group)

3 California Trial Guide, Unit 50, Extrinsic Policies Affecting or Excluding Evidence, § 50.32 (Matthew Bender)

48 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 551, Trial, § 551.68[4][g] (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, Ch. 11, Questioning Witnesses and Objections, 11.90

106. Evidence

You must decide what the facts are in this case only from the evidence you see or hear during the trial. Sworn testimony, documents, or anything else may be admitted into evidence. You may not consider as evidence anything that you see or hear when court is not in session, even something done or said by one of the parties, attorneys, or witnesses.

What the attorneys say during the trial is not evidence. In their opening statements and closing arguments, the attorneys will talk to you about the law and the evidence. What the lawyers say may help you understand the law and the evidence, but their statements and arguments are not evidence.

The attorneys' questions are not evidence. Only the witnesses' answers are evidence. You should not think that something is true just because an attorney's question suggests that it is true. However, the attorneys for both sides can agree that certain facts are true. This agreement is called a "stipulation." No other proof is needed and you must accept those facts as true in this trial.

Each side has the right to object to evidence offered by the other side. If I do not agree with the objection, I will say it is overruled. If I overrule an objection, the witness will answer and you may consider the evidence. If I agree with the objection, I will say it is sustained. If I sustain an objection, you must ignore the question. If the witness did not answer, you must not guess what that witness might have said or why I sustained the objection. If the witness has already answered, you must ignore the answer.

An attorney may make a motion to strike testimony that you have heard. If I grant the motion, you must totally disregard that testimony. You must treat it as though it did not exist.

New September 2003; Revised February 2005, December 2010, December 2012, May 2020

Directions for Use

This instruction should be given as an introductory instruction.

Sources and Authority

- "Evidence" Defined. Evidence Code section 140.
- Jury to Decide Questions of Fact. Evidence Code section 312.
- Miscarriage of Justice. Evidence Code section 353.
- A stipulation in proper form is binding on the parties if it is within the authority of the attorney. Properly stipulated facts may not be contradicted. (Palmer v. City of Long Beach (1948) 33 Cal.2d 134, 141–142 [199 P.2d 952].)

- Courts have held that "attempts to suggest matters of an evidentiary nature to a jury other than by the legitimate introduction into evidence is misconduct whether by questions on cross-examination, argument or other means." (Smith v. Covell (1980) 100 Cal.App.3d 947, 960 [161 Cal.Rptr. 377].)
- Courts have stated that "[t]he right to object on appeal to misconduct or improper argument, even when prejudicial, is generally waived in the absence of a proper objection and request the jury be admonished." (Atkins v. Bisigier (1971) 16 Cal.App.3d 414, 427 [94 Cal.Rptr. 49]; Horn v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1964) 61 Cal.2d 602, 610 [39 Cal.Rptr. 721, 394 P.2d 561].)

Secondary Sources

3 Witkin, California Evidence (6th ed. 2023) Presentation at Trial, § 1

7 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2023) Trial, § 304 et al.

27 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 322, Juries and Jury Selection, §§ 322.56–322.57 (Matthew Bender)

48 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 551, Trial, §§ 551.61, 551.77 (Matthew Bender)

California Judges Benchbook: Civil Proceedings—Trial §§ 2.37, 2.38, 3.99, 5.21, 5.29, 5.39, 11.9, 11.35 (Cal CJER 2019)

107. Witnesses

A witness is a person who has knowledge related to this case. You will have to decide whether you believe each witness and how important each witness's testimony is to the case. You may believe all, part, or none of a witness's testimony.

In deciding whether to believe a witness's testimony, you may consider, among other factors, the following:

(a) How well did the witness see, hear, or otherwise sense what the witness described in court?

(b) How well did the witness remember and describe what happened?

(c) How did the witness look, act, and speak while testifying?

(d) Did the witness have any reason to say something that was not true? For example, did the witness show any bias or prejudice or have a personal relationship with any of the parties involved in the case or have a personal stake in how this case is decided?

(e) What was the witness's attitude toward this case or about giving testimony?

Sometimes a witness may say something that is not consistent with something else the witness said. Sometimes different witnesses will give different versions of what happened. People often forget things or make mistakes in what they remember. Also, two people may see the same event but remember it differently. You may consider these differences, but do not decide that testimony is untrue just because it differs from other testimony.

However, if you decide that a witness did not tell the truth about something important, you may choose not to believe anything that witness said. On the other hand, if you think the witness did not tell the truth about some things but told the truth about others, you may accept the part you think is true and ignore the rest.

Do not make any decision simply because there were more witnesses on one side than on the other. If you believe it is true, the testimony of a single witness is enough to prove a fact.

New September 2003; Revised April 2004, June 2005, April 2007, December 2012, June 2015, December 2016, May 2020

Directions for Use

This instruction may be given as an introductory instruction or as a concluding instruction after trial. (See CACI No. 5003, Witnesses.)

Sources and Authority

- Role of Jury. Evidence Code section 312.
- Considerations for Evaluating the Credibility of Witnesses. Evidence Code section 780.
- Direct Evidence of Single Witness Sufficient. Evidence Code section 411.
- "It should certainly not be of importance to tell the ordinary man of the world that he should distrust the statements of a witness whom he believes to be a liar." (Wallace v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co. (1930) 105 Cal.App. 664, 671 [288 P. 834].)

Secondary Sources

7 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Trial, § 314

48 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 551, Trial, § 551.122 (Matthew Bender)

California Judges Benchbook: Civil Proceedings—Trial § 8.72 (Cal CJER 2019)

108. Duty to Abide by Translation Provided in Court

Some testimony will be given in [insert language other than English]. An interpreter will provide a translation for you at the time that the testimony is given. You must rely solely on the translation provided by the interpreter, even if you understand the language spoken by the witness. Do not retranslate any testimony for other jurors. If you believe the court interpreter translated testimony incorrectly, let me know immediately by writing a note and giving it to the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2004, June 2011

Sources and Authority

- "Juror [] committed misconduct by failing to rely on the court interpreter's translation, as she promised she would during voir dire. She committed further misconduct by sharing her personal translation with her fellow jurors thus introducing outside evidence into their deliberations." (People v. Cabrera (1991) 230 Cal.App.3d 300, 304 [281 Cal.Rptr. 238].)
- "It is well-settled a juror may not conduct an independent investigation into the facts of the case or gather evidence from outside sources and bring it into the jury room. It is also misconduct for a juror to inject his or her own expertise into the jury's deliberation." (People v. Cabrera, supra, 230 Cal.App.3d at p. 303.)
- "If [the juror] believed the court interpreter was translating incorrectly, the proper action would have been to call the matter to the trial court's attention, not take it upon herself to provide her fellow jurors with the 'correct' translation." (People v. Cabrera, supra, 230 Cal.App.3d at p. 304.)

Secondary Sources

1A California Trial Guide, Unit 20, Procedural Rules for Presentation of Evidence, § 20.13[7] (Matthew Bender)

California Judges Benchbook: Civil Proceedings—Trial § 8.119 (Cal CJER 2019)

109. Removal of Claims or Parties

[[Name of plaintiff]'s claim for [insert claim] is no longer an issue in this case.]

[[Name of party] is no longer a party to this case.]

Do not speculate as to why this [claim/person] is no longer involved in this case. You should not consider this during your deliberations.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This instruction may be read during trial as appropriate.

Secondary Sources

California Judges Benchbook: Civil Proceedings—Trial § 9.27 (Cal CJER 2019)

110. Service Provider for Juror With Disability

During trial, [*name of juror] will be assisted by a [insert service provider]. The [insert service provider] is not a member of the jury and is not to participate in the deliberations in any way other than as necessary to provide the service to [name of juror].

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This instruction should be read along with other introductory instructions at the beginning of the trial if appropriate.

Sources and Authority

- Eligibility to Serve as Juror. Code of Civil Procedure section 203(a)(6).
- Service Provider for Juror With Disability. Code of Civil Procedure section 224.

Secondary Sources

7 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Trial, § 106

27 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 322, Juries and Jury Selection, § 322.32 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, Ch. 8, Interpreters, 8.28 et al.

California Judges Benchbook: Civil Proceedings—Trial § 13.10 (Cal CJER 2019)

111. Instruction to Alternate Jurors

As [an] alternate juror[s], you are bound by the same rules that govern the conduct of the jurors who are sitting on the panel. You will observe the same trial and should pay attention to all of my instructions just as if you were sitting on the panel. Sometimes a juror needs to be excused during a trial for illness or some other reason. If that happens, an alternate will be selected to take that juror's place.

New October 2004

Directions for Use

If an alternate juror is substituted, see CACI No. 5014, Substitution of Alternate Juror.

Sources and Authority

- Alternate Jurors. Code of Civil Procedure section 234.
- "Alternate jurors are members of the jury panel which tries the case. They are selected at the same time as the regular jurors. They take the same oath and are subject to the same qualifications as the regular jurors. Alternate jurors hear the same evidence and are subject to the same admonitions as the regular jurors and, unless excused by the court, are available to participate as regular jurors." (Rivera v. Sassoon (1995) 39 Cal.App.4th 1045, 1048 [46 Cal.Rptr.2d 144], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

27 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 322, Juries and Jury Selection, §§ 322.44, 322.52, 322.101 (Matthew Bender)

1 California Trial Guide, Unit 10, Voir Dire Examination, § 10.01 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, Ch. 6, Jury Selection, 6.08[4]

California Judges Benchbook: Civil Proceedings—Trial § 3.89 (Cal CJER 2019)

112. Questions From Jurors

If, during the trial, you have a question that you believe should be asked of a witness, you may write out the question and send it to me through my courtroom staff. I will share your question with the attorneys and decide whether it may be asked.

Do not feel disappointed if your question is not asked. Your question may not be asked for a variety of reasons. For example, the question may call for an answer that is not allowed for legal reasons. Also, you should not try to guess the reason why a question is not asked or speculate about what the answer might have been. Because the decision whether to allow the question is mine alone, do not hold it against any of the attorneys or their clients if your question is not asked.

Remember that you are not an advocate for one side or the other. Each of you is an impartial judge of the facts. Your questions should be posed in as neutral a fashion as possible. Do not discuss any question asked by any juror with any other juror until after deliberations begin.

New February 2005; Revised April 2007, April 2009, June 2011

Directions for Use

This is an optional instruction for use if the jurors will be allowed to ask questions of the witnesses. For an instruction to be given at the end of the trial, see CACI No. 5019, Questions From Jurors. This instruction may be modified to account for an individual judge's practice.

Sources and Authority

- Written Questions From Jurors. Rule 2.1033 of the California Rules of Court.
- "In a proper case there may be a real benefit from allowing jurors to submit questions under proper control by the court. However, in order to permit the court to exercise its discretion and maintain control of the trial, the correct procedure is to have the juror write the questions for consideration by the court and counsel prior to their submission to the witness." (People v. McAlister (1985) 167 Cal.App.3d 633, 644 [213 Cal.Rptr. 271].)
- "[T]he judge has discretion to ask questions submitted by jurors or to pass those questions on and leave to the discretion of counsel whether to ask the questions." (People v. Cummings (1993) 4 Cal.4th 1233, 1305 [18 Cal.Rptr.2d 796, 850 P.2d 1].)
- "The appellant urges that when jurymen ask improper questions the defendant is placed in the delicate dilemma of either allowing such question to go in without objection or of offending the jurors by making the objection and the appellant insists that the court of its own motion should check the putting of such improper questions by the jurymen, and thus relieve the party injuriously affected thereby from the odium which might result from making that objection thereto. There is no force in this contention. Objections to questions, whether asked by a juror or by opposing counsel, are presented to the court, and its ruling thereon could not reasonably affect the rights or standing of the party making the objection before the jury in the one case more than in the other." (Maris v. H. Crummey, Inc. (1921) 55 Cal.App. 573, 578–579 [204 P. 259].)

Secondary Sources

3 Witkin, California Evidence (5th ed. 2012) Presentation at Trial, § 97

Wegner et al., California Practice Guide: Civil Trials & Evidence, Ch. 7-E, Juror Questioning Of Witnesses, ¶ 7:45.11b (The Rutter Group)

4 California Trial Guide, Unit 91, Jury Deliberations and Rendition of Verdict, §§ 91.01–91.03 (Matthew Bender)

California Judges Benchbook: Civil Proceedings—Trial §§ 3.96, 8.53 (Cal CJER 2019)

113. Bias

Each one of us has biases about or certain perceptions or stereotypes of other people. Bias is a tendency to favor or disfavor a person or group of people. We may be aware of some of our biases, though we may not reveal them to others. We may not be fully aware of some of our other biases. We refer to biases that we are not fully aware of as "implicit" or "unconscious." They may be based on stereotypes we would reject if they were brought to our attention. Implicit or unconscious biases can affect how we perceive others and how we make decisions, without our being aware of the effect of these biases on those decisions.

Our biases often affect how we act, favorably or unfavorably, toward someone. Bias can affect our thoughts, how we remember, what we see and hear, and whom we believe or disbelieve. We may favor or be more likely to believe people whom we see as similar to us or with whom we identify. Or we may disfavor or be less likely to believe people whom we see as different from us.

As jurors you are being asked to make very important decisions in this case. You must not let bias, prejudice, or public opinion influence your decision. You must not be biased in favor of or against parties or witnesses because of their race, national origin, ethnicity, disability, gender, gender identity, gender expression, religion, sexual orientation, age, [or] socioeconomic status[, or [*insert any other impermissible form of bias]].

Your verdict must be based solely on the evidence presented. You must carefully evaluate the evidence and resist any urge to reach a verdict that is influenced by bias for or against any party or witness.

New June 2010; Revised December 2012, May 2020, November 2023

Directions for Use

The court in consultation with the parties may add categories in paragraph 3 as relevant to the case.

Sources and Authority

- Duty to Prevent Bias and Ensure Fairness. Standard 10.20(b)(1), (2) of the California Standards of Judicial Administration.
- Judge Must Perform Duties Without Bias. Canon 3(b)(5) of the California Code of Judicial Ethics.

Secondary Sources

Witkin, California Procedure (5th ed. 2008) Trial, §§ 145–146

1 California Trial Guide, Unit 10, Voir Dire Examination, §§ 10.03[1], 10.21[2], 10.50, 10.80, 10.100, 10.110 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, Ch. 6, Jury Selection, § 6.21

114. Bench Conferences and Conferences in Chambers

From time to time during the trial, it may become necessary for me to talk with the attorneys out of the hearing of the jury, either by having a conference at the bench when the jury is present in the courtroom, or by calling a recess to discuss matters outside of your presence. The purpose of these conferences is not to keep relevant information from you, but to decide how certain evidence is to be treated under the rules of evidence. Do not be concerned about our discussions or try to guess what is being said.

I may not always grant an attorney's request for a conference. Do not consider my granting or denying a request for a conference as any indication of my opinion of the case or of my view of the evidence.

New December 2010

Directions for Use

This instruction is based on Model Instruction 1.17 of the federal Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals. It may be used to explain to the jury why there may be discussions at the bench that the jury will not be able to hear, and why sometimes the judge will call a recess for discussions outside of the presence of the jury.

Secondary Sources

7 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Trial, § 300

48 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 551, Trial, § 551.170 (Matthew Bender)

1 California Trial Guide, Unit 4, Pretrial Evidentiary Motions, § 4.10[1] (Matthew Bender)

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, Ch. 2, Public Access to Trials and Records, 2.05

115. "Class Action" Defined (Plaintiff Class)

A class action is a lawsuit that has been brought by one or more plaintiffs on behalf of a larger group of people who have similar legal claims. All of these people together are called a "class." [*Name of plaintiff] brings this action as the class representative.

In a class action, the claims of many individuals can be resolved at the same time instead of requiring each member to sue separately. Because of the large number of claims that are at issue in this case, not everyone in the class will testify. You may assume that the evidence at this [stage of the] trial applies to all class members [except as I specifically tell you otherwise]. All members of the class will be bound by the result of this trial.

In this case, the class(es) consist(s) of the following:

[Describe each class, e.g.,

Original Homebuyers: All current homeowners in the Happy Valley subdivision in Pleasantville, California, who purchased homes that were constructed and marketed by [name of defendant]. ("Class of Original Purchasers")

*Subsequent Homebuyers: All current homeowners in the Happy Valley subdivisions in Pleasantville, California, who purchased homes that were constructed and marketed by [name of defendant] from another homeowner. ("Class of Later Purchasers")].

New June 2011

Directions for Use

The first paragraph may be modified for use with a defendant class. If in the course of the trial the court decertifies the class or one of the classes as to some or all issues, a concluding instruction explaining the effect of the decertification should be given.

In the second paragraph, if class evidence and individual evidence will be received in separate stages of the trial, include the first bracketed language. If both class evidence and individual evidence will be received together, include the second bracketed language and specify the class evidence in a separate instruction.

Sources and Authority

- Right to Bring Class Action. Code of Civil Procedure section 382.
- "Courts long have acknowledged the importance of class actions as a means to prevent a failure of justice in our judicial system. ' "By establishing a technique whereby the claims of many individuals can be resolved at the same time, the class suit both eliminates the possibility of repetitious litigation and provides small claimants with a method of obtaining redress . . . .” ’ Generally, a class suit is appropriate ‘when numerous parties suffer injury of insufficient size to warrant individual action and when denial of class relief would result in unjust advantage to the wrongdoer.’ ‘But because group action also has the potential to create injustice, trial courts are required to ‘ “carefully weigh respective benefits and burdens and to allow maintenance of the class action only where substantial benefits accrue both to litigants and the courts.” ’ ” (Linder v. Thrifty Oil Co. (2000) 23 Cal.4th 429, 434–435 [97 Cal.Rptr.2d 179, 2 P.3d 27], internal citations omitted.)

- “The cases uniformly hold that a plaintiff seeking to maintain a class action must be a member of the class he claims to represent.” (La Sala v. American Sav. & Loan Assn. (1971) 5 Cal.3d 864, 875 [97 Cal.Rptr 849, 489 P.2d 1113].)

Secondary Sources

4 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Pleading, § 266 et seq.

Cabraser, California Class Actions and Coordinated Proceedings (2d ed.), Ch. 3, California’s Class Action Statute, § 3.03 (Matthew Bender)

California Deskbook on Complex Civil Litigation Management, Ch. 5, Specialized Areas, § 5.80 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

12 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 120, Class Actions, §§ 120.11, 120.14 (Matthew Bender)

4 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 41, Class and Representative Actions, § 41.30 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

2 California Pretrial Civil Procedure Practice Guide: The Wagstaffe Group, Ch. 37, Class Actions, § 37-I et seq.

116. Why Electronic Communications and Research Are Prohibited

I know that many of us are used to communicating and perhaps even learning by electronic communications and research. However, there are good reasons why you must not electronically communicate or do any research on anything having to do with this trial or the parties.

In court, jurors must make important decisions that have consequences for the parties. Those decisions must be based only on the evidence that you hear in this courtroom.

The evidence that is presented in court can be tested; it can be shown to be right or wrong by either side; it can be questioned; and it can be contradicted by other evidence. What you might read or hear on your own could easily be wrong, out of date, or inapplicable to this case.

The parties can receive a fair trial only if the facts and information on which you base your decisions are presented to you as a group, with each juror having the same opportunity to see, hear, and evaluate the evidence.

Also, a trial is a public process that depends on disclosure in the courtroom of facts and evidence. Using information gathered in secret by one or more jurors undermines the public process and violates the rights of the parties.

New June 2011

Directions for Use

Give this instruction after CACI No. 100, Preliminary Admonitions, in order to provide more information to the jury as to the reasons why independent electronic research using the internet and electronic communications are prohibited.

Secondary Sources

7 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Trial, § 226 et seq.

Wegner et al., California Practice Guide: Civil Trials & Evidence, Ch. 7-F, Juror Misconduct During Trial, ¶¶ 7:110, 7:113.1 (The Rutter Group)

Wegner et al., California Practice Guide: Civil Trials & Evidence, Ch. 15-F, Juror Misconduct During Deliberations, ¶¶ 15:206–15:210 (The Rutter Group)

4 Johnson, California Trial Guide, Unit 91, Jury Deliberations and Rendition of Verdict, § 91.10 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

27 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 322, Juries and Jury Selection, § 322.50 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure,

Ch. 17, Dealing With the Jury, 17.21

California Judges Benchbook: Civil Proceedings—Trial §§ 3.95, 13.50, 13.51 (Cal CJER 2019)

117. Wealth of Parties

In reaching a verdict, you may not consider the wealth or poverty of any party. The parties' wealth or poverty is not relevant to any of the issues that you must decide.

New November 2017

Directions for Use

This instruction may be given unless liability and punitive damages are to be decided in a nonbifurcated trial. The defendant's wealth is relevant to punitive damages. (Adams v. Murakami (1991) 54 Cal.3d 105, 108 [284 Cal.Rptr. 318, 813 P.2d 1348].) Otherwise, the wealth or lack of it is not relevant. (Hoffman v. Brandt (1966) 65 Cal.2d 549, 552–553 [55 Cal.Rptr. 417, 421 P.2d 425].) If this instruction is given in a nonbifurcated trial, it should be modified to clarify that the prohibition on considering wealth applies only to liability and compensatory damages, and not to punitive damages. For discussion of the role of a defendant's financial condition with regard to punitive damages, see the punitive damages instructions in the Damages series, CACI Nos. 3940–3949.

Sources and Authority

- "Justice is to be accorded to rich and poor alike, and a deliberate attempt by counsel to appeal to social or economic prejudices of the jury, including the wealth or poverty of the litigants, is misconduct where the asserted wealth or poverty is not relevant to the issues of the case. The possibility, even if true, that a judgment for plaintiffs would mean that defendant would have to go to the Laguna Honda Home, had no relevance to the issues of the case, and the argument of defense counsel was clearly a transparent attempt to appeal to the sympathies of the jury on the basis of the claimed lack of wealth of the defendant. As such, it was clearly misconduct." (Hoffman, supra, 65 Cal.2d at pp. 552–553, internal citations omitted.)
- "[W]here liability and punitive damages are tried in a single proceeding, evidence of wealth is admissible. '[W]hile in the ordinary action for damages information regarding the adversary's financial status is inadmissible, this is not so in an action for punitive damages. In such a case evidence of defendant's financial condition is admissible at the trial for the purpose of determining the amount that it is proper to award [citations]. The relevancy of such evidence lies in the fact that punitive damages are not awarded for the purpose of rewarding the plaintiff but to punish the defendant. Obviously, the trier of fact cannot measure the 'punishment' without knowledge of defendant's ability to respond to a given award.' " (Las Palmas Associates v. Las Palmas Center Associates (1991) 235 Cal.App.3d 1220, 1243 [1 Cal.Rptr.2d 301], original italics.)
- "In an action for damages, a showing of poverty of the plaintiff is highly prejudicial; if such evidence is deliberately introduced, it may constitute reversible error." (Hart v. Wielt (1970) 4 Cal.App.3d 224, 234 [84 Cal.Rptr. 220].)

Secondary Sources

7 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Trial, §§ 312, 313, 216

4 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 54, Punitive Damages, § 54.24 (Matthew Bender)

15 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.51[16] (Matthew Bender)

6 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 64, Damages: Tort, § 64.141 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

118. Personal Pronouns

One of the [parties/witnesses/attorneys/*specify other participant in the case] in this case uses the personal pronouns [specify the person's pronouns]. You may hear the judge and attorneys refer to [name of person] using the pronouns: [specify the person's pronouns].

New May 2020

Directions for Use

It is the policy of the State of California that intersex, transgender, and nonbinary people are entitled to full legal recognition and equal treatment under the law. In accordance with this policy, attorneys and courts should take affirmative steps to ensure that they are using correct personal pronouns. To further this policy, these instructions have been expanded to include "nonbinary pronoun" wherever appropriate. Although the advisory committee acknowledges a trend for the singular use of "they," "their," and "them," the committee also recognizes these pronouns have plural denotations with the potential to confuse jurors. For clarity in the jury instructions, the committee recommends using an individual's name rather than a personal nonbinary pronoun (such as "they") if the pronoun could result in confusion.

The court should consult with the attorneys in the case before reading this instruction to the jury. The court should also consult with the individual whose pronouns are being discussed to ensure the court acts in a way that protects the individual's dignity and privacy.

Sources and Authority

- Gender Recognition Act. Stats. 2019, ch. 853 (SB 179).
- "Sex" Defined. Gov. Code, § 12926(r)(2).
- "Gender Expression" Defined. Cal. Code Regs., tit. 2, § 11030(a).
- "Gender Identity" Defined. Cal. Code Regs., tit. 2, § 11030(b).

119–199. Reserved for Future Use

EVIDENCE

200. Obligation to Prove—More Likely True Than Not True

The parties must persuade you, by the evidence presented in court, that what they are required to prove is more likely to be true than not true. This is referred to as "the burden of proof."

After weighing all of the evidence, if you cannot decide that something is more likely to be true than not true, you must conclude that the party did not prove it. You should consider all the evidence, no matter which party produced the evidence.

In criminal trials, the prosecution must prove that the defendant is guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. But in civil trials, such as this one, the party who is required to prove something need prove only that it is more likely to be true than not true.

New September 2003; Revised February 2005, May 2020

Directions for Use

Evidence Code section 502 requires the court to instruct the jury regarding which party bears the burden of proof on each issue and the requisite degree of proof.

For an instruction on clear and convincing evidence, see CACI No. 201, Highly Probable—Clear and Convincing Proof.

Sources and Authority

- Burden of Proof—Preponderance of Evidence. Evidence Code section 115.
- Party With Burden of Proof. Evidence Code section 500.
- Each party is entitled to the benefit of all the evidence, including the evidence produced by an adversary. (Williams v. Barnett (1955) 135 Cal.App.2d 607, 612 [287 P.2d 789]; 7 Witkin, California Procedure (4th ed. 1997) Trial, § 305, p. 352.)
- The general rule in California is that " '[i]ssues of fact in civil cases are determined by a preponderance of testimony.' " (Weiner v. Fleischman (1991) 54 Cal.3d 476, 483 [286 Cal.Rptr. 40, 816 P.2d 892], citation omitted.)
- The preponderance-of-the-evidence standard "simply requires the trier of fact 'to believe that the existence of a fact is more probable than its nonexistence.' " (In re Angelia P. (1981) 28 Cal.3d 908, 918 [171 Cal.Rptr. 637, 623 P.2d 198], citation omitted.)
- "Preponderance of the evidence" " 'means what it says, viz., that the evidence on one side outweighs, preponderates over, is more than, the evidence on the other side, not necessarily in number of witnesses or quantity, but in its effect on those to whom it is addressed.' " (Glage v. Hawes Firearms Co. (1990) 226

Cal.App.3d 314, 325 [276 Cal.Rptr. 430] (quoting People v. Miller (1916) 171 Cal. 649, 652 [154 P. 468] and holding that it was prejudicial misconduct for jurors to refer to the dictionary for definition of the word "preponderance").)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, California Evidence (6th ed. 2023) Burden of Proof and Presumptions, § 39

Jefferson, California Evidence Benchbook (3d ed. 1997) Ch. 45, Burdens of Proof and of Producing Evidence; Presumptions

48 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 551, Trial, §§ 551.90, 551.92 (Matthew Bender)

201. Highly Probable—Clear and Convincing Proof

Certain facts must be proved by clear and convincing evidence, which is a higher burden of proof. This means the party must persuade you that it is highly probable that the fact is true. I will tell you specifically which facts must be proved by clear and convincing evidence.

New September 2003; Revised October 2004, June 2015

Directions for Use

Evidence Code section 502 requires the court to instruct the jury regarding which party bears the burden of proof on each issue and the requisite degree of proof.

This instruction should be read immediately after CACI No. 200, Obligation to Prove—More Likely True Than Not True, if the jury will have to decide an issue by means of the clear-and-convincing evidence standard.

Sources and Authority

- Burden of Proof. Evidence Code section 115.
- Party With Burden of Proof. Evidence Code section 500.
- "Proof by clear and convincing evidence is required 'where particularly important individual interests or rights are at stake,' such as the termination of parental rights, involuntary commitment, and deportation. However, 'imposition of even severe civil sanctions that do not implicate such interests has been permitted after proof by a preponderance of the evidence.' " (Weiner v. Fleischman (1991) 54 Cal.3d 476, 487 [286 Cal.Rptr. 40, 816 P.2d 892] (quoting Herman & MacLean v. Huddleston (1983) 459 U.S. 375, 389–390).)
- " 'Clear and convincing' evidence requires a finding of high probability." (In re Angelia P. (1981) 28 Cal.3d 908, 919 [171 Cal.Rptr. 637, 623 P.2d 198].)
- "Under the clear and convincing standard, the evidence must be ' " ' "so clear as to leave no substantial doubt" ' " ' and ' " ' "sufficiently strong to command the unhesitating assent of every reasonable mind." ' " ' " (Butte Fire Cases (2018) 24 Cal.App.5th 1150, 1158 [235 Cal.Rptr.3d 228].)
- "We decline to hold that CACI No. 201 should be augmented to require that 'the evidence must be "so clear as to leave no substantial doubt" and "sufficiently strong as to command the unhesitating assent of every reasonable mind." ' Neither In re Angelia P., supra, 28 Cal.3d 908, nor any more recent authority mandates that augmentation, and the proposed additional language is dangerously similar to that describing the burden of proof in criminal cases." (Nevarrez v. San Marino Skilled Nursing & Wellness Center (2013) 221 Cal.App.4th 102, 114 [163 Cal.Rptr.3d 874].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, California Evidence (5th ed. 2012) Burden of Proof and Presumptions, §§ 39, 40

Jefferson, California Evidence Benchbook (3d ed. 1997) §§ 45.4, 45.21

4 California Trial Guide, Unit 91, Jury Deliberations and Rendition of Verdict, § 91.20 (Matthew Bender)

48 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 551, Trial, §§ 551.90, 551.92 (Matthew Bender)

1 Cathcart et al., Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Debt Collection and Enforcement of Judgments, Ch. 9, Burdens of Proof and Persuasion, 9.16

202. Direct and Indirect Evidence

Evidence can come in many forms. It can be testimony about what someone saw or heard or smelled. It can be an exhibit admitted into evidence. It can be someone's opinion.

Direct evidence can prove a fact by itself. For example, if a witness testifies she saw a jet plane flying across the sky, that testimony is direct evidence that a plane flew across the sky. Some evidence proves a fact indirectly. For example, a witness testifies that he saw only the white trail that jet planes often leave. This indirect evidence is sometimes referred to as "circumstantial evidence." In either instance, the witness's testimony is evidence that a jet plane flew across the sky.

As far as the law is concerned, it makes no difference whether evidence is direct or indirect. You may choose to believe or disbelieve either kind. Whether it is direct or indirect, you should give every piece of evidence whatever weight you think it deserves.

New September 2003; Revised December 2012

Directions for Use

An instruction concerning the effect of circumstantial evidence must be given on request when it is called for by the evidence. (Shepherd v. Walley (1972) 28 Cal.App.3d 1079, 1084 [105 Cal.Rptr. 387]; Calandri v. Ione Unified School Dist. (1963) 219 Cal.App.2d 542, 551 [33 Cal.Rptr. 333]; Trapani v. Holzer (1958) 158 Cal.App.2d 1, 6 [321 P.2d 803].)

Sources and Authority

- Direct Evidence. Evidence Code section 410.
- Inference. Evidence Code section 600(b).
- The Assembly Committee on Judiciary Comment to section 600 observes: "Under the Evidence Code, an inference is not itself evidence; it is the result of reasoning from evidence."
- "[T]he fact that evidence is 'circumstantial' does not mean that it cannot be 'substantial.' Relevant circumstantial evidence is admissible in California. Moreover, the jury is entitled to accept persuasive circumstantial evidence even where contradicted by direct testimony." (Hasson v. Ford Motor Co. (1977) 19 Cal.3d 530, 548 [138 Cal.Rptr. 705, 564 P.2d 857], overruled on other grounds in Soule v. GM Corp. (1994) 8 Cal.4th 548 [34 Cal.Rptr.2d 607, 882 P.2d 298].)
- "The terms 'indirect evidence' and 'circumstantial evidence' are interchangeable and synonymous." (People v. Yokum (1956) 145 Cal.App.2d 245, 250 [302 P.2d 406], disapproved on other grounds, People v. Cook (1983) 33 Cal.3d 400, 413 [189 Cal.Rptr. 159, 658 P.2d 86]; People v. Goldstein (1956) 139 Cal.App.2d 146, 152 [293 P.2d 495].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, California Evidence (6th ed. 2023) Circumstantial Evidence, §§ 1, 2

3 Witkin, California Evidence (6th ed. 2023) Presentation at Trial, §§ 171–176

7 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Trial, § 306

48 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 551, Trial, § 551.62 (Matthew Bender)

Jefferson, California Evidence Benchbook (3d ed. 1997) §§ 19.12–19.18

203. Party Having Power to Produce Better Evidence

You may consider the ability of each party to provide evidence. If a party provided weaker evidence when it could have provided stronger evidence, you may distrust the weaker evidence.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

An instruction on failure to produce evidence should not be given if there is no evidence that the party producing inferior evidence had the power to produce superior evidence. (Thomas v. Gates (1899) 126 Cal. 1, 6 [58 P. 315]; Hansen v. Warco Steel Corp. (1965) 237 Cal.App.2d 870, 876 [47 Cal.Rptr. 428]; Holland v. Kerr (1953) 116 Cal.App.2d 31, 37 [253 P.2d 88].)

The reference to "stronger evidence" applies to evidence that is admissible. This instruction should not be construed to apply to evidence that the court has ruled inadmissible. (Hansen, supra, 237 Cal.App.2d at p. 877.)

For willful suppression of evidence, see CACI No. 204, Willful Suppression of Evidence.

Sources and Authority

- Power to Produce Better Evidence. Evidence Code section 412.
- Section 412 does not incorporate the "best evidence rule," but instead deals with "stronger and more satisfactory" evidence. (Largey v. Intrastate Radiotelephone, Inc. (1982) 136 Cal.App.3d 660, 672 [186 Cal.Rptr. 520] (giving of instruction was proper because corporate records concerning date of meeting could have been stronger evidence than recollection of participants several years later).)
- This inference was a mandatory presumption under former Code of Civil Procedure section 1963(6). It is now considered a permissible inference. (See 3 Witkin, California Evidence (4th ed. 2000) § 114, p. 152.)

Secondary Sources

7 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Trial, § 317

11 Witkin, California Evidence (6th ed. 2023) Presentation at Trial, § 137

48 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 551, Trial, § 551.93[2] (Matthew Bender)

California Judges Benchbook: Civil Proceedings—Trial § 11.10 (Cal CJER 2019)

204. Willful Suppression of Evidence

You may consider whether one party intentionally concealed or destroyed evidence. If you decide that a party did so, you may decide that the evidence would have been unfavorable to that party.

New September 2003; Revised October 2004

Directions for Use

This instruction should be given only if there is evidence of suppression. (In re Estate of Moore (1919) 180 Cal. 570, 585 [182 P. 285]; Sprague v. Equifax, Inc. (1985) 166 Cal.App.3d 1012, 1051 [213 Cal.Rptr. 69]; County of Contra Costa v. Nulty (1965) 237 Cal.App.2d 593, 598 [47 Cal.Rptr. 109].)

If there is evidence that a party improperly altered evidence (as opposed to concealing or destroying it), users should consider modifying this instruction to account for that circumstance.

In Cedars-Sinai Medical Center v. Superior Court (1998) 18 Cal.4th 1, 12 [74 Cal.Rptr.2d 248, 954 P.2d 511], a case concerning the tort of intentional spoliation of evidence, the Supreme Court observed that trial courts are free to adapt standard jury instructions on willful suppression to fit the circumstances of the case, "including the egregiousness of the spoliation and the strength and nature of the inference arising from the spoliation."

Sources and Authority

- Willful Suppression of Evidence. Evidence Code section 413.
- Former Code of Civil Procedure section 1963(5) permitted the jury to infer "[t]hat the evidence willfully suppressed would be adverse if produced." Including this inference in a jury instruction on willful suppression is proper because "Evidence Code section 413 was not intended as a change in the law." (Bihun v. AT&T Information Systems, Inc. (1993) 13 Cal.App.4th 976, 994 [16 Cal.Rptr.2d 787], disapproved of on other grounds in Lakin v. Watkins Associated Industries (1993) 6 Cal.4th 644, 664 [25 Cal.Rptr.2d 109, 863 P.2d 179].)
- "The rule of [present Evidence Code section 413] . . . is predicated on common sense, and public policy. The purpose of a trial is to arrive at the true facts. A trial is not a game where one counsel safely may sit back and refuse to produce evidence where in the nature of things his client is the only source from which that evidence may be secured. A defendant is not under a duty to produce testimony adverse to himself, but if he fails to produce evidence that would naturally have been produced he must take the risk that the trier of fact will infer, and properly so, that the evidence, had it been produced, would have been adverse." (Williamson v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1978) 21 Cal.3d

829, 836 fn. 2 [148 Cal.Rptr. 39, 582 P.2d 126], original italics.)

- "We can see no error in the trial court's ruling [giving this instruction]. The jury was told only that it could 'consider whether one party intentionally concealed or destroyed evidence.' Defendants were free to present the jury with evidence that (as counsel represented to the court), the redactions were only of telephone numbers, and that the failure to interview certain witnesses was proper, and to argue that evidence to the jury." (Ventura v. ABM Industries Inc. (2012) 212 Cal.App.4th 258, 273 [150 Cal.Rptr.3d 861].)

Secondary Sources

7 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Trial, § 317

3 Witkin, California Evidence (6th ed. 2023) Presentation at Trial, § 138

48 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 551, Trial, § 551.93 (Matthew Bender)

California Judges Benchbook: Civil Proceedings—Trial §§ 5.44, 11.10 (Cal CJER 2019)

205. Failure to Explain or Deny Evidence

If a party failed to explain or deny evidence against [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it] when [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] could reasonably be expected to have done so based on what [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] knew, you may consider [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] failure to explain or deny in evaluating that evidence.

It is up to you to decide the meaning and importance of the failure to explain or deny evidence against the party.

New September 2003; Revised December 2012

Directions for Use

This instruction should be given only if there is a failure to deny or explain a fact that is material to the case.

Sources and Authority

- Failure to Explain or Deny. Evidence Code section 413.

Secondary Sources

3 Witkin, California Evidence (6th ed. 2023) Presentation at Trial, § 138

7 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Trial, § 317

Cotchett, California Courtroom Evidence, § 11.04 (Matthew Bender)

48 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 551, Trial, § 551.93[3] (Matthew Bender)

California Judges Benchbook: Civil Proceedings—Trial § 11.10 (Cal CJER 2019)

206. Evidence Admitted for Limited Purpose

During the trial, certain evidence was admitted for a limited purpose. You may consider that evidence only for that purpose and for no other.

New September 2003; Revised May 2018, November 2018

Directions for Use

It is recommended that the judge call attention to the purpose to which the evidence applies.

If appropriate, an instruction limiting the purpose for which evidence is to be considered must be given upon request. (Evid. Code, § 355; Daggett v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1957) 48 Cal.2d 655, 665–666 [313 P.2d 557]; Continental Airlines, Inc. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 216 Cal.App.3d 388, 412 [264 Cal.Rptr. 779].)

A limited-purpose instruction is insufficient to cure hearsay problems with case-specific testimony given by an expert witness. (People v. Sanchez (2016) 63 Cal.4th 665, 684 [204 Cal.Rptr.3d 102, 374 P.3d 320].)

For an instruction on evidence applicable to one party or a limited number of parties, see CACI No. 207, Evidence Applicable to One Party.

Sources and Authority

- Evidence Admitted for Limited Purpose. Evidence Code section 355.
- Refusal to give a requested instruction limiting the purpose for which evidence is to be considered may constitute error. (Adkins v. Brett (1920) 184 Cal. 252, 261–262 [193 P. 251].)
- "The effect of the statute—here, the municipal code section—is to make certain hearsay evidence admissible for a limited purpose, i.e., supplementing or explaining other evidence. This triggers the long-standing rule codified in Evidence Code section 355, which states, 'When evidence is admissible . . . for one purpose and is inadmissible . . . for another purpose, the court upon request shall restrict the evidence to its proper scope and instruct the jury accordingly.' . . . In the absence of such a request, the evidence is ' "usable for any purpose." ' " (Seibert v. City of San Jose (2016) 247 Cal.App.4th 1027, 1060–1061 [202 Cal.Rptr.3d 890], original italics.)
- "Where the information is admitted for a purpose other than showing the truth of the matter asserted . . . , prejudice is likely to be minimal and a limiting instruction under section 355 may be requested to control the jury's use of the information." (Korsak v. Atlas Hotels, Inc. (1992) 2 Cal.App.4th 1516, 1525 [3 Cal.Rptr.2d 833].)
- An adverse party may be excused from the requirement of requesting a limiting instruction and may be permitted to assert error if the trial court unequivocally rejects the argument upon which a limiting instruction would be based. (Warner Construction Corp. v. City of Los Angeles (1970) 2 Cal.3d 285, 298–299 [85 Cal.Rptr. 444, 466 P.2d 996].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, California Evidence (5th ed. 2012) Circumstantial Evidence, §§ 32–36

Jefferson, California Evidence Benchbook (3d ed. 1997) §§ 20.11–20.13

1A California Trial Guide, Unit 21, Procedures for Determining Admissibility of Evidence, § 21.21 (Matthew Bender)

48 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 551, Trial, §§ 551.66[2], 551.77 (Matthew Bender)

California Judges Benchbook: Civil Proceedings—Trial §§ 3.106, 12.26 (Cal CJER 2019)

207. Evidence Applicable to One Party

[During the trial, I explained that certain evidence could be considered as to only one party. You may not consider that evidence as to any other party.]

[During the trial, I explained that certain evidence could be considered as to one or more parties but not to every party. You may not consider that evidence as to any other party.]

New September 2003

Directions for Use

If appropriate, an instruction limiting the parties to whom evidence applies must be given on request. (Evid. Code, § 355.) It is recommended that the judge call attention to the party or parties to which the evidence applies.

For an instruction on evidence admissible for a limited purpose, see CACI No. 206, Evidence Admitted for Limited Purpose.

Sources and Authority

- Evidence Applicable to One Party. Evidence Code section 355.

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, California Evidence (5th ed. 2012) Circumstantial Evidence, §§ 32–36

Jefferson, California Evidence Benchbook (3d ed. 1997) §§ 20.11–20.13

1A California Trial Guide, Unit 21, Procedures for Determining Admissibility of Evidence, § 21.21 (Matthew Bender)

48 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 551, Trial, §§ 551.66, 551.77 (Matthew Bender)

California Judges Benchbook: Civil Proceedings—Trial §§ 3.106, 12.26 (Cal CJER 2019)

208. Deposition as Substantive Evidence

During the trial, you received deposition testimony that was [read from the deposition transcript/[*describe other manner presented, e.g., shown by video]]. A deposition is the testimony of a person taken before trial. At a deposition the person is sworn to tell the truth and is questioned by the attorneys. You must consider the deposition testimony that was presented to you in the same way as you consider testimony given in court.

New September 2003; Revised December 2012

Sources and Authority

- How Testimony is Taken. Code of Civil Procedure section 2002.
- Use of Deposition at Trial. Code of Civil Procedure section 2025.620.
- Admissibility of Former Testimony. Evidence Code sections 1291(a), 1292(a).
- "Former Testimony" Defined. Evidence Code section 1290(c).
- "Admissions contained in depositions and interrogatories are admissible in evidence to establish any material fact." (Leasman v. Beech Aircraft Corp. (1975) 48 Cal.App.3d 376, 380 [121 Cal.Rptr. 768].)
- "The deposition of a witness, whether or not a party, may be used by any party for any purpose if the court finds the witness unavailable as a witness within the meaning of section 240 of the Evidence Code." (Chavez v. Zapata Ocean Resources, Inc. (1984) 155 Cal.App.3d 115, 118 [201 Cal.Rptr. 887], citation omitted.)

Secondary Sources

3 Witkin, California Evidence (6th ed. 2023) Presentation at Trial, §§ 177–186

7 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Trial, § 308

1A California Trial Guide, Unit 20, Procedural Rules for Presentation of Evidence, §§ 20.30–20.38, Unit 40, Hearsay, §§ 40.60–40.61 (Matthew Bender)

5 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 72, Discovery, § 72.41 (Matthew Bender)

16 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 193, Discovery: Depositions, §§ 193.90–193.97 (Matthew Bender)

2 California Pretrial Civil Procedure Practice Guide: The Wagstaffe Group, Ch. 45, Depositions and Subpoenas in California, § 45-IX

209. Use of Interrogatories of a Party

Before trial, each party has the right to ask the other parties to answer written questions. These questions are called interrogatories. The answers are also in writing and are given under oath. You must consider the questions and answers that were read to you the same as if the questions and answers had been given in court.

New September 2003

Sources and Authority

- Use of Interrogatories at Trial. Code of Civil Procedure section 2030.410.
- "Admissions contained in depositions and interrogatories are admissible in evidence to establish any material fact." (Leasman v. Beech Aircraft Corp. (1975) 48 Cal.App.3d 376, 380 [121 Cal.Rptr. 768].)

Secondary Sources

3 Witkin, California Evidence (6th ed. 2023) Presentation at Trial, § 187

7 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Trial, § 308

1A California Trial Guide, Unit 20, Procedural Rules for Presentation of Evidence, § 20.50 (Matthew Bender)

16 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 194, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 194.26 (Matthew Bender)

2 California Pretrial Civil Procedure Practice Guide: The Wagstaffe Group, Ch. 41, Interrogatories, § 41-V

210. Requests for Admissions

Before trial, each party has the right to ask another party to admit in writing that certain matters are true. If the other party admits those matters, you must accept them as true. No further evidence is required to prove them.

[However, these matters must be considered true only as they apply to the party who admitted they were true.]

New September 2003

Directions for Use

The bracketed phrase should be given if there are multiple parties.

Sources and Authority

- Requests for Admission. Code of Civil Procedure section 2033.010.
- "As Professor Hogan points out, '[t]he request for admission differs fundamentally from the other five discovery tools (depositions, interrogatories, inspection demands, medical examinations, and expert witness exchanges). These other devices have as their main thrust the uncovering of factual data that may be used in proving things at trial. The request for admission looks in the opposite direction. It is a device that seeks to eliminate the need for proof in certain areas of the case.' " (Brigante v. Huang (1993) 20 Cal.App.4th 1569, 1577 [25 Cal.Rptr.2d 354] (quoting 1 Hogan, Modern California Discovery (4th ed. 1988) § 9.1, p. 533).)
- All parties to the action may rely on admissions. (See Swedberg v. Christiana Community Builders (1985) 175 Cal.App.3d 138, 143 [220 Cal.Rptr. 544].)

Secondary Sources

2 Witkin, California Evidence (5th ed. 2012) Discovery, §§ 162, 172, 182

1A California Trial Guide, Unit 20, Procedural Rules for Presentation of Evidence, § 20.51 (Matthew Bender)

16 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 196, Discovery: Requests for Admissions, § 196.19 (Matthew Bender)

2 California Pretrial Civil Procedure Practice Guide: The Wagstaffe Group, Ch. 44, Requests for Admission, § 44-I

211. Prior Conviction of a Felony

You have heard that a witness in this trial has been convicted of a felony. You were told about the conviction [only] to help you decide whether you should believe the witness. [You also may consider the evidence for the purpose of [specify].] You must not consider it for any other purpose.

New September 2003; Revised December 2012

Directions for Use

Include the word "only" unless the court has admitted the evidence for some other purpose, in which case, include the next-to-last sentence. For example, a prior alcohol-related conviction might be relevant to show conscious disregard if the claim involves conduct while under the influence.

Sources and Authority

- Admissibility of Evidence of Prior Felony Conviction. Evidence Code section 788.
- The standards governing admissibility of prior convictions in civil cases are different from those in criminal proceedings. In Robbins v. Wong (1994) 27 Cal.App.4th 261, 273 [32 Cal.Rptr.2d 337], the court observed: "Given the significant distinctions between the rights enjoyed by criminal defendants and civil litigants, and the diminished level of prejudice attendant to felony impeachment in civil proceedings, it is not unreasonable to require different standards of admissibility in civil and criminal cases." (Id. at p. 273.)
- In Robbins, the court concluded that article I, section 28(f) of the California Constitution, as well as any Supreme Court cases on this topic in the criminal arena, does not apply to civil cases. (Robbins, supra, 27 Cal.App.4th at p. 274.) However, the court did hold that the trial court "may utilize such decisions to formulate guidelines for the judicial weighing of probative value against prejudicial effect under section 352." (Ibid.)

Secondary Sources

3 Witkin, California Evidence (5th ed. 2012) Presentation at Trial, §§ 304, 306, 307, 320

48 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 551, Trial, § 551.123 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, Ch. 11, Questioning Witnesses and Objections, 11.64

California Judges Benchbook: Civil Proceedings—Trial § 8.74 (Cal CJER 2019)

212. Statements of a Party Opponent

A party may offer into evidence any oral or written statement made by an opposing party outside the courtroom.

When you evaluate evidence of such a statement, you must consider these questions:

1. Do you believe that the party actually made the statement? If you do not believe that the party made the statement, you may not consider the statement at all.
2. If you believe that the statement was made, do you believe it was reported accurately?

You should view testimony about an oral statement made by a party outside the courtroom with caution.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

Under Evidence Code section 403(c), the court must instruct the jury to disregard a statement offered as evidence if it finds that the preliminary facts do not exist. For adoptive admissions, see CACI No. 213, Adoptive Admissions.

Sources and Authority

- Determination of Preliminary Facts. Evidence Code section 403.
- Statements of Party. Evidence Code section 1220.
- The Law Revision Commission comment to this section observes that "[t]he rational underlying this exception is that the party cannot object to the lack of the right to cross-examine the declarant since the party himself made the statement."
- There is no requirement that the prior statement of a party must have been against his or her interests when made in order to be admissible. Any prior statement of a party may be offered against him or her in trial. (1 Witkin, California Evidence (4th ed. 2000) Hearsay § 93.)
- The cautionary instruction regarding admissions is derived from common law, formerly codified at Code of Civil Procedure section 2061. The repeal of this section did not affect decisional law concerning the giving of the cautionary instruction. (People v. Beagle (1972) 6 Cal.3d 441, 455, fn. 4 [99 Cal.Rptr. 313, 492 P.2d 1].)
- The purpose of the cautionary instruction has been stated as follows: "Ordinarily there is strong reasoning behind the principle that a party's extrajudicial admissions or declarations against interest should be viewed with caution. . . .

No class of evidence is more subject to error or abuse inasmuch as witnesses having the best of motives are generally unable to state the exact language of an admission and are liable, by the omission or the changing of words, to convey a false impression of the language used." (Pittman v. Boiven (1967) 249 Cal.App.2d 207, 214 [57 Cal.Rptr. 319].)

- The need to give the cautionary instruction appears to apply to both civil and criminal cases. (See People v. Livaditis (1992) 2 Cal.4th 759, 789 [9 Cal.Rptr.2d 72, 831 P.2d 297] (conc. opn. of Mosk, J.).)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, California Evidence (5th ed. 2012) Hearsay, §§ 91–94, 126

3 Witkin, California Evidence (5th ed. 2012) Presentation at Trial, § 127

Jefferson, California Evidence Benchbook (3d ed. 1997) §§ 3.7–3.22

2 California Trial Guide, Unit 40, Hearsay, § 40.30 (Matthew Bender)

48 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 551, Trial, § 551.76 (Matthew Bender)

213. Adoptive Admissions

You have heard evidence that [*name of declarant] made the following statement: [describe statement]. You may consider that statement as evidence against [name of party against whom statement was offered] only if you find that all of the following conditions are true:

1. The statement was made to [name of party against whom statement was offered] or made in [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] presence;
2. [Name of party against whom statement was offered] heard and understood the statement;
3. [Name of party against whom statement was offered] would, under all the circumstances, naturally have denied the statement if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] thought it was not true;

   AND

4. [Name of party against whom statement was offered] could have denied it but did not.

If you decide that any of these conditions are not true, you must not consider for any purpose either the statement or [*name of party against whom statement was offered]'s response.

[You must not consider this evidence against any other party.]

New September 2003; Revised December 2012

Directions for Use

Under Evidence Code section 403(c), the court must instruct the jury to disregard the evidence of an adoptive admission if it finds that the preliminary facts do not exist.

For statements of a party opponent, see CACI No. 212, Statements of a Party Opponent. Evasive conduct falls under this instruction rather than under CACI No. 212.

Sources and Authority

- Determination of Preliminary Facts. Evidence Code section 403.
- Adoptive Admissions. Evidence Code section 1221.
- "When a person makes a statement in the presence of a party to an action under circumstances that would normally call for a response if the statement were untrue, the statement is admissible for the limited purpose of showing the party's reaction to it. His silence, evasion, or equivocation may be considered as a tacit admission of the statements made in his presence." (In re Estate of Neilson

(1962) 57 Cal.2d 733, 746 [22 Cal.Rptr. 1, 371 P.2d 745].)

- In order for the hearsay evidence to be admissible, "it must have been shown clearly that [the party] heard and understood the statement." (Fisch v. Los Angeles Metropolitan Transit Authority (1963) 219 Cal.App.2d 537, 540 [33 Cal.Rptr. 298].) There must also be evidence of some type of reaction to the statement. (Ibid.) It is clear that the doctrine "does not apply if the party is in such physical or mental condition that a reply could not reasonably be expected from him." (Southers v. Savage (1961) 191 Cal.App.2d 100, 104 [12 Cal.Rptr. 470].)
- "[T]here may be admissions other than statements made by the party himself; that is, statements of another may in some circumstances be treated as admissions of the party. The situations are (1) where the person who makes the statement is in privity with the party against whom it is offered, as in the case of agency, partnership, etc.; and (2) where the statement of the other is adopted by the party as his own, either expressly or by conduct. Familiar examples of this second situation are the admissions by silence, where declarations of third persons made in the presence of a party give rise to admissions, the conduct of the party in the face of the declaration constituting the adoption of the statement to form an admission." (In re Estate of Gaines (1940) 15 Cal.2d 255, 262 [100 P.2d 1055].)
- "The basis of the rule on admissions made in response to accusations is the fact that human experience has shown that generally it is natural to deny an accusation if a party considers himself innocent of negligence or wrongdoing." (Keller v. Key System Transit Lines (1954) 129 Cal.App.2d 593, 596 [277 P.2d 869].)
- If the statement is not accusatory, then the failure to respond is not an admission. (Neilson, supra, 57 Cal.2d at p. 747; Gilbert v. City of Los Angeles (1967) 249 Cal.App.2d 1006, 1008 [58 Cal.Rptr. 56].)
- Admissibility of this evidence depends upon whether (1) the statement was made under circumstances that call for a reply, (2) whether the party understood the statement, and (3) whether it could be inferred from his conduct that he adopted the statement as an admission. (Gilbert, supra, 249 Cal.App.2d at p. 1009.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, California Evidence (5th ed. 2012) Hearsay, §§ 103–106

Jefferson, California Evidence Benchbook (3d ed. 1997) §§ 3.23–3.30

Cotchett, California Courtroom Evidence, § 21.09 (Matthew Bender)

2 California Trial Guide, Unit 40, Hearsay, § 40.31 (Matthew Bender)

214. Reserved for Future Use

215. Exercise of a Communication Privilege

[*Name of party/witness] has an absolute right not to disclose what [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] told [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] [doctor/attorney/[other]] in confidence because the law considers this information privileged. Do not consider, for any reason at all, the fact that [name of party/witness] did not disclose what [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] told [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] [doctor/attorney/[other]]. Do not discuss that fact during your deliberations or let it influence your decision in any way.

New September 2003; Revised December 2012

Directions for Use

This instruction must be given upon request, if appropriate and the court has determined that the privilege has not been waived. (Evid. Code, § 913(b).)

Sources and Authority

- No Presumption on Exercise of Privilege. Evidence Code section 913(b).
- The comment to Evidence Code section 913 notes that this statute "may modify existing California law as it applies in civil cases." Specifically, the comment notes that section 913 in effect overrules two Supreme Court cases: Nelson v. Southern Pacific Co. (1937) 8 Cal.2d 648 [67 P.2d 682] and Fross v. Wotton (1935) 3 Cal.2d 384 [44 P.2d 350]. The Nelson court had held that evidence of a person's exercise of the privilege against self-incrimination in a prior proceeding may be shown for impeachment purposes if he or she testifies in a self-exculpatory manner in a subsequent proceeding. Language in Fross indicated that unfavorable inferences may be drawn in a civil case from a party's claim of the privilege against self-incrimination during the case itself.

Secondary Sources

2 Witkin, California Evidence (6th ed. 2023) Witnesses, § 92

7 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Trial, § 314

Jefferson, California Evidence Benchbook (3d ed. 1997) §§ 35.26–35.27

Cotchett, California Courtroom Evidence, § 18.09 (Matthew Bender)

3 California Trial Guide, Unit 51, Privileges, §§ 51.01–51.32 (Matthew Bender)

2 California Pretrial Civil Procedure Practice Guide: The Wagstaffe Group, Ch. 40, Scope of Discovery, § 40-III

California Judges Benchbook: Civil Proceedings—Trial §§ 8.34, 8.41 (Cal CJER 2019)

216. Exercise of Right Not to Incriminate Oneself (Evid. Code, § 913)

[*Name of party/witness] has an absolute constitutional right not to give testimony that might tend to incriminate [himself/herself/nonbinary pronoun]. Do not consider, for any reason at all, the fact that [name of party/witness] invoked the right not to testify. Do not discuss that fact during your deliberations or let it influence your decision in any way.

New September 2003; Revised December 2012

Directions for Use

The privilege against self-incrimination may be asserted in a civil proceeding. (Kastigar v. United States (1972) 406 U.S. 441, 444 [92 S.Ct. 1653, 32 L.Ed.2d 212]; People v. Merfeld (1997) 57 Cal.App.4th 1440, 1443 [67 Cal.Rptr.2d 759].) Under California law, neither the court nor counsel may comment on the fact that a witness has claimed a privilege, and the trier of fact may not draw any inference from the refusal to testify as to the credibility of the witness or as to any matter at issue in the proceeding. (Evid. Code, § 913(a); see People v. Doolin (2009) 45 Cal.4th 390, 441–442 [87 Cal.Rptr.3d 209, 198 P.3d 11].)

Therefore, the issue of a witness's invocation of the Fifth Amendment right not to self-incriminate is raised outside the presence of the jury, and the jury is not informed of the matter. This instruction is intended for use if the circumstances presented in a case result in the issue being raised in the presence of the jury and a party adversely affected requests a jury instruction. (See Evid. Code, § 913(b).)

Sources and Authority

- No Presumption From Exercise of Fifth Amendment Privilege. Evidence Code section 913.
- Privilege to Refuse to Disclose Incriminating Information. Evidence Code section 940.
- "[I]n any proceeding, civil or criminal, a witness has the right to decline to answer questions which may tend to incriminate him in criminal activity." (Cramer v. Tyars (1979) 23 Cal.3d 131, 137 [151 Cal.Rptr. 653, 588 P.2d 793], internal citation omitted.)
- "A defendant may not bring a civil action to a halt simply by invoking the privilege against self-incrimination." (Oiye v. Fox (2012) 211 Cal.App.4th 1036, 1055 [151 Cal.Rptr.3d 65].)
- "[T]he privilege may not be asserted by merely declaring that an answer will incriminate; it must be 'evident from the implications of the question, in the setting in which it is asked, that a responsive answer to the question or an explanation of why it cannot be answered might be dangerous because injurious disclosure could result.' " (Troy v. Superior Court (1986) 186 Cal.App.3d 1006, 1010–1011 [231 Cal.Rptr. 108], internal citations omitted.)

- "The Fifth Amendment of the United States Constitution includes a provision that '[no] person . . . shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, ...' Although the specific reference is to criminal cases, the Fifth Amendment protection 'has been broadly extended to a point where now it is available even to a person appearing only as a witness in any kind of proceeding where testimony can be compelled.' " (Brown v. Superior Court (1986) 180 Cal.App.3d 701, 708 [226 Cal.Rptr. 10], citation and footnote omitted.)
- "There is no question that the privilege against self-incrimination may be asserted by civil defendants who face possible criminal prosecution based on the same facts as the civil action. 'All matters which are privileged against disclosure upon the trial under the law of this state are privileged against disclosure through any discovery procedure.' " (Brown, supra, 180 Cal.App.3d at p. 708, internal citations omitted.)
- "California law, then, makes no distinction between civil and criminal litigation concerning adverse inferences from a witness's invocation of the privilege against self-incrimination; under Evidence Code section 913, juries are forbidden to make such inferences in both types of cases. No purpose is served, therefore, in either type of trial by forcing a witness to exercise the privilege on the stand in the jury's presence, for . . . the court would then be 'required, on request, to instruct the jury not to draw the very inference [the party calling the witness] sought to present to the jury." (People v. Holloway (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 96, 131 [14 Cal.Rptr.3d 212, 91 P.3d 164], internal citations omitted.)
- "The privilege against self-incrimination is guaranteed by both the federal and state Constitutions. As pointed out by the California Supreme Court, 'two separate and distinct testimonial privileges' exist under this guarantee. First, a defendant in a criminal case 'has an absolute right not to be called as a witness and not to testify.' Second, 'in any proceeding, civil or criminal, a witness has the right to decline to answer questions which may tend to incriminate him [or her] in criminal activity.' " (People v. Merfeld, supra, 57 Cal.App.4th at p. 1443, internal citations omitted.)
- "The jury may not draw any inference from a witness's invocation of a privilege. Upon request, the trial court must so instruct jurors. 'To avoid the potentially prejudicial impact of having a witness assert the privilege against self-incrimination before the jury, we have in the past recommended that, in determining the propriety of the witness's invocation of the privilege, the trial court hold a pretestimonial hearing outside the jury's presence.' Such a procedure makes sense under the appropriate circumstances. If there is a dispute about whether a witness may legitimately rely on the Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination to avoid testifying, that legal question should be resolved by the court. Given the court's ruling and the nature of the potential testimony, the witness may not be privileged to testify at all, or counsel may elect not to call the witness as a matter of tactics." (People v. Doolin, supra, 45 Cal.4th at pp. 441–442, original italics, internal citations omitted.)

- "Once a court determines a witness has a valid Fifth Amendment right not to testify, it is, of course, improper to require him to invoke the privilege in front of a jury; such a procedure encourages inappropriate speculation on the part of jurors about the reasons for the invocation. An adverse inference, damaging to the defense, may be drawn by jurors despite the possibility the assertion of privilege may be based upon reasons unrelated to guilt." (Victaulic Co. v. American Home Assurance Co. (2018) 20 Cal.App.5th 948, 981 [229 Cal.Rptr.3d 545].)

Secondary Sources

2 Witkin, California Evidence (5th ed. 2012) Witnesses, § 98

5 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 72, Discovery, §§ 72.20, 72.30 (Matthew Bender)

Cotchett, California Courtroom Evidence, § 18.09 (Matthew Bender)

3 California Trial Guide, Unit 51, Privileges, § 51.32 (Matthew Bender)

16 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 191, Discovery: Privileges and Other Discovery Limitations, § 191.30 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1 California Deposition and Discovery Practice, Ch. 21, Privileged Matters in General, § 21.20, Ch. 22, Privilege Against Self-Incrimination (Matthew Bender)

California Judges Benchbook: Civil Proceedings—Trial § 8.34 (Cal CJER 2019)

217. Evidence of Settlement

You have heard evidence that there was a settlement between [*insert names of settling parties]. You must not consider this settlement to determine responsibility for any harm. You may consider this evidence only to decide whether [insert name of witness who settled] is biased or prejudiced and whether [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] testimony is believable.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

Evidence of prior settlement is not automatically admissible: "Even if it appears that a witness could have been influenced in his testimony by the payment of money or the obtaining of a dismissal, the party resisting the admission of such evidence may still appeal to the court's discretion to exclude it under section 352 of the code." (Granville v. Parsons (1968) 259 Cal.App.2d 298, 305 [66 Cal.Rptr. 149].)

Sources and Authority

- Evidence of Settlement. Evidence Code section 1152(a).
- "While evidence of a settlement agreement is inadmissible to prove liability, it is admissible to show bias or prejudice of an adverse party. Relevant evidence includes evidence relevant to the credibility of a witness." (Moreno v. Sayre (1984) 162 Cal.App.3d 116, 126 [208 Cal.Rptr. 444], internal citations omitted.)
- "[E]vidence of a plaintiff's settlement with one or more defendants is admissible at trial to prove witness bias and to prevent collusion." (Diamond v. Reshko (2015) 239 Cal.App.4th 828, 843 [191 Cal.Rptr.3d 438].)
- "[A] term in a settlement agreement requiring the settling defendant to stay in the case during trial is not per se improper, but the settling defendant's position should be revealed to the court and jury to avoid committing a fraud on the court, and to permit the trier of fact to properly weigh the settling defendant's testimony." (Diamond, supra, 239 Cal.App.4th at p. 844.)
- "[T]he good faith settlement determination did not limit the trial court's authority to admit evidence of that settlement at trial. To the contrary, . . . the decision whether to admit evidence of the settlement was for the trial court to make." (Diamond, supra, 239 Cal.App.4th at p. 846.)
- "The bias inherent in a settling defendant's realignment with the plaintiff's interest may or may not affect the conduct of the plaintiff or settling defendant at trial, but that is a question for the jury to decide." (Diamond, supra, 239 Cal.App.4th at p. 848.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, California Evidence (5th ed. 2012) Circumstantial Evidence, §§ 145–153

Jefferson, California Evidence Benchbook (3d ed. 1997) §§ 34.15–34.24

3 California Trial Guide, Unit 50, Extrinsic Policies Affecting or Excluding Evidence, § 50.20 (Matthew Bender)

48 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 551, Trial, § 551.68 (Matthew Bender)

218. Statements Made to Physician (Previously Existing Condition)

[*Insert name of health-care provider] has testified that [insert name of patient] made statements to [him/her/nonbinary pronoun] about [name of patient]'s medical history. These statements helped [name of health-care provider] diagnose the patient's condition. You can use these statements to help you examine the basis of [name of health-care provider]'s opinion. You cannot use them for any other purpose.

[However, a statement by [*name of patient] to [name of health-care provider] about [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] current medical condition may be considered as evidence of that medical condition.]

New September 2003; Revised June 2006, May 2020

Directions for Use

This instruction does not apply to, and should not be used for, a statement of the patient's then-existing physical sensation, mental feeling, pain, or bodily health. Such statements are admissible as an exception to the hearsay rule under Evidence Code section 1250. This instruction also does not apply to statements of a patient regarding a prior mental or physical state if the patient is unavailable as a witness. (Evid. Code, § 1251.)

This instruction also does not apply to, and should not be used for, statements of a party that are offered into evidence by an opposing party. Such statements are admissible as an exception to the hearsay rule under Evidence Code section 1220. See CACI No. 212, Statements of a Party Opponent.

Sources and Authority

- Statements of Party. Evidence Code section 1220.
- Statements pointing to the cause of a physical condition may be admissible if they are made by a patient to a physician. The statement must be required for proper diagnosis and treatment and is admissible only to show the basis of the physician's medical opinion. (People v. Wilson (1944) 25 Cal.2d 341, 348 [153 P.2d 720]; Johnson v. Aetna Life Insurance Co. (1963) 221 Cal.App.2d 247, 252 [34 Cal.Rptr. 484]; Willoughby v. Zylstra (1935) 5 Cal.App.2d 297, 300–301 [42 P.2d 685].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, California Evidence (5th ed. 2012) Hearsay, § 197

2 California Trial Guide, Unit 40, Hearsay, § 40.42 (Matthew Bender)

219. Expert Witness Testimony

During the trial you heard testimony from expert witnesses. The law allows an expert to state opinions about matters in the expert's field of expertise even if the expert has not witnessed any of the events involved in the trial.

You do not have to accept an expert's opinion. As with any other witness, it is up to you to decide whether you believe the expert's testimony and choose to use it as a basis for your decision. You may believe all, part, or none of an expert's testimony. In deciding whether to believe an expert's testimony, you should consider:

a. The expert's training and experience;

b. The facts the expert relied on; and

c. The reasons for the expert's opinion.

New September 2003; Revised May 2020

Directions for Use

This instruction should not be given for expert witness testimony on the standard of care in professional malpractice cases if the testimony is uncontradicted. Uncontradicted testimony of an expert witness on the standard of care in a professional malpractice case is conclusive. (Howard v. Owens Corning (1999) 72 Cal.App.4th 621, 632–633 [85 Cal.Rptr.2d 386]; Conservatorship of McKeown (1994) 25 Cal.App.4th 502, 509 [30 Cal.Rptr.2d 542]; Lysick v. Walcom (1968) 258 Cal.App.2d 136, 156 [65 Cal.Rptr. 406].) In all other cases, the jury may reject expert testimony, provided that the jury does not act arbitrarily. (McKeown, supra, 25 Cal.App.4th at p. 509.)

Do not use this instruction in eminent domain and inverse condemnation cases. (See Aetna Life and Casualty Co. v. City of Los Angeles (1985) 170 Cal.App.3d 865, 877 [216 Cal.Rptr. 831]; CACI No. 3515, Valuation Testimony.)

For an instruction on hypothetical questions, see CACI No. 220, Experts—Questions Containing Assumed Facts. For an instruction on conflicting expert testimony, see CACI No. 221, Conflicting Expert Testimony.

Sources and Authority

- Qualification as Expert. Evidence Code section 720(a).
- " 'A properly qualified expert may offer an opinion relating to a subject that is beyond common experience, if that expert's opinion will assist the trier of fact.' 'However, even when the witness qualifies as an expert, he or she does not possess a carte blanche to express any opinion within the area of expertise. [Citation.] For example, an expert's opinion based on assumptions of fact without evidentiary support [citation], or on speculative or conjectural factors [citation], has no evidentiary value [citation] and may be excluded from evidence. [Citations.] Similarly, when an expert's opinion is purely conclusory because unaccompanied by a reasoned explanation connecting the factual predicates to the ultimate conclusion, that opinion has no evidentiary value because an "expert opinion is worth no more than the reasons upon which it rests." ' 'An expert who gives only a conclusory opinion does not assist the jury to determine what occurred, but instead supplants the jury by declaring what occurred.' " (Property California SCJLW One Corp. v. Leamy (2018) 25 Cal.App.5th 1155, 1163 [236 Cal.Rptr.3d 500], internal citation omitted.)

- "Under Evidence Code section 720, subdivision (a), a person is qualified to testify as an expert if he or she 'has special knowledge, skill, experience, training, or education sufficient to qualify him as an expert on the subject to which his testimony relates.' '[T]he determinative issue in each case must be whether the witness has sufficient skill or experience in the field so that his testimony would be likely to assist the jury in the search for the truth . . . . [Citation.] Where a witness has disclosed sufficient knowledge, the question of the degree of knowledge goes more to the weight of the evidence than its admissibility. [Citation.]' " (Lattimore v. Dickey (2015) 239 Cal.App.4th 959, 969 [191 Cal.Rptr.3d 766].)
- The "credibility of expert witnesses is a matter for the jury after proper instructions from the court." (Williams v. Volkswagenwerk Aktiengesellschaft (1986) 180 Cal.App.3d 1244, 1265 [226 Cal.Rptr. 306].)
- "[U]nder Evidence Code sections 801, subdivision (b), and 802, the trial court acts as a gatekeeper to exclude expert opinion testimony that is (1) based on matter of a type on which an expert may not reasonably rely, (2) based on reasons unsupported by the material on which the expert relies, or (3) speculative. Other provisions of law, including decisional law, may also provide reasons for excluding expert opinion testimony. [¶] But courts must also be cautious in excluding expert testimony. The trial court's gatekeeping role does not involve choosing between competing expert opinions." (Sargon Enterprises, Inc. v. University of Southern California (2012) 55 Cal.4th 747, 771–772 [149 Cal.Rptr.3d 614, 288 P.3d 1237], footnote omitted.)
- " 'Generally, the opinion of an expert is admissible when it is "[r]elated to a subject that is sufficiently beyond common experience that the opinion of an expert would assist the trier of fact . . . ." [Citations.] Also, "[t]estimony in the form of an opinion that is otherwise admissible is not objectionable because it embraces the ultimate issue to be decided by the trier of fact." [Citation.] However, " 'Where the jury is just as competent as the expert to consider and weigh the evidence and draw the necessary conclusions, then the need for expert testimony evaporates.' " ' Expert testimony will be excluded ' " 'when it would add nothing at all to the jury's common fund of information, i.e., when 'the subject of inquiry is one of such common knowledge that men of ordinary education could reach a conclusion as intelligently as the witness." ' " ' " (Burton

v. Sanner (2012) 207 Cal.App.4th 12, 19 [142 Cal.Rptr.3d 782], internal citations omitted.)

- Under Evidence Code section 801(a), expert witness testimony "must relate to a subject that is sufficiently beyond common experience that the opinion of an expert would assist the trier of fact." (New v. Consolidated Rock Products Co. (1985) 171 Cal.App.3d 681, 692 [217 Cal.Rptr. 522].)
- Expert witnesses are qualified by special knowledge to form opinions on facts that they have not personally witnessed. (Manney v. Housing Authority of The City of Richmond (1947) 79 Cal.App.2d 453, 460 [180 P.2d 69].)
- "Although a jury may not arbitrarily or unreasonably disregard the testimony of an expert, it is not bound by the expert's opinion. Instead, it must give to each opinion the weight which it finds the opinion deserves. So long as it does not do so arbitrarily, a jury may entirely reject the testimony of a plaintiff's expert, even where the defendant does not call any opposing expert and the expert testimony is not contradicted." (Howard, supra, 72 Cal.App.4th at p. 633, citations omitted.)
- "When any expert relates to the jury case-specific out-of-court statements, and treats the content of those statements as true and accurate to support the expert's opinion, the statements are hearsay. It cannot logically be maintained that the statements are not being admitted for their truth." (People v. Sanchez (2016) 63 Cal.4th 665, 686 [204 Cal.Rptr.3d 102, 374 P.3d 320].)
- "Any expert may still rely on hearsay in forming an opinion, and may tell the jury in general terms that he did so. Because the jury must independently evaluate the probative value of an expert's testimony, Evidence Code section 802 properly allows an expert to relate generally the kind and source of the 'matter' upon which his opinion rests. A jury may repose greater confidence in an expert who relies upon well-established scientific principles. It may accord less weight to the views of an expert who relies on a single article from an obscure journal or on a lone experiment whose results cannot be replicated. There is a distinction to be made between allowing an expert to describe the type or source of the matter relied upon as opposed to presenting, as fact, case-specific hearsay that does not otherwise fall under a statutory exception." (People v. Sanchez, supra, 63 Cal.4th at pp. 685–686, original italics.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, California Evidence (5th ed. 2012) Opinion Evidence, §§ 26–44

Jefferson, California Evidence Benchbook (3d ed. 1997) §§ 29.18–29.55

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 3, Proof of Negligence, § 3.04 (Matthew Bender)

3A California Trial Guide, Unit 60, Opinion Testimony, § 60.05 (Matthew Bender)

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 4, The Role of the Expert, § 4.03 (Matthew Bender)

48 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 551, Trial, §§ 551.70, 551.113 (Matthew Bender)

220. Experts—Questions Containing Assumed Facts

The law allows expert witnesses to be asked questions that are based on assumed facts. These are sometimes called "hypothetical questions."

In determining the weight to give to the expert's opinion that is based on the assumed facts, you should consider whether the assumed facts are true.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

Juries may be instructed that they should weigh an expert witness's response to a hypothetical question based on their assessment of the accuracy of the assumed facts in the hypothetical question. (Treadwell v. Nickel (1924) 194 Cal. 243, 263–264 [228 P. 25].)

For an instruction on expert witnesses generally, see CACI No. 219, Expert Witness Testimony. For an instruction on conflicting expert testimony, see CACI No. 221, Conflicting Expert Testimony.

Sources and Authority

- The value of an expert's opinion depends on the truth of the facts assumed. (Richard v. Scott (1978) 79 Cal.App.3d 57, 63 [144 Cal.Rptr. 672].)
- "Generally, an expert may render opinion testimony on the basis of facts given 'in a hypothetical question that asks the expert to assume their truth.' " (People v. Vang (2011) 52 Cal.4th 1038, 1045 [132 Cal.Rptr.3d 373, 262 P.3d 581].)
- Hypothetical questions must be based on facts that are supported by the evidence: "It was decided early in this state that a hypothetical question to an expert must be based upon facts shown by the evidence and that the appellate court will place great reliance in the trial court's exercise of its discretion in passing upon a sufficiency of the facts as narrated." (Hyatt v. Sierra Boat Co. (1978) 79 Cal.App.3d 325, 339 [145 Cal.Rptr. 47].)
- "A hypothetical question need not encompass all of the evidence. 'It is true that "it is not necessary that the question include a statement of all the evidence in the case. The statement may assume facts within the limits of the evidence, not unfairly assembled, upon which the opinion of the expert is required, and considerable latitude must be allowed in the choice of facts as to the basis upon which to frame a hypothetical question." On the other hand, the expert's opinion may not be based "on assumptions of fact without evidentiary support [citation], or on speculative or conjectural factors . . . ." ' " (People v. Vang, supra, 52 Cal.4th at p. 1046, internal citation omitted.)
- Hypothetical questions should not omit essential material facts. (Coe v. State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Co. (1977) 66 Cal.App.3d 981, 995 [136 Cal.Rptr. 331].)

- The jury should not be instructed that they are entitled to reject the entirety of an expert's opinion if a hypothetical assumption has not been proven. Rather, the jury should be instructed "to determine the effect of that failure of proof on the value and weight of the expert opinion based on that assumption." (Lysick v. Walcom (1968) 258 Cal.App.2d 136, 156 [65 Cal.Rptr. 406].)
- "The jury still plays a critical role in two respects. First, it must decide whether to credit the expert's opinion at all. Second, it must determine whether the facts stated in the hypothetical questions are the actual facts, and the significance of any difference between the actual facts and the facts stated in the questions." (People v. Vang, supra, 52 Cal.4th at pp. 1049–1050.)
- "[Experts] . . . can rely on background information accepted in their field of expertise under the traditional latitude given by the Evidence Code. They can rely on information within their personal knowledge, and they can give an opinion based on a hypothetical including case-specific facts that are properly proven. They may also rely on nontestimonial hearsay properly admitted under a statutory hearsay exception." (People v. Sanchez (2016) 63 Cal.4th 665, 685 [204 Cal.Rptr.3d 102, 374 P.3d 320].)

Secondary Sources

3 Witkin, California Evidence (5th ed. 2012) Presentation at Trial, §§ 208–215

Jefferson, California Evidence Benchbook (3d ed. 1997) § 29.43, pp. 609–610

3A California Trial Guide, Unit 60, Opinion Testimony, §§ 60.05, 60.50–60.51 (Matthew Bender)

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 4, The Role of the Expert, § 4.03 (Matthew Bender)

48 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 551, Trial, § 551.70 (Matthew Bender)

California Judges Benchbook: Civil Proceedings—Trial § 8.92 (Cal CJER 2019)

221. Conflicting Expert Testimony

If the expert witnesses disagreed with one another, you should weigh each opinion against the others. You should examine the reasons given for each opinion and the facts or other matters that each witness relied on. You may also compare the experts' qualifications.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

Unless the issue is one that can be resolved only with expert testimony, the jury should not be instructed that they must accept the entire testimony of the expert whose testimony appears to be entitled to greater weight. (Santa Clara County Flood Control and Water Conservation Dist. v. Freitas (1960) 177 Cal.App.2d 264, 268–269 [2 Cal.Rptr. 129].)

For an instruction on expert witnesses generally, see CACI No. 219, Expert Witness Testimony. For an instruction on hypothetical questions, see CACI No. 220, Experts—Questions Containing Assumed Facts.

Sources and Authority

- "[C]redibility of expert witnesses is a matter for the jury after proper instructions from the court." (Williams v. Volkswagenwerk Aktiengesellschaft (1986) 180 Cal.App.3d 1244, 1265 [226 Cal.Rptr. 306].)
- "[W]e rely upon the rule of Sargon [Sargon Enterprises, Inc. v. University of Southern California (2012) 55 Cal.4th 747 [149 Cal.Rptr.3d 614, 288 P.3d 1237]] that although trial courts 'have a substantial "gatekeeping" responsibility' in evaluating proposed expert opinion, the gate tended is not a partisan checkpoint." (Davis v. Honeywell Internat. Inc. (2016) 245 Cal.App.4th 477, 492 [199 Cal.Rptr.3d 583], internal citation omitted.)
- "Complex questions of medical causation are prone to uncertainty. . . . It is therefore imperative that the party without the burden of proof be allowed to suggest alternative causes, or the uncertainty of causation, to less than a reasonable medical probability. To withhold such information from the jury is to deprive it of relevant information in assessing whether the plaintiff has met its ultimate burden of persuasion. And, it would improperly transfer from the jury to the court the responsibility for resolving conflicts between competing expert opinions." (Kline v. Zimmer, Inc. (2022) 79 Cal.App.5th 123, 133–134 [294 Cal.Rptr.3d 500], internal citation and footnote omitted.)

Secondary Sources

7 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Trial, § 315

48 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 551, Trial, § 551.70 (Matthew Bender)

222. Evidence of Sliding-Scale Settlement

You have heard evidence that there was a settlement agreement between [*name of settling defendant] and [name of plaintiff].

Under this agreement, the amount of money that [*name of settling defendant] will have to pay to [name of plaintiff] will depend on the amount of money that [name of plaintiff] receives from [name of nonsettling defendant] at trial. The more money that [name of plaintiff] might receive from [name of nonsettling defendant], the less that [name of settling defendant] will have to pay under the agreement.

You may consider evidence of the settlement only to decide whether [*name of settling defendant/name of witness] [, who testified on behalf of [name of settling defendant],] is biased or prejudiced and whether [his/her/ nonbinary pronoun] testimony is believable.

New April 2007; Revised June 2016

Directions for Use

Use this instruction for cases involving sliding scale or "Mary Carter" settlement agreements if a party who settled appears at trial as a witness. A "Mary Carter" agreement calls for the settling defendant to participate in the trial on the plaintiff's behalf, and provides for a settling defendant to be credited for amounts the plaintiff recovers from nonsettling defendants. It is secret and raises concerns of collusion and the potential for fraud. The interests of the parties are realigned in a manner not apparent to the trier of fact. (Diamond v. Reshko (2015) 239 Cal.App.4th 828, 843, fn. 7 [191 Cal.Rptr.3d 438].)

The court must give this instruction on the motion of any party unless it finds that disclosure will create substantial danger of undue prejudice, of confusing the issues, or of misleading the jury. (Code Civ. Proc., § 877.5(a)(2).)

If the settling defendant is an entity, insert the name of the witness who testified on behalf of the entity and include the bracketed language in the third paragraph.

See CACI No. 217, Evidence of Settlement. See also CACI No. 3926, Settlement Deduction.

Sources and Authority

- Evidence of Settlement. Code of Civil Procedure section 877.5(a)(2).
- "[W]hen a defendant is a party to a sliding scale settlement, which is also called a 'Mary Carter' agreement, that agreement must be disclosed to the jury if the settling defendant testifies at trial, unless the court finds that the disclosure will create a substantial danger of undue prejudice." (Diamond, supra, 239 Cal.App.4th at p. 843.)

- Evidence of a settlement agreement is admissible to show bias or prejudice of an adverse party. Relevant evidence includes evidence relevant to the credibility of a witness. (Moreno v. Sayre (1984) 162 Cal.App.3d 116, 126 [208 Cal.Rptr. 444].)
- Evidence of a prior settlement is not automatically admissible. "Even if it appears that a witness could have been influenced in his testimony by the payment of money or the obtaining of a dismissal, the party resisting the admission of such evidence may still appeal to the court's discretion to exclude it under section 352 of the code." (Granville v. Parsons (1968) 259 Cal.App.2d 298, 305 [66 Cal.Rptr. 149].)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 211

5 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 74, Resolving Multiparty Tort Litigation, § 74.27 (Matthew Bender)

25 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution, § 300.73[10] (Matthew Bender)

46 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 520, Settlement and Release, § 520.16[3] (Matthew Bender)

3 California Pretrial Civil Procedure Practice Guide: The Wagstaffe Group, Ch. 57, Settlement and Release, § 57-V

223. Opinion Testimony of Lay Witness

A witness [who was not testifying as an expert] gave an opinion during the trial. You may, but are not required to, accept that opinion. You may give the opinion whatever weight you think is appropriate.

Consider the extent of the witness's opportunity to perceive the matters on which the opinion is based, the reasons the witness gave for the opinion, and the facts or information on which the witness relied in forming that opinion. You must decide whether information on which the witness relied was true and accurate. You may disregard all or any part of an opinion that you find unbelievable, unreasonable, or unsupported by the evidence.

New April 2008

Directions for Use

Give the bracketed phrase in the first sentence regarding the witness not testifying as an expert if an expert witness also testified in the case.

Sources and Authority

- Opinion Testimony of Lay Witness. Evidence Code section 800.
- Foundation for Opinion Testimony of Lay Witness. Evidence Code section 802.
- Character Evidence. Evidence Code section 1100.

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, California Evidence (5th ed. 2012) Opinion Evidence, §§ 3–25

Wegner et al., California Practice Guide: Civil Trial and Evidence, Ch. 8C-H, Opinion Evidence, ¶¶ 8:643–8:681 (The Rutter Group)

Jefferson's California Evidence Benchbook (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) §§ 29.1–29.17

48 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 551, Trial, § 551.70 (Matthew Bender)

1 Cotchett, California Courtroom Evidence, Ch. 17, Nonexpert and Expert Opinion, § 17.01 (Matthew Bender)

California Judges Benchbook: Civil Proceedings—Trial § 8.72 (Cal CJER 2019)

224. Testimony of Child

You have heard testimony from a witness who is [_____] years old. As with any other witness, you must decide whether the child gave truthful and accurate testimony.

In evaluating a child's testimony, you should consider all of the factors surrounding that testimony, including the child's age and ability to perceive, understand, remember, and communicate.

You should not discount or distrust testimony just because a witness is a child.

New April 2008

Sources and Authority

- Minors Qualified to Testify. Evidence Code section 700.
- Evaluation of Child's Testimony in Criminal Trial. Penal Code section 1127f.

Secondary Sources

3 Witkin, California Evidence (5th ed. 2012) Presentation, §§ 13, 100, 232

Wegner et al., California Practice Guide: Civil Trial and Evidence, Ch. 8C-A, Testimony, ¶¶ 8:228–8:233 (The Rutter Group)

Jefferson's California Evidence Benchbook (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 26.2

48 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 551, Trial, §§ 551.111, 551.113, 551.122 (Matthew Bender)

1 Cotchett, California Courtroom Evidence, Ch. 16, Competency, Oath, Confrontation, Experts, Interpreters, Credibility, and Hypnosis, § 16.01 (Matthew Bender)

California Judges Benchbook: Civil Proceedings—Trial § 8.105 (Cal CJER 2019)

225–299. Reserved for Future Use

CONTRACTS

300. Breach of Contract—Introduction

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] and [name of defendant] entered into a contract for [insert brief summary of alleged contract].

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] breached this contract by [briefly state the alleged breach].

[*Name of plaintiff] also claims that [name of defendant]'s breach of this contract caused harm to [name of plaintiff] for which [name of defendant] should pay.

[*Name of defendant] denies [insert denial of any of the above claims]. [Name of defendant] also claims [insert affirmative defense].

New September 2003; Revised December 2007

Directions for Use

This instruction is designed to introduce the jury to the issues involved in the case. It should be read before the instructions on the substantive law.

Sources and Authority

- The Supreme Court has observed that "[c]ontract and tort are different branches of law. Contract law exists to enforce legally binding agreements between parties; tort law is designed to vindicate social policy." (Applied Equipment Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia, Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal.4th 503, 514 [28 Cal.Rptr.2d 475, 869 P.2d 454].)
- "The differences between contract and tort give rise to distinctions in assessing damages and in evaluating underlying motives for particular courses of conduct. Contract damages seek to approximate the agreed-upon performance . . . and are generally limited to those within the contemplation of the parties when the contract was entered into or at least reasonably foreseeable by them at that time; consequential damages beyond the expectations of the parties are not recoverable." (Applied Equipment Corp., supra, 7 Cal.4th at p. 515, internal citations omitted.)
- Certain defenses are decided as questions of law, not as questions of fact. These defenses include frustration of purpose, impossibility, and impracticability. (Oosten v. Hay Haulers Dairy Employees and Helpers Union (1955) 45 Cal.2d 784, 788 [291 P.2d 17]; Mitchell v. Ceazan Tires, Ltd. (1944) 25 Cal.2d 45, 48 [153 P.2d 53]; Autry v. Republic Productions, Inc. (1947) 30 Cal.2d 144, 157 [180 P.2d 888]; Glen Falls Indemnity Co. v. Perscallo (1950) 96 Cal.App.2d 799, 802 [216 P.2d 567].)
- "Defendant contends that frustration is a question of fact resolved in its favor by the trial court. The excuse of frustration, however, like that of impossibility, is a conclusion of law drawn by the court from the facts of a given case . . . ." (Mitchell, supra, 25 Cal.2d at p. 48, italics added.)

- Estoppel is a "nonjury fact question to be determined by the trial court in accordance with applicable law." (DRG/Beverly Hills, Ltd. v. Chopstix Dim Sum Cafe and Takeout III, Ltd. (1994) 30 Cal.App.4th 54, 61 [35 Cal.Rptr.2d 515].)
- "A settlement agreement is a contract, and the legal principles which apply to contracts generally apply to settlement contracts." (Monster Energy Co. v. Schechter (2019) 7 Cal.5th 781, 789 [249 Cal.Rptr.3d 295, 444 P.3d 97].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 872–892

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.50 (Matthew Bender)

5 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 50, Contracts, § 50.10 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 13, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract—Absence of Essential Element, 13.03–13.17

301. Third-Party Beneficiary

[*Name of plaintiff] is not a party to the contract. However, [name of plaintiff] may be entitled to damages for breach of contract if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] proves that a motivating purpose of [names of the contracting parties] was for [name of plaintiff] to benefit from their contract.

You should consider all of the circumstances under which the contract was made. It is not necessary for [*name of plaintiff] to have been named in the contract.

New September 2003; Revised November 2019

Directions for Use

The right of a third-party beneficiary to enforce a contract might not be a question for the jury to decide. Third-party beneficiary status may be determined as a question of law if there is no conflicting extrinsic evidence. (See, e.g., Kalmanovitz v. Bitting (1996) 43 Cal.App.4th 311, 315 [50 Cal.Rptr.2d 332].)

Among the elements that the court must consider in deciding whether to allow a case to go forward is whether the third party would in fact benefit from the contract. (Goonewardene v. ADP, LLC (2019) 6 Cal.5th 817, 829–830 [243 Cal.Rptr.3d 299, 434 P.3d 124].) If the court decides that this determination depends on resolution of a question of fact, add this element as a second element that the plaintiff must prove in addition to motivating purpose.

Sources and Authority

- Contract for Benefit of Third Person. Civil Code section 1559.
- "While it is not necessary that a third party be specifically named, the contracting parties must clearly manifest their intent to benefit the third party. 'The fact that [a third party] is incidentally named in the contract, or that the contract, if carried out according to its terms, would inure to his benefit, is not sufficient to entitle him to demand its fulfillment. It must appear to have been the intention of the parties to secure to him personally the benefit of its provisions.' " (Kalmanovitz, supra, 43 Cal.App.4th at p. 314, original italics, internal citation omitted.)
- " 'It is sufficient if the claimant belongs to a class of persons for whose benefit it was made. [Citation.] A third party may qualify as a contract beneficiary where the contracting parties must have intended to benefit that individual, an intent which must appear in the terms of the agreement. [Citation.]' " (Brinton v. Bankers Pension Services, Inc. (1999) 76 Cal.App.4th 550, 558 [90 Cal.Rptr.2d 469].)
- "Insofar as intent to benefit a third person is important in determining his right to bring an action under a contract, it is sufficient that the promisor must have understood that the promisee had such intent. No specific manifestation by the promisor of an intent to benefit the third person is required." (Lucas v. Hamm (1961) 56 Cal.2d 583, 591 [15 Cal.Rptr. 821, 364 P.2d 685].)

- "[A] review of this court's third party beneficiary decisions reveals that our court has carefully examined the express provisions of the contract at issue, as well as all of the relevant circumstances under which the contract was agreed to, in order to determine not only (1) whether the third party would in fact benefit from the contract, but also (2) whether a motivating purpose of the contracting parties was to provide a benefit to the third party, and (3) whether permitting a third party to bring its own breach of contract action against a contracting party is consistent with the objectives of the contract and the reasonable expectations of the contracting parties. All three elements must be satisfied to permit the third party action to go forward." (Goonewardene, supra, 6 Cal.5th at pp. 829–830.)
- "Because of the ambiguous and potentially confusing nature of the term 'intent', this opinion uses the term 'motivating purpose' in its iteration of this element to clarify that the contracting parties must have a motivating purpose to benefit the third party, and not simply knowledge that a benefit to the third party may follow from the contract." (Goonewardene, supra, 6 Cal.5th at p. 830, internal citation omitted.)
- "[The third] element calls for a judgment regarding the potential effect that permitting third party enforcement would have on the parties' contracting goals, rather than a determination whether the parties actually anticipated third party enforcement at the time the contract was entered into." (Goonewardene, supra, 6 Cal.5th at p. 831.)
- "Section 1559 of the Civil Code, which provides for enforcement by a third person of a contract made 'expressly' for his benefit, does not preclude this result. The effect of the section is to exclude enforcement by persons who are only incidentally or remotely benefited." (Lucas, supra, 56 Cal.2d at p. 590.)
- "Whether a third party is an intended beneficiary or merely an incidental beneficiary to the contract involves construction of the parties' intent, gleaned from reading the contract as a whole in light of the circumstances under which it was entered. [Citation.]" (Jones v. Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. (1994) 26 Cal.App.4th 1717, 1725 [33 Cal.Rptr.2d 291].)
- "[A] third party's rights under the third party beneficiary doctrine may arise under an oral as well as a written contract . . . ." (Goonewardene, supra, 6 Cal.5th at p. 833.)
- "In place of former section 133, the Second Restatement inserted section 302: '(1) Unless otherwise agreed between promisor and promisee, a beneficiary of a promise is an intended beneficiary if recognition of a right to performance in the beneficiary is appropriate to effectuate the intention of the parties and either [para.] (a) the performance of the promise will satisfy an obligation of the promisee to pay money to the beneficiary; or [para.] (b) the circumstances indicate that the promisee intends to give the beneficiary the benefit of the promised performance. [para.] (2) An incidental beneficiary is a beneficiary who is not an intended beneficiary.' " (Outdoor Servs. v. Pabagold (1986) 185 Cal.App.3d 676, 684 [230 Cal.Rptr. 73].)

- "[T]he burden is upon [plaintiff] to prove that the performance he seeks was actually promised. This is largely a question of interpretation of the written contract." (Garcia v. Truck Ins. Exchange (1984) 36 Cal.3d 426, 436 [204 Cal.Rptr. 435, 682 P.2d 1100].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 705–726

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, §§ 140.83, 140.103, 140.131 (Matthew Bender)

5 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 50, Contracts, § 50.132 (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms, Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.11 (Matthew Bender)

2 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 19, Seeking or Opposing Recovery As Third Party Beneficiary of Contract, 19.03–19.06

302. Contract Formation—Essential Factual Elements

[Name of plaintiff] claims that the parties entered into a contract. To prove that a contract was created, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That the contract terms were clear enough that the parties could understand what each was required to do;
2. That the parties agreed to give each other something of value [a promise to do something or not to do something may have value]; and
3. That the parties agreed to the terms of the contract.

[When you examine whether the parties agreed to the terms of the contract, ask yourself if, under the circumstances, a reasonable person would conclude, from the words and conduct of each party, that there was an agreement. You may not consider the parties' hidden intentions.]

If [name of plaintiff] did not prove all of the above, then a contract was not created.

New September 2003; Revised October 2004, June 2011, June 2014

Directions for Use

This instruction should only be given if the existence of a contract is contested. At other times, the parties may be contesting only a limited number of contract formation issues. Also, some of these issues may be decided by the judge as a matter of law. Read the bracketed paragraph only if element 3 is read.

The elements regarding legal capacity and legal purpose are omitted from this instruction because these issues are not likely to be before the jury. If legal capacity or legal purpose is factually disputed then this instruction should be amended to add that issue as an element. Regarding legal capacity, the element could be stated as follows: "That the parties were legally capable of entering into a contract." Regarding legal purpose, the element could be stated as follows: "That the contract had a legal purpose."

The final element of this instruction would be given before instructions on offer and acceptance. If neither offer nor acceptance is contested, then this element of the instruction will not need to be given to the jury.

Sources and Authority

- Essential Elements of Contract. Civil Code section 1550.
- Who May Contract. Civil Code section 1556.
- Consent. Civil Code section 1565.

- Mutual Consent. Civil Code section 1580.
- Good Consideration. Civil Code section 1605.
- Writing Is Presumption of Consideration. Civil Code section 1614.
- Burden of Proof on Consideration. Civil Code section 1615.
- "Whether parties have reached a contractual agreement and on what terms are questions for the fact finder when conflicting versions of the parties' negotiations require a determination of credibility." (Hebberd-Kulow Enterprises, Inc. v. Kelomar, Inc. (2013) 218 Cal.App.4th 272, 283 [159 Cal.Rptr.3d 869].)
- "Whether a contract is illegal or contrary to public policy is a question of law to be determined from the circumstances of each particular case." (Jackson v. Rogers & Wells (1989) 210 Cal.App.3d 336, 349–350 [258 Cal.Rptr. 454].)
- "In order for acceptance of a proposal to result in the formation of a contract, the proposal 'must be sufficiently definite, or must call for such definite terms in the acceptance, that the performance promised is reasonably certain.' [Citation.]" (Weddington Productions, Inc. v. Flick (1998) 60 Cal.App.4th 793, 811 [71 Cal.Rptr.2d 265].)
- "Whether a contract is sufficiently definite to be enforceable is a question of law for the court." (Ladas v. California State Automobile Assn. (1993) 19 Cal.App.4th 761, 770, fn. 2 [23 Cal.Rptr.2d 810].)
- "Consideration is present when the promisee confers a benefit or suffers a prejudice. Although 'either alone is sufficient to constitute consideration,' the benefit or prejudice' " 'must actually be bargained for as the exchange for the promise.' " ' 'Put another way, the benefit or prejudice must have induced the promisor's promise.' It is established that 'the compromise of disputes or claims asserted in good faith constitutes consideration for a new promise.' " (Property California SCJLW One Corp. v. Leamy (2018) 25 Cal.App.5th 1155, 1165 [236 Cal.Rptr.3d 500], internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]he presumption of consideration under [Civil Code] section 1614 affects the burden of producing evidence and not the burden of proof." (Rancho Santa Fe Pharmacy, Inc. v. Seyfert (1990) 219 Cal.App.3d 875, 884 [268 Cal.Rptr. 505].)
- "Being an affirmative defense, lack of consideration must be alleged in answer to the complaint." (National Farm Workers Service Center, Inc. v. M. Caratan, Inc. (1983) 146 Cal.App.3d 796, 808 [194 Cal.Rptr. 617].)
- " 'It matters not from whom the consideration moves or to whom it goes. If it is bargained for and given in exchange for the promise, the promise is not gratuitous.' " (Flojo Internat., Inc. v. Lassleben (1992) 4 Cal.App.4th 713, 719 [6 Cal.Rptr.2d 99], internal citation omitted.)
- "The failure to specify the amount or a formula for determining the amount of the bonus does not render the agreement too indefinite for enforcement. It is not essential that the contract specify the amount of the consideration or the means of ascertaining it." (Moncada v. West Coast Quartz Corp. (2013) 221

Cal.App.4th 768, 778 [164 Cal.Rptr.3d 601].)

- " 'An essential element of any contract is "consent." [Citations.] The "consent" must be "mutual." [Citations.] "Consent is not mutual, unless the parties all agree upon the same thing in the same sense." ' ' "The existence of mutual consent is determined by objective rather than subjective criteria, the test being what the outward manifestations of consent would lead a reasonable person to believe. [Citation.] Accordingly, the primary focus in determining the existence of mutual consent is upon the acts of the parties involved." ' " (Monster Energy Co. v. Schechter (2019) 7 Cal.5th 781, 789 [249 Cal.Rptr.3d 295, 444 P.3d 97], internal citations omitted.)
- "The manifestation of assent to a contractual provision may be 'wholly or partly by written or spoken words or by other acts or by failure to act.' " (Merced County Sheriff's Employees' Assn. v. County of Merced (1987) 188 Cal.App.3d 662, 670 [233 Cal.Rptr. 519] (quoting Rest. 2d Contracts, § 19).)
- "A letter of intent can constitute a binding contract, depending on the expectations of the parties. These expectations may be inferred from the conduct of the parties and surrounding circumstances." (California Food Service Corp., Inc. v. Great American Insurance Co. (1982) 130 Cal.App.3d 892, 897 [182 Cal.Rptr. 67], internal citations omitted.)
- "If words are spoken under circumstances where it is obvious that neither party would be entitled to believe that the other intended a contract to result, there is no contract." (Fowler v. Security-First National Bank (1956) 146 Cal.App.2d 37, 47 [303 P.2d 565].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, § 116 et seq.

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, §§ 140.10, 140.20–140.25 (Matthew Bender)

5 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 50, Contracts, § 50.350 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms, Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, §§ 75.10, 75.11 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 13, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract—Absence of Essential Element, 13.03–13.17

303. Breach of Contract—Essential Factual Elements

To recover damages from [*name of defendant] for breach of contract, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of plaintiff] and [name of defendant] entered into a contract;

[2. That [*name of plaintiff] did all, or substantially all, of the significant things that the contract required [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it] to do;]

[or]

[2. That [*name of plaintiff] was excused from having to [specify things that plaintiff did not do, e.g., obtain a guarantor on the contract];]

[3. That [*specify occurrence of all conditions required by the contract for [name of defendant]'s performance, e.g., the property was rezoned for residential use];]

[or]

[3. That [*specify condition(s) that did not occur] [was/were] [waived/excused];]

[4. That [*name of defendant] failed to do something that the contract required [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it] to do;]

[*or]

[4. That [*name of defendant] did something that the contract prohibited [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it] from doing;]

5. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
6. That [name of defendant]'s breach of contract was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New September 2003; Revised April 2004, June 2006, December 2010, June 2011, June 2013, June 2015, December 2016, May 2020

Directions for Use

Read this instruction in conjunction with CACI No. 300, Breach of Contract—Introduction.

Optional elements 2 and 3 both involve conditions precedent. A "condition precedent" is either an act of a party that must be performed or an uncertain event that must happen before the contractual right accrues or the contractual duty arises. (Stephens & Stephens XII, LLC v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (2014) 231 Cal.App.4th 1131, 1147 [180 Cal.Rptr.3d 683].) Element 2 involves the first kind of condition precedent; an act that must be performed by one party before the other is required to perform. Include the second option if the plaintiff alleges that the plaintiff was excused from having to perform some or all of the contractual conditions.

Not every breach of contract by the plaintiff will relieve the defendant of the obligation to perform. The breach must be material; element 2 captures materiality by requiring that the plaintiff have done the significant things that the contract required. Also, the two obligations must be dependent, meaning that the parties specifically bargained that the failure to perform the one relieves the obligation to perform the other. While materiality is generally a question of fact, whether covenants are dependent or independent is a matter of construing the agreement. (Brown v. Grimes (2011) 192 Cal.App.4th 265, 277–279 [120 Cal.Rptr.3d 893].) If there is no extrinsic evidence in aid of construction, the question is one of law for the court. (Verdier v. Verdier (1955) 133 Cal.App.2d 325, 333 [284 P.2d 94].) Therefore, element 2 should not be given unless the court has determined that dependent obligations are involved. If parol evidence is required and a dispute of facts is presented, additional instructions on the disputed facts will be necessary. (See City of Hope National Medical Center v. Genentech, Inc. (2008) 43 Cal.4th 375, 395 [75 Cal.Rptr.3d 333, 181 P.3d 142].)

Element 3 involves the second kind of condition precedent; an uncertain event that must happen before contractual duties are triggered. Include the second option if the plaintiff alleges that the defendant agreed to perform even though a condition did not occur. For reasons that the occurrence of a condition may have been excused, see the Restatement Second of Contracts, section 225, Comment b. See also CACI No. 321, Existence of Condition Precedent Disputed, CACI No. 322, Occurrence of Agreed Condition Precedent, and CACI No. 323, Waiver of Condition Precedent.

Element 6 states the test for causation in a breach of contract action: whether the breach was a substantial factor in causing the damages. (US Ecology, Inc. v. State of California (2005) 129 Cal.App.4th 887, 909 [28 Cal.Rptr.3d 894].) In the context of breach of contract, it has been said that the term "substantial factor" has no precise definition, but is something that is more than a slight, trivial, negligible, or theoretical factor in producing a particular result. (Haley v. Casa Del Rey Homeowners Assn. (2007) 153 Cal.App.4th 863, 871–872 [63 Cal.Rptr.3d 514]; see CACI No. 430, Causation—Substantial Factor, applicable to negligence actions.)

Equitable remedies are also available for breach. "As a general proposition, '[t]he jury trial is a matter of right in a civil action at law, but not in equity. [Citations.]' " (C & K Engineering Contractors v. Amber Steel Co., Inc. (1978) 23 Cal.3d 1, 8 [151 Cal.Rptr. 323, 587 P.2d 1136]; Selby Constructors v. McCarthy (1979) 91 Cal.App.3d 517, 524 [154 Cal.Rptr. 164].) However, juries may render advisory verdicts on these issues. (Raedeke v. Gibraltar Savings & Loan Assn. (1974) 10 Cal.3d 665, 670–671 [111 Cal.Rptr. 693, 517 P.2d 1157].)

Sources and Authority

- Contract Defined. Civil Code section 1549.

- "A contract is a voluntary and lawful agreement, by competent parties, for a good consideration, to do or not to do a specified thing." (Robinson v. Magee (1858) 9 Cal. 81, 83.)
- "To prevail on a cause of action for breach of contract, the plaintiff must prove (1) the contract, (2) the plaintiff's performance of the contract or excuse for nonperformance, (3) the defendant's breach, and (4) the resulting damage to the plaintiff." (Richman v. Hartley (2014) 224 Cal.App.4th 1182, 1186 [169 Cal.Rptr.3d 475].)
- "Implicit in the element of damage is that the defendant's breach caused the plaintiff's damage." (Troyk v. Farmers Group, Inc. (2009) 171 Cal.App.4th 1305, 1352 [90 Cal.Rptr.3d 589], original italics.)
- "It is elementary a plaintiff suing for breach of contract must prove it has performed all conditions on its part or that it was excused from performance. Similarly, where defendant's duty to perform under the contract is conditioned on the happening of some event, the plaintiff must prove the event transpired." (Consolidated World Investments, Inc., v. Lido Preferred Ltd. (1992) 9 Cal.App.4th 373, 380 [11 Cal.Rptr.2d 524], internal citation omitted.)
- "When a party's failure to perform a contractual obligation constitutes a material breach of the contract, the other party may be discharged from its duty to perform under the contract. Normally the question of whether a breach of an obligation is a material breach, so as to excuse performance by the other party, is a question of fact. Whether a partial breach of a contract is material depends on 'the importance or seriousness thereof and the probability of the injured party getting substantial performance.' 'A material breach of one aspect of a contract generally constitutes a material breach of the whole contract.' " (Brown, supra, 192 Cal.App.4th at pp. 277–278, internal citations omitted.)
- "The obligations of the parties to a contract are either dependent or independent. The parties' obligations are dependent when the performance by one party is a condition precedent to the other party's performance. In that event, one party is excused from its obligation to perform if the other party fails to perform. If the parties' obligations are independent, the breach by one party does not excuse the other party's performance. Instead, the nonbreaching party still must perform and its remedy is to seek damages from the other party based on its breach of the contract." (Colaco v. Cavotec SA (2018) 25 Cal.App.5th 1172, 1182–1183 [236 Cal.Rptr.3d 542], internal citations omitted.)
- "Whether specific contractual obligations are independent or dependent is a matter of contract interpretation based on the contract's plain language and the parties' intent. Dependent covenants or '[c]onditions precedent are not favored in the law [citations], and courts shall not construe a term of the contract so as to establish a condition precedent absent plain and unambiguous contract language to that effect.' " (Colaco, supra, 25 Cal.App.5th at p. 1183, internal citations omitted.)
- "The wrongful, i.e., the unjustified or unexcused, failure to perform a contract is a breach. Where the nonperformance is legally justified, or excused, there may be a failure of consideration, but not a breach." (1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (10th ed. 2005) Contracts, § 847, original italics, internal citations omitted.) "Ordinarily, a breach is the result of an intentional act, but negligent performance may also constitute a breach, giving rise to alternative contract and tort actions." (Ibid., original italics.)

- " ' "Where a party's breach by non-performance contributes materially to the non-occurrence of a condition of one of his duties, the non-occurrence is excused." [Citation.]' " (Stephens & Stephens XII, LLC, supra, 231 Cal. App. 4th at p. 1144.)
- " 'Causation of damages in contract cases, as in tort cases, requires that the damages be proximately caused by the defendant's breach, and that their causal occurrence be at least reasonably certain.' A proximate cause of loss or damage is something that is a substantial factor in bringing about that loss or damage." (U.S. Ecology, Inc., supra, 129 Cal.App.4th at p. 909, internal citations omitted.)
- "An essential element of [breach of contract] claims is that a defendant's alleged misconduct was the cause in fact of the plaintiff's damage. [¶] The causation analysis involves two elements. ' "One is cause in fact. An act is a cause in fact if it is a necessary antecedent of an event." [Citation.]' The second element is proximate cause. ' "[P]roximate cause 'is ordinarily concerned, not with the fact of causation, but with the various considerations of policy that limit an actor's responsibility for the consequences of his conduct.' " ' " (Tribeca Companies, LLC v. First American Title Ins. Co. (2015) 239 Cal.App.4th 1088, 1102–1103 [192 Cal.Rptr.3d 354], footnote and internal citation omitted.)
- "Determining whether a defendant's misconduct was the cause in fact of a plaintiff's injury involves essentially the same inquiry in both contract and tort cases." (Tribeca Companies, LLC, supra, 239 Cal.App.4th at p. 1103.)
- "b. Excuse. The non-occurrence of a condition of a duty is said to be 'excused' when the condition need no longer occur in order for performance of the duty to become due. The non-occurrence of a condition may be excused on a variety of grounds. It may be excused by a subsequent promise, even without consideration, to perform the duty in spite of the non-occurrence of the condition. See the treatment of 'waiver' in § 84, and the treatment of discharge in §§ 273–85. It may be excused by acceptance of performance in spite of the non-occurrence of the condition, or by rejection following its non-occurrence accompanied by an inadequate statement of reasons. See §§ 246–48. It may be excused by a repudiation of the conditional duty or by a manifestation of an inability to perform it. See § 255; §§ 250–51. It may be excused by prevention or hindrance of its occurrence through a breach of the duty of good faith and fair dealing (§ 205). See § 239. And it may be excused by impracticability. See § 271. These and other grounds for excuse are dealt with in other chapters of this Restatement. This Chapter deals only with one general ground, excuse to avoid forfeiture. See § 229." (Rest.2d of Contracts, § 225, comment b.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, § 872

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.50 (Matthew Bender)

5 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 50, Contracts, § 50.10 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

2 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 22, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract, 22.03–22.50

304. Oral or Written Contract Terms

[Contracts may be written or oral.]

[Contracts may be partly written and partly oral.]

Oral contracts are just as valid as written contracts.

New September 2003; Revised December 2013

Directions for Use

Give the bracketed alternative that is most applicable to the facts of the case.

If the written agreement is fully integrated, the second option may not be appropriate. Parol evidence is inadmissible if the judge finds that the written agreement is fully integrated. (Code Civ. Proc., § 1856(d).) The parol evidence rule generally prohibits the introduction of extrinsic evidence—oral or written—to vary or contradict the terms of an integrated written instrument. (EPA Real Estate Partnership v. Kang (1992) 12 Cal.App.4th 171, 175 [15 Cal.Rptr.2d 209]; see Civ. Code, § 1625; Code Civ. Proc., § 1856(a).)

There are, however, exceptions to the parol evidence rule. (See, e.g., Riverisland Cold Storage, Inc. v. Fresno-Madera Production Credit Assn. (2013) 55 Cal.4th 1169, 1174–1175 [151 Cal.Rptr.3d 93, 291 P.3d 316] [fraud exception]; see also Code Civ. Proc., § 1856.) If an exception has been found as a matter of law, the second option may be given. If there are questions of fact regarding the applicability of an exception, additional instructions on the exception will be necessary.

Sources and Authority

- Oral Contracts. Civil Code section 1622.
- Statute of Frauds. Civil Code section 1624.
- "This question posed by defendant [may a contract be partly written and partly oral] must be answered in the affirmative in this sense: that a contract or agreement in legal contemplation is neither written nor oral, but oral or written evidence may be received to establish the terms of the contract or agreement between the parties. . . . A so-called partly written and partly oral contract is in legal effect a contract, the terms of which may be proven by both written and oral evidence." (Lande v. Southern California Freight Lines (1948) 85 Cal.App.2d 416, 420–421 [193 P.2d 144].)
- "When the parties to a written contract have agreed to it as an 'integration'—a complete and final embodiment of the terms of an agreement—parol evidence cannot be used to add to or vary its terms . . . [However,] '[w]hen only part of the agreement is integrated, the same rule applies to that part, but parol evidence may be used to prove elements of the agreement not reduced to writing.' " (Masterson v. Sine (1968) 68 Cal.2d 222, 225 [65 Cal.Rptr. 545, 436 P.2d 561].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts § 117

Wegner et al., California Practice Guide: Civil Trials & Evidence, Ch. 8E-G, Parol Evidence Rule, ¶ 8:3145 (The Rutter Group)

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.83 (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms Transaction Guide, Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.12 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 13, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract—Absence of Essential Element, 13.03–13.17

305. Implied-in-Fact Contract

In deciding whether a contract was created, you should consider the conduct and relationship of the parties as well as all the circumstances of the case.

Contracts can be created by the conduct of the parties, without spoken or written words. Contracts created by conduct are just as valid as contracts formed with words.

Conduct will create a contract if the conduct of both parties is intentional and each knows, or has reason to know, that the other party will interpret the conduct as an agreement to enter into a contract.

New September 2003

Sources and Authority

- Contract May Be Express or Implied. Civil Code sections 1619.
- Express Contract. Civil Code section 1620.
- Implied Contract. Civil Code section 1621.
- "Unlike the 'quasi-contractual' quantum meruit theory which operates without an actual agreement of the parties, an implied-in-fact contract entails an actual contract, but one manifested in conduct rather than expressed in words." (Maglica v. Maglica (1998) 66 Cal.App.4th 442, 455 [78 Cal.Rptr.2d 101].)
- "An implied-in-fact contract is based on the conduct of the parties. Like an express contract, an implied-in-fact contract requires an ascertained agreement of the parties." (Unilab Corp. v. Angeles-IPA (2016) 244 Cal.App.4th 622, 636 [198 Cal.Rptr.3d 211], internal citation omitted.)
- Express and implied-in-fact contracts have the same legal effect, but differ in how they are proved at trial: " 'Contracts may be express or implied. These terms, however, do not denote different kinds of contracts, but have reference to the evidence by which the agreement between the parties is shown. If the agreement is shown by the direct words of the parties, spoken or written, the contract is said to be an express one. But if such agreement can only be shown by the acts and conduct of the parties, interpreted in the light of the subject-matter and of the surrounding circumstances, then the contract is an implied one.' " (Marvin v. Marvin (1976) 18 Cal.3d 660, 678, fn. 16 [134 Cal.Rptr. 815, 557 P.2d 106], internal citation omitted.)
- "As to the basic elements [of a contract cause of action], there is no difference between an express and implied contract. . . . While an implied in fact contract may be inferred from the conduct, situation or mutual relation of the parties, the very heart of this kind of agreement is an intent to promise." (Division of Labor

Law Enforcement v. Transpacific Transportation Co. (1977) 69 Cal.App.3d 268, 275 [137 Cal.Rptr. 855]; see also Friedman v. Friedman (1993) 20 Cal.App.4th 876, 888 [24 Cal.Rptr.2d 892].)

- The formation of an implied contract can become an issue for the jury to decide: "Whether or not an implied contract has been created is determined by the acts and conduct of the parties and all the surrounding circumstances involved and is a question of fact." (Del E. Webb Corp. v. Structural Materials Co. (1981) 123 Cal.App.3d 593, 611 [176 Cal.Rptr. 824], internal citation omitted.)
- "Whether an implied contract exists ' " 'is usually a question of fact for the trial court. Where evidence is conflicting, or where reasonable conflicting inferences may be drawn from evidence which is not in conflict, a question of fact is presented for decision of the trial court. . . .' [Citation.]" ' " (Unilab Corp, supra, 244 Cal.App.4th at p. 636.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, § 102

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, §§ 140.10, 140.110 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 13, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract—Absence of Essential Element, 13.07

306. Unformalized Agreement

[Name of defendant] contends that the parties did not enter into a contract because they had not signed a final written agreement. To prove that a contract was created, [name of plaintiff] must prove both of the following:

1. That the parties understood and agreed to the terms of the agreement; and
2. That the parties agreed to be bound before a written agreement was completed and signed.

New September 2003; Revised December 2012, May 2020

Directions for Use

Give this instruction if the parties agreed to contract terms with the intention of reducing their agreement to a written and signed contract, but an alleged breach occurred before the written contract was completed and signed. For other situations involving the lack of a final written contract, see CACI No. 304, Oral or Written Contract Terms, and CACI No. 305, Implied-in-Fact Contract.

Do not give this instruction unless the defendant has testified or offered other evidence in support of the contention.

Sources and Authority

- "Where the writing at issue shows 'no more than an intent to further reduce the informal writing to a more formal one' the failure to follow it with a more formal writing does not negate the existence of the prior contract. However, where the writing shows it was not intended to be binding until a formal written contract is executed, there is no contract." (Harris v. Rudin, Richman & Appel (1999) 74 Cal.App.4th 299, 307 [87 Cal.Rptr.2d 822], internal citations omitted.)
- "[I]f the respective parties orally agreed upon all of the terms and conditions of a proposed written agreement with the mutual intention that the oral agreement should thereupon become binding, the mere fact that a formal written agreement to the same effect has not yet been signed does not alter the binding validity of the oral agreement. [Citation.]" (Banner Entertainment, Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 62 Cal.App.4th 348, 358 [72 Cal.Rptr.2d 598].)
- "Thus, where it is part of the understanding between the parties that the terms of their contract are to be reduced to writing and signed by the parties, the assent to its terms must be evidenced in the manner agreed upon or it does not become a binding or completed contract." (Beck v. American Health Group Internat., Inc. (1989) 211 Cal.App.3d 1555, 1562 [260 Cal.Rptr. 237].)
- "Whether it was the parties' mutual intention that their oral agreement to the terms contained in a proposed written agreement should be binding immediately is to be determined from the surrounding facts and circumstances of a particular case and is a question of fact for the trial court." (Banner Entertainment, Inc., supra, 62 Cal.App.4th at p. 358.)

- "[W]hen parties agree on the material terms of a contract with the intention to later reduce it to a formal writing, failure to complete the formal writing does not negate the existence of the initial contract. If the parties do not agree on the content of the formal writing (for example because one party wants to include something not agreed on in the first place, as [defendant] says happened here), the proposed writing is not a counteroffer; rather, the initial agreement remains binding and a rejected writing is a nullity." (CSAA Ins. Exchange v. Hodroj (2021) 72 Cal.App.5th 272, 276 [287 Cal.Rptr.3d 264].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 133, 134

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.22 (Matthew Bender)

5 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 50, Contracts, § 50.50 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 13, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract—Absence of Essential Element, 13.07[3]

307. Contract Formation—Offer

Both an offer and an acceptance are required to create a contract. [*Name of defendant] contends that a contract was not created because there was never any offer. To overcome this contention, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of plaintiff] communicated to [name of defendant] that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] was willing to enter into a contract with [name of defendant];
2. That the communication contained specific terms; and
3. That, based on the communication, [name of defendant] could have reasonably concluded that a contract with these terms would result if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] accepted the offer.

If [*name of plaintiff] did not prove all of the above, then a contract was not created.

New September 2003; Revised May 2020

Directions for Use

Do not give this instruction unless the defendant has testified or offered other evidence in support of the contention there was never any offer.

This instruction assumes that the defendant is claiming the plaintiff never made an offer. Change the identities of the parties in the indented paragraphs if, under the facts of the case, the roles of the parties are switched (e.g., if defendant was the alleged offeror). If the existence of an offer is not contested, then this instruction is unnecessary.

Sources and Authority

- Courts have adopted the definition of "offer" found at Restatement Second of Contracts, section 24: "An offer is the manifestation of willingness to enter into a bargain, so made as to justify another person in understanding that his assent to that bargain is invited and will conclude it." (City of Moorpark v. Moorpark Unified School Dist. (1991) 54 Cal.3d 921, 930 [1 Cal.Rptr.2d 896, 819 P.2d 854].)
- Under basic contract law " '[a]n offer must be sufficiently definite, or must call for such definite terms in the acceptance that the performance promised is reasonably certain.' " (Ladas v. California State Automobile Assn. (1993) 19 Cal.App.4th 761, 770 [23 Cal.Rptr.2d 810].)
- "The trier of fact must determine 'whether a reasonable person would necessarily assume . . . a willingness to enter into contract.' [Citation.]" (In re

First Capital Life Insurance Co. (1995) 34 Cal.App.4th 1283, 1287 [40 Cal.Rptr.2d 816].)

- Offers should be contrasted with preliminary negotiations: "Preliminary negotiations or an agreement for future negotiations are not the functional equivalent of a valid, subsisting agreement." (Kruse v. Bank of America (1988) 202 Cal.App.3d 38, 59 [248 Cal.Rptr. 217].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 116, 117, 125–137

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.22 (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms, Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.210 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 13, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract—Absence of Essential Element, 13.18–13.24

308. Contract Formation—Revocation of Offer

Both an offer and an acceptance are required to create a contract. [*Name of defendant] contends that the offer was withdrawn before it was accepted. To overcome this contention, [name of plaintiff] must prove one of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] did not withdraw the offer; or
2. That [name of plaintiff] accepted the offer before [name of defendant] withdrew it; or
3. That [name of defendant]'s withdrawal of the offer was never communicated to [name of plaintiff].

If [*name of plaintiff] did not prove any of the above, then a contract was not created.

New September 2003; Revised May 2020

Directions for Use

Do not give this instruction unless the defendant has testified or offered other evidence in support of the contention.

This instruction assumes that the defendant is claiming to have revoked the defendant's offer. Change the identities of the parties in the indented paragraphs if, under the facts of the case, the roles of the parties are switched (e.g., if defendant was the alleged offeree).

Sources and Authority

- Revocation Before Acceptance. Civil Code section 1586.
- Methods for Revocation. Civil Code section 1587.
- "It is a well-established principle of contract law that an offer may be revoked by the offeror any time prior to acceptance." (T. M. Cobb Co., Inc. v. Superior Court (1984) 36 Cal.3d 273, 278 [204 Cal.Rptr. 143, 682 P.2d 338].)
- " 'Under familiar contract law, a revocation of an offer must be directed to the offeree.' [Citation.]" (Moffett v. Barclay (1995) 32 Cal.App.4th 980, 983 [38 Cal.Rptr.2d 546].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 159–165

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, §§ 140.22, 140.61 (Matthew Bender)

5 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 50, Contracts, § 50.351 (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms, Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard

Contractual Provisions, § 75.211 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 13, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract—Absence of Essential Element, 13.23–13.24

309. Contract Formation—Acceptance

Both an offer and an acceptance are required to create a contract. [*Name of defendant] contends that a contract was not created because the offer was never accepted. To overcome this contention, [name of plaintiff] must prove both of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] agreed to be bound by the terms of the offer. [If [name of defendant] agreed to be bound only on certain conditions, or if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] introduced a new term into the bargain, then there was no acceptance]; and
2. That [name of defendant] communicated [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] agreement to [name of plaintiff].

If [*name of plaintiff] did not prove both of the above, then a contract was not created.

New September 2003; Revised May 2020

Directions for Use

Do not give this instruction unless the defendant has testified or offered other evidence in support of the contention.

This instruction assumes that the defendant is claiming to have not accepted plaintiff's offer. Change the identities of the parties in the indented paragraphs if, under the facts of the case, the roles of the parties are switched (e.g., if defendant was the alleged offeror).

Sources and Authority

- Acceptance. Civil Code section 1585.
- "[T]erms proposed in an offer must be met exactly, precisely and unequivocally for its acceptance to result in the formation of a binding contract; and a qualified acceptance amounts to a new proposal or counteroffer putting an end to the original offer." (Panagotacos v. Bank of America (1998) 60 Cal.App.4th 851, 855–856 [70 Cal.Rptr.2d 595].)
- "[I]t is not necessarily true that any communication other than an unequivocal acceptance is a rejection. Thus, an acceptance is not invalidated by the fact that it is 'grumbling,' or that the offeree makes some simultaneous 'request.' Nevertheless, it must appear that the 'grumble' does not go so far as to make it doubtful that the expression is really one of assent. Similarly, the 'request' must not add additional or different terms from those offered. Otherwise, the 'acceptance' becomes a counteroffer." (Guzman v. Visalia Community Bank (1999) 71 Cal.App.4th 1370, 1376 [84 Cal.Rptr.2d 581].)
- "The interpretation of the purported acceptance or rejection of an offer is a question of fact. Further, based on the general rule that manifested mutual assent rather than actual mental assent is the essential element in the formation of contracts, the test of the true meaning of an acceptance or rejection is not what the party making it thought it meant or intended it to mean. Rather, the test is what a reasonable person in the position of the parties would have thought it meant." (Guzman, supra, 71 Cal.App.4th at pp. 1376–1377.)

- "Acceptance of an offer, which may be manifested by conduct as well as by words, must be expressed or communicated by the offeree to the offeror." (Russell v. Union Oil Co. (1970) 7 Cal.App.3d 110, 114 [86 Cal.Rptr. 424].)
- "The Restatement Second of Contracts, section 60 provides, 'If an offer prescribes the place, time or manner of acceptance its terms in this respect must be complied with in order to create a contract. If an offer merely suggests a permitted place, time or manner of acceptance, another method of acceptance is not precluded.' Comment a to Restatement 2d, section 60 provides, 'a. Interpretation of offer. If the offeror prescribes the only way in which his offer may be accepted, an acceptance in any other way is a counter-offer. But frequently in regard to the details of methods of acceptance, the offeror's language, if fairly interpreted, amounts merely to a statement of a satisfactory method of acceptance, without positive requirement that this method shall be followed.' [¶] Similarly, Restatement 2d, section 30 provides in relevant part, 'Unless otherwise indicated by the language or the circumstances, an offer invites acceptance in any manner and by any medium reasonable in the circumstances.' Comment b to Restatement 2d section 30 states: 'Invited form. Insistence on a particular form of acceptance is unusual. Offers often make no express reference to the form of acceptance; sometimes ambiguous language is used. Language referring to a particular mode of acceptance is often intended and understood as suggestion rather than limitation; the suggested mode is then authorized, but other modes are not precluded. In other cases language which in terms refers to the mode of acceptance is intended and understood as referring to some more important aspect of the transaction, such as the time limit for acceptance.' " (Pacific Corporate Group Holdings, LLC v. Keck (2014) 232 Cal.App.4th 294, 311–312 [181 Cal.Rptr.3d 399], original italics, footnote omitted.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 180–192

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.22 (Matthew Bender)

5 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 50, Contracts, § 50.352 (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms, Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.214 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 13, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract—Absence of Essential Element, 13.25–13.31

310. Contract Formation—Acceptance by Silence

Ordinarily, if a person does not say or do anything in response to another party's offer, then the person has not accepted the offer. However, if [name of plaintiff] proves that both [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] and [name of defendant] understood silence or inaction to mean that [name of defendant] had accepted [name of plaintiff]'s offer, then there was an acceptance.

New September 2003; Revised May 2020

Directions for Use

This instruction assumes that the defendant is claiming to have not accepted plaintiff's offer. Change the identities of the parties in the last two sets of brackets if, under the facts of the case, the roles of the parties are switched (e.g., if defendant was the alleged offeror).

This instruction should be read in conjunction with and immediately after CACI No. 309, Contract Formation—Acceptance, if acceptance by silence is an issue.

Sources and Authority

- Consent by Acceptance of Benefits. Civil Code section 1589.
- Because acceptance must be communicated, "[s]ilence in the face of an offer is not an acceptance, unless there is a relationship between the parties or a previous course of dealing pursuant to which silence would be understood as acceptance." (Southern California Acoustics Co., Inc. v. C. V. Holder, Inc. (1969) 71 Cal.2d 719, 722 [79 Cal.Rptr. 319, 456 P.2d 975].)
- Acceptance may also be inferred from inaction where one has a duty to act, and from retention of the offered benefit. (Golden Eagle Insurance Co. v. Foremost Insurance Co. (1993) 20 Cal.App.4th 1372, 1386 [25 Cal.Rptr.2d 242].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 193–197

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.22 (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms, Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.11 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 13, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract—Absence of Essential Element, 13.31

311. Contract Formation—Rejection of Offer

[Name of defendant] contends that the offer to enter into a contract terminated because [name of plaintiff] rejected it. To overcome this contention, [name of plaintiff] must prove both of the following:

1. That [name of plaintiff] did not reject [name of defendant]'s offer; and
2. That [name of plaintiff] did not make any additions or changes to the terms of [name of defendant]'s offer.

If [name of plaintiff] did not prove both of the above, then a contract was not created.

New September 2003; Revised May 2020

Directions for Use

Do not give this instruction unless the defendant has testified or offered other evidence in support of the contention that the plaintiff rejected the offer.

Note that rejections of a contract offer, or proposed alterations to an offer, are effective only if they are communicated to the other party. (See Beverly Way Associates v. Barham (1990) 226 Cal.App.3d 49, 55 [276 Cal.Rptr. 240].) If it is necessary for the jury to make a finding regarding the issue of communication then this instruction may need to be modified.

This instruction assumes that the defendant is claiming plaintiff rejected defendant's offer. Change the identities of the parties in the indented paragraphs if, under the facts of the case, the roles of the parties are switched (e.g., if defendant was the alleged offeree).

Conceptually, this instruction dovetails with CACI No. 309, Contract Formation—Acceptance. This instruction is designed for the situation where a party has rejected an offer by not accepting it on its terms.

Sources and Authority

- Acceptance. Civil Code section 1585.
- Cases provide that "a qualified acceptance amounts to a new proposal or counter-offer putting an end to the original offer. . . . A counter-offer containing a condition different from that in the original offer is a new proposal and, if not accepted by the original offeror, amounts to nothing." (Apablasa v. Merritt and Co. (1959) 176 Cal.App.2d 719, 726 [1 Cal.Rptr. 500], internal citations omitted.) More succinctly: "The rejection of an offer kills the offer." (Stanley v. Robert S. Odell and Co. (1950) 97 Cal.App.2d 521, 534 [218 P.2d 162].)
- "[T]erms proposed in an offer must be met exactly, precisely and unequivocally for its acceptance to result in the formation of a binding contract; and a qualified acceptance amounts to a new proposal or counteroffer putting an end to the original offer." (Panagotacos v. Bank of America (1998) 60 Cal.App.4th 851, 855–856 [70 Cal.Rptr.2d 595].)

- The original offer terminates as soon as the rejection is communicated to the offeror: "It is hornbook law that an unequivocal rejection by an offeree, communicated to the offeror, terminates the offer; even if the offeror does no further act, the offeree cannot later purport to accept the offer and thereby create enforceable contractual rights against the offeror." (Beverly Way Associates, supra, 226 Cal.App.3d at p. 55.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, § 163

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.22 (Matthew Bender)

5 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 50, Contracts, § 50.352 (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms, Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, §§ 75.212–75.214 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 13, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract—Absence of Essential Element, 13.23–13.24

312. Substantial Performance

[Name of defendant] contends that [name of plaintiff] did not perform all of the things that [name of plaintiff] was required to do under the contract, and therefore [name of defendant] did not have to perform [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] obligations under the contract. To overcome this contention, [name of plaintiff] must prove both of the following:

1. That [name of plaintiff] made a good faith effort to comply with the contract; and
2. That [name of defendant] received essentially what the contract called for because [name of plaintiff]'s failures, if any, were so trivial or unimportant that they could have been easily fixed or paid for.

New September 2003; Revised May 2020

Directions for Use

Do not give this instruction unless the defendant has testified or offered other evidence in support of the contention that the plaintiff did not perform all of the things required under the contract.

Sources and Authority

- " 'Substantial performance means that there has been no willful departure from the terms of the contract, and no omission of any of its essential parts, and that the contractor has in good faith performed all of its substantive terms. If so, he will not be held to have forfeited his right to a recovery by reason of trivial defects or imperfections in the work performed.' " (Connell v. Higgins (1915) 170 Cal. 541, 556 [150 P. 769], citation omitted.)
- The Supreme Court has cited the following passage from Witkin with approval: "At common law, recovery under a contract for work done was dependent upon a complete performance, although hardship might be avoided by permitting recovery in quantum meruit. The prevailing doctrine today, which finds its application chiefly in building contracts, is that substantial performance is sufficient, and justifies an action on the contract, although the other party is entitled to a reduction in the amount called for by the contract, to compensate for the defects. What constitutes substantial performance is a question of fact, but it is essential that there be no wilful departure from the terms of the contract, and that the defects be such as may be easily remedied or compensated, so that the promisee may get practically what the contract calls for." (Posner v. Grunwald-Marx, Inc. (1961) 56 Cal.2d 169, 186–187 [14 Cal.Rptr. 297, 363 P.2d 313]; see also Kossler v. Palm Springs Developments, Ltd. (1980) 101 Cal.App.3d 88, 101 [161 Cal.Rptr. 423].)

- " 'Whether, in any case, such defects or omissions are substantial, or merely unimportant mistakes that have been or may be corrected, is generally a question of fact.' " (Connell, supra, 170 Cal. at pp. 556–557, internal citation omitted.)
- "The doctrine of substantial performance has been recognized in California since at least 1921, when the California Supreme Court decided the landmark case of Thomas Haverty Co. v. Jones [citation], in which the court stated: 'The general rule on the subject of [contractual] performance is that "Where a person agrees to do a thing for another for a specified sum of money to be paid on full performance, he is not entitled to any part of the sum until he has himself done the thing he agreed to do, unless full performance has been excused, prevented, or delayed by the act of the other party, or by operation of law, or by the act of God or the public enemy." [Citation.] [¶] . . . [I]t is settled, especially in the case of building contracts, where the owner has taken possession of the building and is enjoying the fruits of the contractor's work in the performance of the contract, that if there has been a substantial performance thereof by the contractor in good faith, where the failure to make full performance can be compensated in damages, to be deducted from the price or allowed as a counterclaim, and the omissions and deviations were not willful or fraudulent, and do not substantially affect the usefulness of the building for the purposes for which it was intended, the contractor may, in an action upon the contract, recover the amount unpaid of his contract price less the amount allowed as damages for the failure in strict performance. [Citations.]' " (Murray's Iron Works, Inc. v. Boyce (2008) 158 Cal.App.4th 1279, 1291–1292 [71 Cal.Rptr.3d 317].)
- "We hold that a provision in the parties' contract making time of the essence does not automatically make [the defendant's] untimely performance a breach of contract because there are triable issues regarding the scope of that provision and whether its enforcement would result in a forfeiture to [the defendant] and a windfall to [the plaintiff]." (Magic Carpet Ride LLC v. Rugger Investment Group, LLC (2019) 41 Cal.App.5th 357, 360 [254 Cal.Rptr.3d 213].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 843–884

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.23 (Matthew Bender)

5 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 50, Contracts, §§ 50.30, 50.31 (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms, Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.230 (Matthew Bender)

2 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 22, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract, 22.08[2], 22.16[2], 22.37, 22.69

313. Modification

[*Name of party claiming modification] claims that the original contract was modified or changed. [Name of party claiming modification] must prove that the parties agreed to the modification. [Name of other party] denies that the contract was modified.

The parties to a contract may agree to modify its terms. You must decide whether a reasonable person would conclude from the words and conduct of the parties that they agreed to modify the contract. You cannot consider the parties' hidden intentions.

[A contract in writing may be modified by a contract in writing.]

[A contract in writing may be modified by an oral agreement to the extent the oral agreement is carried out by the parties.]

[A contract in writing may be modified by an oral agreement if the parties agree to give each other something of value.]

[An oral contract may be modified by consent of the parties, in writing, without an agreement to give each other something of value.]

New September 2003; Revised December 2009

Sources and Authority

- Modification. Civil Code section 1698.
- The Law Revision Commission comment to this section observes: "The rules provided by subdivisions (b) and (c) merely describe cases where proof of an oral modification is permitted; these rules do not, however, affect in any way the burden of the party claiming that there was an oral modification to produce sufficient evidence to persuade the trier of fact that the parties actually did make an oral modification of the contract."
- Modification of Oral Contract. Civil Code section 1697.
- "It is axiomatic that the parties to an agreement may modify it." (Vella v. Hudgins (1984) 151 Cal.App.3d 515, 519 [198 Cal.Rptr. 725].)
- "Another issue of fact appearing in the evidence is whether the written contract was modified by executed oral agreements. This can be a question of fact. An agreement to modify a written contract will be implied if the conduct of the parties is inconsistent with the written contract so as to warrant the conclusion that the parties intended to modify it." (Daugherty Co. v. Kimberly-Clark Corp. (1971) 14 Cal.App.3d 151, 158 [92 Cal.Rptr. 120], internal citation omitted.)
- "Modification is a change in the obligation by a modifying agreement which requires mutual assent." (Wade v. Diamond A Cattle Co. (1975) 44 Cal.App.3d 453, 457 [118 Cal.Rptr. 695].)

- "A contract can, of course, be subsequently modified with the assent of the parties thereto, provided the same elements essential to the validity of the original contract are present." (Carlson, Collins, Gordon & Bold v. Banducci (1967) 257 Cal.App.2d 212, 223 [64 Cal.Rptr. 915], internal citations omitted.)
- "Generally speaking, a commitment to perform a preexisting contractual obligation has no value. In contractual parlance, for example, doing or promising to do something one is already legally bound to do cannot constitute the consideration needed to support a binding contract." (Auerbach v. Great Western Bank (1999) 74 Cal.App.4th 1172, 1185 [88 Cal.Rptr.2d 718].)
- Consideration is unnecessary if the modification is to correct errors and omissions. (Texas Co. v. Todd (1937) 19 Cal.App.2d 174, 185–186 [64 P.2d 1180].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 995–1002

Wegner et al., California Practice Guide: Civil Trials & Evidence, Ch. 8E-G, Parol Evidence Rule, ¶¶ 8:3050–8:3202 (The Rutter Group)

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, §§ 140.112, 140.149–140.152 (Matthew Bender)

5 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 50, Contracts, §§ 50.520–50.523 (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms, Ch. 77, Discharge of Obligations, §§ 77.21, 77.121, 77.320–77.323 (Matthew Bender)

2 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 21, Asserting a Particular Construction of Contract, 21.58

314. Interpretation—Disputed Words

[*Name of plaintiff] and [name of defendant] dispute the meaning of the following words in their contract: [insert disputed language].

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that the words mean [insert plaintiff's interpretation]. [Name of defendant] claims that the words mean [insert defendant's interpretation]. [Name of plaintiff] must prove that [his/her/ nonbinary pronoun/its] interpretation is correct.

In deciding what the words of a contract mean, you must decide what the parties intended at the time the contract was created. You may consider the usual and ordinary meaning of the language used in the contract as well as the circumstances surrounding the making of the contract.

[The following instructions may also help you interpret the words of the contract:]

New September 2003; Revised December 2014

Directions for Use

Give this instruction if there is conflicting extrinsic evidence as to what the parties intended the language of their contract to mean. While interpretation of a contract can be a matter of law for the court (Parsons v. Bristol Development Co. (1965) 62 Cal.2d 861, 865 [44 Cal.Rptr. 767, 402 P.2d 839]), it is a question of fact for the jury if ascertaining the intent of the parties at the time the contract was executed depends on the credibility of extrinsic evidence. (City of Hope National Medical Center v. Genentech, Inc. (2008) 43 Cal.4th 375, 395 [75 Cal.Rptr.3d 333, 181 P.3d 142].)

Read any of the instructions (as appropriate) on tools for interpretation (CACI Nos. 315 through 320) after reading the last bracketed sentence.

Sources and Authority

- Contract Interpretation: Intent. Civil Code section 1636.
- Contracts Explained by Circumstances. Civil Code section 1647.
- "Juries are not prohibited from interpreting contracts. Interpretation of a written instrument becomes solely a judicial function only when it is based on the words of the instrument alone, when there is no conflict in the extrinsic evidence, or a determination was made based on incompetent evidence. But when, as here, ascertaining the intent of the parties at the time the contract was executed depends on the credibility of extrinsic evidence, that credibility determination and the interpretation of the contract are questions of fact that may properly be resolved by the jury." (City of Hope National Medical Center, supra, 43 Cal.4th at p. 395, footnote and internal citations omitted.)

- "This rule—that the jury may interpret an agreement when construction turns on the credibility of extrinsic evidence—is well established in our case law. California's jury instructions reflect this (Judicial Council of Cal. Civ. Jury Instns. (2008) CACI No. 314) . . . , as do authoritative secondary sources." (City of Hope National Medical Center, supra, 43 Cal.4th at pp. 395–396, internal citations omitted.)
- "The trial court's determination of whether an ambiguity exists is a question of law, subject to independent review on appeal. The trial court's resolution of an ambiguity is also a question of law if no parol evidence is admitted or if the parol evidence is not in conflict. However, where the parol evidence is in conflict, the trial court's resolution of that conflict is a question of fact and must be upheld if supported by substantial evidence. Furthermore, '[w]hen two equally plausible interpretations of the language of a contract may be made . . . parol evidence is admissible to aid in interpreting the agreement, thereby presenting a question of fact which precludes summary judgment if the evidence is contradictory.' " (WYDA Associates v. Merner (1996) 42 Cal.App.4th 1702, 1710 [50 Cal.Rptr.2d 323].)
- "In interpreting a contract, the objective intent, as evidenced by the words of the contract is controlling. We interpret the intent and scope of the agreement by focusing on the usual and ordinary meaning of the language used and the circumstances under which the agreement was made." (Lloyd's Underwriters v. Craig & Rush, Inc. (1994) 26 Cal.App.4th 1194, 1197–1198 [32 Cal.Rptr.2d 144], internal citations omitted.)
- "Ordinarily, even in an integrated contract, extrinsic evidence can be admitted to explain the meaning of the contractual language at issue, although it cannot be used to contradict it or offer an inconsistent meaning. The language, in such a case, must be ' "reasonably susceptible" ' to the proposed meaning." (Hot Rods, LLC v. Northrop Grumman Systems Corp. (2015) 242 Cal.App.4th 1166, 1175–1176 [196 Cal.Rptr.3d 53].)
- " 'When there is no material conflict in the extrinsic evidence, the trial court interprets the contract as a matter of law. [Citation.] This is true even when conflicting inferences may be drawn from the undisputed extrinsic evidence [citations] or that extrinsic evidence renders the contract terms susceptible to more than one reasonable interpretation. [Citations.] If, however, there is a conflict in the extrinsic evidence, the factual conflict is to be resolved by the jury. [Citations.]' " (Brown v. Goldstein (2019) 34 Cal.App.5th 418, 433 [246 Cal.Rptr.3d 161].)
- "[I]t is indisputably the law that 'when ambiguous terms in a memorandum are disputed, extrinsic evidence is admissible to resolve the uncertainty.' The agreement must still provide the essential terms, and it is 'clear that extrinsic evidence cannot supply those required terms.' 'It can, however, be used to explain essential terms that were understood by the parties but would otherwise be unintelligible to others.' " (Jacobs v. Locatelli (2017) 8 Cal.App.5th 317, 325 [213 Cal.Rptr.3d 514], original italics, internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 764–766

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.32 (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms, Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.15 (Matthew Bender)

2 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 21, Asserting a Particular Construction of Contract, 21.04[2][b], 21.14[2]

315. Interpretation—Meaning of Ordinary Words

You should assume that the parties intended the words in their contract to have their usual and ordinary meaning unless you decide that the parties intended the words to have a special meaning.

New September 2003; Revised December 2014

Directions for Use

This instruction may be given with CACI No. 314, Interpretation—Disputed Words. See the Directions for Use and Sources and Authority to that instruction for discussion of when contract interpretation may be a proper jury role.

Sources and Authority

- Words to Be Understood in Usual Sense. Civil Code section 1644.
- "Generally speaking, words in a contract are to be construed according to their plain, ordinary, popular or legal meaning, as the case may be. However, particular expressions may, by trade usage, acquire a different meaning in reference to the subject matter of a contract. If both parties are engaged in that trade, the parties to the contract are deemed to have used them according to their different and peculiar sense as shown by such trade usage and parol evidence is admissible to establish the trade usage even though the words in their ordinary or legal meaning are entirely unambiguous. [Citation.]" (Hayter Trucking Inc. v. Shell Western E & P, Inc. (1993) 18 Cal.App.4th 1, 15 [22 Cal.Rptr.2d 229].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, § 768

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.32 (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms, Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.15 (Matthew Bender)

2 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 21, Asserting a Particular Construction of Contract, 21.20

316. Interpretation—Meaning of Technical Words

You should assume that the parties intended technical words used in the contract to have the meaning that is usually given to them by people who work in that technical field, unless you decide that the parties clearly used the words in a different sense.

New September 2003; Revised December 2014

Directions for Use

This instruction may be given with CACI No. 314, Interpretation—Disputed Words. See the Directions for Use and Sources and Authority to that instruction for discussion of when contract interpretation may be a proper jury role.

Sources and Authority

- Technical Words. Civil Code section 1645.
- "The 'clear and explicit' meaning of these provisions, interpreted in their 'ordinary and popular sense,' unless 'used by the parties in a technical sense or a special meaning is given to them by usage' [citation], controls judicial interpretation." (Cooper Companies, Inc. v. Transcontinental Insurance Co. (1995) 31 Cal.App.4th 1094, 1101 [37 Cal.Rptr.2d 508].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, § 768

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.32 (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms, Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.15 (Matthew Bender)

2 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 21, Asserting a Particular Construction of Contract, 21.22

317. Interpretation—Construction of Contract as a Whole

In deciding what the words of a contract meant to the parties, you should consider the whole contract, not just isolated parts. You should use each part to help you interpret the others, so that all the parts make sense when taken together.

New September 2003; Revised December 2014

Directions for Use

This instruction may be given with CACI No. 314, Interpretation—Disputed Words. See the Directions for Use and Sources and Authority to that instruction for discussion of when contract interpretation may be a proper jury role.

Sources and Authority

- Effect to Be Given to Every Part of Contract. Civil Code section 1641.
- "[T]he contract must be construed as a whole and the intention of the parties must be ascertained from the consideration of the entire contract, not some isolated portion." (County of Marin v. Assessment Appeals Bd. of Marin County (1976) 64 Cal.App.3d 319, 324–325 [134 Cal.Rptr. 349].)
- "Any contract must be construed as a whole, with the various individual provisions interpreted together so as to give effect to all, if reasonably possible or practicable." (City of Atascadero v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith (1998) 68 Cal.App.4th 445, 473 [80 Cal.Rptr.2d 329].)
- "[W]e should interpret contractual language in a manner which gives force and effect to every clause rather than to one which renders clauses nugatory." (Titan Corp. v. Aetna Casualty and Surety Co. (1994) 22 Cal.App.4th 457, 473–474 [27 Cal.Rptr.2d 476].)
- "Nor are we persuaded by [defendant]'s related claim that it was improper for [plaintiff]'s counsel to tell the jurors, during closing argument, that in resolving witness credibility issues they should consider the 'big picture' and not get lost in the minutiae of the contractual language." (City of Hope National Medical Center v. Genentech, Inc. (2008) 43 Cal.4th 375, 394 [75 Cal.Rptr.3d 333, 181 P.3d 142].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 769–770

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.32 (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms, Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.15 (Matthew Bender)

2 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 21, Asserting

a Particular Construction of Contract, 21.19

318. Interpretation—Construction by Conduct

In deciding what the words in a contract meant to the parties, you may consider how the parties acted after the contract was created but before any disagreement between the parties arose.

New September 2003; Revised December 2014

Directions for Use

This instruction may be given with CACI No. 314, Interpretation—Disputed Words. See the Directions for Use and Sources and Authority to that instruction for discussion of when contract interpretation may be a proper jury role.

Sources and Authority

- "In construing contract terms, the construction given the contract by the acts and conduct of the parties with knowledge of its terms, and before any controversy arises as to its meaning, is relevant on the issue of the parties' intent." (Southern Pacific Transportation Co. v. Santa Fe Pacific Pipelines, Inc. (1999) 74 Cal.App.4th 1232, 1242 [88 Cal.Rptr.2d 777].)
- "This rule of practical construction is predicated on the common sense concept that 'actions speak louder than words.' Words are frequently but an imperfect medium to convey thought and intention. When the parties to a contract perform under it and demonstrate by their conduct that they knew what they were talking about the courts should enforce that intent." (Crestview Cemetery Assn. v. Dieden (1960) 54 Cal.2d 744, 754 [8 Cal.Rptr. 427, 356 P.2d 171].)
- "The conduct of the parties after execution of the contract and before any controversy has arisen as to its effect affords the most reliable evidence of the parties' intentions." (Kennecott Corp. v. Union Oil Co. of California (1987) 196 Cal.App.3d 1179, 1189 [242 Cal.Rptr. 403].)
- "[T]his rule is not limited to the joint conduct of the parties in the course of performance of the contract. As stated in Corbin on Contracts, 'The practical interpretation of the contract by one party, evidenced by his words or acts, can be used against him on behalf of the other party, even though that other party had no knowledge of those words or acts when they occurred and did not concur in them. In the litigation that has ensued, one who is maintaining the same interpretation that is evidenced by the other party's earlier words, and acts, can introduce them to support his contention.' We emphasize the conduct of one party to the contract is by no means conclusive evidence as to the meaning of the contract. It is relevant, however, to show the contract is reasonably susceptible to the meaning evidenced by that party's conduct." (Southern California Edison Co. v. Superior Court (1995) 37 Cal.App.4th 839, 851 [44 Cal.Rptr.2d 227], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, § 772

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.32 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 13, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract—Absence of Essential Element, 13.51

319. Interpretation—Reasonable Time

If a contract does not state a specific time in which the parties are to meet the requirements of the contract, then the parties must meet them within a reasonable time. What is a reasonable time depends on the facts of each case, including the subject matter of the contract, the reasons each party entered into the contract, and the intentions of the parties at the time they entered the contract.

New September 2003; Revised December 2014

Directions for Use

This instruction may be given with CACI No. 314, Interpretation—Disputed Words. See the Directions for Use and Sources and Authority to that instruction for discussion of when contract interpretation may be a proper jury role.

Sources and Authority

- Time of Performance of Contract. Civil Code section 1657.
- "[A]s the contract was silent as to the time of delivery a reasonable time for performance must be implied." (Palmquist v. Palmquist (1963) 212 Cal.App.2d 322, 331 [27 Cal.Rptr. 744].)
- "The question of what constituted a reasonable time was of course one of fact." (Lyon v. Goss (1942) 19 Cal.2d 659, 673 [123 P.2d 11].)
- "[W]hat constitutes a reasonable time is a question of fact, depending upon the situation of the parties, the nature of the transaction, and the facts of the particular case." (Sawday v. Vista Irrigation Dist. (1966) 64 Cal.2d 833, 836 [52 Cal.Rptr. 1, 415 P.2d 816].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 785–787

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.41 (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms, Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.15 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 13, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract—Absence of Essential Element, 13.49

2 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 21, Asserting a Particular Construction of Contract, 21.30

2 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 22, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract, 22.46

320. Interpretation—Construction Against Drafter

In determining the meaning of the words of the contract, you must first consider all of the other instructions that I have given you. If, after considering these instructions, you still cannot agree on the meaning of the words, then you should interpret the contract against [the party that drafted the disputed words/the party that caused the uncertainty].

New September 2003; Revised December 2014

Directions for Use

This instruction may be given with CACI No. 314, Interpretation—Disputed Words. See the Directions for Use and Sources and Authority to that instruction for discussion of when contract interpretation may be a proper jury role.

Sources and Authority

- Language Interpreted Against Party Causing Uncertainty. Civil Code section 1654.
- "[T]his [Civil Code section 1654] canon applies only as a tie breaker, when other canons fail to dispel uncertainty." Pacific Gas & Electric Co. v. Superior Court (1993) 15 Cal.App.4th 576, 596 [19 Cal.Rptr.2d 295], disapproved on other grounds in Advanced Micro Devices, Inc. v. Intel Corp. (1994) 9 Cal.4th 362, 376–377 [36 Cal.Rptr.2d 581, 885 P.2d 994].)
- "The trial court's instruction . . . embodies a general rule of contract interpretation that was applicable to the negotiated agreement between [the parties]. It may well be that in a particular situation the discussions and exchanges between the parties in the negotiation process may make it difficult or even impossible for the jury to determine which party caused a particular contractual ambiguity to exist, but this added complexity does not make the underlying rule irrelevant or inappropriate for a jury instruction. We conclude, accordingly, that the trial court here did not err in instructing the jury on Civil Code section 1654's general rule of contract interpretation." (City of Hope National Medical Center v. Genentech, Inc. (2008) 43 Cal.4th 375, 398 [75 Cal.Rptr.3d 333, 181 P.3d 142].)
- "[I]f the uncertainty is not removed by application of the other rules of interpretation, a contract must be interpreted most strongly against the party who prepared it. This last rule is applied with particular force in the case of adhesion contracts." (Badie v. Bank of America (1998) 67 Cal.App.4th 779, 801 [79 Cal.Rptr.2d 273], internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]he doctrine of contra proferentem (construing ambiguous agreements against the drafter) applies with even greater force when the person who prepared the writing is a lawyer." Mayhew v. Benninghoff (1997) 53 Cal.App.4th 1365, 1370

[62 Cal.Rptr.2d 27].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, § 780

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.32 (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms, Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.15 (Matthew Bender)

2 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 21, Asserting a Particular Construction of Contract, 21.15

321. Existence of Condition Precedent Disputed

[*Name of defendant] claims that the contract with [name of plaintiff] provides that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] was not required to [insert duty] unless [insert condition precedent].

[*Name of defendant] must prove that the parties agreed to this condition. If [name of defendant] proves this, then [name of plaintiff] must prove that [insert condition precedent].

If [*name of plaintiff] does not prove that [insert condition precedent], then [name of defendant] was not required to [insert duty].

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This instruction should only be given if both the existence and the occurrence of a condition precedent are contested. If only the occurrence of a condition precedent is contested, use CACI No. 322, Occurrence of Agreed Condition Precedent.

Sources and Authority

- Conditional Obligation. Civil Code section 1434.
- Condition Precedent. Civil Code section 1436.
- "Under the law of contracts, parties may expressly agree that a right or duty is conditional upon the occurrence or nonoccurrence of an act or event." (Platt Pacific, Inc. v. Andelson (1993) 6 Cal.4th 307, 313 [24 Cal.Rptr.2d 597, 862 P.2d 158].)
- "A conditional obligation is one in which 'the rights or duties of any party thereto depend upon the occurrence of an uncertain event.' '[P]arties may expressly agree that a right or duty is conditional upon the occurrence or nonoccurrence of an act or event.' A condition in a contract may be a condition precedent, concurrent, or subsequent. '[A] condition precedent is either an act of a party that must be performed or an uncertain event that must happen before the contractual right accrues or the contractual duty arises.' " (JMR Construction Corp. v. Environmental Assessment & Remediation Management, Inc. (2015) 243 Cal.App.4th 571, 593 [198 Cal.Rptr.3d 47].)
- "The existence of a condition precedent normally depends upon the intent of the parties as determined from the words they have employed in the contract." (Karpinski v. Smitty's Bar, Inc. (2016) 246 Cal.App.4th 456, 464 [201 Cal.Rptr.3d 148].)
- "Dependent covenants or '[c]onditions precedent are not favored in the law [citations], and courts shall not construe a term of the contract so as to establish a condition precedent absent plain and unambiguous contract language to that effect.' " (Colaco v. Cavotec SA (2018) 25 Cal.App.5th 1172, 1183 [236 Cal.Rptr.3d 542], internal citations omitted.)

- "[W]here defendant's duty to perform under the contract is conditioned on the happening of some event, the plaintiff must prove the event transpired." (Consolidated World Investments, Inc. v. Lido Preferred Ltd. (1992) 9 Cal.App.4th 373, 380 [11 Cal.Rptr.2d 524].)
- "When a contract establishes the satisfaction of one of the parties as a condition precedent, two tests are recognized: (1) The party is bound to make his decision according to the judicially discerned, objective standard of a reasonable person; (2) the party may make a subjective decision regardless of reasonableness, controlled only by the need for good faith. Which test applies in a given transaction is a matter of actual or judicially inferred intent. Absent an explicit contractual direction or one implied from the subject matter, the law prefers the objective, i.e., reasonable person, test." (Guntert v. City of Stockton (1974) 43 Cal.App.3d 203, 209 [117 Cal.Rptr. 601], internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]he parol evidence rule does not apply to conditions precedent." (Karpinski, supra, 246 Cal.App.4th at p. 464, fn 6.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 803–814

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, §§ 140.44, 140.101 (Matthew Bender)

5 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 50, Contracts, §§ 50.20–50.22 (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms, Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.230 (Matthew Bender)

2 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 22, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract, 22.19, 22.66

322. Occurrence of Agreed Condition Precedent

The parties agreed in their contract that [*name of defendant] would not have to [insert duty] unless [insert condition precedent]. [Name of defendant] contends that this condition did not occur and that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] did not have to [insert duty]. To overcome this contention, [name of plaintiff] must prove that [insert condition precedent].

If [*name of plaintiff] does not prove that [insert condition precedent], then [name of defendant] was not required to [insert duty].

New September 2003; Revised May 2020

Directions for Use

Do not give this instruction unless the defendant has testified or offered other evidence in support of the contention a condition precedent did not occur.

If both the existence and the occurrence of a condition precedent are contested, use CACI No. 321, Existence of Condition Precedent Disputed.

Sources and Authority

- Conditional Obligation. Civil Code section 1434.
- Condition Precedent. Civil Code section 1436.
- "A conditional obligation is one in which 'the rights or duties of any party thereto depend upon the occurrence of an uncertain event.' '[P]arties may expressly agree that a right or duty is conditional upon the occurrence or nonoccurrence of an act or event.' A condition in a contract may be a condition precedent, concurrent, or subsequent." (JMR Construction Corp. v. Environmental Assessment & Remediation Management, Inc. (2015) 243 Cal.App.4th 571, 593 [198 Cal.Rptr.3d 47].)
- "[A] 'condition precedent' is 'either an act of a party that must be performed or an uncertain event that must happen before the contractual right accrues or the contractual duty arises.' " (Stephens & Stephens XII, LLC v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (2014) 231 Cal.App.4th 1131, 1147 [180 Cal.Rptr.3d 683].)
- "Under the law of contracts, parties may expressly agree that a right or duty is conditional upon the occurrence or nonoccurrence of an act or event." (Platt Pacific, Inc. v. Andelson (1993) 6 Cal.4th 307, 313 [24 Cal.Rptr.2d 597, 862 P.2d 158].)
- "The existence of a condition precedent normally depends upon the intent of the parties as determined from the words they have employed in the contract." (Karpinski v. Smitty's Bar, Inc. (2016) 246 Cal.App.4th 456, 464 [201 Cal.Rptr.3d 148].)
- " '[G]enerally, a party's failure to perform a condition precedent will preclude an action for breach of contract.' " (Stephens & Stephens XII, LLC, supra, 231 Cal.App.4th at p. 1147.)

- "[W]here defendant's duty to perform under the contract is conditioned on the happening of some event, the plaintiff must prove the event transpired." (Consolidated World Investments, Inc. v. Lido Preferred Ltd. (1992) 9 Cal.App.4th 373, 380 [11 Cal.Rptr.2d 524].)
- "When a contract establishes the satisfaction of one of the parties as a condition precedent, two tests are recognized: (1) The party is bound to make his decision according to the judicially discerned, objective standard of a reasonable person; (2) the party may make a subjective decision regardless of reasonableness, controlled only by the need for good faith. Which test applies in a given transaction is a matter of actual or judicially inferred intent. Absent an explicit contractual direction or one implied from the subject matter, the law prefers the objective, i.e., reasonable person, test." (Guntert v. City of Stockton (1974) 43 Cal.App.3d 203, 209 [117 Cal.Rptr. 601], internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]he parol evidence rule does not apply to conditions precedent." (Karpinski, supra, 246 Cal.App.4th at p. 464, fn 6.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 799–814

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, §§ 140.44, 140.101 (Matthew Bender)

5 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 50, Contracts, §§ 50.20–50.22 (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms, Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.230 (Matthew Bender)

2 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 22, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract, 22.19, 22.66

323. Waiver of Condition Precedent

[*Name of plaintiff] and [name of defendant] agreed in their contract that [name of defendant] would not have to [insert duty] unless [insert condition precedent]. That condition did not occur. Therefore, [name of defendant] contends that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] did not have to [insert duty].

To overcome this contention, [*name of plaintiff] must prove by clear and convincing evidence that [name of defendant], by words or conduct, gave up [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] right to require [insert condition precedent] before having to [insert duty].

New September 2003; Revised December 2013

Directions for Use

For an instruction on waiver as an affirmative defense, see CACI No. 336, Affirmative Defense—Waiver.

Sources and Authority

- "Ordinarily, a plaintiff cannot recover on a contract without alleging and proving performance or prevention or waiver of performance of conditions precedent and willingness and ability to perform conditions concurrent." (Roseleaf Corp. v. Radis (1953) 122 Cal.App.2d 196, 206 [264 P.2d 964].)
- " '[C]ase law is clear that " '[w]aiver is the intentional relinquishment of a known right after knowledge of the facts.' [Citations.] The burden . . . is on the party claiming a waiver of a right to prove it by clear and convincing evidence that does not leave the matter to speculation, and "doubtful cases will be decided against a waiver' [citation]." [Citations.] The waiver may be either express, based on the words of the waiving party, or implied, based on conduct indicating an intent to relinquish the right." (Stephens & Stephens XII, LLC v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (2014) 231 Cal.App.4th 1131, 1148 [180 Cal.Rptr.3d 683].)
- "All case law on the subject of waiver is unequivocal: ' "Waiver always rests upon intent.' " (DRG/Beverly Hills, Ltd. v. Chopstix Dim Sum Cafe & Takeout III, Ltd. (1994) 30 Cal.App.4th 54, 60 [35 Cal.Rptr.2d 515] [plaintiff's claim that defendant waived occurrence of conditions must be proved by clear and convincing evidence].)
- "A condition is waived when a promisor by his words or conduct justifies the promisee in believing that a conditional promise will be performed despite the failure to perform the condition, and the promisee relies upon the promisor's manifestations to his substantial detriment." (Sosin v. Richardson (1962) 210 Cal.App.2d 258, 264 [26 Cal.Rptr. 610].)
- "Waiver is ordinarily a question for the trier of fact; '[h]owever, where there are no disputed facts and only one reasonable inference may be drawn, the issue can be determined as a matter of law.' " (DuBeck v. California Physicians' Service (2015) 234 Cal.App.4th 1254, 1265 [184 Cal.Rptr.3d 743].)

- Section 84 of the Restatement Second of Contracts provides:

  (1) Except as stated in Subsection (2), a promise to perform all or part of a conditional duty under an antecedent contract in spite of the non-occurrence of the condition is binding, whether the promise is made before or after the time for the condition to occur, unless

  (a) occurrence of the condition was a material part of the agreed exchange for the performance of the duty and the promisee was under no duty that it occur; or

  (b) uncertainty of the occurrence of the condition was an element of the risk assumed by the promisor.

  (2) If such a promise is made before the time for the occurrence of the condition has expired and the condition is within the control of the promisee or a beneficiary, the promisor can make his duty again subject to the condition by notifying the promisee or beneficiary of his intention to do so if

  (a) the notification is received while there is still a reasonable time to cause the condition to occur under the antecedent terms or an extension given by the promisor; and

  (b) reinstatement of the requirement of the condition is not unjust because of a material change of position by the promisee or beneficiary; and

  (c) the promise is not binding apart from the rule stated in Subsection (1).

Secondary Sources

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions, 8.48

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.44 (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms Transaction Guide, Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.231 (Matthew Bender)

324. Anticipatory Breach

A party can breach, or break, a contract before performance is required by clearly and positively indicating, by words or conduct, that the party will not or cannot meet the requirements of the contract.

If [*name of plaintiff] proves that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] would have been able to fulfill the terms of the contract and that [name of defendant] clearly and positively indicated, by words or conduct, that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] would not or could not meet the contract requirements, then [name of defendant] breached the contract.

New September 2003; Revised May 2020

Sources and Authority

- Anticipatory Breach. Civil Code section 1440.
- "Repudiation of a contract, also known as "anticipatory breach," occurs when a party announces an intention not to perform prior to the time due for performance." (Stephens & Stephens XII, LLC v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (2014) 231 Cal.App.4th 1131, 1150 [180 Cal.Rptr.3d 683].)
- Courts have defined anticipatory breach as follows: "An anticipatory breach of contract occurs on the part of one of the parties to the instrument when he positively repudiates the contract by acts or statements indicating that he will not or cannot substantially perform essential terms thereof, or by voluntarily transferring to a third person the property rights which are essential to a substantial performance of the previous agreement, or by a voluntary act which renders substantial performance of the contract impossible or apparently impossible." (C. A. Crane v. East Side Canal & Irrigation Co. (1935) 6 Cal.App.2d 361, 367 [44 P.2d 455].)
- Anticipatory breach can be express or implied: "An express repudiation is a clear, positive, unequivocal refusal to perform; an implied repudiation results from conduct where the promisor puts it out of his power to perform so as to make substantial performance of his promise impossible." (Taylor v. Johnston (1975) 15 Cal.3d 130, 137 [123 Cal.Rptr. 641, 539 P.2d 425].)
- "In the event the promisor repudiates the contract before the time for his or her performance has arrived, the plaintiff has an election of remedies—he or she may 'treat the repudiation as an anticipatory breach and immediately seek damages for breach of contract, thereby terminating the contractual relation between the parties, or he [or she] can treat the repudiation as an empty threat, wait until the time for performance arrives and exercise his [or her] remedies for actual breach if a breach does in fact occur at such time.' " (Romano v. Rockwell Internat., Inc. (1996) 14 Cal.4th 479, 489 [59 Cal.Rptr.2d 20, 926 P.2d 1114].)
- Anticipatory breach can be used as an excuse for plaintiff's failure to substantially perform. (Gold Mining & Water Co. v. Swinerton (1943) 23 Cal.2d 19, 29 [142 P.2d 22].)

- "Although it is true that an anticipatory breach or repudiation of a contract by one party permits the other party to sue for damages without performing or offering to perform its own obligations, this does not mean damages can be recovered without evidence that, but for the defendant's breach, the plaintiff would have had the ability to perform." (Ersa Grae Corp. v. Fluor Corp. (1991) 1 Cal.App.4th 613, 625 [2 Cal.Rptr.2d 288], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 886–893

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, §§ 140.54, 140.105 (Matthew Bender)

5 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 50, Contracts, § 50.23 (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms, Ch. 77, Discharge of Obligations, §§ 77.15, 77.361 (Matthew Bender)

2 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 22, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract, 22.23

325. Breach of Implied Covenant of Good Faith and Fair Dealing—Essential Factual Elements

In every contract or agreement there is an implied promise of good faith and fair dealing. This implied promise means that each party will not do anything to unfairly interfere with the right of any other party to receive the benefits of the contract. Good faith means honesty of purpose without any intention to mislead or to take unfair advantage of another. Generally speaking, it means being faithful to one's duty or obligation. However, the implied promise of good faith and fair dealing cannot create obligations that are inconsistent with the terms of the contract.

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] violated the duty to act fairly and in good faith. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of plaintiff] and [name of defendant] entered into a contract;

[2. That [*name of plaintiff] did all, or substantially all of the significant things that the contract required [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it] to do [or that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] was excused from having to do those things;]

[3. That all conditions required for [*name of defendant]'s performance [had occurred/ [or] were excused];]

4. That [name of defendant] [specify conduct that plaintiff claims prevented plaintiff from receiving the benefits under the contract];

5. That by doing so, [name of defendant] did not act fairly and in good faith; and

6. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed by [name of defendant]'s conduct.

New April 2004; Revised June 2011, December 2012, June 2014, November 2019, May 2020

Directions for Use

This instruction should be given if the plaintiff has brought a separate count for breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing. It may be given in addition to CACI No. 303, Breach of Contract—Essential Factual Elements, if breach of contract on other grounds is also alleged.

Include element 2 if the plaintiff's substantial performance of contract requirements is at issue. Include element 3 if the contract contains conditions precedent that must occur before the defendant is required to perform. For discussion of element 3, see the Directions for Use to CACI No. 303.

In element 4, insert an explanation of the defendant's conduct that violated the duty to act in good faith.

If a claim for breach of the implied covenant does nothing more than allege a mere contract breach and, relying on the same alleged acts, simply seeks the same damages or other relief already claimed in a contract cause of action, it may be disregarded as superfluous because no additional claim is actually stated. (Careau & Co. v. Security Pacific Business Credit, Inc. (1990) 222 Cal.App.3d 1371, 1395 [272 Cal.Rptr. 387].) The harm alleged in element 6 may produce contract damages that are different from those claimed for breach of the express contract provisions. (See Digerati Holdings, LLC v. Young Money Entertainment, LLC (2011) 194 Cal.App.4th 873, 885 [123 Cal.Rptr.3d 736] [noting that gravamen of the two claims rests on different facts and different harm].)

It has been noted that one may bring a claim for breach of the implied covenant without also bringing a claim for breach of other contract terms. (See Careau & Co., supra, 222 Cal.App.3d at p. 1395.) Thus it would seem that a jury should be able to find a breach of the implied covenant even if it finds for the defendant on all other breach of contract claims.

Sources and Authority

- "There is an implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing in every contract that neither party will do anything which will injure the right of the other to receive the benefits of the agreement." (Comunale v. Traders & General Ins. Co. (1958) 50 Cal.2d 654, 658 [328 P.2d 198], internal citation omitted.)
- " ' "Every contract imposes upon each party a duty of good faith and fair dealing in its performance and its enforcement." ' [] The covenant of good faith finds particular application in situations where one party is invested with a discretionary power affecting the rights of another. Such power must be exercised in good faith." (Carma Developers (Cal.), Inc. v. Marathon Development California, Inc. (1992) 2 Cal.4th 342, 371–372 [6 Cal.Rptr.2d 467, 826 P.2d 710], internal citations omitted.)
- "When one party to a contract retains the unilateral right to amend the agreement governing the parties' relationship, its exercise of that right is constrained by the covenant of good faith and fair dealing which precludes amendments that operate retroactively to impair accrued rights." (Cobb v. Ironwood Country Club (2015) 233 Cal.App.4th 960, 963 [183 Cal.Rptr.3d 282].)
- "The covenant of good faith and fair dealing, implied by law in every contract, exists merely to prevent one contracting party from unfairly frustrating the other party's right to receive the benefits of the agreement actually made. The covenant thus cannot ' " 'be endowed with an existence independent of its contractual underpinnings.' " ' It cannot impose substantive duties or limits on the contracting parties beyond those incorporated in the specific terms of their agreement." (Guz v. Bechtel National, Inc. (2000) 24 Cal.4th 317, 349–350 [100 Cal.Rptr.2d 352, 8 P.3d 1089], original italics, internal citations omitted.)

- "The implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing cannot be read to require defendants to take a particular action that is discretionary under the contract when the contract also expressly grants them the discretion to take a different action. To apply the covenant to require a party to take one of two alternative actions expressly allowed by the contract and forgo the other would contravene the rule that the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing may not be 'read to prohibit a party from doing that which is expressly permitted by an agreement.' " (Bevis v. Terrace View Partners, LP (2019) 33 Cal.App.5th 230, 256 [244 Cal.Rptr.3d 797], original italics.)
- "The implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing rests upon the existence of some specific contractual obligation. 'The covenant of good faith is read into contracts in order to protect the express covenants or promises of the contract, not to protect some general public policy interest not directly tied to the contract's purpose.' . . . 'In essence, the covenant is implied as a supplement to the express contractual covenants, to prevent a contracting party from engaging in conduct which (while not technically transgressing the express covenants) frustrates the other party's rights to the benefits of the contract.' " (Racine & Laramie, Ltd. v. Department of Parks & Recreation (1992) 11 Cal.App.4th 1026, 1031–1032 [14 Cal.Rptr.2d 335], internal citations omitted.)
- "There is no obligation to deal fairly or in good faith absent an existing contract. If there exists a contractual relationship between the parties . . . the implied covenant is limited to assuring compliance with the express terms of the contract, and cannot be extended to create obligations not contemplated in the contract." (Racine & Laramie, Ltd., supra, 11 Cal.App.4th at p. 1032, internal citations omitted.)
- "Although breach of the implied covenant often is pleaded as a separate count, a breach of the implied covenant is necessarily a breach of contract." (Digerati Holdings, LLC, supra, 194 Cal.App.4th at p. 885.)
- " '[B]reach of a specific provision of the contract is not . . . necessary' to a claim for breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing." (Thrifty Payless, Inc. v. The Americana at Brand, LLC (2013) 218 Cal.App.4th 1230, 1244 [160 Cal.Rptr.3d 718].)
- " 'It is universally recognized the scope of conduct prohibited by the covenant of good faith is circumscribed by the purposes and express terms of the contract.' Violation of an express provision is not, however, required. 'Nor is it necessary that the party's conduct be dishonest. Dishonesty presupposes subjective immorality; the covenant of good faith can be breached for objectively unreasonable conduct, regardless of the actor's motive.' 'A party violates the covenant if it subjectively lacks belief in the validity of its act or if its conduct is objectively unreasonable. [Citations.] In the case of a discretionary power, it has been suggested the covenant requires the party holding such power to exercise it "for any purpose within the reasonable contemplation of the parties at the time of formation—to capture opportunities that were preserved upon entering the contract, interpreted objectively." ' [¶] 'The issue of whether the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing has been breached is ordinarily "a question of fact unless only one inference [can] be drawn from the evidence." ' " (Moore v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A. (2019) 39 Cal.App.5th 280, 291–292 [251 Cal.Rptr.3d 779], internal citations omitted.)

- "If the allegations do not go beyond the statement of a mere contract breach and, relying on the same alleged acts, simply seek the same damages or other relief already claimed in a companion contract cause of action, they may be disregarded as superfluous as no additional claim is actually stated. Thus, absent those limited cases where a breach of a consensual contract term is not claimed or alleged, the only justification for asserting a separate cause of action for breach of the implied covenant is to obtain a tort recovery." (Careau & Co., supra, 222 Cal.App.3d at p. 1395.)
- "[W]e believe that the gravamen of the two counts differs. The gravamen of the breach of contract count is [cross defendants'] alleged failure to comply with their express contractual obligations specified in paragraph 37 of the cross-complaint, while the gravamen of the count for breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing is their alleged efforts to undermine or prevent the potential sale and distribution of the film, both by informing distributors that the film was unauthorized and could be subject to future litigation and by seeking an injunction. (Digerati Holdings, LLC, supra, 194 Cal. App. 4th at p. 885.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 822, 824–826

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, §§ 140.12, 140.50 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

2 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 23, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Duty of Good Faith and Fair Dealing, 23.05

326. Assignment Contested

[Name of plaintiff] was not a party to the original contract. However, [name of plaintiff] may bring a claim for breach of the contract if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] proves that [name of assignor] transferred [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] rights under the contract to [name of plaintiff]. This transfer is referred to as an "assignment."

[Name of plaintiff] must prove that [name of assignor] intended to transfer [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] contract rights to [name of plaintiff]. In deciding [name of assignor]'s intent, you should consider the entire transaction and the conduct of the parties to the assignment.

[A transfer of contract rights does not necessarily have to be made in writing. It may be oral or implied by the conduct of the parties to the assignment.]

New February 2005

Directions for Use

The bracketed third paragraph should be used only in cases involving a transfer that may be made without a writing.

Sources and Authority

- Oral Assignments. Civil Code section 1052.
- "While no particular form of assignment is required, it is essential to the assignment of a right that the assignor manifest an intention to transfer the right." (Sunburst Bank v. Executive Life Insurance Co. (1994) 24 Cal.App.4th 1156, 1164 [29 Cal.Rptr.2d 734], internal citations omitted.)
- "The burden of proving an assignment falls upon the party asserting rights thereunder. In an action by an assignee to enforce an assigned right, the evidence must not only be sufficient to establish the fact of assignment when that fact is in issue, but the measure of sufficiency requires that the evidence of assignment be clear and positive to protect an obligor from any further claim by the primary obligee." (Cockerell v. Title Insurance & Trust Co. (1954) 42 Cal.2d 284, 292 [267 P.2d 16], internal citations omitted.)
- "The accrued right to collect the proceeds of the fire insurance policy is a chose in action, and an effective assignment thereof may be expressed orally as well as in writing; may be the product of inference; and where the parties to a transaction involving such a policy by their conduct indicate an intention to transfer such proceeds, the courts will imply an assignment thereof. In making such a determination, substance and not form controls." (Greco v. Oregon Mutual Fire Insurance Co. (1961) 191 Cal.App.2d 674, 683 [12 Cal.Rptr. 802], internal citations omitted.)

- "An assignor may not maintain an action upon a claim after making an absolute assignment of it to another; his right to demand performance is extinguished, the assignee acquiring such right. To 'assign' ordinarily means to transfer title or ownership of property, but an assignment, to be effective, must include manifestation to another person by the owner of his intention to transfer the right, without further action, to such other person or to a third person. It is the substance and not the form of a transaction which determines whether an assignment was intended. If from the entire transaction and the conduct of the parties it clearly appears that the intent of the parties was to pass title to the chose in action, then an assignment will be held to have taken place." (McCown v. Spencer (1970) 8 Cal.App.3d 216, 225 [87 Cal.Rptr. 213], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 727–739

6 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 60, Assignments, § 60.20 (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms, Ch. 76, Assignments of Rights and Obligations, § 76.201 (Matthew Bender)

2 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 22, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract, 22.51–22.56, 22.58, 22.59

327. Assignment Not Contested

[Name of plaintiff] was not a party to the original contract. However, [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] may bring a claim for breach of contract because [name of assignor] transferred the rights under the contract to [name of plaintiff]. This transfer is referred to as an "assignment."

New February 2005

Directions for Use

This instruction is intended to explain to the jury why a party not named in the original contract is nevertheless a party to the case.

Sources and Authority

- Oral Assignment. Civil Code section 1052.
- "To 'assign' ordinarily means to transfer title or ownership of property, but an assignment, to be effective, must include manifestation to another person by the owner of his intention to transfer the right, without further action, to such other person or to a third person. It is the substance and not the form of a transaction which determines whether an assignment was intended. If from the entire transaction and the conduct of the parties it clearly appears that the intent of the parties was to pass title to the chose in action, then an assignment will be held to have taken place." (McCown v. Spencer (1970) 8 Cal.App.3d 216, 225 [87 Cal.Rptr. 213], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 727–739

6 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 60, Assignments, § 60.20 (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms, Ch. 76, Assignments of Rights and Obligations, § 76.201 (Matthew Bender)

2 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 22, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract, 22.51–22.56, 22.58, 22.59

328. Breach of Implied Duty to Perform With Reasonable Care—Essential Factual Elements

The parties' contract requires that [*name of defendant] [specify performance alleged to have been done negligently, e.g., install cable television service]. It is implied in the contract that this performance will be done competently and with reasonable care. [Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] breached this implied condition. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of plaintiff] and [name of defendant] entered into a contract;

[2. That [*name of plaintiff] did all, or substantially all of the significant things that the contract required [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it] to do;]

[or]

[2. That [*name of plaintiff] was excused from having to [specify things that plaintiff did not do, e.g., obtain a guarantor on the contract];]

[3. That [*specify occurrence of all conditions required by the contract for [name of defendant]'s performance, e.g., the property was rezoned for residential use];]

[or]

[3. That [*specify condition(s) that did not occur] [was/were] [waived/excused];]

4. That [name of defendant] failed to use reasonable care in [specify performance]; and

5. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed by [name of defendant]'s conduct.

New June 2015

Directions for Use

Give this instruction if the plaintiff alleges harm from the defendant's failure to perform a contractual obligation with reasonable care. Every contract includes an implied duty to perform required acts competently. (Holguin v. Dish Network LLC (2014) 229 Cal.App.4th 1310, 1324 [178 Cal.Rptr.3d 100].) If negligent performance is alleged, the jury should be instructed that the contract contains this implied duty. The jury must then decide whether the duty has been breached. It must also find all of the other elements required for breach of contract. (See CACI No. 303, Breach of Contract—Essential Factual Elements.)

This instruction may be adapted for use as an affirmative defense if the defendant asserts that the plaintiff is not entitled to recover on the contract because of the plaintiff's failure to perform its duties competently. (See Roscoe Moss Co. v. Jenkins (1942) 55 Cal.App.2d 369, 376–378 [130 P.2d 477].)

For discussion of issues with the options for elements 2 and 3, see the Directions for Use to CACI No. 303, Breach of Contract—Essential Factual Elements.

Sources and Authority

- "[E]xpress contractual terms give rise to implied duties, violations of which may themselves constitute breaches of contract. ' "Accompanying every contract is a common-law duty to perform with care, skill, reasonable expedience, and faithfulness the thing agreed to be done, and a negligent failure to observe any of these conditions is a tort, as well as a breach of the contract." The rule which imposes this duty is of universal application as to all persons who by contract undertake professional or other business engagements requiring the exercise of care, skill and knowledge; the obligation is implied by law and need not be stated in the agreement [citation].' " (Holguin, supra, 229 Cal.App.4th at p. 1324.)
- "A contract to perform services gives rise to a duty of care which requires that such services be performed in a competent and reasonable manner." (North American Chemical Co. v. Superior Court (1997) 59 Cal.App.4th 764, 774 [69 Cal.Rptr.2d 466].)
- "[T]he statement in the written contract that it contains the entire agreement of the parties cannot furnish the appellants an avenue of escape from the entirely reasonable obligation implied in all contracts to the effect that the work performed 'shall be fit and proper for its said intended use,' as stated by the trial court." (Kuitems v. Covell (1951) 104 Cal.App.2d 482, 485 [231 P.2d 552].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 822, 824

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.12 (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms, Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.230 (Matthew Bender)

2 Crompton et al., Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 21, Asserting a Particular Construction of Contract, 21.79

329. Reserved for Future Use

330. Affirmative Defense—Unilateral Mistake of Fact

[*Name of defendant] claims that there was no contract because [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] was mistaken about [insert description of mistake]. To succeed, [name of defendant] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] was mistaken about [insert description of mistake];
2. That [name of plaintiff] knew [name of defendant] was mistaken and used that mistake to take advantage of [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it];
3. That [name of defendant]'s mistake was not caused by [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] excessive carelessness; and
4. That [name of defendant] would not have agreed to enter into the contract if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] had known about the mistake.

If you decide that [*name of defendant] has proved all of the above, then no contract was created.

New September 2003; Revised April 2004

Directions for Use

If the mistake is one of law, this may not be a jury issue.

This instruction does not contain the requirement that the mistake be material to the contract because the materiality of a representation is a question of law. (Merced County Mutual Fire Insurance Co. v. State of California (1991) 233 Cal.App.3d 765, 772 [284 Cal.Rptr. 680].) Accordingly, the judge would decide whether an alleged mistake was material, and that mistake would be inserted into this instruction.

Sources and Authority

- When Consent Not Freely Given. Civil Code sections 1567, 1568.
- Mistake. Civil Code section 1576.
- Mistake of Fact. Civil Code section 1577.
- "It is settled that to warrant a unilateral rescission of a contract because of mutual mistake, the mistake must relate to basic or material fact, not a collateral matter." (Wood v. Kalbaugh (1974) 39 Cal.App.3d 926, 932 [114 Cal.Rptr. 673].)
- "A mistake need not be mutual. Unilateral mistake is ground for relief where the mistake is due to the fault of the other party or the other party knows or has reason to know of the mistake. . . . To rely on a unilateral mistake of fact, [the party] must demonstrate his mistake was not caused by his 'neglect of a legal duty.' Ordinary negligence does not constitute the neglect of a legal duty as that term is used in section 1577." (Architects & Contractors Estimating Service, Inc. v. Smith (1985) 164 Cal.App.3d 1001, 1007–1008 [211 Cal.Rptr. 45], internal citations omitted.)

- To prevail on a unilateral mistake claim, the defendant must prove that the plaintiff knew that the defendant was mistaken and that plaintiff used that mistake to take advantage of the defendant: "Defendants contend that a material mistake of fact—namely, the defendants' belief that they would not be obligated to install a new roof upon the residence—prevented contract formation. A unilateral mistake of fact may be the basis of relief. However, such a unilateral mistake may not invalidate a contract without a showing that the other party to the contract was aware of the mistaken belief and unfairly utilized that mistaken belief in a manner enabling him to take advantage of the other party." (Meyer v. Benko (1976) 55 Cal.App.3d 937, 944 [127 Cal.Rptr. 846], internal citations omitted.)
- "Failure to make reasonable inquiry to ascertain or effort to understand the meaning and content of the contract upon which one relies constitutes neglect of a legal duty such as will preclude recovery for unilateral mistake of fact." (Wal-Noon Corporation v. Hill (1975) 45 Cal.App.3d 605, 615 [119 Cal.Rptr. 646].) However, "[o]rdinary negligence does not constitute the neglect of a legal duty as that term is used in section 1577." (Architects & Contractors Estimating Service, Inc. v. Smith, supra, 164 Cal.App.3d at p. 1008.)
- Neglect of legal duty has been equated with "gross negligence," which is defined as "the want of even scant care or an extreme departure from the ordinary standard of conduct." (Van Meter v. Bent Construction Co. (1956) 46 Cal.2d 588, 594 [297 P.2d 644].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 257–276

17 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake, §§ 215.50–215.57, 215.141 (Matthew Bender)

9 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 92, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake, § 92.90 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms, Ch. 77, Discharge of Obligations, § 77.350 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions, 8.24

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 16, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract—Mistake, 16.08[2], 16.13–16.16, 16.18

331. Affirmative Defense—Bilateral Mistake

[*Name of defendant] claims that there was no contract because both parties were mistaken about [insert description of mistake]. To succeed, [name of defendant] must prove both of the following:

1. That both parties were mistaken about [insert description of mistake]; and
2. That [name of defendant] would not have agreed to enter into this contract if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] had known about the mistake.

If you decide that [*name of defendant] has proved both of the above, then no contract was created.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This instruction does not contain the requirement that the mistake be material to the contract because the materiality of a representation is a question of law. (Merced County Mutual Fire Insurance Co. v. State of California (1991) 233 Cal.App.3d 765, 772 [284 Cal.Rptr. 680].) Accordingly, the judge would decide whether an alleged mistake was material, and that mistake would be inserted into this instruction.

If the mistake is one of law, this may not be a jury issue.

Sources and Authority

- When Consent Not Free. Civil Code section 1567.
- Consent Obtained by Fraud. Civil Code section 1568.
- Mistake. Civil Code section 1576.
- Mistake of Fact. Civil Code section 1577.
- Mistake of Law. Civil Code section 1578.
- Rescission of Contract. Civil Code section 1689.
- "A mistake of fact may be urged as a defense to an action upon a contract only if the mistake is material to the contract." (Edwards v. Lang (1961) 198 Cal.App.2d 5, 12 [18 Cal.Rptr. 60].)
- "A 'mistake' within the meaning of subdivision (b)(1) of section 1689 of the Civil Code can be either one of fact or of law. 'Generally a mistake of fact occurs when a person understands the facts to be other than they are . . . .' When both parties understand the facts other than they are, the mistake necessarily is mutual and thus becomes a basis for rescission." (Crocker-Anglo Nat'l Bank v. Kuchman (1964) 224 Cal.App.2d 490, 496 [36 Cal.Rptr. 806], internal citations omitted.)

- "[T]o warrant a unilateral rescission of a contract because of mutual mistake, the mistake must relate to basic or material fact, not a collateral matter." (Wood v. Kalbaugh (1974) 39 Cal.App.3d 926, 932 [114 Cal.Rptr 673].)
- "Where, as here, the extrinsic evidence is not in conflict, the determination of whether a mutual mistake occurred is a question of law." (Hess v. Ford Motor Co. (2002) 27 Cal.4th 516, 527 [117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 220, 41 P.3d 46].)
- "Ordinary negligence does not bar a claim for mutual mistake because ' "[t]here is an element of carelessness in nearly every case of mistake . . . ." ' 'Only gross negligence or 'preposterous or irrational' conduct will [bar] mutual mistake.' " (Thrifty Payless, Inc. v. The Americana at Brand, LLC (2013) 218 Cal.App.4th 1230, 1243 [160 Cal.Rptr.3d 718], internal citation omitted.)
- "Where parties are aware at the time the contract is entered into that a doubt exists in regard to a certain matter and contract on that assumption, the risk of the existence of the doubtful matter is assumed as an element of the bargain." (Guthrie v. Times-Mirror Co. (1975) 51 Cal.App.3d 879, 885 [124 Cal.Rptr 577].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 257–276

17 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake, §§ 215.50–215.57, 215.140 (Matthew Bender)

9 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 92, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake, § 92.90 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms, Ch. 77, Discharge of Obligations, § 77.350 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions, 8.24

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 16, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract—Mistake, 16.08[1], 16.09, 16.11, 16.18

332. Affirmative Defense—Duress

[*Name of defendant] claims that there was no contract because [his/her/ *nonbinary pronoun] consent was given under duress. To succeed, [name of defendant] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of plaintiff] used a wrongful act or wrongful threat to pressure [name of defendant] into consenting to the contract;
2. That [name of defendant] was so afraid or intimidated by the wrongful act or wrongful threat that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] did not have the free will to refuse to consent to the contract; and
3. That [name of defendant] would not have consented to the contract without the wrongful act or wrongful threat.

An act or a threat is wrongful if [*insert relevant rule—e.g., "a criminal act is threatened"].

If you decide that [*name of defendant] has proved all of the above, then no contract was created.

New September 2003; Revised December 2005

Directions for Use

Use CACI No. 333, Affirmative Defense—Economic Duress, in cases involving economic duress.

Sources and Authority

- When Consent Not Freely Given. Civil Code sections 1567, 1568.
- Duress. Civil Code section 1569.
- Menace. Civil Code section 1570.
- "Menace" is considered to be duress: "Under the modern rule, ' "[d]uress, which includes whatever destroys one's free agency and constrains [her] to do what is against [her] will, may be exercised by threats, importunity or any species of mental coercion. It is shown where a party 'intentionally used threats or pressure to induce action or nonaction to the other party's detriment.' " ' The coercion must induce the assent of the coerced party, who has no reasonable alternative to succumbing." (In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal.App.3d 66, 84 [260 Cal.Rptr. 403], internal citations omitted.)
- "Duress envisions some unlawful action by a party by which one's consent is obtained through fear or threats." (Keithley v. Civil Service Bd. of The City of Oakland (1970) 11 Cal.App.3d 443, 450 [89 Cal.Rptr. 809], internal citations omitted.)
- Duress is found only where fear is intentionally used as a means of procuring consent: "[A]n action for duress and menace cannot be sustained when the voluntary action of the apprehensive party is induced by his speculation upon or anticipation of a future event suggested to him by the defendant but not threatened to induce his conduct. The issue in each instance is whether the defendant intentionally exerted an unlawful pressure on the injured party to deprive him of contractual volition and induce him to act to his own detriment." (Goldstein v. Enoch (1967) 248 Cal.App.2d 891, 894–895 [57 Cal.Rptr. 19].)

- It is wrongful to use the threat of criminal prosecution to obtain a consent: "California law is clear that an agreement obtained by threat of criminal prosecution constitutes menace and is unenforceable as against public policy." (Bayscene Resident Negotiators v. Bayscene Mobilehome Park (1993) 15 Cal.App.4th 119, 127 [18 Cal.Rptr.2d 626].) However, a threat of legitimate civil action is not considered wrongful: "[T]he action or threat in duress or menace must be unlawful, and a threat to take legal action is not unlawful unless the party making the threat knows the falsity of his claim." (Odorizzi v. Bloomfield School Dist. (1966) 246 Cal.App.2d 123, 128 [54 Cal.Rptr. 533].)
- Standard duress is evaluated under a subjective standard: "The question in each case [is], Was the person so acted upon by threats of the person claiming the benefit of the contract, for the purpose of obtaining such contract, as to be bereft of the quality of mind essential to the making of a contract, and was the contract thereby obtained? Hence, under this theory duress is to be tested, not by the nature of the threats, but rather by the state of mind induced thereby in the victim." (In re Marriage of Gonzalez (1976) 57 Cal.App.3d 736, 744 [129 Cal.Rptr. 566].)
- The wrongful acts of a third party may constitute duress sufficient to allow rescission of a contract with a party, who, although not participating in those wrongful acts, had knowledge of the innocent party's position. (Leeper v. Beltrami (1959) 53 Cal.2d 195, 205–206 [1 Cal.Rptr. 12, 347 P.2d 12].)
- "[Defendant has] the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence the affirmative of the issues of duress and plaintiff's default." (Fio Rito v. Fio Rito (1961) 194 Cal.App.2d 311, 322 [14 Cal.Rptr. 845]; cf. Stevenson v. Stevenson (1940) 36 Cal.App.2d 494, 500 [97 P.2d 982].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 310–316

17 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake, §§ 215.20–215.21, 215.23–215.28, 215.120–215.121 (Matthew Bender)

9 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 92, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake, § 92.20 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms, Ch. 77, Discharge of Obligations, § 77.351 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions, 8.07

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 17, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract—Fraud, Duress, Menace, and Undue Influence, 17.03–17.06, 17.20–17.24[1]

333. Affirmative Defense—Economic Duress

[*Name of defendant] claims that there was no contract because [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] consent was given under duress. To succeed, [name of defendant] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of plaintiff] used a wrongful act or wrongful threat to pressure [name of defendant] into consenting to the contract;
2. That a reasonable person in [name of defendant]'s position would have believed that there was no reasonable alternative except to consent to the contract; and
3. That [name of defendant] would not have consented to the contract without the wrongful act or wrongful threat.

An act or a threat is wrongful if [*insert relevant rule, e.g., "a bad-faith breach of contract is threatened"].

If you decide that [*name of defendant] has proved all of the above, then no contract was created.

New September 2003; Revised December 2005, June 2011, December 2011, May 2020

Directions for Use

Different elements may apply if economic duress is alleged to avoid an agreement to settle a debt. (See Perez v. Uline, Inc. (2007) 157 Cal.App.4th 953, 959–960 [68 Cal.Rptr.3d 872].)

Element 2 requires that the defendant have had "no reasonable alternative" other than to consent. Economic duress to avoid a settlement agreement may require that the creditor be placed in danger of imminent bankruptcy or financial ruin. (See Rich & Whillock, Inc. v. Ashton Development, Inc. (1984) 157 Cal.App.3d 1154, 1156–1157, 204 Cal.Rptr. 86].) At least one court has stated this standard in a case not involving a settlement (see Uniwill v. City of Los Angeles (2004) 124 Cal.App.4th 537, 545 [21 Cal.Rptr.3d 464]), though most cases do not require that the only alternative be bankruptcy or financial ruin. (See, e.g., Chan v. Lund (2010) 188 Cal.App.4th 1159, 1173–1174 [116 Cal.Rptr.3d 122].)

In the next-to-last paragraph, state the rule that makes the alleged conduct wrongful. (See Restatement 2d of Contracts, § 176, When a Threat is Improper.) The conduct must be something more than the breach or threatened breach of the contract itself. An act for which a party has an adequate legal remedy is not duress. (River Bank America v. Diller (1995) 38 Cal.App.4th 1400, 1425 [45 Cal.Rptr.2d 790].)

Sources and Authority

- When Consent Not Freely Given. Civil Code sections 1567, 1568.

- "The doctrine of 'economic duress' can apply when one party has done a wrongful act which is sufficiently coercive to cause a reasonably prudent person, faced with no reasonable alternative, to agree to an unfavorable contract. The party subjected to the coercive act, and having no reasonable alternative, can then plead 'economic duress' to avoid the contract." (CrossTalk Productions, Inc. v. Jacobson (1998) 65 Cal.App.4th 631, 644 [76 Cal.Rptr.2d 615], internal citation omitted.)
- The nonexistence of a "reasonable alternative" is a question of fact. (CrossTalk Productions, Inc., supra, 65 Cal.App.4th at p. 644.)
- " 'At the outset it is helpful to acknowledge the various policy considerations which are involved in cases involving economic duress. Typically, those claiming such coercion are attempting to avoid the consequences of a modification of an original contract or of a settlement and release agreement. On the one hand, courts are reluctant to set aside agreements because of the notion of freedom of contract and because of the desirability of having private dispute resolutions be final. On the other hand, there is an increasing recognition of the law's role in correcting inequitable or unequal exchanges between parties of disproportionate bargaining power and a greater willingness to not enforce agreements which were entered into under coercive circumstances.' " (Rich & Whillock, Inc., supra, 157 Cal.App.3d at p. 1158.)
- " 'As it has evolved to the present day, the economic duress doctrine is not limited by early statutory and judicial expressions requiring an unlawful act in the nature of a tort or a crime. . . . Instead, the doctrine now may come into play upon the doing of a wrongful act which is sufficiently coercive to cause a reasonably prudent person faced with no reasonable alternative to succumb to the perpetrator's pressure. . . . The assertion of a claim known to be false or a bad faith threat to breach a contract or to withhold a payment may constitute a wrongful act for purposes of the economic duress doctrine. . . . Further, a reasonably prudent person subject to such an act may have no reasonable alternative but to succumb when the only other alternative is bankruptcy or financial ruin. . . .' " (Chan, supra, 188 Cal.App.4th at pp. 1173–1174.)
- " 'It is not duress . . . to take a different view of contract rights, even though mistaken, from that of the other contracting party, and it is not duress to refuse, in good faith, to proceed with a contract, even though such refusal might later be found to be wrong. [¶] . . . "A mere threat to withhold a legal right for the enforcement of which a person has an adequate [legal] remedy is not duress." ' " (River Bank America, supra, 38 Cal.App.4th at p. 1425.)
- "[W]rongful acts will support a claim of economic duress when 'a reasonably prudent person subject to such an act may have no reasonable alternative but to succumb when the only other alternative is bankruptcy or financial ruin.' " (Uniwill, supra, 124 Cal.App.4th at p. 545.)
- "Economic duress has been recognized as a basis for rescinding a settlement. However, the courts, in desiring to protect the freedom of contracts and to accord finality to a privately negotiated dispute resolution, are reluctant to set aside settlements and will apply 'economic duress' only in limited circumstances and as a 'last resort.' " (San Diego Hospice v. County of San Diego (1995) 31 Cal.App.4th 1048, 1058 [37 Cal.Rptr.2d 501].)

- "Required criteria that must be proven to invalidate a settlement agreement are: '(1) the debtor knew there was no legitimate dispute and that it was liable for the full amount; (2) the debtor nevertheless refused in bad faith to pay and thereby created the economic duress of imminent bankruptcy; (3) the debtor, knowing the vulnerability its own bad faith had created, used the situation to escape an acknowledged debt; and (4) the creditor was forced to accept an inequitably low amount. . . .' " (Perez, supra, 157 Cal.App.4th at pp. 959–960.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 315–317

17 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake, §§ 215.22, 215.122 (Matthew Bender)

9 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 92, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake, § 92.24 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions, 8.07

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 17, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract—Fraud, Duress, Menace, and Undue Influence, 17.03–17.06, 17.20–17.24[2]

334. Affirmative Defense—Undue Influence

[Name of defendant] claims that no contract was created because [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was unfairly pressured by [name of plaintiff] into consenting to the contract.

To succeed, [name of defendant] must prove both of the following:

1. That [name of plaintiff] used

   [a relationship of trust and confidence] [or]

   [[name of defendant]'s weakness of mind] [or]

   [[name of defendant]'s needs or distress] to induce or pressure [name of defendant] into consenting to the contract; and

2. That [name of defendant] would not otherwise have consented to the contract.

If you decide that [name of defendant] has proved both of the above, then no contract was created.

New September 2003

Sources and Authority

- When Consent Not Freely Given. Civil Code sections 1567, 1568.
- Undue Influence. Civil Code section 1575.
- The question of undue influence is decided as a question of fact: "[D]irect evidence of undue influence is rarely obtainable and, thus the court is normally relegated to determination by inference from the totality of facts and circumstances. Indeed, there are no fixed definitions or inflexible formulas. Rather, we are concerned with whether from the entire context it appears that one's will was overborne and he was induced to do or forbear to do an act which he would not do, or would do, if left to act freely." (Keithley v. Civil Service Bd. of the City of Oakland (1970) 11 Cal.App.3d 443, 451 [89 Cal.Rptr. 809], internal citations omitted.)
- "In essence, undue influence consists of the use of excessive pressure by a dominant person over a servient person resulting in the apparent will of the servient person being in fact the will of the dominant person. The undue susceptibility to such overpersuasive influence may be the product of physical or emotional exhaustion or anguish which results in one's inability to act with unencumbered volition." (Keithley, supra, 11 Cal.App.3d at p. 451.)
- Whether or not the parties have a confidential relationship is a question of fact:

> "It is, of course, well settled that while the mere fact that a relationship is friendly and intimate does not necessarily amount to a confidential relationship, such relationship may be said to exist whenever trust and confidence is reposed by one person in the integrity and fidelity of another. It is likewise frequently emphasized that the existence of a confidential relationship presents a question of fact which, of necessity, may be determined only on a case by case basis." (O'Neil v. Spillane (1975) 45 Cal.App.3d 147, 153 [119 Cal.Rptr. 245], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 317–322

17 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake, §§ 215.40–215.42, 215.130–215.132 (Matthew Bender)

9 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 92, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake, § 92.70 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms, Ch. 77, Discharge of Obligations, § 77.352 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions, 8.07

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 17, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract—Fraud, Duress, Menace, and Undue Influence, 17.03–17.06, 17.25–17.28

335. Affirmative Defense—Fraud

[*Name of defendant] claims that no contract was created because [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] consent was obtained by fraud. To succeed, [name of defendant] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of plaintiff] represented that [insert alleged fraudulent statement];
2. That [name of plaintiff] knew that the representation was not true;
3. That [name of plaintiff] made the representation to persuade [name of defendant] to agree to the contract;
4. That [name of defendant] reasonably relied on this representation; and
5. That [name of defendant] would not have entered into the contract if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] had known that the representation was not true.

If you decide that [*name of defendant] has proved all of the above, then no contract was created.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This instruction covers intentional misrepresentation under the first alternative presented in Civil Code section 1572. The other types of fraud that are set forth in section 1572 are negligent misrepresentation, concealment of a material fact, and false promise.

If the case involves an alleged negligent misrepresentation, substitute the following for element 2: "That [name of plaintiff] had no reasonable grounds for believing the representation was true."

If the case involves concealment, the following may be substituted for element 1: "That [name of plaintiff] intentionally concealed an important fact from [name of defendant], creating a false representation." See CACI No. 1901, Concealment, for alternative ways of proving this element.

If the case involves a false promise, substitute the following for element 1: "That [name of plaintiff] made a promise that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] did not intend to perform" and insert the word "promise" in place of the word "representation" throughout the remainder of the instruction.

Sources and Authority

- When Consent Not Freely Given. Civil Code sections 1567, 1568.
- Actual Fraud. Civil Code section 1572.

- Fraud can be found in making a misstatement of fact, as well as in the concealment of a fact: "Actual fraud involves conscious misrepresentation, or concealment, or non-disclosure of a material fact which induces the innocent party to enter the contract." (Odorizzi v. Bloomfield School Dist. (1966) 246 Cal.App.2d 123, 128 [54 Cal.Rptr. 533].)
- Fraud may be asserted as an affirmative defense: "One who has been induced to enter into a contract by false and fraudulent representations may rescind the contract; or he may affirm it, keeping what he has received under it, and maintain an action to recover damages he has sustained by reason of the fraud; or he may set up such damages as a complete or partial defense if sued on the contract by the other party." (Grady v. Easley (1941) 45 Cal.App.2d 632, 642 [114 P.2d 635].)
- "It is well established that a defrauded defendant may set up the fraud as a defense and, in fact, may even recoup his damages by counterclaim in an action brought by the guilty party to the contract. The right to avoid for fraud, however, is lost if the injured party, after acquiring knowledge of the fraud, manifests an intention to affirm the contract." (Bowmer v. H. C. Louis, Inc. (1966) 243 Cal.App.2d 501, 503 [52 Cal.Rptr. 436], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 286–309

17 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake, §§ 215.70–215.72, 215.144 (Matthew Bender)

9 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 92, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake, § 92.40 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms, Ch. 77, Discharge of Obligations, § 77.353 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions, 8.24

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 17, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract—Fraud, Duress, Menace, and Undue Influence, 17.03–17.09, 17.12–17.18

336. Affirmative Defense—Waiver

[*Name of defendant] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] did not have to [insert description of performance] because [name of plaintiff] gave up [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] right to have [name of defendant] perform [this/these] obligation[s]. This is called a "waiver."

To succeed, [*name of defendant] must prove both of the following by clear and convincing evidence:

1. That [name of plaintiff] knew [name of defendant] was required to [insert description of performance]; and
2. That [name of plaintiff] freely and knowingly gave up [his/her/ nonbinary pronoun/its] right to have [name of defendant] perform [this/these] obligation[s].

A waiver may be oral or written or may arise from conduct that shows that [*name of plaintiff] gave up that right.

If [*name of defendant] proves that [name of plaintiff] gave up [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] right to [name of defendant]'s performance of [insert description of performance], then [name of defendant] was not required to perform [this/these] obligation[s].

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This issue is decided under the "clear and convincing" standard of proof. See CACI No. 201, Highly Probable—Clear and Convincing Proof.

Sources and Authority

- "Waiver is the intentional relinquishment of a known right after knowledge of the facts." (Roesch v. De Mota (1944) 24 Cal.2d 563, 572 [150 P.2d 422].)
- " ' "The waiver may be either express, based on the words of the waiving party, or implied, based on conduct indicating an intent to relinquish the right. [Citation.]" [Citation.] Thus, "California courts will find waiver when a party intentionally relinquishes a right or when that party's acts are so inconsistent with an intent to enforce the right as to induce a reasonable belief that such right has been relinquished." [Citation.]' [Citation.]" (Wind Dancer Production Group v. Walt Disney Pictures (2017) 10 Cal.App.5th 56, 78 [215 Cal.Rptr.3d 835].)
- "Acceptance of benefits under a lease is conduct that supports a finding of waiver." (Gould v. Corinthian Colleges, Inc. (2011) 192 Cal.App.4th 1176, 1179 [120 Cal.Rptr.3d 943], internal citations omitted.)
- "Waiver is ordinarily a question for the trier of fact; '[h]owever, where there are no disputed facts and only one reasonable inference may be drawn, the issue can be determined as a matter of law.' " (DuBeck v. California Physicians' Service (2015) 234 Cal.App.4th 1254, 1265 [184 Cal.Rptr.3d 743].)

- When the injured party with knowledge of the breach continues to accept performance from the guilty party, such conduct may constitute a waiver of the breach. (Kern Sunset Oil Co. v. Good Roads Oil Co. (1931) 214 Cal. 435, 440–441 [6 P.2d 71].)
- There can be no waiver where the one against whom it is asserted has acted without full knowledge of the facts. It cannot be presumed, in the absence of such knowledge, that there was an intention to waive an existing right. (Craig v. White (1921) 187 Cal. 489, 498 [202 P. 648].)
- "[N]otwithstanding a provision in a written contract that expressly precludes oral modification, the parties may, by their words or conduct, waive the enforcement of a contract provision if the evidence shows that was their intent." (Wind Dancer Production Group, supra, 10 Cal.App.5th at p. 80.)
- "The burden, moreover, is on the party claiming a waiver of a right to prove it by clear and convincing evidence that does not leave the matter to speculation, and 'doubtful cases will be decided against a waiver'." (City of Ukiah v. Fones (1966) 64 Cal.2d 104, 107–108 [48 Cal.Rptr. 865, 410 P.2d 369].)
- "The trial court correctly instructed the jury that the waiver of a known right must be shown by clear and convincing proof." (DRG/Beverly Hills, Ltd. v. Chopstix Dim Sum Cafe and Takeout III, Ltd. (1994) 30 Cal.App.4th 54, 61 [35 Cal.Rptr.2d 515].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 881, 882

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, §§ 140.57, 140.113, 140.136 (Matthew Bender)

5 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 50, Contracts, §§ 50.40, 50.41, 50.110 (Matthew Bender)

2 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 22, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract, 22.08, 22.65, 22.68

337. Affirmative Defense—Novation

[Name of defendant] claims that the original contract with [name of plaintiff] cannot be enforced because the parties substituted a new and different contract for the original.

To succeed, [name of defendant] must prove that all parties agreed, by words or conduct, to cancel the original contract and to substitute a new contract in its place.

If you decide that [name of defendant] has proved this, then the original contract is not enforceable.

New September 2003; Revised October 2004

Directions for Use

If the contract in question is not the original contract, specify which contract it is instead of "original."

Although there is language in Alexander v. Angel (1951) 37 Cal.2d 856, 860–861 [236 P.2d 561] that could be read to suggest that a novation must be proved by the higher standard of clear and convincing proof, an examination of the history of that language and the cases upon which the language in Alexander depends (Columbia Casualty Co. v. Lewis (1936) 14 Cal.App.2d 64, 72 [57 P.2d 1010] and Houghton v. Lawton (1923) 63 Cal.App. 218, 223 [218 P. 475]) demonstrates that the original use of the term "clear and convincing," carried forward thereafter without analysis, was intended only to convey the concept that a novation must clearly be shown and may not be presumed. The history of the language does not support a requirement that a party alleging a novation must prove there is a high probability (i.e., clear and convincing proof) that the parties agreed to a novation. See also, sections 279 and 280 of the Restatement Second of Contracts. A party alleging a novation must prove that the facts supporting the novation are more likely to be true than not true.

Sources and Authority

- Novation. Civil Code sections 1530. 1531.
- "A novation is a substitution, by agreement, of a new obligation for an existing one, with intent to extinguish the latter. A novation is subject to the general rules governing contracts and requires an intent to discharge the old contract, a mutual assent, and a consideration." (Klepper v. Hoover (1971) 21 Cal.App.3d 460, 463 [98 Cal.Rptr. 482].)
- Conduct may form the basis for a novation although there is no express writing or agreement. (Silva v. Providence Hospital of Oakland (1939) 14 Cal.2d 762, 773 [97 P.2d 798].)
- Novation is a question of fact, and the burden of proving it is upon the party asserting it. (Alexander v. Angel (1951) 37 Cal.2d 856, 860 [236 P.2d 561].)

- "When there is conflicting evidence the question whether the parties to an agreement entered into a modification or a novation is a question of fact." (Howard v. County of Amador (1990) 220 Cal.App.3d 962, 980 [269 Cal.Rptr. 807].)
- "The 'question whether a novation has taken place is always one of intention,' with the controlling factor being the intent of the obligee to effect a release of the original obligor on his obligation under the original agreement." (Alexander, supra, 37 Cal.2d at p. 860, internal citations omitted.)
- "[I]n order for there to be a valid novation, it is necessary that the parties intend that the rights and obligations of the new contract be substituted for the terms and conditions of the old contract." (Wade v. Diamond A Cattle Co. (1975) 44 Cal.App.3d 453, 457 [118 Cal.Rptr. 695].)
- "While the evidence in support of a novation must be 'clear and convincing,' the 'whole question is one of fact and depends upon all the facts and circumstances of the particular case,' with the weight and sufficiency of the proof being matters for the determination of the trier of the facts under the general rules applicable to civil actions." (Alexander, supra, 37 Cal.2d at pp. 860–861, internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 992–994

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.141 (Matthew Bender)

5 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 50, Contracts, §§ 50.450–50.464 (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms, Ch. 77, Discharge of Obligations, §§ 77.20, 77.280–77.282 (Matthew Bender)

2 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 21, Asserting a Particular Construction of Contract, 21.58[3]

338. Affirmative Defense—Statute of Limitations

[*Name of defendant] contends that [name of plaintiff]'s lawsuit was not filed within the time set by law. To succeed on this defense, [name of defendant] must prove that [name of plaintiff]'s claimed harm occurred before [insert date two or four years before date of filing].

New December 2007

Directions for Use

This instruction is for use if the defendant claims that the plaintiff's action was not filed within the applicable four-year period for breach of a written contract (see Code Civ. Proc., § 337(1)) or two-year period for breach of an oral contract. (See Code Civ. Proc., § 339(1).) Do not use this instruction for breach of a California Uniform Commercial Code sales contract. (See Com. Code, § 2725.)

If the contract either shortens or extends the limitation period, use the applicable period from the contract instead of two years or four years.

If the plaintiff alleges that the delayed-discovery rule applies to avoid the limitation defense, CACI No. 455, Statute of Limitations—Delayed Discovery, may be adapted for use.

Sources and Authority

- Four-Year Statute of Limitations: Contract. Code of Civil Procedure section 337(a).
- Two-Year Statute of Limitations: Contract. Code of Civil Procedure section 339(1).
- "In general, California courts have permitted contracting parties to modify the length of the otherwise applicable California statute of limitations, whether the contract has extended or shortened the limitations period." (Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. Am. Medical Internat. (1995) 38 Cal.App.4th 1532, 1547 [46 Cal.Rptr.2d 33].)
- "A contract cause of action does not accrue until the contract has been breached." (Spear v. Cal. State Automobile Assn. (1992) 2 Cal.4th 1035, 1042 [9 Cal.Rptr.2d 381, 831 P.2d 821].)
- "The claim accrues when the plaintiff discovers, or could have discovered through reasonable diligence, the injury and its cause." (Angeles Chem. Co. v. Spencer & Jones (1996) 44 Cal.App.4th 112, 119 [51 Cal.Rptr.2d 594].)
- "[T]he discovery rule may be applied to breaches [of contract] which can be, and are, committed in secret and, moreover, where the harm flowing from those breaches will not be reasonably discoverable by plaintiffs until a future time." (Gryczman v. 4550 Pico Partners, Ltd. (2003) 107 Cal.App.4th 1, 4–5 [131

Cal.Rptr.2d 680].)

Secondary Sources

3 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Actions, § 473 et seq.

5 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Pleading, § 1158

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, § 345

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.42[2] (Matthew Bender)

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 4, Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action, 4.03 et seq.

339–349. Reserved for Future Use

350. Introduction to Contract Damages

If you decide that [*name of plaintiff] has proved [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] claim against [name of defendant] for breach of contract, you also must decide how much money will reasonably compensate [name of plaintiff] for the harm caused by the breach. This compensation is called "damages." The purpose of such damages is to put [name of plaintiff] in as good a position as [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] would have been if [name of defendant] had performed as promised.

To recover damages for any harm, [*name of plaintiff] must prove that when the contract was made, both parties knew or could reasonably have foreseen that the harm was likely to occur in the ordinary course of events as result of the breach of the contract.

[*Name of plaintiff] also must prove the amount of [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] damages according to the following instructions. [He/She/Nonbinary pronoun/It] does not have to prove the exact amount of damages. You must not speculate or guess in awarding damages.

[*Name of plaintiff] claims damages for [identify general damages claimed].

New September 2003; Revised October 2004, December 2010

Directions for Use

This instruction should always be read before any of the following specific damages instructions. (See CACI Nos. 351–360.)

Sources and Authority

- Contract Damages. Civil Code section 3300.
- Damages Must Be Clearly Ascertainable. Civil Code section 3301.
- Damages No Greater Than Benefit of Full Performance. Civil Code section 3358.
- Damages Must Be Reasonable. Civil Code section 3359.
- "An element of a breach of contract cause of action is damages proximately caused by the defendant's breach. The statutory measure of damages for breach of contract is 'the amount which will compensate the party aggrieved for all the detriment proximately caused thereby, or which, in the ordinary course of things, would be likely to result therefrom.' 'Contract damages seek to approximate the agreed-upon performance. "[I]n the law of contracts the theory is that the party injured by breach should receive as nearly as possible the equivalent of the benefits of performance." ' " (Copenbarger v. Morris Cerullo World Evangelism, Inc. (2018) 29 Cal.App.5th 1, 9 [239 Cal.Rptr.3d 838], internal citations omitted.)

- "This aim can never be exactly attained yet that is the problem the trial court is required to resolve." (Brandon & Tibbs v. George Kevorkian Accountancy Corp. (1990) 226 Cal.App.3d 442, 455 [277 Cal.Rptr. 40], internal citations omitted.)
- "[D]amages may not exceed the benefit which it would have received had the promisor performed." (Brandon & Tibbs, supra, 226 Cal.App.3d at p. 468, internal citations omitted.)
- " 'The rules of law governing the recovery of damages for breach of contract are very flexible. Their application in the infinite number of situations that arise is beyond question variable and uncertain. Even more than in the case of other rules of law, they must be regarded merely as guides to the court, leaving much to the individual feeling of the court created by the special circumstances of the particular case.' " (Brandon & Tibbs, supra, 226 Cal.App.3d at p. 455, internal citation omitted.)
- "Contractual damages are of two types—general damages (sometimes called direct damages) and special damages (sometimes called consequential damages)." (Lewis Jorge Construction Management, Inc. v. Pomona Unified School Dist. (2004) 34 Cal.4th 960, 968 [22 Cal.Rptr.3d 340, 102 P.3d 257].)
- "General damages are often characterized as those that flow directly and necessarily from a breach of contract, or that are a natural result of a breach. Because general damages are a natural and necessary consequence of a contract breach, they are often said to be within the contemplation of the parties, meaning that because their occurrence is sufficiently predictable the parties at the time of contracting are 'deemed' to have contemplated them." (Lewis Jorge Construction Management, Inc., supra, 34 Cal.4th at p. 968, internal citations omitted.)
- " 'Contract damages are generally limited to those within the contemplation of the parties when the contract was entered into or at least reasonably foreseeable by them at that time; consequential damages beyond the expectation of the parties are not recoverable. This limitation on available damages serves to encourage contractual relations and commercial activity by enabling parties to estimate in advance the financial risks of their enterprise.' 'In contrast, tort damages are awarded to [fully] compensate the victim for [all] injury suffered.' " (Erlich v. Menezes (1999) 21 Cal.4th 543, 550 [87 Cal.Rptr.2d 886, 981 P.2d 978], internal citations omitted.)
- "[I]f special circumstances caused some unusual injury, special damages are not recoverable therefor unless the circumstances were known or should have been known to the breaching party at the time he entered into the contract.' " (Resort Video, Ltd. v. Laser Video, Inc. (1995) 35 Cal.App.4th 1679, 1697 [42 Cal.Rptr.2d 136], internal citations omitted.)
- "The detriment that is 'likely to result therefrom' is that which is foreseeable to the breaching party at the time the contract is entered into." (Wallis v. Farmers Group, Inc. (1990) 220 Cal.App.3d 718, 737 [269 Cal.Rptr. 299], internal citation omitted.)

- "Where the fact of damages is certain, as here, the amount of damages need not be calculated with absolute certainty. The law requires only that some reasonable basis of computation be used, and the result reached can be a reasonable approximation." (Acree v. General Motors Acceptance Corp. (2001) 92 Cal.App.4th 385, 398 [112 Cal.Rptr.2d 99], footnotes and internal citations omitted.)
- "Under contract principles, the nonbreaching party is entitled to recover only those damages, including lost future profits, which are 'proximately caused' by the specific breach. Or, to put it another way, the breaching party is only liable to place the nonbreaching party in the same position as if the specific breach had not occurred. Or, to phrase it still a third way, the breaching party is only responsible to give the nonbreaching party the benefit of the bargain to the extent the specific breach deprived that party of its bargain." (Postal Instant Press v. Sealy (1996) 43 Cal.App.4th 1704, 1709 [51 Cal.Rptr.2d 365], internal citations omitted.)
- "[D]amages for mental suffering and emotional distress are generally not recoverable in an action for breach of an ordinary commercial contract in California." (Erlich, supra, 21 Cal.4th 543 at p. 558, internal citations omitted.)
- "Cases permitting recovery for emotional distress typically involve mental anguish stemming from more personal undertakings the traumatic results of which were unavoidable. Thus, when the express object of the contract is the mental and emotional well-being of one of the contracting parties, the breach of the contract may give rise to damages for mental suffering or emotional distress." (Erlich, supra, 21 Cal.4th at p. 559, internal citations omitted.)
- "The right to recover damages for emotional distress for breach of mortuary and crematorium contracts has been well established in California for many years." (Saari v. Jongordon Corp. (1992) 5 Cal.App.4th 797, 803 [7 Cal.Rptr.2d 82], internal citation omitted.)
- "[T]he principle that attorney fees qua damages are recoverable as damages, and not as costs of suit, applies equally to breach of contract." (Copenbarger, supra, 29 Cal.App.5th at p. 10, original italics.)
- "Numerous other cases decided both before and after Brandt have likewise recognized that '[a]lthough fee issues are usually addressed to the trial court in the form of a posttrial motion, fees as damages are pleaded and proved by the party claiming them and are decided by the jury unless the parties stipulate to a posttrial procedure.' " (Monster, LLC v. Superior Court (2017) 12 Cal.App.5th 1214, 1229 [219 Cal.Rptr.3d 814].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 894–903

California Breach of Contract Remedies (Cont.Ed.Bar 1980; 2001 supp.) Recovery of Money Damages, §§ 4.1–4.9

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts,

§§ 140.55–140.56, 140.100–140.106 (Matthew Bender)

15 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.70 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

5 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 50, Contracts, §§ 50.10–50.11 (Matthew Bender)

6 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 65, Damages: Contract, § 65.20 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions, 7.03 et seq.

351. Special Damages

[Name of plaintiff] [also] claims damages for [identify special damages].

To recover for this harm, [name of plaintiff] must prove that when the parties made the contract, [name of defendant] knew or reasonably should have known of the special circumstances leading to the harm.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

Before giving this instruction, the judge should determine whether a particular item of damage qualifies as "special."

Sources and Authority

- Measure of Contract Damages. Civil Code section 3300.
- " 'Unlike general damages, special damages are those losses that do not arise directly and inevitably from any similar breach of any similar agreement. Instead, they are secondary or derivative losses arising from circumstances that are particular to the contract or to the parties. Special damages are recoverable if the special or particular circumstances from which they arise were actually communicated to or known by the breaching party (a subjective test) or were matters of which the breaching party should have been aware at the time of contracting (an objective test). [Citations.] Special damages "will not be presumed from the mere breach" but represent loss that 'occurred by reason of injuries following from' the breach.' " (Schellinger Brothers v. Cotter (2016) 2 Cal.App.5th 984, 1010 [207 Cal.Rptr.3d 82].)
- "Special damages must fall within the rule of Hadley v. Baxendale, . . . that is, they must reasonably be supposed to have been contemplated or foreseeable by the parties when making the contract as the probable result of a breach." (Sabraw v. Kaplan (1962) 211 Cal.App.2d 224, 227 [27 Cal.Rptr. 81], internal citations omitted.)
- "Parties may voluntarily assume the risk of liability for unusual losses, but to do so they must be told, at the time the contract is made, of any special harm likely to result from a breach [citations]. Alternatively, the nature of the contract or the circumstances in which it is made may compel the inference that the defendant should have contemplated the fact that such a loss would be 'the probable result' of the defendant's breach. [Citation.] Not recoverable as special damages are those 'beyond the expectations of the parties.' [Citation.] Special damages for breach of contract are limited to losses that were either actually foreseen [citation] or were 'reasonably foreseeable' when the contract was formed." (Ash v. North American Title Co. (2014) 223 Cal.App.4th 1258, 1269–1270 [168 Cal.Rptr.3d 499].)

- "When reference is made to the terms of the contract alone, there is ordinarily little difficulty in determining what damages arise from its breach in the usual course of things, and the parties will be presumed to have contemplated such damages only. But where it is claimed the circumstances show that a special purpose was intended to be accomplished by one of the parties (a failure to accomplish which by means of the contract would cause him greater damage than would ordinarily follow from a breach by the other party), and such purpose was known to the other party, the facts showing the special purpose and the knowledge of the other party must be averred. This rule has frequently been applied to the breach of a contract for the sale of goods to be delivered at a certain time. In such cases the general rule of damages is fixed by reference to the market value of the goods at the time they were to have been delivered, because in the usual course of events the purchaser could have supplied himself with like commodities at the market price. And if special circumstances existed entitling the purchaser to greater damages for the defeat of a special purpose known to the contracting parties (as, for example, if the purchaser had already contracted to furnish the goods at a profit, and they could not be obtained in the market), such circumstances must be stated in the declaration with the facts which, under the circumstances, enhanced the injury." (Mitchell v. Clarke (1886) 71 Cal. 163, 164–165 [11 P. 882], internal citation omitted.)
- "[I]f special circumstances caused some unusual injury, special damages are not recoverable therefor unless the circumstances were known or should have been known to the breaching party at the time he entered into the contract. The requirement of knowledge or notice as a prerequisite to the recovery of special damages is based on the theory that a party does not and cannot assume limitless responsibility for all consequences of a breach, and that at the time of contracting he must be advised of the facts concerning special harm which might result therefrom, in order that he may determine whether or not to accept the risk of contracting." (Brandon & Tibbs v. George Kevorkian Accountancy Corp. (1990) 226 Cal.App.3d 442, 455 [277 Cal.Rptr. 40], internal citations omitted.)
- "Contract damages must be clearly ascertainable in both nature and origin. A contracting party cannot be required to assume limitless responsibility for all consequences of a breach and must be advised of any special harm that might result in order to determine whether or not to accept the risk of contracting." (Erlich v. Menezes (1999) 21 Cal.4th 543, 560 [87 Cal.Rptr.2d 886, 981 P.2d 978], internal citations omitted.)
- " '[F]oreseeability is to be determined as of the time of the making of the contract'; 'what must be foreseeable is only that the loss would result if the breach occurred'; 'it is foreseeability only by the party in breach that is determinative'; 'foreseeability has an objective character'; and 'the loss need only have been foreseeable as a probable, as opposed to a necessary or certain, result of the breach.' " (Ash, supra, 223 Cal.App.4th at p. 1270.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, § 896

15 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.13 (Matthew Bender)

6 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 65, Damages: Contract, § 65.61 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions, 7.04[6], 7.08[3]

352. Loss of Profits—No Profits Earned

To recover damages for lost profits, [name of plaintiff] must prove that it is reasonably certain [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] would have earned profits but for [name of defendant]'s breach of the contract.

To decide the amount of damages for lost profits, you must determine the gross, or total, amount [name of plaintiff] would have received if the contract had been performed and then subtract from that amount the costs [including the value of the [labor/materials/rents/expenses/interest on loans invested in the business]] [name of plaintiff] would have had if the contract had been performed.

You do not have to calculate the amount of the lost profits with mathematical precision, but there must be a reasonable basis for computing the loss.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This instruction applies to both past and future lost profit claims. Read this instruction in conjunction with CACI No. 350, Introduction to Contract Damages, or CACI No. 351, Special Damages.

Insertion of specified types of costs to be deducted from gross earnings is optional, depending on the facts of the case. Other types of costs may be inserted as appropriate.

Sources and Authority

- Damages Must Be Clearly Ascertainable. Civil Code section 3301.
- "Lost profits may be recoverable as damages for breach of a contract. '[T]he general principle [is] that damages for the loss of prospective profits are recoverable where the evidence makes reasonably certain their occurrence and extent.' Such damages must 'be proven to be certain both as to their occurrence and their extent, albeit not with 'mathematical precision.' " (Sargon Enterprises, Inc. v. University of Southern California (2012) 55 Cal.4th 747, 773–774 [149 Cal.Rptr.3d 614, 288 P.3d 1237].)
- "Where the fact of damages is certain, the amount of damages need not be calculated with absolute certainty. The law requires only that some reasonable basis of computation of damages be used, and the damages may be computed even if the result reached is an approximation. This is especially true where, as here, it is the wrongful acts of the defendant that have created the difficulty in proving the amount of loss of profits or where it is the wrongful acts of the defendant that have caused the other party to not realize a profit to which that party is entitled." (GHK Associates v. Mayer Group (1990) 224 Cal.App.3d 856,

873–874 [274 Cal.Rptr. 168], internal citations omitted.)

- "Historical data, such as past business volume, supply an acceptable basis for ascertaining lost future profits. [Citations.] In some instances, lost profits may be recovered where plaintiff introduces evidence of the profits lost by similar businesses operating under similar conditions. [Citations.]" (Sargon Enterprises, Inc., supra, 55 Cal.4th at p. 774.)
- "Regarding lost business profits, the cases have generally distinguished between established and unestablished businesses. '[W]here the operation of an established business is prevented or interrupted, as by a . . . breach of contract . . . , damages for the loss of prospective profits that otherwise might have been made from its operation are generally recoverable for the reason that their occurrence and extent may be ascertained with reasonable certainty from the past volume of business and other provable data relevant to the probable future sales.' " (Sargon Enterprises, Inc., supra, 55 Cal.4th at p. 774.)
- " 'On the other hand, where the operation of an unestablished business is prevented or interrupted, damages for prospective profits that might otherwise have been made from its operation are not recoverable for the reason that their occurrence is uncertain, contingent and speculative. [Citations.] . . . But although generally objectionable for the reason that their estimation is conjectural and speculative, anticipated profits dependent upon future events are allowed where their nature and occurrence can be shown by evidence of reasonable reliability." (Sargon Enterprises, Inc., supra, 55 Cal.4th at p. 774.)
- "Unestablished businesses have been permitted to claim lost profit damages in situations where owners have experience in the business they are seeking to establish, and where the business is in an established market." (Resort Video, Ltd. v. Laser Video, Inc. (1995) 35 Cal.App.4th 1679, 1698–1699 [42 Cal.Rptr.2d 136], internal citations omitted.)
- "Even if [plaintiff] was able to provide credible evidence of lost profits, it must be remembered that '[w]hen loss of anticipated profits is an element of damages, it means net and not gross profits. Net profits are the gains made from sales 'after deducting the value of the labor, materials, rents, and all expenses, together with the interest of the capital employed.' " (Resort Video, Ltd., supra, 35 Cal.App.4th at p. 1700, internal citations omitted.)
- "It is the generally accepted rule, in order to recover damages projected into the future, that a plaintiff must show with reasonable certainty that detriment from the breach of contract will accrue to him in the future. Damages which are remote, contingent, or merely possible cannot serve as a legal basis for recovery." (California Shoppers, Inc. v. Royal Globe Insurance Co. (1985) 175 Cal.App.3d 1, 62 [221 Cal.Rptr. 171], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 904–907

California Breach of Contract Remedies (Cont.Ed.Bar 1980; 2001 supp.) Recovery of Money Damages, §§ 4.11–4.17

15 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.79 (Matthew Bender)

6 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 65, Damages, § 65.21 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions, 7.12

353. Loss of Profits—Some Profits Earned

To recover damages for lost profits, [name of plaintiff] must prove that it is reasonably certain [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] would have earned more profits but for [name of defendant]'s breach of the contract.

To decide the amount of damages for lost profits, you must:

1. First, calculate [name of plaintiff]'s estimated total profit by determining the gross amount [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] would have received if the contract had been performed, and then subtracting from that amount the costs [including the value of the [labor/materials/rents/expenses/interest on loans invested in the business]] [name of plaintiff] would have had if the contract had been performed;
2. Next, calculate [name of plaintiff]'s actual profit by determining the gross amount [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] actually received, and then subtracting from that amount [name of plaintiff]'s actual costs [including the value of the [labor/materials/rents/expenses/interest on loans invested in the business]]; and
3. Then, subtract [name of plaintiff]'s actual profit, which you determined in the second step, from [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] estimated total profit, which you determined in the first step. The resulting amount is [name of plaintiff]'s lost profit.

You do not have to calculate the amount of the lost profits with mathematical precision, but there must be a reasonable basis for computing the loss.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

Read this instruction in conjunction with CACI No. 350, Introduction to Contract Damages, or CACI No. 351, Special Damages.

Insertion of specified types of costs to be deducted from gross earnings is optional, depending on the facts of the case. Other types of costs may be inserted as appropriate.

Sources and Authority

- Damages Must Be Clearly Ascertainable. Civil Code section 3301.
- "Lost profits may be recoverable as damages for breach of a contract. '[T]he general principle [is] that damages for the loss of prospective profits are recoverable where the evidence makes reasonably certain their occurrence and extent.' Such damages must 'be proven to be certain both as to their occurrence and their extent, albeit not with 'mathematical precision.' " (Sargon Enterprises, Inc. v. University of Southern California (2012) 55 Cal.4th 747, 773–774 [149 Cal.Rptr.3d 614, 288 P.3d 1237].)

- "Where the fact of damages is certain, the amount of damages need not be calculated with absolute certainty. The law requires only that some reasonable basis of computation of damages be used, and the damages may be computed even if the result reached is an approximation. This is especially true where, as here, it is the wrongful acts of the defendant that have created the difficulty in proving the amount of loss of profits or where it is the wrongful acts of the defendant that have caused the other party to not realize a profit to which that party is entitled." (GHK Associates v. Mayer Group (1990) 224 Cal.App.3d 856, 873–874 [274 Cal.Rptr. 168], internal citations omitted.)
- "Historical data, such as past business volume, supply an acceptable basis for ascertaining lost future profits. [Citations.] In some instances, lost profits may be recovered where plaintiff introduces evidence of the profits lost by similar businesses operating under similar conditions. [Citations.]" (Sargon Enterprises, Inc., supra, 55 Cal.4th at p. 774].)
- "Regarding lost business profits, the cases have generally distinguished between established and unestablished businesses. '[W]here the operation of an established business is prevented or interrupted, as by a . . . breach of contract . . . , damages for the loss of prospective profits that otherwise might have been made from its operation are generally recoverable for the reason that their occurrence and extent may be ascertained with reasonable certainty from the past volume of business and other provable data relevant to the probable future sales.' " (Sargon Enterprises, Inc., supra, 55 Cal.4th at p. 774.)
- " 'On the other hand, where the operation of an unestablished business is prevented or interrupted, damages for prospective profits that might otherwise have been made from its operation are not recoverable for the reason that their occurrence is uncertain, contingent and speculative. [Citations.] . . . But although generally objectionable for the reason that their estimation is conjectural and speculative, anticipated profits dependent upon future events are allowed where their nature and occurrence can be shown by evidence of reasonable reliability." (Sargon Enterprises, Inc., supra, 55 Cal.4th at p. 774.)
- "Unestablished businesses have been permitted to claim lost profit damages in situations where owners have experience in the business they are seeking to establish, and where the business is in an established market." (Resort Video, Ltd. v. Laser Video, Inc. (1995) 35 Cal.App.4th 1679, 1698–1699 [42 Cal.Rptr.2d 136], internal citations omitted.)
- "Even if [plaintiff] was able to provide credible evidence of lost profits, it must be remembered that '[w]hen loss of anticipated profits is an element of damages, it means net and not gross profits.' Net profits are the gains made from sales 'after deducting the value of the labor, materials, rents, and all expenses, together with the interest of the capital employed.' " (Resort Video, Ltd., supra,

35 Cal.App.4th at p. 1700, internal citations omitted.)

- "It is the generally accepted rule, in order to recover damages projected into the future, that a plaintiff must show with reasonable certainty that detriment from the breach of contract will accrue to him in the future. Damages which are remote, contingent, or merely possible cannot serve as a legal basis for recovery." (California Shoppers, Inc. v. Royal Globe Insurance Co. (1985) 175 Cal.App.3d 1, 62 [221 Cal.Rptr. 171], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 904–907

California Breach of Contract Remedies (Cont.Ed.Bar 1980; 2001 supp.) Recovery of Money Damages, §§ 4.11–4.17

15 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.79 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions, 7.12

354. Owner's/Lessee's Damages for Breach of Contract to Construct Improvements on Real Property

---

To recover damages for breach of a contract to construct improvements on real property, [*name of plaintiff] must prove:

[[The reasonable cost to [*name of plaintiff] of completing the work;]

[And the value of loss of use of the property;]

[And the reasonable cost of alternative housing from the date the work was to have been completed until the date the work was completed;]

[Less any amounts unpaid under the contract with [*name of defendant];]]

[or]

[The difference between the fair market value of the [lessee's interest in the] property and its fair market value had the improvements been constructed.]

New September 2003

Directions for Use

Read this instruction in conjunction with CACI No. 350, Introduction to Contract Damages. The bracketed options state alternative measures of damage. Choose the option appropriate to the facts of the case. For a definition of "fair market value," see CACI No. 3501, "Fair Market Value" Explained.

Sources and Authority

- "The proper measure of damages for breach of a contract to construct improvements on real property where the work is to be done on plaintiff's property is ordinarily the reasonable cost to the plaintiff of completing the work and not the difference between the value of the property and its value had the improvements been constructed. A different rule applies, however, where improvements are to be made on property not owned by the injured party. 'In that event the injured party is unable to complete the work himself and, subject to the restrictions of sections 3300 and 3359 of the Civil Code, the proper measure of damages is the difference in value of the property with and without the promised performance, since that is the contractual benefit of which the injured party is deprived.' " (Glendale Fed. Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Marina View Heights Dev. Co., (1977) 66 Cal.App.3d 101, 123–124 [135 Cal.Rptr. 802], internal citations omitted.)
- "If the work were to be done on plaintiffs' property the proper measure of damages would ordinarily be the reasonable cost to plaintiffs of completing the work. A different rule applies, however, when the improvements are to be made on property that is not owned by the injured party." (Coughlin v. Blair (1953) 41 Cal.2d 587, 600 [262 P.2d 305], internal citations omitted.)

- "It is settled . . . that the measure of damages for the breach of a building construction contract is ordinarily such sum as is required to make the building conform to the contract. In such situations, the diminution of value rule cannot be invoked and the measure of damages is not the difference between the actual value of the property and its value had it been constructed in accordance with the plans and specifications." (Kitchel v. Acree (1963) 216 Cal.App.2d 119, 123 [30 Cal.Rptr. 714], internal citations omitted.)
- "The available damages for defective construction are limited to the cost of repairing the home, including lost use or relocation expenses, or the diminution in value." (Erlich v. Menezes (1999) 21 Cal.4th 543, 561 [87 Cal.Rptr.2d 886, 981 P.2d 978], internal citations omitted.)
- "Where the measure of damages turns on the value of property, whether liability sounds in tort or breach of contract, the normal standard is market value. The definition of market value and the principles governing its ascertainment are the same as those applicable to the valuation of property in eminent domain proceedings and in ad valorem taxation of property. In Sacramento etc. R. R. Co. v. Heilbron, market value was defined as 'the highest price estimated in terms of money which the land would bring if exposed for sale in the open market, with reasonable time allowed in which to find a purchaser, buying with knowledge of all of the uses and purposes to which it was adapted and for which it was capable.' That classic exposition with subsequent refinements has always been the accepted definition of market value in California." (Glendale Federal Savings & Loan Assn., supra, 66 Cal.App.3d at pp. 141–142, internal citations and footnote omitted.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 937–939

10 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 104, Building Contracts, § 104.10 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

6 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 65, Damages: Contract, § 65.100 (Matthew Bender)

15 California Legal Forms, Ch. 30D, Construction Contracts And Subcontracts, § 30D.223 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 10, Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions, 10.05

355. Obligation to Pay Money Only

To recover damages for the breach of a contract to pay money, [*name of plaintiff] must prove the amount due under the contract.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

Read this instruction in conjunction with CACI No. 350, Introduction to Contract Damages. If there is a dispute as to the appropriate rate of interest, the jury should be instructed to determine the rate. Otherwise, the judge should calculate the interest and add the appropriate amount of interest to the verdict.

Sources and Authority

- Damages for Breach of Obligation to Pay Money. Civil Code section 3302.
- Interest on Contract Damages. Civil Code section 3289.
- "The section is part of the original Civil Code and was intended to codify a common-law rule of damages for breach of a contract to pay a liquidated sum. In Siminoff v. Jas. H. Goodman & Co. Bank, the court after careful and extensive analysis concluded that section 3302 was not intended to abolish the common-law measure of damages for dishonor of a check. Hartford, in reaching the opposite conclusion, failed even to note the common-law rule or the California cases which had followed it, and did not discuss the strong arguments in its favor advanced in the Siminoff opinion. The Hartford holding on section 3302 no longer applies to the instant problem since section 3320 clearly constitutes 'a legislative recognition that a depositor whose check is wrongfully dishonored may thereby sustain "actual damage" beyond the amount of the check' and thus supersedes the Hartford holding on the measure of damages." (Weaver v. Bank of America National Trust & Savings Assn. (1963) 59 Cal.2d 428, 436, fn. 11 [30 Cal.Rptr. 4, 380 P.2d 644], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, § 936

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions, 7.04[7][a]

356. Buyer's Damages for Breach of Contract for Sale of Real Property (Civ. Code, § 3306)

To recover damages for the breach of a contract to sell real property, [*name of plaintiff] must prove:

1. The difference between the fair market value of the property on the date of the breach and the contract price;
2. The amount of any payment made by [name of plaintiff] toward the purchase;
3. The amount of any reasonable expenses for examining title and preparing documents for the sale;
4. The amount of any reasonable expenses in preparing to occupy the property; and
5. [Insert item(s) of claimed consequential damages].

New September 2003

Directions for Use

Read this instruction in conjunction with CACI No. 350, Introduction to Contract Damages. If the appropriate rate of interest is in dispute, the jury should be instructed to determine the rate. Otherwise, the judge should calculate the interest and add the appropriate amount of interest to the verdict.

For a definition of "fair market value," see CACI No. 3501, "Fair Market Value" Explained.

Sources and Authority

- Damages for Breach of Contract to Convey Real Property. Civil Code section 3306.
- Interest on Contract Damages. Civil Code section 3289.
- " 'The rules of damages for a breach of a contract to sell or buy real property are special and unique. To the extent that the measure of compensatory damages available to a buyer or seller of real property for a breach of a contract are different from the general measure of compensatory damages for a breach of contract, the special provisions for damages for a breach of a real property sales contract prevail.' " (Greenwich S.F., LLC v. Wong (2010) 190 Cal.App.4th 739, 751 [118 Cal.Rptr.3d 531].)
- "A simple reading of the statute discloses that by its explicit terms it is adaptable only to a failure to convey, and not to a delay in conveying." (Christensen v. Slawter (1959) 173 Cal.App.2d 325, 330 [343 P.2d 341].)
- "This court itself has recently described section 3306 as providing for 'loss-ofbargain damages' measured by the difference between the contract price and the fair market value on the date of the breach." (Reese v. Wong (2001) 93 Cal.App.4th 51, 56 [112 Cal.Rptr.2d 669], internal citation omitted.)

- "It is settled that when a seller of real property fails or refuses to convey, a buyer who has made advance payments toward the purchase price may recover interest on those payments as damages for breach of contract. This rule is not limited to sales of real property; it applies to sales in general." (Al-Husry v. Nilsen Farms Mini-Market, Inc. (1994) 25 Cal.App.4th 641, 648 [31 Cal.Rptr.2d 28], internal citations omitted.)
- Section 3306 does not ordinarily apply to breach of an unexercised option to buy property. (Schmidt v. Beckelman (1960) 187 Cal.App.2d 462, 470–471 [9 Cal.Rptr. 736].)
- " 'Generally, [consequential] damages are those which, in view of all facts known by the parties at the time of the making of the contract, may reasonably be supposed to have been considered as a likely consequence of a breach in the ordinary course of events. This provision would conform the measure of damages in real property conveyance breaches to the general contract measure of damages which is specified in Civil Code 3300: ". . . all the detriment proximately caused (by the breach), or which, in the ordinary course of things, would be likely to result therefrom." ' " (Stevens Group Fund IV v. Sobrato Development Co. (1991) 1 Cal.App.4th 886, 892 [2 Cal.Rptr.2d 460], quoting the Assembly Committee on Judiciary.)
- "Moreover, in none of the foregoing cases does it appear that the buyer demonstrated the existence of the other requisites for an award of consequential or special damages, i.e., that the seller knew of the buyer's purpose in purchasing the property and that the anticipated profits were proved with reasonable certainty as to their occurrence and amount." (Greenwich S.F., LLC, supra, 190 Cal.App.4th at p. 757.)
- "The plain language of section 3306, adding consequential damages to the general damages and other specified damages recoverable for breach of a contract to convey real property, the legislative history of the 1983 amendment acknowledging that the addition of consequential damages would conform the measure of damages to the general contract measure of damages, and the generally accepted inclusion of lost profits as a component of consequential or special damages in other breach of contract contexts and by other states in the context of breach of contracts to convey real property, taken together, persuade us that lost profits may be awarded as part of consequential damages under section 3306 upon a proper showing." (Greenwich S.F., LLC, supra, 190 Cal.App.4th at p. 758, internal citations omitted.)
- "Rents received from the lease of the property in this case are not properly an item of consequential damages. Here, plaintiff introduced evidence as to the fair market value of the property which included these profits. To allow these as consequential damages under these circumstances would have permitted a double recovery for plaintiff." (Stevens Group Fund IV, supra, 1 Cal.App.4th at p. 892.)

- "[T]he phrase 'to enter upon the land' refers to the taking of possession rather than the use of the property." (Schellinger Brothers v. Cotter (2016) 2 Cal.App.5th 984, 1011 [207 Cal.Rptr.3d 82].)
- "We think the phrase 'and interest' should continue to be read as referring to the generally applicable provisions of [Civil Code] section 3287 regarding prejudgment interest. As amended in 1967, subdivision (a) of section 3287 establishes a right to recover prejudgment interest on damages 'capable of being made certain by calculation' and subdivision (b) gives the court general discretionary authority to award prejudgment interest where damages are 'based upon a cause of action in contract . . ..' The discretionary authority conferred by subdivision (b) will ordinarily apply to loss-of-bargain damages measured by the contract price/market value differential." (Rifkin v. Achermann (1996) 43 Cal.App.4th 391, 397 [50 Cal.Rptr.2d 661].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 926–928

California Real Property Remedies Practice (Cont.Ed.Bar 1980; 1999 supp.) Breach of Seller-Buyer Agreements, §§ 4.11–4.14

Greenwald & Asimow, California Practice Guide: Real Property Transactions, Ch. 11-D, Buyer's Remedies Upon Seller's Breach—Damages And Specific Performance, ¶ 11:184 (The Rutter Group)

50 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 569, Vendor and Purchaser, § 569.22 (Matthew Bender)

9 California Legal Forms, Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements, § 23.12 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions, 7.04[7][f]

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions, 8.37, 8.58

357. Seller's Damages for Breach of Contract to Purchase Real Property

---

To recover damages for the breach of a contract to buy real property, [*name of plaintiff] must prove:

1. The difference between the amount that was due to [name of plaintiff] under the contract and the fair market value of the property at the time of the breach; [and]
2. [Insert item(s) of claimed consequential damages, e.g., resale expenses].

New September 2003

Directions for Use

Read this instruction in conjunction with CACI No. 350, Introduction to Contract Damages. If there is a dispute regarding the appropriate rate of interest, the jury should be instructed to determine the rate. Otherwise, the judge should calculate the interest and add the appropriate amount of interest to the verdict.

For a definition of "fair market value," see CACI No. 3501, "Fair Market Value" Explained.

Sources and Authority

- Damages for Breach of Contract to Purchase Real Property. Civil Code section 3307.
- "It is generally accepted that the equivalent of value to the seller is fair market value. Fair market value is reckoned 'in terms of money.' " (Abrams v. Motter (1970) 3 Cal.App.3d 828, 840–841 [83 Cal.Rptr. 855], internal citations omitted.)
- "The "value of the property" to [plaintiff] is to be determined as of the date of the breach of the agreement by [defendant]." (Allen v. Enomoto (1964) 228 Cal.App.2d 798, 803 [39 Cal.Rptr. 815], internal citation omitted.)
- There can be no damages where the value to the owner equals or exceeds the contract price. (Newhart v. Pierce (1967) 254 Cal.App.2d 783, 792 [62 Cal.Rptr. 553], internal citation omitted.)
- "[T]he view that this section is exclusive, and precludes other consequential damages occasioned by the breach, was rejected in Royer v. Carter. Under Civil Code, section 3300, other damages are recoverable, usually embracing the out-of-pocket expenses lost by failure of the transaction." (Wade v. Lake County Title Co. (1970) 6 Cal.App.3d 824, 830 [86 Cal.Rptr. 182], internal citation omitted.)
- "[C]ourts have permitted consequential damages, only where the seller has diligently attempted resale after the buyer has breached the contract." (Askari v.

R & R Land Co. (1986) 179 Cal.App.3d 1101, 1107 [225 Cal.Rptr. 285], internal citation omitted.)

- "[I]f the property increases in value before trial and the vendor resells the property at a price higher than the value of the contract, there are no longer any loss of bargain damages." (Spurgeon v. Drumheller (1985) 174 Cal.App.3d 659, 664 [220 Cal.Rptr. 195].)
- "The same rule of no loss of bargain damages to the vendor applies where the resale is for the same price as the contract price." (Spurgeon, supra, 174 Cal.App.3d at p. 664, internal citations omitted.)
- "For the reason that no loss of bargain damages are available to a seller if there is a resale at the same or a higher price than the contract price, the law imposes on the seller of the property the duty to exercise diligence and to make a resale within the shortest time possible. In discussing the duty to mitigate where the vendee seeks return of a deposit, the Sutter court states the requirement that resales be made with reasonable diligence 'states a policy applicable to resales of real property. Whether the resale is made one, two or three months later, or whether it be a year or more, it should be made with reasonable diligence to qualify the vendor to an allowance of an off-set against the vendee's claim for restitution of money paid.' " (Spurgeon, supra, 174 Cal.App.3d at p. 665, internal citations omitted.)
- "Although it is well settled in the foregoing authorities that damages under Civil Code section 3307 for the difference between the contract price and property value may be insufficient to give the vendor the benefit of his bargain and he is entitled also to resale expenses and some costs of continued ownership, he should not be permitted to receive a windfall at the purchaser's expense." (Smith v. Mady (1983) 146 Cal.App.3d 129, 133 [194 Cal.Rptr. 42].)
- "Inasmuch as under Abrams and Sutter the vendor has an obligation to resell promptly in order to obtain consequential damages and the resale price may fix the property value as a basis for Civil Code section 3307 damages, we are impelled to conclude that there is no inherent separateness in the original sale and subsequent resale transactions. The increased resale price should not be disregarded in considering an offset to consequential damages awarded to a vendor against a defaulting purchaser of real property." (Smith, supra, 146 Cal.App.3d at p. 133.)
- "The owner of real or personal property may competently testify to its value." (Newhart, supra, 254 Cal.App.2d at p. 789, internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 929–934

California Real Property Remedies Practice (Cont.Ed.Bar 1980; 1999 supp.), Breach of Seller-Buyer Agreements, §§ 4.37–4.43

California Practice Guide: Real Property Transactions, Ch. 11-C, ¶¶ 11:101–11:110, Seller's Remedies Upon Buyer's Breach-Damages and Specific Performance (The Rutter Group)

50 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 569, Vendor and Purchaser, § 569.22 (Matthew Bender)

9 California Legal Forms, Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements, § 23.12 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions, 7.04[7][f]

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions, 8.37, 8.58

358. Mitigation of Damages

If [name of defendant] breached the contract and the breach caused harm, [name of plaintiff] is not entitled to recover damages for harm that [name of defendant] proves [name of plaintiff] could have avoided with reasonable efforts or expenditures. You should consider the reasonableness of [name of plaintiff]'s efforts in light of the circumstances facing [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it] at the time, including [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] ability to make the efforts or expenditures without undue risk or hardship.

If [name of plaintiff] made reasonable efforts to avoid harm, then your award should include reasonable amounts that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] spent for this purpose.

New September 2003

Sources and Authority

- " ' "The doctrine of mitigation of damages holds that '[a] plaintiff who suffers damage as a result of . . . a breach of contract . . . has a duty to take reasonable steps to mitigate those damages and will not be able to recover for any losses which could have been thus avoided." ' Under the doctrine, '[a] plaintiff may not recover for damages avoidable through ordinary care and reasonable exertion.' However, '[t]he duty to mitigate damages does not require an injured party to do what is unreasonable or impracticable.' " (Agam v. Gavra (2015) 236 Cal.App.4th 91, 111 [186 Cal.Rptr.3d 295], internal citations omitted.)
- 'The rule of mitigation of damages has no application where its effect would be to require the innocent party to sacrifice and surrender important and valuable rights." (Valle de Oro Bank v. Gamboa (1994) 26 Cal.App.4th 1686, 1691 [32 Cal.Rptr.2d 329].)
- "Whether a plaintiff acted reasonably to mitigate damages . . . is a factual matter to be determined by the trier of fact . . . ." (Agam, supra, 236 Cal.App.4th at p. 111.)
- "A plaintiff who suffers damage as a result of either a breach of contract or a tort has a duty to take reasonable steps to mitigate those damages and will not be able to recover for any losses which could have been thus avoided." (Shaffer v. Debbas (1993) 17 Cal.App.4th 33, 41 [21 Cal.Rptr.2d 110], internal citation omitted.)
- "A party injured by a breach of contract is required to do everything reasonably possible to negate his own loss and thus reduce the damages for which the other party has become liable. The plaintiff cannot recover for harm he could have foreseen and avoided by such reasonable efforts and without undue expense.

However, the injured party is not precluded from recovery to the extent that he has made reasonable but unsuccessful efforts to avoid loss." (Brandon & Tibbs v. George Kevorkian Accountancy Corp. (1990) 226 Cal.App.3d 442, 460 [277 Cal.Rptr. 40], internal citations omitted.)

- "The burden of proving that losses could have been avoided by reasonable effort and expense must always be borne by the party who has broken the contract. Inasmuch as the law denies recovery for losses that can be avoided by reasonable effort and expense, justice requires that the risks incident to such effort should be carried by the party whose wrongful conduct makes them necessary. Therefore, special losses that a party incurs in a reasonable effort to avoid losses resulting from a breach are recoverable as damages." (Brandon & Tibbs, supra, 226 Cal.App.3d at pp. 460–461, internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.56 (Matthew Bender)

15 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.77 (Matthew Bender)

6 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 65, Damages: Contract, §§ 65.103, 65.121 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions, 7.12[6][b], 7.15[4]

359. Present Cash Value of Future Damages

To recover for future harm, [name of plaintiff] must prove that the harm is reasonably certain to occur and must prove the amount of those future damages. The amount of damages for future harm must be reduced to present cash value. This is necessary because money received now will, through investment, grow to a larger amount in the future. [Name of defendant] must prove the amount by which future damages should be reduced to present value.

To find present cash value, you must determine the amount of money that, if reasonably invested today, will provide [name of plaintiff] with the amount of [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] future damages.

[You may consider expert testimony in determining the present cash value of future damages.] [You must use [the interest rate of _____ percent/ [and] [specify other stipulated information]] agreed to by the parties in determining the present cash value of future damages.]

New September 2003; Revised December 2010, June 2013

Directions for Use

Give this instruction if future damages are sought and there is evidence from which a reduction to present value can be made. Give the next-to-last sentence if there has been expert testimony on reduction to present value. Unless there is a stipulation, expert testimony will usually be required to accurately establish present values for future losses. Give the last sentence if there has been a stipulation as to the interest rate to use or any other facts related to present cash value.

It would appear that because reduction to present value benefits the defendant, the defendant bears the burden of proof on the discount rate. (See Wilson v. Gilbert (1972) 25 Cal.App.3d 607, 613–614 [102 Cal.Rptr. 31] [no error to refuse instruction on reduction to present value when defendant presented no evidence].)

Present-value tables may assist the jury in making its determination of present cash value. Tables, worksheets, and an instruction on how to use them are provided in CACI No. 3904B, Use of Present-Value Tables.

Sources and Authority

- Future Damages. Civil Code section 3283.
- "In an action for damages for such a breach, the plaintiff in that one action recovers all his damages, past and prospective. A judgment for the plaintiff in such an action absolves the defendant from any duty, continuing or otherwise, to perform the contract. The judgment for damages is substituted for the wrongdoer's duty to perform the contract." (Coughlin v. Blair (1953) 41 Cal.2d 587, 598 [262 P.2d 305], internal citations omitted.)

- "If the breach is partial only, the injured party may recover damages for non-performance only to the time of trial and may not recover damages for anticipated future non-performance. Furthermore, even if a breach is total, the injured party may treat it as partial, unless the wrongdoer has repudiated the contract. The circumstances of each case determine whether an injured party may treat a breach of contract as total." (Coughlin, supra, 41 Cal.2d at pp. 598–599, internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1719

15 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.46 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions, 7.09[3]

360. Nominal Damages

If you decide that [name of defendant] breached the contract but also that [name of plaintiff] was not harmed by the breach, you may still award [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it] nominal damages such as one dollar.

New September 2003

Sources and Authority

- Nominal Damages. Civil Code section 3360.
- "A plaintiff is entitled to recover nominal damages for the breach of a contract, despite inability to show that actual damage was inflicted upon him, since the defendant's failure to perform a contractual duty is, in itself, a legal wrong that is fully distinct from the actual damages. The maxim that the law will not be concerned with trifles does not, ordinarily, apply to violation of a contractual right. Accordingly, nominal damages, which are presumed as a matter of law to stem merely from the breach of a contract may properly be awarded for the violation of such a right. And, by statute, such is also the rule in California." (Sweet v. Johnson (1959) 169 Cal.App.2d 630, 632–633 [337 P.2d 499], internal citations omitted.)
- "With one exception . . . an unbroken line of cases holds that nominal damages are limited to an amount of a few cents or a dollar." (Avina v. Spurlock (1972) 28 Cal.App.3d 1086, 1089 [105 Cal.Rptr. 198], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, § 903

15 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 177, Damages, §§ 177.14, 177.71 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions, 7.04[11]

361. Reliance Damages

If you decide that [*name of defendant] breached the contract, [name of plaintiff] may recover the reasonable amount of money that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] spent in preparing for contract performance. These amounts are called "reliance damages." [Name of plaintiff] must prove the amount that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] was induced to spend in reliance on the contract.

If [*name of plaintiff] proves reliance damages, [name of defendant] may avoid paying [some/ [or] all] of those damages by proving [include one or both of the following]:

[1. That [some/ [or] all] of the money that [name of plaintiff] spent in reliance was unnecessary;]

[or]

[2. That [name of plaintiff] would have suffered a loss even if [name of defendant] had fully performed [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] obligations under the contract].

New December 2015

Sources and Authority

- "One proper 'measure of damages for breach of contract is the amount expended [by the nonbreaching party] on the faith of the contract.' " (Agam v. Gavra (2015) 236 Cal.App.4th 91, 105 [186 Cal.Rptr.3d 295].)
- "Where, without fault on his part, one party to a contract who is willing to perform it is prevented from doing so by the other party, the primary measure of damages is the amount of his loss, which may consist of his reasonable outlay or expenditure toward performance, and the anticipated profits which he would have derived from performance." (Buxbom v. Smith (1944) 23 Cal.2d 535, 541 [145 P.2d 305].)
- "This measure of damages often is referred to as 'reliance damages.' It has been held to apply where, as here, 'one party to an established business association fails and refuses to carry out the terms of the agreement, and thereby deprives the other party of the opportunity to make good in the business . . . .' " (Agam, supra, 236 Cal.App.4th at p. 105, internal citations omitted.)
- "The lost earnings found by the jury constituted harm flowing not from the breach of any contract but from plaintiff's entry into the contract in the expectation of receiving the promised options. Such 'reliance' damages may sometimes be recovered on a contract claim '[a]s an alternative' to expectation damages." (Ryan v. Crown Castle NG Networks, Inc. (2016) 6 Cal.App.5th 775, 788 [211 Cal.Rptr.3d 743], original italics.)

- "[I]n the context of reliance damages, the plaintiff bears the burden to establish the amount he or she expended in reliance on the contract. The burden then shifts to the defendant to show (1) the amount of plaintiff's expenses that were unnecessary and/or (2) how much the plaintiff would have lost had the defendant fully performed (i.e., absent the breach). The plaintiff's recovery must be reduced by those amounts." (Agam, supra, 236 Cal.App.4th at p. 107, internal citation omitted.)
- "Concerning reliance damages, Restatement [Second of Contracts] section 349 provides as follows: 'As an alternative to the measure of damages stated in [Restatement section] 347, the injured party has a right to damages based on his reliance interest, including expenditures made in preparation for performance or in performance, less any loss that the party in breach can prove with reasonable certainty the injured party would have suffered had the contract been performed.' " (US Ecology, Inc. v. State of California (2005) 129 Cal.App.4th 887, 907 [28 Cal.Rptr.3d 894], original italics.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, § 894 et seq.

15 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.79 (Matthew Bender)

6 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 65, Damages: Contract, § 65.21 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions, 7.15

362–369. Reserved for Future Use

370. Common Count: Money Had and Received

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] owes [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it] money. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] received money that was intended to be used for the benefit of [name of plaintiff];
2. That the money was not used for the benefit of [name of plaintiff]; and
3. That [name of defendant] has not given the money to [name of plaintiff].

---

*New June 2005; Revised November 2024

Directions for Use

The instructions in this series are not intended to cover all available common counts. Users may need to draft their own instructions or modify the CACI instructions to fit the circumstances of their case.

Do not give this instruction for a claim involving "consumer debt" incurred on or after July 1, 2024. (See Code Civ. Proc., § 425.30 [exempting "consumer debt" from "common counts"].)

Sources and Authority

- " 'The common count is a general pleading which seeks recovery of money without specifying the nature of the claim . . . . Because of the uninformative character of the complaint, it has been held that the typical answer, a general denial, is sufficient to raise almost any kind of defense, including some which ordinarily require special pleading.' However, even where the plaintiff has pleaded in the form of a common count, the defendant must raise in the answer any new matter, that is, anything he or she relies on that is not put in issue by the plaintiff." (Title Ins. Co. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1992) 4 Cal.4th 715, 731 [14 Cal.Rptr.2d 822, 842 P.2d 121], internal citations and footnote omitted.)
- "Although such an action is one at law, it is governed by principles of equity. It may be brought 'wherever one person has received money which belongs to another, and which "in equity and good conscience," or in other words, in justice and right, should be returned. . . . The plaintiff's right to recover is governed by principles of equity, although the action is one at law.' " (Mains v. City Title Ins. Co. (1949) 34 Cal.2d 580, 586 [212 P.2d 873], internal citations omitted.)
- " 'A cause of action for money had and received is stated if it is alleged [that] the defendant "is indebted to the plaintiff in a certain sum 'for money had and received by the defendant for the use of the plaintiff.' " . . .' The claim is viable

' "wherever one person has received money which belongs to another, and which in equity and good conscience should be paid over to the latter." ' As juries are instructed in CACI No. 370, the plaintiff must prove that the defendant received money 'intended to be used for the benefit of [the plaintiff],' that the money was not used for the plaintiff's benefit, and that the defendant has not given the money to the plaintiff." (Avidor v. Sutter's Place, Inc. (2013) 212 Cal.App.4th 1439, 1454 [151 Cal.Rptr.3d 804], internal citations omitted.)

- " 'The action for money had and received is based upon an implied promise which the law creates to restore money which the defendant in equity and good conscience should not retain. The law implies the promise from the receipt of the money to prevent unjust enrichment. The measure of the liability is the amount received.' Recovery is denied in such cases unless the defendant himself has actually received the money." (Rotea v. Izuel (1939) 14 Cal.2d 605, 611 [95 P.2d 927], internal citations omitted.)
- "[S]ince the basic premise for pleading a common count . . . is that the person is thereby 'waiving the tort and suing in assumpsit,' any tort damages are out. Likewise excluded are damages for a breach of an express contract. The relief is something in the nature of a constructive trust and . . . 'one cannot be held to be a constructive trustee of something he had not acquired.' One must have acquired some money which in equity and good conscience belongs to the plaintiff or the defendant must be under a contract obligation with nothing remaining to be performed except the payment of a sum certain in money." (Zumbrun v. University of Southern California (1972) 25 Cal.App.3d 1, 14–15 [101 Cal.Rptr. 499], internal citations omitted.)
- " 'This kind of action to recover back money which ought not in justice to be kept is very beneficial, and, therefore, much encouraged. It lies for money paid by mistake, or upon a consideration which happens to fail, or extortion, or oppression, or an undue advantage of the plaintiff's situation contrary to the laws made for the protection of persons under those circumstances.' " (Minor v. Baldridge (1898) 123 Cal. 187, 191 [55 P. 783], internal citation omitted.)
- " 'As Witkin states in his text, "[a] common count is proper whenever the plaintiff claims a sum of money due, either as an indebtedness in a sum certain, or for the reasonable value of services, goods, etc., furnished. It makes no difference in such a case that the proof shows the original transaction to be an express contract, a contract implied in fact, or a quasi-contract." ' A claim for money had and received can be based upon money paid by mistake, money paid pursuant to a void contract, or a performance by one party of an express contract." (Utility Audit Co., Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (2003) 112 Cal.App.4th 950, 958 [5 Cal.Rptr.3d 520], internal citations omitted.)
- "In the common law action of general assumpsit, it is customary to plead an indebtedness using 'common counts.' In California, it has long been settled the allegation of claims using common counts is good against special or general demurrers. The only essential allegations of a common count are '(1) the statement of indebtedness in a certain sum, (2) the consideration, i.e., goods sold, work done, etc., and (3) nonpayment.' " (Farmers Ins. Exchange v. Zerin (1997) 53 Cal.App.4th 445, 460 [61 Cal.Rptr.2d 707], internal citations omitted.)

- "A common count is not a specific cause of action, . . . rather, it is a simplified form of pleading normally used to aver the existence of various forms of monetary indebtedness, including that arising from an alleged duty to make restitution under an assumpsit theory. When a common count is used as an alternative way of seeking the same recovery demanded in a specific cause of action, and is based on the same facts, the common count is demurrable if the cause of action is demurrable." (McBride v. Boughton (2004) 123 Cal.App.4th 379, 394 [20 Cal.Rptr.3d 115], internal citations omitted.)
- "The cause of action [for money had and received] is available where, as here, the plaintiff has paid money to the defendant pursuant to a contract which is void for illegality." (Schultz v. Harney (1994) 27 Cal.App.4th 1611, 1623 [33 Cal.Rptr.2d 276], internal citations omitted.)
- " 'It is well established in our practice that an action for money had and received will lie to recover money paid by mistake, under duress, oppression or where an undue advantage was taken of plaintiffs' situation whereby money was exacted to which the defendant had no legal right.' " (J.C. Peacock, Inc. v. Hasko (1961) 196 Cal.App.2d 353, 361 [16 Cal.Rptr. 518], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

4 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Pleading, § 561

12 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 121, Common Counts, §§ 121.24[1], 121.51 (Matthew Bender)

4 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 43, Common Counts and Bills of Particulars, § 43.25 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 9, Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions, §§ 9.02, 9.15, 9.32

371. Common Count: Goods and Services Rendered

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] owes [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it] money for [goods delivered/services rendered]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] requested, by words or conduct, that [name of plaintiff] [perform services/deliver goods] for the benefit of [name of defendant];
2. That [name of plaintiff] [performed the services/delivered the goods] as requested;
3. That [name of defendant] has not paid [name of plaintiff] for the [services/goods]; and
4. The reasonable value of the [goods/services] that were provided.

*New June 2005; Revised November 2024

Directions for Use

Do not give this instruction for a claim involving "consumer debt" incurred on or after July 1, 2024. (See Code Civ. Proc., § 425.30 [exempting "consumer debt" from "common counts"].)

Sources and Authority

- " ' "Quantum meruit refers to the well-established principle that 'the law implies a promise to pay for services performed under circumstances disclosing that they were not gratuitously rendered.' [Citation.] To recover in quantum meruit, a party need not prove the existence of a contract [citations], but it must show the circumstances were such that 'the services were rendered under some understanding or expectation of both parties that compensation therefor was to be made.' " [Citation.]' 'The underlying idea behind quantum meruit is the law's distaste for unjust enrichment. If one has received a benefit which one may not justly retain, one should "restore the aggrieved party to his [or her] former position by return of the thing or its equivalent in money." [Citation.]' ' "The measure of recovery in quantum meruit is the reasonable value of the services rendered provided they were of direct benefit to the defendant." [Citations.]' In other words, quantum meruit is equitable payment for services already rendered." (E. J. Franks Construction, Inc. v. Sahota (2014) 226 Cal.App.4th 1123, 1127–1128 [172 Cal.Rptr.3d 778], original italics, internal citations omitted.)
- " 'The common count is a general pleading which seeks recovery of money without specifying the nature of the claim . . . . Because of the uninformative character of the complaint, it has been held that the typical answer, a general denial, is sufficient to raise almost any kind of defense, including some which ordinarily require special pleading.' However, even where the plaintiff has pleaded in the form of a common count, the defendant must raise in the answer any new matter, that is, anything he or she relies on that is not put in issue by the plaintiff." (Title Ins. Co. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1992) 4 Cal.4th 715, 731 [14 Cal.Rptr.2d 822, 842 P.2d 121], internal citations and footnote omitted.)

- "To recover on a claim for the reasonable value of services under a quantum meruit theory, a plaintiff must establish both that he or she was acting pursuant to either an express or implied request for services from the defendant and that the services rendered were intended to and did benefit the defendant." (Ochs v. PacifiCare of California (2004) 115 Cal.App.4th 782, 794 [9 Cal.Rptr.3d 734], internal citation omitted.)
- "[W]here services have been rendered under a contract which is unenforceable because not in writing, an action generally will lie upon a common count for quantum meruit." (Iverson, Yoakum, Papiano & Hatch v. Berwald (1999) 76 Cal.App.4th 990, 996 [90 Cal.Rptr.2d 665].)
- "Although such an action is one at law, it is governed by principles of equity. It may be brought 'wherever one person has received money which belongs to another, and which "in equity and good conscience," or in other words, in justice and right, should be returned. . . . The plaintiff's right to recover is governed by principles of equity, although the action is one at law.' " (Mains v. City Title Ins. Co. (1949) 34 Cal.2d 580, 586 [212 P.2d 873], internal citations omitted.)
- " 'As Witkin states in his text, "[a] common count is proper whenever the plaintiff claims a sum of money due, either as an indebtedness in a sum certain, or for the reasonable value of services, goods, etc., furnished. It makes no difference in such a case that the proof shows the original transaction to be an express contract, a contract implied in fact, or a quasi-contract." ' A claim for money had and received can be based upon money paid by mistake, money paid pursuant to a void contract, or a performance by one party of an express contract." (Utility Audit Co., Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (2003) 112 Cal.App.4th 950, 958 [5 Cal.Rptr.3d 520], internal citations omitted.)
- "In the common law action of general assumpsit, it is customary to plead an indebtedness using 'common counts.' In California, it has long been settled the allegation of claims using common counts is good against special or general demurrers. The only essential allegations of a common count are '(1) the statement of indebtedness in a certain sum, (2) the consideration, i.e., goods sold, work done, etc., and (3) nonpayment.' " (Farmers Ins. Exchange v. Zerin (1997) 53 Cal.App.4th 445, 460 [61 Cal.Rptr.2d 707], internal citations omitted.)
- "A common count is not a specific cause of action, . . . rather, it is a simplified form of pleading normally used to aver the existence of various forms of monetary indebtedness, including that arising from an alleged duty to make restitution under an assumpsit theory. When a common count is used as an alternative way of seeking the same recovery demanded in a specific cause of action, and is based on the same facts, the common count is demurrable if the cause of action is demurrable." (McBride v. Boughton (2004) 123 Cal.App.4th 379, 394 [20 Cal.Rptr.3d 115], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

4 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Pleading, § 554

12 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 121, Common Counts, §§ 121.25, 121.55–121.58 (Matthew Bender)

4 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 43, Common Counts and Bills of Particulars, §§ 44.33, 44.40 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 9, Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions, §§ 9.02, 9.15, 9.32

372. Common Count: Open Book Account

A book account is a written record of the credits and debts between parties [to a contract/in a fiduciary relationship]. [The contract may be oral, in writing, or implied by the parties' words and conduct.] A book account is "open" if entries can be added to it from time to time.

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that there was an open book account in which financial transactions between the parties were recorded and that [name of defendant] owes [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it] money on the account. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of plaintiff] and [name of defendant] had financial transactions with each other;
2. That [name of plaintiff], in the regular course of business, kept [a written/an electronic] account of the debits and credits involved in the transactions;
3. That [name of defendant] owes [name of plaintiff] money on the account; and
4. The amount of money that [name of defendant] owes [name of plaintiff].

*New December 2005; Revised November 2019, May 2024

Directions for Use

The instructions in this series are not intended to cover all available common counts. Users may need to draft their own instructions or modify the CACI instructions to fit the circumstances of the case.

Include the second sentence in the opening paragraph if the account is based on a contract rather than a fiduciary relationship. It is the contract that may be oral or implied; the book account must be in writing. (See Code Civ. Proc., § 337a [book account must be kept in a reasonably permanent form]; Joslin v. Gertz (1957) 155 Cal.App.2d 62, 65–66 [317 P.2d 155] [book account is a detailed statement kept in a book].)

Do not give this instruction for a claim involving "consumer debt" incurred on or after July 1, 2024. (See Code Civ. Proc., § 337a(a), (b) [defining and excluding "consumer debt" from the definition of "book account"]; see also Code Civ. Proc., § 425.30 [exempting consumer debt from common counts].)

Sources and Authority

- "Book Account" and "Consumer Debt" for Book Accounts Defined. Code of Civil Procedure section 337a(a), (b).
- " 'A book account may be deemed to furnish the foundation for a suit in assumpsit . . . only when it contains a statement of the debits and credits of the transactions involved completely enough to supply evidence from which it can be reasonably determined what amount is due to the claimant.' . . . 'The term "account," . . . clearly requires the recording of sufficient information regarding the transaction involved in the suit, from which the debits and credits of the respective parties may be determined, so as to permit the striking of a balance to ascertain what sum, if any, is due to the claimant.' " (Robin v. Smith (1955) 132 Cal.App.2d 288, 291 [282 P.2d 135], internal citations omitted.)

- "A book account is defined . . . as 'a detailed statement, kept in a book, in the nature of debit and credit, arising out of contract or some fiduciary relation.' It is, of course, necessary for the book to show against whom the charges are made. It must also be made to appear in whose favor the charges run. This may be shown by the production of the book from the possession of the plaintiff and his identification of it as the book in which he kept the account between him and the debtor. An open book account may consist of a single entry reflecting the establishment of an account between the parties, and may contain charges alone if there are no credits to enter. Money loaned is the proper subject of an open book account. Of course a mere private memorandum does not constitute a book account." (Joslin, supra, 155 Cal.App.2d at pp. 65–66, internal citations omitted.)
- "A book account may furnish the basis for an action on a common count ' ". . . when it contains a statement of the debits and credits of the transactions involved completely enough to supply evidence from which it can be reasonably determined what amount is due to the claimant." ' A book account is described as 'open' when the debtor has made some payment on the account, leaving a balance due." (Interstate Group Administrators, Inc. v. Cravens, Dargan & Co. (1985) 174 Cal.App.3d 700, 708 [220 Cal.Rptr. 250], internal citations and footnote omitted.)
- "A book account is a detailed statement of debit/credit transactions kept by a creditor in the regular course of business, and in a reasonably permanent manner. In one sense, an open-book account is an account with one or more items unsettled. However, even if an account is technically settled, the parties may still have an open-book account, if they anticipate possible future transactions between them." (Reigelsperger v. Siller (2007) 40 Cal.4th 574, 579, fn. 5 [53 Cal.Rptr.3d 887, 150 P.3d 764], original italics, internal citation omitted.)
- "[T]he most important characteristic of a suit brought to recover a sum owing on a book account is that the amount owed is determined by computing all of the credits and debits entered in the book account." (Interstate Group Administrators, Inc., supra, 174 Cal.App.3d at p. 708.)
- "It is apparent that the mere entry of dates and payments of certain sums in the credit column of a ledger or cash book under the name of a particular individual, without further explanation regarding the transaction to which they apply, may not be deemed to constitute a 'book account' upon which an action in assumpsit may be founded." (Tillson v. Peters (1940) 41 Cal.App.2d 671, 679 [107 P.2d 434].)

- "The law does not prescribe any standard of bookkeeping practice which all must follow, regardless of the nature of the business of which the record is kept. We think it makes no difference whether the account is kept in one book or several so long as they are permanent records, and constitute a system of bookkeeping as distinguished from mere private memoranda." (Egan v. Bishop (1935) 8 Cal.App.2d 119, 122 [47 P.2d 500].)
- " 'The common count is a general pleading which seeks recovery of money without specifying the nature of the claim. Because of the uninformative character of the complaint, it has been held that the typical answer, a general denial, is sufficient to raise almost any kind of defense, including some which ordinarily require special pleading.' However, even where the plaintiff has pleaded in the form of a common count, the defendant must raise in the answer any new matter, that is, anything he or she relies on that is not put in issue by the plaintiff." (Title Ins. Co. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1992) 4 Cal.4th 715, 731 [14 Cal.Rptr.2d 822, 842 P.2d 121], internal citations and footnote omitted.)
- "Although such an action is one at law, it is governed by principles of equity. It may be brought 'wherever one person has received money which belongs to another, and which "in equity and good conscience," or in other words, in justice and right, should be returned . . . . The plaintiff's right to recover is governed by principles of equity, although the action is one at law.' " (Mains v. City Title Ins. Co. (1949) 34 Cal.2d 580, 586 [212 P.2d 873], internal citations omitted.)
- "[S]ince the basic premise for pleading a common count . . . is that the person is thereby 'waiving the tort and suing in assumpsit,' any tort damages are out. Likewise excluded are damages for a breach of an express contract. The relief is something in the nature of a constructive trust and . . . 'one cannot be held to be a constructive trustee of something he had not acquired.' One must have acquired some money which in equity and good conscience belongs to the plaintiff or the defendant must be under a contract obligation with nothing remaining to be performed except the payment of a sum certain in money." (Zumbrun v. University of Southern California (1972) 25 Cal.App.3d 1, 14–15 [101 Cal.Rptr. 499], internal citations omitted.)
- " 'As Witkin states in his text, "[a] common count is proper whenever the plaintiff claims a sum of money due, either as an indebtedness in a sum certain, or for the reasonable value of services, goods, etc., furnished. It makes no difference in such a case that the proof shows the original transaction to be an express contract, a contract implied in fact, or a quasi-contract." ' A claim for money had and received can be based upon money paid by mistake, money paid pursuant to a void contract, or a performance by one party of an express contract." (Utility Audit Co., Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (2003) 112 Cal.App.4th 950, 958 [5 Cal.Rptr.3d 520], internal citations omitted.)
- "In the common law action of general assumpsit, it is customary to plead an indebtedness using 'common counts.' In California, it has long been settled the allegation of claims using common counts is good against special or general demurrers. The only essential allegations of a common count are '(1) the statement of indebtedness in a certain sum, (2) the consideration, i.e., goods sold, work done, etc., and (3) nonpayment.' " (Farmers Ins. Exchange v. Zerin (1997) 53 Cal.App.4th 445, 460 [61 Cal.Rptr.2d 707], internal citations omitted.)

- "A common count is not a specific cause of action, . . . rather, it is a simplified form of pleading normally used to aver the existence of various forms of monetary indebtedness, including that arising from an alleged duty to make restitution under an assumpsit theory. When a common count is used as an alternative way of seeking the same recovery demanded in a specific cause of action, and is based on the same facts, the common count is demurrable if the cause of action is demurrable." (McBride v. Boughton (2004) 123 Cal.App.4th 379, 394 [20 Cal.Rptr.3d 115], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

4 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Pleading, §§ 561, 565

1 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 8, Accounts Stated and Open Accounts, §§ 8.20, 8.47 (Matthew Bender)

4 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 43, Common Counts and Bills of Particulars, § 43.20 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 9, Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions, 9.02, 9.15, 9.32

373. Common Count: Account Stated

An account stated is an agreement between the parties, based on prior transactions between them establishing a debtor-creditor relationship, that a particular amount is due and owing from the debtor to the creditor. The agreement may be oral, in writing, or implied from the parties' words and conduct.

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] owes [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it] money on an account stated. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] owed [name of plaintiff] money from previous financial transactions;
2. That [name of plaintiff] and [name of defendant], by words or conduct, agreed that the amount that [name of plaintiff] claimed to be due from [name of defendant] was the correct amount owed;
3. That [name of defendant], by words or conduct, promised to pay the stated amount to [name of plaintiff];
4. That [name of defendant] has not paid [name of plaintiff] [any/all] of the amount owed under this account; and
5. The amount of money [name of defendant] owes [name of plaintiff].

*New December 2005; Revised November 2019, November 2024

Directions for Use

Do not give this instruction for a claim involving "consumer debt" incurred on or after July 1, 2024. (See Code Civ. Proc., § 425.30 [exempting "consumer debt" from "common counts"].)

Sources and Authority

- " 'An account stated is an agreement, based on prior transactions between the parties, that the items of an account are true and that the balance struck is due and owing. [Citation.] To be an account stated, "it must appear that at the time of the statement an indebtedness from one party to the other existed, that a balance was then struck and agreed to be the correct sum owing from the debtor to the creditor, and that the debtor expressly or impliedly promised to pay to the creditor the amount thus determined to be owing." [Citation.]' " (Leighton v. Forster (2017) 8 Cal.App.5th 467, 491 [213 Cal.Rptr.3d 899].)
- "The essential elements of an account stated are: (1) previous transactions between the parties establishing the relationship of debtor and creditor; (2) an agreement between the parties, express or implied, on the amount due from the debtor to the creditor; (3) a promise by the debtor, express or implied, to pay the amount due." (Zinn v. Fred R. Bright Co. (1969) 271 Cal.App.2d 597, 600 [76 Cal.Rptr. 663], internal citations omitted.)

- "The agreement of the parties necessary to establish an account stated need not be express and frequently is implied from the circumstances. In the usual situation, it comes about by the creditor rendering a statement of the account to the debtor. If the debtor fails to object to the statement within a reasonable time, the law implies his agreement that the account is correct as rendered." (Zinn, supra, 271 Cal.App.2d at p. 600, internal citations omitted.)
- "An account stated is an agreement, based on the prior transactions between the parties, that the items of the account are true and that the balance struck is due and owing from one party to another. When the account is assented to, ' "it becomes a new contract. An action on it is not founded upon the original items, but upon the balance agreed to by the parties. . . ." Inquiry may not be had into those matters at all. It is upon the new contract by and under which the parties have adjusted their differences and reached an agreement.' " (Gleason v. Klamer (1980) 103 Cal.App.3d 782, 786–787 [163 Cal.Rptr. 483], internal citations omitted.)
- "To be an account stated, 'it must appear that at the time of the statement an indebtedness from one party to the other existed, that a balance was then struck and agreed to be the correct sum owing from the debtor to the creditor, and that the debtor expressly or impliedly promised to pay to the creditor the amount thus determined to be owing.' The agreement necessary to establish an account stated need not be express and is frequently implied from the circumstances. When a statement is rendered to a debtor and no reply is made in a reasonable time, the law implies an agreement that the account is correct as rendered. Actions on accounts stated frequently arise from a series of transactions which also constitute an open book account. However, an account stated may be found in a variety of commercial situations. The acknowledgement of a debt consisting of a single item may form the basis of a stated account. The key element in every context is agreement on the final balance due." (Maggio, Inc. v. Neal (1987) 196 Cal.App.3d 745, 752–753 [241 Cal.Rptr. 883], internal citations omitted.)
- "An account stated need not be submitted by the creditor to the debtor. A statement expressing the debtor's assent and acknowledging the agreed amount of the debt to the creditor equally establishes an account stated." (Truestone, Inc. v. Simi West Industrial Park II (1984) 163 Cal.App.3d 715, 726 [209 Cal.Rptr. 757], internal citations omitted.)
- " 'The common count is a general pleading which seeks recovery of money without specifying the nature of the claim . . . . Because of the uninformative character of the complaint, it has been held that the typical answer, a general denial, is sufficient to raise almost any kind of defense, including some which ordinarily require special pleading.' However, even where the plaintiff has pleaded in the form of a common count, the defendant must raise in the answer any new matter, that is, anything he or she relies on that is not put in issue by the plaintiff." (Title Ins. Co. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1992) 4 Cal.4th 715, 731 [14 Cal.Rptr.2d 822, 842 P.2d 121], internal citations and footnote omitted.)

- "The account stated may be attacked only by proof of 'fraud, duress, mistake, or other grounds cognizable in equity for the avoidance of an instrument.' The defendant 'will not be heard to answer when action is brought upon the account stated that the claim or demand was unjust, or invalid.' " (Gleason, supra, 103 Cal.App.3d at p. 787, internal citations omitted.)
- "An account stated need not cover all the dealings or claims between the parties. There may be a partial settlement and account stated as to some of the transactions." (Gleason, supra, 103 Cal.App.3d at p. 790, internal citation omitted.)
- "In the common law action of general assumpsit, it is customary to plead an indebtedness using 'common counts.' In California, it has long been settled the allegation of claims using common counts is good against special or general demurrers. The only essential allegations of a common count are '(1) the statement of indebtedness in a certain sum, (2) the consideration, i.e., goods sold, work done, etc., and (3) nonpayment.' " (Farmers Ins. Exchange v. Zerin (1997) 53 Cal.App.4th 445, 460 [61 Cal.Rptr.2d 707], internal citations omitted.)
- "A common count is not a specific cause of action, . . . rather, it is a simplified form of pleading normally used to aver the existence of various forms of monetary indebtedness, including that arising from an alleged duty to make restitution under an assumpsit theory. When a common count is used as an alternative way of seeking the same recovery demanded in a specific cause of action, and is based on the same facts, the common count is demurrable if the cause of action is demurrable." (McBride v. Boughton (2004) 123 Cal.App.4th 379, 394 [20 Cal.Rptr.3d 115], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

4 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Pleading, § 561

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, §§ 1003, 1004

1 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 8, Accounts Stated and Open Accounts, §§ 8.10, 8.40–8.46 (Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 9, Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions, §§ 9.02, 9.15, 9.32

374. Common Count: Mistaken Receipt

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] owes [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it] money [that was paid/for goods that were received] by mistake. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of plaintiff] [paid [name of defendant] money/sent goods to [name of defendant]] by mistake;
2. That [name of defendant] did not have a right to [that money/the goods];
3. That [name of plaintiff] has asked [name of defendant] to return the [money/goods];
4. That [name of defendant] has not returned the [money/goods] to [name of plaintiff]; and
5. The amount of money that [name of defendant] owes [name of plaintiff].

*New December 2005; Revised November 2024

Directions for Use

Do not give this instruction for a claim involving "consumer debt" incurred on or after July 1, 2024. (See Code Civ. Proc., § 425.30 [exempting "consumer debt" from "common counts"].)

Sources and Authority

- " 'As Witkin states in his text, "[a] common count is proper whenever the plaintiff claims a sum of money due, either as an indebtedness in a sum certain, or for the reasonable value of services, goods, etc., furnished. It makes no difference in such a case that the proof shows the original transaction to be an express contract, a contract implied in fact, or a quasi-contract." ' A claim for money had and received can be based upon money paid by mistake, money paid pursuant to a void contract, or a performance by one party of an express contract." (Utility Audit Co., Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (2003) 112 Cal.App.4th 950, 958 [5 Cal.Rptr.3d 520], internal citations omitted.)
- "It is well settled that no contract is necessary to support an action for money had and received other than the implied contract which results by operation of law where one person receives the money of another which he has no right, conscientiously, to retain. Under such circumstances the law will imply a promise to return the money. The action is in the nature of an equitable one and is based on the fact that the defendant has money which, in equity and good conscience, he ought to pay to the plaintiffs. Such an action will lie where the money is paid under a void agreement, where it is obtained by fraud or where it was paid by a mistake of fact." (Stratton v. Hanning (1956) 139 Cal.App.2d 723, 727 [294 P.2d 66], internal citations omitted.)

- "Money paid upon a mistake of fact may be recovered under the common count of money had and received. The plaintiff, however negligent he may have been, may recover if his conduct has not altered the position of the defendant to his detriment." (Thresher v. Lopez (1921) 52 Cal.App. 219, 220 [198 P. 419], internal citations omitted.)
- " 'The common count is a general pleading which seeks recovery of money without specifying the nature of the claim . . . . Because of the uninformative character of the complaint, it has been held that the typical answer, a general denial, is sufficient to raise almost any kind of defense, including some which ordinarily require special pleading.' However, even where the plaintiff has pleaded in the form of a common count, the defendant must raise in the answer any new matter, that is, anything he or she relies on that is not put in issue by the plaintiff." (Title Ins. Co. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1992) 4 Cal.4th 715, 731 [14 Cal.Rptr.2d 822, 842 P.2d 121], internal citations and footnote omitted.)
- "Although such an action is one at law, it is governed by principles of equity. It may be brought 'wherever one person has received money which belongs to another, and which "in equity and good conscience," or in other words, in justice and right, should be returned. . . . The plaintiff's right to recover is governed by principles of equity, although the action is one at law.' " (Mains v. City Title Ins. Co. (1949) 34 Cal.2d 580, 586 [212 P.2d 873], internal citations omitted.)
- "In the common law action of general assumpsit, it is customary to plead an indebtedness using 'common counts.' In California, it has long been settled the allegation of claims using common counts is good against special or general demurrers. The only essential allegations of a common count are '(1) the statement of indebtedness in a certain sum, (2) the consideration, i.e., goods sold, work done, etc., and (3) nonpayment.' " (Farmers Ins. Exchange v. Zerin (1997) 53 Cal.App.4th 445, 460 [61 Cal.Rptr.2d 707], internal citations omitted.)
- "A common count is not a specific cause of action, . . . rather, it is a simplified form of pleading normally used to aver the existence of various forms of monetary indebtedness, including that arising from an alleged duty to make restitution under an assumpsit theory. When a common count is used as an alternative way of seeking the same recovery demanded in a specific cause of action, and is based on the same facts, the common count is demurrable if the cause of action is demurrable." (McBride v. Boughton (2004) 123 Cal.App.4th 379, 394 [20 Cal.Rptr.3d 115], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

Restatement First of Restitution, section 28

4 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Pleading, § 561

12 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 121, Common Counts, § 121.25

(Matthew Bender)

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 9, Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions, §§ 9.02, 9.15, 9.32

375. Restitution From Transferee Based on Quasi-Contract or Unjust Enrichment

---

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] must restore to [name of plaintiff] [specify, e.g., money] that [name of defendant] received from [name of third party], but that really should belong to [name of plaintiff]. [Name of plaintiff] is entitled to restitution if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] proves that [name of defendant] knew or had reason to know that [name of third party] [specify act constituting unjust enrichment, e.g., embezzled money from [name of plaintiff]].

New November 2019

Directions for Use

This instruction is for use in a claim for restitution based on the doctrines of quasi-contract and unjust enrichment. Under quasi-contract, one is entitled to restitution of one's money or property that a third party has misappropriated and transferred to the defendant if the defendant had reason to believe that the thing received had been unlawfully taken from the plaintiff by the third party. (Welborne v. Ryman-Carroll Foundation (2018) 22 Cal.App.5th 719, 725–726 [231 Cal.Rptr.3d 806].) The elements of a claim for unjust enrichment are receipt of a benefit and unjust retention of the benefit at the expense of another. (Professional Tax Appeal v. Kennedy-Wilson Holdings, Inc. (2018) 29 Cal.App.5th 230, 238–242 [239 Cal.Rptr.3d 908].) Unlawfulness is not required.

Sources and Authority

- " ' "[Quasi-contract] is an obligation . . . created by the law without regard to the intention of the parties, and is designed to restore the aggrieved party to [its] former position by return of the thing or its equivalent in money. [Citations.]" ' The doctrine focuses on equitable principles; its key phrase is ' "unjust enrichment," ' which is used to identify the 'transfer of money or other valuable assets to an individual or a company that is not entitled to them.' " (Welborne, supra, 22 Cal.App.5th at p. 725, original italics, internal citations omitted.)
- "Under the law of restitution, an individual may be required to make restitution if he is unjustly enriched at the expense of another. A person is enriched if he receives a benefit at another's expense. The term 'benefit' 'denotes any form of advantage.' Thus, a benefit is conferred not only when one adds to the property of another, but also when one saves the other from expense or loss. Even when a person has received a benefit from another, he is required to make restitution 'only if the circumstances of its receipt or retention are such that, as between the two persons, it is unjust for him to retain it.' " (Ghirardo v. Antonioli (1996) 14 Cal.4th 39, 51 [57 Cal.Rptr.2d 687, 924 P.2d 996], internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]he recipient of money who has reason to believe that the funds he or she receives were stolen may be liable for restitution." (Welborne, supra, 22 Cal.App.5th at p. 726, original italics.)

- "A transferee who would be under a duty of restitution if he had knowledge of pertinent facts, is under such duty if, at the time of the transfer, he suspected their existence." (Welborne, supra, 22 Cal.App.5th at p. 726 [quoting Restatement of Restitution, § 10].)
- "[Defendant] also errs in its claim that this matter may not be tried to a jury. The gist of an action in which a party seeks only money damages is legal in nature even though equitable principles are to be applied. As appellant argues, this is an express holding of Lectrodryer v. SeoulBank (2000) 77 Cal.App.4th 723, 728 [91 Cal.Rptr.2d 881]." (Welborne, supra, 22 Cal.App.5th at p. 728, fn. 8, internal citation omitted.)
- "[U]njust enrichment is not a cause of action. Rather, it is a general principle underlying various doctrines and remedies, including quasi-contract." (Jogani v. Superior Court (2008) 165 Cal.App.4th 901, 911 [81 Cal.Rptr.3d 503], internal citation omitted.)
- "Unlike a claim for damages based on breach of a legal duty, appellants' unjust enrichment claim is grounded in equitable principles of restitution. An individual is required to make restitution when he or she has been unjustly enriched at the expense of another. A person is enriched if he or she receives a benefit at another's expense. The term 'benefit' connotes any type of advantage. [¶] Appellants have stated a valid cause of action for unjust enrichment based on [defendant]'s unjustified charging and retention of excessive fees which the title companies passed through to them." (Hirsch v. Bank of America (2003) 107 Cal.App.4th 708, 721–722 [132 Cal.Rptr.2d 220], original italics, internal citations omitted.)
- "Although some California courts have suggested the existence of a separate cause of action for unjust enrichment, this court has recently held that ' "[t]here is no cause of action in California for unjust enrichment." [Citations.] Unjust enrichment is synonymous with restitution. [Citation.]' " (Levine v. Blue Shield of California (2010) 189 Cal.App.4th 1117, 1138 [117 Cal.Rptr.3d 262], internal citation omitted.)
- "California law on unjust enrichment is not narrowly and rigidly limited to quasi-contract principles, as defendants contend. '[T]he doctrine also recognizes an obligation imposed by law regardless of the intent of the parties. In these instances there need be no relationship that gives substance to an implied intent basic to the "contract" concept, rather the obligation is imposed because good conscience dictates that under the circumstances the person benefited should make reimbursement.' " (Professional Tax Appeal, supra, 29 Cal.App.5th at p. 240, original italics.)
- "Finally, plaintiff's complaint also stated facts that, if proven, are sufficient to defeat a claim that defendants were bona fide purchasers without notice of plaintiff's claim. '[A] bona fide purchaser is generally not required to make restitution.' But, '[a] transferee with knowledge of the circumstances surrounding the unjust enrichment may be obligated to make restitution.' [¶] For a defendant to be ' "without notice" ' means to be 'without notice of the facts giving rise to the restitution claim.' 'A person has notice of a fact if the person either knows the fact or has reason to know it. [¶] . . . A person has reason to know a fact if [¶] (a) the person has received an effective notification of the fact; [¶] (b) knowledge of the fact is imputed to the person by statute . . . or by other law (including principles of agency); or [¶] (c) other facts known to the person would make it reasonable to infer the existence of the fact, or prudent to conduct further inquiry that would reveal it.' " (Professional Tax Appeal, supra, 29 Cal.App.5th at p. 241, internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts, § 1050 et seq.

12 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 121, Common Counts, § 121.25 (Matthew Bender)

376–379. Reserved for Future Use

380. Agreement Formalized by Electronic Means—Uniform Electronic Transactions Act (Civ. Code, § 1633.1 et seq.)

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that the parties entered into a valid contract in which [some of] the required terms were supplied by [specify electronic means, e.g., e-mail messages]. If the parties agree, they may form a binding contract using an electronic record. An "electronic record" is one created, generated, sent, communicated, received, or stored by electronic means. [E.g., E-Mail] is an electronic record.

[*Name of plaintiff] must prove, based on the context and surrounding circumstances, including the conduct of the parties, that the parties agreed to use [e.g., e-mail] to formalize their agreement.

[[*Name of plaintiff] must have sent the contract documents to [name of defendant] in an electronic record capable of retention by [name of defendant] at the time of receipt. An electronic record is not capable of retention by the recipient if the sender or its information processing system limits or prohibits the ability of the recipient to print or store it.]

New December 2012; Revised December 2016

Directions for Use

This instruction is for use if the plaintiff is relying on the Uniform Electronic Transactions Act (UETA, Civ. Code, § 1633.1 et seq.) to prove contract formation. If there are other contested issues as to whether a contract was formed, also give CACI No. 303, Breach of Contract—Essential Factual Elements.

The first paragraph asserts that electronic means were used to supply some or all of the essential elements of the contract. Give the third paragraph if a law requires a person to provide, send, or deliver information in writing to another person. (See Civ. Code, § 1633.8(a).)

The most likely jury issue is whether the parties agreed to rely on electronic records to finalize their agreement. Whether the parties agree to conduct a transaction by electronic means is determined from the context and surrounding circumstances, including the parties' conduct. (See Civ. Code, § 1633.5(b).)

The UETA does not specify any particular transmissions that meet the definition of "electronic record," such as e-mail or fax. (See Civ. Code, § 1633.2(g).) Nevertheless, there would seem to be little doubt that e-mail and fax meet the definition. The parties will probably stipulate accordingly, or the court may find that the particular transmission at issue meets the definition as a matter of law.

If a law requires a signature, an electronic signature satisfies the law. (Civ. Code, § 1633.7(d).) The UETA defines an electronic signature as an electronic sound, symbol, or process attached to or logically associated with an electronic record and executed or adopted by a person with the intent to sign the electronic record. (Civ. Code, § 1633.2(h); see Gov. Code, § 16.5(d) (digital signature).) The validity of an electronic signature under this definition would most likely be a question of law for the court. If there is an issue of fact with regard to the parties' intent to use electronic signatures, this instruction will need to be modified accordingly.

Sources and Authority

- "Electronic Record" Defined Under UETA. Civil Code section 1633.2(g).
- "Electronic Signature" Defined Under UETA. Civil Code section 1633.2(h).
- Agreement to Conduct Transaction by Electronic Means. Civil Code section 1633.5(b).
- Enforceability of Electronic Transactions. Civil Code section 1633.7.
- Providing Required Information by Electronic Means. Civil Code section 1633.8(a).
- Attributing Electronic Record or Signature to Person. Civil Code section 1633.9.
- " 'Whether the parties agree to conduct a transaction by electronic means is determined from the context and surrounding circumstances, including the parties' conduct. . . . 'The absence of an explicit agreement to conduct the transaction by electronic means is not determinative; however, it is a relevant factor to consider." (J.B.B. Investment Partners, Ltd. v. Fair (2014) 232 Cal.App.4th 974, 989 [182 Cal.Rptr.3d 154].)
- "Under Civil Code section 1633.7, enacted in 1999 as part of the Uniform Electronic Transactions Act, an electronic signature has the same legal effect as a handwritten signature." (Ruiz v. Moss Bros. Auto Group, Inc. (2014) 232 Cal.App.4th 836, 843 [181 Cal.Rptr.3d 781], internal citations omitted.)
- "Civil Code section 1633.9 addresses how a proponent of an electronic signature may authenticate the signature—that is, show the signature is, in fact, the signature of the person the proponent claims it is." (Ruiz, supra, 232 Cal.App.4th at p. 843.)
- "We agree that a printed name or some other symbol might, under specific circumstances, be a signature under UETA . . . ." (J.B.B. Investment Partners, Ltd., supra, 232 Cal.App.4th at p. 988.)
- "The trial court's analysis was incomplete. Attributing the name on an e-mail to a particular person and determining that the printed name is '[t]he act of [this] person' is a necessary prerequisite but is insufficient, by itself, to establish that it is an 'electronic signature.' . . . UETA defines the term 'electronic signature.' Subdivision (h) of section 1633.2 states that ' "[e]lectronic signature" means an electronic sound, symbol, or process attached to or logically associated with an electronic record and executed or adopted by a person with the intent to sign the electronic record.' (Italics added; see CACI No. 380 [party suing to enforce an agreement formalized by electronic means must prove 'based on the context and surrounding circumstances, including the conduct of the parties, that the parties agreed to use [e.g., e-mail] to formalize their agreement . . .]' " (J.B.B. Investment Partners, Ltd., supra, 232 Cal.App.4th at pp. 988–989, original italics.)

- "In the face of [plaintiff]'s failure to recall electronically signing the 2011 agreement, the fact the 2011 agreement had an electronic signature on it in the name of [plaintiff], and a date and time stamp for the signature, was insufficient to support a finding that the electronic signature was, in fact, 'the act of' [plaintiff]." (Ruiz, supra, 232 Cal.App.4th at p. 844.)
- "[W]hether [defendant]'s printed name constituted an 'electronic signature' within the meaning of UETA or under the law of contract, are legal issues . . . ." (J.B.B. Investment Partners, Ltd., supra, 232 Cal.App.4th at p. 984.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Contracts § 11

1 Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 15, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract—Failure to Comply With Applicable Formalities, 15.32

13 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.26 (Matthew Bender)

27 California Legal Forms: Transaction Guide, Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.17 (Matthew Bender)

381–399. Reserved for Future Use

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of plaintiff] and [name of defendant] enter into a contract?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

[2. Did [name of plaintiff] do all, or substantially all, of the significant things that the contract required [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it] to do?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, [skip question 3 and] answer question 4. If you answered no, [answer question 3 if excuse is at issue/stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form].]

[3. Was [name of plaintiff] excused from having to do all, or substantially all, of the significant things that the contract required [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it] to do?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.]

[4. Did all the conditions that were required for [name of defendant]'s performance occur?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 4 is yes, [skip question 5 and] answer question 6. If you answered no, [answer question 5 if waiver or excuse is at issue/stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form].]

[5. Were the required conditions that did not occur [excused/waived]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 5 is yes, then answer question 6. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.]

6. [Did [name of defendant] fail to do something that the contract required [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it] to do?

_____ Yes _____ No]

[or]

[Did [name of defendant] do something that the contract prohibited [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it] from doing?

_____ Yes _____ No]

If your answer to [either option for] question 6 is yes, then answer question 7. If you answered no [to both options], stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

7. Was [name of plaintiff] harmed by [name of defendant]'s breach of contract?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 7 is yes, then answer question 8. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

8. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

[a. Past [economic] loss [including [insert descriptions of claimed damages]]: $_____]

[b. Future [economic] loss [including [insert descriptions of claimed damages]]: $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New April 2004; Revised December 2010, June 2011, June 2013, June 2015, May 2020, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 303, Breach of Contract—Essential Factual Elements. This form is intended for use in most contract disputes. If more specificity is desired, see verdict forms that follow.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

Optional questions 2 and 3 address acts that the plaintiff must have performed before the defendant's duty to perform is triggered. Include question 2 if the court has determined that the contract included dependent covenants, such that the failure of the plaintiff to perform some obligation would relieve the defendant of the obligation to perform. (See Brown v. Grimes (2011) 192 Cal.App.4th 265, 277–279 [120 Cal.Rptr.3d 893].) Include question 3 if the plaintiff claims that the plaintiff was excused from having to perform an otherwise required obligation.

Optional questions 4 and 5 address conditions precedent to the defendant's performance. Include question 4 if the occurrence of conditions for performance is at issue. (See CACI No. 322, Occurrence of Agreed Condition Precedent.) Include question 5 if the plaintiff alleges that conditions that did not occur were excused. The most common form of excuse is the defendant's waiver. (See CACI No. 323, Waiver of Condition Precedent; see also Restatement Second of Contracts, section 225, Comment b.) Waiver must be proved by clear and convincing evidence. (DRG/ Beverly Hills, Ltd. v. Chopstix Dim Sum Cafe & Takeout III, Ltd. (1994) 30 Cal.App.4th 54, 60 [35 Cal.Rptr.2d 515].)

Note that questions 4 and 5 address conditions precedent, not the defendant's nonperformance after the conditions have all occurred or been excused. The defendant's nonperformance is the first option for question 6. If the defendant alleges that its nonperformance was excused or waived by the plaintiff, an additional question on excuse or waiver should be included after question 6.

If the verdict form used combines other causes of action involving both economic and noneconomic damages, use "economic" in question 8.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize the damages listed in question 8. The breakdown is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

VF-301. Breach of Contract—Affirmative Defense—Unilateral Mistake of Fact

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Was [name of defendant] mistaken about [insert description of mistake]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Did [name of plaintiff] know that [name of defendant] was mistaken and use that mistake to take advantage of [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Was [name of defendant]'s mistake caused by [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] excessive carelessness?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is no, then answer question 4. If you answered yes, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. Would [name of defendant] have agreed to enter into the contract if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] had known about the mistake?

   _____ Yes _____ No

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New April 2004; Revised December 2010, May 2024

Directions for Use

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case. This form is not a stand-alone verdict form. It may be incorporated into VF-300, Breach of Contract, if the elements of the affirmative defense are at issue.

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 330, Affirmative Defense—Unilateral Mistake of Fact. The verdict forms do not address all available affirmative defenses. The parties may need to create their own verdict forms to fit the issues involved in the case.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

VF-302. Breach of Contract—Affirmative Defense—Duress

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of plaintiff] use a wrongful act or wrongful threat to pressure [name of defendant] into consenting to the contract?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Was [name of defendant] so afraid or intimidated by the wrongful act or wrongful threat that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] did not have the free will to refuse to consent to the contract?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Would [name of defendant] have consented to the contract without the wrongful act or wrongful threat?

   _____ Yes _____ No

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New April 2004; Revised December 2010, May 2024

Directions for Use

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case. This form is not a stand-alone verdict form. It may be incorporated into VF-300, Breach of Contract, if the elements of the affirmative defense are at issue.

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 332, Affirmative Defense—Duress. The verdict forms do not address all available affirmative defenses. The parties may need to create their own verdict forms to fit the issues involved in the case.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

VF-303. Breach of Contract—Contract Formation at Issue

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Were the contract terms clear enough so that the parties could understand what each was required to do?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Did the parties agree to give each other something of value?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Did the parties agree to the terms of the contract?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

[4. Did [*name of plaintiff] do all, or substantially all, of the significant things that the contract required [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it] to do?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 4 is yes, [skip question 5 and] answer question 6. If you answered no, [answer question 5 if excuse is at issue/stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date the form].]

[5. Was [*name of plaintiff] excused from having to do all, or substantially all, of the significant things that the contract required [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it] to do?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 5 is yes, then answer question 6. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.]

[6. Did all the conditions that were required for [*name of defendant]'s performance occur?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 6 is yes, [skip question 7 and] answer question 8. If you answered no, [answer question 7 if excuse_or waiver is at issue/stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.]

[7. Were the required conditions that did not occur [excused/waived]?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 7 is yes, then answer question 8. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.]

8. [Did [*name of defendant] fail to do something that the contract required [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it] to do?

_____ Yes _____ No]

[or]

[Did [*name of defendant] do something that the contract prohibited [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it] from doing?

_____ Yes _____ No]

If your answer to [either option for] question 8 is yes, then answer question 9. If you answered no [to both options], stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

9. Was [*name of plaintiff] harmed by [name of defendant]'s breach of contract?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 9 is yes, then answer question 10. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

10. What are [*name of plaintiff]'s damages?

[a. Past [economic] loss [including] [*insert descriptions of claimed damages]:

$_____]

[b. Future [economic] loss [including] [*insert descriptions of claimed damages]:]

$_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New October 2004; Revised December 2010, June 2015, May 2020, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 302, Contract Formation—Essential Factual Elements, and CACI No. 303, Breach of Contract—Essential Factual Elements. The elements concerning the parties' legal capacity and legal purpose will likely not be issues for the jury. If the jury is needed to make a factual determination regarding these issues, appropriate questions may be added to this verdict form.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

Optional questions 4 and 5 address acts that the plaintiff must have performed before the defendant's duty to perform is triggered. Include question 4 if the court has determined that the contract included dependent covenants, such that the failure of the plaintiff to perform some obligation would relieve the defendant of the obligation to perform. (See Brown v. Grimes (2011) 192 Cal.App.4th 265, 277–279 [120 Cal.Rptr.3d 893].) Include question 5 if the plaintiff claims that the plaintiff was excused from having to perform an otherwise required obligation.

Optional questions 6 and 7 address conditions precedent to the defendant's performance. Include question 6 if the occurrence of conditions for performance is at issue. (See CACI No. 322, Occurrence of Agreed Condition Precedent.) Include question 7 if the plaintiff alleges that conditions that did not occur were excused. The most common form of excuse is the defendant's waiver. (See CACI No. 323, Waiver of Condition Precedent; see also Restatement Second of Contracts, section 225, Comment b.) Waiver must be proved by clear and convincing evidence. (DRG/ Beverly Hills, Ltd. v. Chopstix Dim Sum Cafe & Takeout III, Ltd. (1994) 30 Cal.App.4th 54, 60 [35 Cal.Rptr.2d 515].)

Note that questions 6 and 7 address conditions precedent, not the defendant's nonperformance after the conditions have all occurred or been excused. The defendant's nonperformance is the first option for question 8. If the defendant alleges that its nonperformance was excused or waived by the plaintiff, an additional question on excuse on waiver should be included after question 8.

If the verdict form used combines other causes of action involving both economic and noneconomic damages, use "economic" in question 10.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 10. The breakdown is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

VF-304. Breach of Implied Covenant of Good Faith and Fair Dealing

---

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of plaintiff] and [name of defendant] enter into a contract?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

[2. Did [name of plaintiff] do all, or substantially all, of the significant things that the contract required [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it] to do?

_____ Yes _____ No]

If your answer to question 2 is yes, [skip question 3 and] answer question 4. If you answered no, [answer question 3 if excuse is at issue/stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form].]

[3. Was [name of plaintiff] excused from having to do all, or substantially all, of the significant things that the contract required [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it] to do?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.]

[4. Did all the conditions that were required for [name of defendant]'s performance occur?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 4 is yes, [skip question 5 and] answer question 6. If you answered no, [answer question 5 if waiver or excuse is at issue/stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form].]

[5. Were the required conditions that did not occur [excused/waived]?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 5 is yes, then answer question 6. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.]

6. Did [name of defendant] [specify conduct that plaintiff claims prevented plaintiff from receiving the benefits under the contract]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 6 is yes, then answer question 7. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

7. In [insert specified conduct from question 6], did [name of defendant] fail to act fairly and in good faith?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 7 is yes, then answer question 8. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

8. Was [name of plaintiff] harmed by [name of defendant]'s conduct?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 8 is yes, then answer question 9. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

9. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past [economic] loss [including [insert descriptions of claimed damages]]:

   $_____]

   [b. Future [economic] loss [including [insert descriptions of claimed damages]]:

   $_____]

   TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New June 2014; Revised June 2015, May 2024, November 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 325, Breach of Implied Covenant of Good Faith and Fair Dealing—Essential Factual Elements.

The special verdict forms in this series are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

Optional questions 2 and 3 address acts that the plaintiff must have performed before the defendant's duty to perform is triggered. Include question 2 if the court has determined that the contract included dependent covenants, such that the failure of the plaintiff to perform some obligation would relieve the defendant of the obligation to perform. (See Brown v. Grimes (2011) 192 Cal.App.4th 265, 277–279 [120 Cal.Rptr.3d 893].) Include question 3 if the plaintiff claims that he or she was excused from having to perform an otherwise required obligation.

Optional questions 4 and 5 address conditions precedent to the defendant's performance. Include question 4 if the occurrence of conditions for performance is at issue. (See CACI No. 322, Occurrence of Agreed Condition Precedent.) Include question 5 if the plaintiff alleges that conditions that did not occur were excused. The most common form of excuse is the defendant's waiver. (See CACI No. 323, Waiver of Condition Precedent.) Waiver must be proved by clear and convincing evidence. (DRG/Beverly Hills, Ltd. v. Chopstix Dim Sum Cafe & Takeout III, Ltd. (1994) 30 Cal.App.4th 54, 60 [35 Cal.Rptr.2d 515].) Note that questions 4 and 5 address conditions precedent, not the defendant's nonperformance after the conditions have all occurred or been excused.

If the verdict form used combines other causes of action involving both economic and noneconomic damages, use "economic" in question 9.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize the damages listed in question 9. The breakdown is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories. If counts for both breach of express contractual terms and breach of the implied covenant are alleged, this verdict form may be combined with CACI No. VF-300, Breach of Contract. Use VF-3920 to direct the jury to separately address the damages awarded on each count and to avoid the jury's awarding the same damages on both counts. (See Careau & Co. v. Security Pacific Business Credit, Inc. (1990) 222 Cal.App.3d 1371, 1395 [272 Cal.Rptr. 387].)

VF-305–VF-399. Reserved for Future Use

NEGLIGENCE

400. Negligence—Essential Factual Elements

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was harmed by [name of defendant]'s negligence. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] was negligent;
2. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
3. That [name of defendant]'s negligence was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New September 2003; Revised February 2005, June 2005, December 2007, December 2011

Directions for Use

In medical malpractice or professional negligence cases, the word "medical" or "professional" should be added before the word "negligence" in the first paragraph.

The word "harm" is used throughout these instructions, instead of terms like "loss," "injury," and "damage," because "harm" is all-purpose and suffices in their place.

Sources and Authority

- General Duty to Exercise Due Care. Civil Code section 1714(a).
- "Although it is true that some exceptions have been made to the general principle that a person is liable for injuries caused by his failure to exercise reasonable care in the circumstances, it is clear that in the absence of statutory provision declaring an exception to the fundamental principle enunciated by section 1714 of the Civil Code, no such exception should be made unless clearly supported by public policy." (Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal.2d 108, 112 [70 Cal.Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561].)
- " 'The elements of a cause of action for negligence are well established. They are "(a) a legal duty to use due care; (b) a breach of such legal duty; [and] (c) the breach as the proximate or legal cause of the resulting injury." ' " (Ladd v. County of San Mateo (1996) 12 Cal.4th 913, 917 [50 Cal.Rptr.2d 309, 911 P.2d 496].)
- "Breach is the failure to meet the standard of care." (Coyle v. Historic Mission Inn Corp. (2018) 24 Cal.App.5th 627, 643 [234 Cal.Rptr.3d 330].)
- "The element of causation requires there to be a connection between the defendant's breach and the plaintiff's injury." (Coyle, supra, 24 Cal.App.5th at p. 645.)
- " 'In most cases, courts have fixed no standard of care for tort liability more precise than that of a reasonably prudent person under like circumstances.' This is because '[e]ach case presents different conditions and situations. What would be ordinary care in one case might be negligence in another.' " (Coyle, supra, 24 Cal.App.5th at pp. 639–640, internal citation omitted.)

- " ' "[I]t is the further function of the court to determine and formulate the standard of conduct to which the duty requires the defendant to conform." [Citation.] [¶] The formulation of the standard of care is a question of law for the court. [Citations.] Once the court has formulated the standard, its application to the facts of the case is a task for the trier of fact if reasonable minds might differ as to whether the defendant's conduct has conformed to the standard. [Citations.]' " (Regents of University of California v. Superior Court (2018) 29 Cal.App.5th 890, 902–903 [240 Cal.Rptr.3d 675].)
- "The first element, duty, 'may be imposed by law, be assumed by the defendant, or exist by virtue of a special relationship.' " (Doe v. United States Youth Soccer Assn., Inc. (2017) 8 Cal.App.5th 1118, 1128 [214 Cal.Rptr.3d 552].)
- "[T]he existence of a duty is a question of law for the court." (Ky. Fried Chicken of Cal. v. Superior Court (1997) 14 Cal.4th 814, 819 [59 Cal.Rptr.2d 756, 927 P.2d 1260].)
- "In the Rowland [Rowland, supra, 69 Cal.2d at p. 113] decision, this court identified several considerations that, when balanced together, may justify a departure from the fundamental principle embodied in Civil Code section 1714: 'the foreseeability of harm to the plaintiff, the degree of certainty that the plaintiff suffered injury, the closeness of the connection between the defendant's conduct and the injury suffered, the moral blame attached to the defendant's conduct, the policy of preventing future harm, the extent of the burden to the defendant and consequences to the community of imposing a duty to exercise care with resulting liability for breach, and the availability, cost, and prevalence of insurance for the risk involved.' As we have also explained, however, in the absence of a statutory provision establishing an exception to the general rule of Civil Code section 1714, courts should create one only where 'clearly supported by public policy.' " (Cabral v. Ralphs Grocery Co. (2011) 51 Cal.4th 764, 771 [122 Cal.Rptr.3d 313, 248 P.3d 1170], internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]he analysis of foreseeability for purposes of assessing the existence or scope of a duty is different, and more general, than it is for assessing whether any such duty was breached or whether a breach caused a plaintiff's injuries. '[I]n analyzing duty, the court's task " ' "is not to decide whether a particular plaintiff's injury was reasonably foreseeable in light of a particular defendant's conduct, but rather to evaluate more generally whether the category of negligent conduct at issue is sufficiently likely to result in the kind of harm experienced that liability may appropriately be imposed on the negligent party." ' " 'The jury, by contrast, considers "foreseeability" in two more focused, fact-specific settings. First, the jury may consider the likelihood or foreseeability of injury in determining whether, in fact, the particular defendant's conduct was negligent in the first place. Second, foreseeability may be relevant to the jury's determination of whether the defendant's negligence was a proximate or legal cause of the plaintiff's injury.' " (Staats v. Vintner's Golf Club, LLC (2018) 25 Cal.App.5th 826, 837 [236 Cal.Rptr.3d 236], original italics, internal citation omitted.)

- "A defendant does not owe a legal duty to protect against third party conduct, unless there exists a special relationship between the defendant and the plaintiff. In that circumstance, '[i]n addition to the special relationship . . . , there must also be evidence showing facts from which the trier of fact could reasonably infer that the [defendant] had prior actual knowledge, and thus must have known, of the offender's assaultive propensities. [Citation.]' In short, the third party's misconduct must be foreseeable to the defendant." (Doe v. Los Angeles County Dept. of Children & Family Services (2019) 37 Cal.App.5th 675, 682–683 [250 Cal.Rptr.3d 62], original italics.)
- "[T]he concept of foreseeability of risk of harm in determining whether a duty should be imposed is to be distinguished from the concept of ' "foreseeability" in two more focused, fact-specific settings' to be resolved by a trier of fact. 'First, the [trier of fact] may consider the likelihood or foreseeability of injury in determining whether, in fact, the particular defendant's conduct was negligent in the first place. Second, foreseeability may be relevant to the [trier of fact's] determination of whether the defendant's negligence was a proximate or legal cause of the plaintiff's injury.' " (Burns v. Neiman Marcus Group, Inc. (2009) 173 Cal.App.4th 479, 488, fn. 8 [93 Cal.Rptr.3d 130], internal citation omitted.)
- "By making exceptions to Civil Code section 1714's general duty of ordinary care only when foreseeability and policy considerations justify a categorical no-duty rule, we preserve the crucial distinction between a determination that the defendant owed the plaintiff no duty of ordinary care, which is for the court to make, and a determination that the defendant did not breach the duty of ordinary care, which in a jury trial is for the jury to make. . . . While the court deciding duty assesses the foreseeability of injury from 'the category of negligent conduct at issue,' if the defendant did owe the plaintiff a duty of ordinary care the jury 'may consider the likelihood or foreseeability of injury in determining whether, in fact, the particular defendant's conduct was negligent in the first place.' An approach that instead focused the duty inquiry on case-specific facts would tend to 'eliminate the role of the jury in negligence cases, transforming the question of whether a defendant breached the duty of care under the facts of a particular case into a legal issue to be decided by the court . . . .' " (Cabral, supra, 51 Cal.4th at pp. 772–773, original italics, internal citations omitted.)
- "[W]hile foreseeability with respect to duty is determined by focusing on the general character of the event and inquiring whether such event is 'likely enough in the setting of modern life that a reasonably thoughtful [person] would take account of it in guiding practical conduct', foreseeability in evaluating negligence and causation requires a 'more focused, fact-specific' inquiry that takes into account a particular plaintiff's injuries and the particular defendant's conduct." (Laabs v. Southern California Edison Company (2009) 175 Cal.App.4th 1260, 1273 [97 Cal.Rptr.3d 241], internal citation omitted.)

- "The issue here is whether [defendant]—separate from other legal and practical reasons it had to prevent injury of any kind to the public—had a tort duty to guard against negligently causing what we and others have called 'purely economic loss[es].' We use that term as a shorthand for 'pecuniary or commercial loss that does not arise from actionable physical, emotional or reputational injury to persons or physical injury to property.' And although [defendant] of course had a tort duty to guard against the latter kinds of injury, we conclude it had no tort duty to guard against purely economic losses." (Southern California Gas Leak Cases (2019) 7 Cal.5th 391, 398 [247 Cal.Rptr.3d 632, 441 P.3d 881], internal citations omitted.)
- "[Defendant] relies on the rule that a person has no general duty to safeguard another from harm or to rescue an injured person. But that rule has no application where the person has caused another to be put in a position of peril of a kind from which the injuries occurred." (Carlsen v. Koivumaki (2014) 227 Cal.App.4th 879, 883 [174 Cal.Rptr.3d 339].)
- "A defendant may owe a duty to protect the plaintiff from third party conduct if the defendant has a special relationship with either the plaintiff or the third party." (University of Southern California v. Superior Court (2018) 30 Cal.App.5th 429, 440 [241 Cal.Rptr.3d 616].)
- " 'Typically, in special relationships, "the plaintiff is particularly vulnerable and dependent upon the defendant who, correspondingly, has some control over the plaintiff's welfare. [Citation.]" [Citation.] A defendant who is found to have a "special relationship" with another may owe an affirmative duty to protect the other person from foreseeable harm, or to come to the aid of another in the face of ongoing harm or medical emergency.' " (Carlsen, supra, 227 Cal.App.4th at p. 893.)
- "We agree that the same factors we discussed in Giraldo [v. Dept. of Corrections & Rehabilitation (2008) 168 Cal.App.4th 231] apply to the relationship between a law enforcement officer and arrestee: Once in custody, an arrestee is vulnerable, dependent, subject to the control of the officer and unable to attend to his or her own medical needs. Due to this special relationship, the officer owes a duty of reasonable care to the arrestee." (Frausto v. Dept. of California Highway Patrol (2020) 53 Cal.App.5th 973, 993 [267 Cal.Rptr.3d 889].)
- "Generally, a greater degree of care is owed to children because of their lack of capacity to appreciate risks and avoid danger. [Citation.] Consequently, California courts have frequently recognized special relationships between children and their adult caregivers that give rise to a duty to prevent harms caused by the intentional or criminal conduct of third parties." (Doe, supra, 8 Cal.App.5th at p. 1129, internal citations omitted.)
- "[P]ostsecondary schools do have a special relationship with students while they are engaged in activities that are part of the school's curriculum or closely related to its delivery of educational services." (Regents of University of California v. Superior Court (2018) 4 Cal.5th 607, 624–625 [230 Cal.Rptr.3d 415, 413 P.3d 656], original italics.)

- "[A] university's duty to protect students from foreseeable acts of violence is governed by the ordinary negligence standard of care, namely 'that degree of care which people of ordinarily prudent behavior could be reasonably expected to exercise under the circumstances.' " (Regents of University of California, supra, 29 Cal.App.5th at p. 904.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1138, 1450–1460, 1484–1491

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) §§ 1.4–1.18

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 1, Negligence: Duty and Breach, §§ 1.02, 1.12, Ch. 2, Causation, § 2.02, Ch. 3, Proof of Negligence, § 3.01 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence, § 380.10 (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, §§ 165.10, 165.20 (Matthew Bender)

401. Basic Standard of Care

Negligence is the failure to use reasonable care to prevent harm to oneself or to others.

A person can be negligent by acting or by failing to act. A person is negligent if that person does something that a reasonably careful person would not do in the same situation or fails to do something that a reasonably careful person would do in the same situation.

You must decide how a reasonably careful person would have acted in [*name of plaintiff/defendant]'s situation.

New September 2003; Revised May 2020

Sources and Authority

- "The formulation of the standard of care is a question of law for the court. Once the court has formulated the standard, its application to the facts of the case is a task for the trier of fact if reasonable minds might differ as to whether a party's conduct has conformed to the standard." (Ramirez v. Plough, Inc (1993) 6 Cal.4th 539, 546 [25 Cal.Rptr.2d 97, 863 P.2d 167], internal citations omitted.)
- Restatement Second of Torts, section 282, defines negligence as "conduct which falls below the standard established by law for the protection of others against unreasonable risk of harm."
- Restatement Second of Torts, section 283, provides: "Unless the actor is a child, the standard of conduct to which he must conform to avoid being negligent is that of a reasonable man under like circumstances."
- The California Supreme Court has stated: "Because application of [due care] is inherently situational, the amount of care deemed reasonable in any particular case will vary, while at the same time the standard of conduct itself remains constant, i.e., due care commensurate with the risk posed by the conduct taking into consideration all relevant circumstances. [Citations]." (Flowers v. Torrance Memorial Hospital Medical Center (1994) 8 Cal.4th 992, 997 [35 Cal.Rptr.2d 685, 884 P.2d 142]; see also Tucker v. Lombardo (1956) 47 Cal.2d 457, 464 [303 P.2d 1041].)
- The proper conduct of a reasonable person in a particular situation may become settled by judicial decision or may be established by statute or administrative regulation. (Ramirez, supra, 6 Cal.4th at p. 547.) (See CACI Nos. 418 to 421 on negligence per se.)
- Negligence can be found in the doing of an act, as well as in the failure to do an act. (Rest.2d Torts, § 284.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 998, 999

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 1.3

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 1, Negligence: Duty and Breach, §§ 1.01, 1.02, 1.30 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, § 165.31 (Matthew Bender)

402. Standard of Care for Minors

[Name of plaintiff/defendant] is a child who was _____ years old at the time of the incident. Children are not held to the same standards of behavior as adults. A child is required to use the amount of care that a reasonably careful child of the same age, intelligence, knowledge, and experience would use in that same situation.

New September 2003

Sources and Authority

- "Children are judged by a special subjective standard. . . . They are only required to exercise that degree of care expected of children of like age, experience and intelligence." (Daun v. Truax (1961) 56 Cal.2d 647, 654 [16 Cal.Rptr. 351, 365 P.2d 407].)
- If the negligence is negligence per se, violation of a statute will create a presumption of negligence that "may be rebutted by a showing that the child, in spite of the violation of the statute, exercised the care that children of his maturity, intelligence and capacity ordinarily exercise under similar circumstances." (Daun, supra, 56 Cal.2d at p. 655.)
- Restatement Second of Torts, section 283A, provides: "If the actor is a child, the standard of conduct to which he must conform to avoid being negligent is that of a reasonable person of like age, intelligence, and experience under like circumstances."
- The standard of care for minors is not the standard of an "average" child of the same age; the standard is subjective, based on the conduct of a child of the same age, intelligence, and experience as the minor plaintiff or defendant. (Cummings v. County of Los Angeles (1961) 56 Cal.2d 258, 263 [14 Cal.Rptr. 668, 363 P.2d 900].)
- An exception to this reduced standard of care may be found if the minor was engaging in an adult activity, such as driving. (Prichard v. Veterans Cab Co. (1965) 63 Cal.2d 727, 732 [47 Cal.Rptr. 904, 408 P.2d 360]; Neudeck v. Bransten (1965) 233 Cal.App.2d 17, 21 [43 Cal.Rptr. 250]; see also Rest.2d Torts, § 283A, com. c.)
- Children under the age of five are incapable of contributory negligence as a matter of law. (Christian v. Goodwin (1961) 188 Cal.App.2d 650, 655 [10 Cal.Rptr. 507].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1132–1134

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 1.19

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 1, Negligence: Duty and Breach, § 1.31

(Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, §§ 165.121, 165.190 (Matthew Bender)

31 California Legal Forms, Ch. 100A, Personal Affairs of Minors (Matthew Bender)

403. Standard of Care for Person with a Physical Disability

A person with a physical disability is required to use the amount of care that a reasonably careful person who has the same physical disability would use in the same situation.

New September 2003; Revised May 2023

Directions for Use

By "same" disability, this instruction is referring to the effect of the disability, not the cause.

Sources and Authority

- Liability of Person of "Unsound Mind." Civil Code section 41.
- "[A] person [whose faculties are impaired] is bound to use that care which a person of ordinary prudence with faculties so impaired would use in the same circumstances." (Conjorsky v. Murray (1955) 135 Cal.App.2d 478, 482 [287 P.2d 505].)
- "The jury was properly instructed that negligence is failure to use ordinary care and that ordinary care is that care which persons of ordinary prudence exercise in the management of their own affairs. A person with faculties impaired is held to the same degree of care and no higher. He is bound to use that care which a person of ordinary prudence with faculties so impaired would use in the same circumstances." (Jones v. Bayley (1942) 49 Cal.App.2d 647, 654 [122 P.2d 293].)
- "We conclude sudden mental illness may not be posed as a defense to harmful conduct and that the harm caused by such individual's behavior shall be judged on the objective reasonable person standard in the context of a negligence action as expressed in Civil Code section 41." (Bashi v. Wodarz (1996) 45 Cal.App.4th 1314, 1323 [53 Cal.Rptr.2d 635].)
- Restatement Second of Torts, section 283B, provides: "Unless the actor is a child, his insanity or other mental deficiency does not relieve the actor from liability for conduct which does not conform to the standard of a reasonable man under like circumstances."
- Restatement Second of Torts, section 283C, provides: "If the actor is ill or otherwise physically disabled, the standard of conduct to which he must conform to avoid being negligent is that of a reasonable man under like disability."

Secondary Sources

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 1.21.2

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence (Matthew Bender)

404. Intoxication

A person is not necessarily negligent just because that person used alcohol [or drugs]. However, people who drink alcohol [or take drugs] must act just as carefully as those who do not.

New September 2003; Revised May 2020

Directions for Use

This instruction should be given only if there is evidence of alcohol or drug consumption. This instruction is not intended for situations in which intoxication is grounds for a negligence per se instruction (e.g., driving under the influence).

Sources and Authority

- Mere consumption of alcohol is not negligence in and of itself: "The fact that a person when injured was intoxicated is not in itself evidence of contributory negligence, but it is a circumstance to be considered in determining whether his intoxication contributed to his injury." (Coakley v. Ajuria (1930) 209 Cal. 745, 752 [290 P. 33].)
- Intoxication is not generally an excuse for failure to comply with the reasonable-person standard. (Cloud v. Market Street Railway Co. (1946) 74 Cal.App.2d 92, 97 [168 P.2d 191].)
- Intoxication is not negligence as a matter of law, but it is a circumstance for the jury to consider in determining whether such intoxication was a contributing cause of an injury and is also a question of fact for the jury. (Pittman v. Boiven (1967) 249 Cal.App.2d 207, 217 [57 Cal.Rptr. 319]; Barr v. Scott (1955) 134 Cal.App.2d 823, 827–828 [286 P.2d 552]; see also Emery v. Los Angeles Ry. Corp. (1943) 61 Cal.App.2d 455, 461 [143 P.2d 112].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1477

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 20, Motor Vehicles, §§ 20.02, 20.04 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence (Matthew Bender)

405. Comparative Fault of Plaintiff

[Name of defendant] claims that [name of plaintiff]'s own negligence contributed to [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] harm. To succeed on this claim, [name of defendant] must prove both of the following:

1. That [name of plaintiff] was negligent; and
2. That [name of plaintiff]'s negligence was a substantial factor in causing [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] harm.

If [name of defendant] proves the above, [name of plaintiff]'s damages are reduced by your determination of the percentage of [name of plaintiff]'s responsibility. I will calculate the actual reduction.

New September 2003; Revised December 2009

Directions for Use

This instruction should not be given absent substantial evidence that plaintiff was negligent. (Drust v. Drust (1980) 113 Cal.App.3d 1, 6 [169 Cal.Rptr. 750].)

If there are multiple defendants or alleged nondefendant tortfeasors, also give CACI No. 406, Apportionment of Responsibility.

Sources and Authority

- "[W]e conclude that: . . . The doctrine of comparative negligence is preferable to the 'all-or-nothing' doctrine of contributory negligence from the point of view of logic, practical experience, and fundamental justice; . . . ." (Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal.3d 804, 808 [119 Cal.Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226].)
- "The comparative fault doctrine 'is designed to permit the trier of fact to consider all relevant criteria in apportioning liability. The doctrine "is a flexible, commonsense concept, under which a jury properly may consider and evaluate the relative responsibility of various parties for an injury (whether their responsibility for the injury rests on negligence, strict liability, or other theories of responsibility), in order to arrive at an "equitable apportionment or allocation of loss.' [Citation.]" (Pfeifer v. John Crane, Inc. (2013) 220 Cal.App.4th 1270, 1285 [164 Cal.Rptr.3d 112].)
- "Where contributory negligence is asserted as a defense, and where there is 'some evidence of a substantial character' to support a finding that such negligence occurred, it is prejudicial error to refuse an instruction on this issue, since defendant is thereby denied a basic theory of his defense." (Hasson v. Ford Motor Co. (1977) 19 Cal.3d 530, 548 [138 Cal.Rptr. 705, 564 P.2d 857].)
- "The use by the trial court of the phrase 'contributory negligence' in instructing 'on the concept of comparative negligence is innocuous. Li v. Yellow Cab Co. [citation] abolished the legal doctrine, but not the phrase or the concept of 'contributory negligence.' A claimant's negligence contributing causally to his own injury may be considered now not as a bar to his recovery, but merely as a factor to be considered in measuring the amount thereof." (Bradfield v. Trans World Airlines, Inc. (1979) 88 Cal.App.3d 681, 686 [152 Cal.Rptr. 172].)

- "Generally, a defendant has the burden of establishing that some nonzero percentage of fault is properly attributed to the plaintiff, other defendants, or nonparties to the action." (Pfeifer, supra, 220 Cal.App.4th at p. 1285.)
- "[W]ithin the comparative fault system, when an employer is liable solely on a theory of respondeat superior, 'the employer's share of liability for the plaintiff's damages corresponds to the share of fault that the jury allocates to the employee.' " (CRST, Inc. v. Superior Court (2017) 11 Cal.App.5th 1255, 1261 [218 Cal.Rptr.3d 664].)
- "[P]retreatment negligence by the patient does not warrant a jury instruction on contributory or comparative negligence. This view is supported by comment m to section 7 of the Restatement Third of Torts: Apportionment of Liability, which states: '[I]n a case involving negligent rendition of a service, including medical services, a factfinder does not consider any plaintiff's conduct that created the condition the service was employed to remedy.' " (Harb v. City of Bakersfield (2015) 233 Cal.App.4th 606, 632 [183 Cal.Rptr.3d 59].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1138, 1450–1460, 1484–1491

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) §§ 1.41–1.45

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 4, Comparative Negligence, Assumption of the Risk, and Related Defenses, § 4.04 (Matthew Bender)

4 California Trial Guide, Unit 90, Closing Argument, § 90.91 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence, § 380.170 (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, § 165.380 (Matthew Bender)

406. Apportionment of Responsibility

[[*Name of defendant] claims that the [negligence/fault] of [insert name(s) or description(s) of nonparty tortfeasor(s)] [also] contributed to [name of plaintiff]'s harm. To succeed on this claim, [name of defendant] must prove both of the following:

1. That [insert name(s) or description(s) of nonparty tortfeasor(s)] [was/were] [negligent/at fault]; and
2. That the [negligence/fault] of [insert name(s) or description(s) of nonparty tortfeasor(s)] was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.]

If you find that the [negligence/fault] of more than one person including [*name of defendant] [and] [[name of plaintiff]/ [and] [name(s) or description(s) of nonparty tortfeasor(s)]] was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm, you must then decide how much responsibility each has by assigning percentages of responsibility to each person listed on the verdict form. The percentages must total 100 percent.

You will make a separate finding of [*name of plaintiff]'s total damages, if any. In determining an amount of damages, you should not consider any person's assigned percentage of responsibility.

["Person" can mean an individual or a business entity.]

New September 2003; Revised June 2006, December 2007, December 2009, June 2011

Directions for Use

This instruction is designed to assist the jury in completing CACI No. VF-402, Negligence—Fault of Plaintiff and Others at Issue, which must be given in a multiple-tortfeasor case to determine comparative fault. VF-402 is designed to compare the conduct of all defendants, the conduct of the plaintiff, and the conduct of any nonparty tortfeasors.

Throughout, select "fault" if there is a need to allocate responsibility between tortfeasors whose alleged liability is based on conduct other than negligence, e.g., strict products liability.

Include the first paragraph if the defendant has presented evidence that the conduct of one or more nonparties contributed to the plaintiff's harm. (See Stewart v. Union Carbide Corp. (2010) 190 Cal.App.4th 23, 33 [117 Cal.Rptr.3d 791] [defendant has burden to establish concurrent or alternate causes].) "Nonparties" include the universe of tortfeasors who are not present at trial, including defendants who settled before trial and nonjoined alleged tortfeasors. (Dafonte v. Up-Right (1992) 2 Cal.4th 593, 603 [7 Cal.Rptr.2d 238, 828 P.2d 140].) Include "also" if the defendant concedes some degree of liability.

If the plaintiff's comparative fault is also at issue, give CACI No. 405, Comparative Fault of Plaintiff, in addition to this instruction.

Include the last paragraph if any of the defendants or others alleged to have contributed to the plaintiff's harm is not an individual.

Sources and Authority

- Proposition 51. Civil Code section 1431.2.
- "[W]e hold that after Li, a concurrent tortfeasor whose negligence is a proximate cause of an indivisible injury remains liable for the total amount of damages, diminished only 'in proportion to the amount of negligence attributable to the person recovering.' " (American Motorcycle Assn. v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal.3d 578, 590 [146 Cal.Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899], citing Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal.3d 804, 829 [119 Cal.Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226].)
- "In light of Li, however, we think that the long-recognized common law equitable indemnity doctrine should be modified to permit, in appropriate cases, a right of partial indemnity, under which liability among multiple tortfeasors may be apportioned on a comparative negligence basis. . . . Such a doctrine conforms to Li's objective of establishing 'a system under which liability for damage will be borne by those whose negligence caused it in direct proportion to their respective fault.' " (American Motorcycle Assn., supra, 20 Cal.3d at p. 583.)
- "[W]e hold that section 1431.2, subdivision (a), does not authorize a reduction in the liability of intentional tortfeasors for noneconomic damages based on the extent to which the negligence of other actors—including the plaintiffs, any codefendants, injured parties, and nonparties—contributed to the injuries in question." (B.B. v. County of Los Angeles (2020) 10 Cal.5th 1, 29 [267 Cal.Rptr.3d 203, 471 P.3d 329].)
- "The comparative fault doctrine 'is designed to permit the trier of fact to consider all relevant criteria in apportioning liability. The doctrine "is a flexible, commonsense concept, under which a jury properly may consider and evaluate the relative responsibility of various parties for an injury (whether their responsibility for the injury rests on negligence, strict liability, or other theories of responsibility), in order to arrive at an 'equitable apportionment or allocation of loss.' " [Citation.]' " (Pfeifer v. John Crane, Inc. (2013) 220 Cal.App.4th 1270, 1285 [164 Cal.Rptr.3d 112].)
- " 'Generally, a defendant has the burden of establishing that some nonzero percentage of fault is properly attributed to the plaintiff, other defendants, or nonparties to the action.' More specifically, a defendant has 'the burden to establish concurrent or alternate causes by proving: that [the plaintiff] was exposed to defective asbestos-containing products of other companies; that the defective designs of the other companies' products were legal causes of the plaintiffs' injuries; and the percentage of legal cause attributable to the other companies.' " (Phipps v. Copeland Corp. LLC (2021) 64 Cal.App.5th 319, 332 [278 Cal.Rptr.3d 688], internal citations omitted.)

- "[A] 'defendant['s]' liability for noneconomic damages cannot exceed his or her proportionate share of fault as compared with all fault responsible for the plaintiff's injuries, not merely that of 'defendant[s]' present in the lawsuit." (Dafonte, supra, 2 Cal.4th at p. 603, original italics.)
- "The proposition that a jury may apportion liability to a nonparty has been adopted in the Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions (CACI) special verdict form applicable to negligence cases. (See CACI Verdict Form 402 and CACI Instruction No. 406 ['[Verdict Form] 402 is designed to compare the conduct of all defendants, the conduct of the plaintiff, and the conduct of any nonparty tortfeasors. [¶] . . . [¶] . . . "Nonparties" include the universe of tortfeasors who are not present at trial, including defendants who settled before trial and nonjoined alleged tortfeasors.']." (Vollaro v. Lispi (2014) 224 Cal.App.4th 93, 100 fn. 5 [168 Cal.Rptr.3d 323], internal citation omitted.)
- "[U]nder Proposition 51, fault will be allocated to an entity that is immune from paying for its tortious acts, but will not be allocated to an entity that is not a tortfeasor, that is, one whose actions have been declared not to be tortious." (Taylor v. John Crane, Inc. (2003) 113 Cal.App.4th 1063, 1071 [6 Cal.Rptr.3d 695], original italics.)
- "A defendant bears the burden of proving affirmative defenses and indemnity cross-claims. Apportionment of noneconomic damages is a form of equitable indemnity in which a defendant may reduce his or her damages by establishing others are also at fault for the plaintiff's injuries. Placing the burden on defendant to prove fault as to nonparty tortfeasors is not unjustified or unduly onerous." (Wilson v. Ritto (2003) 105 Cal.App.4th 361, 369 [129 Cal.Rptr.2d 336].)
- "[T]here must be substantial evidence that a nonparty is at fault before damages can be apportioned to that nonparty." (Scott v. C. R. Bard, Inc. (2014) 231 Cal.App.4th 763, 785 [180 Cal.Rptr.3d 479].)
- "When a defendant is liable only by reason of a derivative nondelegable duty arising from his status as employer or landlord or vehicle owner or coconspirator, or from his role in the chain of distribution of a single product in a products liability action, his liability is secondary (vicarious) to that of the actor and he is not entitled to the benefits of Proposition 51." (Bayer-Bel v. Litovsky (2008) 159 Cal.App.4th 396, 400 [71 Cal.Rptr.3d 518], original italics, internal citations omitted.)
- "Under the doctrine of strict products liability, all defendants in the chain of distribution are jointly and severally liable, meaning that each defendant can be held liable to the plaintiff for all damages the defective product caused." (Romine v. Johnson Controls, Inc. (2014) 224 Cal.App.4th 990, 1010 [169 Cal.Rptr.3d 208].)

- Proposition 51 does not apply in a strict products liability action when a single defective product produced a single injury to the plaintiff. That is, all the defendants in the stream of commerce of that single product remain jointly and severally liable. . . . [I]n strict products liability asbestos exposure actions, . . . Proposition 51 applies when there are multiple products that caused the plaintiff's injuries and there is evidence that provides a basis to allocate fault for noneconomic damages between the defective products." (Romine, supra, 224 Cal.App.4th at pp. 1011–1012, internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]he jury found that defendants are parties to a joint venture. The incidents of a joint venture are in all important respects the same as those of a partnership. One such incident of partnership is that all partners are jointly and severally liable for partnership obligations, irrespective of their individual partnership interests. Because joint and several liability arises from the partnership or joint venture, Civil Code section 1431.2 is not applicable." (Myrick v. Mastagni (2010) 185 Cal.App.4th 1082, 1091 [111 Cal.Rptr.3d 165], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 156, 158–163, 167, 168, 171, 172, 176

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 9-M, Verdicts And Judgment, ¶ 9:662.3 (The Rutter Group)

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) §§ 1.52–1.59

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 4, Comparative Negligence, Assumption of the Risk, and Related Defenses, §§ 4.04–4.03, 4.07–4.08 (Matthew Bender)

5 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 74, Resolving Multiparty Tort Litigation, § 74.03 (Matthew Bender)

4 California Trial Guide, Unit 90, Closing Argument, § 90.91 (Matthew Bender)

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 2, Liability for Defective Products, § 2.14A, Ch. 9, Damages, § 9.01 (Matthew Bender)

25 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution, § 300.61 (Matthew Bender)

11 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 115, Indemnity and Contribution, § 115.04 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, §§ 165.284, 165.380 (Matthew Bender)

407. Comparative Fault of Decedent

[Name of defendant] claims that [name of decedent]'s own negligence contributed to [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] death. To succeed on this claim, [name of defendant] must prove both of the following:

1. That [name of decedent] was negligent; and
2. That [name of decedent]'s negligence was a substantial factor in causing [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] death.

If [name of defendant] proves the above, [name of plaintiff]'s damages are reduced by your determination of the percentage of [name of decedent]'s responsibility. I will calculate the actual reduction.

New September 2003; Revised December 2009

Directions for Use

This instruction should not be given absent evidence that the decedent was negligent. (Drust v. Drust (1980) 113 Cal.App.3d 1, 6 [169 Cal.Rptr. 750].)

Sources and Authority

- "[P]rinciples of comparative fault and equitable indemnification support an apportionment of liability among those responsible for the loss, including the decedent, whether it be for personal injury or wrongful death." (Horwich v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal.4th 272, 285 [87 Cal.Rptr.2d 222, 980 P.2d 927].)
- "[I]n wrongful death actions, the fault of the decedent is attributable to the surviving heirs whose recovery must be offset by the same percentage. [Citation.]" (Atkins v. Strayhorn (1990) 223 Cal.App.3d 1380, 1395 [273 Cal.Rptr. 231].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1560

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 4, Comparative Negligence, Assumption of the Risk, and Related Defenses, § 4.07 (Matthew Bender)

4 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 55, Death and Survival Actions, § 55.05 (Matthew Bender)

15 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 181, Death and Survival Actions, § 181.12 (Matthew Bender)

6 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 66, Death and Survival Actions, § 66.20 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

408–410. Reserved for Future Use

411. Reliance on Good Conduct of Others

Every person has a right to expect that every other person will use reasonable care [and will not violate the law], unless that person knows, or should know, that the other person will not use reasonable care [or will violate the law].

New September 2003; Revised May 2020

Directions for Use

This instruction should not be used if the only other actor is the plaintiff and there is no evidence that the plaintiff acted unreasonably. (Springer v. Reimers (1970) 4 Cal.App.3d 325, 336 [84 Cal.Rptr. 486].)

Sources and Authority

- "[E]very person has a right to presume that every other person will perform his duty and obey the law and in the absence of reasonable grounds to think otherwise, it is not negligence to assume that he is not exposed to danger which could come to him only from violation of law or duty by such other person." (Celli v. Sports Car Club of America, Inc. (1972) 29 Cal.App.3d 511, 523 [105 Cal.Rptr. 904].)
- "However, this rule does not extend to a person who is not exercising ordinary care, nor to one who knows or, by the exercise of such care, would know that the law is not being observed." (Malone v. Perryman (1964) 226 Cal.App.2d 227, 234 [37 Cal.Rptr. 864].)
- "[CACI No. 411] is a pattern jury instruction designed for use in civil negligence cases involving a plaintiff suing a defendant for failing to prevent harm caused by a third party. The principle it espouses is essentially that a defendant will not be liable for harm caused by a third party's negligent or criminal conduct, unless the third party's conduct was foreseeable . . . ." (People v. Elder (2017) 11 Cal.App.5th 123, 135 [217 Cal.Rptr.3d 493].)
- "[Defendant], if exercising ordinary care himself, was entitled to assume that plaintiff's employer had furnished to plaintiff a safe place within which to work and he could further assume that the plaintiff would reasonably use the protection afforded to him by the employer." (Tucker v. Lombardo (1956) 47 Cal.2d 457, 467 [303 P.2d 1041] [approved language in jury instruction].)
- "If there is evidence on both sides of the question as to whether the conduct of a third person is or is not foreseeable, the jury instruction is correct. Its application or effect will depend on the finding of the jury as to whether the act of the third person should have been anticipated or foreseen." (Whitton v. State of California (1979) 98 Cal.App.3d 235, 246 [159 Cal.Rptr. 405].)
- "If the likelihood that a third person may act in a particular manner is the hazard or one of the hazards which makes the actor negligent, such an act whether innocent, negligent, intentionally tortious, or criminal does not prevent the actor from being liable for harm caused thereby." (Bigbee v. Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. (1983) 34 Cal.3d 49, 58 [192 Cal.Rptr. 857, 665 P.2d 947]; see also Rest.2d Torts, § 449.)

- "Foreseeability, when analyzed to determine the existence or scope of a duty, is a question of law to be decided by the court." (Ann M. v. Pacific Plaza Shopping Center (1993) 6 Cal.4th 666, 678 [25 Cal.Rptr.2d 137, 863 P.2d 207], disapproved on other grounds in Reid v. Google Inc. (2010) 50 Cal.4th 512, 527 fn. 5 [113 Cal.Rptr.3d 327, 235 P.3d 988].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1468–1470

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 1, Negligence, § 1.02 (Matthew Bender)

4 California Trial Guide, Unit 90, Closing Argument, §§ 90.88, 90.90 (Matthew Bender)

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 2, Liability for Defective Products, § 2.21 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence, § 380.51 (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, § 165.120 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

412. Duty of Care Owed Children

An adult must anticipate the ordinary behavior of children. An adult must be more careful when dealing with children than with other adults.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This instruction is to be used where the plaintiff seeks damages for injury to a minor.

For standard of care for minors, see CACI No. 402, Standard of Care for Minors.

Sources and Authority

- " 'A child of immature years is expected to exercise only such care as pertains to childhood, and all persons dealing with such a child are chargeable with such knowledge. As a result, one dealing with children is bound to exercise a greater amount of caution than he would were he dealing with an adult.' [Citations]." (Kataoka v. May Dept. Stores Co. (1943) 60 Cal.App.2d 177, 182–183 [140 P.2d 467].)
- Schwartz v. Helms Bakery, Ltd. (1967) 67 Cal.2d 232, 240, 243 [60 Cal.Rptr. 510, 430 P.2d 68]; Hilyar v. Union Ice Co. (1955) 45 Cal.2d 30, 37 [286 P.2d 21].
- "A greater degree of care is generally owed to children because of their lack of capacity to appreciate risks and to avoid danger." (McDaniel v. Sunset Manor Co. (1990) 220 Cal.App.3d 1, 7 [269 Cal.Rptr. 196], citing Casas v. Maulhardt Buick, Inc. (1968) 258 Cal.App.2d 692, 697–700 [66 Cal.Rptr. 44].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1136, 1137

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 1.19

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 1, Negligence, § 1.31 (Matthew Bender)

4 California Trial Guide, Unit 90, Closing Argument, § 90.88 (Matthew Bender)

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 10, Trial, § 10.05 (Matthew Bender)

32 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 364, Minors (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, § 165.120 (Matthew Bender)

413. Custom or Practice

You may consider customs or practices in the community in deciding whether [name of plaintiff/defendant] acted reasonably. Customs and practices do not necessarily determine what a reasonable person would have done in [name of plaintiff/defendant]'s situation. They are only factors for you to consider.

Following a custom or practice does not excuse conduct that is unreasonable. You should consider whether the custom or practice itself is reasonable.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

An instruction stating that evidence of custom is not controlling on the issue of standard of care should not be given in professional malpractice cases in which expert testimony is used to set the standard of care. (See Osborn v. Irwin Memorial Blood Bank (1992) 5 Cal.App.4th 234, 277 [7 Cal.Rptr.2d 101].) The instruction may be used if the standard of care is within common knowledge. (See Leonard v. Watsonville Community Hospital (1956) 47 Cal.2d 509, 519 [305 P.2d 36].)

This instruction is also inappropriate in cases involving strict liability (Titus v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1979) 91 Cal.App.3d 372, 378 [154 Cal.Rptr. 122]) or cases involving negligence in the use of public roads (Shuff v. Irwindale Trucking Co. (1976) 62 Cal.App.3d 180, 187 [132 Cal.Rptr. 897]).

Sources and Authority

- Evidence of custom and practice is relevant, but not conclusive, on the issue of the standard of care in cases of ordinary negligence. (Holt v. Department of Food and Agriculture (1985) 171 Cal.App.3d 427, 435 [218 Cal.Rptr. 1].)
- Restatement Second of Torts, section 295A, provides: "In determining whether conduct is negligent, the customs of the community, or of others under like circumstances, are factors to be taken into account, but are not controlling where a reasonable man would not follow them."

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1029, 1030

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 1, Negligence, § 1.30, Ch. 3, Proof of Negligence, § 3.33 (Matthew Bender)

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 2, Liability for Defective Products, §§ 2.11, 2.21 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, § 165.31 (Matthew Bender)

414. Amount of Caution Required in Dangerous Situations

People must be extremely careful when they deal with dangerous items or participate in dangerous activities. [*Insert type of dangerous item or activity] is dangerous in and of itself. The risk of harm is so great that the failure to use extreme caution is negligence.

New September 2003; Revised May 2020

Directions for Use

An instruction on the standard of care for extremely dangerous activities is proper only "in situations where the nature of the activity or substance is so inherently dangerous or complex, as such, that the hazard persists despite the exercise of ordinary care." (Benwell v. Dean (1964) 227 Cal.App.2d 226, 233 [38 Cal.Rptr. 542]; see also Menchaca v. Helms Bakeries, Inc. (1968) 68 Cal.2d 535, 544 [67 Cal.Rptr. 775, 439 P.2d 903].)

This instruction should not be given at the same time as an instruction pertaining to standard of care for employees who have to work in dangerous situations. In appropriate cases, juries may be instructed that a person of ordinary prudence is required to exercise extreme caution when engaged in a dangerous activity. (Borenkraut v. Whitten (1961) 56 Cal.2d 538, 544–546 [15 Cal.Rptr. 635, 364 P.2d 467].) However, this rule does not apply when a person's lawful employment requires that person to work in a dangerous situation. (McDonald v. City of Oakland (1967) 255 Cal.App.2d 816, 827 [63 Cal.Rptr. 593].) This is because "reasonable [employees] who are paid to give at least part of their attention to their job" may not be as able to maintain the same standards for personal safety as nonemployees. (Young v. Aro Corp. (1974) 36 Cal.App.3d 240, 245 [111 Cal.Rptr. 535].) (See CACI No. 415, Employee Required to Work in Dangerous Situations.)

Sources and Authority

- Even a slight deviation from the standards of care will constitute negligence in cases involving dangerous instrumentalities. (Borenkraut, supra, 56 Cal.2d at p. 545.)
- Dangerous instrumentalities include fire, firearms, explosive or highly inflammable materials, and corrosive or otherwise dangerous or noxious fluids. (Warner v. Santa Catalina Island Co. (1955) 44 Cal.2d 310, 317 [282 P.2d 12].)
- In Menchaca, the Court held that "[d]riving a motor vehicle may be sufficiently dangerous to warrant special instructions, but it is not so hazardous that it always requires 'extreme caution.' " (Menchaca, supra, 68 Cal.2d at p. 544.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1050–1054

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 1, Negligence, §§ 1.02, 1.30 (Matthew Bender)

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 2, Liability for Defective Products, § 2.14 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence (Matthew Bender)

415. Employee Required to Work in Dangerous Situations

An employee required to work under dangerous conditions must use the amount of care for [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] own safety that a reasonably careful employee would use under the same conditions.

In deciding whether [name of plaintiff] was negligent, you should consider how much attention [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] work demanded. You should also consider whether [name of plaintiff]'s job required [him/her/nonbinary pronoun] to take risks that a reasonably careful person would not normally take under ordinary circumstances.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This type of instruction should not be given in cases involving freeway collisions between private and commercial vehicles. (Shuff v. Irwindale Trucking Co. (1976) 62 Cal.App.3d 180, 187 [132 Cal.Rptr. 897].)

An instruction on this principle is "aimed at situations where the employment conditions lessen the plaintiff's ability to take precautions." (Von Beltz v. Stuntman, Inc. (1989) 207 Cal.App.3d 1467, 1485 [255 Cal.Rptr. 755].) It does not apply where the plaintiff has ample opportunity to consider various precautions (ibid.) or when employees act pursuant to choice rather than necessity. (Roberts v. Guillory (1972) 25 Cal.App.3d 859, 861–862].)

Sources and Authority

- This type of instruction "soften[ed] the impact of instructing on the issue of contributory negligence" (Young v. Aro Corp. (1974) 36 Cal.App.3d 240, 244 [111 Cal.Rptr. 535]) at a time when contributory negligence was a complete bar to a plaintiff's recovery. The instruction may be given in cases involving comparative fault. (See, e.g., Johnson v. Tosco Corp. (1991) 1 Cal.App.4th 123, 136–137 [1 Cal.Rptr.2d 747].)
- "It has long been recognized that 'where a person must work in a position of possible danger the amount of care which he is bound to exercise for his own safety may well be less by reason of the necessity of his giving attention to his work than would otherwise be the case.' [Citations]." (Austin v. Riverside Portland Cement Co. (1955) 44 Cal.2d 225, 239 [282 P.2d 69].)
- "Considered in the light of the realities of his working life, the laborer's duty may become considerably restricted in scope. In some instances he may find himself powerless to abandon the task at hand with impunity whenever he senses a possible danger; in others, he may be uncertain as to which person has supervision of the job or control of the place of employment, and therefore unsure as to whom he should direct his complaint; in still others, having been encouraged to continue working under conditions where danger lurks but has not materialized, he may be baffled in making an on-the-spot decision as to the imminence of harm. All of these factors enter into a determination whether his conduct falls below a standard of due care." (Gyerman v. United States Lines Co. (1972) 7 Cal.3d 488, 501 [102 Cal.Rptr. 795, 498 P.2d 1043], citation omitted.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1484

2 Wilcox, California Employment Law, Ch. 30, Employer's Tort Liability to Third Parties for Conduct of Employees, § 30.04 (Matthew Bender)

21 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 248, Employer's Liability for Employee's Torts, § 248.14 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence, § 380.172 (Matthew Bender)

416. Amount of Caution Required in Transmitting Electric Power

People and companies must be very careful in constructing, insulating, inspecting, maintaining, and repairing power lines and transmission equipment at all places where it is reasonably probable that they will cause harm to persons or property.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

The cases have crafted a specific standard of care for the construction and maintenance of power lines, and juries must be instructed on this standard upon request. (Scally v. Pacific Gas and Electric Co. (1972) 23 Cal.App.3d 806, 816 [100 Cal.Rptr. 501].)

Sources and Authority

- Electric power lines are considered dangerous instrumentalities. (Polk v. City of Los Angeles (1945) 26 Cal.2d 519, 525 [159 P.2d 931].)
- The requirement to insulate wires applies to only those wires that may come into contact with people or property: "While an electric company is not under an absolute duty to insulate or make the wires safe in any particular manner, it does have a duty to make the wires safe under all the exigencies created by the surrounding circumstances. The duty of an electric company is alternative, i.e., either to insulate the wires or to so locate them to make them comparatively harmless." (Scally, supra, 23 Cal.App.3d at pp. 815–816.)
- Dunn v. Pacific Gas and Electric Co. (1954) 43 Cal.2d 265, 272–274 [272 P.2d 745]; McKenzie v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (1962) 200 Cal.App.2d 731, 736 [19 Cal.Rptr. 628] (disapproved on another ground in Di Mare v. Cresci (1962) 58 Cal.2d 292, 299 [23 Cal.Rptr. 772, 373 P.2d 860].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1051

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) §§ 7.1–7.12

23 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 277, Gas and Electricity (Matthew Bender)

[*Name of plaintiff] may prove that [name of defendant]'s negligence caused [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] harm if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] proves all of the following:

1. That [name of plaintiff]'s harm ordinarily would not have happened unless someone was negligent;
2. That the harm was caused by something that only [name of defendant] controlled; and
3. That [name of plaintiff]'s voluntary actions did not cause or contribute to the event[s] that harmed [him/her/nonbinary pronoun].

If you decide that [*name of plaintiff] did not prove one or more of these three things, you must decide whether [name of defendant] was negligent in light of the other instructions I have read.

If you decide that [*name of plaintiff] proved all of these three things, you may, but are not required to, find that [name of defendant] was negligent or that [name of defendant]'s negligence was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm, or both.

[*Name of defendant] contends that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] was not negligent or that [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] negligence, if any, did not cause [name of plaintiff] harm. If after weighing all of the evidence, you believe that it is more probable than not that [name of defendant] was negligent and that [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] negligence was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm, you must decide in favor of [name of plaintiff]. Otherwise, you must decide in favor of [name of defendant].

New September 2003; Revised June 2011, December 2011

Directions for Use

The first paragraph of this instruction sets forth the three elements of res ipsa loquitur. The second paragraph explains that if the plaintiff fails to establish res ipsa loquitur as a presumption, the jury may still find for the plaintiff if it finds based on its consideration of all of the evidence that the defendant was negligent. (See Howe v. Seven Forty Two Co., Inc. (2010) 189 Cal.App.4th 1155, 1163–1164 [117 Cal.Rptr.3d 126].)

If the plaintiff has established the three conditions that give rise to the doctrine, the jury is required to find that the accident resulted from the defendant's negligence unless the defendant comes forward with evidence that would support a contrary finding. (See Cal. Law Revision Com. com. to Evid. Code, § 646.) The last two paragraphs of the instruction assume that the defendant has presented evidence that would support a finding that the defendant was not negligent or that any negligence on the defendant's part was not a proximate cause of the accident. In this case, the presumption drops out, and the plaintiff must then prove the elements of negligence without the benefit of the presumption of res ipsa loquitur. (See Howe, supra, 189 Cal.App.4th at pp. 1163–1164; see also Evid. Code, § 646(c).)

Sources and Authority

- Res Ipsa Loquitur. Evidence Code section 646(c).
- Presumption Affecting Burden of Producing Evidence. Evidence Code section 604.
- "In California, the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur is defined by statute as 'a presumption affecting the burden of producing evidence.' The presumption arises when the evidence satisfies three conditions: '(1) the accident must be of a kind which ordinarily does not occur in the absence of someone's negligence; (2) it must be caused by an agency or instrumentality within the exclusive control of the defendant; (3) it must not have been due to any voluntary action or contribution on the part of the plaintiff.' A presumption affecting the burden of producing evidence 'require[s] the trier of fact to assume the existence of the presumed fact' unless the defendant introduces evidence to the contrary. The presumed fact, in this context, is that 'a proximate cause of the occurrence was some negligent conduct on the part of the defendant . . . .' If the defendant introduces 'evidence which would support a finding that he was not negligent or that any negligence on his part was not a proximate cause of the occurrence,' the trier of fact determines whether defendant was negligent without regard to the presumption, simply by weighing the evidence." (Brown v. Poway Unified School Dist. (1993) 4 Cal.4th 820, 825–826 [15 Cal.Rptr.2d 679, 843 P.2d 624], internal citations omitted.)
- " 'The doctrine of res ipsa loquitur is applicable where the accident is of such a nature that it can be said, in the light of past experience, that it probably was the result of negligence by someone and that the defendant is probably the one responsible.' " (Howe, supra, 189 Cal.App.4th at p. 1161.)
- "Res ipsa loquitur is an evidentiary rule for 'determining whether circumstantial evidence of negligence is sufficient.' " (Howe, supra, 189 Cal.App.4th at p. 1161, internal citation omitted.)
- The doctrine "is based on a theory of 'probability' where there is no direct evidence of defendant's conduct, permitting a common sense inference of negligence from the happening of the accident." (Gicking v. Kimberlin (1985) 170 Cal.App.3d 73, 75 [215 Cal.Rptr. 834].)
- "All of the cases hold, in effect, that it must appear, either as a matter of common experience or from evidence in the case, that the accident is of a type which probably would not happen unless someone was negligent." (Zentz v.

Coca Cola Bottling Co. of Fresno (1952) 39 Cal.2d 436, 442–443 [247 P.2d 344].)

- The purpose of the second "control" requirement is to "link the defendant with the probability, already established, that the accident was negligently caused." (Newing v. Cheatham (1975) 15 Cal.3d 351, 362 [124 Cal.Rptr. 193, 540 P.2d 33].)
- "The purpose of [the third] requirement, like that of control by the defendant is to establish that the defendant is the one probably responsible for the accident. The plaintiff need not show that he was entirely inactive at the time of the accident in order to satisfy this requirement, so long as the evidence is such as to eliminate his conduct as a factor contributing to the occurrence." (Newing, supra, 15 Cal.3d at p. 363, internal citations omitted.)
- The third condition "should not be confused with the problem of contributory negligence, as to which defendant has the burden of proof. . . . [I]ts purpose, like that of control by the defendant, is merely to assist the court in determining whether it is more probable than not that the defendant was responsible for the accident." (Zentz, supra, 39 Cal.2d at p. 444.)
- "[Evidence Code section 646] . . . classified the doctrine as a presumption affecting the burden of producing evidence. Under that classification, when the predicate facts are established to give rise to the presumption, the burden of producing evidence to rebut it shifts to the defendant to prove lack of negligence or lack of proximate cause that the injury claimed was the result of that negligence. As a presumption affecting the burden of producing evidence (as distinguished from a presumption affecting the burden of proof), if evidence is presented to rebut the presumed fact, the presumption is out of the case—it 'disappears.' But if no such evidence is submitted, the trier of fact must find the presumed fact to be established." (Howe, supra, 189 Cal.App.4th at p. 1162.)
- " 'If evidence is produced that would support a finding that the defendant was not negligent or that any negligence on his part was not a proximate cause of the accident, the presumptive effect of the doctrine vanishes.' '[T]he mere introduction of evidence sufficient to sustain a finding of the nonexistence of the presumed fact causes the presumption, as a matter of law, to disappear.' When the presumptive effect vanishes, it is the plaintiff's burden to introduce actual evidence that would show that the defendant is negligent and that such negligence was the proximate cause of the accident." (Howe, supra, 189 Cal.App.4th at p. 1163, internal citations omitted.)
- "As the [Law Revision Commission] Comment [to Evidence Code section 646] explains, even though the presumptive effect of the doctrine vanishes, 'the jury may still be able to draw an inference that the accident was caused by the defendant's lack of due care from the facts that gave rise to the presumption. . . . [¶] . . . [¶] . . . An inference of negligence may well be warranted from all of the evidence in the case even though the plaintiff fails to establish all the elements of res ipsa loquitur. In appropriate cases, therefore, the jury may be instructed that, even though it does not find that the facts giving rise to the presumption have been proved by a preponderance of the evidence, it may nevertheless find the defendant negligent if it concludes from a consideration of all the evidence that it is more probable than not that the defendant was negligent.' " (Howe, supra, 189 Cal.App.4th at p. 1163, internal citation omitted.)

- "It follows that where part of the facts basic to the application of the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur is established as a matter of law but that others are not, the court should instruct that application of the doctrine by the jury depends only upon the existence of the basic facts not conclusively established." (Rimmele v. Northridge Hospital Foundation (1975) 46 Cal.App.3d 123, 130 [120 Cal.Rptr. 39].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, California Evidence (6th ed. 2023) Burden of Proof and Presumptions, §§ 121 et seq.

7 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Trial, § 315

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 2(II)-G, Inability To Prove Negligence Or Causation—Res Ipsa Loquitur, "Alternative Liability" And "Market Share Liability", ¶¶ 2:1751–2:1753 (The Rutter Group)

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 3, Proof of Negligence, § 3.20 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1A California Trial Guide, Unit 11, Opening Statement, § 11.42[3], Unit 90, Closing Argument, § 90.90[1] (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence, § 380.111 (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, § 165.340 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

418. Presumption of Negligence per se

[*Insert citation to statute, regulation, or ordinance] states:

_____.

If [*name of plaintiff/defendant] proves

1. That [name of defendant/plaintiff] violated this law and
2. That the violation was a substantial factor in bringing about the harm, then you must find that [*name of defendant/plaintiff] was negligent [unless you also find that the violation was excused].

If you find that [*name of defendant/plaintiff] did not violate this law or that the violation was not a substantial factor in bringing about the harm [or if you find the violation was excused], then you must still decide whether [name of defendant/plaintiff] was negligent in light of the other instructions.

New September 2003; Revised December 2005, June 2011, November 2020

Directions for Use

This jury instruction addresses the establishment of the two factual elements underlying the presumption of negligence. If they are not established, then a finding of negligence cannot be based on the alleged statutory violation. However, negligence can still be proven by other means. (See Nunneley v. Edgar Hotel (1950) 36 Cal.2d 493, 500–501 [225 P.2d 497].)

If a rebuttal is offered on the ground that the violation was excused, then the bracketed portion in the second and last paragraphs should be read. For an instruction on excuse, see CACI No. 420, Negligence per se: Rebuttal of the Presumption of Negligence—Violation Excused.

If the statute is lengthy, the judge may want to read it at the end of this instruction instead of at the beginning. The instruction would then need to be revised, to tell the jury that they will be hearing the statute at the end.

Rebuttal of the presumption of negligence is addressed in the instructions that follow (see CACI Nos. 420 and 421).

Sources and Authority

- Negligence per se. Evidence Code section 669.
- "Although compliance with the law does not prove the absence of negligence, violation of the law does raise a presumption that the violator was negligent. This is called negligence per se." (Jacobs Farm/Del Cabo, Inc. v. Western Farm Service, Inc. (2010) 190 Cal.App.4th 1502, 1526 [119 Cal.Rptr.3d 529]; see also Cal. Law Revision Com. com. to Evid. Code, § 669.)

- " 'The negligence per se doctrine is codified in Evidence Code section 669, subdivision (a), under which negligence is presumed if the plaintiff establishes four elements: (1) the defendant violated a statute, ordinance, or regulation; (2) the violation proximately caused death or injury to person or property; (3) the death or injury resulted from an occurrence the nature of which the statute, ordinance, or regulation was designed to prevent; and (4) the person suffering the death or the injury to his person or property was one of the class of persons for whose protection the statute, ordinance, or regulation was adopted.' 'The burden is on the proponent of a negligence per se instruction to demonstrate that these elements are met.' " (Taulbee v. EJ Distribution Corp. (2019) 35 Cal.App.5th 590, 596 [247 Cal.Rptr.3d 538], internal citations omitted.)
- "The first two elements are normally questions for the trier of fact and the last two are determined by the trial court as a matter of law. That is, the trial court decides whether a statute or regulation defines the standard of care in a particular case." (Jacobs Farm/Del Cabo, Inc., supra, 190 Cal.App.4th at p. 1526, internal citations omitted; see also Cal. Law Revision Com. com. to Evid. Code, § 669.)
- "[T]he doctrine of negligence per se is not a separate cause of action, but creates an evidentiary presumption that affects the standard of care in a cause of action for negligence." (Turner v. Seterus, Inc. (2018) 27 Cal.App.5th 516, 534 [238 Cal.Rptr.3d 528].)
- "Under the doctrine of negligence per se, the plaintiff 'borrows' statutes to prove duty of care and standard of care. [Citation.] The plaintiff still has the burden of proving causation." (David v. Hernandez (2014) 226 Cal.App.4th 578, 584 [172 Cal.Rptr.3d 204].)
- "Where a statute establishes a party's duty, ' "proof of the [party's] violation of a statutory standard of conduct raises a presumption of negligence that may be rebutted only by evidence establishing a justification or excuse for the statutory violation." ' This rule, generally known as the doctrine of negligence per se, means that where the court has adopted the conduct prescribed by statute as the standard of care for a reasonable person, a violation of the statute is presumed to be negligence." (Spriesterbach v. Holland (2013) 215 Cal.App.4th 255, 263 [155 Cal.Rptr.3d 306], internal citation omitted.)
- "[I]n negligence per se actions, the plaintiff must produce evidence of a violation of a statute and a substantial probability that the plaintiff's injury was caused by the violation of the statute before the burden of proof shifts to the defendant to prove the violation of the statute did not cause the plaintiff's injury." (Toste v. CalPortland Construction (2016) 245 Cal.App.4th 362, 371 [199 Cal.Rptr.3d 522].)
- " 'The significance of a statute in a civil suit for negligence lies in its formulation of a standard of conduct that the court adopts in the determination of such liability. The decision as to what the civil standard should be still rests with the court, and the standard formulated by a legislative body in a police regulation or criminal statute becomes the standard to determine civil liability only because the court accepts it. In the absence of such a standard the case goes to the jury, which must determine whether the defendant has acted as a reasonably prudent man would act in similar circumstances. The jury then has the burden of deciding not only what the facts are but what the unformulated standard is of reasonable conduct. When a legislative body has generalized a standard from the experience of the community and prohibits conduct that is likely to cause harm, the court accepts the formulated standards and applies them [citations], except where they would serve to impose liability without fault.' " (Ramirez v. Plough, Inc. (1993) 6 Cal.4th 539, 547 [25 Cal.Rptr.2d 97, 863 P.2d 167].), internal citations omitted.)

- "There is no doubt in this state that a federal statute or regulation may be adopted as a standard of care." (DiRosa v. Showa Denko K. K. (1996) 44 Cal.App.4th 799, 808 [52 Cal.Rptr.2d 128].)
- "[T]he courts and the Legislature may create a negligence duty of care, but an administrative agency cannot independently impose a duty of care if that authority has not been properly delegated to the agency by the Legislature." (Cal. Serv. Station Etc. Ass'n v. Am. Home Assur. Co. (1998) 62 Cal.App.4th 1166, 1175 [73 Cal.Rptr.2d 182].)
- "In combination, the [1999] language and the deletion [to Lab. Code, § 6304.5] indicate that henceforth, Cal-OSHA provisions are to be treated like any other statute or regulation and may be admitted to establish a standard or duty of care in all negligence and wrongful death actions, including third party actions." (Elsner v. Uveges (2004) 34 Cal.4th 915, 928 [22 Cal.Rptr.3d 530, 102 P.3d 915].)
- "While courts have applied negligence per se to building code violations, it has only been applied in limited situations." (Jones v. Awad (2019) 39 Cal.App.5th 1200, 1212 [252 Cal.Rptr.3d 596].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1002–1028

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 2(II)-H, Negligence Predicated On Statutory Violation ("Negligence Per Se"), ¶ 2:1845 (The Rutter Group)

Wegner et al., California Practice Guide: Civil Trials & Evidence, Ch. 8G-C, Procedural Considerations—Presumptions, ¶ 8:3604 (The Rutter Group)

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) §§ 1.28–1.31

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 3, Proof of Negligence, §§ 3.10, 3.13 (Matthew Bender)

4 California Trial Guide, Unit 90, Closing Argument, §§ 90.88, 90.89 (Matthew Bender)

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 7, Proof, § 7.04 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence, § 380.50 (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, §§ 165.70, 165.80, 165.81 (Matthew Bender)

419. Presumption of Negligence per se (Causation Only at Issue)

[*Insert citation to statute, regulation, or ordinance] states:

_____.

A violation of this law has been established and is not an issue for you to decide.

[However, you must decide whether the violation was excused. If it was not excused, then you] [You] must decide whether the violation was a substantial factor in harming [*name of plaintiff].

If you decide that the violation was a substantial factor, then you must find that [*name of plaintiff/defendant] was negligent.

New September 2003; Revised December 2011

Directions for Use

The California Law Revision Commission comment on Evidence Code section 669 states that the trier of fact usually decides the question of whether the violation occurred. However, "if a party admits the violation or if the evidence of the violation is undisputed, it is appropriate for the judge to instruct the jury that a violation of the statute, ordinance, or regulation has been established as a matter of law." In such cases, the jury would decide causation and, if applicable, the existence of any justification or excuse. For an instruction on excuse, see CACI No. 420, Negligence per se: Rebuttal of the Presumption of Negligence—Violation Excused. See also Sources and Authority to CACI No. 418, Presumption of Negligence per se.

Sources and Authority

- Presumption of Negligence per se. Evidence Code section 669(a).
- "Under the doctrine of negligence per se, the plaintiff 'borrows' statutes to prove duty of care and standard of care. [Citation.] The plaintiff still has the burden of proving causation." (David v. Hernandez (2014) 226 Cal.App.4th 578, 584 [172 Cal.Rptr.3d 204].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1002–1028

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) §§ 1.28–1.31

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 3, Proof of Negligence, § 3.10 (Matthew Bender)

4 California Trial Guide, Unit 90, Closing Argument, § 90.89 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence, § 380.110 (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, §§ 165.70, 165.80 (Matthew Bender)

420. Negligence per se: Rebuttal of the Presumption of Negligence—Violation Excused

---

A violation of a law is excused if [*name of plaintiff/name of defendant] proves that one of the following is true:

(a) The violation was reasonable because of [*name of plaintiff/defendant]'s [specify type of "incapacity"]; [or]

(b) Despite using reasonable care, [*name of plaintiff/name of defendant] was not able to obey the law; [or]

(c) [*Name of plaintiff/name of defendant] faced an emergency that was not caused by [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] own misconduct; [or]

(d) Obeying the law would have involved a greater risk of harm to [*name of plaintiff/defendant] or to others; [or]

(e) [*Other reason excusing or justifying noncompliance.]

New September 2003; Revised May 2020

Directions for Use

The burden of proof shifts from the party asserting a negligence per se claim to the party claiming an excuse for violating a law. (Baker-Smith v. Skolnick (2019) 37 Cal.App.5th 340, 347 [249 Cal.Rptr.3d 514].) Factor (b), regarding an attempt to comply with the applicable statute or regulation, should not be given if the evidence does not show such an attempt. (Atkins v. Bisigier (1971) 16 Cal.App.3d 414, 423 [94 Cal.Rptr. 49].) Factor (b) should be used only in special cases because it relies on the concept of due care to avoid a charge of negligence per se. (Casey v. Russell (1982) 138 Cal.App.3d 379, 385 [188 Cal.Rptr. 18].)

Sources and Authority

- Rebuttal of Presumption of Negligence per se. Evidence Code section 669(b)(1).
- "In our opinion the correct test is whether the person who has violated a statute has sustained the burden of showing that he did what might reasonably be expected of a person of ordinary prudence, acting under similar circumstances, who desired to comply with the law." (Alarid v. Vanier (1958) 50 Cal.2d 617, 624 [327 P.2d 897].)
- "[T]he presumption of negligence codified in Evidence Code section 669, subdivision (a), may be rebutted by proof that '[t]he person violating the statute, ordinance, or regulation did what might reasonably be expected of a person of ordinary prudence, acting under similar circumstances, who desired to comply with the law.' " (Taulbee v. EJ Distribution Corp. (2019) 35 Cal.App.5th 590, 597 [247 Cal.Rptr.3d 538].)

- "An excuse instruction is improper unless special circumstances exist." (Baker-Smith, supra, 37 Cal.App.5th at p. 345.)
- "The Restatement Second of Torts illustrates the types of situations which may justify or excuse a violation of the statute: [¶] '(a) [T]he violation is reasonable because of the actor's incapacity [e.g., a small child runs into the street without looking, in violation of statute requiring pedestrians to look both ways before crossing]; [¶] '(b) [H]e neither knows nor should know of the occasion for compliance; [¶] '(c) [H]e is unable after reasonable diligence or care to comply [e.g., a statute provides that railroads must keep fences clear of snow. A heavy blizzard covers the fences with snow and, acting promptly and reasonably, the railroad company is unable to remove all the snow for 3 days. Someone crosses the fence on the snow mound and is injured. The violation of the statute is excused]; [¶] '(d) [H]e is confronted by an emergency not due to his own misconduct [e.g., swerving into left lane to avoid child suddenly darting into the road]; [¶] '(e) [C]ompliance would involve a greater risk of harm to the actor or to others.' Thus, in emergencies or because of some unusual circumstances, it may be difficult or impossible to comply with the statute, and the violation may be excused." (Casey, supra, 138 Cal.App.3d at p. 384, internal citations omitted.)
- "To determine whether excuse could be a defense in a negligence per se case, California law weighs the benefits and burdens of accident precautions." (Baker-Smith, supra, 37 Cal.App.5th at p. 345.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1002–1028

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) §§ 1.28–1.31

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 3, Proof of Negligence, § 3.13 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, § 165.81 (Matthew Bender)

421. Negligence per se: Rebuttal of the Presumption of Negligence (Violation of Minor Excused)

[*Name of plaintiff/defendant] claims that even if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] violated the law, [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] is not negligent because [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was _____ years old at the time of the incident. If you find that [name of plaintiff/defendant] was as careful as a reasonably careful child of the same age, intelligence, knowledge, and experience would have been in the same situation, then [name of plaintiff/defendant] was not negligent.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This instruction does not apply if the minor is engaging in an adult activity. (Evid. Code, § 669(b)(2).)

Sources and Authority

- Rebuttal of Presumption of Negligence per se: Minor. Evidence Code section 669(b)(2).
- "The per se negligence instruction is predicated on the theory that the Legislature has adopted a statutory standard of conduct that no reasonable man would violate, and that all reasonable adults would or should know such standard. But this concept does not apply to children." (Daun v. Truax (1961) 56 Cal.2d 647, 654 [16 Cal.Rptr. 351, 365 P.2d 407].)
- An exception to this reduced standard of care may be found if the minor was engaging in an adult activity, such as driving. (Prichard v. Veterans Cab Co. (1965) 63 Cal.2d 727, 732 [47 Cal.Rptr. 904, 408 P.2d 360]; Neudeck v. Bransten (1965) 233 Cal.App.2d 17, 21 [43 Cal.Rptr. 250]; see also Rest.2d Torts, § 283A, com. c.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1002–1028

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) §§ 1.28–1.31

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 3, Proof of Negligence, § 3.13 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence (Matthew Bender)

422. Providing Alcoholic Beverages to Obviously Intoxicated Minors (Bus. & Prof. Code, § 25602.1)

[Name of plaintiff] claims [name of defendant] is responsible for [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] harm because [name of defendant] [sold/gave] alcoholic beverages to [name of alleged minor], a minor who was already obviously intoxicated.

To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. [That [name of defendant] was [required to be] licensed to sell alcoholic beverages;]

   [or]

   [That [name of defendant] was authorized by the federal government to sell alcoholic beverages on a military base or other federal enclave;]

2. [That [name of defendant] [sold/gave] alcoholic beverages to [name of alleged minor];]

   [or]

   [That [name of defendant] caused alcoholic beverages to be [sold/given away] to [name of alleged minor];]

3. That [name of alleged minor] was less than 21 years old at the time;

4. That when [name of defendant] provided the alcoholic beverages, [name of alleged minor] displayed symptoms that would lead a reasonable person to conclude that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was obviously intoxicated;

5. That [name of alleged minor] harmed [name of plaintiff]; and

6. That [name of defendant]'s [selling/giving] alcoholic beverages to [name of alleged minor] was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

In deciding whether [name of alleged minor] was obviously intoxicated, you may consider whether [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] displayed one or more of the following symptoms to [name of defendant] before the alcoholic beverages were provided: impaired judgment; alcoholic breath; incoherent or slurred speech; poor muscular coordination; staggering or unsteady walk or loss of balance; loud, boisterous, or argumentative conduct; flushed face; or other symptoms of intoxication. The mere fact that [name of alleged minor] had been drinking is not enough.

New September 2003; Revised December 2009, June 2014, December 2014, May 2020

Directions for Use

Business and Professions Code section 25602.1 imposes potential liability on those who have or are required to have a liquor license for the selling, furnishing, or giving away of alcoholic beverages to an obviously intoxicated minor. It also imposes potential liability on a person who is not required to be licensed who sells alcohol to an obviously intoxicated minor. (See Ennabe v. Manosa (2014) 58 Cal.4th 697, 711 [168 Cal.Rptr.3d 440, 319 P.3d 201].) In this latter case, omit element 1, select "sold" in the opening paragraph and in element 2, and select "selling" in element 6.

If the plaintiff is the minor who is suing for the plaintiff's own injuries (see Chalup v. Aspen Mine Co. (1985) 175 Cal.App.3d 973, 974 [221 Cal.Rptr. 97]), modify the instruction by substituting the appropriate pronoun for "[name of alleged minor]" throughout.

For purposes of this instruction, a "minor" is someone under the age of 21. (Rogers v. Alvas (1984) 160 Cal.App.3d 997, 1004 [207 Cal.Rptr. 60].)

Sources and Authority

- Liability for Providing Alcohol to Minors. Business and Professions Code section 25602.1.
- Sales Under the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act. Business and Professions Code section 23025.
- "In sum, if a plaintiff can establish the defendant provided alcohol to an obviously intoxicated minor, and that such action was the proximate cause of the plaintiff's injuries or death, section 25602.1—the applicable statute in this case—permits liability in two circumstances: (1) the defendant was either licensed to sell alcohol, required to be licensed, or federally authorized to sell alcoholic beverages in certain places, and the defendant sold, furnished, or gave the minor alcohol or caused alcohol to be sold, furnished, or given to the minor; or (2) the defendant was 'any other person' (i.e., neither licensed nor required to be licensed), and he or she sold alcohol to the minor or caused it to be sold. Whereas licensees (and those required to be licensed) may be liable if they merely furnish or give an alcoholic beverage away, a nonlicensee may be liable only if a sale occurs; that is, a nonlicensee, such as a social host, who merely furnishes or gives drinks away—even to an obviously intoxicated minor—retains his or her statutory immunity." (Ennabe, supra, 58 Cal.4th at pp. 709–710, original italics.)
- "[W]e conclude that the placement of section 25602.1 in the Business and Professions Code does not limit the scope of that provision to commercial enterprises. First, the structure of section 25602.1 suggests it applies to noncommercial providers of alcohol. The statute addresses four categories of persons and we assume those falling in the first three categories—those licensed by the Department of ABC, those without licenses but who are nevertheless required to be licensed, and those authorized to sell alcohol by the federal government—are for the most part engaged in some commercial enterprise. The final category of persons addressed by section 25602.1 is more of a catchall: 'any other person' who sells alcohol. Consistent with the plain meaning of the statutory language and the views of the Department of ABC, we find this final category includes private persons and ostensible social hosts who, for whatever reason, charge money for alcoholic drinks." (Ennabe, supra, 58 Cal.4th at p. 711.)

- "[Business and Professions Code] Section 23025's broad definition of a sale shows the Legislature intended the law to cover a wide range of transactions involving alcoholic beverages: a qualifying sale includes 'any transaction' in which title to an alcoholic beverage is passed for 'any consideration.' (Italics added.) Use of the term 'any' to modify the words 'transaction' and 'consideration' demonstrates the Legislature intended the law to have a broad sweep and thus include both indirect as well as direct transactions." (Ennabe, supra, 58 Cal.4th at p. 714, original italics.)
- " 'The use of intoxicating liquor by the average person in such quantity as to produce intoxication causes many commonly known outward manifestations which are "plain" and "easily seen or discovered." If such outward manifestations exist and the seller still serves the customer so affected, he has violated the law, whether this was because he failed to observe what was plain and easily seen or discovered, or because, having observed, he ignored that which was apparent.' " (Schaffield v. Abboud (1993) 15 Cal.App.4th 1133, 1140 [19 Cal.Rptr.2d 205], original italics.)
- "[T]he standard for determining 'obvious intoxication' is measured by that of a reasonable person." (Schaffield, supra, 15 Cal.App.4th at p. 1140.)
- "We shall make no effort to state definitively the meaning of the word 'furnishes' . . . . As used in a similar context the word 'furnish' has been said to mean: ' "To supply; to offer for use, to give, to hand." ' It has also been said the word 'furnish' is synonymous with the words 'supply' or 'provide.' In relation to a physical object or substance, the word 'furnish' connotes possession or control over the thing furnished by the one who furnishes it. The word 'furnish' implies some type of affirmative action on the part of the furnisher; failure to protest or attempt to stop another from imbibing an alcoholic beverage does not constitute 'furnishing.' " (Bennett v. Letterly (1977) 74 Cal.App.3d 901, 904–905 [141 Cal.Rptr. 682], internal citations omitted.)
- "As used in liquor laws, 'furnish' means to provide in any way, and includes giving as well as selling. . . . [¶] California courts have interpreted the terms 'furnish' and 'furnished' as requiring an affirmative act by the purported furnisher to supply the alcoholic beverage to the drinker." (Fiorini v. City Brewing Co., LLC (2014) 231 Cal.App.4th 306, 320–321 [179 Cal.Rptr.3d 827] [beverage manufacturer does not "furnish" beverage to the consumer], footnote and internal citation omitted.)

- "As instructed by the court, the jury was told to consider several outward manifestations of obvious intoxication, which included incontinence, unkempt appearance, alcoholic breath, loud or boisterous conduct, bloodshot or glassy eyes, incoherent or slurred speech, flushed face, poor muscular coordination or unsteady walking, loss of balance, impaired judgment, or argumentative behavior. This instruction was correct." (Jones v. Toyota Motor Co. (1988) 198 Cal.App.3d 364, 370 [243 Cal.Rptr. 611], internal citation omitted.)
- "[S]ection 25602.1's phrase 'causes to be sold' requires an affirmative act directly related to the sale of alcohol which necessarily brings about the resultant action to which the statute is directed, i.e., the furnishing of alcohol to an obviously intoxicated minor." (Hernandez v. Modesto Portuguese Pentecost Assn. (1995) 40 Cal.App.4th 1274, 1276 [48 Cal.Rptr.2d 229].)
- "The undisputed evidence shows [defendant]'s checker sold beer to Spitzer and that Spitzer later gave some of that beer to Morse. As in Salem [Salem v. Superior Court (1989) 211 Cal.App.3d 595, 600 [259 Cal.Rptr. 447]], we conclude defendant cannot be held liable because the person to whom it sold alcohol was not the person whose negligence allegedly caused the injury at issue." (Ruiz v. Safeway, Inc. (2013) 209 Cal.App.4th 1455, 1462 [147 Cal.Rptr.3d 809].)
- "[O]bviously intoxicated minors who are served alcohol by a licensed purveyor of liquor, may bring a cause of action for negligence against the purveyor for [their own] subsequent injuries." (Chalup, supra, 175 Cal.App.3d at p. 979.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1218

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 4.63

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 2(II)-L, Liability For Providing Alcoholic Beverages, ¶ 2:2101 (The Rutter Group)

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 1, Negligence: Duty and Breach, § 1.21 (Matthew Bender)

3 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 19, Alcoholic Beverages: Civil Liability, §§ 19.12, 19.52, 19.75 (Matthew Bender)

1 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 15A, Alcoholic Beverages: Civil Liability for Furnishing, § 15A.21 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

423. Public Entity Liability for Failure to Perform Mandatory Duty

---

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was harmed because [name of defendant] violated [insert reference to statute, regulation, or ordinance] which states: _____ [insert relevant language]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] violated [insert reference to statute, regulation, or ordinance];
2. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
3. That [name of defendant]'s failure to perform its duty was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

[Name of defendant], however, is not responsible for [name of plaintiff]'s harm if [name of defendant] proves that it made reasonable efforts to perform its duties under the [statute/regulation/ordinance].

New September 2003

Directions for Use

The judge decides the issues of whether the statute imposes a mandatory duty and whether it was designed to protect against the type of harm suffered. (Haggis v. City of Los Angeles (2000) 22 Cal.4th 490, 499 [93 Cal.Rptr.2d 327, 993 P.2d 983].)

Sources and Authority

- Government Liability for Failure to Perform Mandatory Duty. Government Code section 815.6.
- " 'Where a public entity is under a mandatory duty imposed by an enactment that is designed to protect against the risk of a particular kind of injury, the public entity is liable for an injury of that kind proximately caused by its failure to discharge the duty unless the public entity establishes that it exercised reasonable diligence to discharge the duty.' (Gov. Code, § 815.6.) Thus, the government may be liable when (1) a mandatory duty is imposed by enactment, (2) the duty was designed to protect against the kind of injury allegedly suffered, and (3) breach of the duty proximately caused injury." (State Dept. of State Hospitals v. Superior Court (2015) 61 Cal.4th 339, 348 [188 Cal.Rptr.3d 309, 349 P.3d 1013].)
- "In order to recover plaintiffs have to show that there is some specific statutory mandate that was violated by the County, which violation was a proximate cause of the accident." (Washington v. County of Contra Costa (1995) 38 Cal.App.4th 890, 896–897 [45 Cal.Rptr.2d 646], internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]he term 'enactment' refers to 'a constitutional provision, statute, charter provision, ordinance or regulation.' . . . A 'contract cannot give rise to "a mandatory duty imposed by an enactment . . . .” ’ ” (Tuthill v. City of San Buenaventura (2014) 223 Cal.App.4th 1081, 1091–1092 [167 Cal.Rptr.3d 820].)

- “The first element of liability under Government Code section 815.6 requires that ‘ “the enactment at issue be obligatory, rather than merely discretionary or permissive, in its directions to the public entity; it must require, rather than merely authorize or permit, that a particular action be taken or not taken. [Citation.] It is not enough, moreover, that the public entity or officer have been under an obligation to perform a function if the function itself involves the exercise of discretion. [Citation.]’ [Citation.] Courts have construed this first prong rather strictly, finding a mandatory duty only if the enactment ‘affirmatively imposes the duty and provides implementing guidelines.” ’ ” (B.H. v. County of San Bernardino (2015) 62 Cal.4th 168, 180 [195 Cal.Rptr.3d 220, 361 P.3d 319], original italics.)
- “ ‘It is not enough, moreover, that the public entity or officer have been under an obligation to perform a function if the function itself involves the exercise of discretion.’ Moreover, ‘[c]ourts have . . . [found] a mandatory duty only if the enactment “affirmatively imposes the duty and provides implementing guidelines.” ’ ‘ “ ‘[T]he mandatory nature of the duty must be phrased in explicit and forceful language.’ [Citation.] ‘It is not enough that some statute contains mandatory language. In order to recover plaintiffs have to show that there is some specific statutory mandate that was violated by the [public entity].’ ” [Citations.]’ ” (State Dept. of State Hospitals, supra, 61 Cal. 4th at pp. 348–349, internal citations omitted.)
- “Courts have recognized that as a practical matter the standard for determining whether a mandatory duty exists is ‘virtually identical’ to the test for an implied statutory duty of care under Evidence Code section 669.” (Alejo v. City of Alhambra (1999) 75 Cal.App.4th 1180, 1185, fn. 3 [89 Cal.Rptr.2d 768], disapproved on other grounds in B.H., supra, 62 Cal.4th at p. 188, fn. 6, internal citations omitted.)
- “The injury must be ‘ “ ‘one of the consequences which the [enacting body] sought to prevent through imposing the alleged mandatory duty.’ ” ’ . . . ‘That the enactment “confers some benefit” on the class to which plaintiff belongs is not enough; if the benefit is “incidental” to the enactment’s protective purpose, the enactment cannot serve as a predicate for liability under section 815.6.” (Tuthill, supra, 223 Cal.App.4th at p. 1092, internal citation omitted.)
- “Financial limitations of governments have never been, and cannot be, deemed an excuse for a public employee’s failure to comply with mandatory duties imposed by law.” (Scott v. County of Los Angeles (1994) 27 Cal.App.4th 125, 146 [32 Cal.Rptr.2d 643], internal citations omitted.)
- “Questions of statutory immunity do not become relevant until it has been determined that the defendant otherwise owes a duty of care to the plaintiff and thus would be liable in the absence of such immunity. However, a defendant may not be held liable for the breach of a duty if such an immunity in fact exists." (Washington, supra, 38 Cal.App.4th at p. 896, internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 296–300

5 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 60, General Principles of Liability and Immunity of Public Entities and Employees, § 60.22 (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Government Claims Act, § 464.61 (Matthew Bender)

45 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 514, Schools: Injuries to Students, § 514.17 (Matthew Bender)

19 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 196, Public Entities, § 196.182 (Matthew Bender)

424. Negligence Not Contested—Essential Factual Elements

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was harmed by [name of defendant]'s negligence. [Name of defendant] agrees that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] was negligent, but denies that the negligence caused [[name of plaintiff] any harm/the full extent of the harm claimed by [name of plaintiff]].

To establish [his/her/*nonbinary pronoun/its] claim against [name of defendant], [name of plaintiff] must prove both of the following:

1. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
2. That [name of defendant]'s negligence was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New June 2005

Directions for Use

This instruction is intended for cases in which the defendant "admits" liability, but contests causation and damages. This instruction can be modified for use in cases involving claims that are not based on negligence.

Secondary Sources

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 1, Negligence: Duty and Breach, Ch. 2, Causation (Matthew Bender)

425. "Gross Negligence" Explained

Gross negligence is the lack of any care or an extreme departure from what a reasonably careful person would do in the same situation to prevent harm to oneself or to others.

A person can be grossly negligent by acting or by failing to act.

New April 2008; Revised December 2015

Directions for Use

Give this instruction if a particular statute that is at issue in the case creates a distinction based on a standard of gross negligence. (See, e.g., Gov. Code, § 831.7(c)(1)(E) [immunity for public entity or employee to liability to participant in or spectator to hazardous recreational activity does not apply if act of gross negligence is proximate cause of injury].) Courts generally resort to this definition if gross negligence is at issue under a statute. (See, e.g., Wood v. County of San Joaquin (2003) 111 Cal.App.4th 960, 971 [4 Cal.Rptr.3d 340].)

Give this instruction with CACI No. 400, Negligence—Essential Factual Elements, but modify that instruction to refer to gross negligence.

This instruction may also be given if case law has created a distinction between gross and ordinary negligence. For example, under the doctrine of express assumption of risk, a signed waiver of liability may release liability for ordinary negligence only, not for gross negligence. (See City of Santa Barbara v. Superior Court (2007) 41 Cal.4th 747, 777 [62 Cal.Rptr.3d 527, 161 P.3d 1095]; see also CACI No. 451, Affirmative Defense—Contractual Assumption of Risk.) Once the defendant establishes the validity and applicability of the release, the plaintiff must prove gross negligence by a preponderance of the evidence. (Eriksson v. Nunnink (2015) 233 Cal.App.4th 708, 732, 734 [183 Cal.Rptr.3d 234].) A lack of gross negligence can be found as a matter of law if the plaintiff's showing is insufficient to suggest a triable issue of fact. (See Grebing v. 24 Hour Fitness USA, Inc. (2015) 234 Cal.App.4th 631, 638–639 [184 Cal.Rptr.3d 155]; cf. Jimenez v. 24 Hour Fitness USA, Inc. (2015) 237 Cal.App.4th 546, 555 [188 Cal.Rptr.3d 228] [whether conduct constitutes gross negligence is generally a question of fact, depending on the nature of the act and the surrounding circumstances shown by the evidence].)

Sources and Authority

- " 'Gross negligence' long has been defined in California and other jurisdictions as either a ' " 'want of even scant care' " ' or ' " 'an extreme departure from the ordinary standard of conduct.' " ' " (City of Santa Barbara, supra, 41 Cal.4th at p. 754, internal citations omitted.)
- "By contrast, 'wanton' or 'reckless' misconduct (or ' "willful and wanton negligence" ') describes conduct by a person who may have no intent to cause harm, but who intentionally performs an act so unreasonable and dangerous that he or she knows or should know it is highly probable that harm will result." (City of Santa Barbara, supra, 41 Cal.4th at p. 754, fn. 4, internal citations omitted.)

- "California does not recognize a distinct cause of action for 'gross negligence' independent of a statutory basis." (Eriksson v. Nunnink (2011) 191 Cal.App.4th 826, 856 [120 Cal.Rptr.3d 90].)
- "Gross negligence is pleaded by alleging the traditional elements of negligence: duty, breach, causation, and damages. However, to set forth a claim for 'gross negligence' the plaintiff must allege extreme conduct on the part of the defendant." (Rosencrans v. Dover Images, Ltd. (2011) 192 Cal.App.4th 1072, 1082 [122 Cal.Rptr.3d 22], internal citation omitted.)
- "The theory that there are degrees of negligence has been generally criticized by legal writers, but a distinction has been made in this state between ordinary and gross negligence. Gross negligence has been said to mean the want of even scant care or an extreme departure from the ordinary standard of conduct." (Van Meter v. Bent Constr. Co. (1956) 46 Cal.2d 588, 594 [297 P.2d 644], internal citation omitted.)
- "Numerous California cases have discussed the doctrine of gross negligence. Invariably these cases have turned upon an interpretation of a statute which has used the words 'gross negligence' in the text." (Cont'l Ins. Co. v. Am. Prot. Indus. (1987) 197 Cal.App.3d 322, 329 [242 Cal.Rptr. 784].)
- "[I]n cases involving a waiver of liability for future negligence, courts have held that conduct that substantially or unreasonably increased the inherent risk of an activity or actively concealed a known risk could amount to gross negligence, which would not be barred by a release agreement. Evidence of conduct that evinces an extreme departure from manufacturer's safety directions or an industry standard also could demonstrate gross negligence. Conversely, conduct demonstrating the failure to guard against, or warn of, a dangerous condition typically does not rise to the level of gross negligence." (Anderson v. Fitness Internat., LLC (2016) 4 Cal.App.5th 867, 881 [208 Cal.Rptr.3d 792], internal citations omitted.)
- "[P]ublic policy generally precludes enforcement of an agreement that would remove an obligation to adhere to even a minimal standard of care. Applying that general rule here, we hold that an agreement purporting to release liability for future gross negligence committed against a developmentally disabled child who participates in a recreational camp designed for the needs of such children violates public policy and is unenforceable." (City of Santa Barbara, supra, 41 Cal.4th at p. 777, original italics.)
- " 'Prosser on Torts (1941) page 260, also cited by the Van Meter court for its definition of gross negligence, reads as follows: "Gross Negligence. This is very great negligence, or the want of even scant care. It has been described as a failure to exercise even that care which a careless person would use. Many courts, dissatisfied with a term so devoid of all real content, have interpreted it as requiring wilful misconduct, or recklessness, or such utter lack of all care as will be evidence of either—sometimes on the ground that this must have been the purpose of the legislature. But most courts have considered that 'gross negligence' falls short of a reckless disregard of consequences, and differs from ordinary negligence only in degree, and not in kind. So far as it has any accepted meaning, it is merely an extreme departure from the ordinary standard of care." ' " (Decker v. City of Imperial Beach (1989) 209 Cal.App.3d 349, 358 [257 Cal.Rptr. 356], original italics, internal citations omitted.)

- "In assessing where on the spectrum a particular negligent act falls, ' "[t]he amount of care demanded by the standard of reasonable conduct must be in proportion to the apparent risk. As the danger becomes greater, the actor is required to exercise caution commensurate with it." ' " (Hass v. RhodyCo Productions (2018) 26 Cal.App.5th 11, 32 [236 Cal.Rptr.3d 682].)
- "[A]lthough the existence of gross negligence is a matter generally for the trier of fact, it may be determined as a matter of law on summary judgment in an appropriate case." (Joshi v. Fitness Internat., LLC (2022) 80 Cal.App.5th 814, 828 [295 Cal.Rptr.3d 572], internal citation omitted.)
- "The Legislature has enacted numerous statutes . . . which provide immunity to persons providing emergency assistance except when there is gross negligence. (See Bus. & Prof. Code, § 2727.5 [immunity for licensed nurse who in good faith renders emergency care at the scene of an emergency occurring outside the place and course of nurse's employment unless the nurse is grossly negligent]; Bus. & Prof. Code, § 2395.5 [immunity for a licensed physician who serves on-call in a hospital emergency room who in good faith renders emergency obstetrical services unless the physician was grossly negligent, reckless, or committed willful misconduct]; Bus. & Prof. Code, § 2398 [immunity for licensed physician who in good faith and without compensation renders voluntary emergency medical assistance to a participant in a community college or high school athletic event for an injury suffered in the course of that event unless the physician was grossly negligent]; Bus. & Prof. Code, § 3706 [immunity for certified respiratory therapist who in good faith renders emergency care at the scene of an emergency occurring outside the place and course of employment unless the respiratory therapist was grossly negligent]; Bus. & Prof. Code, § 4840.6 [immunity for a registered animal health technician who in good faith renders emergency animal health care at the scene of an emergency unless the animal health technician was grossly negligent]; Civ. Code, § 1714.2 [immunity to a person who has completed a basic cardiopulmonary resuscitation course for cardiopulmonary resuscitation and emergency cardiac care who in good faith renders emergency cardiopulmonary resuscitation at the scene of an emergency unless the individual was grossly negligent]; Health & Saf. Code, § 1799.105 [immunity for poison control center personnel who in good faith provide emergency information and advice unless they are grossly negligent]; Health & Saf. Code, § 1799.106 [immunity for a firefighter, police officer or other law enforcement officer who in good faith renders emergency medical services at the scene of an emergency unless the officer was grossly negligent]; Health & Saf. Code, § 1799.107 [immunity for public entity and emergency rescue personnel acting in good faith within the scope of their employment unless they were grossly negligent].)" (Decker, supra, 209 Cal.App.3d at pp. 356–357.)

- "The jury here was instructed: 'It is the duty of one who undertakes to perform the services of a police officer or paramedic to have the knowledge and skills ordinarily possessed and to exercise the care and skill ordinarily used in like cases by police officers or paramedics in the same or similar locality and under similar circumstances. A failure to perform such duty is negligence. [para.] The standard to be applied in this case is gross negligence. The term gross negligence means the failure to provide even scant care or an extreme departure from the ordinary standard of conduct.' " (Wright v. City of L.A. (1990) 219 Cal.App.3d 318, 343 [268 Cal.Rptr. 309] [construing "gross negligence" under Health & Saf. Code, § 1799.106, which provides that a police officer or paramedic who renders emergency medical services at the scene of an emergency shall only be liable in civil damages for acts or omissions performed in a grossly negligent manner or not performed in good faith].)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1000

Advising and Defending Corporate Directors and Officers (Cont.Ed.Bar) § 3.13

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 1, General Principles of Liability, § 1.01 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence, §§ 380.10, 380.171 (Matthew Bender)

426. Negligent Hiring, Supervision, or Retention of Employee

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was harmed by [name of employee] and that [name of employer defendant] is responsible for that harm because [name of employer defendant] negligently [hired/ supervised/ [or] retained] [name of employee]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. [That [name of employer defendant] hired [name of employee];]
2. That [name of employee] [[was/became] [unfit [or] incompetent] to perform the work for which [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was hired/ [specify other particular risk]];
3. That [name of employer defendant] knew or should have known that [name of employee] [[was/became] [unfit/ [or] incompetent]/ [other particular risk]] and that this [unfitness [or] incompetence/ [other particular risk]] created a particular risk to others;
4. That [name of employee]'s [unfitness [or] incompetence/[other particular risk]] harmed [name of plaintiff]; and
5. That [name of employer defendant]'s negligence in [hiring/ supervising/ [or] retaining] [name of employee] was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New December 2009; Revised December 2015, June 2016

Directions for Use

Give this instruction if the plaintiff alleges that the employer of an employee who caused harm was negligent in the hiring, supervision, or retention of the employee after actual or constructive notice that the employee created a particular risk or hazard to others. For instructions holding the employer vicariously liable (without fault) for the acts of the employee, see the Vicarious Responsibility series, CACI No. 3700 et seq.

Include optional question 1 if the employment relationship between the defendant and the negligent person is contested. (See Jackson v. AEG Live, LLC (2015) 233 Cal.App.4th 1156, 1185–1189 [183 Cal.Rptr.3d 394].) It appears that liability may also be imposed on the hirer of an independent contractor for the negligent selection of the contractor. (See Noble v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1973) 33 Cal.App.3d 654, 662–663 [109 Cal.Rptr. 269].) Therefore, it would not seem to be necessary to instruct on the test to determine whether the relationship is one of employer-employee or hirer-independent contractor. (See CACI No. 3704, Existence of "Employee" Status Disputed.)

Choose "became" in elements 2 and 3 in a claim for negligent retention.

In most cases, "unfitness" or "incompetence" (or both) will adequately describe the particular risk that the employee represents. However, there may be cases in which neither word adequately describes the risk that the employer should have known about.

Sources and Authority

- "California case law recognizes the theory that an employer can be liable to a third person for negligently hiring, supervising, or retaining an unfit employee." (Doe v. Capital Cities (1996) 50 Cal.App.4th 1038, 1054 [58 Cal.Rptr.2d 122].)
- "Negligence liability will be imposed on an employer if it 'knew or should have known that hiring the employee created a particular risk or hazard and that particular harm materializes.' " (Phillips v. TLC Plumbing, Inc. (2009) 172 Cal.App.4th 1133, 1139 [91 Cal.Rptr.3d 864].)
- "[Plaintiff] brought several claims against [defendant employer], including negligent hiring, supervising, and retaining [employee], and failure to warn. To prevail on his negligent hiring/retention claim, [plaintiff] will be required to prove [employee] was [defendant employer]'s agent and [defendant employer] knew or had reason to believe [employee] was likely to engage in sexual abuse. On the negligent supervision and failure to warn claims, [plaintiff] will be required to show [defendant employer] knew or should have known of [employee]'s alleged misconduct and did not act in a reasonable manner when it allegedly recommended him to serve as [plaintiff]'s Bible instructor." (Lopez v. Watchtower Bible & Tract Society of New York, Inc. (2016) 246 Cal.App.4th 566, 591 [201 Cal.Rptr.3d 156], internal citations omitted.)
- "[A] negligent supervision claim depends, in part, on a showing that the risk of harm was reasonably foreseeable. [Citations.] 'Foreseeability is determined in light of all the circumstances and does not require prior identical events or injuries.' [Citations.] ' "It is not necessary to prove that the very injury which occurred must have been foreseeable by the school authorities . . .. Their negligence is established if a reasonably prudent person would foresee that injuries of the same general type would be likely to happen in the absence of [adequate] safeguards." ' " (D.Z. v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (2019) 35 Cal.App.5th 210, 229 [247 Cal.Rptr.3d 127], internal citations omitted.)
- "Liability for negligent supervision and/or retention of an employee is one of direct liability for negligence, not vicarious liability." (Delfino v. Agilent Technologies, Inc. (2006) 145 Cal.App.4th 790, 815 [52 Cal.Rptr.3d 376].)
- "Liability for negligent hiring and supervision is based upon the reasoning that if an enterprise hires individuals with characteristics which might pose a danger to customers or other employees, the enterprise should bear the loss caused by the wrongdoing of its incompetent or unfit employees. The tort has developed in California in factual settings where the plaintiff's injury occurred in the workplace, or the contact between the plaintiff and the employee was generated by the employment relationship." (Mendoza v. City of Los Angeles (1998) 66 Cal.App.4th 1333, 1339–1340 [78 Cal.Rptr.2d 525].)

- "To establish negligent supervision, a plaintiff must show that a person in a supervisorial position over the actor had prior knowledge of the actor's propensity to do the bad act." (Z.V. v. County of Riverside (2015) 238 Cal.App.4th 889, 902 [189 Cal.Rptr.3d 570].)
- "Apparently, [defendant] had no actual knowledge of [the employee]'s past. But the evidence recounted above presents triable issues of material fact regarding whether the [defendant] had reason to believe [the employee] was unfit or whether the [defendant] failed to use reasonable care in investigating [the employee]." (Evan F. v. Hughson United Methodist Church (1992) 8 Cal.App.4th 828, 843 [10 Cal.Rptr.2d 748]; cf. Flores v. AutoZone West Inc. (2008) 161 Cal.App.4th 373, 384–386 [74 Cal.Rptr.3d 178] [employer had no duty to investigate and discover that job applicant had a juvenile delinquency record].)
- "We note that the jury instructions issued by our Judicial Council include 'substantial factor' causation as an element of the tort of negligent hiring, retention, or supervision. The fifth element listed in CACI No. 426 is '[t]hat [name of employer defendant]'s negligence in [hiring/ supervising/ [or] retaining] [name of employee] was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.' [¶] CACI No. 426 is consistent with California case law on the causation element of [plaintiff]'s claim against [employer]." (Liberty Surplus Ins. Corp. v. Ledesma & Meyer Construction Co., Inc. (2018) 5 Cal.5th 216, 224, fn.5 [233 Cal.Rptr.3d 487, 418 P.3d 400], original italics.)
- "A claim that an employer was negligent in hiring or retaining an employee-driver rarely differs in substance from a claim that an employer was negligent in entrusting a vehicle to the employee. Awareness, constructive or actual, that a person is unfit or incompetent to drive underlies a claim that an employer was negligent in hiring or retaining that person as a driver. (See Judicial Council of Cal. Civ. Jury Instns. (2011) CACI No. 426.) That same awareness underlies a claim for negligent entrustment. (See CACI No. 724.) In a typical case, like this, the two claims are functionally identical." (Diaz v. Carcamo (2011) 51 Cal.4th 1148, 1157 [126 Cal.Rptr.3d 443, 253 P.3d 535].)
- "The language of the instruction used specifies the particular risk at issue in this case. That is consistent with the model instruction, which prompts the user to 'specify other particular risk,' as well as the Directions for Use for CACI No. 426, which state: 'In most cases, "unfitness" or "incompetence" (or both) will adequately describe the particular risk that the employee represents. However, there may be cases in which neither word adequately describes the risk that the employer should have known about.' It is also consistent with the case law, discussed above, holding that a claim for negligent supervision requires a showing of foreseeability of a particular risk of harm." (D.Z., supra, 35 Cal.App.5th at p. 235, original italics.)
- "[I]f an employer admits vicarious liability for its employee's negligent driving in the scope of employment, 'the damages attributable to both employer and employee will be coextensive.' Thus, when a plaintiff alleges a negligent entrustment or hiring cause of action against the employer and the employer admits vicarious liability for its employee's negligent driving, the universe of defendants who can be held responsible for plaintiff's damages is reduced by one—the employer—for purposes of apportioning fault under Proposition 51. Consequently, the employer would not be mentioned on the special verdict form. The jury must divide fault for the accident among the listed tortfeasors, and the employer is liable only for whatever share of fault the jury assigns to the employee." (Diaz, supra, 41 Cal.4th at p. 1159, internal citations omitted.)

- "[W]hen an employer . . . admits vicarious liability, neither the complaint's allegations of employer misconduct relating to the recovery of punitive damages nor the evidence supporting those allegations are superfluous. Nothing in Diaz or Armenta suggests otherwise." (CRST, Inc. v. Superior Court (2017) 11 Cal.App.5th 1255, 1264 [218 Cal.Rptr.3d 664].)
- "[A] public school district may be vicariously liable under [Government Code] section 815.2 for the negligence of administrators or supervisors in hiring, supervising and retaining a school employee who sexually harasses and abuses a student." (C.A. v. William S. Hart Union High School Dist. (2012) 53 Cal.4th 861, 879 [138 Cal.Rptr.3d 1, 270 P.3d 699].)
- "[P]laintiff premises her direct negligence claim on the hospital's alleged failure to properly screen [doctor] before engaging her and to properly supervise her after engaging her. Since hiring and supervising medical personnel, as well as safeguarding incapacitated patients, are clearly within the scope of services for which the hospital is licensed, its alleged failure to do so necessarily states a claim for professional negligence. Accordingly, plaintiff cannot pursue a claim of direct negligence against the hospital." (So v. Shin (2013) 212 Cal.App.4th 652, 668 [151 Cal.Rptr.3d 257].)
- "[Asking] whether [defendant] hired [employee] was necessary given the dispute over who hired [employee]—[defendant] or [decedent]. As the trial court noted, 'The employment was neither stipulated nor obvious on its face.' However, if the trial court began the jury instructions or special verdict form with, 'Was [employee] unfit or incompetent to perform the work for which he was hired,' confusion was likely to result as the question assumed a hiring. Therefore, the jury needed to answer the question of whether [defendant] hired [employee] before it could determine if [defendant] negligently hired, retained, or supervised him." (Jackson, supra, 233 Cal.App.4th at pp. 1187–1188.)
- "Any claim alleging negligent hiring by an employer will be based in part on events predating the employee's tortious conduct. Plainly, that sequence of events does not itself preclude liability." (Liberty Surplus Ins. Corp., supra, 5 Cal.5th at p. 225, fn. 7.)
- "We find no relevant case law approving a claim for direct liability based on a public entity's allegedly negligent hiring and supervision practices. . . . Here, . . . there is no statutory basis for declaring a governmental entity liable for negligence in its hiring and supervision practices and, accordingly, plaintiffs' claim against County based on that theory is barred . . . ." (de Villers v. County of San Diego (2007) 156 Cal.App.4th 238, 252–253 [67 Cal.Rptr.3d 253].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1350

Chin et al., California Practice Guide: Employment Litigation, Ch. 5(I)-I, Employment Torts and Related Claims—Negligence, ¶ 5:800 et seq. (The Rutter Group)

3 California Torts, Ch. 40B, Employment Discrimination and Harassment, § 40B.21 (Matthew Bender)

21 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 248, Employer's Liability for Employee's Torts, § 248.12 (Matthew Bender)

10 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 100A, Employer and Employee: Respondeat Superior, § 100A.22 (Matthew Bender)

427. Furnishing Alcoholic Beverages to Minors (Civ. Code, § 1714(d))

[*Name of plaintiff] claims [name of defendant] is responsible for [his/her/ *nonbinary pronoun] harm because [name of defendant] furnished alcoholic beverages to [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/[name of minor]], a minor, at [name of defendant]'s home.

To establish this claim, [*name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] was an adult;
2. That [name of defendant] knowingly furnished alcoholic beverages to [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/[name of minor]] at [name of defendant]'s home;
3. That [name of defendant] knew or should have known that [he/she/ *nonbinary pronoun/[name of minor]] was less than 21 years old at the time;
4. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed [by [name of minor]]; and
5. That [name of defendant]'s furnishing alcoholic beverages to [[name of plaintiff]/[name of minor]] was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New December 2011; Revised May 2020

Directions for Use

This instruction is for use for a claim of social host (noncommercial) liability for furnishing alcohol to a minor. (See Civ. Code, § 1714(d).) For an instruction for commercial liability, see CACI No. 422, Sale of Alcoholic Beverages to Obviously Intoxicated Minors.

Under the statute, the minor may sue for the minor's own injuries, or a third person may sue for injuries caused by the minor. (Civ. Code, § 1714(d)(2).) If the minor is the plaintiff, use the appropriate pronoun throughout. If the plaintiff is a third person, select "[name of minor]" throughout and include "by [name of minor]" in element 4.

Sources and Authority

- No Social Host Liability for Furnishing Alcohol. Civil Code section 1714(c).
- Exception to Nonliability. Civil Code section 1714(d).
- "Although the claim against [host] appears to fall within the section 1714, subdivision (d) exception, plaintiffs cannot bootstrap respondents into that exception by alleging that respondents conspired with or aided and abetted [host] by providing alcoholic beverages that were furnished to [minor]. Subdivision (b) of section 1714 unequivocally states that 'the furnishing of alcoholic beverages is not the proximate cause of injuries resulting from intoxication . . . .' This provision necessarily precludes liability against anyone who furnished alcohol to someone who caused injuries due to intoxication. The exception set forth in subdivision (d) vitiates subdivision (b) for a very narrow class of claims: claims against an adult who knowingly furnishes alcohol at his or her residence to a person he or she knows is under the age of 21. Because respondents are not alleged to have furnished alcohol to [minor] at their residences, plaintiffs' claims against them are barred because, as a matter of statutory law, plaintiffs cannot establish that respondents' actions proximately caused plaintiffs' injuries." (Rybicki v. Carlson (2013) 216 Cal.App.4th 758, 764 [157 Cal.Rptr.3d 660].)

- "We shall make no effort to state definitively the meaning of the word 'furnishes' . . . . As used in a similar context the word 'furnish' has been said to mean: ' "To supply; to offer for use, to give, to hand." ' It has also been said the word 'furnish' is synonymous with the words 'supply' or 'provide.' In relation to a physical object or substance, the word 'furnish' connotes possession or control over the thing furnished by the one who furnishes it. The word 'furnish' implies some type of affirmative action on the part of the furnisher; failure to protest or attempt to stop another from imbibing an alcoholic beverage does not constitute 'furnishing.' " (Bennett v. Letterly (1977) 74 Cal.App.3d 901, 904–905 [141 Cal.Rptr. 682], internal citations omitted.)
- "As used in liquor laws, 'furnish' means to provide in any way, and includes giving as well as selling. . . . [¶] California courts have interpreted the terms 'furnish' and 'furnished' as requiring an affirmative act by the purported furnisher to supply the alcoholic beverage to the drinker." (Fiorini v. City Brewing Co., LLC (2014) 231 Cal.App.4th 306, 320–321 [179 Cal.Rptr.3d 827] [beverage manufacturer does not "furnish" beverage to the consumer], footnote and internal citation omitted.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1215 et seq.

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 1, Duty and Breach, § 1.21 (Matthew Bender)

3 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 19, Alcoholic Beverages: Civil Liability, §§ 19.11, 19.13 (Matthew Bender)

1 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 15A, Alcoholic Beverages: Civil Liability for Furnishing, § 15A.21 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

428. Parental Liability (Nonstatutory)

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was harmed because of [name of defendant]'s negligent supervision of [name of minor]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] [insert one or both of the following:]

   [observed [*name of minor]'s dangerous behavior that led to [name of plaintiff]'s injury;] [or]

   [was aware of [*name of minor]'s habits or tendencies that created an unreasonable risk of harm to other persons;]

2. That [name of defendant] had the opportunity and ability to control the conduct of [name of minor];

3. That [name of defendant] was negligent because [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] failed to [insert one or both of the following:]

   [exercise reasonable care to prevent [*name of minor]'s conduct;] [or]

   [take reasonable precautions to prevent harm to others;]

4. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and

5. That [name of defendant]'s negligence was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New September 2003; Renumbered from CACI No. 410 December 2013

Directions for Use

This instruction is not intended for use for claims of statutory liability against parents or guardians based on a minor's willful conduct, e.g., Civil Code section 1714.1 (willful misconduct), section 1714.3 (discharging firearm), or Education Code section 48904(a)(1) (willful misconduct).

Sources and Authority

- "While it is the rule in California . . . that there is no vicarious liability on a parent for the torts of a child there is 'another rule of the law relating to the torts of minors, which is somewhat in the nature of an exception, and that is that a parent may become liable for an injury caused by the child where the parent's negligence made it possible for the child to cause the injury complained of, and probable that it would do so.' " (Ellis v. D'Angelo (1953) 116 Cal.App.2d 310, 317 [253 P.2d 675], internal citations omitted.)
- "Parents are responsible for harm caused by their children only when it has been shown that 'the parents as reasonable persons previously became aware of habits or tendencies of the infant which made it likely that the child would misbehave so that they should have restrained him in apposite conduct and actions.' " (Reida v. Lund (1971) 18 Cal.App.3d 698, 702 [96 Cal.Rptr. 102], internal citation omitted.)

- "In cases where the parent did not observe the child's conduct which led to the injury, the parent has been held liable where he had been aware of the child's dangerous propensity or habit and negligently failed to exercise proper control or negligently failed to give appropriate warning. In other cases, where the parent did not observe and was not in a position to control the conduct which endangered the plaintiff, recovery was denied on the ground that there was no showing that the parent knew of any dangerous tendency. What is said about 'propensity' or 'habit' in those cases has no applicability where the parent is present and observes the dangerous behavior and has an opportunity to exercise control but neglects to do so." (Costello v. Hart (1972) 23 Cal.App.3d 898, 900–901 [100 Cal.Rptr. 554], internal citations omitted.)
- " 'The ability to control the child, rather than the relationship as such, is the basis for a finding of liability on the part of a parent. . . . [The] absence of such ability is fatal to a claim of legal responsibility.' The ability to control is inferred from the relationship of parent to minor child, as it is from the relationship of custodian to charge; yet it may be disproved by the circumstances surrounding the particular situation." (Robertson v. Wentz (1986) 187 Cal.App.3d 1281, 1290 [232 Cal.Rptr. 634], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1378–1385

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) General Principles, § 1.25

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 1, Negligence: Duty and Breach, § 1.12; Ch. 8, Vicarious Liability, § 8.08 (Matthew Bender)

6 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 58, Assault and Battery, § 58.16 (Matthew Bender)

32 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 367A, Minors: Tort Actions, § 367A.32 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence, § 380.131 (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, § 165.130 (Matthew Bender)

31 California Legal Forms, Ch. 100A, Personal Affairs of Minors, § 100A.251 (Matthew Bender)

1 California Civil Practice: Torts §§ 3:32–3:35 (Thomson Reuters)

429. Negligent Sexual Transmission of Disease

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] sexually transmitted [specify sexually transmitted disease, e.g., HIV] to [him/her/nonbinary pronoun]. [Name of defendant] may be negligent for this transmission if [name of plaintiff] proves that [name of defendant] knew, or had reason to know, that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was infected with [e.g., HIV].

New May 2017; Revised May 2020

Directions for Use

This instruction should be given with CACI No. 400, Negligence—Essential Factual Elements. In a claim for negligent transmission of a sexually communicable disease, the elements of negligence, duty, breach, and causation of harm must be proved. (John B. v. Superior Court (2006) 38 Cal.4th 1177, 1188 [45 Cal.Rptr.3d 316, 137 P.3d 153].)

One has a duty to avoid transmitting an infectious disease if that person should have known of the infection (constructive knowledge). (John B., supra, 38 Cal.4th at pp. 1190–1191.) While the existence of a duty is a question of law for the court, what a person should have known is a question of fact.

It must be noted that in John B., the court limited its holding on constructive knowledge to the facts of the case before it, which involved a couple who were engaged and subsequently married; a defendant who was alleged to have falsely represented himself as monogamous and disease-free, and who insisted the couple stop using condoms; and a plaintiff who agreed to stop using condoms in reliance on those allegedly false representations. The court did not consider the existence or scope of a duty for persons whose relationship did not extend beyond the sexual encounter itself, whose relationship did not contemplate sexual exclusivity, who had not represented themselves as disease-free, or who had not insisted on having sex without condoms. (John B., supra, 38 Cal.4th at p. 1193.) Therefore, this instruction may not be appropriate on facts that were expressly reserved in John B.

Sources and Authority

- "[A] person who unknowingly contracts a sexually transmitted disease such as herpes may maintain an action for damages against one who either negligently or through deceit infects her with the disease." (Doe v. Roe (1990) 218 Cal.App.3d 1538, 1543 [267 Cal.Rptr. 564].)
- "[T]o be stricken with disease through another's negligence is in legal contemplation as it often is in the seriousness of consequences, no different from being struck with an automobile through another's negligence." (John B., supra, 38 Cal.4th at p. 1188, original italics.)
- "Because ' "[a]ll persons are required to use ordinary care to prevent others being injured as a result of their conduct" ', this court has repeatedly recognized a cause of action for negligence not only against those who have actual knowledge of unreasonable danger, but also against those who have constructive knowledge of it." (John B., supra, 38 Cal.4th at p. 1190, internal citation omitted.)

- " '[C]onstructive knowledge,' which means knowledge 'that one using reasonable care or diligence should have, and therefore is attributed by law to a given person', encompasses a variety of mental states, ranging from one who is deliberately indifferent in the face of an unjustifiably high risk of harm to one who merely should know of a dangerous condition. (John B., supra, 38 Cal.4th at pp. 1190–1191, internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]he tort of negligent transmission of HIV does not depend solely on actual knowledge of HIV infection and would extend at least to those situations where the actor, under the totality of the circumstances, has reason to know of the infection. Under the reason-to-know standard, 'the actor has information from which a person of reasonable intelligence or of the superior intelligence of the actor would infer that the fact in question exists, or that such person would govern his conduct upon the assumption that such fact exists.' In other words, 'the actor has knowledge of facts from which a reasonable man of ordinary intelligence or one of the superior intelligence of the actor would either infer the existence of the fact in question or would regard its existence as so highly probable that his conduct would be predicated upon the assumption that the fact did exist.' " (John B., supra, 38 Cal.4th at p. 1191, internal citations omitted.)
- "[W]e are mindful that our precedents direct us to consider whether a duty of care exists ' "on a case-by-case basis." ' Accordingly, our conclusion that a claim of negligent transmission of HIV lies against those who know or at least have reason to know of the disease must be understood in the context of the allegations in this case, which involves a couple who were engaged and subsequently married; a defendant who falsely represented himself as monogamous and disease-free and insisted the couple stop using condoms; and a plaintiff who agreed to stop using condoms in reliance on those false representations. We need not consider the existence or scope of a duty for persons whose relationship does not extend beyond the sexual encounter itself, whose relationship does not contemplate sexual exclusivity, who have not represented themselves as disease-free, or who have not insisted on having sex without condoms." (John B., supra, 38 Cal.4th at p. 1193.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1044

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 1, Negligence: Duty and Breach, § 1.13 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence, § 380.32[2] (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, § 165.170 (Matthew Bender)

430. Causation: Substantial Factor

A substantial factor in causing harm is a factor that a reasonable person would consider to have contributed to the harm. It must be more than a remote or trivial factor. It does not have to be the only cause of the harm.

[Conduct is not a substantial factor in causing harm if the same harm would have occurred without that conduct.]

New September 2003; Revised October 2004, June 2005, December 2005, December 2007, May 2018, May 2020, November 2020

Directions for Use

As phrased, this definition of "substantial factor" subsumes the "but for" test of causation, that is, "but for" the defendant's conduct, the plaintiff's harm would not have occurred. (Mitchell v. Gonzales (1991) 54 Cal.3d 1041, 1052 [1 Cal.Rptr.2d 913, 819 P.2d 872]; see Rest.2d Torts, § 431.) The optional last sentence makes this explicit, and in some cases it may be error not to give this sentence. (See Soule v. GM Corp. (1994) 8 Cal.4th 548, 572–573 [34 Cal.Rptr.2d 607, 882 P.2d 298]; Rest.2d Torts, § 432(1).)

"Conduct," in this context, refers to the culpable acts or omissions on which a claim of legal fault is based, e.g., negligence, product defect, breach of contract, or dangerous condition of public property. This is in contrast to an event that is not a culpable act but that happens to occur in the chain of causation, e.g., that the plaintiff's alarm clock failed to go off, causing her to be at the location of the accident at a time when she otherwise would not have been there. The reference to "conduct" may be changed as appropriate to the facts of the case.

The "but for" test of the last optional sentence does not apply to concurrent independent causes, which are multiple forces operating at the same time and independently, each of which would have been sufficient by itself to bring about the same harm. (Viner v. Sweet (2003) 30 Cal.4th 1232, 1240 [135 Cal.Rptr.2d 629, 70 P.3d 1046]; Barton v. Owen (1977) 71 Cal.App.3d 484, 503–504 [139 Cal.Rptr. 494]; see Rest.2d Torts, § 432(2).) Accordingly, do not include the last sentence in a case involving concurrent independent causes. (See also Major v. R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. (2017) 14 Cal.App.5th 1179, 1198 [222 Cal.Rptr.3d 563] [court did not err in refusing to give last sentence of instruction in case involving exposure to carcinogens in cigarettes].)

In cases of multiple (concurrent dependent) causes, CACI No. 431, Causation: Multiple Causes, should also be given.

A case in which the plaintiff's claim is based on disease resulting from asbestos exposure requires a different instruction. (Rutherford v. Owens-Illinois, Inc. (1997) 16 Cal.4th 953, 977 [67 Cal.Rptr.2d 16, 941 P.2d 1203]; Lopez v. The Hillshire Brands Co. (2019) 41 Cal.App.5th 679, 688 [254 Cal.Rptr.3d 377] [citing previous discussion of issues related to asbestos cases in Directions for Use of this instruction and CACI No. 435].) Give CACI No. 435, Causation for Asbestos-Related Cancer Claims, and do not give this instruction. (But see Petitpas v. Ford Motor Co. (2017) 13 Cal.App.5th 261, 298–299 [220 Cal.Rptr.3d 185] [not error to give both CACI Nos. 430 and 435 in case with both product liability and premises liability defendants].)

Sources and Authority

- "The test for joint tort liability is set forth in section 431 of the Restatement of Torts 2d, which provides: 'The actor's negligent conduct is a legal cause of harm to another if (a) his conduct is a substantial factor in bringing about the harm, and, (b) there is no rule of law relieving the actor from liability because of the manner in which his negligence has resulted in the harm.' Section 431 correctly states California law as to the issue of causation in tort cases." (Wilson v. Blue Cross of So. Cal. (1990) 222 Cal.App.3d 660, 671–672 [271 Cal.Rptr. 876].)
- "California has definitively adopted the substantial factor test of the Restatement Second of Torts for cause-in-fact determinations. Under that standard, a cause in fact is something that is a substantial factor in bringing about the injury. The substantial factor standard generally produces the same results as does the 'but for' rule of causation which states that a defendant's conduct is a cause of the injury if the injury would not have occurred 'but for' that conduct. The substantial factor standard, however, has been embraced as a clearer rule of causation—one which subsumes the 'but for' test while reaching beyond it to satisfactorily address other situations, such as those involving independent or concurrent causes in fact." (Rutherford, supra, 16 Cal.4th at pp. 968–969, internal citations omitted.)
- "The term 'substantial factor' has not been judicially defined with specificity, and indeed it has been observed that it is 'neither possible nor desirable to reduce it to any lower terms.' This court has suggested that a force which plays only an 'infinitesimal' or 'theoretical' part in bringing about injury, damage, or loss is not a substantial factor. Undue emphasis should not be placed on the term 'substantial.' For example, the substantial factor standard, formulated to aid plaintiffs as a broader rule of causality than the 'but for' test, has been invoked by defendants whose conduct is clearly a 'but for' cause of plaintiff's injury but is nevertheless urged as an insubstantial contribution to the injury. Misused in this way, the substantial factor test 'undermines the principles of comparative negligence, under which a party is responsible for his or her share of negligence and the harm caused thereby.' " (Rutherford, supra, 16 Cal.4th at pp. 968–969, internal citations omitted.)
- "The substantial factor standard is a relatively broad one, requiring only that the contribution of the individual cause be more than negligible or theoretical. Thus, 'a force which plays only an "infinitesimal" or "theoretical" part in bringing about injury, damage, or loss is not a substantial factor', but a very minor force that does cause harm is a substantial factor. This rule honors the principle of comparative fault." (Bockrath, supra, 21 Cal.4th at p. 79, internal citations omitted.)

- "[G]iving CACI No. 430, which states that a factor is not substantial when it is 'remote or trivial,' could be misleading in an asbestos case, where the long latency period necessitates exposures will have been several years earlier. Jury instructions therefore should not suggest that a long latency period, in which the exposure was temporally 'remote,' precludes an otherwise sufficient asbestos claim. ' "Remote" often connotes a time limitation. Nothing in Rutherford suggests such a limitation; indeed, asbestos cases are brought long after exposure due to the long-term latent nature of asbestos-related diseases.' It was not error for the court to give CACI No. 435 alone instead of CACI No. 430." (Lopez, supra, 41 Cal.App.5th at p. 688, internal citation omitted.)
- "The text of Restatement Torts second section 432 demonstrates how the 'substantial factor' test subsumes the traditional 'but for' test of causation. Subsection (1) of section 432 provides: 'Except as stated in Subsection (2), the actor's negligent conduct is not a substantial factor in bringing about harm to another if the harm would have been sustained even if the actor had not been negligent.' . . . Subsection (2) states that if 'two forces are actively operating . . . and each of itself is sufficient to bring about harm to another, the actor's negligence may be found to be a substantial factor in bringing it about.' " (Viner, supra, 30 Cal.4th at p. 1240, original italics.)
- "Because the 'substantial factor' test of causation subsumes the 'but for' test, the 'but for' test has been phrased in terms of 'substantial factor,' as follows, in the context, as here, of a combination of causes dependent on one another: A defendant's negligent conduct may combine with another factor to cause harm; if a defendant's negligence was a substantial factor in causing the plaintiff's harm, then the defendant is responsible for the harm; a defendant cannot avoid responsibility just because some other person, condition, or event was also a substantial factor in causing the plaintiff's harm; but conduct is not a substantial factor in causing harm if the same harm would have occurred without that conduct." (Yanez v. Plummer (2013) 221 Cal.App.4th 180, 187 [164 Cal.Rptr.3d 309].)
- "Giving CACI No. 430 in its entirety also would have meant instructing the jury on the principle of 'but-for' causation. Although generally subsumed within the substantial factor test, 'the but-for test is inappropriate in cases when two forces are actively operating and each is sufficient to bring about the harm.' . . . 'If a plaintiff [or decedent] has developed a disease after having been exposed to multiple defendants' asbestos products, medical science [is] unable to determine which defendant's product included the specific fibers that caused the plaintiff's [or decedent's] disease.' A 'but-for' instruction is therefore inappropriate in the asbestos context, at least when there are multiple sources of exposure. (Lopez, supra, 41 Cal.App.5th at p. 688, internal citations omitted.)
- "That the Use Notes caution against giving the more general CACI No. 430 in a mesothelioma case, when the more specific instruction CACI No. 435 is more applicable, does not support a conclusion that it was error to give both instructions. CACI No. 430 is a correct statement of the law relating to substantial factor causation, even though, as Rutherford [v. Owens-Illinois, Inc.] noted, more specific instructions also must be given in a mesothelioma case. Because the more specific CACI No. 435 also was given, we do not find that the trial court erred by giving both instructions." (Petitpas, supra, 13 Cal.App.5th p. 299, original italics.)

- "A tort is a legal cause of injury only when it is a substantial factor in producing the injury. If the external force of a vehicle accident was so severe that it would have caused identical injuries notwithstanding an abstract 'defect' in the vehicle's collision safety, the defect cannot be considered a substantial factor in bringing them about. [¶] The general causation instruction given by the trial court correctly advised that plaintiff could not recover for a design defect unless it was a 'substantial factor' in producing plaintiff's 'enhanced' injuries. However, this instruction dealt only by 'negative implication' with [defendant]'s theory that any such defect was not a 'substantial factor' in this case because this particular accident would have broken plaintiff's ankles in any event. As we have seen, [defendant] presented substantial evidence to that effect. [Defendant] was therefore entitled to its special instruction, and the trial court's refusal to give it was error." (Soule, supra, 8 Cal.4th at p. 572–573, original italics, footnote and internal citations omitted.)
- "The first element of legal cause is cause in fact . . . . The 'but for' rule has traditionally been applied to determine cause in fact. The Restatement formula uses the term substantial factor 'to denote the fact that the defendant's conduct has such an effect in producing the harm as to lead reasonable men to regard it as a cause.' " (Mayes v. Bryan (2006) 139 Cal.App.4th 1075, 1095 [44 Cal.Rptr.3d 14], internal citations omitted.)
- "If the accident would have happened anyway, whether the defendant was negligent or not, then his or her negligence was not a cause in fact, and of course cannot be the legal or responsible cause." (Toste v. CalPortland Construction (2016) 245 Cal.App.4th 362, 370 [199 Cal.Rptr.3d 522].)
- "We have recognized that proximate cause has two aspects. ' "One is cause in fact. An act is a cause in fact if it is a necessary antecedent of an event." ' This is sometimes referred to as 'but-for' causation. In cases where concurrent independent causes contribute to an injury, we apply the 'substantial factor' test of the Restatement Second of Torts, section 423, which subsumes traditional 'but for' causation. This case does not involve concurrent independent causes, so the 'but for' test governs questions of factual causation." (State Dept. of State Hospitals v. Superior Court (2015) 61 Cal.4th 339, 354 [188 Cal.Rptr.3d 309, 349 P.3d 1013], original italics, footnote omitted.)
- "The second aspect of proximate cause 'focuses on public policy considerations. Because the purported [factual] causes of an event may be traced back to the dawn of humanity, the law has imposed additional "limitations on liability other than simple causality." [Citation.] "These additional limitations are related not only to the degree of connection between the conduct and the injury, but also with public policy." [Citation.] Thus, "proximate cause 'is ordinarily concerned, not with the fact of causation, but with the various considerations of policy that limit an actor's responsibility for the consequences of his conduct.' " [Citation.]' " (State Dept. of State Hospitals, supra, 61 Cal.4th at p. 353, internal citation omitted.)

- "On the issue . . . of causation, as on other issues essential to the cause of action for negligence, the plaintiff, in general, has the burden of proof. The plaintiff must introduce evidence which affords a reasonable basis for the conclusion that it is more likely than not that the conduct of the defendant was a cause in fact of the result. A mere possibility of such causation is not enough; and when the matter remains one of pure speculation or conjecture, or the probabilities are at best evenly balanced, it becomes the duty of the court to direct a verdict for the defendant." (Leyva v. Garcia (2018) 20 Cal.App.5th 1095, 1104 [236 Cal.Rptr.3d 128].)
- " 'Whether a defendant's conduct actually caused an injury is a question of fact . . . that is ordinarily for the jury . . . .' '[C]ausation in fact is ultimately a matter of probability and common sense: "[A plaintiff] is not required to eliminate entirely all possibility that the defendant's conduct was not a cause. It is enough that he introduces evidence from which reasonable [persons] may conclude that it is more probable that the event was caused by the defendant than that it was not. The fact of causation is incapable of mathematical proof, since no [person] can say with absolute certainty what would have occurred if the defendant had acted otherwise. If, as a matter of ordinary experience, a particular act or omission might be expected to produce a particular result, and if that result has in fact followed, the conclusion may be justified that the causal relation exists. In drawing that conclusion, the triers of fact are permitted to draw upon ordinary human experience as to the probabilities of the case." ' . . . ' "A mere possibility of . . . causation is not enough; and when the matter remains one of pure speculation or conjecture, or the probabilities are at best evenly balanced, it becomes the duty of the court to direct a verdict for the defendant." ' " (Raven H. v. Gamette (2007) 157 Cal.App.4th 1017, 1029–1030 [68 Cal.Rptr.3d 897], internal citations omitted.)
- "Ordinarily, proximate cause is a question of fact which cannot be decided as a matter of law from the allegations of a complaint. . . . Nevertheless, where the facts are such that the only reasonable conclusion is an absence of causation, the question is one of law, not of fact." (Modisette v. Apple Inc. (2018) 30 Cal.App.5th 136, 152 [241 Cal.Rptr.3d 209].)
- "[E]vidence of causation 'must rise to the level of a reasonable probability based upon competent testimony. [Citations.] "A possible cause only becomes 'probable' when, in the absence of other reasonable causal explanations, it becomes more likely than not that the injury was a result of its action." [Citation.] The defendant's conduct is not the cause in fact of harm " 'where the evidence indicates that there is less than a probability, i.e., a 50-50 possibility or a mere chance,' " that the harm would have ensued.' " (Bowman v. Wyatt (2010) 186 Cal.App.4th 286, 312 [111 Cal.Rptr.3d 787].)

- "However the test is phrased, causation in fact is ultimately a matter of probability and common sense." (Osborn v. Irwin Memorial Blood Bank (1992) 5 Cal.App.4th 234, 253 [7 Cal.Rptr.2d 101], relying on Rest.2d Torts, § 433B, com. b.)
- "As a general matter, juries may decide issues of causation without hearing expert testimony. But '[w]here the complexity of the causation issue is beyond common experience, expert testimony is required to establish causation.' " (Webster v. Claremont Yoga (2018) 26 Cal.App.5th 284, 290 [236 Cal.Rptr.3d 802], internal citation omitted.)
- "The Supreme Court . . . set forth explicit guidelines for plaintiffs attempting to allege injury resulting from exposure to toxic materials: A plaintiff must 'allege that he was exposed to each of the toxic materials claimed to have caused a specific illness'; 'identify each product that allegedly caused the injury'; allege 'the toxins entered his body' 'as a result of the exposure'; allege that 'he suffers from a specific illness, and that each toxin that entered his body was a substantial factor in bringing about, prolonging, or aggravating that illness'; and, finally, allege that 'each toxin he absorbed was manufactured or supplied by a named defendant.' " (Jones v. ConocoPhillips Co. (2011) 198 Cal.App.4th 1187, 1194 [130 Cal.Rptr.3d 571], quoting Bockrath, supra, 21 Cal.4th at p. 80, footnote omitted.)
- "[M]ultiple sufficient causes exist not only when there are two causes each of which is sufficient to cause the harm, but also when there are more than two causes, partial combinations of which are sufficient to cause the harm. As such, the trial court did not err in refusing to instruct the jury with the but-for test." (Major, supra, 14 Cal.App.5th at p. 1200.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1334–1341

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) §§ 1.13–1.15

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 2, Causation, § 2.02 (Matthew Bender)

4 California Trial Guide, Unit 90, Closing Argument, § 90.89 (Matthew Bender)

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 2, Liability for Defective Products, § 2.22, Ch. 7, Proof, § 7.06 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence, § 380.71 (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, §§ 165.260–165.263 (Matthew Bender)

431. Causation: Multiple Causes

A person's negligence may combine with another factor to cause harm. If you find that [name of defendant]'s negligence was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm, then [name of defendant] is responsible for the harm. [Name of defendant] cannot avoid responsibility just because some other person, condition, or event was also a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This instruction will apply only when negligence is the theory asserted against the defendant. This instruction should be modified if the defendant is sued on a theory of product liability or intentional tort.

Sources and Authority

- " 'Where several persons act in concert and damages result from their joint tort, each person is held for the entire damages unless segregation as to causation can be established. Even though persons are not acting in concert, if the results produced by their acts are indivisible, each person is held liable for the whole." (Hughey v. Candoli (1958) 159 Cal.App.2d 231, 240 [323 P.2d 779].)
- "In cases where concurrent independent causes contribute to an injury, we apply the 'substantial factor' test of the Restatement Second of Torts, section 423, which subsumes traditional 'but for' causation." (State Dept. of State Hospitals v. Superior Court (2015) 61 Cal.4th 339, 352 fn. 12 [188 Cal.Rptr.3d 309, 349 P.3d 1012].)
- "A defendant's negligent conduct may combine with another factor to cause harm; if a defendant's negligence was a substantial factor in causing the plaintiff's harm, then the defendant is responsible for the harm; a defendant cannot avoid responsibility just because some other person, condition, or event was also a substantial factor in causing the plaintiff's harm; but conduct is not a substantial factor in causing harm if the same harm would have occurred without that conduct." (Yanez v. Plummer (2013) 221 Cal.App.4th 180, 187 [164 Cal.Rptr.3d 309].)
- "We are also not persuaded CACI No. 431 confused the jury or diluted the standard for causation. The [defendants] conflate the legal concepts of substantial factor for causation and concurrent cause. CACI No. 431 is necessary to explain to the jury a 'plaintiff need not prove that the defendant's negligence was the sole cause of plaintiff's injury in order to recover. Rather it is sufficient that defendant's negligence is a legal cause of injury, even though it operated in combination with other causes, whether tortious or nontortious.' " (Uriell v. Regents of University of California (2015) 234 Cal.App.4th 735, 746–747 [184

Cal.Rptr.3d 79] [CACI No. 431 properly explained concurrent substantial causes to the jury].)

- "For there to be comparative fault there must be more than one contributory or concurrent legal cause of the injury for which recompense is sought." (Doupnik v. General Motors Corp. (1991) 225 Cal.App.3d 849, 866 [275 Cal.Rptr. 715].)
- "Because we conclude that, in this case, in which causation was the most critical contested issue and in which there was substantial evidence of multiple causes of [decedent]' s death, the trial court improperly [refused to instruct] the jury with respect to concurrent causation . . . ." (Logacz v. Limansky (1999) 71 Cal.App.4th 1149, 1152 [84 Cal.Rptr.2d 257].)
- "Clearly, where a defendant's negligence is a concurring cause of an injury, the law regards it as a legal cause of the injury, regardless of the extent to which it contributes to the injury." (Espinosa v. Little Company of Mary Hospital (1995) 31 Cal.App.4th 1304, 1317–1318 [37 Cal.Rptr.2d 541], original italics.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1344

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 1.16

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 2, Causation, § 2.11 (Matthew Bender)

4 California Trial Guide, Unit 90, Closing Argument, § 90.89 (Matthew Bender)

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 7, Proof, § 7.06 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, §§ 165.280–165.284 (Matthew Bender)

432. Affirmative Defense—Causation: Third-Party Conduct as Superseding Cause

[Name of defendant] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] is not responsible for [name of plaintiff]'s harm because of the later misconduct of [insert name of third party]. To avoid legal responsibility for the harm, [name of defendant] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of third party]'s conduct occurred after the conduct of [name of defendant];
2. That a reasonable person would consider [name of third party]'s conduct a highly unusual or an extraordinary response to the situation;
3. That [name of defendant] did not know and had no reason to expect that [name of third party] would act in a [negligent/wrongful] manner; and
4. That the kind of harm resulting from [name of third party]'s conduct was different from the kind of harm that could have been reasonably expected from [name of defendant]'s conduct.

New September 2003; Revised June 2011, December 2011

Directions for Use

A superseding cause instruction should be given if the issue is raised by the evidence. (See Paverud v. Niagara Machine and Tool Works (1987) 189 Cal.App.3d 858, 863 [234 Cal.Rptr. 585]; disapproved in Soule v. General Motors Corp. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 548, 574, 580 [34 Cal.Rptr.2d 607, 882 P.2d. 298] [there is no rule of automatic reversal or inherent prejudice applicable to any category of civil instructional error].) The issue of superseding cause should be addressed directly in a specific instruction. (See Self v. General Motors Corp. (1974) 42 Cal.App.3d 1, 10 [116 Cal.Rptr. 575]; disapproved in Soule, supra, 8 Cal. 4th at p. 580.)

Superseding cause is an affirmative defense that must be proved by the defendant. (Maupin v. Widling (1987) 192 Cal.App.3d 568, 578 [237 Cal.Rptr. 521].) Therefore, the elements of this instruction are phrased in the affirmative and require the defendant to prove that they are all present in order to establish superseding cause. (See Martinez v. Vintage Petroleum (1998) 68 Cal.App.4th 695, 702 [80 Cal.Rptr.2d 449].)

If, as a matter of law, a party is liable for subsequent negligence, as in subsequent medical negligence, this instruction should not be given.

Sources and Authority

- " 'It is well established . . . that one's general duty to exercise due care includes the duty not to place another person in a situation in which the other person is exposed to an unreasonable risk of harm through the reasonably foreseeable conduct (including the reasonably foreseeable negligent conduct) of a third person.' In determining whether one has a duty to prevent injury that is the result of third party conduct, the touchstone of the analysis is the foreseeability of that intervening conduct." (Kesner v. Superior Court (2016) 1 Cal.5th 1132, 1148 [210 Cal.Rptr.3d 283, 384 P.3d 283], internal citation omitted.)

- "This issue is concerned with whether or not, assuming that a defendant was negligent and that his negligence was an actual cause of the plaintiff's injury, the defendant should be held responsible for the plaintiff's injury where the injury was brought about by a later cause of independent origin. This question, in turn, revolves around a determination of whether the later cause of independent origin, commonly referred to as an intervening cause, was foreseeable by the defendant or, if not foreseeable, whether it caused injury of a type which was foreseeable. If either of these questions is answered in the affirmative, then the defendant is not relieved from liability towards the plaintiff; if, however, it is determined that the intervening cause was not foreseeable and that the results which it caused were not foreseeable, then the intervening cause becomes a supervening cause and the defendant is relieved from liability for the plaintiff's injuries." (Akins v. County of Sonoma (1967) 67 Cal.2d 185, 199 [60 Cal.Rptr. 499, 430 P.2d 57].)
- " 'A superseding cause is an act of a third person or other force which by its intervention prevents the actor from being liable for harm to another which his antecedent negligence is a substantial factor in bringing about.' If the cause is superseding, it relieves the actor from liability whether or not that person's negligence was a substantial factor in bringing about the harm." (Brewer v. Teano (1995) 40 Cal.App.4th 1024, 1031 [47 Cal.Rptr.2d 348], internal citation omitted; see Restatement 2d of Torts, § 440.)
- "The rules set forth in sections 442–453 of the Restatement of Torts for determining whether an intervening act of a third person constitutes a superseding cause which prevents antecedent negligence of the defendant from being a proximate cause of the harm complained of have been accepted in California. Under these rules the fact that an intervening act of a third person is done in a negligent manner does not make it a superseding cause if a reasonable man knowing the situation existing when the act of the third person is done would not regard it as highly extraordinary that the third person so acted or the act is a normal response to a situation created by the defendant's conduct and the manner in which the intervening act is done is not extraordinarily negligent." (Stewart v. Cox (1961) 55 Cal.2d 857, 864 [13 Cal.Rptr. 521, 362 P.2d 345], internal citations omitted.)
- "This test is but another way of saying that foreseeable intervening ordinary negligence will not supersede but such negligence, if 'highly extraordinary,' will supersede. [¶] '[T]he fact that an intervening act of a third person is done in a negligent manner does not make it a superseding cause if . . . the act is a normal response to a situation created by the defendant's conduct and the manner in which the intervening act is done is not extraordinarily negligent. . . .' This test is but another way of saying a normal, but negligent, intervening response will not supersede but an extraordinarily negligent response will supersede." (Martinez, supra, 68 Cal.App.4th at p. 701 [holding that highly extraordinary negligence or extraordinarily negligent response obviates need to prove unforeseeable risk of harm].)

- "Intervening negligence cuts off liability, and becomes known as a superseding cause, if ' "it is determined that the intervening cause was not foreseeable and that the results which it caused were not foreseeable . . . ." ' " (Martinez, supra, 68 Cal.App.4th at pp. 700–701, original italics.)
- " '[T]he defense of "superseding cause[]" . . . absolves [the original] tortfeasor, even though his conduct was a substantial contributing factor, when an independent event [subsequently] intervenes in the chain of causation, producing harm of a kind and degree so far beyond the risk the original tortfeasor should have foreseen that the law deems it unfair to hold him responsible.' . . . [¶] To determine whether an independent intervening act was reasonably foreseeable, we look to the act and the nature of the harm suffered. To qualify as a superseding cause so as to relieve the defendant from liability for the plaintiff's injuries, both the intervening act and the results of that act must not be foreseeable. Significantly, 'what is required to be foreseeable is the general character of the event or harm . . . not its precise nature or manner of occurrence.' " (Chanda v. Federal Home Loans Corp. (2013) 215 Cal.App.4th 746, 755–756 [155 Cal.Rptr.3d 693], original italics, internal citations omitted.)
- " 'Third party negligence which is the immediate cause of an injury may be viewed as a superseding cause when it is so highly extraordinary as to be unforeseeable. . . . "The foreseeability required is of the risk of harm, not of the particular intervening act. In other words, the defendant may be liable if his conduct was 'a substantial factor' in bringing about the harm, though he neither foresaw nor should have foreseen the extent of the harm or the manner in which it occurred." . . . It must appear that the intervening act has produced "harm of a kind and degree so far beyond the risk the original tortfeasor should have foreseen that the law deems it unfair to hold him responsible." . . . [¶] . . . [F]oreseeability is a question for the jury unless undisputed facts leave no room for a reasonable difference of opinion. . . . Thus, the issue of superseding cause is generally one of fact. . . .' " (Lawson v. Safeway Inc. (2010) 191 Cal.App.4th 400, 417 [119 Cal.Rptr.3d 366].)
- "The intervening negligence (or even recklessness) of a third party will not be considered a superseding cause if it is a 'normal response to a situation created by the defendant's conduct' and is therefore ' ". . . within the scope of the reasons [for] imposing the duty upon [the defendant] to refrain from negligent conduct" ' in the first place." (Pedeferri v. Seidner Enterprises (2013) 216 Cal.App.4th 359, 373 [163 Cal.Rptr.3d 55], internal citations omitted.)
- "Under the theory of supervening cause, the chain of causation that would otherwise flow from an initial negligent act is broken when an independent act intervenes and supersedes the initial act." (Hardison v. Bushnell (1993) 18 Cal.App.4th 22, 26 [22 Cal.Rptr.2d 106].)

- "[T]he intervening and superseding act itself need not necessarily be a negligent or intentional tort. For example, the culpability of the third person committing the intervening or superseding act is just one factor in determining if an intervening force is a new and independent superseding cause." (Ash v. North American Title Co. (2014) 223 Cal.App.4th 1258, 1277 [168 Cal.Rptr.3d 499] [unforeseeable bankruptcy can be superseding cause].)
- "Whether an intervening force is superseding or not generally presents a question of fact, but becomes a matter of law where only one reasonable conclusion may be reached." (Ash, supra, 223 Cal.App.4th at p. 1274.)
- "[O]ne does not reach the issue of superseding cause until one is satisfied that the record supports a finding of negligence on the part of the defendant and a further finding that but for such negligence the accident would not have occurred. This, at least, has been the approach of our Supreme Court. . . . [S]uch an approach may be analytically wrong, because a finding that plaintiff's harm was due to a superseding cause, is, in reality, a finding that the cause which injured the plaintiff was not a part of the risk created by the defendant." (Ewart v. Southern California Gas Co. (1965) 237 Cal.App.2d 163, 169 [46 Cal.Rptr. 631].)
- "The potential for error in the [instruction] lies in the ambiguity of the words 'extraordinary' and 'abnormal.' These terms could be interpreted as meaning either: A. Unforeseeable (unpredictable, statistically extremely improbable, etc.); or B. Outside the scope of that which would be done by ordinary man. The instruction was correct if interpreted in sense A, since defendant's conduct would not in fact give rise to liability if the criminal act were unforeseeable. However, the instruction was incorrect if interpreted in sense B. Such an interpretation would almost invariably preclude liability for failure to police against criminal conduct, since there are very few situations indeed to which ordinary men would respond by committing serious criminal offenses. Yet it is not the law that one has no duty to protect against foreseeable criminal acts." (Campodonico v. State Auto Parks, Inc. (1970) 10 Cal.App.3d 803, 807 [89 Cal.Rptr. 270], original italics.)
- "Proximate cause analysis is also concerned with intervening forces operating independent of defendant's conduct. Multiple elements are weighed in determining whether an intervening force is a superseding cause of harm to the plaintiff, thus absolving defendant from liability: '(a) the fact that its intervention brings about harm different in kind from that which would otherwise have resulted from the actor's negligence; [¶] (b) the fact that its operation or the consequences thereof appear after the event to be extraordinary rather than normal in view of the circumstances existing at the time of its operation; [¶] (c) the fact that the intervening force is operating independently of any situation created by the actor's negligence, or, on the other hand, is or is not a normal result of such a situation; [¶] (d) the fact that the operation of the intervening force is due to a third person's act or to his failure to act; [¶] (e) the fact that the intervening force is due to an act of a third person which is wrongful toward the other and as such subjects the third person to liability to him; [¶] (f) the degree of culpability of a wrongful act of a third person which sets the intervening force in motion.' " (Novak v. Continental Tire North America (2018) 22 Cal.App.5th 189, 197 [231 Cal.Rptr.3d 324], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1348, 1349

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 2(II)-O, Causation Issues, ¶ 2:2444 (The Rutter Group)

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 2(II)-D, Strict Liability For Defective Products, ¶ 2:1326 (The Rutter Group)

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 1.17

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 2, Causation, § 2.11 (Matthew Bender)

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 2, Liability for Defective Products, § 2.22 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence, § 380.74 (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, §§ 165.301, 165.321 (Matthew Bender)

433. Affirmative Defense—Causation: Intentional Tort/Criminal Act as Superseding Cause

[*Name of defendant] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] is not responsible for [name of plaintiff]'s harm because of the later [criminal/intentional] conduct of [insert name of third party]. [Name of defendant] is not responsible for [name of plaintiff]'s harm if [name of defendant] proves [both/all] of the following:

[1. That [*name of third party] committed [an intentional/a criminal] act;]]

2. That [*name of third party]'s [intentional/criminal] conduct happened after the conduct of [name of defendant]; and

3. That [*name of defendant] did not know and could not have reasonably foreseen that another person would be likely to take advantage of the situation created by [name of defendant]'s conduct to commit this type of act.

New September 2003; Revised June 2014

Directions for Use

Give the optional first element if there is a dispute of fact as to whether the third party actually committed the criminal or intentional act that is alleged to constitute superseding cause. The element may be modified to describe the alleged act more particularly if desired.

Sources and Authority

- "California has adopted the modern view embodied in section 448 of the Restatement Second of Torts: 'The act of a third person in committing an intentional tort or crime is a superseding cause of harm to another resulting therefrom, although the actor's negligent conduct created a situation which afforded an opportunity to the third person to commit such a tort or crime, unless the actor at the time of his negligent conduct realized or should have realized the likelihood that such a situation might be created, and that a third person might avail himself of the opportunity to commit such a tort or crime.' Present California decisions establish that a criminal act will be deemed a superseding cause unless it involves a particular and foreseeable hazard inflicted upon a member of a foreseeable class." (Kane v. Hartford Accident and Indemnity Co. (1979) 98 Cal.App.3d 350, 360 [159 Cal.Rptr. 446].)
- "[A]n intervening act does not amount to a 'superseding cause' relieving the negligent defendant of liability if it was reasonably foreseeable: '[An] actor may be liable if his negligence is a substantial factor in causing an injury, and he is not relieved of liability because of the intervening act of a third person if such act was reasonably foreseeable at the time of his negligent conduct.' Moreover, under section 449 of the Restatement Second of Torts that foreseeability may arise directly from the risk created by the original act of negligence: 'If the likelihood that a third person may act in a particular manner is the hazard or one of the hazards which makes the actor negligent, such an act whether innocent, negligent, intentionally tortious, or criminal does not prevent the actor from being liable for harm caused thereby.' " (Landeros v. Flood (1976) 17 Cal.3d 399, 411 [131 Cal.Rptr. 69, 551 P.2d 389], internal citations omitted.)

- "The trial court's modification of CACI No. 433 appears to have been intended to apply the principle of negligence law that unforeseeable criminal conduct cuts off a tortfeasor's liability. CACI No. 433 sets forth the heightened foreseeability that is required before an intervening criminal act will relieve a defendant of liability for negligence. A third party's criminal conduct becomes actionable if the negligent tortfeasor has created a situation that facilitated the crime." (Collins v. Navistar, Inc. (2013) 214 Cal.App.4th 1486, 1508 [155 Cal.Rptr.3d 137], internal citations omitted.)
- "Criminal conduct which causes injury will ordinarily be deemed the proximate cause of an injury, superseding any prior negligence which might otherwise be deemed a contributing cause." (Koepke v. Loo (1993) 18 Cal.App.4th 1444, 1449 [23 Cal.Rptr.2d 34].)
- "The common law rule that an intervening criminal act is, by its very nature, a superseding cause has lost its universal application and its dogmatic rigidity." (Kane, supra, 98 Cal.App.3d at p. 360.)
- "CACI No. 433 is neither a concurrent causation nor a comparative fault instruction allowing the jury to apportion relative degrees of fault. CACI No. 433, a superseding cause instruction, applies when a third party takes advantage of or utilizes a situation created by the tortfeasor's conduct to engage in intentional or criminal conduct inflicting harm on another person." (Crouch v. Trinity Christian Center of Santa Ana, Inc. (2019) 39 Cal.App.5th 995, 1023 [253 Cal.Rptr.3d 1].)
- "CACI No. 433 erroneously allowed [defendant] a complete defense based on a heightened standard of foreseeability inapplicable to plaintiffs' design defect claims. Specifically, CACI No. 433 allowed [defendant] to secure a defense verdict by showing it 'could not have reasonably foreseen that another person would be likely to take advantage of the situation created by . . . [defendant]'s conduct to commit this type of act.' However, [defendant] did not create a situation that [third party] took advantage of in order to commit a crime. [Third party] did not throw the concrete at [decedent]'s truck because he perceived a defective angle or composition of the windshield. CACI No. 433 erroneously introduced a test that does not make sense in this products liability case." (Collins, supra, 214 Cal.App.4th at p. 1509.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1365, 1367

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 1.17

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 2, Causation, § 2.11 (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, §§ 165.301, 165.303, 165.322 (Matthew Bender)

434. Alternative Causation

You may decide that more than one of the defendants was negligent, but that the negligence of only one of them could have actually caused [*name of plaintiff]'s harm. If you cannot decide which defendant caused [name of plaintiff]'s harm, you must decide that each defendant is responsible for the harm.

However, if a defendant proves that [he/she/*nonbinary pronoun/it] did not cause [name of plaintiff]'s harm, then you must conclude that defendant is not responsible.

New September 2003; Revised November 2019

Directions for Use

This instruction is based on the rule stated in the case of Summers v. Tice (1948) 33 Cal.2d 80, 86 [199 P.2d 1], in which the court held that the burden of proof on causation shifted to the two defendants to prove that each was not the cause of plaintiff's harm.

Sources and Authority

- "When we consider the relative position of the parties and the results that would flow if plaintiff was required to pin the injury on one of the defendants only, a requirement that the burden of proof on that subject be shifted to defendants becomes manifest. They are both wrongdoers—both negligent toward plaintiff. They brought about a situation where the negligence of one of them injured the plaintiff, hence it should rest with them each to absolve himself if he can. The injured party has been placed by defendants in the unfair position of pointing to which defendant caused the harm. If one can escape the other may also and plaintiff is remediless." (Summers, supra, 33 Cal.2d 80 at p. 86.)
- "California courts have applied the [Summers] alternative liability theory only when all potential tortfeasors have been joined as defendants." (Setliff v. E. I. Du Pont de Nemours & Co. (1995) 32 Cal.App.4th 1525, 1534–1535 [38 Cal.Rptr.2d 763].)
- "There is an important difference between the situation involved in Summers and the present case. There, all the parties who were or could have been responsible for the harm to the plaintiff were joined as defendants. Here, by contrast, there are approximately 200 drug companies which made DES, any of which might have manufactured the injury-producing drug." (Sindell v. Abbott Laboratories (1980) 26 Cal.3d 588, 602 [163 Cal.Rptr. 132, 607 P.2d 924].)
- "According to the Restatement, the burden of proof shifts to the defendants only if the plaintiff can demonstrate that all defendants acted tortiously and that the harm resulted from the conduct of one of them. (Rest.2d Torts, § 433B, com. g,

p. 446.) It goes on to state that the rule thus far has been applied only where all the actors involved are joined as defendants and where the conduct of all is simultaneous in time, but cases might arise in which some modification of the rule would be necessary if one of the actors is or cannot be joined, or because of the effects of lapse of time, or other circumstances." (Sindell, supra, 26 Cal.3d at p. 602, fn. 16.)

- "Summers applies to multiple tortfeasors not to multiple defendants, and it is immaterial in this case that the matter went to trial only as against respondent, for A, B, and/or C was also a tortfeasor." (Vahey v. Sacia (1981) 126 Cal.App.3d 171, 177 [178 Cal.Rptr. 559], original italics, footnote omitted.)
- "[Restatement Second of Torts] Section 433B, subdivision (3) sets forth the rule of Summers v. Tice, supra, 33 Cal. 2d 80, using its facts as an example. Comment h provides: 'The cases thus far decided in which the rule stated in Subsection (3) has been applied all have been cases in which all of the actors involved have been joined as defendants. All of these cases have involved conduct simultaneous in time, or substantially so, and all of them have involved conduct of substantially the same character, creating substantially the same risk of harm, on the part of each actor. It is possible that cases may arise in which some modification of the rule stated may be necessary because of complications arising from the fact that one of the actors involved is not or cannot be joined as a defendant, or because of the effect of lapse of time, or because of substantial differences in the character of the conduct of the actors or the risks which they have created. Since such cases have not arisen, and the situations which might arise are difficult to forecast, no attempt is made to deal with such problems in this Section. The rule stated in Subsection (3) is not intended to preclude possible modification if such situations call for it.' " (Setliff, supra, 32 Cal.App.4th at p. 1535.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1345

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 1.16

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 2, Causation, § 2.03 (Matthew Bender)

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 7, Proof, § 7.06 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence, § 380.72 (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, § 165.330 (Matthew Bender)

435. Causation for Asbestos-Related Cancer Claims

A substantial factor in causing harm is a factor that a reasonable person would consider to have contributed to the harm. It does not have to be the only cause of the harm.

[*Name of plaintiff] may prove that exposure to asbestos from [name of defendant]'s [product/ [,/or] activities/ [,/or] property/ [,/or] operations] was a substantial factor causing [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/[name of decedent]'s] illness by showing, through expert testimony, that there is a reasonable medical probability that the exposure was a substantial factor contributing to [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] risk of developing cancer.

New September 2003; Revised December 2007, May 2018, November 2018, May 2020, November 2020

Directions for Use

This instruction is to be given in a case in which the plaintiff's claim is that the plaintiff contracted an asbestos-related disease from exposure to the defendant's asbestos-containing product or asbestos-related activities. (See Rutherford v. Owens-Illinois, Inc. (1997) 16 Cal.4th 953, 982–983 [67 Cal.Rptr.2d 16, 941 P.2d 1203]; Lopez v. The Hillshire Brands Co. (2019) 41 Cal.App.5th 679, 688 [254 Cal.Rptr.3d 377] [addressing causation standard for exposure to asbestos from a defendant's property or operation when the defendant is not a manufacturer or supplier of asbestos-containing products]; but see Petitpas v. Ford Motor Co. (2017) 13 Cal.App.5th 261, 290 [220 Cal.Rptr.3d 185] [court gave CACI No. 435 with regard to premises liability defendant].) If the plaintiff's claim is based on anything other than disease resulting from asbestos exposure, then this instruction is not to be given.

If the issue of medical causation is tried separately, revise this instruction to focus on that issue.

If necessary, CACI No. 431, Causation: Multiple Causes, may also be given.

Sources and Authority

- "In the context of a cause of action for asbestos-related latent injuries, the plaintiff must first establish some threshold exposure to the defendant's defective asbestos-containing products, and must further establish in reasonable medical probability that a particular exposure or series of exposures was a 'legal cause' of his injury, i.e., a substantial factor in bringing about the injury. In an asbestos-related cancer case, the plaintiff need not prove that fibers from the defendant's product were the ones, or among the ones, that actually began the process of malignant cellular growth. Instead, the plaintiff may meet the burden of proving that exposure to defendant's product was a substantial factor causing the illness by showing that in reasonable medical probability it was a substantial factor contributing to the plaintiff's or decedent's risk of developing cancer. The jury should be so instructed. The standard instructions on substantial factor and concurrent causation remain correct in this context and should also be given." (Rutherford, supra, 16 Cal.4th at pp. 982–983, original italics, internal citation and footnotes omitted.)

- "Squarely faced with the issue of CACI No. 435's correctness for a non-manufacturer/non-supplier, we conclude that CACI No. 435 applied to plaintiffs' asbestos-related claim, even though [defendant] is not a manufacturer or supplier of asbestos. [¶] CACI No. 435 was developed to address the special considerations that apply when the injury was allegedly caused by asbestos exposure. These include the long latency period, the occupational settings that often expose workers to multiple forms and brands of asbestos, and, in a case of exposure to asbestos from multiple sources, the difficulty of proving that a plaintiff's or decedent's illness was caused by particular asbestos fibers traceable to the defendant. These considerations are similar whether the defendant was a manufacturer/supplier or otherwise created the exposure to asbestos." (Lopez, supra, 41 Cal.App.5th at p. 687, internal citation omitted.)
- "The term 'substantial factor' has not been judicially defined with specificity, and indeed it has been observed that it is 'neither possible nor desirable to reduce it to any lower terms.' This court has suggested that a force which plays only an 'infinitesimal' or 'theoretical' part in bringing about injury, damage, or loss is not a substantial factor. Undue emphasis should not be placed on the term 'substantial.' For example, the substantial factor standard, formulated to aid plaintiffs as a broader rule of causality than the 'but for' test, has been invoked by defendants whose conduct is clearly a 'but for' cause of plaintiff's injury but is nevertheless urged as an insubstantial contribution to the injury. Misused in this way, the substantial factor test 'undermines the principles of comparative negligence, under which a party is responsible for his or her share of negligence and the harm caused thereby.' " (Rutherford, supra, 16 Cal.4th at p. 969, internal citations omitted.)
- "[A] very minor force that does cause harm is a substantial factor. This rule honors the principle of comparative fault." (Bockrath v. Aldrich Chem. Co. (1999) 21 Cal.4th 71, 79 [86 Cal.Rptr.2d 846, 980 P.2d 398], internal citation omitted.)
- "Contrary to defendant's assertion, the California Supreme Court's decision in Viner v. Sweet (2003) 30 Cal.4th 1232 [135 Cal.Rptr.2d 629, 70 P.3d 1046] (Viner) did not alter the causation requirement in asbestos-related cases. In Viner, the court noted that subsection (1) of section 432 of the Restatement Second of Torts, which provides that 'the actor's negligent conduct is not a substantial factor in bringing about harm to another if the harm would have been sustained even if the actor had not been negligent,' 'demonstrates how the "substantial factor" test subsumes the traditional "but for" test of causation.' Defendant argues that Viner required plaintiffs to show that defendant's product 'independently caused [plaintiff's] injury or that, but for that exposure, [plaintiff] would not have contracted lung cancer.' Viner, however, is a legal malpractice case. It does not address the explicit holding in Rutherford that 'plaintiffs may prove causation in asbestos-related cancer cases by demonstrating that the plaintiff's exposure to defendant's asbestos-containing product in reasonable medical probability was a substantial factor in contributing to the aggregate dose of asbestos the plaintiff or decedent inhaled or ingested, and hence to the risk of developing asbestos-related cancer, without the need to demonstrate that fibers from the defendant's particular product were the ones, or among the ones, that actually produced the malignant growth.' " Viner is consistent with Rutherford insofar as Rutherford requires proof that an individual asbestos-containing product is a substantial factor contributing to the plaintiff's risk or probability of developing cancer." (Jones v. John Crane, Inc. (2005) 132 Cal.App.4th 990, 998, fn. 3 [35 Cal.Rptr.3d 144], internal citations omitted.)

- " 'A threshold issue in asbestos litigation is exposure to the defendant's product. . . . If there has been no exposure, there is no causation.' Plaintiffs bear the burden of 'demonstrating that exposure to [defendant's] asbestos products was, in reasonable medical probability, a substantial factor in causing or contributing to [plaintiff's] risk of developing cancer.' 'Factors relevant to assessing whether such a medical probability exists include frequency of exposure, regularity of exposure and proximity of the asbestos product to [plaintiff].' Therefore, '[plaintiffs] cannot prevail against [defendant] without evidence that [plaintiff] was exposed to asbestos-containing materials manufactured or furnished by [defendant] with enough frequency and regularity as to show a reasonable medical probability that this exposure was a factor in causing the plaintiff's injuries.' " (Whitmire v. Ingersoll-Rand Co. (2010) 184 Cal.App.4th 1078, 1084 [109 Cal.Rptr.3d 371], internal citations omitted.)
- "[G]iving CACI No. 430, which states that a factor is not substantial when it is 'remote or trivial,' could be misleading in an asbestos case, where the long latency period necessitates exposures will have been several years earlier. Jury instructions therefore should not suggest that a long latency period, in which the exposure was temporally 'remote,' precludes an otherwise sufficient asbestos claim. ' "Remote" often connotes a time limitation. Nothing in Rutherford suggests such a limitation; indeed, asbestos cases are brought long after exposure due to the long-term latent nature of asbestos-related diseases.' It was not error for the court to give CACI No. 435 alone instead of CACI No. 430." (Lopez, supra, 41 Cal.App.5th at p. 688, internal citation omitted.)
- "That the Use Notes caution against giving the more general CACI No. 430 in a mesothelioma case, when the more specific instruction CACI No. 435 is more applicable, does not support a conclusion that it was error to give both instructions. CACI No. 430 is a correct statement of the law relating to substantial factor causation, even though, as Rutherford noted, more specific instructions also must be given in a mesothelioma case. Because the more specific CACI No. 435 also was given, we do not find that the trial court erred by giving both instructions." (Petitpas, supra, 13 Cal.App.5th at p. 299, original italics.)

- "Further, '[t]he mere "possibility" of exposure' is insufficient to establish causation. '[P]roof that raises mere speculation, suspicion, surmise, guess or conjecture is not enough to sustain [the plaintiff's] burden' of persuasion." (Izell v. Union Carbide Corp. (2014) 231 Cal.App.4th 962, 969 [180 Cal.Rptr.3d 382], internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]here is no requirement that plaintiffs show that [defendant] was the exclusive, or even the primary, supplier of asbestos-containing gaskets to PG&E." (Turley v. Familian Corp. (2017) 18 Cal.App.5th 969, 981 [227 Cal.Rptr.3d 321].)
- "[T]o establish exposure in an asbestos case a plaintiff has no obligation to prove a specific exposure to a specific product on a specific date or time. Rather, it is sufficient to establish 'that defendant's product was definitely at his work site and that it was sufficiently prevalent to warrant an inference that plaintiff was exposed to it' during his work there." (Turley, supra, 18 Cal.App.5th at p. 985.)
- "To support an allocation of liability to another party in an asbestos case, a defendant must 'present evidence that the aggregate dose of asbestos particles arising from' exposure to that party's asbestos 'constituted a substantial factor in the causation of [the decedent's] cancer.' " (Soto v. BorgWarner Morse TEC Inc. (2015) 239 Cal.App.4th 165, 205 [191 Cal.Rptr.3d 263].)
- " '[G]iven the long latency period of asbestos-related disease, and the occupational settings that commonly exposed the worker to multiple forms and brands of asbestos products with varying degrees of toxicity,' our Supreme Court has held that a plaintiff 'need not prove with medical exactitude that fibers from a particular defendant's asbestos-containing products were those, or among those, that actually began the cellular process of malignancy.' Rather, a 'plaintiff may meet the burden of proving that exposure to defendant's product was a substantial factor causing the illness by showing that in reasonable medical probability it was a substantial factor contributing to the plaintiff's or decedent's risk of developing cancer.' " (Izell, supra, 231 Cal.App.4th at p. 975, original italics, internal citation omitted.)
- "Many factors are relevant in assessing the medical probability that an exposure contributed to plaintiff's asbestos disease. Frequency of exposure, regularity of exposure, and proximity of the asbestos product to plaintiff are certainly relevant, although these considerations should not be determinative in every case. [Citation.] Additional factors may also be significant in individual cases, such as the type of asbestos product to which plaintiff was exposed, the type of injury suffered by plaintiff, and other possible sources of plaintiff's injury. [Citations.] 'Ultimately, the sufficiency of the evidence of causation will depend on the unique circumstances of each case.' [Citation.] " (Paulus v. Crane Co. (2014) 224 Cal.App.4th 1357, 1363–1364 [169 Cal.Rptr.3d 373].)

- "In this case, [defendant] argues the trial court's refusal to give its proposed instruction was error because the instruction set forth 'the requirement in Rutherford that causation be decided by taking into account "the length, frequency, proximity and intensity of exposure, the peculiar properties of the individual product, [and] any other potential causes to which the disease could be attributed." ' But Rutherford does not require the jury to take these factors into account when deciding whether a plaintiff's exposure to an asbestos-containing product was a substantial factor in causing mesothelioma. Instead, those factors are ones that a medical expert may rely upon in forming his or her expert medical opinion." (Davis v. Honeywell Internat. Inc. (2016) 245 Cal.App.4th 477, 495 [199 Cal.Rptr.3d 583], internal citation omitted.)
- "Mere presence at a site where asbestos was present is insufficient to establish legally significant asbestos exposure." (Shiffer v. CBS Corp. (2015) 240 Cal.App.4th 246, 252 [192 Cal.Rptr.3d 346].)
- "We disagree with the trial court's view that Rutherford mandates that a medical doctor must expressly link together the evidence of substantial factor causation. The Rutherford court did not create a requirement that specific words must be recited by appellant's expert. Nor did the Rutherford court specify that the testifying expert in asbestos cases must always be 'somebody with an M.D. after his name.' The Rutherford court agreed with the Lineaweaver court that 'the reference to "medical probability" in the standard "is no more than a recognition that asbestos injury cases (like medical malpractice cases) involve the use of medical evidence." [Citation.]' The Supreme Court has since clarified that medical evidence does not necessarily have to be provided by a medical doctor." (Hernandez v. Amcord, Inc. (2013) 215 Cal.App.4th 659, 675 [156 Cal.Rptr.3d 90], internal citations omitted.)
- "Nothing in Rutherford precludes a plaintiff from establishing legal causation through opinion testimony by a competent medical expert to the effect that every exposure to respirable asbestos contributes to the risk of developing mesothelioma. On the contrary, Rutherford acknowledges the scientific debate between the 'every exposure' and 'insignificant exposure' camps, and recognizes that the conflict is one for the jury to resolve." (Izell, supra, 231 Cal.App.4th at p. 977.)
- "[T]he identified-exposure theory is a more rigorous standard of causation than the every-exposure theory. As a single example of the difference, we note [expert]'s statement that it 'takes significant exposures' to increase the risk of disease. This statement uses the plural 'exposures' and also requires that those exposures be 'significant.' The use of 'significant' as a limiting modifier appears to be connected to [expert]'s earlier testimony about the concentrations of airborne asbestos created by particular activities done by [plaintiff], such as filing, sanding and using an airhose to clean a brake drum." (Phillips v. Honeywell Internat. Inc. (2017) 9 Cal.App.5th 1061, 1088 [217 Cal.Rptr.3d 147].)
- "Nor is there a requirement that 'specific words must be recited by [plaintiffs'] expert.' [¶] The connection, however, must be made between the defendant's asbestos products and the risk of developing mesothelioma suffered by the decedent." (Paulus, supra, 224 Cal.App.4th at p. 1364.)

- "We hold that the duty of employers and premises owners to exercise ordinary care in their use of asbestos includes preventing exposure to asbestos carried by the bodies and clothing of on-site workers. Where it is reasonably foreseeable that workers, their clothing, or personal effects will act as vectors carrying asbestos from the premises to household members, employers have a duty to take reasonable care to prevent this means of transmission. This duty also applies to premises owners who use asbestos on their property, subject to any exceptions and affirmative defenses generally applicable to premises owners, such as the rules of contractor liability. Importantly, we hold that this duty extends only to members of a worker's household. Because the duty is premised on the foreseeability of both the regularity and intensity of contact that occurs in a worker's home, it does not extend beyond this circumscribed category of potential plaintiffs." (Kesner v. Superior Court (2016) 1 Cal.5th 1132, 1140 [210 Cal.Rptr.3d 283, 384 P.3d 283].)

Secondary Sources

3 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Actions, § 632

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 2(II)-D, Theories of Recovery—Strict Liability For Defective Products, ¶ 2:1259 (The Rutter Group)

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 2(II)-O, Theories of Recovery—Causation Issues, ¶ 2:2409 (The Rutter Group)

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 2, Causation, § 2.03 (Matthew Bender)

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 2, Liability for Defective Products, § 2.22, Ch. 7, Proof, § 7.06 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence, § 380.72 (Matthew Bender)

436–439. Reserved for Future Use

440. Negligent Use of Nondeadly Force by Law Enforcement Officer in Arrest or Other Seizure—Essential Factual Elements

A law enforcement officer may use reasonable force to [arrest/detain/ [,/or] prevent escape of/ [,/or] overcome resistance by] a person when the officer has reasonable cause to believe that that person has committed or is committing a crime. However, the officer may use only that degree of force necessary to [arrest/detain/ [,/or] prevent escape of/ [,/or] overcome resistance by] the person. [Even if the officer is mistaken, a person being arrested or detained has a duty not to use force to resist the officer unless the officer is using unreasonable force.].

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] was negligent in using unreasonable force to [arrest/detain/ [,/or] prevent escape of/ overcome resistance by] [him/her/nonbinary pronoun]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] used force to [arrest/detain/ [,/or] prevent escape of/ [,/or] overcome resistance by] [name of plaintiff];
2. That the amount of force used by [name of defendant] was unreasonable;
3. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
4. That [name of defendant]'s use of unreasonable force was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

In deciding whether [*name of defendant] used unreasonable force, you must consider the totality of the circumstances to determine what amount of force a reasonable [insert type of officer] in [name of defendant]'s position would have used under the same or similar circumstances. "Totality of the circumstances" means all facts known to the officer at the time, including the conduct of [name of defendant] and [name of plaintiff] leading up to the use of force. Among the factors to be considered are the following:

(a) Whether [*name of plaintiff] reasonably appeared to pose an immediate threat to the safety of [name of defendant] or others;

(b) The seriousness of the crime at issue; [and]

(c) Whether [*name of plaintiff] was actively resisting [arrest/detention] or attempting to avoid [arrest/detention] by flight[; and/.]

[(d) [*Name of defendant]'s tactical conduct and decisions before using force on [name of plaintiff].]

[An officer who makes or attempts to make an arrest does not have to retreat or stop because the person being arrested is resisting or threatening to resist. Tactical repositioning or other deescalation tactics are not retreat. An officer does not lose the right to self-defense by using objectively reasonable force to [arrest/detain/ [,/or] prevent escape of/ [,/or] overcome resistance by] the person.]

New June 2016; Revised May 2020, November 2020, May 2021

Directions for Use

Use this instruction if the plaintiff makes a negligence claim under state law arising from the force used in effecting an arrest or detention. Such a claim is often combined with a claimed civil rights violation under 42 United States Code section 1983. See CACI No. 3020, Excessive Use of Force—Unreasonable Arrest or Other Seizure—Essential Factual Elements. It might also be combined with a claim for battery. See CACI No. 1305, Battery by Peace Officer—Essential Factual Elements. For additional authorities on excessive force by a law enforcement officer, see the Sources and Authority to these two CACI instructions.

By its terms, Penal Code section 835a's deadly force provisions apply to "peace officers." It would appear that a negligence claim involving nondeadly force does not depend on whether the individual qualifies as a peace officer under the Penal Code. (See Pen. Code, § 835a; see also Pen. Code, § 830 et seq. [defining "peace officer"].) For cases involving the use of deadly force by a peace officer, use CACI No. 441, Negligent Use of Deadly Force by Peace Officer—Essential Factual Elements. (Pen. Code, § 835a.) This instruction and CACI No. 441 may require modification if the jury must decide whether the force used by the defendant was deadly or nondeadly.

Include the last bracketed sentence in the first paragraph only if there is evidence the person being arrested or detained used force to resist the officer.

Factors (a), (b), and (c) are often referred to as the "Graham factors." (See Graham v. Connor (1989) 490 U.S. 386, 396 [109 S.Ct. 1865, 104 L.Ed.2d 443].) The Graham factors are to be applied under California negligence law. (Hernandez v. City of Pomona (2009) 46 Cal.4th 501, 514 [94 Cal.Rptr.3d 1, 207 P.3d 506].) They are not exclusive (see Glenn v. Wash. County (9th Cir. 2011) 673 F.3d 864, 872); additional factors may be added if appropriate to the facts of the case. If negligence, civil rights, and battery claims are all involved, the instructions can be combined so as to give the Graham factors only once. A sentence may be added to advise the jury that the factors apply to multiple claims.

Factor (d) is bracketed because no reported California state court decision has held that an officer's tactical decisions before using nondeadly force can be actionable negligence. It has been held that liability can arise if the officer's earlier tactical conduct and decisions show, as part of the totality of circumstances, that the ultimate use of deadly force was unreasonable. (Hayes v. County of San Diego (2013) 57 Cal.4th 622, 639 [160 Cal.Rptr.3d 684, 305 P.3d 252].) In this respect, California negligence law differs from the federal standard under the Fourth Amendment. (Hayes, supra, 57 Cal.4th at p. 639 ["[T]he state and federal standards are not the same, which we now confirm"]; cf. Vos v. City of Newport Beach (9th Cir. 2018) 892 F.3d 1024, 1037 ["To determine police liability [under state law negligence], a court applies tort law's 'reasonable care' standard, which is distinct from the Fourth Amendment's 'reasonableness' standard. The Fourth Amendment is narrower and 'plac[es] less emphasis on preshooting conduct.'"]

Include the final bracketed paragraph only if the defendant claims that the person being arrested resisted arrest or threatened resistance.

Sources and Authority

- Legislative Findings re Use of Force by Law Enforcement. Penal Code section 835a(a).
- Use of Objectively Reasonable Force to Arrest. Penal Code section 835a(b).
- When Peace Officer Need Not Retreat. Penal Code section 835a(d).
- Definitions. Penal Code section 835a(e).
- "There is an abundance of authority permitting a plaintiff to go to the jury on both intentional and negligent tort theories, even though they are inconsistent. It has often been pointed out that there is no prohibition against pleading inconsistent causes of action stated in as many ways as plaintiff believes his evidence will show, and he is entitled to recover if one well pleaded count is supported by the evidence." (Grudt v. City of Los Angeles (1970) 2 Cal.3d 575, 586 [86 Cal.Rptr. 465, 468 P.2d 825].)
- "The evidence relevant to negligence and intentional tort overlaps here and presents a case similar to Grudt. . . . [¶] This court held it was reversible error to exclude the negligence issue from the jury even though plaintiff also had pled intentional tort. The court pointed to the rule that a party may proceed on inconsistent causes of action unless a nonsuit is appropriate." (Munoz v. Olin (1979) 24 Cal.3d 629, 635 [156 Cal.Rptr. 727, 596 P.2d 1143].)
- "Consistent with these principles and the factors the high court has identified, the federal court in this case did not instruct the jury to conduct some abstract or nebulous balancing of competing interests. Instead, as noted above, it instructed the jury to determine the reasonableness of the officers' actions in light of 'the totality of the circumstances at the time,' including 'the severity of the crime at issue, whether the plaintiff posed a reasonable threat to the safety of the officer or others, and whether the plaintiff was actively resisting detention or attempting to escape.' The same consideration of the totality of the circumstances is required in determining reasonableness under California negligence law. Moreover, California's civil jury instructions specifically direct the jury, in determining whether police officers used unreasonable force for purposes of tort liability, to consider the same factors that the high court has identified and that the federal court's instructions in this case set forth. (Judicial Council of Cal. Civ. Jury Instns. (2008) CACI No. 1305.) Thus, plaintiffs err in arguing that the federal and state standards of reasonableness differ in that the former involves a fact finder's balancing of competing interests." (Hernandez, supra, 46 Cal.4th at p. 514, internal citation omitted.)

- "Determining whether the force used to effect a particular seizure is 'reasonable' under the Fourth Amendment requires a careful balancing of ' "the nature and quality of the intrusion on the individual's Fourth Amendment interests" ' against the countervailing governmental interests at stake. Our Fourth Amendment jurisprudence has long recognized that the right to make an arrest or investigatory stop necessarily carries with it the right to use some degree of physical coercion or threat thereof to effect it. Because '[t]he test of reasonableness under the Fourth Amendment is not capable of precise definition or mechanical application,' however, its proper application requires careful attention to the facts and circumstances of each particular case, including the severity of the crime at issue, whether the suspect poses an immediate threat to the safety of the officers or others, and whether he is actively resisting arrest or attempting to evade arrest by flight." (Graham, supra, 490 U.S. at p. 396, internal citations omitted.)
- "The most important of these [Graham factors, above] is whether the suspect posed an immediate threat to the officers or others, as measured objectively under the circumstances." (Mendoza v. City of West Covina (2012) 206 Cal.App.4th 702, 712 [141 Cal.Rptr.3d 553].)
- "Plaintiff must prove unreasonable force as an element of the tort." (Edson v. City of Anaheim (1998) 63 Cal.App.4th 1269, 1272 [74 Cal.Rptr.2d 614].)
- " ' "The 'reasonableness' of a particular use of force must be judged from the perspective of a reasonable officer on the scene, rather than with the 20/20 vision of hindsight. . . . [T]he question is whether the officers' actions are 'objectively reasonable' in light of the facts and circumstances confronting them, without regard to their underlying intent or motivation. . . ." ' In calculating whether the amount of force was excessive, a trier of fact must recognize that peace officers are often forced to make split-second judgments, in tense circumstances, concerning the amount of force required." (Brown v. Ransweiler (2009) 171 Cal.App.4th 516, 527–528 [89 Cal.Rptr.3d 801], internal citations omitted.)
- " '[A]s long as an officer's conduct falls within the range of conduct that is reasonable under the circumstances, there is no requirement that he or she choose the "most reasonable" action or the conduct that is the least likely to cause harm and at the same time the most likely to result in the successful apprehension of a violent suspect, in order to avoid liability for negligence.'" (Hayes, supra, 57 Cal.4th at p. 632.)
- "The California Supreme Court did not address whether decisions before non-deadly force can be actionable negligence, but addressed this issue only in the context of 'deadly force.'" (Mulligan v. Nichols (9th Cir. 2016) 835 F.3d 983, 991, fn. 7.)
- "[T]here is no right to use force, reasonable or otherwise, to resist an unlawful detention . . . ." (Evans v. City of Bakersfield (1994) 22 Cal.App.4th 321, 333 [27 Cal.Rptr.2d 406].)

- "[E]xecution of an unlawful arrest or detention does not give license to an individual to strike or assault the officer unless excessive force is used or threatened; excessive force in that event triggers the individual's right of self-defense." (Evans, supra, 22 Cal.App.4th at p. 331, original italics, internal citation omitted.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 496

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 41, Assault and Battery, § 41.24 seq. (Matthew Bender)

6 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 58, Assault and Battery, § 58.22 (Matthew Bender)

441. Negligent Use of Deadly Force by Peace Officer—Essential Factual Elements

A peace officer may use deadly force only when necessary in defense of human life. [*Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] was negligent in using deadly force to [arrest/detain/ [,/or] prevent escape of/ [,/or] overcome resistance to] [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/name of decedent]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] was a peace officer;
2. That [name of defendant] used deadly force on [name of plaintiff/decedent];
3. That [name of defendant]'s use of deadly force was not necessary to defend human life;
4. That [name of plaintiff/decedent] was [harmed/killed]; and
5. That [name of defendant]'s use of deadly force was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff/decedent]'s [harm/death].

[*Name of defendant]'s use of deadly force was necessary to defend human life only if a reasonable officer in the same situation would have believed, based on the totality of the circumstances known to or perceived by [name of defendant] at the time, that deadly force was necessary [either]:

[to defend against an imminent threat of death or serious bodily injury to [*name of defendant] [and/or] [another person]][; or/.]]

[to apprehend a fleeing person for a felony, when all of the following conditions are present:

i. The felony threatened or resulted in death or serious bodily injury to another;

ii. [Name of defendant] reasonably believed that the person fleeing would cause death or serious bodily injury to another unless immediately apprehended; and

iii. [Name of defendant] made reasonable efforts to identify [himself/herself/nonbinary pronoun] as a peace officer and to warn that deadly force may be used, unless the officer had objectively reasonable grounds to believe the person is aware of those facts.]

[A peace officer must not use deadly force against persons based only on the danger those persons pose to themselves, if an objectively reasonable officer would believe the person does not pose an imminent threat of death or serious bodily injury to the peace officer or to another person.]

[A person being [arrested/detained] has a duty not to use force to resist a peace officer unless the peace officer is using unreasonable force.]

["Deadly force" is force that creates a substantial risk of causing death or serious bodily injury. It is not limited to the discharge of a firearm.]

A threat of death or serious bodily injury is "imminent" if, based on the totality of the circumstances, a reasonable officer in the same situation would believe that a person has the present ability, opportunity, and apparent intent to immediately cause death or serious bodily injury to the peace officer or to another person. An imminent harm is not merely a fear of future harm, no matter how great the fear and no matter how great the likelihood of the harm, but is one that, from appearances, must be instantly confronted and addressed.

"Totality of the circumstances" means all facts known to or perceived by the peace officer at the time, including the conduct of [*name of defendant] and [name of plaintiff/decedent] leading up to the use of deadly force. In determining whether [name of defendant]'s use of deadly force was necessary in defense of human life, you must consider [name of defendant]'s tactical conduct and decisions before using deadly force on [name of plaintiff/decedent] and whether [name of defendant] used other available resources and techniques as [an] alternative[s] to deadly force, if it was reasonably safe and feasible to an objectively reasonable officer.

[A peace officer who makes or attempts to make an arrest does not have to retreat or stop because the person being arrested is resisting or threatening to resist. Tactical repositioning or other deescalation tactics are not retreat. A peace officer does not lose the right to self-defense by using objectively reasonable force to [arrest/detain/ [,/or] prevent escape/ [,/or] overcome resistance].]

New November 2020

Directions for Use

Use this instruction for a negligence claim arising from a peace officer's use of deadly force. Penal Code section 835a preserves the "reasonable force" standard for nondeadly force, but creates a separate, higher standard that authorizes a peace officer to use deadly force only when "necessary in defense of human life." If the plaintiff claims that the defendant used both deadly and nondeadly force, or if the jury must decide whether the force used was deadly or nondeadly, this instruction may be used along with the corresponding essential elements for negligence involving nondeadly force. See CACI No. 440, Negligent Use of Nondeadly Force by Law Enforcement Officer in Arrest or Other Seizure—Essential Factual Elements.

Element 1 may be stipulated to or decided by the judge as a matter of law. In such a case, the judge must instruct the jury that the defendant was a peace officer. If there are contested issues of fact regarding element 1, include the specific factual findings necessary for the jury to determine whether the defendant was a peace officer.

Select either or both bracketed options concerning the justifications for using deadly force under Penal Code section § 835a(c) depending on the facts of the case. If only one justification is supported by the facts, omit the either/or language. Include the bracketed sentence following the justifications if the plaintiff claims that the only threat the plaintiff posed was self-harm. A peace officer may not use deadly force against a person based on a danger that person poses to themselves if an objectively reasonable officer would believe the person does not pose an imminent threat of death or serious bodily injury to the peace officer or to another person. (Pen. Code, § 835a(c)(2).)

"Deadly force" means any use of force that creates a substantial risk of causing death or serious bodily injury, including, but not limited to, the discharge of a firearm. (Pen. Code, § 835a(e)(1).) The definition may be omitted from the instruction if a firearm was used. Note that this definition does not require that the encounter result in the death of the person against whom the force was used. If there is no dispute about the use of deadly force, the court should instruct the jury that deadly force was used.

Include the final bracketed paragraph only if the defendant claims that the person being arrested resisted arrest or threatened resistance.

In a wrongful death or survival action, use the name of the decedent victim where applicable and further modify the instruction as appropriate.

Sources and Authority

- Legislative Findings Regarding Use of Force by Law Enforcement. Penal Code section 835a(a).
- When Use of Deadly Force Is Justified. Penal Code section 835a(c).
- When Peace Officer Need Not Retreat. Penal Code section 835a(d).
- Definitions. Penal Code section 835a(e).
- "Peace Officer" Defined. Penal Code section 830 et seq.
- "There is an abundance of authority permitting a plaintiff to go to the jury on both intentional and negligent tort theories, even though they are inconsistent. It has often been pointed out that there is no prohibition against pleading inconsistent causes of action stated in as many ways as plaintiff believes his evidence will show, and he is entitled to recover if one well pleaded count is supported by the evidence." (Grudt v. City of Los Angeles (1970) 2 Cal.3d 575, 586 [86 Cal.Rptr. 465, 468 P.2d 825].)
- "The evidence relevant to negligence and intentional tort overlaps here and presents a case similar to Grudt v. City of Los Angeles, supra, 2 Cal.3d 575. . . . [¶] This court held it was reversible error to exclude the negligence issue from the jury even though plaintiff also had pled intentional tort. The court pointed to the rule that a party may proceed on inconsistent causes of action unless a nonsuit is appropriate." (Munoz v. Olin (1979) 24 Cal.3d 629, 635 [156 Cal.Rptr. 727, 596 P.2d 1143].)

- "[T]here is no right to use force, reasonable or otherwise, to resist an unlawful detention . . . ." (Evans v. City of Bakersfield (1994) 22 Cal.App.4th 321, 333 [27 Cal.Rptr.2d 406].)
- "[E]xecution of an unlawful arrest or detention does not give license to an individual to strike or assault the officer unless excessive force is used or threatened; excessive force in that event triggers the individual's right of self-defense." (Evans, supra, 22 Cal.App.4th at p. 331, original italics, internal citation omitted.)
- "[T]he reasonableness of a peace officer's conduct must be determined in light of the totality of circumstances. [Citations.] . . . [P]reshooting conduct is included in the totality of circumstances surrounding an officer's use of deadly force, and therefore the officer's duty to act reasonably when using deadly force extends to preshooting conduct." (Villalobos v. City of Santa Maria (2022) 85 Cal.App.5th 383, 389 [301 Cal.Rptr.3d 308], internal citation omitted.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 427, 993

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 61, Particular Liabilities and Immunities of Public Entities and Public Employees, § 61.10 (Matthew Bender)

6 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Government Claims Act, § 464.102 (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts § 12:22 (Thomson Reuters)

442–449. Reserved for Future Use

450A. Good Samaritan—Nonemergency

[Name of defendant] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] is not responsible for [name of plaintiff]'s harm because [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was voluntarily trying to protect [name of plaintiff] from harm in a nonemergency situation. If you decide that [name of defendant] was negligent, [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] is not responsible unless [name of plaintiff] proves both of the following:

1. [(a) That [name of defendant]'s failure to use reasonable care added to the risk of harm;]

   [or]

   [(b) That [name of defendant]'s conduct caused [name of plaintiff] to reasonably rely on [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] protection;]

AND

2. That the [additional risk/ [or] reliance] was a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff].

Derived from former CACI No. 450 December 2010

Directions for Use

Use this instruction for situations other than at the scene of an emergency. Different standards apply in an emergency situation. (See Health & Saf. Code, § 1799.102; CACI No. 450B, Good Samaritan—Scene of Emergency.) Give both instructions if the jury will be asked to decide whether an emergency existed as the preliminary issue. Because under Health and Safety Code section 1799.102 a defendant receives greater protection in an emergency situation, the advisory committee believes that the defendant bears the burden of proving an emergency. (See Evid. Code, § 500 [party has the burden of proof as to each fact the existence or nonexistence of which is essential to the claim for relief or defense asserted].)

Select either or both options for element 1 depending on the facts.

Sources and Authority

- Good Samaritan Immunity for Medical Licensees. Business and Professions Code sections 2395–2398.
- Good Samaritan Immunity for Nurses. Business and Professions Code sections 2727.5, 2861.5.
- Good Samaritan Immunity for Dentists. Business and Professions Code section 1627.5.
- Good Samaritan Immunity for Rescue Teams. Health and Safety Code section 1317(f).

- Good Samaritan Immunity for Persons Rendering Emergency Medical Services Health and Safety Code section 1799.102.
- Good Samaritan Immunity for Paramedics. Health and Safety Code section 1799.104.
- Good Samaritan Immunity for First-Aid Volunteers. Government Code section 50086.
- "Under well-established common law principles, a person has no duty to come to the aid of another. If, however, a person elects to come to someone's aid, he or she has a duty to exercise due care. Thus, a 'good Samaritan' who attempts to help someone might be liable if he or she does not exercise due care and ends up causing harm." (Van Horn v. Watson (2008) 45 Cal.4th 322, 324 [86 Cal.Rptr.3d 350, 197 P.3d 164], internal citations omitted.)
- "A person who has not created a peril is not liable in tort merely for failure to take affirmative action to assist or protect another unless there is some relationship between them which gives rise to a duty to act. Also pertinent to our discussion is the role of the volunteer who, having no initial duty to do so, undertakes to come to the aid of another—the 'good Samaritan.' . . . He is under a duty to exercise due care in performance and is liable if (a) his failure to exercise such care increases the risk of such harm, or (b) the harm is suffered because of the other's reliance upon the undertaking." (Williams v. State of California (1983) 34 Cal.3d 18, 23 [192 Cal.Rptr. 233, 664 P.2d 137], internal citations omitted.)
- "A defendant does not increase the risk of harm by merely failing to eliminate a preexisting risk." (University of Southern California v. Superior Court (2018) 30 Cal.App.5th 429, 450 [241 Cal.Rptr.3d 616].)
- "A police officer, paramedic or other public safety worker is as much entitled to the benefit of this general rule as anyone else." (Camp v. State of California (2010) 184 Cal.App.4th 967, 975 [109 Cal.Rptr.3d 676].)
- "The police owe duties of care only to the public at large and, except where they enter into a 'special relationship,' have no duty to offer affirmative assistance to anyone in particular." (Arista v. County of Riverside (2018) 29 Cal.App.5th 1051, 1060–1061 [241 Cal.Rptr.3d 437].)
- "Under the good Samaritan doctrine, CHP may have a duty to members of the public to exercise due care when CHP voluntarily assumes a protective duty toward a certain member of the public and undertakes action on behalf of that member thereby inducing reliance, when an express promise to warn of a danger has induced reliance, or when the actions of CHP place a person in peril or increase the risk of harm. In other words, to create a special relationship and a duty of care, there must be evidence that CHP ' "made misrepresentations that induced a citizen's detrimental reliance [citation], placed a citizen in harm's way [citations], or lulled a citizen into a false sense of security and then withdrew essential safety precautions." ' Nonfeasance that leaves the citizen in exactly the same position that he or she already occupied cannot support a finding of duty of care. Affirmative conduct or misfeasance on the part of CHP that induces reliance or changes the risk of harm is required." (Greyhound Lines, Inc. v. Department of the California Highway Patrol (2013) 213 Cal.App.4th 1129, 1136 [152 Cal.Rptr.3d 492], internal citations omitted.)

- "A special relationship can be found 'when the state, through its agents, voluntarily assumes a protective duty toward a certain member of the public and undertakes action on behalf of that member, thereby inducing reliance, it is held to the same standard of care as a private person or organization.' " (Arista, supra, 29 Cal.App.5th at p. 1061.)

Secondary Sources

4 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Pleadings, § 599

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1205–1210

Flahavan et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury (The Rutter Group) ¶¶ 2:583.10–2:583.11, 2:876

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 1, Negligence: Duty and Breach, § 1.11[4] (Matthew Bender)

4 California Trial Guide, Unit 90, Closing Argument, § 90.90 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence, § 380.32[2], [5] (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, § 165.150 (Matthew Bender)

450B. Good Samaritan—Scene of Emergency

[*Name of defendant] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] is not responsible for [name of plaintiff]'s harm because [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was trying to protect [name of plaintiff] from harm at the scene of an emergency.

To succeed on this defense, [*name of defendant] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] rendered medical or nonmedical care or assistance to [name of plaintiff] at the scene of an emergency;
2. That [name of defendant] was acting in good faith; and
3. That [name of defendant] was not acting for compensation.

If you decide that [*name of defendant] has proved all of the above, but you decide that [name of defendant] was negligent, [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] is not responsible unless [name of plaintiff] proves that [name of defendant]'s conduct constituted gross negligence or willful or wanton misconduct.

"Gross negligence" is the lack of any care or an extreme departure from what a reasonably careful person would do in the same situation.

"Willful or wanton misconduct" means conduct by a person who may have no intent to cause harm, but who intentionally performs an act so unreasonable and dangerous that the person knows or should know it is highly probable that harm will result.

If you find that [*name of defendant] was grossly negligent or acted willfully or wantonly, [name of plaintiff] must then also prove:

1. [(a) That [name of defendant]'s conduct added to the risk of harm;]

   [or]

   [(b) That [*name of defendant]'s conduct caused [name of plaintiff] to reasonably rely on [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] protection;]

AND

2. That the [additional risk/ [or] reliance] was a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff].

Derived from former CACI No. 450 December 2010; Revised December 2011, May 2020

Directions for Use

Use this instruction for situations at the scene of an emergency not involving medical, law enforcement, or emergency personnel. (See Health & Saf. Code, § 1799.102.) In a nonemergency situation, give CACI No. 450A, Good Samaritan—Nonemergency.

Under Health and Safety Code section 1799.102(b), the defendant must have acted at the scene of an emergency, in good faith, and not for compensation. These terms are not defined, and neither the statute nor case law indicates who has the burden of proof. However, the advisory committee believes that it is more likely that the defendant has the burden of proving those things necessary to invoke the protections of the statute. (See Evid. Code, § 500 [party has the burden of proof as to each fact the existence or nonexistence of which is essential to the claim for relief or defense asserted].)

If the jury finds that the statutory standards have been met, then presumably it must also find that the common-law standards for Good-Samaritan liability have also been met. (See Health & Saf. Code, § 1799.102(c) ["Nothing in this section shall be construed to change any existing legal duties or obligations"].) In the common-law part of the instruction, select either or both options for element 1 depending on the facts.

See also CACI No. 425, "Gross Negligence" Explained.

Sources and Authority

- Immunity for Persons Rendering Care at Scene of Emergency. Health and Safety Code section 1799.102.
- " 'Gross negligence' long has been defined in California and other jurisdictions as either a ' " 'want of even scant care' " ' or ' " 'an extreme departure from the ordinary standard of conduct.' " ' " (City of Santa Barbara v. Superior Court (2007) 41 Cal.4th 747, 754 [62 Cal.Rptr.3d 527, 161 P.3d 1095], internal citations omitted.)
- "By contrast, 'wanton' or 'reckless' misconduct (or ' "willful and wanton negligence" ') describes conduct by a person who may have no intent to cause harm, but who intentionally performs an act so unreasonable and dangerous that he or she knows or should know it is highly probable that harm will result." (City of Santa Barbara, supra, 41 Cal.4th at p. 754, fn. 4, internal citations omitted.)
- "Under well-established common law principles, a person has no duty to come to the aid of another. If, however, a person elects to come to someone's aid, he or she has a duty to exercise due care. Thus, a 'good Samaritan' who attempts to help someone might be liable if he or she does not exercise due care and ends up causing harm." (Van Horn v. Watson (2008) 45 Cal.4th 322, 324 [86 Cal.Rptr.3d 350, 197 P.3d 164], internal citations omitted.)
- "A person who has not created a peril is not liable in tort merely for failure to take affirmative action to assist or protect another unless there is some relationship between them which gives rise to a duty to act. Also pertinent to our discussion is the role of the volunteer who, having no initial duty to do so, undertakes to come to the aid of another—the 'good Samaritan.' . . . He is under a duty to exercise due care in performance and is liable if (a) his failure to exercise such care increases the risk of such harm, or (b) the harm is suffered because of the other's reliance upon the undertaking." (Williams v. State of California (1983) 34 Cal.3d 18, 23 [192 Cal.Rptr. 233, 664 P.2d 137], internal citations omitted.)

- "A police officer, paramedic or other public safety worker is as much entitled to the benefit of this general rule as anyone else." (Camp v. State of California (2010) 184 Cal.App.4th 967, 975 [109 Cal.Rptr.3d 676].)
- "Under the good Samaritan doctrine, CHP may have a duty to members of the public to exercise due care when CHP voluntarily assumes a protective duty toward a certain member of the public and undertakes action on behalf of that member thereby inducing reliance, when an express promise to warn of a danger has induced reliance, or when the actions of CHP place a person in peril or increase the risk of harm. In other words, to create a special relationship and a duty of care, there must be evidence that CHP ' "made misrepresentations that induced a citizen's detrimental reliance [citation], placed a citizen in harm's way [citations], or lulled a citizen into a false sense of security and then withdrew essential safety precautions." ' Nonfeasance that leaves the citizen in exactly the same position that he or she already occupied cannot support a finding of duty of care. Affirmative conduct or misfeasance on the part of CHP that induces reliance or changes the risk of harm is required." (Greyhound Lines, Inc. v. Department of the California Highway Patrol (2013) 213 Cal.App.4th 1129, 1136 [152 Cal.Rptr.3d 492], internal citations omitted.)
- Statutory exceptions to Good Samaritan liability include immunities under certain circumstances for medical licensees (Bus. & Prof. Code, §§ 2395–2398), nurses (Bus. & Prof. Code, §§ 2727.5, 2861.5), dentists (Bus. & Prof. Code, § 1627.5), rescue teams (Health & Saf. Code, § 1317(f)), persons rendering emergency medical services (Health & Saf. Code, § 1799.102), paramedics (Health & Saf. Code, § 1799.104), and first-aid volunteers (Gov. Code, § 50086).

Secondary Sources

4 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Pleadings, § 599

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1205–1210

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 2(IV)-H, Emergency Medical Services Immunity, ¶¶ 2:3495–2:3516 (The Rutter Group)

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 1, Negligence: Duty and Breach, § 1.11[4] (Matthew Bender)

4 California Trial Guide, Unit 90, Closing Argument, § 90.90 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence, § 380.32[2], [5] (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, § 165.150 (Matthew Bender)

450C. Negligent Undertaking

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] is responsible for [name of plaintiff]'s harm because [name of defendant] failed to exercise reasonable care in rendering services to [name of third person]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant], voluntarily or for a charge, rendered services to [name of third person];
2. That these services were of a kind that [name of defendant] should have recognized as needed for the protection of [name of plaintiff];
3. That [name of defendant] failed to exercise reasonable care in rendering these services;
4. That [name of defendant]'s failure to exercise reasonable care was a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]; and
5. [(a) That [name of defendant]'s failure to use reasonable care added to the risk of harm;]

   [or]

   [(b) That [*name of defendant]'s services were rendered to perform a duty that [name of third person] owed to third persons including [name of plaintiff];]

   [or]

   [(c) That [*name of plaintiff] suffered harm because [[name of third person]/ [or] [name of plaintiff]] relied on [name of defendant]'s services.]

New June 2016; Revised November 2018

Directions for Use

This instruction presents the theory of liability known as the "negligent undertaking" rule. (See Restatement Second of Torts, section 324A.) The elements are stated in Paz v. State of California (2000) 22 Cal.4th 550, 553 [93 Cal.Rptr.2d 703, 994 P.2d 975].

In Paz, the court said that negligent undertaking is "sometimes referred to as the 'Good Samaritan' rule," by which a person generally has no duty to come to the aid of another and cannot be liable for doing so unless the person aiding's acts increased the risk to the person aided or the person aided relied on the person aiding's acts. (Paz, supra, 22 Cal.4th at p. 553; see CACI No. 450A, Good Samaritan—Nonemergency.) It is perhaps more accurate to say that negligent undertaking is another application of the Good Samaritan rule. CACI No. 450A is for use in a case in which the person aided is the injured plaintiff. (See Restatement 2d of Torts, § 323.) This instruction is for use in a case in which the defendant's failure to exercise reasonable care in performing services to one person has resulted in harm to another person.

Select one or more of the three options for element 5 depending on the facts.

Sources and Authority

- Negligent Undertaking. Restatement Second of Torts section 324A.
- "[T]he [Restatement Second of Torts] section 324A theory of liability—sometimes referred to as the "Good Samaritan" rule—is a settled principle firmly rooted in the common law of negligence. Section 324A prescribes the conditions under which a person who undertakes to render services for another may be liable to third persons for physical harm resulting from a failure to act with reasonable care. Liability may exist if (a) the failure to exercise reasonable care increased the risk of harm, (b) the undertaking was to perform a duty the other person owed to the third persons, or (c) the harm was suffered because the other person or the third persons relied on the undertaking." (Paz, supra, 22 Cal.4th at p. 553, original italics.)
- "Thus, as the traditional theory is articulated in the Restatement, and as we have applied it in other contexts, a negligent undertaking claim of liability to third parties requires evidence that: (1) the actor undertook, gratuitously or for consideration, to render services to another; (2) the services rendered were of a kind the actor should have recognized as necessary for the protection of third persons; (3) the actor failed to exercise reasonable care in the performance of the undertaking; (4) the actor's failure to exercise reasonable care resulted in physical harm to the third persons; and (5) either (a) the actor's carelessness increased the risk of such harm, or (b) the actor undertook to perform a duty that the other owed to the third persons, or (c) the harm was suffered because either the other or the third persons relied on the actor's undertaking. [¶] Section 324A's negligent undertaking theory of liability subsumes the well-known elements of any negligence action, viz., duty, breach of duty, proximate cause, and damages." (Paz, supra, 22 Cal.4th at p. 559, original italics, internal citation omitted; see also Scott v. C. R. Bard, Inc. (2014) 231 Cal.App.4th 763, 775 [180 Cal.Rptr.3d 479] [jury properly instructed on elements as set forth above in Paz].)
- "Under this formulation, a duty of care exists when the first, second and fifth elements are established. The third element addresses the breach of that duty of care and the fourth element covers both causation and damages." (Peredia v. HR Mobile Services, Inc. (2018) 25 Cal.App.5th 680, 691 [236 Cal.Rptr.3d 157].)
- "Section 324A is applied to determine the 'duty element' in a negligence action where the defendant has ' "specifically . . . undertaken to perform the task that he is charged with having performed negligently, for without the actual assumption of the undertaking there can be no correlative duty to perform that undertaking carefully." ' The negligent undertaking theory of liability applies to personal injury and property damage claims, but not to claims seeking only economic loss." (Lichtman v. Siemens Industry Inc. (2017) 16 Cal.App.5th 914, 922 [224 Cal.Rptr.3d 725], internal citations omitted.)

- "The foundation for considering whether an actor . . . should be exposed to liability on this theory is whether the actor made a specific undertaking ' "to perform the task that he is charged with having performed negligently, for without the actual assumption of the undertaking there can be no correlative duty to perform that undertaking carefully." ' " (Jabo v. YMCA of San Diego County (2018) 27 Cal.App.5th 853, 878 [238 Cal.Rptr.3d 588].)
- "[U]nder a negligent undertaking theory of liability, the scope of a defendant's duty presents a jury issue when there is a factual dispute as to the nature of the undertaking. The issue of 'whether [a defendant's] alleged actions, if proven, would constitute an "undertaking" sufficient . . . to give rise to an actionable duty of care is a legal question for the court.' However, 'there may be fact questions "about precisely what it was that the defendant undertook to do." That is, while "[t]he 'precise nature and extent' of [an alleged negligent undertaking] duty 'is a question of law . . . "it depends on the nature and extent of the act undertaken, a question of fact." ' " [Citation.] Thus, if the record can support competing inferences [citation], or if the facts are not yet sufficiently developed [citation], " 'an ultimate finding on the existence of a duty cannot be made prior to a hearing on the merits' " [citation], and summary judgment is precluded. [Citations.]' (see CACI No. 450C [each element of the negligent undertaking theory of liability is resolved by the trier of fact].)" (O'Malley v. Hospitality Staffing Solutions (2018) 20 Cal.App.5th 21, 27–28 [228 Cal.Rptr.3d 731], internal citations omitted.)
- "To establish as a matter of law that defendant does not owe plaintiffs a duty under a negligent undertaking theory, defendant must negate all three alternative predicates of the fifth factor: '(a) the actor's carelessness increased the risk of such harm, or (b) the undertaking was to perform a duty owed by the other to the third persons, or (c) the harm was suffered because of the reliance of the other or the third persons upon the undertaking.' " (Lichtman, supra, 16 Cal.App.5th at p. 926.)
- "The undisputed facts here present a classic scenario for consideration of the negligent undertaking theory. This theory of liability is typically applied where the defendant has contractually agreed to provide services for the protection of others, but has negligently done so." (Lichtman, supra, 16 Cal.App.5th at p. 927.)
- "The general rule is that a person who has not created a peril is not liable in tort for failing to take affirmative action to protect another unless they have some relationship that gives rise to a duty to act. However, one who undertakes to aid another is under a duty to exercise due care in acting and is liable if the failure to do so increases the risk of harm or if the harm is suffered because the other relied on the undertaking. Section 324A integrates these two basic principles in its rule." (Paz. supra, 22 Cal.4th at pp. 558–559.)

- "[T]he 'negligent undertaking' doctrine, like the special relationship doctrine, is an exception to the 'no duty to aid' rule." (Conti v. Watchtower Bible & Tract Society of New York, Inc. (2015) 235 Cal.App.4th 1214, 1231 [186 Cal.Rptr.3d 26].)
- "Under the good Samaritan doctrine, CHP may have a duty to members of the public to exercise due care when CHP voluntarily assumes a protective duty toward a certain member of the public and undertakes action on behalf of that member thereby inducing reliance, when an express promise to warn of a danger has induced reliance, or when the actions of CHP place a person in peril or increase the risk of harm. In other words, to create a special relationship and a duty of care, there must be evidence that CHP ' "made misrepresentations that induced a citizen's detrimental reliance [citation], placed a citizen in harm's way [citations], or lulled a citizen into a false sense of security and then withdrew essential safety precautions." ' Nonfeasance that leaves the citizen in exactly the same position that he or she already occupied cannot support a finding of duty of care. Affirmative conduct or misfeasance on the part of CHP that induces reliance or changes the risk of harm is required." (Greyhound Lines, Inc. v. Department of the California Highway Patrol (2013) 213 Cal.App.4th 1129, 1136 [152 Cal.Rptr.3d 492], internal citations omitted.)
- "A defendant does not increase the risk of harm by merely failing to eliminate a preexisting risk." (University of Southern California v. Superior Court (2018) 30 Cal.App.5th 429, 450 [241 Cal.Rptr.3d 616].)
- "A operates a grocery store. An electric light hanging over one of the aisles of the store becomes defective, and A calls B Electric Company to repair it. B Company sends a workman, who repairs the light, but leaves the fixture so insecurely attached that it falls upon and injures C, a customer in the store who is walking down the aisle. B Company is subject to liability to C." (Restat. 2d of Torts, § 324A, Illustration 1.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Pleadings, § 599

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1205–1210

Flahavan et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 2(II)-I, Negligence Liability Based on Omission to Act—Legal Duty Arising from "Special Relationship", ¶¶ 2:2005–2:2009 (The Rutter Group)

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 1, Negligence: Duty and Breach, § 1.11 (Matthew Bender)

4 California Trial Guide, Unit 90, Closing Argument, § 90.90 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence, § 380.32[2], [5] (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, §§ 165.150, 165.241 (Matthew Bender)

451. Affirmative Defense—Contractual Assumption of Risk

[*Name of defendant] claims that [name of plaintiff] may not recover any damages because [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] agreed before the incident that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] would not hold [name of defendant] responsible for any damages.

If [*name of defendant] proves that there was such an agreement and that it applies to [name of plaintiff]'s claim, then [name of defendant] is not responsible for [name of plaintiff]'s harm[, unless you find that [name of defendant] was grossly negligent or intentionally harmed [name of plaintiff]].

[If you find that [*name of defendant] was grossly negligent or intentionally harmed [name of plaintiff], then the agreement does not apply. You must then determine whether [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] is responsible for [name of plaintiff]'s harm based on the other instructions that I have given you.]

New September 2003; Revised December 2011

Directions for Use

This instruction sets forth the affirmative defense of express or contractual assumption of risk. (See Eriksson v. Nunnink (2011) 191 Cal.App.4th 826, 856 [120 Cal.Rptr.3d 90].) It will be given in very limited circumstances. Both the interpretation of a waiver agreement and application of its legal effect are generally resolved by the judge before trial. The existence of a duty is a question of law for the court (Eriksson v. Nunnink (2015) 233 Cal.App.4th 708, 719 [183 Cal.Rptr.3d 234]), as is the interpretation of a written instrument if the interpretation does not turn on the credibility of extrinsic evidence. (Allabach v. Santa Clara County Fair Assn., Inc. (1996) 46 Cal.App.4th 1007, 1011 [54 Cal.Rptr.2d 330].)

However, there may be contract law defenses (such as fraud, lack of consideration, duress, unconscionability) that could be asserted by the plaintiff to contest the validity of a waiver. If these defenses depend on disputed facts that must be considered by a jury, then this instruction should also be given.

Express assumption of risk does not relieve the defendant of liability if there was gross negligence or willful injury. (See Civ. Code, § 1668.) However, the doctrine of primary assumption of risk may then become relevant if an inherently dangerous sport or activity is involved. (See Rosencrans v. Dover Images, Ltd. (2011) 192 Cal.App.4th 1072, 1081 [122 Cal.Rptr.3d 22].)

If there are jury issues with regard to gross negligence, include the bracketed language on gross negligence. Also give CACI No. 425, "Gross Negligence" Explained. If the jury finds no gross negligence, then the action is barred by express assumption of risk unless there are issues of fact with regard to contract formation.

Sources and Authority

- Contract Releasing Party From Liability for Fraud or Willful Injury is Against Public Policy. Civil Code section 1668.
- "[P]arties may contract for the release of liability for future ordinary negligence so long as such contracts do not violate public policy. 'A valid release precludes liability for risks of injury within the scope of the release.' " (Anderson v. Fitness Internat., LLC (2016) 4 Cal.App.5th 867, 877 [208 Cal.Rptr.3d 792], internal citations omitted.)
- "With respect to the question of express waiver, the legal issue is not whether the particular risk of injury appellant suffered is inherent in the recreational activity to which the Release applies [citations], but simply the scope of the Release." (Hass v. RhodyCo Productions (2018) 26 Cal.App.5th 11, 27 [236 Cal.Rptr.3d 682], original italics.)
- "Express assumption occurs when the plaintiff, in advance, expressly consents . . . to relieve the defendant of an obligation of conduct toward him, and to take his chances of injury from a known risk arising from what the defendant is to do or leave undone. . . . The result is that . . . being under no duty, [the defendant] cannot be charged with negligence." (Saenz v. Whitewater Voyages, Inc. (1990) 226 Cal.App.3d 758, 764 [276 Cal.Rptr. 672], internal citations omitted.)
- "While often referred to as a defense, a release of future liability is more appropriately characterized as an express assumption of the risk that negates the defendant's duty of care, an element of the plaintiff's case." (Eriksson, supra, 233 Cal.App.4th at p. 719.)
- "[C]ases involving express assumption of risk are concerned with instances in which, as the result of an express agreement, the defendant owes no duty to protect the plaintiff from an injury-causing risk. Thus in this respect express assumption of risk properly can be viewed as analogous to primary assumption of risk." (Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal.4th 296, 308–309, fn. 4 [11 Cal.Rptr.2d 2, 834 P.2d 696].)
- " ' "It is only necessary that the act of negligence, which results in injury to the releaser, be reasonably related to the object or purpose for which the release is given." ' . . . 'An act of negligence is reasonably related to the object or purpose for which the release was given if it is included within the express scope of the release.' " (Eriksson, supra, 233 Cal.App.4th at p. 722.)
- "Although [decedent] could not release or waive her parents' subsequent wrongful death claims, it is well settled that a release of future liability or express assumption of the risk by the decedent may be asserted as a defense to such claims." (Eriksson, supra, 233 Cal.App.4th at p. 725.)
- "[E]xculpatory clause which affects the public interest cannot stand." (Tunkl v. Regents of Univ. of California (1963) 60 Cal.2d 92, 98 [32 Cal.Rptr. 33, 383 P.2d 441].)
- "In Tunkl, our high court identified six characteristics typical of contracts affecting the public interest: ' "[1] It concerns a business of a type generally thought suitable for public regulation. [2] The party seeking exculpation is engaged in performing a service of great importance to the public, which is often a matter of practical necessity for some members of the public. [3] The party holds himself out as willing to perform this service for any member of the public who seeks it, or at least any member coming within certain established standards. [4] As a result of the essential nature of the service, in the economic setting of the transaction, the party invoking exculpation possesses a decisive advantage of bargaining strength against any member of the public who seeks his services. [5] In exercising a superior bargaining power the party confronts the public with a standardized adhesion contract of exculpation, and makes no provision whereby a purchaser may pay additional reasonable fees and obtain protection against negligence. [6] Finally, as a result of the transaction, the person or property of the purchaser is placed under the control of the seller, subject to the risk of carelessness by the seller or his agents." ' Not all of these factors need to be present for an exculpatory contract to be voided as affecting the public interest." (Hass, supra, 26 Cal.App.5th at p. 29, internal citations omitted.)

- "The issue [of whether something is in the public interest] is tested objectively, by the activity's importance to the general public, not by its subjective importance to the particular plaintiff." (Booth v. Santa Barbara Biplane Tours, LLC (2008) 158 Cal.App.4th 1173, 1179–1180 [70 Cal.Rptr.3d 660], original italics.)
- "[P]ublic policy generally precludes enforcement of an agreement that would remove an obligation to adhere to even a minimal standard of care. Applying that general rule here, we hold that an agreement purporting to release liability for future gross negligence committed against a developmentally disabled child who participates in a recreational camp designed for the needs of such children violates public policy and is unenforceable." (City of Santa Barbara v. Superior Court (2007) 41 Cal.4th 747, 777 [62 Cal.Rptr.3d 527, 161 P.3d 1095], original italics.)
- " ' "[A] purveyor of recreational activities owes a duty to a patron not to increase the risks inherent in the activity in which the patron has paid to engage." ' Thus, in cases involving a waiver of liability for future negligence, courts have held that conduct that substantially or unreasonably increased the inherent risk of an activity or actively concealed a known risk could amount to gross negligence, which would not be barred by a release agreement." (Willhide-Michiulis v. Mammoth Mountain Ski Area, LLC (2018) 25 Cal.App.5th 344, 359 [235 Cal.Rptr.3d 716].)
- " ' "A written release may exculpate a tortfeasor from future negligence or misconduct. [Citation.] To be effective, such a release 'must be clear, unambiguous, and explicit in expressing the intent of the subscribing parties.' [Citation.] The release need not achieve perfection. [Citation.] Exculpatory agreements in the recreational sports context do not implicate the public interest and therefore are not void as against public policy. [Citations.]" ' ' "An ambiguity exists when a party can identify an alternative, semantically reasonable, candidate of meaning of a writing. [Citations.]" ' " (Huverserian v. Catalina Scuba Luv, Inc. (2010) 184 Cal.App.4th 1462, 1467 [110 Cal.Rptr.3d 112], original italics, internal citations omitted.)

- "Unlike claims for ordinary negligence, products liability claims cannot be waived." (Grebing v. 24 Hour Fitness USA, Inc. (2015) 234 Cal.App.4th 631, 640 [184 Cal.Rptr.3d 155].)
- "Since there is no disputed issue of material fact concerning gross negligence, the release also bars [plaintiff]'s cause of action for breach of warranty." (Grebing, supra, 234 Cal.App.4th at p. 640.)
- "Generally, a person who signs an instrument may not avoid the impact of its terms on the ground that she failed to read it before signing. However, a release is invalid when it is procured by misrepresentation, overreaching, deception, or fraud. 'It has often been held that if the releaser was under a misapprehension, not due to his own neglect, as to the nature or scope of the release, and if this misapprehension was induced by the misconduct of the releasee, then the release, regardless of how comprehensively worded, is binding only to the extent actually intended by the releaser.' 'In cases providing the opportunity for overreaching, the releasee has a duty to act in good faith and the releaser must have a full understanding of his legal rights. [Citations.] Furthermore, it is the province of the jury to determine whether the circumstances afforded the opportunity for overreaching, whether the releasee engaged in overreaching and whether the releaser was misled. [Citation.]' A 'strong showing of misconduct' by the plaintiff is not necessary to demonstrate the existence of a triable issue of fact here; only a 'slight showing' is required." (Jimenez v. 24 Hour Fitness USA, Inc. (2015) 237 Cal.App.4th 546, 563–564 [188 Cal.Rptr.3d 228], internal citations omitted.)
- "Plaintiffs assert that Jerid did not 'freely and knowingly' enter into the Release because (1) the [defendant's] employee represented the Release was a sign-in sheet; (2) the metal clip of the clipboard obscured the title of the document; (3) the Release was written in a small font; (4) [defendant] did not inform Jerid he was releasing his rights by signing the Release; (5) Jerid did not know he was signing a release; (6) Jerid did not receive a copy of the Release; and (7) Jerid was not given adequate time to read or understand the Release. [¶] We do not find plaintiffs' argument persuasive because . . . there was nothing preventing Jerid from reading the Release. There is nothing indicating that Jerid was prevented from (1) reading the Release while he sat at the booth, or (2) taking the Release, moving his truck out of the line, and reading the Release. In sum, plaintiffs' arguments do not persuade us that Jerid was denied a reasonable opportunity to discover the true terms of the contract." (Rosencrans, supra, 192 Cal.App.4th at pp. 1080–1081.)
- "Whether a contract provision is clear and unambiguous is a question of law, not of fact." (Madison v. Superior Court (1988) 203 Cal.App.3d 589, 598 [250 Cal.Rptr. 299].)

- "By signing as [decedent]'s parent, [plaintiff] approved of the terms of the release and understood that her signature made the release 'irrevocable and binding.' Under these circumstances, the release could not be disaffirmed. [¶] Although [plaintiff]'s signature prevented the agreement from being disaffirmed, it does not make her a party to the release." (Eriksson, supra, 233 Cal.App.4th at p. 721.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1439, 1449–1451

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 1.44

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 4, Comparative Negligence, Assumption of the Risk, and Related Defenses, § 4.03 (Matthew Bender)

4 California Trial Guide, Unit 90, Closing Argument, § 90.90 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence, § 380.171 (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, § 165.402 (Matthew Bender)

452. Sudden Emergency

[*Name of plaintiff/defendant] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was not negligent because [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] acted with reasonable care in an emergency situation. [Name of plaintiff/defendant] was not negligent if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] proves all of the following:

1. That there was a sudden and unexpected emergency situation in which someone was in actual or apparent danger of immediate injury;
2. That [name of plaintiff/defendant] did not cause the emergency; and
3. That [name of plaintiff/defendant] acted as a reasonably careful person would have acted in similar circumstances, even if it appears later that a different course of action would have been safer.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

The instruction should not be given unless at least two courses of action are available to the party after the danger is perceived. (Anderson v. Latimer (1985) 166 Cal.App.3d 667, 675 [212 Cal.Rptr. 544].)

Additional instructions should be given if there are alternate theories of negligence.

Sources and Authority

- "Under the 'sudden emergency' or 'imminent peril' doctrine, 'a person who, without negligence on his part, is suddenly and unexpectedly confronted with peril, arising from either the actual presence, or the appearance, of imminent danger to himself or to others, is not expected nor required to use the same judgment and prudence that is required of him in the exercise of ordinary care in calmer and more deliberate moments.' 'A party will be denied the benefit of the doctrine . . . where that party's negligence causes or contributes to the creation of the perilous situation.'" (Abdulkadhim v. Wu (2020) 53 Cal.App.5th 298, 301–302 [266 Cal.Rptr.3d 636], internal citations omitted.)
- "The doctrine of imminent peril is available to either plaintiff or defendant, or, in a proper case, to both." (Smith v. Johe (1957) 154 Cal.App.2d 508, 511 [316 P.2d 688].)
- "Whether the conditions for application of the imminent peril doctrine exist is itself a question of fact to be submitted to the jury." (Damele v. Mack Trucks, Inc. (1990) 219 Cal.App.3d 29, 37 [267 Cal.Rptr. 197].)
- "The doctrine of imminent peril is properly applied only in cases where an unexpected physical danger is presented so suddenly as to deprive the driver of his power of using reasonable judgment. [Citations.] A party will be denied the benefit of the doctrine of imminent peril where that party's negligence causes or contributes to the creation of the perilous situation. [Citations.]" (Shiver v. Laramee (2018) 24 Cal.App.5th 395, 399 [234 Cal.Rptr.3d 256].)

- " 'The test is whether the actor took one of the courses of action which a standard man in that emergency might have taken, and such a course is not negligent even though it led to an injury which might have been prevented by adopting an alternative course of action.' [Citation.]" (Schultz v. Mathias (1970) 3 Cal.App.3d 904, 912–913 [83 Cal.Rptr. 888].)
- "An emergency or peril under the sudden emergency or imminent peril doctrine is a set of facts presented to the person alleged to have been negligent. It is that actor's behavior that the doctrine excuses. It is irrelevant for purposes of the sudden emergency doctrine whether [defendant's] lane change created a dangerous situation for [plaintiff] or anyone else; the only relevant emergency is the one [defendant] faced." (Abdulkadhim, supra, 53 Cal.App.5th at p. 302, internal citations omitted, original italics.)
- "The doctrine of imminent peril applies not only when a person perceives danger to himself, but also when he perceives an imminent danger to others." (Damele, supra, 219 Cal.App.3d at p. 36.)
- "[T]he mere appearance of an imminent peril to others—not an actual imminent peril—is all that is required." (Damele, supra, 219 Cal.App.3d at p. 37.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1439, 1449–1451

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 4.7

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 1, Negligence: Duty and Breach, §§ 1.03, 1.11, 1.30 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, § 165.250 (Matthew Bender)

453. Injury Incurred in Course of Rescue

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was not at fault for [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] own injury because [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was attempting to rescue a person who was in danger [as a result of [name of defendant]'s negligence].

To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That there was, or a reasonable person would have perceived that there was, an emergency situation in which someone was in actual or apparent danger of immediate injury;
2. That [the emergency/a danger to [name of plaintiff]] was created by [name of defendant]'s negligence; and
3. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed while attempting to rescue the person in danger.

New September 2003; Revised December 2011

Directions for Use

This instruction sets forth the rescue doctrine. As originally developed, the doctrine established a duty of care toward the rescuer and was also the rescuer's response to the affirmative defense of contributory negligence when contributory negligence was a complete bar to recovery. (See Solgaard v. Guy F. Atkinson Co. (1971) 6 Cal.3d 361, 368 [99 Cal.Rptr. 29, 491 P.2d 821].) Today it may be asserted in much the same way as a response to a claim for comparative fault. (See Neighbarger v. Irwin Industries, Inc. (1994) 8 Cal.4th 532, 536–537 [34 Cal.Rptr.2d 630, 882 P.2d 347] [rescue doctrine discussed in case decided after contributory negligence was no longer a complete bar].)

The doctrine does not apply if the plaintiff acted rashly or recklessly in attempting the rescue. The defendant has the burden of proving rash or reckless conduct. (Solgaard, supra, 6 Cal.3d at p. 368.)

One older case has held that the doctrine can apply to a defendant other than one who created the emergency if the defendant negligently increased the plaintiff's peril. (See Scott v. Texaco, Inc. (1966) 239 Cal.App.2d 431, 435–436 [48 Cal.Rptr.785] [defendant's vehicle negligently struck plaintiff while she was trying to stop traffic because of an accident up ahead].) Subsequently, the California Supreme Court stated the doctrine as a right to recover from the person whose negligence created the peril. (Solgaard, supra, 6 Cal.3d at p. 368, emphasis added.) However, the negligence of someone other than the one who created the emergency was not at issue in the case, so it is not clear that the court's language would foreclose such a claim. To use this instruction for such a case, select "a danger to [name of plaintiff]" in element 2. Also omit the bracketed material in the opening sentence.

Sources and Authority

- "The cases have developed the rule that persons injured in the course of undertaking a necessary rescue may, absent rash or reckless conduct on their part, recover from the person whose negligence created the peril which necessitated the rescue. [¶] Although its precise limits are not yet fully developed, the rescue doctrine varies the ordinary rules of negligence in two important respects: (1) it permits the rescuer to sue on the basis of defendant's initial negligence toward the party rescued, without the necessity of proving negligence toward the rescuer, and (2) it substantially restricts the availability of the defense of contributory negligence by requiring defendant to prove that the rescuer acted rashly or recklessly under the circumstances." (Solgaard, supra, 6 Cal.3d at p. 368, footnote omitted.)
- "The rescue doctrine contemplates a voluntary act by one who, in an emergency and prompted by spontaneous human motive to save human life, attempts a rescue that he had no duty to attempt by virtue of a legal obligation or duty fastened on him by his employment." (Bryant v. Glastetter (1995) 32 Cal.App.4th 770, 784 [38 Cal.Rptr.2d 291].)
- "[T]he rescue doctrine arose in an era of contributory negligence, where any negligence on the part of a plaintiff barred the action. 'The purpose of the rescue doctrine when it was first created was to avoid having a plaintiff be found contributorily negligent as a matter of law when he voluntarily placed himself in a perilous position to prevent another person from suffering serious injury or death, the courts often stating that the plaintiff's recovery should not be barred unless his rescue attempt was recklessly or rashly made.' Most defendants could point to some negligence by the rescuer and simply approaching the danger could be construed as negligent, or as an assumption of the risk. This advanced no tenable public policy: It deterred rescues and ran counter to the human impulse to help others in need. Accordingly, the courts ruled the act of approaching danger did not interrupt the normal causal reach of tort liability and did not, of itself, establish contributory negligence." (Sears v. Morrison (1999) 76 Cal.App.4th 577, 581 [90 Cal.Rptr.2d 528], internal citations omitted.)
- "In order to assert the rescue doctrine, the rescuer must show that there was someone in peril and that he acted to rescue such person from the peril." (Tucker v. CBS Radio Stations, Inc. (2011) 194 Cal.App.4th 1246, 1252 [124 Cal.Rptr.3d 245].)
- "The evidence in the instant case was uncontradicted that defendant's employees . . . were in peril of their lives, that immediate action was required to save or assist them, that plaintiff undertook to rescue them, and that he was injured while in the course of doing so. It is apparent, therefore, that plaintiff was, as a matter of law, a rescuer and entitled to the benefits of the rescuer doctrine, including an instruction to the jury that as a rescuer, plaintiff could recover on the basis of defendant's negligence to [its employees], if plaintiff's injury was a proximate result thereof, and if plaintiff acted neither rashly nor recklessly under the circumstances." (Solgaard, supra, 6 Cal.3d at p. 369.)

- "One also generally owes a duty of care to bystanders who attempt a rescue that becomes necessary due to one's own negligence. Thus, although it is contributory negligence unreasonably to expose oneself to a risk created by the defendant's negligence, a person is not contributorily negligent who, with due care, encounters the risk created by the defendant's negligence in order to perform a rescue necessitated by that negligence." (Neighbarger, supra, 8 Cal.4th at pp. 536–537, internal citation omitted.)
- "We do not accept this narrow view of the rescue rule, which would focus attention on the person creating the original danger and not on the person of the rescuer. We think the force of the rule should properly be centered on the rescuer, for it is the quality of his conduct which is being weighed. Whether he was induced to enter a position of danger as a result of the act of a particular defendant or as a result of some outside force is inconsequential to the process of evaluating the quality of his behavior." (Scott, supra, 239 Cal.App.2d at pp. 435–436.)
- "[Plaintiff] asserts that he should not have been required to show that respondents' negligence threatened real and imminent harm to himself or others, but only that he reasonably perceived the appearance of such danger . . . . We agree." (Harris v. Oaks Shopping Ctr. (1999) 70 Cal.App.4th 206, 210 [82 Cal.Rptr.2d 523].)
- "Under the rescue doctrine, an actor is usually liable for injuries sustained by a rescuer attempting to help another person placed in danger by the actor's negligent conduct. The question here is whether an actor is liable for injuries sustained by a person who is trying to rescue the actor from his own negligence. The answer is yes." (Sears, supra, 76 Cal.App.4th at p. 579, original italics.)
- "In general, the rescue doctrine permits a rescuer to recover for injuries sustained while attempting to rescue a party placed in danger by the defendant's conduct. In this case we conclude that the rescuer cannot maintain negligence claims against defendant because he failed to establish that a duty of care was owed to the rescued party." (Tucker, supra, 194 Cal.App.4th at p. 1248.)
- "There is some disagreement among the authorities where the danger is only to property. In Henshaw v. Belyea (1934) 220 C. 458, 31 P.2d 348, plaintiff ran from a safe place on the sidewalk in an attempt to save his employer's truck from slipping downhill by placing a block under a wheel, and his foot was crushed. The court approved the extension of the rescue doctrine to such a case. (220 C. 463.) (See 23 Cal. L. Rev. 110; 8 So. Cal. L. Rev. 159.)" (6 Witkin Summary of California Law (10th ed. 2005) Torts, § 1308.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1463–1465

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 1.41

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 1, Negligence: Duty and Breach, §§ 1.03[4], 1.30 (Matthew Bender)

4 California Trial Guide, Unit 90, Closing Argument, § 90.90 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence, § 380.30[5][e][v] (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, § 165.140 (Matthew Bender)

454. Affirmative Defense—Statute of Limitations

[Name of defendant] contends that [name of plaintiff]'s lawsuit was not filed within the time set by law. To succeed on this defense, [name of defendant] must prove that [name of plaintiff]'s claimed harm occurred before [insert date from applicable statute of limitation].

New April 2007; Revised December 2007

Directions for Use

This instruction states the common-law rule that an action accrues on the date of injury. (Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal.3d 1103, 1109 [245 Cal.Rptr. 658, 751 P.2d 923].) The date to be inserted is the applicable limitation period before the filing date. For example, if the limitation period is two years and the filing date is August 31, 2007, the date is August 31, 2005.

For an instruction on the delayed-discovery rule, see CACI No. 455, Statute of Limitations—Delayed Discovery. See also verdict form CACI No. VF-410, Statute of Limitations—Delayed Discovery—Reasonable Investigation Would Not Have Disclosed Pertinent Facts.

Do not use this instruction for attorney malpractice. (See CACI No. 610, Affirmative Defense—Statute of Limitations—Attorney Malpractice—One-Year Limit, and CACI No. 611, Affirmative Defense—Statute of Limitations—Attorney Malpractice—Four-Year Limit.)

"Claimed harm" refers to all of the elements of the cause of action, which must have occurred before the cause of action accrues and the limitation period begins. (Glue-Fold, Inc. v. Slautterback Corp. (2000) 82 Cal.App.4th 1018, 1029 [98 Cal.Rptr.2d 661].) In some cases, it may be necessary to modify this term to refer to specific facts that give rise to the cause of action.

Sources and Authority

- Two-Year Statute of Limitations. Code of Civil Procedure section 335.1.
- Three-Year Statute of Limitations. Code of Civil Procedure section 338(c).
- One-Year Statute of Limitations. Code of Civil Procedure section 340.2(c).
- "A limitation period does not begin until a cause of action accrues, i.e., all essential elements are present and a claim becomes legally actionable." (Glue-Fold, Inc., supra, 82 Cal.App.4th at p. 1029, internal citations omitted.)
- " ' " ' "Ordinarily this is when the wrongful act is done and the obligation or the liability arises, but it does not 'accrue until the party owning it is entitled to begin and prosecute an action thereon.' " . . . In other words, "[a] cause of action accrues 'upon the occurrence of the last element essential to the cause of action.' " ' " ' " (Choi v. Sagemark Consulting (2017) 18 Cal.App.5th 308, 323 [226 Cal.Rptr.3d 267], original italics.)

- "It is undisputed that plaintiffs discovered shortly after the accident in 2010 that [defendant] had failed to secure the insurance coverage plaintiffs requested. Thus, this case does not involve the delayed discovery doctrine, which makes 'accrual of a cause of action contingent on when a party discovered or should have discovered that his or her injury had a wrongful cause.' In delayed discovery cases, 'plaintiffs are required to conduct a reasonable investigation after becoming aware of an injury, and are charged with knowledge of the information that would have been revealed by such an investigation.' Here, the question is when plaintiffs incurred 'actual injury'—not when they discovered [defendant]'s negligence. The trial court erred to the extent that it relied on the delayed discovery doctrine to determine when plaintiffs incurred actual injury." (Lederer v. Gursey Schneider LLP (2018) 22 Cal.App.5th 508, 521 [231 Cal.Rptr.3d 518], internal citations omitted.)
- "Where, as here, 'damages are an element of a cause of action, the cause of action does not accrue until the damages have been sustained. . . . "Mere threat of future harm, not yet realized, is not enough." . . . "Basic public policy is best served by recognizing that damage is necessary to mature such a cause of action." . . . Therefore, when the wrongful act does not result in immediate damage, "the cause of action does not accrue prior to the maturation of perceptible harm." ' " (Thomson v. Canyon (2011) 198 Cal.App.4th 594, 604 [129 Cal.Rptr.3d 525].)
- "[W]hen a defendant asserts a statute of limitations defense against a FEHA failure to promote claim, the burden is on the defendant to prove when the plaintiff knew or should have known of the adverse promotion decision. (Pollock v. Tri-Modal Distribution Services, Inc. (2021) 11 Cal.5th 918, 947 [281 Cal.Rptr.3d 498, 491 P.3d 290].)
- " '[O]nce plaintiff has suffered actual and appreciable harm, neither the speculative nor uncertain character of damages nor the difficulty of proof will toll the period of limitation.' Cases contrast actual and appreciable harm with nominal damages, speculative harm or the threat of future harm. The mere breach of duty—causing only nominal damages, speculative harm or the threat of future harm not yet realized—normally does not suffice to create a cause of action." (San Francisco Unified School Dist. v. W. R. Grace & Co. (1995) 37 Cal.App.4th 1318, 1326 [44 Cal.Rptr.2d 305], internal citations omitted.)
- "Violations of a continuing or recurring obligation may give rise to 'continuous accrual' of causes of action, meaning that ' "a cause of action accrues each time a wrongful act occurs, triggering a new limitations period." [Citation.]' " (Esparza v. Safeway, Inc. (2019) 36 Cal.App.5th 42, 59 [247 Cal.Rptr.3d 875].)
- "Generally, the bar of the statute of limitations is raised as an affirmative defense, subject to proof by the defendant." (Czajkowski v. Haskell & White (2012) 208 Cal.App.4th 166, 174 [144 Cal.Rptr.3d 522].)
- " '[R]esolution of the statute of limitations issue is normally a question of fact . . . .' " (Romano v. Rockwell Int'l, Inc. (1996) 14 Cal.4th 479, 487 [59 Cal.Rptr.2d 20, 926 P.2d 1114].)

- "Commencement of the statute of limitations is usually a factual question, but can be resolved as a matter of law when, as here, the material facts are not disputed." Moss v. Duncan (2019) 36 Cal.App.5th 569, 574 [248 Cal.Rptr.3d 689].)
- "Because the relevant facts are not in dispute, the application of the statute of limitations may be decided as a question of law." (Lederer, supra, 22 Cal.App.5th at p. 521.)
- "Based upon our review of legal precedent and our understanding of the principles and policies of the continuous accrual theory, we conclude that the theory is not limited in its application to cases in which a payor has acted 'wrongfully' in the sense of failing or refusing to make a periodic payment to a payee." (Blaser v. State Teachers' Retirement System (2019) 37 Cal.App.5th 349, 372 [249 Cal.Rptr.3d 701].)
- "So long as the time allowed for filing an action is not inherently unreasonable, California courts afford 'contracting parties considerable freedom to modify the length of a statute of limitations.' " (Wind Dancer Production Group v. Walt Disney Pictures (2017) 10 Cal.App.5th 56, 74 [215 Cal.Rptr.3d 835].)

Secondary Sources

4 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Actions, § 473 et seq.

5 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 71, Commencement, Prosecution, and Dismissal of Tort Actions, §§ 71.01–71.06 (Matthew Bender)

30 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, § 345.10 et seq., 345.20 (Matthew Bender)

14 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions, § 143.20 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1 California Pretrial Civil Procedure Practice Guide: The Wagstaffe Group, Ch. 17, Preparing the Answer, § 17-IV[I]

455. Statute of Limitations—Delayed Discovery

If [*name of defendant] proves that [name of plaintiff]'s claimed harm occurred before [insert date from applicable statute of limitations], [name of plaintiff]'s lawsuit was still filed on time if [name of plaintiff] proves that before that date,

[[*name of plaintiff] did not discover, and did not know of facts that would have caused a reasonable person to suspect, that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] had suffered harm that was caused by someone's wrongful conduct.]

[*or]

[[*name of plaintiff] did not discover, and a reasonable and diligent investigation would not have disclosed, that [specify factual basis for cause of action] contributed to [name of plaintiff]'s harm.]

New April 2007; Revised December 2007, April 2009, December 2009, May 2020

Directions for Use

Read this instruction with the first option after CACI No. 454, Affirmative Defense—Statute of Limitations, if the plaintiff seeks to overcome the statute-of-limitations defense by asserting the "delayed-discovery rule" or "discovery rule." The discovery rule provides that the accrual date of a cause of action is delayed until the plaintiff is aware of the plaintiff's injury and its negligent cause. (Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal.3d 1103, 1109 [245 Cal.Rptr. 658, 751 P.2d 923].) The date to be inserted is the applicable limitation period before the filing date. For example, if the limitation period is two years and the filing date is August 31, 2009, the date is August 31, 2007.

Read this instruction with the second option if the facts suggest that even if the plaintiff had conducted a timely and reasonable investigation, it would not have disclosed the limitation-triggering information. (See Fox v. Ethicon Endo-Surgery (2005) 35 Cal.4th 797 [27 Cal.Rptr.3d 661, 110 P.3d 914] [fact that plaintiff suspected her injury was caused by surgeon's negligence and timely filed action for medical negligence against health care provider did not preclude "discovery rule" from delaying accrual of limitations period on products liability cause of action against medical staple manufacturer whose role in causing injury was not known and could not have been reasonably discovered within the applicable limitations period commencing from date of injury].)

See also verdict form CACI No. VF-410, Statute of Limitations—Delayed Discovery—Reasonable Investigation Would Not Have Disclosed Pertinent Facts.

Do not use this instruction for medical malpractice (see CACI No. 555, Affirmative Defense—Statute of Limitations—Medical Malpractice—One-Year Limit, and CACI

No. 556, Affirmative Defense—Statute of Limitations—Medical Malpractice—Three-Year Limit) or attorney malpractice (see CACI No. 610, Affirmative Defense—Statute of Limitations—Attorney Malpractice—One-Year Limit, and CACI No. 611, Affirmative Defense—Statute of Limitations—Attorney Malpractice—Four-Year Limit). Also, do not use this instruction if the case was timely but a fictitiously named defendant was identified and substituted in after the limitation period expired. (See McOwen v. Grossman (2007) 153 Cal.App.4th 937, 942 [63 Cal.Rptr.3d 615] [if lawsuit is initiated within the applicable period of limitations against one party and the plaintiff has complied with Code of Civil Procedure section 474 by alleging the existence of unknown additional defendants, the relevant inquiry when the plaintiff seeks to substitute a real defendant for one sued fictitiously is what facts the plaintiff actually knew at the time the original complaint was filed].)

"Claimed harm" refers to all of the elements of the cause of action, which must have occurred before the cause of action accrues and the limitation period begins. (Glue-Fold, Inc. v. Slautterback Corp. (2000) 82 Cal.App.4th 1018, 1029 [98 Cal.Rptr.2d 661].) In some cases, it may be necessary to modify this term to refer to specific facts that give rise to the cause of action.

Sources and Authority

- "An exception to the general rule for defining the accrual of a cause of action—indeed, the 'most important' one—is the discovery rule. . . . It postpones accrual of a cause of action until the plaintiff discovers, or has reason to discover, the cause of action. [¶] . . . [T]he plaintiff discovers the cause of action when he at least suspects a factual basis, as opposed to a legal theory, for its elements, even if he lacks knowledge thereof—when, simply put, he at least 'suspects . . . that someone has done something wrong' to him, 'wrong' being used, not in any technical sense, but rather in accordance with its 'lay understanding.' He has reason to discover the cause of action when he has reason at least to suspect a factual basis for its elements. He has reason to suspect when he has 'notice or information of circumstances to put a reasonable person on inquiry'; he need not know the 'specific "facts" necessary to establish' the cause of action; rather, he may seek to learn such facts through the 'process contemplated by pretrial discovery'; but, within the applicable limitations period, he must indeed seek to learn the facts necessary to bring the cause of action in the first place—he 'cannot wait for' them to 'find him' and 'sit on' his 'rights'; he 'must go find' them himself if he can and 'file suit' if he does." (Norgart v. Upjohn Co. (1999) 21 Cal.4th 383, 397–398 [87 Cal.Rptr.2d 453, 981 P.2d 79], original italics, internal citations and footnote omitted.)
- "[I]t is the discovery of facts, not their legal significance, that starts the statute." (Jolly, supra, 44 Cal.3d at p. 1113.)
- "Jolly 'sets forth two alternate tests for triggering the limitations period: (1) a subjective test requiring actual suspicion by the plaintiff that the injury was caused by wrongdoing; and (2) an objective test requiring a showing that a reasonable person would have suspected the injury was caused by wrongdoing.

[Citation.] The first to occur under these two tests begins the limitations period.' " (Nguyen v. Western Digital Corp. (2014) 229 Cal.App.4th 1522, 1552 [178 Cal.Rptr.3d 897].)

- "While ignorance of the existence of an injury or cause of action may delay the running of the statute of limitations until the date of discovery, the general rule in California has been that ignorance of the identity of the defendant is not essential to a claim and therefore will not toll the statute." (Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Industries (1994) 7 Cal.4th 926, 932 [30 Cal.Rptr.2d 440, 873 P.2d 613].)
- "[U]nder the delayed discovery rule, a cause of action accrues and the statute of limitations begins to run when the plaintiff has reason to suspect an injury and some wrongful cause, unless the plaintiff pleads and proves that a reasonable investigation at that time would not have revealed a factual basis for that particular cause of action. In that case, the statute of limitations for that cause of action will be tolled until such time as a reasonable investigation would have revealed its factual basis." (Fox, supra, 35 Cal.4th at p. 803.)
- "The California rule on delayed discovery of a cause of action is the statute of limitation begins to run 'when the plaintiff has reason to suspect an injury and some wrongful cause . . . .' 'A plaintiff need not be aware of the specific "facts" necessary to establish the claim; that is a process contemplated by pretrial discovery. . . . So long as a suspicion exists, it is clear that the plaintiff must go find the facts; she cannot wait for the facts to find her.' " (MGA Entertainment, Inc. v. Mattel, Inc. (2019) 41 Cal.App.5th 554, 561 [254 Cal.Rptr.3d 314].)
- "[A]s Fox teaches, claims based on two independent legal theories against two separate defendants can accrue at different times." (E-Fab, Inc. v. Accountants, Inc. Services (2007) 153 Cal.App.4th 1308, 1323 [64 Cal.Rptr.3d 9].)
- "A limitation period does not begin until a cause of action accrues, i.e., all essential elements are present and a claim becomes legally actionable. Developed to mitigate the harsh results produced by strict definitions of accrual, the common law discovery rule postpones accrual until a plaintiff discovers or has reason to discover the cause of action." (Glue-Fold, Inc., supra, 82 Cal.App.4th at p. 1029, internal citations omitted.)
- "A plaintiff's inability to discover a cause of action may occur 'when it is particularly difficult for the plaintiff to observe or understand the breach of duty, or when the injury itself (or its cause) is hidden or beyond what the ordinary person could be expected to understand.' " (NBCUniversal Media, LLC v. Superior Court (2014) 225 Cal.App.4th 1222, 1232 [171 Cal.Rptr.3d 1].)
- "[T]he plaintiff may discover, or have reason to discover, the cause of action even if he does not suspect, or have reason to suspect, the identity of the defendant. That is because the identity of the defendant is not an element of any cause of action. It follows that failure to discover, or have reason to discover, the identity of the defendant does not postpone the accrual of a cause of action, whereas a like failure concerning the cause of action itself does. 'Although never fully articulated, the rationale for distinguishing between ignorance' of the defendant and 'ignorance' of the cause of action itself 'appears to be premised on the commonsense assumption that once the plaintiff is aware of' the latter, he 'normally' has 'sufficient opportunity,' within the 'applicable limitations period,' 'to discover the identity' of the former. He may 'often effectively extend[]' the limitations period in question 'by the filing' and amendment 'of a Doe complaint' and invocation of the relation-back doctrine. 'Where' he knows the 'identity of at least one defendant . . . , [he] must' proceed thus." (Norgart, supra, 21 Cal.4th at p. 399, internal citations and footnote omitted.)

- "The discovery rule only delays accrual until the plaintiff has, or should have, inquiry notice of the cause of action. The discovery rule does not encourage dilatory tactics because plaintiffs are charged with presumptive knowledge of an injury if they have ' " 'information of circumstances to put [them] on inquiry' " ' or if they have ' " 'the opportunity to obtain knowledge from sources open to [their] investigation.' " ' In other words, plaintiffs are required to conduct a reasonable investigation after becoming aware of an injury, and are charged with knowledge of the information that would have been revealed by such an investigation." (Fox, supra, 35 Cal.4th at pp. 807–808, internal citations omitted.)
- "Thus, a two-part analysis is used to assess when a claim has accrued under the discovery rule. The initial step focuses on whether the plaintiff possessed information that would cause a reasonable person to inquire into the cause of his injuries. Under California law, this inquiry duty arises when the plaintiff becomes aware of facts that would cause a reasonably prudent person to suspect his injuries were the result of wrongdoing. If the plaintiff was in possession of such facts, thereby triggering his duty to investigate, it must next be determined whether 'such an investigation would have disclosed a factual basis for a cause of action[.] [T]he statute of limitations begins to run on that cause of action when the investigation would have brought such information to light.' " (Alexander v. Exxon Mobil (2013) 219 Cal.App.4th 1236, 1251 [162 Cal.Rptr.3d 617], internal citation omitted.)
- "[I]f continuing injury from a completed act generally extended the limitations periods, those periods would lack meaning. Parties could file suit at any time, as long as their injuries persisted. This is not the law. The time bar starts running when the plaintiff first learns of actionable injury, even if the injury will linger or compound. ' " '[W]here an injury, although slight, is sustained in consequence of the wrongful act of another, and the law affords a remedy therefor, the statute of limitations attaches at once. It is not material that all the damages resulting from the act shall have been sustained at that time, and the running of the statute is not postponed by the fact that the actual or substantial damages do not occur until a later date . . . .' " ' " (Vaca v. Wachovia Mortgage Corp. (2011) 198 Cal.App.4th 737, 745 [129 Cal.Rptr.3d 354], original italics, internal citation omitted.)
- "[T]he discovery rule 'may be applied to breaches [of contract] which can be, and are, committed in secret and, moreover, where the harm flowing from those breaches will not be reasonably discoverable by plaintiffs until a future time.' " (Wind Dancer Production Group v. Walt Disney Pictures (2017) 10 Cal.App.5th 56, 73 [215 Cal.Rptr.3d 835].)

- "[T]he trial court erred in concluding that the discovery rule did not pertain to the limitations period of section 335.1 for medical battery claims." (Daley v. Regents of University of California (2019) 39 Cal.App.5th 595, 606 [252 Cal.Rptr.3d 273].)
- There is no doctrine of constructive or imputed suspicion arising from media coverage. "[Defendant]'s argument amounts to a contention that, having taken a prescription drug, [plaintiff] had an obligation to read newspapers and watch television news and otherwise seek out news of dangerous side effects not disclosed by the prescribing doctor, or indeed by the drug manufacturer, and that if she failed in this obligation, she could lose her right to sue. We see no such obligation." (Nelson v. Indevus Pharmaceuticals, Inc. (2006) 142 Cal.App.4th 1202, 1206 [48 Cal.Rptr.3d 668].)
- "The statute of limitations does not begin to run when some members of the public have a suspicion of wrongdoing, but only '[o]nce the plaintiff has a suspicion of wrongdoing.' " (Unruh-Haxton v. Regents of University of California (2008) 162 Cal.App.4th 343, 364 [76 Cal.Rptr.3d 146], original italics.)
- "Generally, the bar of the statute of limitations is raised as an affirmative defense, subject to proof by the defendant. [¶] However, when a plaintiff relies on the discovery rule or allegations of fraudulent concealment as excuses for an apparently belated filing of a complaint, 'the burden of pleading and proving belated discovery of a cause of action falls on the plaintiff.' " (Czajkowski v. Haskell & White, LLP (2012) 208 Cal.App.4th 166, 174 [144 Cal.Rptr.3d 522].)
- " '[R]esolution of the statute of limitations issue is normally a question of fact . . . .' " (Romano v. Rockwell Internat., Inc. (1996) 14 Cal.4th 479, 487 [59 Cal.Rptr.2d 20, 926 P.2d 1114].)
- "More specifically, as to accrual, 'once properly pleaded, belated discovery is a question of fact.' " (Nguyen, supra, 229 Cal.App.4th at p. 1552.)

Secondary Sources

3 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Actions, §§ 540-554, 714–718

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 5-B, When To Sue—Statute Of Limitations, ¶¶ 5:108–5:111.6 (The Rutter Group)

5 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 71, Commencement, Prosecution, and Dismissal of Tort Actions, § 71.03[3], [4] (Matthew Bender)

30 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, § 345.19[3] (Matthew Bender)

14 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions, §§ 143.47, 143.52 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

McDonald, California Medical Malpractice: Law and Practice §§ 7:1–7:7 (Thomson Reuters)

456. Defendant Estopped From Asserting Statute of Limitations Defense

---

[Name of plaintiff] claims that even if [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] lawsuit was not filed on time, [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] may still proceed because [name of defendant] did or said something that caused [name of plaintiff] to delay filing the lawsuit. In order to establish the right to proceed, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] said or did something that caused [name of plaintiff] to believe that it would not be necessary to file a lawsuit;
2. That [name of plaintiff] relied on [name of defendant]'s conduct and therefore did not file the lawsuit within the time otherwise required;
3. That a reasonable person in [name of plaintiff]'s position would have relied on [name of defendant]'s conduct; [and]
4. [That after the limitation period had expired, [name of defendant]'s representations by words or conduct proved to not be true; and]
5. That [name of plaintiff] proceeded diligently to file suit once [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] discovered the need to proceed.

It is not necessary that [name of defendant] have acted in bad faith or intended to mislead [name of plaintiff].

New October 2008; Revised December 2014, June 2015, May 2020

Directions for Use

Equitable estoppel, including any disputed issue of fact, is to be decided by the court, even if there are disputed issues of fact. (Hopkins v. Kedzierski (2014) 225 Cal.App.4th 736, 745 [170 Cal.Rptr.3d 551].) This instruction is for use if the court submits the issue to the jury for advisory findings.

There is perhaps a question as to whether all the elements of equitable estoppel must be proved in order to establish an estoppel to rely on a statute of limitations. These elements are (1) the party to be estopped must know the facts; (2) the party must intend that the party's conduct will be acted on, or must act in such a way that the party asserting the estoppel had the right to believe that the conduct was so intended; (3) the party asserting the estoppel must be ignorant of the true state of facts; and, (4) that party must rely upon the conduct to the party's detriment. (See Ashou v. Liberty Mutual Fire Ins. Co. (2006) 138 Cal.App.4th 748, 766–767 [41 Cal.Rptr.3d 819]; see also Olofsson v. Mission Linen Supply (2012) 211 Cal.App.4th 1236, 1246 [150 Cal.Rptr.3d 446] [equitable estoppel to deny family leave under California Family Rights Act].)

Most cases do not frame the issue as one of equitable estoppel and its four elements. All that is required is that the defendant's conduct actually have misled the plaintiff, and that plaintiff reasonably have relied on that conduct. Bad faith or an intent to mislead is not required. (Lantzy v. Centex Homes (2003) 31 Cal.4th 363, 384 [2 Cal.Rptr.3d 655, 73 P.3d 517]; Shaffer v. Debbas (1993) 17 Cal.App.4th 33, 43 [21 Cal.Rptr.2d 110].) Nor does it appear that there is a requirement that the defendant specifically intended to induce the plaintiff to defer filing suit. Therefore, no specific intent element has been included. However, the California Supreme Court has stated that element 4 is to be given in a construction defect case in which the defendant has assured the plaintiff that all defects will be repaired. (See Lantzy, supra, 31 Cal.4th at p. 384.)

Sources and Authority

- "As the name suggests, equitable estoppel is an equitable issue for court resolution." (Hopkins, supra, 225 Cal.App.4th at p. 745.)
- "While the judge determines equitable causes of action, the judge may (in rare instances) empanel an advisory jury to make preliminary factual findings. The factual findings are purely advisory because, on equitable causes of action, the judge is the proper fact finder. '[W]hile a jury may be used for advisory verdicts as to questions of fact [in equitable actions], it is the duty of the trial court to make its own independent findings and to adopt or reject the findings of the jury as it deems proper.' " (Hoopes v. Dolan (2008) 168 Cal.App.4th 146, 156 [85 Cal.Rptr.3d 337], internal citations omitted.)
- "[CACI No. 456 is] appropriate for use when a trial court 'empanel[s] an advisory jury to make preliminary factual findings,' with respect to equitable estoppel . . . ." (Hopkins, supra, 225 Cal.App.4th at p. 745.)
- "Equitable tolling and equitable estoppel are distinct doctrines. ' "Tolling, strictly speaking, is concerned with the point at which the limitations period begins to run and with the circumstances in which the running of the limitations period may be suspended. . . . Equitable estoppel, however, . . . comes into play only after the limitations period has run and addresses . . . the circumstances in which a party will be estopped from asserting the statute of limitations as a defense to an admittedly untimely action because his conduct has induced another into forbearing suit within the applicable limitations period. [Equitable estoppel] is wholly independent of the limitations period itself and takes its life . . . from the equitable principle that no man [may] profit from his own wrongdoing in a court of justice." ' Thus, equitable estoppel is available even where the limitations statute at issue expressly precludes equitable tolling." (Lantzy, supra, 31 Cal.4th at pp. 383–384, internal citations omitted.)
- "Accordingly, (1) if one potentially liable for a construction defect represents, while the limitations period is still running, that all actionable damage has been or will be repaired, thus making it unnecessary to sue, (2) the plaintiff reasonably relies on this representation to refrain from bringing a timely action, (3) the representation proves false after the limitations period has expired, and (4) the plaintiff proceeds diligently once the truth is discovered, the defendant may be equitably estopped to assert the statute of limitations as a defense to the action." (Lantzy, supra, 31 Cal.4th at p. 384, internal citations omitted.)

- "Equitable estoppel does not require factually misleading statements in all cases." (J. P. v. Carlsbad Unified Sch. Dist. (2014) 232 Cal.App.4th 323, 335 [181 Cal.Rptr.3d 286].)
- " 'An estoppel may arise although there was no designed fraud on the part of the person sought to be estopped. . . . To create an equitable estoppel, "it is enough if the party has been induced to refrain from using such means or taking such action as lay in his power, by which he might have retrieved his position and saved himself from loss. . . . Where the delay in commencing action is induced by the conduct of the defendant it cannot be availed of by him as a defense." ' " (Vu v. Prudential Property & Casualty Ins. Co. (2001) 26 Cal.4th 1142, 1152–1153 [113 Cal.Rptr.2d 70, 33 P.3d 487].)
- [T]he parties may, by their words or conduct, be estopped from enforcing a written contract provision. Under the doctrine of estoppel, '[a] defendant may be equitably estopped from asserting a statutory or contractual limitations period as a defense if the defendant's act or omission caused the plaintiff to refrain from filing a timely suit and the plaintiff's reliance on the defendant's conduct was reasonable.' ' "It is not necessary that the defendant acted in bad faith or intended to mislead the plaintiff. [Citations.] It is sufficient that the defendant's conduct in fact induced the plaintiff to refrain from instituting legal proceedings. [Citation.]" ' (Wind Dancer Production Group v. Walt Disney Pictures (2017) 10 Cal.App.5th 56, 78–79 [215 Cal.Rptr.3d 835].)
- " ' "[W]hether an estoppel exists—whether the acts, representations or conduct lulled a party into a sense of security preventing him from instituting proceedings before the running of the statute, and whether the party relied thereon to his prejudice—is a question of fact and not of law." [Citations.]' " (Holdgrafer v. Unocal Corp. (2008) 160 Cal.App.4th 907, 925–926 [73 Cal.Rptr.3d 216], internal citations omitted.)
- "It is well settled that a public entity may be estopped from asserting the limitations of the claims statute where its agents or employees have prevented or deterred the filing of a timely claim by some affirmative act. Estoppel most commonly results from misleading statements about the need for or advisability of a claim; actual fraud or the intent to mislead is not essential. A fortiori, estoppel may certainly be invoked when there are acts of violence or intimidation that are intended to prevent the filing of a claim." (John R. v. Oakland Unified Sch. Dist. (1989) 48 Cal.3d 438, 445 [256 Cal.Rptr. 766, 769 P.2d 948], internal citations omitted.)
- " 'Estoppel as a bar to a public entity's assertion of the defense of noncompliance arises when the plaintiff establishes by a preponderance of the evidence: (1) the public entity was apprised of the facts, (2) it intended its conduct to be acted upon, (3) plaintiff was ignorant of the true state of facts, and (4) relied upon the conduct to his detriment.' " (J.P. supra, 232 Cal.App.4th at p. 333.)

- "It is well settled that the doctrine of estoppel in pais is applicable in a proper case to prevent a fraudulent or inequitable resort to the statute of limitations." (Estate of Pieper (1964) 224 Cal.App.2d 670, 690–691 [37 Cal.Rptr. 46], internal citations omitted.)
- "Although 'ignorance of the identity of the defendant . . . will not toll the statute', 'a defendant may be equitably estopped from asserting the statute of limitations when, as the result of intentional concealment, the plaintiff is unable to discover the defendant's actual identity.' " (Vaca v. Wachovia Mortgage Corp. (2011) 198 Cal.App.4th 737, 745 [129 Cal.Rptr.3d 354], original italics, internal citation omitted.)
- "Settlement negotiations are relevant and admissible to prove an estoppel to assert the statute of limitations." (Holdgrafer, supra, 160 Cal.App.4th at p. 927.)
- "The estoppel issue in this case arises in a unique context. Defendants' wrongful conduct has given rise to separate causes of action for property damage and personal injury with separate statutes of limitation. Where the plaintiffs reasonably rely on defendants' promise to repair the property damage without a lawsuit, is a jury permitted to find that plaintiffs' decision to delay filing a personal injury lawsuit was also reasonable? We conclude such a finding is permissible on the facts of this case." (Shaffer, supra, 17 Cal.App.4th at p. 43, internal citation omitted.)
- "At the very least, [plaintiff] cannot establish the second element necessary for equitable estoppel. [Plaintiff] argues that [defendant] was estopped to rely on the time bar of section 340.9 by its continued reconsideration of her claim after December 31, 2001, had passed. But she cannot prove [defendant] intended its reconsideration of the claim to be relied upon, or acted in such a way that [plaintiff] had a right to believe it so intended." (Ashou, supra, 138 Cal.App.4th at p. 767.)
- " 'It is well settled that a public entity may be estopped from asserting the limitations of the claims statute where its agents or employees have prevented or deterred the filing of a timely claim by some affirmative act.' Estoppel as a bar to a public entity's assertion of the defense of noncompliance arises when a plaintiff establishes by a preponderance of the evidence (1) the public entity was apprised of the facts, (2) it intended its conduct to be acted upon, (3) the plaintiff was ignorant of the true state of facts, and (4) relied upon the conduct to his detriment." (K.J. v. Arcadia Unified School Dist. (2009) 172 Cal.App.4th 1229, 1239–1240 [92 Cal.Rptr.3d 1], internal citation omitted.)
- "A nondisclosure is a cause of injury if the plaintiff would have acted so as to avoid injury had the plaintiff known the concealed fact. The plaintiff's reliance on a nondisclosure was reasonable if the plaintiff's failure to discover the concealed fact was reasonable in light of the plaintiff's knowledge and experience. Whether the plaintiff's reliance was reasonable is a question of fact for the trier of fact unless reasonable minds could reach only one conclusion based on the evidence. The fact that a plaintiff was represented by counsel and the scope and timing of the representation are relevant to the question of the reasonableness of the plaintiff's reliance." (Superior Dispatch, Inc. v. Insurance Corp. of New York (2010) 181 Cal.App.4th 175, 187–188 [104 Cal.Rptr.3d 508], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

3 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Actions, §§ 823–840

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 5-B, When To Sue—Statute Of Limitations, ¶ 5:111.6 (The Rutter Group)

5 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 71, Commencement, Prosecution, and Dismissal of Action, § 71.06 (Matthew Bender)

30 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, § 345.22 (Matthew Bender)

14 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions, § 143.50 (Matthew Bender)

457. Statute of Limitations—Equitable Tolling—Other Prior Proceeding

---

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that even if [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] lawsuit was not filed by [insert date from applicable statute of limitations], [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] may still proceed because the deadline for filing the lawsuit was extended by the time during which [specify prior proceeding that qualifies as the tolling event, e.g., she was seeking workers' compensation benefits]. In order to establish the right to proceed, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] received timely notice that [name of plaintiff] was [e.g., seeking workers' compensation] instead of filing a lawsuit;
2. That the facts of the two claims were so similar that an investigation of the [e.g., workers' compensation claim] gave or would have given [name of defendant] the information needed to defend the lawsuit; and
3. That [name of plaintiff] was acting reasonably and in good faith by [e.g., seeking workers' compensation].

For [*name of defendant] to have received timely notice, [name of plaintiff] must have filed the [e.g., workers' compensation claim] by [insert date from applicable statute of limitations] and the [e.g., claim] notified [name of defendant] of the need to begin investigating the facts that form the basis for the lawsuit.

In considering whether [*name of plaintiff] acted reasonably and in good faith, you may consider the amount of time after the [e.g., workers' compensation claim] was [resolved/abandoned] before [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] filed the lawsuit.

New December 2009; Revised December 2014

Directions for Use

Equitable tolling, including any disputed issue of fact, is to be decided by the court, even if there are disputed issues of fact. (Hopkins v. Kedzierski (2014) 225 Cal.App.4th 736, 745 [170 Cal.Rptr.3d 551].) This instruction is for use if the court submits the issue to the jury for advisory findings.

Equitable tolling is not available for legal malpractice (see Laird v. Blacker (1992) 2 Cal.4th 606, 618 [7 Cal.Rptr.2d 550, 828 P.2d 691] [statutory tolling provisions of Code Civ Proc., § 340.6 are exclusive for both one-year and four-year limitation periods]; see also CACI No. 610, Affirmative Defense—Statute of Limitations—Attorney Malpractice—One-Year Limit, and CACI No. 611, Affirmative Defense—Statute of Limitations—Attorney Malpractice—Four-Year Limit) nor for medical malpractice with regard to the three-year limitation period of Code of Civil Procedure section 340.5. (See Belton v. Bowers Ambulance Serv. (1999) 20 Cal.4th 928, 934 [86 Cal.Rptr.2d 107, 978 P.2d 591] [statutory tolling provisions of Code Civ. Proc., § 340.5 are exclusive only for three-year period; one-year period may be tolled on other grounds]; see also CACI No. 555, Affirmative Defense—Statute of Limitations—Medical Malpractice—One-Year Limit, and CACI No. 556, Affirmative Defense—Statute of Limitations—Medical Malpractice—Three-Year Limit.)

Sources and Authority

- Tolling for Equal Employment Opportunity Commission Investigation. Government Code section 12965(e)(1), (f)(1).
- "The equitable tolling of statutes of limitations is a judicially created, nonstatutory doctrine. It is 'designed to prevent unjust and technical forfeitures of the right to a trial on the merits when the purpose of the statute of limitations—timely notice to the defendant of the plaintiff's claims—has been satisfied.' Where applicable, the doctrine will 'suspend or extend a statute of limitations as necessary to ensure fundamental practicality and fairness.' " (McDonald v. Antelope Valley Community College Dist. (2008) 45 Cal.4th 88, 99 [84 Cal.Rptr.3d 734, 194 P.3d 1026], internal citations omitted.)
- "The purpose of equitable tolling is to 'ease[] the pressure on parties "concurrently to seek redress in two separate forums with the attendant danger of conflicting decisions on the same issue." ' It is intended to benefit the court system 'by reducing the costs associated with a duplicative filing requirement, in many instances rendering later court proceedings either easier and cheaper to resolve or wholly unnecessary.' " (Long v. Forty Niners Football Co. (2019) 33 Cal.App.5th 550, 555 [244 Cal.Rptr.3d 887], internal citation omitted.)
- "While the case law is not entirely clear, it appears that the weight of authority supports our conclusion that whether a plaintiff has demonstrated the elements of equitable tolling presents a question of fact." (Hopkins, supra, 225 Cal.App.4th at p. 755.)
- "[E]quitable tolling, '[a]s the name suggests . . . is an equitable issue for court resolution.' " (Hopkins, supra, 225 Cal.App.4th at p. 745.)
- "While the judge determines equitable causes of action, the judge may (in rare instances) empanel an advisory jury to make preliminary factual findings. The factual findings are purely advisory because, on equitable causes of action, the judge is the proper fact finder. '[W]hile a jury may be used for advisory verdicts as to questions of fact [in equitable actions], it is the duty of the trial court to make its own independent findings and to adopt or reject the findings of the jury as it deems proper.' " (Hoopes v. Dolan (2008) 168 Cal.App.4th 146, 156 [85 Cal.Rptr.3d 337], internal citations omitted.)
- "[CACI No. 457 is] appropriate for use when a trial court 'empanel[s] an advisory jury to make preliminary factual findings,' with respect to equitable

. . . tolling." (Hopkins, supra, 225 Cal.App.4th at p. 745.)

- "The equitable tolling doctrine rests on the concept that a plaintiff should not be barred by a statute of limitations unless the defendant would be unfairly prejudiced if the plaintiff were allowed to proceed. '[T]he primary purpose of the statute of limitations is normally satisfied when the defendant receives timely notification of the first of two proceedings.' " (Aguilera v. Heiman (2009) 174 Cal.App.4th 590, 598 [95 Cal.Rptr.3d 18], internal citations omitted.)
- "Broadly speaking, the doctrine applies ' "[w]hen an injured person has several legal remedies and, reasonably and in good faith, pursues one." ' [Citation.] Thus, it may apply where one action stands to lessen the harm that is the subject of a potential second action; where administrative remedies must be exhausted before a second action can proceed; or where a first action, embarked upon in good faith, is found to be defective for some reason." (Wassmann v. South Orange County Community College Dist. (2018) 24 Cal.App.5th 825, 853 [234 Cal.Rptr.3d 712].)
- "[T]he effect of equitable tolling is that the limitations period stops running during the tolling event, and begins to run again only when the tolling event has concluded. As a consequence, the tolled interval, no matter when it took place, is tacked onto the end of the limitations period, thus extending the deadline for suit by the entire length of time during which the tolling event previously occurred." (Lantzy v. Centex Homes (2003) 31 Cal.4th 363, 370–371 [2 Cal.Rptr.3d 655, 73 P.3d 517].)
- "A major reason for applying the doctrine is to avoid 'the hardship of compelling plaintiffs to pursue several duplicative actions simultaneously on the same set of facts.' '[D]isposition of a case filed in one forum may render proceedings in the second unnecessary or easier and less expensive to resolve.' " (Guevara v. Ventura County Community College Dist. (2008) 169 Cal.App.4th 167, 174 [87 Cal.Rptr.3d 50], internal citations omitted.)
- "[A]pplication of the doctrine of equitable tolling requires timely notice, and lack of prejudice, to the defendant, and reasonable and good faith conduct on the part of the plaintiff. These elements seemingly are present here. As noted, the federal court, without prejudice, declined to assert jurisdiction over a timely filed state law cause of action and plaintiffs thereafter promptly asserted that cause in the proper state court. Unquestionably, the same set of facts may be the basis for claims under both federal and state law. We discern no reason of policy which would require plaintiffs to file simultaneously two separate actions based upon the same facts in both state and federal courts since 'duplicative proceedings are surely inefficient, awkward and laborious.' " (Addison v. State (1978) 21 Cal.3d 313, 319 [146 Cal.Rptr. 224, 578 P.2d 941], internal citations omitted.)
- " ' "The timely notice requirement essentially means that the first claim must have been filed within the statutory period. Furthermore[,] the filing of the first claim must alert the defendant in the second claim of the need to begin investigating the facts which form the basis for the second claim. Generally this means that the defendant in the first claim is the same one being sued in the second." "The second prerequisite essentially translates to a requirement that the facts of the two claims be identical or at least so similar that the defendant's investigation of the first claim will put him in a position to fairly defend the second." "The third prerequisite of good faith and reasonable conduct on the part of the plaintiff is less clearly defined in the cases. But in Addison v. State of California, supra, 21 Cal.3d 313[,] the Supreme Court did stress that the plaintiff filed his second claim a short time after tolling ended." ' " (McDonald, supra, 45 Cal.4th at p. 102, fn. 2, internal citations omitted.)

- "The third requirement of good faith and reasonable conduct may turn on whether 'a plaintiff delayed filing the second claim until the statute on that claim had nearly run . . .' or 'whether the plaintiff [took] affirmative actions which . . . misle[d] the defendant into believing the plaintiff was foregoing his second claim.' " (Tarkington v. California Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (2009) 172 Cal.App.4th 1494, 1505 [92 Cal.Rptr.3d 131].)
- "Where exhaustion of an administrative remedy is mandatory prior to filing suit, equitable tolling is automatic: 'It has long been settled in this and other jurisdictions that whenever the exhaustion of administrative remedies is a prerequisite to the initiation of a civil action, the running of the limitations period is tolled during the time consumed by the administrative proceeding.' This rule prevents administrative exhaustion requirements from rendering illusory nonadministrative remedies contingent on exhaustion." (McDonald, supra, 45 Cal.4th at p. 101, internal citation omitted.)
- "The trial court rejected equitable tolling on the apparent ground that tolling was unavailable where, as here, the plaintiff was advised the alternate administrative procedure he or she was pursuing was voluntary and need not be exhausted. In reversing summary judgment, the Court of Appeal implicitly concluded equitable tolling is in fact available in such circumstances and explicitly concluded equitable tolling is not foreclosed as a matter of law under the FEHA. The Court of Appeal was correct on each count." (McDonald, supra, 45 Cal.4th at p. 114.)
- "Equitable tolling and equitable estoppel [see CACI No. 456] are distinct doctrines. ' "Tolling, strictly speaking, is concerned with the point at which the limitations period begins to run and with the circumstances in which the running of the limitations period may be suspended. . . . Equitable estoppel, however, . . . comes into play only after the limitations period has run and addresses . . . the circumstances in which a party will be estopped from asserting the statute of limitations as a defense to an admittedly untimely action because his conduct has induced another into forbearing suit within the applicable limitations period. [Equitable estoppel] is wholly independent of the limitations period itself and takes its life . . . from the equitable principle that no man [may] profit from his own wrongdoing in a court of justice." ' " (Lantzy, supra, 31 Cal.4th at pp. 383–384.)
- "[V]oluntary abandonment [of the first proceeding] does not categorically bar application of equitable tolling, but it may be relevant to whether a plaintiff can satisfy the three criteria for equitable tolling." (McDonald, supra, 45 Cal.4th at p. 111.)

- "The equitable tolling doctrine generally requires a showing that the plaintiff is seeking an alternate remedy in an established procedural context. Informal negotiations or discussions between an employer and employee do not toll a statute of limitations under the equitable tolling doctrine." (Acuna v. San Diego Gas & Electric Co. (2013) 217 Cal.App.4th 1402, 1416 [159 Cal.Rptr.3d 749], internal citation omitted.)
- "Tolling the FEHA limitation period while the employee awaits the outcome of an EEOC investigation furthers several policy objectives: (1) the defendant receives timely notice of the claim; (2) the plaintiff is relieved of the obligation of pursuing simultaneous actions on the same set of facts; and (3) the costs of duplicate proceedings often are avoided or reduced." (Mitchell v. State Dept. of Public Health (2016) 1 Cal.App.5th 1000, 1008 [205 Cal.Rptr.3d 261].)
- " '[P]utative class members would be ill advised to rely on the mere filing of a class action complaint to toll their individual statute of limitations.' A trial court may, nonetheless, apply tolling to save untimely claims. But in doing so, the court must address 'two major policy considerations.' The first is 'protection of the class action device,' which requires the court to determine whether the denial of class certification was 'unforeseeable by class members,' or whether potential members, in anticipation of a negative ruling, had already filed ' "protective motions to intervene or to join in the event that a class was later found unsuitable," depriving class actions "of the efficiency and economy of litigation which is a principal purpose of the procedure." ' The second consideration is 'effectuation of the purposes of the statute of limitations,' and requires the court to determine whether commencement of the class suit ' "notifie[d] the defendants not only of the substantive claims being brought against them, but also of the number and generic identities of the potential plaintiffs who may participate in the judgment." [Citation.] In these circumstances, . . . the purposes of the statute of limitations would not be violated by a decision to toll.' " (Batze v. Safeway, Inc. (2017) 10 Cal.App.5th 440, 482–483 [216 Cal.Rptr.3d 390], internal citations omitted.)
- "Section 340.6, subdivision (a), states that 'in no event' shall the prescriptive period be tolled except under those circumstances specified in the statute. Thus, the Legislature expressly intended to disallow tolling under any circumstances not enumerated in the statute." (Laird, supra, 2 Cal.4th at p. 618 [applying rule to one-year limitation period].)
- "We see no reason to apply the second sentence of section 340.5 to the one-year period it does not mention, in addition to the three-year period it does mention. The general purpose of MICRA does not require us to expand that sentence beyond its language." (Belton, supra, 20 Cal.4th at p. 934 [rejecting application of rule to one-year limitation period].)
- "[E]quitable tolling has never been applied to allow a plaintiff to extend the time for pursuing an administrative remedy by filing a lawsuit. Despite broad language used by courts in employing the doctrine, equitable tolling has been applied almost exclusively to extend statutory deadlines for judicial actions, rather than deadlines for commencing administrative proceedings." (Bjorndal v. Superior Court (2012) 211 Cal.App.4th 1100, 1109 [150 Cal.Rptr.3d 405].)

- "Plaintiffs cite no authority, and we are aware of none, that would allow a plaintiff in one case to equitably toll the limitation period based on the filing of a stranger's lawsuit." (Reid v. City of San Diego (2018) 23 Cal.App.5th 901, 916 [234 Cal.Rptr.3d 636].)
- "Equitable tolling applies to claims under FEHA during the period in which the plaintiff exhausts administrative remedies or when the plaintiff voluntarily pursues an administrative remedy or nonmandatory grievance procedure, even if exhaustion of that remedy is not mandatory." (Wassmann, supra, 24 Cal.App.5th at pp. 853–854.)

Secondary Sources

4 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Actions, § 796 et seq.

Turner et al., California Practice Guide: Civil Procedure Before Trial—Statutes of Limitations, Ch. 1-A, Definitions And Distinctions ¶ 1:57.2 (The Rutter Group)

3 California Torts, Ch. 32, Liability of Attorneys, § 32.60[1][g.2] (Matthew Bender)

30 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, § 345.21 (Matthew Bender)

14 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions, § 143.46 (Matthew Bender)

458–459. Reserved for Future Use

460. Strict Liability for Ultrahazardous Activities—Essential Factual Elements

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] was engaged in an ultrahazardous activity that caused [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it] to be harmed and that [name of defendant] is responsible for that harm.

People who engage in ultrahazardous activities are responsible for the harm these activities cause others, regardless of how carefully they carry out these activities. [Insert ultrahazardous activity] is an ultrahazardous activity.

To establish [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] was engaged in [insert ultrahazardous activity];
2. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed;
3. That [name of plaintiff]'s harm was the kind of harm that would be anticipated as a result of the risk created by [insert ultrahazardous activity]; and
4. That [name of defendant]'s [insert ultrahazardous activity] was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New September 2003

Sources and Authority

- "The doctrine of ultrahazardous activity provides that one who undertakes an ultrahazardous activity is liable to every person who is injured as a proximate result of that activity, regardless of the amount of care he uses." (Pierce v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (1985) 166 Cal.App.3d 68, 85 [212 Cal.Rptr. 283], internal citations omitted.)
- Whether an activity is ultrahazardous is a question of law to be determined by the court. (Luthringer v. Moore (1948) 31 Cal.2d 489, 496 [190 P.2d 1].)
- Restatement of Torts Second, section 519, provides:

  (1) One who carries on an abnormally dangerous activity is subject to liability for harm to the person, land or chattels of another resulting from the activity, although he has exercised the utmost care to prevent the harm.

  (2) This strict liability is limited to the kind of harm, the possibility of which makes the activity abnormally dangerous.
- Restatement of Torts Second, section 520, provides:

In determining whether an activity is abnormally dangerous, the following factors are to be considered:

(a) existence of a high degree of risk of some harm to the person, land or chattels of others;

(b) likelihood that the harm that results from it will be great;

(c) inability to eliminate the risk by the exercise of reasonable care;

(d) extent to which the activity is not a matter of common usage;

(e) inappropriateness of the activity to the place where it is carried on; and

(f) extent to which its value to the community is outweighed by its dangerous attributes.

- Section 519 formerly provided, in part, that "one who carries on an ultrahazardous activity is liable to another whose person, land or chattels the actor should recognize is likely to be harmed by the unpreventable miscarriage of the activity for harm resulting thereto from that which makes the activity ultrahazardous, although the utmost care is exercised to prevent the harm." This section was followed by the court in Luthringer, supra, and by other courts in subsequent cases. (See Garcia v. Estate of Norton (1986) 183 Cal.App.3d 413, 418 [228 Cal.Rptr. 108].) This statement regarding forseeability is evidently still good law in California, even though the wording of section 519 does not presently contain the limitation.
- Strict liability in this context has been confined to "consequences which lie within the extraordinary risk posed by the abnormally dangerous activity and is limited to the 'class of persons who are threatened by the abnormal danger, and the kind of damage they may be expected to incur.' " (Goodwin v. Reilley (1985) 176 Cal.App.3d 86, 92 [221 Cal.Rptr. 374], citing Prosser & Keeton, The Law of Torts (5th ed. 1984) § 75, p. 562.)
- "The important factor is that certain activities under certain conditions may be so hazardous to the public generally, and of such relative infrequent occurrence, that it may well call for strict liability as the best public policy." (Luthringer, supra, 31 Cal.2d at p. 500.)
- "It is axiomatic that an essential element of a plaintiff's cause of action, whether based on negligence or strict liability, is the existence of a causal connection between defendant's act and the injury which plaintiff suffered." (Smith v. Lockheed Propulsion Co. (1967) 247 Cal.App.2d 774, 780 [56 Cal.Rptr. 128], internal citations omitted.)
- Defendant contended that the strict liability doctrine "cannot be applied unless the defendant is aware of the abnormally dangerous condition or activity." This is unsound: One who carried on such an "activity is liable for injuries to a person whom the actor reasonably should recognize as likely to be harmed . . . , even though 'the utmost care is exercised to prevent the harm.' " (Garcia, supra, 183 Cal.App.3d at p. 420, internal citation omitted.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1575–1588 et seq.

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 7, Strict Liability for Hazardous Activities, §§ 7.01–7.06 (Matthew Bender)

1 California Environmental Law & Land Use Practice, Ch. 1, Nuisance, Trespass, and Strict Liability for Ultrahazardous Activities (Matthew Bender)

1A California Trial Guide, Unit 11, Opening Statement, § 11.55 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence (Matthew Bender)

23 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 234, Ultrahazardous Activities (Matthew Bender)

1 California Civil Practice: Torts §§ 2:4–2:10 (Thomson Reuters)

461. Strict Liability for Injury Caused by Wild Animal—Essential Factual Elements

---

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant]'s [insert type of animal] harmed [him/her/nonbinary pronoun] and that [name of defendant] is responsible for that harm.

People who own, keep, or control wild animals are responsible for the harm that these animals cause to others, no matter how carefully they guard or restrain their animals.

To establish [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] owned, kept, or controlled [a/an] [insert type of animal];
2. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
3. That [name of defendant]'s [insert type of animal] was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New September 2003; Revised December 2015, June 2016

Directions for Use

Give this instruction to impose strict liability on an animal owner for injuries caused by an animal of a type that is inherently dangerous without the need to show the owner's knowledge of dangerousness. (See Baugh v. Beatty (1949) 91 Cal.App.2d 786, 791–792 [205 P.2d 671].) For an instruction for use for a domestic animal if it is alleged that the owner knew or should have known that the animal had a dangerous propensity, see CACI No. 462, Strict Liability for Injury Caused by Domestic Animal With Dangerous Propensity. (See Thomas v. Stenberg (2012) 206 Cal.App.4th 654, 665 [142 Cal.Rptr.3d 24].) For an instruction on statutory strict liability under the dog-bite statute, see CACI No. 463, Dog Bite Statute—Essential Factual Elements.

Whether the determination that the animal that caused injury is a "wild animal" triggering this instruction is a matter of law for the court or can be a question of fact for the jury has apparently not been addressed by the courts.

Sources and Authority

- "The keeper of an animal of a species dangerous by nature . . . is liable, without wrongful intent or negligence, for damage to others resulting from such a propensity. The liability of the keeper is absolute, for '[the] gist of the action is not the manner of keeping the vicious animal, but the keeping him at all with knowledge of the vicious propensities. [Citation.] In such instances the owner is an insurer against the acts of the animal, to one who is injured without fault, and the question of the owner's negligence is not in the case.' " (Hillman v. Garcia-Ruby (1955) 44 Cal.2d 625, 626 [283 P.2d 1033].)

- "[I]f the animal which inflicted the injury is vicious and dangerous, known to the defendant to be such, an allegation of negligence on the part of defendant is unnecessary and the averment, if made, may be treated as surplusage." (Baugh, supra, 91 Cal.App.2d at p. 791.)
- "[A] wild animal is presumed to be vicious and since the owner of such an animal . . . is an insurer against the acts of the animal to anyone who is injured, and unless such person voluntarily or consciously does something which brings the injury on himself, the question of the owner's negligence is not in the case." Baugh, supra, 91 Cal.App.2d at p. 791.)
- "The court instructed the jury with respect to the liability of the keeper of a vicious or dangerous animal, known to be such by its owner. Although plaintiff has not raised any objection to this instruction, it was not proper in the instant case since the animal was of the class of animals ferae naturae, of known savage and vicious nature, and hence an instruction on the owner's knowledge of its ferocity was unnecessary." (Baugh, supra, 91 Cal.App.2d at pp. 791–792.)
- "[Strict] liability has been imposed on 'keepers of lions and tigers, bears, elephants, wolves [and] monkeys.' " (Rosenbloom v. Hanour Corp. (1998) 66 Cal.App.4th 1477, 1479, fn. 1 [78 Cal.Rptr.2d 686].)
- "The owner of a naturally dangerous animal may be excused from the usual duty of care: 'In cases involving "primary assumption of risk"—where, by virtue of the nature of the activity and the parties' relationship to the activity, the defendant owes no legal duty to protect the plaintiff from the particular risk of harm that caused the injury—the doctrine . . . operates as a complete bar to the plaintiff's recovery.' " (Rosenbloom, supra, 66 Cal.App.4th at p. 1479, internal citation omitted.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1563

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) §§ 3.3–3.6

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 6, Strict Liability for Injuries Caused by Animals, §§ 6.01–6.10 (Matthew Bender)

3 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 23, Animals: Civil Liability, § 23.23 (Matthew Bender)

1 California Civil Practice: Torts §§ 2:20–2:21 (Thomson Reuters)

462. Strict Liability for Injury Caused by Domestic Animal With Dangerous Propensities—Essential Factual Elements

---

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant]'s [insert type of animal] harmed [him/her/nonbinary pronoun] and that [name of defendant] is responsible for that harm.

People who own, keep, or control animals with unusually dangerous natures or tendencies can be held responsible for the harm that their animals cause to others, no matter how carefully they guard or restrain their animals.

To establish [his/her/*nonbinary pronoun] claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] owned, kept, or controlled a [insert type of animal];
2. That the [insert type of animal] had an unusually dangerous nature or tendency;
3. That before [name of plaintiff] was injured, [name of defendant] knew or should have known that the [insert type of animal] had this nature or tendency;
4. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
5. That the [insert type of animal]'s unusually dangerous nature or tendency was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, June 2013

Directions for Use

Give this instruction to impose strict liability on an animal owner if the owner knew or should have known that the animal had a dangerous propensity. (See Thomas v. Stenberg (2012) 206 Cal.App.4th 654, 665 [142 Cal.Rptr.3d 24].) There is also strict liability for injuries caused by animals of a type that are inherently dangerous without the need to show the owner's knowledge of dangerousness. (Baugh v. Beatty (1949) 91 Cal.App.2d 786, 791–792 [205 P.2d 671]; see CACI No. 461, Strict Liability for Injury Caused by Wild Animal—Essential Factual Elements.)

For an instruction on statutory strict liability under the dog-bite statute, see CACI No. 463, Dog Bite Statute (Civ. Code, § 3342)—Essential Factual Elements.

Sources and Authority

- "A common law strict liability cause of action may also be maintained if the owner of a domestic animal that bites or injures another person knew or had reason to know of the animal's vicious propensities. If [defendant] knew or should have known of his dog's vicious propensities and failed to inform [plaintiff] of such facts, he could be found to have exposed [plaintiff] to an unknown risk and thereby be held strictly liable at common law for her injuries. Under such circumstances, the defense of primary assumption of risk would not bar [plaintiff]'s claim since she could not be found to have assumed a risk of which she was unaware." (Priebe v. Nelson (2006) 39 Cal.4th 1112, 1115–1116 [47 Cal.Rptr.3d 553, 140 P.3d 848], original italics, internal citations omitted.)

- "The doctrine of strict liability for harm done by animals has developed along two separate and independent lines: (1) Strict liability for damages by trespassing livestock, and (2) strict liability apart from trespass (a) for damages by animals of a species regarded as inherently dangerous, and (b) for damages by animals of a species not so regarded but which, in the particular case, possess dangerous propensities which were or should have been known to the possessor." (Thomas, supra, 206 Cal.App.4th at p. 665.)
- "California has long followed the common law rule of strict liability for harm done by a domestic animal with known vicious or dangerous propensities abnormal to its class." (Drake v. Dean (1993) 15 Cal.App.4th 915, 921 [19 Cal.Rptr.2d 325].)
- Any propensity that is likely to cause injury under the circumstances is a dangerous or vicious propensity within the meaning of the law. (Talizin v. Oak Creek Riding Club (1959) 176 Cal.App.2d 429, 437 [1 Cal.Rptr. 514].)
- The question of whether a domestic animal is vicious or dangerous is ordinarily a factual one for the jury. (Heath v. Fruzia (1942) 50 Cal.App.2d 598, 601 [123 P.2d 560].)
- " 'The gist of the action is not the manner of keeping the vicious animal, but the keeping him at all with knowledge of the vicious propensities. In such instances the owner is an insurer against the acts of the animal, to one who is injured without fault, and the question of the owner's negligence is not in the case.' " (Hillman v. Garcia-Ruby (1955) 44 Cal.2d 625, 626 [283 P.2d 1033], internal citations omitted.)
- "The absolute duty to restrain the dog could not be invoked unless the jury found, not only that the dog had the alleged dangerous propensity, but that defendants knew or should have known that it had." (Hillman, supra, 44 Cal.2d at p. 628.)
- "[N]egligence may be predicated on the characteristics of the animal which, although not abnormal to its class, create a foreseeable risk of harm. As to those characteristics, the owner has a duty to anticipate the harm and to exercise ordinary care to prevent the harm." (Drake, supra, 15 Cal.App.4th at p. 929.)
- "It is well settled in cases such as this (the case involved a bull) that the owner of an animal, not naturally vicious, is not liable for an injury done by it, unless two propositions are established: 1. That the animal in fact was vicious, and 2.

That the owner knew it." (Mann v. Stanley (1956) 141 Cal.App.2d 438, 441 [296 P.2d 921].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1575–1588 et seq.

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) §§ 3.3–3.6

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 6, Strict Liability for Injuries Caused by Animals, §§ 6.01–6.10 (Matthew Bender)

3 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 23, Animals: Civil Liability, § 23.33 (Matthew Bender)

1 California Civil Practice: Torts, §§ 2:20–2:21 (Thomson Reuters)

463. Dog Bite Statute (Civ. Code, § 3342)—Essential Factual Elements

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant]'s dog bit [him/her/nonbinary pronoun] and that [name of defendant] is responsible for that harm.

People who own dogs can be held responsible for the harm from a dog bite, no matter how carefully they guard or restrain their dogs.

To establish [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] owned a dog;
2. That the dog bit [name of plaintiff] while [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was in a public place or lawfully on private property;
3. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
4. That [name of defendant]'s dog was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

[[Name of plaintiff] was lawfully on private property of the owner if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was performing any duty required by law or was on the property at the invitation, express or implied, of the owner.]

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, May 2020

Directions for Use

Read the last optional paragraph if there is an issue regarding whether the plaintiff was lawfully on private property when the plaintiff was bitten.

For an instruction on common-law liability based on the defendant's knowledge of his or her pet's dangerous propensities, see CACI No. 462, Strict Liability for Injury Caused by Domestic Animal With Dangerous Propensities—Essential Factual Elements.

Sources and Authority

- Liability for Dog Bites. Civil Code section 3342(a).
- This statute creates an exception to the general rule that an owner is not strictly liable for harm caused by a domestic animal absent knowledge of the animal's vicious propensity. (Hicks v. Sullivan (1932) 122 Cal.App. 635, 639 [10 P.2d 516].)
- It is not necessary that the skin be broken in order for the statute to apply. (Johnson v. McMahan (1998) 68 Cal.App.4th 173, 176 [80 Cal.Rptr.2d 173].)
- "The defenses of assumption of the risk and contributory negligence may still be asserted" in an action brought under section 3342. (Johnson, supra, 68 Cal.App.4th at p. 176.)

- "A veterinarian or a veterinary assistant who accepts employment for the medical treatment of a dog, aware of the risk that any dog, regardless of its previous nature, might bite while being treated, has assumed this risk as part of his or her occupation." (Nelson v. Hall (1985) 165 Cal.App.3d 709, 715 [211 Cal.Rptr. 668], original italics.)
- "[Plaintiff], by virtue of the nature of her occupation as a kennel worker, assumed the risk of being bitten or otherwise injured by the dogs under her care and control while in the custody of the commercial kennel where she worked pursuant to a contractual boarding agreement. The Court of Appeal correctly concluded a strict liability cause of action under the dog bite statute (§ 3342) was therefore unavailable to [plaintiff]." (Priebe v. Nelson (2006) 39 Cal.4th 1112, 1132 [47 Cal.Rptr.3d 553, 140 P.3d 848].)
- The definition of "lawfully upon the private property of such owner" effectively prevents trespassers from obtaining recovery under the Dog Bite Statute. (Fullerton v. Conan (1948) 87 Cal.App.2d 354, 358 [197 P.2d 59].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1569–1573

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 3.2

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 6, Strict Liability for Injuries Caused by Animals, § 6.12 (Matthew Bender)

3 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 23, Animals: Civil Liability (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 178, Premises Liability (Matthew Bender)

1 California Civil Practice: Torts § 2:16 (Thomson Reuters)

464–469. Reserved for Future Use

470. Primary Assumption of Risk—Exception to Nonliability—Coparticipant in Sport or Other Recreational Activity

---

[*Name of plaintiff] claims [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was harmed while participating in [specify sport or other recreational activity, e.g., touch football] and that [name of defendant] is responsible for that harm. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] either intentionally injured [name of plaintiff] or acted so recklessly that [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] conduct was entirely outside the range of ordinary activity involved in [e.g., touch football];
2. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
3. That [name of defendant]'s conduct was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

Conduct is entirely outside the range of ordinary activity involved in [*e.g., touch football] if that conduct (1) increased the risks to [name of plaintiff] over and above those inherent in [e.g., touch football], and (2) it can be prohibited without discouraging vigorous participation or otherwise fundamentally changing the [sport/activity].

[*Name of defendant] is not responsible for an injury resulting from conduct that was merely accidental, careless, or negligent.

New September 2003; Revised April 2004, October 2008, April 2009, December 2011, December 2013; Revised and Renumbered from CACI No. 408 May 2017; Revised May 2018

Directions for Use

This instruction sets forth a plaintiff's response to the affirmative defense of primary assumption of risk asserted by a defendant who was a coparticipant in the sport or other recreational activity. For an instruction applicable to coaches, instructors, or trainers, see CACI No. 471, Primary Assumption of Risk—Exception to Nonliability—Instructors, Trainers, or Coaches. For an instruction applicable to facilities owners and operators and to event sponsors, see CACI No. 472, Primary Assumption of Risk—Exception to Nonliability—Facilities Owners and Operators and Event Sponsors. For an instruction applicable to occupations with inherent risk, see CACI No. 473, Primary Assumption of Risk—Exception to Nonliability—Occupation Involving Inherent Risk.

Primary assumption of risk generally absolves the defendant of a duty of care toward the plaintiff with regard to injury incurred in the course of a sporting or other recreational activity covered by the doctrine. (See Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal.4th 296, 320 [11 Cal.Rptr.2d 2, 834 P.2d 696].) Element 1 sets forth the exceptions in which there is a duty.

While duty is generally a question of law, some courts have held that whether the defendant has increased the risk beyond those inherent in the sport or activity is a question of fact for the jury. (See Luna v. Vela (2008) 169 Cal.App.4th 102, 112–113 [86 Cal.Rptr.3d 588] and cases cited therein, including cases contra.) There may also be disputed facts that must be resolved by a jury before it can be determined if the doctrine applies. (See Shin v. Ahn (2007) 42 Cal.4th 482, 486 [64 Cal.Rptr.3d 803, 165 P.3d 581].)

Sources and Authority

- "Primary assumption of risk arises where a plaintiff voluntarily participates in an activity or sport involving certain inherent risks; primary assumption of risk . . . bar[s] recovery because no duty of care is owed as to such risks." (Connelly v. Mammoth Mountain Ski Area (1995) 39 Cal.App.4th 8, 11 [45 Cal.Rptr.2d 855], internal citations omitted.)
- "Although the doctrine is often applied as between sports coparticipants, it defines the duty owed as between persons engaged in any activity involving inherent risks. The doctrine applies to activity 'done for enjoyment or thrill, requires physical exertion as well as elements of skill, and involves a challenge containing a potential risk of injury' . . . ." (Jimenez v. Roseville City School Dist. (2016) 247 Cal.App.4th 594, 601 [202 Cal.Rptr.3d 536], internal citations omitted; see also Bertsch v. Mammoth Community Water Dist. (2016) 247 Cal.App.4th 1201, 1208 [202 Cal.Rptr.3d 757] ["These factors certainly apply to skateboarding"]; Swigart v. Bruno (2017) 13 Cal.App.5th 529, 540 [220 Cal.Rptr.3d 556] [horseback riding is an inherently dangerous sport]; Foltz v. Johnson (2017) 16 Cal.App.5th 647, 656–657 [224 Cal.Rptr.3d 506] [off-road dirt bike riding].)
- "A coparticipant in an active sport ordinarily bears no liability for an injury resulting from conduct in the course of the sport that is merely careless or negligent." (Ford v. Gouin (1992) 3 Cal.4th 339, 342 [11 Cal.Rptr.2d 30, 834 P.2d 724].)
- "[W]e conclude that a participant in an active sport breaches a legal duty of care to other participants—i.e., engages in conduct that properly may subject him or her to financial liability—only if the participant intentionally injures another player or engages in conduct that is so reckless as to be totally outside the range of the ordinary activity involved in the sport." (Knight, supra, 3 Cal.4th at p. 320.)
- "The Knight rule, however, 'does not grant unbridled legal immunity to all defendants participating in sporting activity. The Supreme Court has stated that "it is well established that defendants generally do have a duty to use due care not to increase the risks to a participant over and above those inherent in the sport." Thus, even though "defendants generally have no legal duty to eliminate (or protect a plaintiff against) risks inherent in the sport itself," they may not increase the likelihood of injury above that which is inherent.'" (Distefano v. Forester (2001) 85 Cal.App.4th 1249, 1261 [102 Cal.Rptr.2d 813], internal citations omitted.)

- "In Freeman v. Hale, the Court of Appeal advanced a test . . . for determining what risks are inherent in a sport: '[C]onduct is totally outside the range of ordinary activity involved in the sport (and thus any risks resulting from that conduct are not inherent to the sport) if the prohibition of that conduct would neither deter vigorous participation in the sport nor otherwise fundamentally alter the nature of the sport.'" (Distefano, supra, 85 Cal.App.4th at p. 1261.)
- "[G]olfers have a limited duty of care to other players, breached only if they intentionally injure them or engage in conduct that is 'so reckless as to be totally outside the range of the ordinary activity involved in the sport.'" (Shin, supra, 42 Cal.4th at p. 497.)
- "The [horseback] rider generally assumes the risk of injury inherent in the sport. Another person does not owe a duty to protect the rider from injury by discouraging the rider's vigorous participation in the sport or by requiring that an integral part of horseback riding be abandoned. And the person has no duty to protect the rider from the careless conduct of others participating in the sport. The person owes the horseback rider only two duties: (1) to not 'intentionally' injure the rider; and (2) to not 'increase the risk of harm beyond what is inherent in [horseback riding]' by 'engag[ing] in conduct that is so reckless as to be totally outside the range of the ordinary activity involved in the sport'" (Levinson v. Owens (2009) 176 Cal.App.4th 1534, 1545–1546 [98 Cal.Rptr.3d 779].)
- "[T]he general test is 'that a participant in an active sport breaches a legal duty of care to other participants—i.e., engages in conduct that properly may subject him or her to financial liability—only if the participant intentionally injures another player or engages in conduct that is so reckless as to be totally outside the range of the ordinary activity involved in the sport.' Although a defendant has no duty of care to a plaintiff with regard to inherent risks, a defendant still has a duty not to increase those risks." (Swigart, supra, 13 Cal.App.5th at p. 538, internal citations omitted.)
- "The question of which risks are inherent in a recreational activity is fact intensive but, on a sufficient record, may be resolved on summary judgment. Judges deciding inherent risk questions under this doctrine 'may consider not only their own or common experience with the recreational activity involved but may also consult case law, other published materials, and documentary evidence introduced by the parties on a motion for summary judgment.'" (Foltz, supra, 16 Cal.App.5th at p. 656, internal citations omitted.)
- "[W]hether defendant breached the limited duty of care he owed other golfers by engaging in conduct that was 'so reckless as to be totally outside the range of the ordinary activity involved in [golf]' depends on resolution of disputed material facts. Thus, defendant's summary judgment motion was properly denied." (Shin, supra, 42 Cal.4th at p. 486, internal citation omitted.)

- "Although we recognize the Court of Appeal decisions specifically addressing the point are in conflict, we believe resolving this issue is not a matter of further defining [defendant]'s duty, which would be a question of law for the court. Rather, it requires application of the governing standard of care (the duty not to increase the risks inherent in the sport) to the facts of this particular case—the traditional role of the trier of fact. (See, e.g., Vine v. Bear Valley Ski Co., supra, 118 Cal.App.4th at pp. 591–592 [whether defendant's design of snowboard jump increased inherent risks of snowboarding is question for jury]; Solis v. Kirkwood Resort Co., supra, 94 Cal.App.4th at p. 365 [whether artificial jumps built by resort increased inherent risk of falling while skiing is question for jury]; Lowe v. California League of Prof. Baseball (1997) 56 Cal.App.4th 112, 123 [65 Cal.Rptr.2d 105] [whether distraction caused by activities of minor league baseball team's mascot increased inherent risk of spectator being hit by a foul ball 'is issue of fact to be resolved at trial']; but see Huff v. Wilkins, supra, 138 Cal.App.4th at p. 745 ['it is the trial court's province to determine whether defendants breached their duty not to increase the inherent risk of a collision [in the sport of off-roading], and it should hold a hearing for this purpose before impaneling a jury']; American Golf Corp. v. Superior Court (2000) 79 Cal.App.4th 30, 37 [93 Cal.Rptr.2d 683] ['[i]t is for the court to decide . . . whether the defendant has increased the risks of the activity beyond the risks inherent in the sport']; see also Huffman v. City of Poway (2000) 84 Cal.App.4th 975, 995, fn. 23 [101 Cal.Rptr.2d 325] [indicating it is for the court to determine whether defendant's conduct increased the risk inherent in participating in a particular sport, but that trial court may receive expert testimony on the customary practices in the sport to make that determination].) [¶] Our conclusion it is for the trier of fact to determine whether [defendant] breached his limited duty not to increase the risks inherent in the sport of volleyball finds solid support in the Supreme Court's most recent sports injury, primary assumption of the risk decision, Shin v. Ahn, supra, 42 Cal.4th 482, a case that postdates the appellate court decisions suggesting the issue is one for the court to resolve." (Luna v. Vela (2008) 169 Cal.App.4th 102, 112–113 [86 Cal.Rptr.3d 588].)
- "The determinant of duty, 'inherent risk,' is to be decided solely as a question of law and based on the general characteristics of the sport activity and the parties' relationship to it." (Griffin v. The Haunted Hotel, Inc. (2015) 242 Cal.App.4th 490, 501 [194 Cal.Rptr.3d 830].)
- "Primary assumption of risk has often been applied in the context of active sports, but the doctrine also applies to other recreational activities that ' "involv[e] an inherent risk of injury to voluntary participants . . . where the risk cannot be eliminated without altering the fundamental nature of the activity." ' 'Where the doctrine applies to a recreational activity, operators, instructors and participants in the activity owe other participants only the duty not to act so as to increase the risk of injury over that inherent in the activity.' Coparticipants must not intentionally or recklessly injure other participants, but the doctrine is a complete defense to a claim of negligence. However, recovery for injuries caused by risks not inherent in the activity is not barred by the doctrine." (Wolf v. Weber (2020) 52 Cal.App.5th 406, 410–411 [266 Cal.Rptr.3d 104], original italics, internal citations omitted.)

- "Admittedly, it is sometimes said that '[t]he existence and scope of a defendant's duty of care in the primary assumption of risk context "is a legal question which depends on the nature of the sport or activity . . . and on the parties' general relationship to the activity, and is an issue to be decided by the court, rather than the jury." ' This statement of the rule is correct where there is no dispute about the inherent risks, and such cases may be resolved on summary judgment. [¶] However this statement is overly broad. Although the risks inherent in many activities are not subject to reasonable dispute (e.g., being hit with a baseball during a game), the risks inherent in some activities are not commonly known. In such cases, expert testimony may be required ' "for purposes of weighing whether the inherent risks of the activity were increased by the defendant's conduct." ' Thus, it is not entirely accurate to say inherent risks of an activity always present purely legal questions, because sometimes the nature of an activity and its risks must be gleaned from the evidence." (Jimenez, supra, 247 Cal.App.4th at p. 608, original italics, internal citations omitted.)
- "[Plaintiff] has repeatedly argued that primary assumption of the risk does not apply because she did not impliedly consent to having a weight dropped on her head. However, a plaintiff's expectation does not define the limits of primary assumption of the risk. 'Primary assumption of risk focuses on the legal question of duty. It does not depend upon a plaintiff's implied consent to injury, nor is the plaintiff's subjective awareness or expectation relevant. . . . .' " (Cann v. Stefanec (2013) 217 Cal.App.4th 462, 471 [158 Cal.Rptr.3d 474].)
- "Primary assumption of the risk does not depend on whether the plaintiff subjectively appreciated the risks involved in the activity; instead, the focus is an objective one that takes into consideration the risks that are ' "inherent" ' in the activity at issue." (Swigart, supra, 13 Cal.App.5th at p. 538.)
- "A jury could find that, by using a snowboard without the retention strap, in violation of the rules of the ski resort and a county ordinance, defendant unnecessarily increased the danger that his snowboard might escape his control and injure other participants such as plaintiff. The absence of a retention strap could therefore constitute conduct not inherent to the sport which increased the risk of injury." (Campbell v. Derylo (1999) 75 Cal.App.4th 823, 829 [89 Cal.Rptr.2d 519].)
- "The existence and scope of a defendant's duty depends on the role that defendant played in the activity. Defendants were merely the hosts of a social gathering at their cattle ranch, where [plaintiff] asked to ride one of their horses; they were not instructors and did not assume any of the responsibilities of an instructor." (Levinson, supra, 176 Cal.App.4th at pp. 1550–1551, internal citation omitted.)
- "[T]he primary assumption of risk doctrine is not limited to activities classified as sports, but applies as well to other recreational activities 'involving an inherent risk of injury to voluntary participants . . . where the risk cannot be eliminated without altering the fundamental nature of the activity.' " (Nalwa v. Cedar Fair, L.P. (2012) 55 Cal.4th 1148, 1156 [150 Cal.Rptr.3d 551, 290 P.3d 1158].)

- "Whether a duty exists 'does not turn on the reasonableness or unreasonableness of the plaintiff's conduct, but rather on [(1)] the nature of the activity or sport in which the defendant is engaged and [(2)] the relationship of the defendant and the plaintiff to that activity or sport.' It is the 'nature of the activity' and the parties' relationship to it that determines whether the doctrine applies—not its characterization as a sporting event." (McGarry v. Sax (2008) 158 Cal.App.4th 983, 999–1000 [70 Cal.Rptr.3d 519], internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]o the extent that ' " 'a plaintiff unreasonably undertakes to encounter a specific known risk imposed by a defendant's negligence,' " ' he or she is subject to the defense of comparative negligence but not to an absolute defense. This type of comparative negligence has been referred to as ' "secondary assumption of risk." ' Assumption of risk that is based upon the absence of a defendant's duty of care is called ' "primary assumption of risk." ' 'First, in "primary assumption of risk" cases—where the defendant owes no duty to protect the plaintiff from a particular risk of harm—a plaintiff who has suffered such harm is not entitled to recover from the defendant, whether the plaintiff's conduct in undertaking the activity was reasonable or unreasonable. Second, in "secondary assumption of risk" cases—involving instances in which the defendant has breached the duty of care owed to the plaintiff—the defendant is not entitled to be entirely relieved of liability for an injury proximately caused by such breach, simply because the plaintiff's conduct in encountering the risk of such an injury was reasonable rather than unreasonable.' " (Kindrich v. Long Beach Yacht Club (2008) 167 Cal.App.4th 1252, 1259 [84 Cal.Rptr.3d 824], original italics, internal citations omitted.)
- "Even were we to conclude that [plaintiff]'s decision to jump off the boat was a voluntary one, and that therefore he assumed a risk inherent in doing so, this is not enough to provide a complete defense. Because voluntary assumption of risk as a complete defense in a negligence action was abandoned in Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal.3d 804, 829 [119 Cal.Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226], only the absence of duty owed a plaintiff under the doctrine of primary assumption of risk would provide such a defense. But that doctrine does not come into play except when a plaintiff and a defendant are engaged in certain types of activities, such as an 'active sport.' That was not the case here; plaintiff was merely the passenger on a boat. Under Li, he may have been contributorily negligent but this would only go to reduce the amount of damages to which he is entitled." (Kindrich, supra, 167 Cal.App.4th at p. 1258.)
- "Though most cases in which the doctrine of primary assumption of risk exists involve recreational sports, the doctrine has been applied to dangerous activities in other contexts (see, e.g., Saville v. Sierra College (2005) 133 Cal.App.4th 857

[36 Cal.Rptr.3d 515] [training in peace officer takedown maneuvers]; Hamilton v. Martinelli & Associates (2003) 110 Cal.App.4th 1012 [2 Cal.Rptr.3d 168] [training on physical restraint methods]; Aaris v. Las Virgenes Unified School Dist. (1998) 64 Cal.App.4th 1112 [75 Cal.Rptr.2d 801] [practice of cheerleader routines]; Bushnell [v. Japanese-American Religious & Cultural Center], 43 Cal.App.4th 525 [50 Cal.Rptr.2d 671] [practice of moves in judo class]; and Herrle v. Estate of Marshall (1996) 45 Cal.App.4th 1761 [53 Cal.Rptr.2d 713] [injury to nurse's aide by nursing home patient])." (McGarry, supra, 158 Cal.App.4th at pp. 999–1000, internal citation omitted.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1496–1511

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 4, Comparative Negligence, Assumption of the Risk, and Related Defenses, § 4.03, Ch. 15, General Premises Liability, § 15.21 (Matthew Bender)

23 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 273, Games, Sports, and Athletics, § 273.30 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence, § 380.172 (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, § 165.401 (Matthew Bender)

471. Primary Assumption of Risk—Exception to Nonliability—Instructors, Trainers, or Coaches

---

[*Name of plaintiff] claims [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was harmed by [name of defendant]'s [coaching/training/instruction]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] was [name of plaintiff]'s [coach/trainer/instructor];
2. [That [name of defendant] intended to cause [name of plaintiff] injury or acted recklessly in that [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] conduct was entirely outside the range of ordinary activity involved in teaching or coaching [sport or other recreational activity, e.g., horseback riding] in which [name of plaintiff] was participating;]

   [or]

   [That [*name of defendant] unreasonably increased the risks to [name of plaintiff] over and above those inherent in [e.g., horseback riding];]
3. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
4. That [name of defendant]'s conduct was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New September 2003; Revised April 2004, June 2012, December 2013; Revised and Renumbered from CACI No. 409 May 2017; Revised May 2020

Directions for Use

This instruction sets forth a plaintiff's response to a defendant's assertion of the affirmative defense of primary assumption of risk. Primary assumption of risk generally absolves the defendant of a duty of care toward the plaintiff with regard to injury incurred in the course of a sporting or other recreational activity covered by the doctrine. (See Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal.4th 296, 320 [11 Cal.Rptr.2d 2, 834 P.2d 696].)

There are exceptions, however, in which there is a duty of care. Use the first option for element 2 if it is alleged that the coach or trainer intended to cause the student's injury or engaged in conduct totally outside the range of the ordinary activity involved in teaching or coaching the sport or activity. Use the second option if it is alleged that the coach's or trainer's failure to use ordinary care increased the risk of injury to the plaintiff, for example, by encouraging or allowing the plaintiff to participate in the sport or activity when the plaintiff was physically unfit to participate or by allowing the plaintiff to use unsafe equipment or instruments. (See Eriksson v. Nunnink (2011) 191 Cal.App.4th 826, 845 [120 Cal.Rptr.3d 90].) If the second option is selected, also give CACI No. 400, Negligence—Essential Factual Elements.

While duty is a question of law, courts have held that whether the defendant has unreasonably increased the risk is a question of fact for the jury. (See Luna v. Vela (2008) 169 Cal.App.4th 102, 112–113 [86 Cal.Rptr.3d 588] [and cases cited therein].) There may also be disputed facts that must be resolved by a jury before it can be determined if the doctrine applies. (See Shin v. Ahn (2007) 42 Cal.4th 482, 486 [64 Cal.Rptr.3d 803, 165 P.3d 581].)

For an instruction on primary assumption of risk applicable to coparticipants, see CACI No. 470, Primary Assumption of Risk—Exception to Nonliability—Coparticipant in Sport or Other Recreational Activity. For an instruction on primary assumption of risk applicable to facilities owners and operators and to event sponsors, see CACI No. 472, Primary Assumption of Risk—Exception to Nonliability—Facilities Owners and Operators and Event Sponsors. For an instruction applicable to occupations with inherent risk, see CACI No. 473, Primary Assumption of Risk—Exception to Nonliability—Occupation with Inherent Risk.

Sources and Authority

- "In order to support a cause of action in cases in which it is alleged that a sports instructor has required a student to perform beyond the student's capacity or without providing adequate instruction, it must be alleged and proved that the instructor acted with intent to cause a student's injury or that the instructor acted recklessly in the sense that the instructor's conduct was 'totally outside the range of the ordinary activity' involved in teaching or coaching the sport." (Kahn v. East Side Union High School District (2003) 31 Cal.4th 990, 1011 [4 Cal.Rptr.3d 103, 75 P.3d 30], internal citation omitted.)
- "[T]he primary assumption of risk doctrine is not limited to activities classified as sports, but applies as well to other recreational activities 'involving an inherent risk of injury to voluntary participants . . . where the risk cannot be eliminated without altering the fundamental nature of the activity.' " (Nalwa v. Cedar Fair, L.P. (2012) 55 Cal.4th 1148, 1156 [150 Cal.Rptr.3d 551, 290 P.3d 1158].)
- "Although the doctrine is often applied as between sports coparticipants, it defines the duty owed as between persons engaged in any activity involving inherent risks. The doctrine applies to activity 'done for enjoyment or thrill, requires physical exertion as well as elements of skill, and involves a challenge containing a potential risk of injury' . . . ." (Jimenez v. Roseville City School Dist. (2016) 247 Cal.App.4th 594, 601 [202 Cal.Rptr.3d 536], internal citations omitted; see also Bertsch v. Mammoth Community Water Dist. (2016) 247 Cal.App.4th 1201, 1208 [202 Cal.Rptr.3d 757] ["These factors certainly apply to skateboarding"].)
- "Here, we do not deal with the relationship between coparticipants in a sport, or with the duty that an operator may or may not owe to a spectator. Instead, we deal with the duty of a coach or trainer to a student who has entrusted himself to the former's tutelage. There are precedents reaching back for most of this century that find an absence of duty to coparticipants and, often, to spectators, but the law is otherwise as applied to coaches and instructors. For them, the general rule is that coaches and instructors owe a duty of due care to persons in their charge. The coach or instructor is not, of course, an insurer, and a student may be held to notice that which is obvious and to ask appropriate questions. But all of the authorities that comment on the issue have recognized the existence of a duty of care." (Tan v. Goddard (1993) 13 Cal.App.4th 1528, 1535–1536 [17 Cal.Rptr.2d 89], internal citations omitted.)

- "[D]ecisions have clarified that the risks associated with learning a sport may themselves be inherent risks of the sport, and that an instructor or coach generally does not increase the risk of harm inherent in learning the sport simply by urging the student to strive to excel or to reach a new level of competence." (Kahn, supra, 31 Cal.4th at p. 1006.)
- "To the extent a duty is alleged against a coach for 'pushing' and/or 'challenging' a student to improve and advance, the plaintiff must show that the coach intended to cause the student's injury or engaged in reckless conduct—that is, conduct totally outside the range of the ordinary activity involved in teaching or coaching the sport. Furthermore, a coach has a duty of ordinary care not to increase the risk of injury to a student by encouraging or allowing the student to participate in the sport when he or she is physically unfit to participate or by allowing the student to use unsafe equipment or instruments." (Eriksson, supra, 191 Cal.App.4th at p. 845, internal citation omitted.)
- "That an instructor might ask a student to do more than the student can manage is an inherent risk of the activity. Absent evidence of recklessness, or other risk-increasing conduct, liability should not be imposed simply because an instructor asked the student to take action beyond what, with hindsight, is found to have been the student's abilities. To hold otherwise would discourage instructors from requiring students to stretch, and thus to learn, and would have a generally deleterious effect on the sport as a whole." (Honeycutt v. Meridian Sports Club, LLC (2014) 231 Cal.App.4th 251, 258 [179 Cal.Rptr.3d 473].)
- Coaches and sports instructors "owe students a duty 'not to increase the risks inherent in the learning process undertaken by the student.' But this does not require them to 'fundamentally alter the nature of the sport and, in some instances, effectively preclude participation altogether . . . .' Instead, '[b]y choosing to participate in a sport that poses the obvious possibility of injury, the student athlete must learn to accept an adverse result of the risks inherent in the sport.' " (Lupash v. City of Seal Beach (1999) 75 Cal.App.4th 1428, 1436–1437 [89 Cal.Rptr.2d 920], internal citations omitted.)
- "The determinant of duty, 'inherent risk,' is to be decided solely as a question of law and based on the general characteristics of the sport activity and the parties' relationship to it." (Griffin v. The Haunted Hotel, Inc. (2015) 242 Cal.App.4th 490, 501 [194 Cal.Rptr.3d 830].)

- "Admittedly, it is sometimes said that '[t]he existence and scope of a defendant's duty of care in the primary assumption of risk context "is a legal question which depends on the nature of the sport or activity . . . and on the parties' general relationship to the activity, and is an issue to be decided by the court, rather than the jury." ' This statement of the rule is correct where there is no dispute about the inherent risks, and such cases may be resolved on summary judgment. [¶] However this statement is overly broad. Although the risks inherent in many activities are not subject to reasonable dispute (e.g., being hit with a baseball during a game), the risks inherent in some activities are not commonly known. In such cases, expert testimony may be required ' "for purposes of weighing whether the inherent risks of the activity were increased by the defendant's conduct." ' . . . Thus, it is not entirely accurate to say inherent risks of an activity always present purely legal questions, because sometimes the nature of an activity and its risks must be gleaned from the evidence." (Jimenez, supra, 247 Cal.App.4th at p. 608, original italics, internal citations omitted.)
- "[Plaintiff] has repeatedly argued that primary assumption of the risk does not apply because she did not impliedly consent to having a weight dropped on her head. However, a plaintiff's expectation does not define the limits of primary assumption of the risk. 'Primary assumption of risk focuses on the legal question of duty. It does not depend upon a plaintiff's implied consent to injury, nor is the plaintiff's subjective awareness or expectation relevant. . . . .' " (Cann v. Stefanec (2013) 217 Cal.App.4th 462, 471 [158 Cal.Rptr.3d 474].)
- "Although we recognize the Court of Appeal decisions specifically addressing the point are in conflict, we believe resolving this issue is not a matter of further defining [defendant]'s duty, which would be a question of law for the court. Rather, it requires application of the governing standard of care (the duty not to increase the risks inherent in the sport) to the facts of this particular case—the traditional role of the trier of fact. (See, e.g., Vine v. Bear Valley Ski Co., supra, 118 Cal.App.4th at pp. 591–592 [whether defendant's design of snowboard jump increased inherent risks of snowboarding is question for jury]; Solis v. Kirkwood Resort Co., supra, 94 Cal.App.4th at p. 365 [whether artificial jumps built by resort increased inherent risk of falling while skiing is question for jury]; Lowe v. California League of Prof. Baseball (1997) 56 Cal.App.4th 112, 123 [65 Cal.Rptr.2d 105] [whether distraction caused by activities of minor league baseball team's mascot increased inherent risk of spectator being hit by a foul ball 'is issue of fact to be resolved at trial']; but see Huff v. Wilkins, supra, 138 Cal.App.4th at p. 745 ['it is the trial court's province to determine whether defendants breached their duty not to increase the inherent risk of a collision [in the sport of off-roading], and it should hold a hearing for this purpose before impaneling a jury']; American Golf Corp. v. Superior Court (2000) 79 Cal.App.4th 30, 37 [93 Cal.Rptr.2d 683] ['[i]t is for the court to decide . . . whether the defendant has increased the risks of the activity beyond the risks inherent in the sport']; see also Huffman v. City of Poway (2000) 84 Cal.App.4th 975, 995, fn. 23 [101 Cal.Rptr.2d 325] [indicating it is for the court to determine whether defendant's conduct increased the risk inherent in participating in a particular sport, but that trial court may receive expert testimony on the customary practices in the sport to make that determination].) [¶] Our conclusion it is for the trier of fact to determine whether [defendant] breached his limited duty not to increase the risks inherent in the sport of volleyball finds solid support in the Supreme Court's most recent sports injury, primary assumption of the risk decision, Shin v. Ahn, supra, 42 Cal.4th 482, a case that postdates the appellate court decisions suggesting the issue is one for the court to resolve." (Luna, supra, 169 Cal.App.4th at pp. 112–113.)

- "The existence of a duty of care is a separate issue from the question whether (on the basis of forseeability among other factors) a particular defendant breached that duty of care, which is an essentially factual matter." (Kockelman v. Segal (1998) 61 Cal.App.4th 491, 498 [71 Cal.Rptr.2d 552].)
- "[A duty not to increase the risk] arises only if there is an ' "organized relationship" ' between the defendants and the participant in relation to the sporting activity, such as exists between . . . a coach or instructor and his or her students. [I]mposing such a duty in the context of these types of relationships is justified because the defendants are 'responsible for, or in control of, the conditions under which the [participant] engaged in the sport.' " (Bertsch, supra, 247 Cal.App.4th at pp. 1208–1209, internal citation omitted.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1496, 1497, 1501–1510

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 3-D, Mitigating Factors In Reduction Of Damages, ¶¶ 3:1067–3:1078 (The Rutter Group)

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 4, Comparative Negligence, Assumption of the Risk, and Related Defenses, § 4.03 (Matthew Bender)

23 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 273, Games, Sports, and Athletics, § 273.31 (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, § 165.401 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

472. Primary Assumption of Risk—Exception to Nonliability—Facilities Owners and Operators and Event Sponsors

---

[*Name of plaintiff] claims [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was harmed while [participating in/watching] [sport or other recreational activity, e.g., snowboarding] at [name of defendant]'s [specify facility or event where plaintiff was injured, e.g., ski resort]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] was the [owner/operator/sponsor/other] of [e.g., a ski resort];
2. [That [name of defendant] unreasonably increased the risks to [name of plaintiff] over and above those inherent in [e.g., snowboarding];]

   [or]

   [That [*name of defendant] unreasonably failed to minimize a risk that is not inherent in [e.g., snowboarding] and unreasonably exposed [name of plaintiff] to an increased risk of harm;]
3. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
4. That [name of defendant]'s conduct was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New December 2013; Revised and Renumbered from CACI No. 410 May 2017; Revised May 2019

Directions for Use

This instruction sets forth a plaintiff's response to a defendant's assertion of the affirmative defense of primary assumption of risk. Primary assumption of risk generally absolves the defendant of a duty of care toward the plaintiff with regard to injury incurred in the course of a sporting or other recreational activity covered by the doctrine. (See Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal.4th 296, 320 [11 Cal.Rptr.2d 2, 834 P.2d 696].) There is, however, a duty applicable to facilities owners and operators and to event sponsors not to unreasonably increase the risks of injury to participants and spectators beyond those inherent in the activity. (See Nalwa v. Cedar Fair, L.P. (2012) 55 Cal.4th 1148, 1162 [150 Cal.Rptr.3d 551, 290 P.3d 1158] [participants]; Lowe v. California League of Prof. Baseball (1997) 56 Cal.App.4th 112, 123 [65 Cal.Rptr.2d 105] [spectators].)

There is also a duty to minimize risks that are extrinsic to the nature of the sport; that is, those that can be addressed without altering the essential nature of the activity. (Hass v. RhodyCo Productions (2018) 26 Cal.App.5th 11, 38 [236 Cal.Rptr.3d 682].) Choose either or both options for element 2 depending on which duty is alleged to have been breached.

While duty is a question of law, courts have held that whether the defendant has increased the risk is a question of fact for the jury. (See Luna v. Vela (2008) 169 Cal.App.4th 102, 112–113 [86 Cal.Rptr.3d 588] [and cases cited therein]; cf. Willhide-Michiulis v. Mammoth Mountain Ski Area, LLC (2018) 25 Cal.App.5th 344, 354 [235 Cal.Rptr.3d 716] [court to decide whether an activity is an active sport, the inherent risks of that sport, and whether the defendant has increased the risks of the activity beyond the risks inherent in the sport].) There may also be disputed facts that must be resolved by a jury before it can be determined if the doctrine applies. (See Shin v. Ahn (2007) 42 Cal.4th 482, 486 [64 Cal.Rptr.3d 803, 165 P.3d 581].)

For an instruction on primary assumption of risk applicable to coparticipants, see CACI No. 470, Primary Assumption of Risk—Exception to Nonliability—Coparticipant in Sport or Other Recreational Activity. For an instruction on primary assumption of risk applicable to instructors, trainers, and coaches, see CACI No. 471, Primary Assumption of Risk—Exception to Nonliability—Instructors, Trainers, or Coaches. For an instruction applicable to occupations with inherent risk, see CACI No. 473, Primary Assumption of Risk—Exception to Nonliability—Occupation With Inherent Risk.

Sources and Authority

- "[U]nder the primary assumption of risk doctrine, operators, sponsors and instructors in recreational activities posing inherent risks of injury have no duty to eliminate those risks, but do owe participants the duty not to unreasonably increase the risks of injury beyond those inherent in the activity." (Nalwa, supra, 55 Cal.4th at p. 1162.)
- "The doctrine applies to recreational activities ' "involving an inherent risk of injury to voluntary participants . . . where the risk cannot be eliminated without altering the fundamental nature of the activity." ' " (Griffin v. The Haunted Hotel, Inc. (2015) 242 Cal.App.4th 490, 500 [194 Cal.Rptr.3d 830].)
- "Although the doctrine is often applied as between sports coparticipants, it defines the duty owed as between persons engaged in any activity involving inherent risks. The doctrine applies to activity 'done for enjoyment or thrill, requires physical exertion as well as elements of skill, and involves a challenge containing a potential risk of injury' . . . ." (Jimenez v. Roseville City School Dist. (2016) 247 Cal.App.4th 594, 601 [202 Cal.Rptr.3d 536], internal citations omitted; see also Bertsch v. Mammoth Community Water Dist. (2016) 247 Cal.App.4th 1201, 1208 [202 Cal.Rptr.3d 757] ["These factors certainly apply to skateboarding"], internal citations omitted.)
- "What the primary assumption of risk doctrine does not do, however, is absolve operators of any obligation to protect the safety of their customers. As a general rule, where an operator can take a measure that would increase safety and minimize the risks of the activity without also altering the nature of the activity, the operator is required to do so. As the court explained in Knight, 'in the sports setting, as elsewhere, the nature of the applicable duty or standard of care frequently varies with the role of the defendant whose conduct is at issue in a given case.' When the defendant is the operator of an inherently risky sport or activity (as opposed to a coparticipant), there are 'steps the sponsoring business entity reasonably should be obligated to take in order to minimize the risks without altering the nature of the sport [or activity].' " (Grotheer v. Escape Adventures, Inc. (2017) 14 Cal.App.5th 1283, 1300 [222 Cal.Rptr.3d 633], original italics, internal citations omitted.)

- "Thus, Nalwa actually reaffirms Knight's conclusions regarding the duties owed to participants by operators/organizers of recreational activities. In short, such operators and organizers have two distinct duties: the limited duty not to increase the inherent risks of an activity under the primary assumption of the risk doctrine and the ordinary duty of due care with respect to the extrinsic risks of the activity, which should reasonably be minimized to the extent possible without altering the nature of the activity." (Hass, supra, 26 Cal.App.5th at p. 38, original italics.)
- "The determinant of duty, 'inherent risk,' is to be decided solely as a question of law and based on the general characteristics of the sport activity and the parties' relationship to it." (Griffin, supra, 242 Cal.App.4th at p. 501.)
- "Admittedly, it is sometimes said that '[t]he existence and scope of a defendant's duty of care in the primary assumption of risk context "is a legal question which depends on the nature of the sport or activity . . . and on the parties' general relationship to the activity, and is an issue to be decided by the court, rather than the jury." ' This statement of the rule is correct where there is no dispute about the inherent risks, and such cases may be resolved on summary judgment. [¶] However this statement is overly broad. Although the risks inherent in many activities are not subject to reasonable dispute (e.g., being hit with a baseball during a game), the risks inherent in some activities are not commonly known. In such cases, expert testimony may be required ' "for purposes of weighing whether the inherent risks of the activity were increased by the defendant's conduct." ' . . . Thus, it is not entirely accurate to say inherent risks of an activity always present purely legal questions, because sometimes the nature of an activity and its risks must be gleaned from the evidence." (Jimenez, supra, 247 Cal.App.4th at p. 608, original italics, internal citations omitted.)
- "In any case in which the primary assumption of risk doctrine applies, operators, instructors, and participants in the activity owe other participants a duty 'not to act so as to increase the risk of injury over that inherent in the activity.' But owners and operators of sports venues and other recreational activities have an additional duty to undertake reasonable steps or measures to protect their customers' or spectators' safety—if they can do so without altering the nature of the sport or the activity." (Mayes v. La Sierra University (2022) 73 Cal.App.5th 686, 698 [288 Cal.Rptr.3d 693], original italics, internal citations omitted.)
- "Although we recognize the Court of Appeal decisions specifically addressing the point are in conflict, we believe resolving this issue is not a matter of further defining [defendant]'s duty, which would be a question of law for the court. Rather, it requires application of the governing standard of care (the duty not to increase the risks inherent in the sport) to the facts of this particular case—the traditional role of the trier of fact. [¶] Our conclusion it is for the trier of fact to determine whether [defendant] breached his limited duty not to increase the risks inherent in the sport of volleyball finds solid support in the Supreme Court's most recent sports injury, primary assumption of the risk decision, Shin v. Ahn, a case that postdates the appellate court decisions suggesting the issue is one for the court to resolve." (Luna, supra, 169 Cal.App.4th at pp. 112–113, internal citations omitted.)

- "Although defendants generally have no legal duty to eliminate (or protect a plaintiff against) risks inherent in the sport itself, it is well established that defendants generally do have a duty to use due care not to increase the risks to a participant over and above those inherent in the sport. Thus, although a ski resort has no duty to remove moguls from a ski run, it clearly does have a duty to use due care to maintain its towropes in a safe, working condition so as not to expose skiers to an increased risk of harm. The cases establish that the latter type of risk, posed by a ski resort's negligence, clearly is not a risk (inherent in the sport) that is assumed by a participant." (Knight, supra, 3 Cal.4th at pp. 315–316.)
- "Under Knight, defendants had a duty not to increase the inherent risks to which spectators at professional baseball games are regularly exposed and which they assume. As a result, a triable issue of fact remained, namely whether the [defendants]' mascot cavorting in the stands and distracting plaintiff's attention, while the game was in progress, constituted a breach of that duty, i.e., constituted negligence in the form of increasing the inherent risk to plaintiff of being struck by a foul ball." (Lowe, supra, 56 Cal.App.4th at p. 114, original italics.)
- "[T]hose responsible for maintaining athletic facilities have a . . . duty not to increase the inherent risks, albeit in the context of businesses selling recreational opportunities." (Avila v. Citrus Community College Dist. (2006) 38 Cal.4th 148, 162 [41 Cal.Rptr.3d 299, 131 P.3d 383], internal citation omitted.)
- "Knight, consistently with established case law, simply requires courts in each instance to examine the question of duty in light of the nature of the defendant's activities and the relationship of the parties to that activity." (Parsons v. Crown Disposal Co. (1997) 15 Cal.4th 456, 482 [63 Cal.Rptr.2d 291, 936 P.2d 70].)
- "Because primary assumption of risk focuses on the question of duty, it is not dependent on either the plaintiff's implied consent to, or subjective appreciation of, the potential risk." (Griffin, supra, 242 Cal.App.4th at p. 502, original italics.)
- "Defendants' obligation not to increase the risks inherent in the activity included a duty to provide safe equipment for the trip, such as a safe and sound craft." (Ferrari v. Grand Canyon Dories (1995) 32 Cal.App.4th 248, 255 [38 Cal.Rptr.2d 65].)

- "[A duty not to increase the risk] arises only if there is an ' "organized relationship" ' between the defendants and the participant in relation to the sporting activity, such as exists between a recreational business operator and its patrons . . . . [I]mposing such a duty in the context of these types of relationships is justified because the defendants are 'responsible for, or in control of, the conditions under which the [participant] engaged in the sport.' " However, '[t]his policy justification does not extend to a defendant wholly uninvolved with and unconnected to the sport,' . . . who neither 'held out their driveway as an appropriate place to skateboard or in any other way represented that the driveway was a safe place for skateboarding.' " (Bertsch, supra, 247 Cal.App.4th at pp. 1208–1209, internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1496–1497, 1501–1511

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 3-D, Mitigating Factors In Reduction Of Damages, ¶ 3:1120 (The Rutter Group)

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 4, Comparative Negligence, Assumption of the Risk, and Related Defenses, § 4.03 (Matthew Bender)

23 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 273, Games, Sports, and Athletics, § 273.31 (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, § 165.401 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

473. Primary Assumption of Risk—Exception to Nonliability—Occupation Involving Inherent Risk

---

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was harmed by [name of defendant] while [name of plaintiff] was performing [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] job duties as [specify, e.g., a firefighter]. [Name of defendant] is not liable if [name of plaintiff]'s injury arose from a risk inherent in the occupation of [e.g., firefighter]. However, [name of plaintiff] may recover if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] proves all of the following:

[1. That [*name of defendant] unreasonably increased the risks to [name of plaintiff] over and above those inherent in [e.g., firefighting];]

[or]

[1. That [*name of defendant] [misrepresented to/failed to warn] [name of plaintiff] [of] a dangerous condition that [name of plaintiff] could not have known about as part of [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] job duties;]

[or]

[1. That the cause of [*name of plaintiff]'s injury was not related to the inherent risk;]

2. That [*name of plaintiff] was harmed; and

3. That [*name of defendant]'s conduct was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New May 2017; Revised May 2020

Directions for Use

Give this instruction if the plaintiff asserts an exception to assumption of risk of the injury that the plaintiff suffered because the risk is an inherent part of the plaintiff's duties. This has traditionally been referred to as the "firefighter's rule." (See Gregory v. Cott (2014) 59 Cal. 4th 996, 1001 [176 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1, 331 P.3d 179].)

There are, however, exceptions to nonliability under the firefighter's rule. The plaintiff may recover if (1) the defendant's actions have unreasonably increased the risks of injury beyond those inherent in the occupation; (2) the defendant misrepresented or failed to disclose a hazardous condition that the plaintiff had no reason to know about; or (3) the cause of the injury was not related to the inherent risk. This instruction asks the jury to determine whether an exception applies. (Gregory, supra, 59 Cal.4th at p. 1010.) These exceptions are presented in the options to element 1.

While duty is a question of law, courts have held that whether the defendant has increased the risk is a question of fact for the jury. (See Luna v. Vela (2008) 169 Cal.App.4th 102, 112–113 [86 Cal.Rptr.3d 588] [and cases cited therein].)

For an instruction on primary assumption of risk applicable to coparticipants, see CACI No. 470, Primary Assumption of Risk—Exception to Nonliability—Coparticipant in Sport or Other Recreational Activity. For an instruction applicable to coaches, instructors, or trainers, see CACI No. 471, Primary Assumption of Risk—Exception to Nonliability—Instructors, Trainers, or Coaches. For an instruction applicable to facilities owners and operators and to event sponsors, see CACI No. 472, Primary Assumption of Risk—Exception to Nonliability—Facilities Owners and Operators and Event Sponsors.

Sources and Authority

- "Primary assumption of risk cases often involve recreational activity, but the doctrine also governs claims arising from inherent occupational hazards. The bar against recovery in that context first developed as the 'firefighter's rule,' which precludes firefighters and police officers from suing members of the public for the conduct that makes their employment necessary. After Knight, we have viewed the firefighter's rule 'not . . . as a separate concept,' but as a variant of primary assumption of risk, 'an illustration of when it is appropriate to find that the defendant owes no duty of care.' Whether a duty of care is owed in a particular context depends on considerations of public policy, viewed in light of the nature of the activity and the relationship of the parties to the activity." (Gregory, supra, 59 Cal. 4th at pp. 1001–1002, internal citations omitted.)
- "The firefighter's rule, upon which the [defendant] relies, and the analogous veterinarian's rule, are examples of the primary assumption of risk doctrine applied in the employment context." (Moore v. William Jessup University (2015) 243 Cal.App.4th 427, 435 [197 Cal.Rptr.3d 51].)
- "Our holding does not preclude liability in situations where caregivers are not warned of a known risk, where defendants otherwise increase the level of risk beyond that inherent in providing care, or where the cause of injury is unrelated to the symptoms of [Alzheimers] disease." (Gregory, supra, 59 Cal.4th at p. 1000.)
- "[T]he principle of assumption of risk, which forms the theoretical basis for the fireman's rule, is not applicable where a fireman's injuries are proximately caused by his being misled as to the nature of the danger to be confronted." (Lipson v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal.3d 362, 371 [182 Cal. Rptr. 629, 644 P.2d 822].)
- "The firefighter's rule, however, is hedged about with exceptions. The firefighter does not assume every risk of his or her occupation. The rule does not apply to conduct other than that which necessitated the summoning of the firefighter or police officer, and it does not apply to independent acts of misconduct that are committed after the firefighter or police officer has arrived on the scene." (Neighbarger v. Irwin Industries, Inc. (1994) 8 Cal.4th 532, 538 [34 Cal. Rptr.

2d 630, 882 P.2d 347], internal citation omitted.)

- "We have noted that the duty to avoid injuring others 'normally extends to those engaged in hazardous work.' 'We have never held that the doctrine of assumption of risk relieves all persons of a duty of care to workers engaged in a hazardous occupation.' However, the doctrine does apply in favor of those who hire workers to handle a dangerous situation, in both the public and the private sectors. Such a worker, 'as a matter of fairness, should not be heard to complain of the negligence that is the cause of his or her employment. [Citations.] In effect, we have said it is unfair to charge the defendant with a duty of care to prevent injury to the plaintiff arising from the very condition or hazard the defendant has contracted with the plaintiff to remedy or confront.' This rule encourages the remediation of dangerous conditions, an important public policy. Those who hire workers to manage a hazardous situation are sheltered from liability for injuries that result from the risks that necessitated the employment." (Gregory, supra, 59 Cal.4th at p. 1002, internal citations omitted.)
- "[A] person whose conduct precipitates the intervention of a police officer owes no duty of care to the officer 'with respect to the original negligence that caused the officer's intervention.' " (Harry v. Ring the Alarm, LLC (2019) 34 Cal.App.5th 749, 759 [246 Cal.Rptr.3d 471].)
- "Because of the nature of the activity, caring for the mentally infirm, and the relationship between the parties, patient and caregiver, mentally incompetent patients should not owe a legal duty to protect caregivers from injuries suffered in attending to them. Here, the very basis of the relationship between plaintiff and [defendant] was to protect [defendant] from harming either herself or others." (Herrle v. Estate of Marshall (1996) 45 Cal.App.4th 1761, 1770 [53 Cal.Rptr.2d 713].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1515

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 15, General Premises Liability, § 15.23 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence, § 380.173 (Matthew Bender)

16 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence, § 165.412 (Matthew Bender)

474–499. Reserved for Future Use

VF-400. Negligence—Single Defendant

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Was [name of defendant] negligent?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Was [name of defendant]'s negligence a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other past economic loss $_____]

   Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

   [b. Future economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other future economic loss $_____]

   Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

   [c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

   [d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

   TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, December 2010, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 400, Negligence—Essential Factual Elements.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 3. The breakdown is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-401. Negligence—Single Defendant—Plaintiff's Negligence at Issue—Fault of Others Not at Issue

---

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Was [name of defendant] negligent?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Was [name of defendant]'s negligence a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. What are [name of plaintiff]'s total damages? Do not reduce the damages based on the fault, if any, of [name of plaintiff].

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other past economic loss $_____]

   Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

   [b. Future economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other future economic loss $_____]

   Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

   [c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

   [d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

   TOTAL $_____

If [name of plaintiff] has proved any damages, then answer question 4. If [name of plaintiff] has not proved any damages, then stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. Was [name of plaintiff] negligent?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 4 is yes, then answer question 5. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

5. Was [name of plaintiff]'s negligence a substantial factor in causing [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] harm?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 5 is yes, then answer question 6. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

6. What percentage of responsibility for [name of plaintiff]'s harm do you assign to:

[Name of defendant]:	_____%
[Name of plaintiff]:	_____%
TOTAL	100 %

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, December 2010, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 400, Negligence—Essential Factual Elements, and CACI No. 405, Comparative Fault of Plaintiff.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 3. The breakdown is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-402. Negligence—Fault of Plaintiff and Others at Issue

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Was [name of first defendant] negligent?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   Was [name of second defendant] negligent?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   [Repeat as necessary for other defendants.]

   If you answered yes for any defendant in question 1, then answer question 2 for that defendant. If you answered no for any defendant in question 1, insert the number zero next to that defendant's name in question 8. If you answered no for all defendants in question 1, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. For each defendant that received a "yes" answer in question 1, answer the following:

   Was [name of first defendant]'s negligence a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   Was [name of second defendant]'s negligence a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   [Repeat as necessary for other defendants.]

   If you answered yes for any defendant in question 2, then answer question 3. If you answered no for any defendant in question 2, insert the number zero next to that defendant's name in question 8. If you did not answer yes for any defendant in question 2, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. What are [name of plaintiff]'s total damages? Do not reduce the damages based on the fault, if any, of [name of plaintiff] or others.

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

[other past economic loss $_____]

Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

If [name of plaintiff] has proved any damages, then answer question 4. If [name of plaintiff] has not proved any damages, then stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. Was [name of plaintiff] negligent?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 4 is yes, then answer question 5. If you answered no, insert the number zero next to [name of plaintiff]'s name in question 8, skip question 5, and answer question 6.

5. Was [name of plaintiff]'s negligence a substantial factor in causing [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] harm?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 5 is yes, then answer question 6. If you answered no, insert the number zero next to [name of plaintiff]'s name in question 8 and answer question 6.

6. Was [name/description of first nonparty] negligent?

_____ Yes _____ No

Was [name/description of second nonparty] negligent?

_____ Yes _____ No

[Repeat as necessary for other nonparties.]

If you answered yes for any person in question 6, then answer question 7 for that person. If you answered no for any person in question 6, insert the number zero next to that person's name in question 8. If you answered no for all persons in question 6, skip question 7 and answer question 8.

7. For each person who received a "yes" answer in question 6, answer the following:

Was [*name/description of first nonparty]'s negligence a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

_____ Yes _____ No

Was [*name/description of second nonparty]'s negligence a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

_____ Yes _____ No

[*Repeat as necessary for other nonparties.]

If you answered yes for any person in question 7, then answer question 8. If you answered no for any person in question 7, then insert the number zero next to that person's name in question 8 and answer question 8.

8. What percentage of responsibility for [*name of plaintiff]'s harm do you assign to the following? Insert a percentage for only those who received "yes" answers in questions 2, 5, or 7:

[*Name of first defendant]:	_____%
[*Name of second defendant]:	_____%
[*Name of plaintiff]:	_____%
[*Name/description of first nonparty]:	_____%
[*Name/description of second nonparty]:	_____%
TOTAL	100 %

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, December 2009, December 2010, June 2014, December 2016, May 2020, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 400, Negligence—Essential Factual Elements, CACI No. 405, Comparative Fault of Plaintiff, and CACI No. 406, Apportionment of Responsibility.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 3. The breakdown is optional depending on the circumstances.

This verdict form is designed for a single plaintiff, multiple defendants, and multiple nonparties who are alleged to have been negligent. If there are multiple plaintiffs, consider preparing a separate verdict form for each. If a coplaintiff is alleged to have been negligent and that coplaintiff's negligence is alleged to have harmed the plaintiff, treat the allegedly negligent coplaintiff as a nonparty in questions 6 and 7 and add the coplaintiff's name to the list of contributing persons in question 8 of the plaintiff's verdict form.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-403. Primary Assumption of Risk—Liability of Coparticipant

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant] either intentionally injure [name of plaintiff] or act so recklessly that [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] conduct was entirely outside the range of ordinary activity involved in [specify sport or activity, e.g., touch football]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Was [name of defendant]'s conduct a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other past economic loss $_____]

   Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

   [b. Future economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other future economic loss $_____]

   Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

   [c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

   [d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2004, April 2007, April 2009, December 2010, December 2011, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 470, Primary Assumption of Risk—Exception to Nonliability—Coparticipant in Sport or Other Recreational Activity.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 3 and do not have to categorize "economic" and "noneconomic" damages, especially if it is not a Proposition 51 case. The breakdown of damages is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-404. Primary Assumption of Risk—Liability of Instructors, Trainers, or Coaches

---

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Was [name of defendant] [name of plaintiff]'s [coach/trainer/instructor]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. [Did [name of defendant] intend to cause [name of plaintiff] injury or act recklessly in that [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] conduct was entirely outside the range of ordinary activity involved in teaching or coaching [sport or other activity] in which [name of plaintiff] was participating?

   _____ Yes _____ No]

   [or]

   [Did [name of defendant]'s failure to use reasonable care increase the risks to [name of plaintiff] over and above those inherent in [sport or other activity]?

   _____ Yes _____ No]

   If your answer to [either option for] question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no [to both options], stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Was [name of defendant]'s conduct a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

[other past economic loss $_____]

Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2004, April 2007, December 2010, June 2012, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 471, Primary Assumption of Risk—Exception to Nonliability—Instructors, Trainers, or Coaches.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 4 and do not have to categorize "economic" and "noneconomic" damages, especially if it is not a Proposition 51 case. The breakdown of damages is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-405. Primary Assumption of Risk—Liability of Facilities Owners and Operators and Event Sponsors

---

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Was [name of defendant] the [owner/operator/sponsor/other] of [e.g., a ski resort]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Did [name of defendant] do something or fail to do something that unreasonably increased the risks to [name of plaintiff] over and above those inherent in [sport or other recreational activity, e.g., snowboarding]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Was [name of defendant]'s conduct a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other past economic loss $_____]

   Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

   [b. Future economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New December 2015; Revised December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 472, Primary Assumption of Risk—Exception to Nonliability—Facilities Owners and Operators and Event Sponsors.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 4 and do not have to categorize "economic" and "noneconomic" damages, especially if it is not a Proposition 51 case. The breakdown of damages is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-406. Negligence—Providing Alcoholic Beverages to Obviously Intoxicated Minor

---

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. [Was [name of defendant] [required to be] licensed to sell alcoholic beverages?]

   [or]

   [Was [name of defendant] authorized by the federal government to sell alcoholic beverages on a military base or other federal enclave?]

   _____ Yes _____ No]

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. [Did [name of defendant] [sell/ give] alcoholic beverages to [name of alleged minor]?

   _____ Yes _____ No]

   [or]

   [Did [name of defendant] cause alcoholic beverages to be [sold/ given away] to [name of alleged minor]?]

   _____ Yes _____ No]

   If your answer to either option for question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no to both options, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Was [name of alleged minor] less than 21 years old at the time?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. When [name of defendant] provided the alcoholic beverages, did [name of alleged minor] display symptoms that would lead a reasonable person to conclude that [name of alleged minor] was obviously intoxicated?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 4 is yes, then answer question 5. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

5. Did [name of alleged minor] later harm [name of plaintiff]?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 5 is yes, then answer question 6. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

6. Was [name of defendant]'s [selling/giving] alcoholic beverages to [name of alleged minor] a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 6 is yes, then answer question 7. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

7. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

[a. Past economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other past economic loss $_____]

Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, December 2009, December 2010, December 2014, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 422, Providing Alcoholic Beverages to Obviously Intoxicated Minors.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

Omit question 1 if the defendant is a person such as a social host who, though not required to be licensed, sells alcohol to an obviously intoxicated minor. (See Ennabe v. Manosa (2014) 58 Cal.4th 697, 711 [168 Cal.Rptr.3d 440, 319 P.3d 201].)

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 7. The breakdown is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the comparative fault of the plaintiff is an issue, this form should be modified. See CACI No. VF-401, Negligence—Single Defendant—Plaintiff's Negligence at Issue—Fault of Others Not at Issue, for a model form involving the issue of comparative fault.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-407. Strict Liability—Ultrahazardous Activities

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Was [name of defendant] engaged in [insert ultrahazardous activity]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Was [name of plaintiff] harmed?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Was [name of plaintiff]'s harm the kind of harm that would be anticipated as a result of the risk created by [insert ultrahazardous activity]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. Was [name of defendant]'s [insert ultrahazardous activity] a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 4 is yes, then answer question 5. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

5. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other past economic loss $_____]

   Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; April 2007, December 2010, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 460, Strict Liability for Ultrahazardous Activities—Essential Factual Elements.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 5. The breakdown is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-408. Strict Liability for Domestic Animal With Dangerous Propensities

---

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant] own, keep, or control a [insert type of animal]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Did the [insert type of animal] have an unusually dangerous nature or tendency?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Did [name of defendant] know, or should [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] have known, that the [insert type of animal] had this nature or tendency?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. Was the [insert type of animal]'s unusually dangerous nature or tendency a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 4 is yes, then answer question 5. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

5. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

[other past economic loss $_____]

Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; April 2007, December 2010, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 462, Strict Liability for Injury Caused by Domestic Animal With Dangerous Propensities—Essential Factual Elements.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 5. The breakdown is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-409. Dog Bite Statute (Civ. Code, § 3342)

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant]'s dog bite [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Was [name of plaintiff] in a public place or lawfully on private property when [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was bitten?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Was the dog a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. What are the damages, if any, that [name of plaintiff] suffered as a result of the dog bite?

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other past economic loss $_____]

   Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

   [b. Future economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other future economic loss $_____]

   Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, December 2010, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 463, Dog Bite Statute (Civ. Code, § 3342)—Essential Factual Elements.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 4. The breakdown is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-410. Statute of Limitations—Delayed Discovery—Reasonable Investigation Would Not Have Disclosed Pertinent Facts

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of plaintiff]'s claimed harm occur before [insert date from applicable statute of limitations]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Before [insert date from applicable statute of limitations], did [name of plaintiff] discover, or know of facts that would have caused a reasonable person to suspect, that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] had suffered harm that was caused by someone's wrongful conduct?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   [or]

2. Would a reasonable and diligent investigation have disclosed before [insert date from applicable statute of limitations] that [specify factual basis for cause of action] contributed to [name of plaintiff]'s harm?

   _____ Yes _____ No

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New December 2007; Revised December 2010, May 2022, May 2024

Directions for Use

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 454, Affirmative Defense—Statute of Limitations, and CACI No. 455, Statute of Limitations—Delayed Discovery. If the only issue is whether the plaintiff's harm occurred before or after the limitation date, omit question 2. If the plaintiff claims that the delayed-discovery rule applies to save the action, use the first option for question 2. If the plaintiff claims that a reasonable investigation would not have disclosed the pertinent information before the limitation date, use the second option for question 2. If both delayed discovery and nondiscovery despite reasonable investigation are at issue, use both options and renumber them as question 2 and question 3.

The date to be inserted throughout is the applicable limitation period before the filing date. For example, if the limitation period is two years and the filing date is August 31, 2007, the date is August 31, 2005.

In question 1, "claimed harm" refers to all of the elements of the cause of action, which must have occurred before the cause of action accrues and the limitation period begins. (Glue-Fold, Inc. v. Slautterback Corp. (2000) 82 Cal.App.4th 1018, 1029 [98 Cal.Rptr.2d 661].) In some cases, it may be necessary to modify this term to refer to specific facts that give rise to the cause of action.

The first option for question 2 may be modified to refer to specific facts that the plaintiff may have known.

VF-411. Parental Liability (Nonstatutory)

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Was [name of defendant] aware of habits or tendencies of [name of minor] that created an unreasonable risk of harm to other persons and led to [name of plaintiff]'s harm?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Did [name of defendant] have the opportunity and ability to control the conduct of [name of minor]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Was [name of defendant] negligent because [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] failed to exercise reasonable care to prevent [name of minor]'s conduct?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. Was [name of defendant]'s negligence a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 4 is yes, then answer question 5. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

5. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other past economic loss $_____]

Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, December 2010; Renumbered from CACI No. VF-405 December 2015; Revised December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 428, Parental Liability (Nonstatutory). Questions 1 and 3 can be altered to correspond to one or both of the alternative bracketed option in elements 1 and 3 of CACI No. 428.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 5 and do not have to categorize "economic" and "noneconomic" damages, especially if it is not a Proposition 51 case. The breakdown of damages is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-412–VF-499. Reserved for Future Use

MEDICAL NEGLIGENCE

500. Medical Negligence—Essential Factual Elements

Please see CACI No. 400, Negligence—Essential Factual Elements

New September 2003; Revised December 2011, December 2015

Directions for Use

In medical malpractice or professional negligence cases, the word "medical" or "professional" should be added before the word "negligence" in the first paragraph of CACI No. 400. From a theoretical standpoint, medical negligence is still considered negligence. (See Flowers v. Torrance Memorial Hospital Medical Center (1994) 8 Cal.4th 992, 997–998 [35 Cal.Rptr.2d 685, 884 P.2d 142].)

Also give the appropriate standard-of-care instruction for the defendant's category of medical professional. (See CACI No. 501, Standard of Care for Health Care Professionals, CACI No. 502, Standard of Care for Medical Specialists, CACI No. 504, Standard of Care for Nurses, CACI No. 514, Duty of Hospital.)

It is not necessary to instruct that causation must be proven within a reasonable medical probability based upon competent expert testimony. The reference to "medical probability" in medical malpractice cases is no more than a recognition that the case involves the use of medical evidence. (Uriell v. Regents of University of California (2015) 234 Cal.App.4th 735, 746 [184 Cal.Rptr.3d 79].)

Sources and Authority

- "Professional Negligence" of Health Care Provider Defined. Code of Civil Procedure section 340.5, Civil Code sections 3333.1 and 3333.2.
- "The elements of a cause of action for medical malpractice are: (1) a duty to use such skill, prudence, and diligence as other members of the profession commonly possess and exercise; (2) a breach of the duty; (3) a proximate causal connection between the negligent conduct and the injury; and (4) resulting loss or damage." (Lattimore v. Dickey (2015) 239 Cal.App.4th 959, 968 [191 Cal.Rptr.3d 766].)
- "The court's use of standard jury instructions for the essential elements of negligence, including causation, was appropriate because medical negligence is fundamentally negligence." (Uriell, supra, 234 Cal.App.4th at p. 744 [citing Directions for Use to this instruction].)
- "Section 340.5 defines 'professional negligence' as 'a negligent act or omission by a health care provider in the rendering of professional services, which act or omission is the proximate cause of a personal injury or wrongful death, provided that such services are within the scope of services for which the provider is licensed and which are not within any restriction imposed by the licensing agency or licensed hospital.' The term 'professional negligence' encompasses actions in which 'the injury for which damages are sought is directly related to the professional services provided by the health care provider' or directly related to 'a matter that is an ordinary and usual part of medical professional services.' '[C]ourts have broadly construed "professional negligence" to mean negligence occurring during the rendering of services for which the health care provider is licensed.' " (Arroyo v. Plosay (2014) 225 Cal.App.4th 279, 297 [170 Cal.Rptr.3d 125], original italics, internal citations omitted.)

- "With respect to professionals, their specialized education and training do not serve to impose an increased duty of care but rather are considered additional 'circumstances' relevant to an overall assessment of what constitutes 'ordinary prudence' in a particular situation." (Flowers, supra, 8 Cal.4th at pp. 997–998.)
- "Since the standard of care remains constant in terms of 'ordinary prudence,' it is clear that denominating a cause of action as one for 'professional negligence' does not transmute its underlying character. For substantive purposes, it merely serves to establish the basis by which 'ordinary prudence' will be calculated and the defendant's conduct evaluated." (Flowers, supra, 8 Cal.4th at p. 998.)
- "The Medical Injury Compensation Reform Act (MICRA) contains numerous provisions effecting substantial changes in negligence actions against health care providers, including a limitation on noneconomic damages, elimination of the collateral source rule as well as preclusion of subrogation in most instances, and authorization for periodic payments of future damages in excess of $ 50,000. While in each instance the statutory scheme has altered a significant aspect of claims for medical malpractice, such as the measure of the defendant's liability for damages or the admissibility of evidence, the fundamental substance of such actions on the issues of duty, standard of care, breach, and causation remains unaffected." (Flowers, supra, 8 Cal.4th at p. 999.)
- "On causation, the plaintiff must establish 'it is more probable than not the negligent act was a cause-in-fact of the plaintiff's injury.' ' "A possible cause only becomes 'probable' when, in the absence of other reasonable causal explanations, it becomes more likely than not that the injury was a result of its action." ' '[C]ausation in actions arising from medical negligence must be proven within a reasonable medical probability based on competent expert testimony, i.e., something more than a "50-50 possibility." ' '[T]he evidence must be sufficient to allow the jury to infer that in the absence of the defendant's negligence, there was a reasonable medical probability the plaintiff would have obtained a better result.' " (Belfiore-Braman v. Rotenberg (2018) 25 Cal.App.5th 234, 247 [235 Cal.Rptr.3d 629], internal citations omitted.)
- "That there is a distinction between a reasonable medical 'probability' and a medical 'possibility' needs little discussion. There can be many possible 'causes,' indeed, an infinite number of circumstances which can produce an injury or disease. A possible cause only becomes 'probable' when, in the absence of other reasonable causal explanations, it becomes more likely than not that the injury was a result of its action. This is the outer limit of inference upon which an issue may be submitted to the jury." (Jennings v. Palomar Pomerado Health Systems, Inc. (2003) 114 Cal.App.4th 1108, 1118 [8 Cal.Rptr.3d 363], original italics, internal citations omitted.)

- "The rationale advanced by the hospital is that . . . if the need for restraint is 'obvious to all,' the failure to restrain is ordinary negligence. . . . [T]his standard is incompatible with the subsequently enacted statutory definition of professional negligence, which focuses on whether the negligence occurs in the rendering of professional services, rather than whether a high or low level of skill is required. [Citation.]" (Bellamy v. Appellate Dep't of the Superior Court (1996) 50 Cal.App.4th 797, 806–807 [57 Cal.Rptr.2d 894].)
- "[E]ven in the absence of a physician-patient relationship, a physician has liability to an examinee for negligence or professional malpractice for injuries incurred during the examination itself." (Mero v. Sadoff (1995) 31 Cal.App.4th 1466, 1478 [37 Cal.Rptr.2d 769].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1066–1068, 1071, 1072

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 9.65

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 30, General Principles of Liability of Professionals, § 30.11, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, § 31.01 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 209, Dentists, § 209.15 (Matthew Bender)

27 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 295, Hospitals, §§ 295.13, 295.43 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice, § 415.11 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 175, Physicians and Surgeons, § 175.20 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

501. Standard of Care for Health Care Professionals

[A/An] [*insert type of medical practitioner] is negligent if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] fails to use the level of skill, knowledge, and care in diagnosis and treatment that other reasonably careful [insert type of medical practitioners] would use in the same or similar circumstances. This level of skill, knowledge, and care is sometimes referred to as "the standard of care."

[You must determine the level of skill, knowledge, and care that other reasonably careful [*insert type of medical practitioners] would use in the same or similar circumstances, based only on the testimony of the expert witnesses [including [name of defendant]] who have testified in this case.]

New September 2003; Revised October 2004, December 2005, December 2010

Directions for Use

This instruction is intended to apply to nonspecialist physicians, surgeons, and dentists. The standards of care for nurses, specialists, and hospitals are addressed in separate instructions. (See CACI No. 502, Standard of Care for Medical Specialists, CACI No. 504, Standard of Care for Nurses, and CACI No. 514, Duty of Hospital.)

The second paragraph should be used if the court determines that expert testimony is necessary to establish the standard of care, which is usually the case. (See Scott v. Rayhrer (2010) 185 Cal.App.4th 1535, 1542–1543 [111 Cal.Rptr.3d 36].)

If the standard of care is set by statute or regulation, refer to instructions on negligence per se (CACI Nos. 418–421). (See Galvez v. Frields (2001) 88 Cal.App.4th 1410 [107 Cal.Rptr.2d 50].)

See CACI Nos. 219–221 on evaluating the credibility of expert witnesses.

Sources and Authority

- "With unimportant variations in phrasing, we have consistently held that a physician is required to possess and exercise, in both diagnosis and treatment, that reasonable degree of knowledge and skill which is ordinarily possessed and exercised by other members of his profession in similar circumstances." (Landeros v. Flood (1976) 17 Cal.3d 399, 408 [131 Cal.Rptr. 69, 551 P.2d 389].)
- "The courts require only that physicians and surgeons exercise in diagnosis and treatment that reasonable degree of skill, knowledge, and care ordinarily possessed and exercised by members of the medical profession under similar circumstances." (Mann v. Cracchiolo (1985) 38 Cal.3d 18, 36 [210 Cal.Rptr. 762, 694 P.2d 1134].)
- "[T]he law imposes on individuals a duty to have medical education, training and skill before practicing medicine and that practicing medicine without this education, training and skill is negligent. . . . [A] breach of that portion of the standard of care does not, in and of itself, establish actionable malpractice (i.e., one cannot recover from a person merely for lacking medical knowledge unless that lack of medical knowledge caused injury to the plaintiff).” (Hinson v. Clairemont Community Hospital (1990) 218 Cal.App.3d 1110, 1119 [267 Cal.Rptr. 503], disapproved on other grounds in Alexander v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal.4th 1218, 1228 [23 Cal.Rptr.2d 397, 859 P.2d 96].)

- “[T]he standard of care for physicians is the reasonable degree of skill, knowledge and care ordinarily possessed and exercised by members of the medical profession under similar circumstances. The test for determining familiarity with the standard of care is knowledge of similar conditions. Geographical location may be a factor considered in making that determination, but, by itself, does not provide a practical basis for measuring similar circumstances. Over 30 years ago, our Supreme Court observed that ‘[t]he unmistakable general trend . . . has been toward liberalizing the rules relating to the testimonial qualifications of medical experts.’ ” (Avivi v. Centro Medico Urgente Medical Center (2008) 159 Cal.App.4th 463, 470–471 [71 Cal.Rptr.3d 707], original italics, internal citations omitted.)
- “Today, ‘neither the Evidence Code nor Supreme Court precedent requires an expert witness to have practiced in a particular locality before he or she can render an opinion in an ordinary medical malpractice case.’ ” (Borrayo v. Avery (2016) 2 Cal.App.5th 304, 310–311 [205 Cal.Rptr.3d 825], original italics.)
- “As a general rule, the testimony of an expert witness is required in every professional negligence case to establish the applicable standard of care, whether that standard was met or breached by the defendant, and whether any negligence by the defendant caused the plaintiff’s damages. A narrow exception to this rule exists where’ ” ‘. . . the conduct required by the particular circumstances is within the common knowledge of the layman.’ . . . [Citations.]” ’ This exception is, however, a limited one. It arises when a foreign object such as a sponge or surgical instrument, is left in a patient following surgery and applies only when the plaintiff can invoke the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur. ‘The “common knowledge” exception is generally limited to situations in which . . . a layperson “. . . [can] say as a matter of common knowledge . . . that the consequences of professional treatment were not such as ordinarily would have followed if due care had been exercised.” . . .’ ” (Scott, supra, 185 Cal.App.4th at pp. 1542–1543, footnote and internal citations omitted.)
- “We have already held upon authority that the failure to remove a sponge from the abdomen of a patient is negligence of the ordinary type and that it does not involve knowledge of materia medica or surgery but that it belongs to that class of mental lapses which frequently occur in the usual routine of business and commerce, and in the multitude of commonplace affairs which come within the group of ordinary actionable negligence. The layman needs no scientific enlightenment to see at once that the omission can be accounted for on no other theory than that someone has committed actionable negligence.” (Ales v. Ryan (1936) 8 Cal.2d 82, 93 [64 P.2d 409].)

- The medical malpractice standard of care applies to veterinarians. (Williamson v. Prida (1999) 75 Cal.App.4th 1417, 1425 [89 Cal.Rptr.2d 868].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1066, 1067, 1104, 1108

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 9.1

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 30, General Principles of Liability of Professionals, § 30.12, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, § 31.11 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 209, Dentists, § 209.42 (Matthew Bender)

25 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 295, Hospitals, §§ 295.13, 295.43, 295.45 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice, § 415.11 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 175, Physicians and Surgeons: Medical Malpractice, § 175.20 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

502. Standard of Care for Medical Specialists

[A/An] [*insert type of medical specialist] is negligent if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] fails to use the level of skill, knowledge, and care in diagnosis and treatment that other reasonably careful [insert type of medical specialists] would use in similar circumstances. This level of skill, knowledge, and care is sometimes referred to as "the standard of care."

[You must determine the level of skill, knowledge, and care that other reasonably careful [*insert type of medical specialists] would use in similar circumstances based only on the testimony of the expert witnesses [including [name of defendant]] who have testified in this case.]

New September 2003; Revised October 2004

Directions for Use

This instruction is intended to apply to physicians, surgeons, and dentists who are specialists in a particular practice area.

The second paragraph should be used except in cases where the court determines that expert testimony is not necessary to establish the standard of care.

See CACI Nos. 219–221 on evaluating the credibility of expert witnesses.

Sources and Authority

- "In those cases where a medical specialist is alleged to have acted negligently, the 'specialist must possess and use the learning, care and skill normally possessed and exercised by practitioners of that specialty under the same or similar circumstances.' " (Lattimore v. Dickey (2015) 239 Cal.App.4th 959, 968 [191 Cal.Rptr.3d 766].)
- "In the first place, the special obligation of the professional is exemplified by his duty not merely to perform his work with ordinary care but to use the skill, prudence, and diligence commonly exercised by practitioners of his profession. If he further specializes within the profession, he must meet the standards of knowledge and skill of such specialists." (Neel v. Magana, Olney, Levy, Cathcart & Gelfand (1971) 6 Cal.3d 176, 188 [98 Cal.Rptr. 837, 491 P.2d 421].)
- "The difference between the duty owed by a specialist and that owed by a general practitioner lies not in the degree of care required but in the amount of skill required." (Valentine v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1961) 194 Cal.App.2d 282, 294 [15 Cal.Rptr. 26] (disapproved on other grounds by Siverson v. Weber (1962) 57 Cal.2d 834, 839 [22 Cal.Rptr. 337, 372 P.2d 97]).)
- "The role of the psychiatrist, who is indeed a practitioner of medicine, and that of the psychologist who performs an allied function, are like that of the physician who must conform to the standards of the profession and who must often make diagnoses and predictions based upon such evaluations. Thus the judgment of the therapist in diagnosing emotional disorders and in predicting whether a patient presents a serious danger of violence is comparable to the judgment which doctors and professionals must regularly render under accepted rules of responsibility." (Tarasoff v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1976) 17 Cal.3d 425, 438 [131 Cal.Rptr. 14, 551 P.2d 334].)

- "[A] psychotherapist or other mental health care provider has a duty to use a reasonable degree of skill, knowledge and care in treating a patient, commensurate with that possessed and exercised by others practicing within that specialty in the professional community." (Kockelman v. Segal (1998) 61 Cal.App.4th 491, 505 [71 Cal.Rptr.2d 552].)
- "[T]he standard of care for physicians is the reasonable degree of skill, knowledge and care ordinarily possessed and exercised by members of the medical profession under similar circumstances. The test for determining familiarity with the standard of care is knowledge of similar conditions. Geographical location may be a factor considered in making that determination, but, by itself, does not provide a practical basis for measuring similar circumstances. Over 30 years ago, our Supreme Court observed that '[t]he unmistakable general trend . . . has been toward liberalizing the rules relating to the testimonial qualifications of medical experts.' " (Avivi v. Centro Medico Urgente Medical Center (2008) 159 Cal.App.4th 463, 470–471 [71 Cal.Rptr.3d 707], original italics, internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 9.2

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 30, General Principles of Liability of Professionals, § 30.12, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, § 31.85 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice, § 415.11 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 175, Physicians and Surgeons: Medical Malpractice, § 175.20 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

503A. Psychotherapist's Duty to Protect Intended Victim From Patient's Threat

---

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant]'s failure to protect [name of plaintiff/decedent] was a substantial factor in causing [injury to [name of plaintiff]/the death of [name of decedent]]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] was a psychotherapist;
2. That [name of patient] was [name of defendant]'s patient;
3. That [name of patient] communicated to [name of defendant] a serious threat of physical violence;
4. That [name of plaintiff/decedent] was a reasonably identifiable victim of [name of patient]'s threat;
5. That [name of patient] [injured [name of plaintiff]/killed [name of decedent]];
6. That [name of defendant] failed to make reasonable efforts to protect [name of plaintiff/decedent]; and
7. That [name of defendant]'s failure was a substantial factor in causing [[name of plaintiff]'s injury/the death of [name of decedent]].

Derived from former CACI No. 503 April 2007; Revised June 2013, May 2020

Directions for Use

Read this instruction for a Tarasoff cause of action for professional negligence against a psychotherapist for failure to protect a victim from a patient's act of violence after the patient communicated to the therapist a threat against the victim. (See Tarasoff v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1976) 17 Cal.3d 425 [131 Cal.Rptr. 14, 551 P.2d 334].) The liability imposed by Tarasoff is modified by the provisions of Civil Code section 43.92(a). First read CACI No. 503B, Affirmative Defense—Psychotherapist's Communication of Threat to Victim and Law Enforcement, if the therapist asserts that the therapist is immune from liability under Civil Code section 43.92(b) because the therapist made reasonable efforts to communicate the threat to the victim and to a law enforcement agency.

In a wrongful death case, insert the name of the decedent victim where applicable.

Sources and Authority

- Limited Psychotherapist Immunity. Civil Code section 43.92(a).
- "[T]herapists cannot escape liability merely because [the victim] was not their patient. When a therapist determines, or pursuant to the standards of his profession should determine, that his patient presents a serious danger of violence to another, he incurs an obligation to use reasonable care to protect the intended victim against such danger. The discharge of this duty may require the therapist to take one or more of various steps, depending upon the nature of the case. Thus it may call for him to warn the intended victim or others likely to apprise the victim of the danger, to notify the police, or to take whatever other steps are reasonably necessary under the circumstances." (Tarasoff, supra, 17 Cal.3d at p. 431.)

- Civil Code section 43.92 was enacted to limit the liability of psychotherapists under Tarasoff regarding a therapist's duty to warn an intended victim. (Barry v. Turek (1990) 218 Cal.App.3d 1241, 1244–1245 [267 Cal.Rptr. 553].) Under this provision, "[p]sychotherapists thus have immunity from Tarasoff claims except where the plaintiff proves that the patient has communicated to his or her psychotherapist a serious threat of physical violence against a reasonably identifiable victim or victims." (Barry, supra, 218 Cal.App.3d at p. 1245.)
- "When the communication of the serious threat of physical violence is received by the therapist from a member of the patient's immediate family and is shared for the purpose of facilitating and furthering the patient's treatment, the fact that the family member is not technically a 'patient' is not crucial to the statute's purpose." (Ewing v. Goldstein (2004) 120 Cal.App.4th 807, 817 [15 Cal.Rptr.3d 864].)
- "Section 43.92 strikes a reasonable balance in that it does not compel the therapist to predict the dangerousness of a patient. Instead, it requires the therapist to attempt to protect a victim under limited circumstances, even though the therapist's disclosure of a patient confidence will potentially disrupt or destroy the patient's trust in the therapist. However, the requirement is imposed upon the therapist only after he or she determines that the patient has made a credible threat of serious physical violence against a person." (Calderon v. Glick (2005) 131 Cal.App.4th 224, 231 [31 Cal.Rptr.3d 707].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1189, 1190

32 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 361A, Mental Health and Mental Disabilities: Judicial Commitment, Health Services and Civil Rights, § 361A.93 (Matthew Bender)

11 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 154, Mental Health and Mental Disabilities, § 154.30 (Matthew Bender)

503B. Affirmative Defense—Psychotherapist's Communication of Threat to Victim and Law Enforcement

---

[*Name of defendant] is not responsible for [[name of plaintiff]'s injury/the death of [name of decedent]] if [name of defendant] proves that [he/she/ *nonbinary pronoun] made reasonable efforts to communicate the threat to [name of plaintiff/decedent] and to a law enforcement agency.

Derived from former CACI No. 503 April 2007; Revised June 2013, May 2020

Directions for Use

Read this instruction for a Tarasoff cause of action for professional negligence against a psychotherapist (Tarasoff v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1976) 17 Cal.3d 425 [131 Cal.Rptr. 14, 551 P.2d 334]) if there is a dispute of fact regarding whether the defendant made reasonable efforts to communicate to the victim and to a law enforcement agency a threat made by the defendant's patient. The therapist is immune from liability under Tarasoff if the therapist makes reasonable efforts to communicate the threat to the victim and to a law enforcement agency. (Civ. Code, § 43.92(b).) CACI No. 503A, Psychotherapist's Duty to Protect Intended Victim From Patient's Threat, sets forth the elements of a Tarasoff cause of action if the defendant is not immune.

In a wrongful death case, insert the name of the decedent victim where applicable.

Sources and Authority

- Limited Psychotherapist Immunity. Civil Code section 43.92(b).
- Failure to inform a law enforcement agency concerning a homicidal threat made by a patient against his work supervisor did not abrogate the "firefighter's rule" and, therefore, did not render the psychiatrist liable to a police officer who was subsequently shot by the patient. (Tilley v. Schulte (1999) 70 Cal.App.4th 79, 85–86 [82 Cal.Rptr.2d 497].)
- "When the communication of the serious threat of physical violence is received by the therapist from a member of the patient's immediate family and is shared for the purpose of facilitating and furthering the patient's treatment, the fact that the family member is not technically a 'patient' is not crucial to the statute's purpose." (Ewing v. Goldstein (2004) 120 Cal.App.4th 807, 817 [15 Cal.Rptr.3d 864].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1189, 1190

32 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 361A, Mental Health and Mental Disabilities: Judicial Commitment, Health Services and Civil Rights, § 361A.93 (Matthew Bender)

11 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 154, Mental Health and Mental Disabilities, § 154.30 (Matthew Bender)

504. Standard of Care for Nurses

[A/An] [insert type of nurse] is negligent if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] fails to use the level of skill, knowledge, and care in diagnosis and treatment that other reasonably careful [insert type of nurses] would use in similar circumstances. This level of skill, knowledge, and care is sometimes referred to as "the standard of care."

[You must determine the level of skill, knowledge, and care that other reasonably careful [insert type of nurses] would use in similar circumstances based only on the testimony of the expert witnesses [including [name of defendant]] who have testified in this case.]

New September 2003; Revised October 2004, June 2010

Directions for Use

The appropriate level of nurse should be inserted where indicated—i.e., registered nurse, licensed vocational nurse, nurse practitioner.

The second paragraph should be included unless the court determines that expert testimony is not necessary to establish the standard of care.

Sources and Authority

- "[A] nurse is negligent if he or she fails to meet the standard of care—that is, fails to use the level of skill, knowledge, and care that a reasonably careful nurse would use in similar circumstances." (Massey v. Mercy Med. Ctr. Redding (2009) 180 Cal.App.4th 690, 694 [103 Cal.Rptr.3d 209] [citing this instruction].)
- " '[T]oday's nurses are held to strict professional standards of knowledge and performance.' But '[s]ome difficulties are presented [in the nursing malpractice context] by the fact that a nurse's traditional role has involved "both routine, nontechnical tasks as well as specialized nursing tasks. If, in considering the case law in this area, the dispute is analyzed in terms of what action by the nurse is being complained about, it is possible to make some sense out of the relevant decisions." ' " (Massey, supra, 180 Cal.App.4th at p. 697, internal citation omitted.)
- "[A] nurse's conduct must not be measured by the standard of care required of a physician or surgeon, but by that of other nurses in the same or similar locality and under similar circumstances." (Lattimore v. Dickey (2015) 239 Cal.App.4th 959, 969 [191 Cal.Rptr.3d 766].)
- The jury should not be instructed that the standard of care for a nurse practitioner must be measured by the standard of care for a physician or surgeon when the nurse is examining a patient or making a diagnosis. (Fein v. Permanente Medical Group (1985) 38 Cal.3d 137, 150 [211 Cal.Rptr. 368, 695 P.2d 665].) Courts have observed that nurses are trained, "but to a lesser degree than a physician, in the recognition of the symptoms of diseases and injuries." (Cooper v. National Motor Bearing Co. (1955) 136 Cal.App.2d 229, 238 [288 P.2d 581].)

- "[E]xpert opinion testimony is required to prove that a defendant nurse did not meet the standard of care and therefore was negligent, 'except in cases where the negligence is obvious to laymen.' " (Massey, supra, 180 Cal.App.4th at pp. 694–695.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1129–1130

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 9.52

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, § 31.84 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice, § 415.11 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 175, Physicians and Surgeons, § 175.20 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

505. Success Not Required

[A/An] [*insert type of medical practitioner] is not necessarily negligent just because [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] efforts are unsuccessful or [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] makes an error that was reasonable under the circumstances. [A/An] [insert type of medical practitioner] is negligent only if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was not as skillful, knowledgeable, or careful as other reasonable [insert type of medical practitioners] would have been in similar circumstances.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

Plaintiffs have argued that this type of instruction "provides too easy an 'out' for malpractice defendants." (Fraijo v. Hartland Hospital (1979) 99 Cal.App.3d 331, 343 [160 Cal.Rptr. 246].) Nevertheless, in California, instructions on this point have been sustained when challenged. (Rainer v. Community Memorial Hospital (1971) 18 Cal.App.3d 240, 260 [95 Cal.Rptr. 901].)

Sources and Authority

- "While a physician cannot be held liable for mere errors of judgment or for erroneous conclusions on matters of opinion, he must use the judgment and form the opinions of one possessed of knowledge and skill common to medical men practicing, in the same or like community and that he may have done his best is no answer to an action of this sort." (Sim v. Weeks (1935) 7 Cal.App.2d 28, 36 [45 P.2d 350].)
- "The 'law has never held a physician or surgeon liable for every untoward result which may occur in medical practice' but it 'demands only that a physician or surgeon have the degree of learning and skill ordinarily possessed by practitioners of the medical profession in the same locality and that he exercise ordinary care in applying such learning and skill to the treatment of his patient.' " (Huffman v. Lindquist (1951) 37 Cal.2d 465, 473 [234 P.2d 34], internal citations omitted.)
- It is appropriate to instruct a jury that "they do not necessarily adjudge whether there was negligence in terms of the result achieved . . . ." (Dincau v. Tamayose (1982) 131 Cal.App.3d 780, 800 [182 Cal.Rptr. 855].)
- "[A] physician and surgeon is not required to make a perfect diagnosis but is only required to have that degree of skill and learning ordinarily possessed by physicians of good standing practicing in the same locality and to use ordinary care and diligence in applying that learning to the treatment of his patient." (Ries v. Reinard (1941) 47 Cal.App.2d 116, 119 [117 P.2d 386].)
- "A doctor is not a warrantor of cures nor is he required to guarantee results and in the absence of a want of reasonable care and skill will not be held responsible for untoward results." (Sanchez v. Rodriguez (1964) 226 Cal.App.2d 439, 449 [38 Cal.Rptr. 110].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1066, 1067

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 9.5

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 30, General Principles of Liability of Professionals, § 30.01 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice, § 415.11 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 175, Physicians and Surgeons, § 175.38 (Matthew Bender)

506. Alternative Methods of Care

[A/An] [insert type of medical practitioner] is not necessarily negligent just because [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] chooses one medically accepted method of treatment or diagnosis and it turns out that another medically accepted method would have been a better choice.

New September 2003

Sources and Authority

- "A difference of medical opinion concerning the desirability of one particular medical procedure over another does not . . . establish that the determination to use one of the procedures was negligent." (Clemens v. Regents of Univ. of California (1970) 8 Cal.App.3d 1, 13 [87 Cal.Rptr. 108].)
- "Medicine is not a field of absolutes. There is not ordinarily only one correct route to be followed at any given time. There is always the need for professional judgment as to what course of conduct would be most appropriate with regard to the patient's condition." (Barton v. Owen (1977) 71 Cal.App.3d 484, 501–502 [139 Cal.Rptr. 494].)
- This type of instruction may be important in arriving at a fair decision: "[I]n determining whether defendants breached a standard of care owed decedent, the jury may not engage in 'but for' reasoning." (Meier v. Ross General Hospital (1968) 69 Cal.2d 420, 435 [71 Cal.Rptr. 903, 445 P.2d 519].)
- "[I]n order for CACI No. 506 to be given, there must have been expert testimony presented to the jury to the effect that a medical practitioner chose a medically accepted method of diagnosis (or treatment) from among alternative medically accepted methods of diagnosis (or treatment)." (Ayala v. Arroyo Vista Family Health Center (2008) 160 Cal.App.4th 1350, 1353 [73 Cal.Rptr.3d 486].)

Secondary Sources

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, § 31.11 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice, § 415.13 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 175, Physicians and Surgeons: Medical Malpractice, § 175.34 (Matthew Bender)

507. Duty to Warn Patient

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] was negligent because [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] did not warn [name of patient] that [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] condition presented a danger to others.

[*Name of defendant] was negligent if [name of plaintiff] proves that [he/she/nonbinary prounoun] did not take reasonable steps to warn [name of patient] that [his/her/nonbinary prounoun] condition presented a danger to others.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This instruction is intended to cover situations where a patient's condition foreseeably causes harm to a third party.

Sources and Authority

- "To avoid liability in this case, [defendants] should have taken whatever steps were reasonable under the circumstances to protect [plaintiff] and other foreseeable victims of [patient]'s dangerous conduct. What is a reasonable step to take will vary from case to case." (Myers v. Quesenberry (1983) 144 Cal.App.3d 888, 894 [193 Cal.Rptr. 733], internal citations omitted.) "Our holding does not require the physician to do anything other than what he was already obligated to do for the protection of the patient. Thus, even though it may appear that the scope of liability has been expanded to include injuries to foreseeable victims other than the patient, the standard of medical care to the patient remains the same." (Ibid.)
- "When the avoidance of foreseeable harm to a third person requires a defendant to control the conduct of a person with whom the defendant has a special relationship (such as physician and patient) or to warn the person of the risks involved in certain conduct, the defendant's duty extends to a third person with whom the defendant does not have a special relationship." (Reisner v. Regents of Univ. of California (1995) 31 Cal.App.4th 1195, 1198–1199 [37 Cal.Rptr.2d 518] [infected sex partner could maintain action against his partner's physicians for failing to tell the young woman that she had received HIV-tainted blood].)
- Proof of causation is still required: "[Defendants] will be liable only if [plaintiff] is able to prove their failure to warn [patient] not to drive in an irrational and uncontrolled diabetic condition was a substantial factor in causing his injuries." (Myers, supra, 144 Cal.App.3d at p. 895.)
- This obligation to third parties appears to be limited to healthcare professionals and does not apply to ordinary citizens. (Koepke v. Loo (1993) 18 Cal.App.4th 1444, 1456–1457 [23 Cal.Rptr.2d 34].)

Secondary Sources

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, § 31.16 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice, § 415.13 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 175, Physicians and Surgeons, §§ 175.22, 175.23 (Matthew Bender)

508. Duty to Refer to a Specialist

If a reasonably careful [*insert type of medical practitioner] in the same situation would have referred [name of patient] to a [insert type of medical specialist], then [name of defendant] was negligent if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] did not do so.

However, if [*name of defendant] treated [name of patient] with as much skill and care as a reasonable [insert type of medical specialist] would have, then [name of defendant] was not negligent.

New September 2003

Sources and Authority

- Physicians who elect to treat a patient even though the patient should have been referred to a specialist will be held to the standard of care of that specialist. If the physician meets the higher standard of care, he or she is not negligent. (Simone v. Sabo (1951) 37 Cal.2d 253, 257 [231 P.2d 19].)
- If the evidence establishes that the failure of a nurse to consult the attending physician under the circumstances presented in the case is not in accord with the standard of care of the nursing profession, this instruction may be applicable. (Fraijo v. Hartland Hospital (1979) 99 Cal.App.3d 331, 344 [160 Cal.Rptr. 246].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1066, 1067

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 9.6

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 30, General Principles of Liability of Professionals, § 30.12, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, § 31.13 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 209, Dentists, § 209.11 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice, § 415.11 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 175, Physicians and Surgeons, §§ 175.20 (Matthew Bender)

509. Abandonment of Patient

[Name of plaintiff] claims [name of defendant] was negligent because [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] did not give [name of patient] enough notice before withdrawing from the case. To succeed, [name of plaintiff] must prove both of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] withdrew from [name of patient]'s care and treatment; and
2. That [name of defendant] did not provide sufficient notice for [name of patient] to obtain another medical practitioner.

However, [name of defendant] was not negligent if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] proves that [name of patient] consented to the withdrawal or declined further medical care.

New September 2003

Sources and Authority

- "[A] physician who abandons a patient may do so 'only . . . after due notice, and an ample opportunity afforded to secure the presence of other medical attendance.' " (Payton v. Weaver (1982) 131 Cal.App.3d 38, 45 [182 Cal.Rptr. 225], internal citations omitted.)
- "A physician cannot just walk away from a patient after accepting the patient for treatment. . . . In the absence of the patient's consent, the physician must notify the patient he is withdrawing and allow ample opportunity to secure the presence of another physician." (Hongsathavij v. Queen of Angels/Hollywood Presbyterian Medical Center (1998) 62 Cal.App.4th 1123, 1138 [73 Cal.Rptr.2d 695].)
- "Abandonment as a theory warrants CACI No. 509 only where there is evidence that the physician has accepted responsibility for the patient and then has withdrawn without giving enough notice to ensure timely continuity of treatment." (Zannini v. Liker (2022) 74 Cal.App.5th 610, 627 [289 Cal.Rptr.3d 712].)
- "When a competent, informed adult directs the withholding or withdrawal of medical treatment, even at the risk of hastening or causing death, medical professionals who respect that determination will not incur criminal or civil liability: the patient's decision discharges the physician's duty." (Thor v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal.4th 725, 743 [21 Cal.Rptr.2d 357, 855 P.2d 375].)

Secondary Sources

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 9.8

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, § 31.42 (Matthew Bender)

510. Derivative Liability of Surgeon

A surgeon is responsible for the negligence of other medical practitioners or nurses who are under the surgeon's supervision and control and actively participating during an operation.

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, May 2020

Directions for Use

Give this instruction in a case in which the plaintiff seeks to hold a surgeon vicariously responsible under the "captain-of-the-ship" doctrine for the negligence of nurses or other hospital employees that occurs during the course of an operation. There is some disagreement in the courts regarding whether the captain-of-the-ship doctrine remains a viable rule of law. (Compare Truhitte v. French Hospital (1982) 128 Cal.App.3d 332, 348 [180 Cal.Rptr. 152] (doctrine has been eroded) with Baumgardner v. Yusuf (2006) 144 Cal.App.4th 1381, 1397–1398 [51 Cal.Rptr.3d 277] (doctrine remains viable).)

Sources and Authority

- The "captain of the ship" doctrine imposes liability on a surgeon under the doctrine of respondeat superior for the acts of those under the surgeon's special supervision and control during the operation. (Thomas v. Intermedics Orthopedics, Inc. (1996) 47 Cal.App.4th 957, 967 [55 Cal.Rptr.2d 197].)
- "The doctrine has been explained as follows: 'A physician generally is not liable for the negligence of hospital or other nurses, attendants, or internes, who are not his employees, particularly where he has no knowledge thereof or no connection therewith. On the other hand, a physician is liable for the negligence of hospital or other nurses, attendants, or internes, who are not his employees, where such negligence is discoverable by him in the exercise of ordinary care, he is negligent in permitting them to attend the patient, or the negligent acts were performed under conditions where, in the exercise of ordinary care, he could have or should have been able to prevent their injurious effects and did not. [¶] The mere fact that a physician or surgeon gives instructions to a hospital employee does not render the physician or surgeon liable for negligence of the hospital employee in carrying out the instructions. Similarly, the mere right of a physician to supervise a hospital employee is not sufficient to render the physician liable for the negligence of such employee. On the other hand, if the physician has the right to exercise control over the work to be done by the hospital employee and the manner of its performance, or an employee of a hospital is temporarily detached in whole or in part from the hospital's general control so as to become the temporary servant of the physician he assists, the physician will be subject to liability for the employee's negligence. [¶] Thus, where a hospital employee, although not in the regular employ of an operating surgeon, is under his special supervision and control during the operation, the relationship of master and servant exists, and the surgeon is liable, under the doctrine of respondeat superior, for the employee's negligence.' " (Thomas, supra, 47 Cal.App.4th at pp. 966–967, original italics.)

- This doctrine applies only to medical personnel who are actively participating in the surgical procedure. (Thomas, supra, 47 Cal.App.4th at pp. 966–967.)
- While the "captain of the ship" doctrine has never been expressly rejected, it has been eroded by modern courts. "A theory that the surgeon directly controls all activities of whatever nature in the operating room certainly is not realistic in present day medical care." (Truhitte, supra, 128 Cal.App.3d at p. 348, original italics.)
- "[T]he Truhitte court ignores what we have already recognized as the special relationship between a vulnerable hospital patient and the surgeon operating on the patient. A helpless patient on the operating table who cannot understand or control what is happening reasonably expects a surgeon to oversee her care and to look out for her interests. We find this special relationship sufficient justification for the continued application of captain of the ship doctrine. Moreover, in light of the Supreme Court's expressions of approval of the doctrine . . . , we feel compelled to adhere to the doctrine." (Baumgardner, supra, 144 Cal.App.4th at pp. 1397–1398, internal citations omitted.)
- Absent evidence of right to control, an operating surgeon is generally not responsible for the conduct of anesthesiologists or others who independently carry out their duties. (Seneris v. Haas (1955) 45 Cal.2d 811, 828 [291 P.2d 915]; Marvulli v. Elshire (1972) 27 Cal.App.3d 180, 187 [103 Cal.Rptr. 461].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1109

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 9.4

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, § 31.45 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice, § 415.11 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 175, Physicians and Surgeons, § 175.25 (Matthew Bender)

511. Wrongful Birth—Sterilization/Abortion—Essential Factual Elements

---

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] negligently failed to prevent the birth of her child. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove both of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] performed a negligent [sterilization/abortion] procedure; and
2. That [name of plaintiff] gave birth to an unplanned child after this procedure was performed.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

The general medical negligence instructions—instructions on the standard of care and causation—could be used in conjunction with this one.

Sources and Authority

- No Defense for Parent's Failure or Refusal to Prevent Live Birth. Civil Code section 43.6(b).
- "California law now permits a mother to hold medical personnel liable for their negligent failure to prevent or to terminate a pregnancy." (Foy v. Greenblott (1983) 141 Cal.App.3d 1, 8 [190 Cal.Rptr. 84].)
- Negligent sterilization procedure that leads to the birth of a child, either normal or disabled, can form the basis of a wrongful birth action. (Custodio v. Bauer (1967) 251 Cal.App.2d 303, 323–325 [59 Cal.Rptr. 463]; Morris v. Frudenfeld (1982) 135 Cal.App.3d 23, 37 [185 Cal.Rptr. 76].) The same is true of an unsuccessful abortion procedure. (Stills v. Gratton (1976) 55 Cal.App.3d 698, 707–709 [127 Cal.Rptr. 652].)
- A wrongful birth claim based on a negligently performed sterilization or abortion procedure does not support an action for wrongful life: "California courts do recognize a wrongful life claim by an 'impaired' child for special damages (but not for general damages), when the physician's negligence is the proximate cause of the child's need for extraordinary medical care and training. No court, however, has expanded tort liability to include wrongful life claims by children born without any mental or physical impairment." (Alexandria S. v. Pac. Fertility Medical Ctr. (1997) 55 Cal.App.4th 110, 122 [64 Cal.Rptr.2d 23].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1110

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 9.22

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, §§ 31.15, 31.50 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice, § 415.17 (Matthew Bender)

512. Wrongful Birth—Essential Factual Elements

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] was negligent because [name of defendant] failed to inform [him/her/nonbinary pronoun] of the risk that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] would have a child with a [genetic impairment/disability]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

[1. That [name of defendant] negligently failed to [diagnose/ [or] warn [name of plaintiff] of] the risk that [name of child] would be born with a [genetic impairment/disability];]

[or]

[1. That [name of defendant] negligently failed to [perform appropriate tests/advise [name of plaintiff] of tests] that would more likely than not have disclosed the risk that [name of child] would be born with a [genetic impairment/disability];]

2. That [name of child] was born with a [genetic impairment/disability];

3. That if [name of plaintiff] had known of the [genetic impairment/disability], [insert name of mother] would not have conceived [name of child] [or would not have carried the fetus to term]; and

4. That [name of defendant]'s negligence was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff] to have to pay extraordinary expenses to care for [name of child].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, May 2023

Directions for Use

The general medical negligence instructions on the standard of care and causation (see CACI Nos. 500–502) may be used in conjunction with this instruction. Read also CACI No. 513, Wrongful Life—Essential Factual Elements, if the parents' cause of action for wrongful birth is joined with the child's cause of action for wrongful life.

In element 1, select the first option if the claim is that the defendant failed to diagnose or warn the plaintiff of a possible genetic impairment. Select the second option if the claim is that the defendant failed to order or advise of available genetic testing. In a testing case, there is no causation unless the chances that the test would disclose the impairment were at least 50 percent. (See Simmons v. West Covina Medical Clinic (1989) 212 Cal.App.3d 696, 702–703 [260 Cal.Rptr. 772].)

Sources and Authority

- "Claims for 'wrongful life' are essentially actions for malpractice based on negligent genetic counseling and testing." (Gami v. Mullikin Medical Center (1993) 18 Cal.App.4th 870, 883 [22 Cal.Rptr.2d 819].)
- "[A]s in any medical malpractice action, the plaintiff must establish: '(1) the duty of the professional to use such skill, prudence, and diligence as other members of his profession commonly possess and exercise; (2) a breach of that duty; (3) a proximate causal connection between the negligent conduct and the resulting injury; and (4) actual loss or damage resulting from the professional's negligence.' " (Gami, supra, 18 Cal.App.4th at p. 877.)
- "A mere 20 percent chance does not establish a 'reasonably probable causal connection' between defendants' negligent failure to provide [a genetic] test and plaintiffs' injuries. A less than 50-50 possibility that defendants' omission caused the harm does not meet the requisite reasonable medical probability test of proximate cause." (Simmons, supra, 212 Cal.App.3d at pp. 702–703.)
- "[W]e conclude that while a plaintiff-child in a wrongful life action may not recover general damages for being born impaired as opposed to not being born at all, the child—like his or her parents—may recover special damages for the extraordinary expenses necessary to treat the hereditary ailment." (Turpin v. Sortini (1982) 31 Cal.3d 220, 239 [182 Cal.Rptr. 337, 643 P.2d 954].)
- "Although the parents and child cannot, of course, both recover for the same medical expenses, we believe it would be illogical and anomalous to permit only parents, and not the child, to recover for the cost of the child's own medical care." (Turpin, supra, 31 Cal.3d at p. 238.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1110–1118

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) §§ 9.22a, 9.23b

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, §§ 31.15, 31.50 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice, § 415.17 (Matthew Bender)

513. Wrongful Life—Essential Factual Elements

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] was negligent because [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] failed to inform [name of plaintiff]'s parents of the risk that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] would be born with a [genetic impairment/disability]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

[1. That [*name of defendant] negligently failed to [diagnose/ [or] warn [name of plaintiff]'s parents of] the risk that [name of plaintiff] would be born with a [genetic impairment/disability];]

[or]

[1. That [*name of defendant] negligently failed to [perform appropriate tests/advise [name of plaintiff]'s parents of tests] that would more likely than not have disclosed the risk that [name of plaintiff] would be born with a [genetic impairment/disability];]

2. That [*name of plaintiff] was born with a [genetic impairment/disability];

3. That if [*name of plaintiff]'s parents had known of the risk of [genetic impairment/disability], [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] mother would not have conceived [him/her/nonbinary pronoun] [or would not have carried the fetus to term]; and

4. That [*name of defendant]'s negligence was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s parents to have to pay extraordinary expenses for [name of plaintiff].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, April 2008, November 2019, May 2023

Directions for Use

The general medical negligence instructions on the standard of care and causation (see CACI Nos. 500–502) may be used in conjunction with this instruction. Read also CACI No. 512, Wrongful Birth—Essential Factual Elements, if the parents' cause of action for wrongful birth is joined with the child's cause of action for wrongful life.

In element 1, select the first option if the claim is that the defendant failed to diagnose or warn the plaintiff of a possible genetic impairment. Select the second option if the claim is that the defendant failed to order or advise of available genetic testing. In a testing case, there is no causation unless the chances that the test would disclose the impairment were at least 50 percent. (See Simmons v. West Covina Medical Clinic (1989) 212 Cal.App.3d 696, 702–703 [260 Cal.Rptr. 772].)

In order for this instruction to apply, the genetic impairment must result in a physical or mental disability. This is implied by the fourth element in the instruction.

Sources and Authority

- No Wrongful Life Claim Against Parent. Civil Code section 43.6(a).
- "[I]t may be helpful to recognize that although the cause of action at issue has attracted a special name—'wrongful life'—plaintiff's basic contention is that her action is simply one form of the familiar medical or professional malpractice action. The gist of plaintiff's claim is that she has suffered harm or damage as a result of defendants' negligent performance of their professional tasks, and that, as a consequence, she is entitled to recover under generally applicable common law tort principles." (Turpin v. Sortini (1982) 31 Cal.3d 220, 229 [182 Cal.Rptr. 337, 643 P.2d 954].)
- "Claims for 'wrongful life' are essentially actions for malpractice based on negligent genetic counseling and testing." (Gami v. Mullikin Medical Center (1993) 18 Cal.App.4th 870, 883 [22 Cal.Rptr.2d 819].)
- "[W]e conclude that while a plaintiff-child in a wrongful life action may not recover general damages for being born impaired as opposed to not being born at all, the child—like his or her parents—may recover special damages for the extraordinary expenses necessary to treat the hereditary ailment." (Turpin, supra, 31 Cal.3d at p. 239.)
- "There is no loss of earning capacity caused by the doctor in negligently permitting the child to be born with a genetic defect that precludes earning a living." (Andalon v. Superior Court (1984) 162 Cal.App.3d 600, 614 [208 Cal.Rptr. 899].)
- "A mere 20 percent chance does not establish a 'reasonably probable causal connection' between defendants' negligent failure to provide [a] test and plaintiffs' injuries. A less than 50-50 possibility that defendants' omission caused the harm does not meet the requisite reasonable medical probability test of proximate cause." (Simmons, supra, 212 Cal.App.3d at pp. 702–703, internal citations omitted.)
- "Wrongful life claims are actions brought on behalf of children, while wrongful birth claims refer to actions brought by parents. California courts do recognize a wrongful life claim by an 'impaired' child for special damages (but not for general damages), when the physician's negligence is the proximate cause of the child's need for extraordinary medical care and training. No court, however, has expanded tort liability to include wrongful life claims by children born without any mental or physical impairment." (Alexandria S. v. Pac. Fertility Medical Ctr. (1997) 55 Cal.App.4th 110, 122 [64 Cal.Rptr.2d 23], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1112–1118

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) §§ 9.22a, 9.23b

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, §§ 31.15, 31.50 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice, § 415.17 (Matthew Bender)

514. Duty of Hospital

A hospital is negligent if it does not use reasonable care toward its patients. A hospital must provide procedures, policies, facilities, supplies, and qualified personnel reasonably necessary for the treatment of its patients.

[When you are deciding whether [name of defendant] was negligent, you must base your decision only on the testimony of the expert witnesses who have testified in this case.]

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This instruction may be augmented by CACI No. 515, Duty of Hospital to Provide Safe Environment, and/or CACI No. 516, Duty of Hospital to Screen Medical Staff.

The second paragraph should be used unless the court determines that expert testimony is not necessary to establish the standard of care.

See CACI Nos. 219–221 on evaluating the credibility of expert witnesses.

This instruction is not intended if the hospital is being sued based on the negligence of an agent or employee. See instructions in the Vicarious Responsibility series and adapt accordingly.

Sources and Authority

- "[T]he duty imposed by law on the hospital is that it must exercise such reasonable care toward a patient as his mental and physical condition, if known, require . . . ." (Vistica v. Presbyterian Hospital & Medical Center, Inc. (1967) 67 Cal.2d 465, 469 [62 Cal.Rptr. 577, 432 P.2d 193].)
- "A private hospital owes its patients the duty of protection. It was the duty of the hospital to use reasonable care and diligence in safeguarding a patient committed to its charge [citations] and such care and diligence are measured by the capacity of the patient to care for himself. By reason of the tender age of appellant's baby respondent owed a higher degree of care in attending it than if she had been an adult." (Thomas v. Seaside Memorial Hospital (1947) 80 Cal.App.2d 841, 847 [183 P.2d 288].)
- "It is the duty of any hospital that undertakes the treatment of an ill or wounded person to use reasonable care and diligence not only in operating upon and treating but also in safeguarding him, and such care and diligence is measured by the capacity of the patient to care for himself." (Valentin v. La Societe Francaise de Bienfaisance Mutuelle (1946) 76 Cal.App.2d 1, 4 [172 P.2d 359].)
- "[T]he professional duty of a hospital . . . is primarily to provide a safe environment within which diagnosis, treatment, and recovery can be carried out.

Thus if an unsafe condition of the hospital's premises causes injury to a patient . . . there is a breach of the hospital's duty qua hospital." (Murillo v. Good Samaritan Hospital (1979) 99 Cal.App.3d 50, 56–57 [160 Cal.Rptr. 33].)

- "Defendant . . . was under a duty to observe and know the condition of a patient. Its business is caring for ill persons, and its conduct must be in accordance with that of a person of ordinary prudence under the circumstances, a vital part of those circumstances being the illness of the patient and incidents thereof." (Rice v. California Lutheran Hospital (1945) 27 Cal.2d 296, 302 [163 P.2d 860].)
- "If a hospital is obliged to maintain its premises and its instrumentalities for the comfort of its patients with such care and diligence as will reasonably assure their safety, it should be equally bound to observe the progress of a patient in his recovery from a major operation with such care and diligence as his condition reasonably requires for his comfort and safety and promptly to employ such agencies as may reasonably appear necessary for the patient's safety." (Valentin, supra, 76 Cal.App.2d at p. 5.)
- "No expert opinion is required to prove the hospital's failure to provide an adequate number of trained, qualified personnel at the most critical time in postoperative care was negligent." (Czubinsky v. Doctors Hospital (1983) 139 Cal.App.3d 361, 367 [188 Cal.Rptr. 685].)
- "A California civil jury instruction succinctly characterizes a hospital's duty to its patients as follows: 'A hospital must provide procedures, policies, facilities, supplies, and qualified personnel reasonably necessary for the treatment of its patients.' (CACI No. 514.) The instruction would appear to be an accurate distillation of the case law applicable when patients are being treated at a hospital facility for an illness, injury or medical condition." (Walker v. Sonora Regional Medical Center (2012) 202 Cal.App.4th 948, 960 [135 Cal.Rptr.3d 876].)
- " 'Present-day hospitals, as their manner of operation plainly demonstrates, do far more than furnish facilities for treatment. They regularly employ on a salary basis a large staff of physicians, nurses and internes [sic], as well as administrative and manual workers, and they charge patients for medical care and treatment, collecting for such services, if necessary, by legal action. Certainly, the person who avails himself of 'hospital facilities' expects that the hospital will attempt to cure him, not that its nurses or other employees will act on their own responsibility.' Although hospitals do not practice medicine in the same sense as physicians, they do provide facilities and services in connection with the practice of medicine, and if they are negligent in doing so they can be held liable. Here, defendant hospital implicitly recognized that point when it requested, and the trial court gave, this jury instruction: 'A hospital must provide procedures, policies, facilities, supplies, and qualified personnel reasonably necessary for the treatment of its patients.' " (Leung v. Verdugo Hills Hospital (2012) 55 Cal.4th 291, 310 [145 Cal.Rptr.3d 553, 282 P.3d 1250].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1120

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 2(II)-I, Negligence Liability Based On Omission To Act—Legal Duty Arising From "Special Relationship", ¶¶ 2:1898–2:1925 (The Rutter Group)

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 3-F, MICRA Provisions Affecting Damages, ¶¶ 3:282.11c, 3:282.11d (The Rutter Group)

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) §§ 9.55–9.64

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, § 31.81 (Matthew Bender)

25 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 295, Hospitals, § 295.13 (Matthew Bender)

515. Duty of Hospital to Provide Safe Environment

If [name of defendant hospital] knew or reasonably should have known it was likely that [name of patient] would harm [himself/herself/nonbinary pronoun/another], then [name of defendant hospital] had to use reasonable care to prevent such harm.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

Always read CACI No. 514, Duty of Hospital, in conjunction with this instruction.

Sources and Authority

- "When a patient is admitted into the care of a hospital, the hospital must exercise reasonable care to protect that patient from harm." (Walker v. Sonora Regional Medical Center (2012) 202 Cal.App.4th 948, 959 [135 Cal.Rptr.3d 876].)
- "[T]he duty extends to safeguarding the patient from dangers due to mental incapacity; and where the hospital has notice or knowledge of facts from which it might reasonably be concluded that a patient would be likely to harm himself or others unless preclusive measures were taken, then the hospital must use reasonable care in the circumstances to prevent such harm." (Vistica v. Presbyterian Hospital & Medical Center, Inc. (1967) 67 Cal.2d 465, 469 [62 Cal.Rptr. 577, 432 P.2d 193].)
- "If those charged with the care and treatment of a mentally disturbed patient know of facts from which they could reasonably conclude that the patient would be likely to harm himself in the absence of preclusive measures, then they must use reasonable care under the circumstances to prevent such harm." (Meier v. Ross General Hospital (1968) 69 Cal.2d 420, 424 [71 Cal.Rptr. 903, 445 P.2d 519].)
- "A rule more fitting to the facts of this case is expressed in Wood v. Samaritan Institution (1945) 26 Cal.2d 847 [161 P.2d 556], where the California Supreme Court held hospitals have a duty to be especially protective of their alcoholic patients." (Emerick v. Raleigh Hills Hospital (1982) 133 Cal.App.3d 575, 581 [184 Cal.Rptr. 92].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1120–1123

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) §§ 9.55–9.62

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, § 31.81 (Matthew Bender)

25 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 295, Hospitals, § 295.13 (Matthew Bender)

516. Duty of Hospital to Screen Medical Staff

A hospital is negligent if it does not use reasonable care to select and periodically evaluate its medical staff so that its patients are provided adequate medical care.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

Always read CACI No. 514, Duty of Hospital, in conjunction with this instruction.

Sources and Authority

- "[W]e hold a hospital is accountable for negligently screening the competency of its medical staff to insure the adequacy of medical care rendered to patients at its facility." (Elam v. College Park Hospital (1982) 132 Cal.App.3d 332, 346 [183 Cal.Rptr. 156].)
- "[A] hospital generally owes a duty to screen the competency of its medical staff and to evaluate the quality of medical treatment rendered on its premises. Thus, a hospital could be found liable for injury to a patient caused by the hospital's negligent failure 'to insure the competence of its medical staff through careful selection and review,' thereby creating an unreasonable risk of harm to the patient." (Walker v. Sonora Regional Medical Center (2012) 202 Cal.App.4th 948, 959–960 [135 Cal.Rptr.3d 876], internal citation omitted.)
- "The hospital has 'a direct and independent responsibility to its patients of insuring the competency of its medical staff and the quality of medical care provided . . . .' [Citation.] Hospitals must be able to establish high standards of professional work and to maintain those standards through careful selection and review of staff. And they are required to do so by both state and federal law. [Citations.]" (Rhee v. El Camino Hospital Dist. (1988) 201 Cal.App.3d 477, 489 [247 Cal.Rptr. 244].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1120–1123

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) §§ 9.55–9.62

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, § 31.81 (Matthew Bender)

25 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 295, Hospitals, § 295.13 (Matthew Bender)

517. Affirmative Defense—Patient's Duty to Provide for the Patient's Own Well-Being

---

A patient must use reasonable care to provide for the patient's own well-being. This includes a responsibility to [follow [a/an] [insert type of medical practitioner]'s instructions/seek medical assistance] when a reasonable person in the same situation would do so.

[*Name of defendant] claims that [name of plaintiff]'s harm was caused, in whole or in part, by [name of plaintiff]'s negligence in failing to [follow [name of defendant]'s instructions/seek medical assistance]. To succeed, [name of defendant] must prove both of the following:

1. That [name of plaintiff] did not use reasonable care in [following [name of defendant]'s instructions/seeking medical assistance]; and
2. That [name of plaintiff]'s failure to [follow [name of defendant]'s instructions/seek medical assistance] was a substantial factor in causing [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] harm.

New September 2003; Revised December 2015, May 2020

Directions for Use

Read this instruction in conjunction with basic comparative fault and damages instructions (CACI Nos. 405, 406, 407).

The defendant has the burden of proving that the plaintiff was comparatively negligent and that this negligence was a cause of the harm. (Pfeifer v. John Crane, Inc. (2013) 220 Cal.App.4th 1270, 1285 [164 Cal.Rptr.3d 112].)

Sources and Authority

- "It is error for a trial court to charge the jury with regard to contributory negligence [for failure to follow doctor's advice] when there is no expert testimony the plaintiff was negligent." (Bolen v. Woo (1979) 96 Cal.App.3d 944, 952 [158 Cal.Rptr. 454].)
- "[I]t is error in medical malpractice cases to [instruct on contributory negligence] in the absence of some evidence that the injured patient's acts or omissions were a proximate cause of the harm sustained." (LeMons v. Regents of University of California (1978) 21 Cal.3d 869, 875 [148 Cal.Rptr. 355, 582 P.2d 946].)
- "Unquestionably the jury must have considered whether the attitude of respondent was one of refusal to follow the advice of his physicians or was, because of his extended experience, one of justifiable fear of want of their skill. Whether such delays under the circumstances were those of a reasonably prudent person determines the right of respondent to recover all of the special damages, and the implied finding was that respondent was not arbitrary in not promptly acceding to each suggestion of an operation." (Dodds v. Stellar (1946) 77 Cal.App.2d 411, 422 [175 P.2d 607].)

- "Negligence, in fact, may often explain why the patient, to begin with, needed and sought out the physician's assistance. The health care professional, in this instance, takes the patient as he finds him. Other than in very rare cases, the only legitimate application of the doctrine of contributory fault is when it takes place concurrently with or after the delivery of the practitioner's care and treatment." (Harb v. City of Bakersfield (2015) 233 Cal.App.4th 606, 632 [183 Cal.Rptr.3d 59].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1798

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 9.66

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, § 31.61 (Matthew Bender)

25 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 295, Hospitals, § 295.14 (Matthew Bender)

518. Medical Malpractice: Res ipsa loquitur

[Name of plaintiff] may prove that [name of defendant]'s negligence caused [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] harm if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] proves all of the following:

1. That [name of plaintiff]'s harm ordinarily would not have occurred unless someone was negligent; [In deciding this issue, you must consider [only] the testimony of the expert witnesses.]
2. That the harm occurred while [name of plaintiff] was under the care and control of [name of defendant]; and
3. That [name of plaintiff]'s voluntary actions did not cause or contribute to the event[s] that harmed [him/her/nonbinary pronoun].

If you decide that [name of plaintiff] did not prove one or more of these three things, then you must decide whether [name of defendant] was negligent in light of the other instructions I have read.

If you decide that [name of plaintiff] proved all of these three things, you may, but are not required to, find that [name of defendant] was negligent or that [name of defendant]'s negligence was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm, or both.

[Name of defendant] contends that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] was not negligent or that [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] negligence, if any, did not cause [name of plaintiff] harm. If after weighing all of the evidence you believe that it is more probable than not that [name of defendant] was negligent and that [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] negligence was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm, you must decide in favor of [name of plaintiff]. Otherwise, you must decide in favor of [name of defendant].

New September 2003; Revised December 2011

Directions for Use

The first paragraph of this instruction sets forth the three elements of res ipsa loquitur. The bracketed sentence in element 1 should be read only if expert testimony is introduced. The word "only" within that sentence is to be used if the court has determined that the issue of the defendant's negligence involves matters beyond common knowledge.

The second paragraph explains that if the plaintiff fails to establish res ipsa loquitur as a presumption, the jury may still find for the plaintiff if it finds based on its consideration of all of the evidence that the defendant was negligent. (See Howe v.

Seven Forty Two Co., Inc. (2010) 189 Cal.App.4th 1155, 1163–1164 [117 Cal.Rptr.3d 126].)

If the plaintiff has established the three conditions that give rise to the doctrine, the jury is required to find that the accident resulted from the defendant's negligence unless the defendant comes forward with evidence that would support a contrary finding. (See Cal. Law Revision Com. comment to Evid. Code, § 646.) The last two paragraphs of the instruction assume that the defendant has presented evidence that would support a finding that the defendant was not negligent or that any negligence on the defendant's part was not a proximate cause of the accident. In this case, the presumption drops out, and the plaintiff must then prove the elements of negligence without the benefit of the presumption of res ipsa loquitur. (See Howe, supra, 189 Cal.App.4th at pp. 1163–1164; see also Evid. Code, § 646(c).)

Sources and Authority

- Res ipsa loquitur. Evidence Code section 646(c).
- Presumption Affecting Burden of Producing Evidence. Evidence Code section 604.
- "In California, the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur is defined by statute as 'a presumption affecting the burden of producing evidence.' The presumption arises when the evidence satisfies three conditions: ' "(1) the accident must be of a kind which ordinarily does not occur in the absence of someone's negligence; (2) it must be caused by an agency or instrumentality within the exclusive control of the defendant; (3) it must not have been due to any voluntary action or contribution on the part of the plaintiff." ' A presumption affecting the burden of producing evidence 'require[s] the trier of fact to assume the existence of the presumed fact' unless the defendant introduces evidence to the contrary. The presumed fact, in this context, is that 'a proximate cause of the occurrence was some negligent conduct on the part of the defendant. . . .' If the defendant introduces 'evidence which would support a finding that he was not negligent or that any negligence on his part was not a proximate cause of the occurrence,' the trier of fact determines whether defendant was negligent without regard to the presumption, simply by weighing the evidence." (Brown v. Poway Unified School Dist. (1993) 4 Cal.4th 820, 825–826 [15 Cal.Rptr.2d 679, 843 P.2d 624], internal citations omitted.)
- " 'The doctrine of res ipsa loquitur is applicable where the accident is of such a nature that it can be said, in the light of past experience, that it probably was the result of negligence by someone and that the defendant is probably the one responsible.' " (Howe, supra, 189 Cal.App.4th at p. 1161.)
- "Res ipsa loquitur is an evidentiary rule for 'determining whether circumstantial evidence of negligence is sufficient.' " (Howe, supra, 189 Cal.App.4th at p. 1161, internal citation omitted.)
- The doctrine "is based on a theory of 'probability' where there is no direct evidence of defendant's conduct, permitting a common sense inference of negligence from the happening of the accident." (Gicking v. Kimberlin (1985) 170 Cal.App.3d 73, 75 [215 Cal.Rptr. 834].)

- "All of the cases hold, in effect, that it must appear, either as a matter of common experience or from evidence in the case, that the accident is of a type which probably would not happen unless someone was negligent." (Zentz v. Coca Cola Bottling Co. of Fresno (1952) 39 Cal.2d 436, 442–443 [247 P.2d 344].)
- "In determining the applicability of res ipsa loquitur, courts have relied on both expert testimony and common knowledge. The standard of care in a professional negligence case can be proved only by expert testimony unless the conduct required by the particular circumstances is within the common knowledge of the layperson." (Blackwell v. Hurst (1996) 46 Cal.App.4th 939, 943 [54 Cal.Rptr.2d 209], internal citations omitted.)
- "Under the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur and this common knowledge exception, it is proper to instruct the jury that it can infer negligence from the happening of the accident itself, if it finds based on common knowledge, the testimony of physicians called as expert witnesses, and all the circumstances, that the injury was more likely than not the result of negligence." (Gannon v. Elliot (1993) 19 Cal.App.4th 1, 6 [23 Cal.Rptr.2d 86], internal citation omitted.)
- "The fact that a particular injury rarely occurs does not in itself justify an inference of negligence unless some other evidence indicates negligence. To justify res ipsa loquitur instructions, appellant must have produced sufficient evidence to permit the jury to make the necessary decision. He must have presented 'some substantial evidence which, if believed by the jury, would entitle it to draw an inference of negligence from the happening of the accident itself.' " (Blackwell, supra, 46 Cal.App.4th at p. 944, internal citations omitted.)
- The purpose of the second "control" requirement is to "link the defendant with the probability, already established, that the accident was negligently caused." (Newing v. Cheatham (1975) 15 Cal.3d 351, 362 [124 Cal.Rptr. 193, 540 P.2d 33].) The control requirement is not absolute. (Zentz, supra, 39 Cal.2d at p. 443.)
- "The purpose of [the third] requirement, like that of control by the defendant is to establish that the defendant is the one probably responsible for the accident. The plaintiff need not show that he was entirely inactive at the time of the accident in order to satisfy this requirement, so long as the evidence is such as to eliminate his conduct as a factor contributing to the occurrence." (Newing, supra, 15 Cal.3d at p. 363, internal citations omitted.)
- The third condition "should not be confused with the problem of contributory negligence, as to which defendant has the burden of proof. . . . [I]ts purpose, like that of control by the defendant, is merely to assist the court in determining whether it is more probable than not that the defendant was responsible for the accident." (Zentz, supra, 39 Cal.2d at p. 444.)
- "[Evidence Code section 646] . . . classified the doctrine as a presumption affecting the burden of producing evidence. Under that classification, when the predicate facts are established to give rise to the presumption, the burden of producing evidence to rebut it shifts to the defendant to prove lack of negligence or lack of proximate cause that the injury claimed was the result of that negligence. As a presumption affecting the burden of producing evidence (as distinguished from a presumption affecting the burden of proof), if evidence is presented to rebut the presumed fact, the presumption is out of the case—it 'disappears.' But if no such evidence is submitted, the trier of fact must find the presumed fact to be established." (Howe, supra, 189 Cal.App.4th at p. 1162.)

- " 'If evidence is produced that would support a finding that the defendant was not negligent or that any negligence on his part was not a proximate cause of the accident, the presumptive effect of the doctrine vanishes.' '[T]he mere introduction of evidence sufficient to sustain a finding of the nonexistence of the presumed fact causes the presumption, as a matter of law, to disappear.' When the presumptive effect vanishes, it is the plaintiff's burden to introduce actual evidence that would show that the defendant is negligent and that such negligence was the proximate cause of the accident." (Howe, supra, 189 Cal.App.4th at p. 1163, internal citations omitted.)
- "As the [Law Revision Commission] Comment [to Evidence Code section 646] explains, even though the presumptive effect of the doctrine vanishes, 'the jury may still be able to draw an inference that the accident was caused by the defendant's lack of due care from the facts that gave rise to the presumption. . . . [¶] . . . [¶] . . . An inference of negligence may well be warranted from all of the evidence in the case even though the plaintiff fails to establish all the elements of res ipsa loquitur. In appropriate cases, therefore, the jury may be instructed that, even though it does not find that the facts giving rise to the presumption have been proved by a preponderance of the evidence, it may nevertheless find the defendant negligent if it concludes from a consideration of all the evidence that it is more probable than not that the defendant was negligent.' " (Howe, supra, 189 Cal.App.4th at p. 1163, internal citation omitted.)
- "It follows that where part of the facts basic to the application of the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur is established as a matter of law but that others are not, the court should instruct that application of the doctrine by the jury depends only upon the existence of the basic facts not conclusively established." (Rimmele v. Northridge Hosp. Foundation (1975) 46 Cal.App.3d 123, 130 [120 Cal.Rptr. 39].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, California Evidence (5th ed. 2012) Burden of Proof and Presumptions, §§ 116–120

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, § 31.32 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical

Malpractice, § 415.11[2] (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 175, Physicians and Surgeons, § 175.50 (Matthew Bender)

519–530. Reserved for Future Use

530A. Medical Battery

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] committed a medical battery. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. [That [name of defendant] performed a medical procedure without [name of plaintiff]'s consent; [or]]

   [That [name of plaintiff] consented to one medical procedure, but [name of defendant] performed a substantially different medical procedure;]

2. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and

3. That [name of defendant]'s conduct was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

A patient can consent to a medical procedure by words or conduct.

Derived from former CACI No. 530 April 2007; Revised October 2008

Directions for Use

Select either or both of the two bracketed options in the first element depending on the nature of the case. In a case of a conditional consent in which it is alleged that the defendant proceeded without the condition having occurred, give CACI No. 530B, Medical Battery—Conditional Consent.

Sources and Authority

- "The California Supreme Court has described the right to consent to medical treatment as ' "basic and fundamental," ' 'intensely individual,' and 'broadly based.' The same court has also emphasized that excusing the patient from a judicial proceeding regarding a surgery to be performed over his objection 'denie[s] fundamental due process.' It is immaterial that a doctor has said the treatment is required to save the patient's life. Rather, ' "A doctor might well believe that an operation or form of treatment is desirable or necessary, but the law does not permit him to substitute his own judgment for that of the patient by any form of artifice or deception." ' Finally, the patient's reasons for refusing are irrelevant. 'For self-determination to have any meaning, it cannot be subject to the scrutiny of anyone else's conscience or sensibilities.' " (Stewart v. Superior Court (2017) 16 Cal.App.5th 87, 105 [224 Cal.Rptr.3d 219], internal citations omitted.)
- Battery may also be found if a substantially different procedure is performed: "Where a doctor obtains consent of the patient to perform one type of treatment and subsequently performs a substantially different treatment for which consent was not obtained, there is a clear case of battery." (Cobbs v. Grant (1972) 8

Cal.3d 229, 239 [104 Cal.Rptr. 505, 502 P.2d 1].)

- "The battery theory should be reserved for those circumstances when a doctor performs an operation to which the patient has not consented. When the patient gives permission to perform one type of treatment and the doctor performs another, the requisite element of deliberate intent to deviate from the consent given is present. However, when the patient consents to certain treatment and the doctor performs that treatment but an undisclosed inherent complication with a low probability occurs, no intentional deviation from the consent given appears; rather, the doctor in obtaining consent may have failed to meet his due care duty to disclose pertinent information. In that situation the action should be pleaded in negligence." (Cobbs, supra, 8 Cal.3d at p. 240.)
- "Our high court has made it clear that battery and lack of informed consent are separate causes of action. A claim based on lack of informed consent—which sounds in negligence—arises when the doctor performs a procedure without first adequately disclosing the risks and alternatives. In contrast, a battery is an intentional tort that occurs when a doctor performs a procedure without obtaining any consent." (Saxena v. Goffney (2008) 159 Cal.App.4th 316, 324 [71 Cal.Rptr.3d 469].)
- "Confusion may arise in the area of 'exceeding a patient's consent.' In cases where a doctor exceeds the consent and such excess surgery is found necessary due to conditions arising during an operation which endanger the patient's health or life, the consent is presumed. The surgery necessitated is proper (though exceeding specific consent) on the theory of assumed consent, were the patient made aware of the additional need." (Pedesky v. Bleiberg (1967) 251 Cal.App.2d 119, 123 [59 Cal.Rptr. 294].)
- "Consent to medical care, including surgery, may be express or may be implied from the circumstances." (Bradford v. Winter (1963) 215 Cal.App.2d 448, 454 [30 Cal.Rptr. 243].)
- "It is elemental that consent may be manifested by acts or conduct and need not necessarily be shown by a writing or by express words." (Kritzer v. Citron (1950) 101 Cal.App.2d 33, 38–39 [224 P.2d 808].)
- "[T]he reason why CACI No. 530B has an explicit intent and knowledge requirement and CACI No. 530A does not is clear. The law presumes that '[w]hen the patient gives permission to perform one type of treatment and the doctor performs another, the requisite element of deliberate intent to deviate from the consent given is present.' That situation is covered by CACI No. 530A." (Dennis v. Southard (2009) 174 Cal.App.4th 540, 544 [94 Cal.Rptr.3d 559], internal citation omitted.)
- "In the absence of any definitive case law establishing whether operating on the wrong disk within inches of the correct disk is a 'substantially different procedure,' we conclude the matter is a factual question for a finder of fact to decide and at least in this instance, not one capable of being decided on demurrer." (Kaplan v. Mamelak (2008) 162 Cal.App.4th 637, 647 [75 Cal.Rptr.3d 861.)

- "Although . . . consent to surgery necessarily encompasses consent to postoperative care, not all postoperative contact between doctor and patient constitutes care. The question of the nature of the contact between plaintiff and [defendant], and whether that contact was within the scope of plaintiff's consent, is a factual question for a finder of fact to decide." (So v. Shin (2013) 212 Cal.App.4th 652, 669 [151 Cal.Rptr.3d 257], original italics.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 459–1635

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 3-E, Punitive Damages, ¶ 3:1394 (The Rutter Group)

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 3-F, MICRA Provisions Affecting Damages, ¶ 3:1883–3:1885 (The Rutter Group)

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) §§ 9.11–9.16

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, § 31.41, Ch. 41, Assault and Battery, § 41.01 (Matthew Bender)

6 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 58, Assault and Battery, § 58.14 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice, §§ 415.13, 415.20 (Matthew Bender)

2 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 21, Assault and Battery, § 21.20 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 175, Physicians and Surgeons: Medical Malpractice, § 175.28 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

33 California Legal Forms, Ch. 104, Health Care Transactions, Consents, and Directives, § 104.11 (Matthew Bender)

530B. Medical Battery—Conditional Consent

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] committed a medical battery. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of plaintiff] consented to a medical procedure, but only on the condition that [describe what had to occur before consent would be given];
2. That [name of defendant] proceeded without this condition having occurred;
3. That [name of defendant] intended to perform the procedure with knowledge that the condition had not occurred;
4. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
5. That [name of defendant]'s conduct was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

A patient can consent to a medical procedure by words or conduct.

Derived from former CACI No. 530 April 2007; Revised October 2008

Directions for Use

Give this instruction in a case of a conditional consent in which it is alleged that the defendant proceeded without the condition having occurred. If the claim is that the defendant proceeded without any consent or deviated from the consent given, give CACI No. 530A, Medical Battery.

Sources and Authority

- Battery may also be found if a conditional consent is violated: "[I]t is well recognized a person may place conditions on the consent. If the actor exceeds the terms or conditions of the consent, the consent does not protect the actor from liability for the excessive act." (Ashcraft v. King (1991) 228 Cal.App.3d 604, 610 [278 Cal.Rptr. 900].)
- Battery is an intentional tort. Therefore, a claim for battery against a doctor as a violation of conditional consent requires proof that the doctor intentionally violated the condition placed on the patient's consent. (Piedra v. Dugan (2004) 123 Cal.App.4th 1483, 1498 [21 Cal.Rptr.3d 36], internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]he reason why CACI No. 530B has an explicit intent and knowledge requirement and CACI No. 530A does not is clear. The law presumes that '[w]hen the patient gives permission to perform one type of treatment and the doctor performs another, the requisite element of deliberate intent to deviate from the consent given is present.' That situation is covered by CACI No. 530A.

On the other hand, in a case involving conditional consent, the requisite element of deliberate intent to deviate from the consent given cannot be presumed simply from the act itself. This is because if the intent element is not explicitly stated in the instruction, it would be possible for a jury (incorrectly) to find a doctor liable for medical battery even if it believed the doctor negligently forgot about the condition precedent." (Dennis v. Southard (2009) 174 Cal.App.4th 540, 544 [94 Cal.Rptr.3d 559], internal citation omitted.)

- "Our high court has made it clear that battery and lack of informed consent are separate causes of action. A claim based on lack of informed consent—which sounds in negligence—arises when the doctor performs a procedure without first adequately disclosing the risks and alternatives. In contrast, a battery is an intentional tort that occurs when a doctor performs a procedure without obtaining any consent." (Saxena v. Goffney (2008) 159 Cal.App.4th 316, 324 [71 Cal.Rptr.3d 469].)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 459–740

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) §§ 9.11–9.16

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, § 31.41, Ch. 41, Assault and Battery, § 41.01 (Matthew Bender)

6 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 58, Assault and Battery, § 58.14 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice, §§ 415.13, 415.20 (Matthew Bender)

2 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 21, Assault and Battery, § 21.25 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 175, Physicians and Surgeons: Medical Malpractice, § 175.28 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

33 California Legal Forms, Ch. 104, Health Care Transactions, Consents, and Directives, § 104.11 (Matthew Bender)

531. Consent on Behalf of Another

In this case [*name of patient] could not consent to the [insert medical procedure] because [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was [insert reason—e.g., a minor/incompetent/unconscious]. In this situation, the law allows [name of authorized person] to give consent on behalf of [name of patient].

You must decide whether [*name of authorized person] consented to the [insert medical procedure] performed on [name of patient].

New September 2003

Sources and Authority

- Parent Delegation of Right to Authorize Medical Care. Family Code section 6910.
- "If the patient is a minor or incompetent, the authority to consent is transferred to the patient's legal guardian or closest available relative." (Cobbs v. Grant (1972) 8 Cal.3d 229, 244 [104 Cal.Rptr. 505, 502 P.2d 1]; Farber v. Olkon (1953) 40 Cal.2d 503, 509 [254 P.2d 520].)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 460, 463

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 9.16

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, § 31.14 (Matthew Bender)

6 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 58, Assault and Battery, § 58.14

32 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 365, Minors: Contract Actions, § 365.13; Ch. 366, Minors: Court Consent for Medical Care or Enlistment, § 366.10 (Matthew Bender)

34 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 394, Parent and Child, § 394.54 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice, § 415.13 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Legal Forms, Ch. 104, Health Care Transactions, Consents, and Directives, § 104.11 (Matthew Bender)

532. Informed Consent—Definition

A patient's consent to a medical procedure must be "informed." A patient gives an "informed consent" only after the [*insert type of medical practitioner] has adequately explained the proposed treatment or procedure.

[A/An] [*insert type of medical practitioner] must explain the likelihood of success and the risks of agreeing to a medical procedure in language that the patient can understand. [A/An] [insert type of medical practitioner] must give the patient as much information as [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] needs to make an informed decision, including any risk that a reasonable person would consider important in deciding to have the proposed treatment or procedure, and any other information skilled practitioners would disclose to the patient under the same or similar circumstances. The patient must be told about any risk of death or serious injury or significant potential complications that may occur if the procedure is performed. [A/An] [insert type of medical practitioner] is not required to explain minor risks that are not likely to occur.

New September 2003; Revised December 2005, October 2008, June 2014

Directions for Use

This instruction should be read in conjunction with CACI No. 533, Failure to Obtain Informed Consent—Essential Factual Elements. Do not give this instruction with CACI No. 530A, Medical Battery, or CACI No. 530B, Medical Battery—Conditional Consent. (See Saxena v. Goffney (2008) 159 Cal.App.4th 316, 324 [71 Cal.Rptr.3d 469].)

If the patient is a minor or is incapacitated, tailor the instruction accordingly. If a medical practitioner knows or should know of a patient's unique concerns or lack of familiarity with medical procedures, this knowledge may expand the scope of required disclosures and require additional instructional language. (See Truman v. Thomas (1980) 27 Cal.3d 285, 291 [165 Cal.Rptr. 308, 611 P.2d 902].)

Also, see CACI No. 531, Consent on Behalf of Another.

Sources and Authority

- "From the foregoing axiomatic ingredients emerges a necessity, and a resultant requirement, for divulgence by the physician to his patient of all information relevant to a meaningful decisional process." (Cobbs v. Grant (1972) 8 Cal.3d 229, 242 [104 Cal.Rptr. 505, 502 P.2d 1].)
- " '[A] physician has a fiduciary duty to disclose all information material to the patient's decision,' when soliciting a patient's consent to a medical procedure. A cause of action premised on a physician's breach of this fiduciary duty may alternatively be referred to as a claim for lack of informed consent." (Jameson v. Desta (2013) 215 Cal.App.4th 1144, 1164 [155 Cal.Rptr.3d 755], internal citations omitted.)

- "When a doctor recommends a particular procedure then he or she must disclose to the patient all material information necessary to the decision to undergo the procedure, including a reasonable explanation of the procedure, its likelihood of success, the risks involved in accepting or rejecting the proposed procedure, and any other information a skilled practitioner in good standing would disclose to the patient under the same or similar circumstances." (Mathis v. Morrissey (1992) 11 Cal.App.4th 332, 343 [13 Cal.Rptr.2d 819].)
- "A physician has a duty to inform a patient in lay terms of the dangers inherently and potentially involved in a proposed treatment." (McKinney v. Nash (1981) 120 Cal.App.3d 428, 440 [174 Cal.Rptr. 642].)
- "First, a physician must disclose to the patient the potential of death, serious harm, and other complications associated with a proposed procedure. Second, '[b]eyond the foregoing minimal disclosure, a doctor must also reveal to his patient such additional information as a skilled practitioner of good standing would provide under similar circumstances.' " (Cobbs, supra, 8 Cal.3d at p. 244, internal citations omitted.)
- "Material information is that which the physician knows or should know would be regarded as significant by a reasonable person in the patient's position when deciding to accept or reject the recommended medical procedure. To be material, a fact must also be one which is not commonly appreciated. If the physician knows or should know of a patient's unique concerns or lack of familiarity with medical procedures, this may expand the scope of required disclosure." (Truman, supra, 27 Cal.3d at p. 291, internal citations omitted.)
- "Obviously involved in the equation of materiality are countervailing factors of the seriousness and remoteness of the dangers involved in the medical procedure as well as the risks of a decision not to undergo the procedure." (McKinney, supra, 120 Cal.App.3d at p. 441.)
- "Where a shoulder is injured in an appendectomy, or a clamp is left in the abdomen, expert testimony is not required since the jury is capable of appreciating and evaluating the significance of such events. However, when a doctor relates the facts he has relied upon in support of his decision to operate, and where the facts are not commonly susceptible of comprehension by a lay juror, medical expert opinion is necessary to enable the trier of fact to determine if the circumstances indicated a need for surgery." (Cobbs, supra, 8 Cal.3d at p. 236, internal citations omitted.)
- "We underline the limited and essentially subsidiary role of expert testimony in informed consent litigation. . . . [A] rule that filters the scope of patient disclosure entirely through the standards of the medical community ' "arrogate[s] the decision [of what to disclose] . . . to the physician alone." ' We explicitly rejected such an absolute rule as inimical to the rationale and objectives of the informed consent doctrine; we reaffirm that position. Nevertheless, . . . there may be a limited number of occasions in the trial of informed consent claims where the adequacy of disclosure in a given case may turn on the standard of practice within the relevant medical community. In such instances, expert testimony will usually be appropriate." (Arato v. Avedon (1993) 5 Cal.4th 1172, 1191 [23 Cal.Rptr.2d 131, 858 P.2d 598], internal citation omitted.)

- "[A] physician must disclose personal interests unrelated to the patient's health, whether research or economic, that may affect the physician's professional judgment." (Moore v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1990) 51 Cal.3d 120, 129 [271 Cal.Rptr. 146, 793 P.2d 479], cert. denied, 499 U.S. 936 (1991).)
- "While . . . there is no general duty of disclosure with respect to nonrecommended procedures, we do not conclude . . . that there can never be such a duty. In an appropriate case there may be evidence that would support the conclusion that a doctor should have disclosed information concerning a nonrecommended procedure." (Vandi v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1992) 7 Cal.App.4th 1064, 1071 [9 Cal.Rptr.2d 463].)
- "Our high court has made it clear that battery and lack of informed consent are separate causes of action. A claim based on lack of informed consent—which sounds in negligence—arises when the doctor performs a procedure without first adequately disclosing the risks and alternatives. In contrast, a battery is an intentional tort that occurs when a doctor performs a procedure without obtaining any consent." (Saxena, supra, 159 Cal.App.4th at p. 324.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 466, 471

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 9.11

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, § 31.41 (Matthew Bender)

6 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 58, Assault and Battery, § 58.14 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice, §§ 415.13, 415.20 (Matthew Bender)

2 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 21, Assault and Battery, § 21.20 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 175, Physicians and Surgeons: Medical Malpractice, § 175.28 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Legal Forms, Ch. 104, Health Care Transactions, Consents, and Directives, § 104.11 (Matthew Bender)

533. Failure to Obtain Informed Consent—Essential Factual Elements

---

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] was negligent because [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] performed [a/an] [insert medical procedure] on [name of plaintiff] without first obtaining [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] informed consent. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] performed [a/an] [insert medical procedure] on [name of plaintiff];
2. That [name of defendant] did not disclose to [name of plaintiff] the important potential results and risks of[and alternatives to] the [insert medical procedure];
3. That a reasonable person in [name of plaintiff]'s position would not have agreed to the [insert medical procedure] if that person had been adequately informed; and
4. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed by a result or risk that [name of defendant] should have explained.

New September 2003; Revised June 2014, May 2020

Directions for Use

This instruction should be read in conjunction with CACI No. 532, Informed Consent—Definition. See also the Directions for Use and Sources and Authority to that instruction.

If the patient is a minor or is incapacitated, tailor the instruction accordingly.

Also, see CACI No. 531, Consent on Behalf of Another.

Sources and Authority

- "[W]hen there is a more complicated procedure, . . . the jury should be instructed that when a given procedure inherently involves a known risk of death or serious bodily harm, a medical doctor has a duty to disclose to his patient the potential of death or serious harm, and to explain in lay terms the complications that might possibly occur. Beyond the foregoing minimal disclosure, a doctor must also reveal to his patient such additional information as a skilled practitioner of good standing would provide under similar circumstances." (Cobbs v. Grant (1972) 8 Cal.3d 229, 244–245 [104 Cal.Rptr. 505, 502 P.2d 1], internal citations omitted.)
- "There must be a causal relationship between the physician's failure to inform and the injury to the plaintiff. Such causal connection arises only if it is established that had revelation been made consent to treatment would not have been given." (Cobbs, supra, 8 Cal.3d at p. 245.)

- "[T]he 'burden of going forward' is different from the 'burden of proof,' and the burden of proof always remains with the plaintiff. Indeed, the only time the burden of proof on informed consent shifts to the defendant-physician is after the plaintiff has carried her burden of showing the nondisclosure of material information and when the defendant-physician is attempting to prove that 'even though a reasonably prudent person might not have undergone the procedure if properly informed of the perils, this particular plaintiff still would have consented to the procedure.' " (Flores v. Liu (2021) 60 Cal.App.5th 278, 298 [274 Cal.Rptr.3d 444], original italics, internal citations omitted.)
- "[E]ven though a physician has no general duty of disclosure with respect to nonrecommended procedures, he nevertheless must make such disclosures as are required for competent practice within the medical community." (Vandi v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1992) 7 Cal.App.4th 1064, 1071 [9 Cal.Rptr.2d 463].)
- "The patient-plaintiff may testify on this subject but the issue extends beyond his credibility. Since at the time of trial the uncommunicated hazard has materialized, it would be surprising if the patient-plaintiff did not claim that had he been informed of the dangers he would have declined treatment. Subjectively he may believe so, with the 20/20 vision of hindsight, but we doubt that justice will be served by placing the physician in jeopardy of the patient's bitterness and disillusionment. Thus an objective test is preferable: i.e., what would a prudent person in the patient's position have decided if adequately informed of all significant perils." (Cobbs, supra, 8 Cal.3d at p. 245.)
- "[T]he objective test required of the plaintiff does not prevent the defendant-physician from showing, by way of defense, that even though a reasonably prudent person might not have undergone the procedure if properly informed of the perils, this particular plaintiff still would have consented to the procedure." (Warren v. Schecter (1997) 57 Cal.App.4th 1189, 1206 [67 Cal.Rptr.2d 573], original italics.)
- "[A]n action for failure to obtain informed consent lies where 'an undisclosed inherent complication . . . occurs,' not where a disclosed complication occurs." (Warren, supra, 57 Cal.App.4th at p. 1202, original italics, internal citation omitted.)
- "[Plaintiff] is entitled to recover not only for the undisclosed complications, but also for the disclosed complications, because she would not have consented to either surgery had the true risk been disclosed, and therefore would not have suffered either category of complications." (Warren, supra, 57 Cal.App.4th at p. 1195.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 466, 471

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 9.11

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, § 31.14 (Matthew Bender)

6 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 58, Assault and Battery, § 58.14 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice, § 415.13 (Matthew Bender)

2 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 21, Assault and Battery, § 21.23 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 175, Physicians and Surgeons, §§ 175.23, 175.29 (Matthew Bender)

534. Informed Refusal—Definition

[A/An] [*insert type of medical practitioner] must explain the risks of refusing a procedure in language that the patient can understand and give the patient as much information as [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] needs to make an informed decision, including any risk that a reasonable person would consider important in deciding not to have [a/an] [insert medical procedure]. The patient must be told about any risk of death or serious injury or significant potential complications that may occur if the procedure is refused. [A/An] [insert type of medical practitioner] is not required to explain minor risks that are not likely to occur.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This instruction should be read in conjunction with CACI No. 535, Risks of Nontreatment—Essential Factual Elements.

If the patient is a minor or is incapacitated, tailor the instruction accordingly.

Also, see CACI No. 531, Consent on Behalf of Another.

Sources and Authority

- The definition of "informed consent" in Cobbs v. Grant (1972) 8 Cal.3d 229 [104 Cal.Rptr. 505, 502 P.2d 1] applies "whether the procedure involves treatment or a diagnostic test." (Truman v. Thomas (1980) 27 Cal.3d 285, 292 [165 Cal.Rptr. 308, 611 P.2d 902].)
- In Truman, "the high court extended the duty to make disclosure to include recommended diagnostic as well as therapeutic procedures and to include situations in which the patient declines the recommended procedure." (Vandi v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1992) 7 Cal.App.4th 1064, 1069 [9 Cal.Rptr.2d 463].) This has been termed the "informed refusal" doctrine. (Townsend v. Turk (1990) 218 Cal.App.3d 278, 284 [266 Cal.Rptr. 821].)
- "In a nutshell, a doctor has a duty to disclose all material information to his patient which will enable that patient to make an informed decision regarding the taking or refusal to take such a test." (Moore v. Preventive Medicine Medical Group, Inc. (1986) 178 Cal.App.3d 728, 736 [223 Cal.Rptr. 859].)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 466, 471, 475, 477, 478, 480, 481

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 9.12

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, § 31.14 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice, § 415.13 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 175, Physicians and Surgeons: Medical Malpractice, § 175.23 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Legal Forms, Ch. 104, Health Care Transactions, Consents, and Directives, § 104.11 (Matthew Bender)

535. Risks of Nontreatment—Essential Factual Elements

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] was negligent because [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] did not adequately inform [name of plaintiff] about the risks of refusing the [insert medical procedure]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] did not perform the [insert medical procedure] on [name of plaintiff];
2. That [name of defendant] did not disclose to [name of plaintiff] the important potential risks of refusing the [insert medical procedure];
3. That a reasonable person in [name of plaintiff]'s position would have agreed to the [insert medical procedure] if that person had been adequately informed about these risks; and
4. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed by the failure to have the [insert medical procedure] performed.

New September 2003; Revised June 2014, May 2020

Directions for Use

This instruction presents the "informed refusal" doctrine. (See Townsend v. Turk (1990) 218 Cal.App.3d 278, 284 [266 Cal.Rptr. 821].) It should be given with CACI No. 534, Informed Refusal—Definition.

If the patient is a minor or is incapacitated, tailor the instruction accordingly.

Also, see CACI No. 531, Consent on Behalf of Another.

Sources and Authority

- "Applying these principles, the court in Cobbs [Cobbs v. Grant (1972) 8 Cal.3d 229, 243 [104 Cal.Rptr. 505, 502 P.2d 1]] stated that a patient must be apprised not only of the 'risks inherent in the procedure [prescribed, but also] the risks of a decision not to undergo the treatment, and the probability of a successful outcome of the treatment.' This rule applies whether the procedure involves treatment or a diagnostic test. On the one hand, a physician recommending a risk-free procedure may safely forego discussion beyond that necessary to conform to competent medical practice and to obtain the patient's consent. If a patient indicates that he or she is going to decline the risk-free test or treatment, then the doctor has the additional duty of advising of all material risks of which a reasonable person would want to be informed before deciding not to undergo the procedure. On the other hand, if the recommended test or treatment is itself risky, then the physician should always explain the potential consequences of declining to follow the recommended course of action." (Truman v. Thomas (1980) 27 Cal.3d 285, 292 [165 Cal.Rptr. 308, 611 P.2d 902], internal citations omitted.)

- "The duty of reasonable disclosure was expanded in Truman v. Thomas [supra]. There, a doctor recommended that his patient undergo a risk-free diagnostic procedure but failed to advise her of the risks involved in the failure to follow his recommendation. The Supreme Court concluded that for a patient to make an informed choice to decline a recommended procedure the patient must be adequately advised of the risks of refusing to undergo the procedure. Thus, the high court extended the duty to make disclosure to include recommended diagnostic as well as therapeutic procedures and to include situations in which the patient declines the recommended procedure." (Vandi v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1992) 7 Cal.App.4th 1064, 1069 [9 Cal.Rptr.2d 463].)
- "In a nutshell, a doctor has a duty to disclose all material information to his patient which will enable that patient to make an informed decision regarding the taking or refusal to take such a test." (Moore v. Preventive Medicine Medical Group, Inc. (1986) 178 Cal.App.3d 728, 736 [223 Cal.Rptr. 859].)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 466, 471, 475, 477, 480, 481

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 9.12

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, § 31.14 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice, § 415.13[2] (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 175, Physicians and Surgeons: Medical Malpractice, § 175.33 (Matthew Bender)

536–549. Reserved for Future Use

550. Affirmative Defense—Plaintiff Would Have Consented

[Name of defendant] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] is not responsible for [name of plaintiff]'s harm because [name of plaintiff] would have consented to the procedure, even if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] had been informed of the risks. To establish this defense, [name of defendant] must prove that had [name of plaintiff] been adequately informed about the risks of the [insert medical procedure], [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] would have consented, even if a reasonable person in [name of plaintiff]'s position might not have consented.

New September 2003; Revised June 2015, May 2020

Directions for Use

Give this instruction if the defendant asserts as an affirmative defense that the plaintiff would have consented (and thereby would have suffered the same harm) had the plaintiff been informed of the risks. This instruction can be modified to cover "informed refusal" cases by redrafting it to state, in substance, that even if the plaintiff had known of the risks of refusal, the plaintiff still would have refused the test.

Sources and Authority

- "Whenever appropriate, the court should instruct the jury on the defenses available to a doctor who has failed to make the disclosure required by law." (Cobbs v. Grant (1972) 8 Cal.3d 229, 245 [104 Cal.Rptr. 505, 502 P.2d 1].)
- "The patient-plaintiff may testify on this subject but the issue extends beyond his credibility. Since at the time of trial the uncommunicated hazard has materialized, it would be surprising if the patient-plaintiff did not claim that had he been informed of the dangers he would have declined treatment. Subjectively he may believe so, with the 20/20 vision of hindsight, but we doubt that justice will be served by placing the physician in jeopardy of the patient's bitterness and disillusionment. Thus an objective test is preferable: i.e., what would a prudent person in the patient's position have decided if adequately informed of all significant perils." (Cobbs, supra, 8 Cal.3d at p. 245.)
- "The prudent person test for causation was established to protect defendant physicians from the unfairness of having a jury consider the issue of proximate cause with the benefit of the '20/20 vision of hindsight . . .' This standard should not be employed to prevent a physician from raising the defense that even given adequate disclosure the injured patient would have made the same decision, regardless of whether a reasonably prudent person would have decided differently if adequately informed." (Truman v. Thomas (1980) 27 Cal.3d 285, 294 fn. 5 [165 Cal. Rptr. 308, 611 P.2d 902].)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 466, 469

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 9.11

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, § 31.14 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice, § 415.13 (Matthew Bender)

551. Affirmative Defense—Waiver

[*Name of defendant] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] did not have to inform [name of patient] of the risks of the [insert medical procedure] because [name of patient] asked not to be told of the risks.

If [*name of defendant] has proved that [name of patient] told [him/her/nonbinary pronoun] that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] did not want to be informed of the risks of the [insert medical procedure], then you must conclude that [name of defendant] was not negligent in failing to inform [name of patient] of the risks.

New September 2003; Revised May 2020

Directions for Use

"Whenever appropriate, the court should instruct the jury on the defenses available to a doctor who has failed to make the disclosure required by law." (Cobbs v. Grant (1972) 8 Cal.3d 229, 245 [104 Cal.Rptr. 505, 502 P.2d 1].) This instruction could be modified to cover "informed refusal" cases by redrafting it to state, in substance, that the plaintiff indicated that the plaintiff did not want to be informed of the risks of refusing the test.

Sources and Authority

- "[A] medical doctor need not make disclosure of risks when the patient requests that he not be so informed." (Cobbs, supra, 8 Cal.3d at p. 245.)
- This defense is considered a "justification." Justification for failure to disclose is an affirmative defense on which the defendant has the burden of proof. (Mathis v. Morrissey (1992) 11 Cal.App.4th 332, 347, fn. 9 [13 Cal.Rptr.2d 819].)
- In Putensen v. Clay Adams, Inc. (1970) 12 Cal.App.3d 1062, 1083–1084 [91 Cal.Rptr. 319], the court held that it was not error for the court to refuse an instruction on informed consent where the evidence showed that the doctor's attempt to explain the medical procedure was prevented by the plaintiff's insistence on remaining ignorant of the risks involved.

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 466, 469

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 9.11

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, § 31.14 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice, § 415.13 (Matthew Bender)

552. Affirmative Defense—Simple Procedure

[*Name of defendant] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] did not have to inform [name of plaintiff] of the risks of [a/an] [insert medical procedure]. [A/An] [insert type of medical practitioner] is not required to tell a patient about the dangers of a simple procedure if it is commonly understood that the dangers are not likely to occur.

If [*name of defendant] has proved that [a/an] [insert medical procedure] is a simple procedure, and that it is commonly understood that any dangers are not likely to occur, then [name of defendant] was not required to inform [name of plaintiff] of the risks.

New September 2003; Revised June 2014

Directions for Use

The court should instruct the jury on the defenses available to a doctor who has failed to make the disclosure required by law. (Cobbs v. Grant (1972) 8 Cal.3d 229, 245 [104 Cal.Rptr. 505, 502 P.2d 1].) This instruction could be modified to cover "informed refusal" cases (see CACI No. 534, Informed Refusal—Definition, and CACI No. 535, Risks of Nontreatment—Essential Factual Elements) by redrafting it to state, in substance, that the risks of refusing the test were commonly understood to be unlikely to occur.

Sources and Authority

- "[D]isclosure need not be made if the procedure is simple and the danger remote and commonly appreciated to be remote." (Cobbs, supra, 8 Cal.3d at p. 245.)
- "[T]here is no physician's duty to discuss the relatively minor risks inherent in common procedures, when it is common knowledge that such risks inherent in the procedure are of very low incidence." (Cobbs, supra, 8 Cal.3d at p. 244.)
- "We note that under our law justification is regarded as an affirmative defense and that the defendant normally bears the burden of proof with respect to affirmative defenses." (Mathis v. Morrissey (1992) 11 Cal.App.4th 332, 347, fn. 9 [13 Cal.Rptr.2d 819].)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 466, 469

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 9.11

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, § 31.14 (Matthew Bender)

6 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 58, Assault and Battery, § 58.14 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical

Malpractice, § 415.13 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Legal Forms, Ch. 104, Health Care Transactions, Consents, and Directives, § 104.11 (Matthew Bender)

553. Affirmative Defense—Emotional State of Patient

[Name of defendant] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] did not have to inform [name of plaintiff] of the risks of the [insert medical procedure]. [A/An] [insert type of medical practitioner] does not have to provide information about risks if the information will so seriously upset the patient that the patient will not be able to reasonably consider the risks of refusing to have the medical procedure.

If [name of defendant] has proved that [name of plaintiff] would have been so seriously upset by being told of the risks that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] would not have been able to reasonably consider the risks of refusing to have the [insert medical procedure], then [name of defendant] was not required to inform [name of plaintiff] of the risks.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

"Whenever appropriate, the court should instruct the jury on the defenses available to a doctor who has failed to make the disclosure required by law." (Cobbs v. Grant (1972) 8 Cal.3d 229, 245 [104 Cal.Rptr. 505, 502 P.2d 1].) This instruction could be modified to cover "informed refusal" cases by redrafting it to state, in substance, that the information regarding the risks of refusing the test would have seriously upset the patient.

Sources and Authority

- "A disclosure need not be made beyond that required within the medical community when a doctor can prove by a preponderance of the evidence he relied upon facts which would demonstrate to a reasonable man the disclosure would have so seriously upset the patient that the patient would not have been able to dispassionately weigh the risks of refusing to undergo the recommended treatment." (Cobbs, supra, 8 Cal.3d at p. 246.)
- This defense is considered a "justification." Justification for failure to disclose is an affirmative defense on which the defendant has the burden of proof. (Mathis v. Morrissey (1992) 11 Cal.App.4th 332, 347, fn. 9 [13 Cal.Rptr.2d 819].)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 466, 469

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 9.11

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, § 31.14 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice, § 415.13 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 175, Physicians and Surgeons (Matthew Bender)

33 California Legal Forms, Ch. 104, Health Care Transactions, Consents, and Directives, § 104.11 (Matthew Bender)

554. Affirmative Defense—Emergency

[*Name of defendant] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] did not have to obtain [name of patient/authorized person]'s informed consent to the [insert medical procedure] because an emergency existed. To succeed, [name of defendant] must prove both of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] reasonably believed the [insert medical procedure] had to be done immediately in order to preserve the life or health of [name of patient]; and
2. That [insert one or more of the following:]

   [[*name of patient] was unconscious] [or]

   [there was not enough time to inform [*name of patient]] [or]

   [there was not enough time to get consent from an authorized person].

New September 2003

Directions for Use

"Whenever appropriate, the court should instruct the jury on the defenses available to a doctor who has failed to make the disclosure required by law." (Cobbs v. Grant (1972) 8 Cal.3d 229, 245 [104 Cal.Rptr. 505, 502 P.2d 1].) This instruction could be modified to cover "informed refusal" cases by redrafting it to state, in substance, that the emergency situation made it impossible to inform the patient regarding the risks of refusing the test.

Sources and Authority

- When Consent Not Required. Business and Professions Code sections 2397(a) (doctor), 1627.7(a) (dentist).
- Consent is implied in an emergency situation. (Cobbs, supra, 8 Cal.3d at p. 243.)
- This defense is considered a "justification." Justification for failure to disclose is an affirmative defense on which the defendant has the burden of proof. (Mathis v. Morrissey (1992) 11 Cal.App.4th 332, 347, fn. 9 [13 Cal.Rptr.2d 819].)
- The existence of an emergency situation can also be a defense to battery. (Wheeler v. Barker (1949) 92 Cal.App.2d 776, 781 [208 P.2d 68]; Preston v. Hubbell (1948) 87 Cal.App.2d 53, 57–58 [196 P.2d 113]; Hundley v. St. Francis Hospital (1958) 161 Cal.App.2d 800, 802 [327 P.2d 131].)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 470

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 9.15

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Practitioners, §§ 31.14, 31.62 (Matthew Bender)

6 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 58, Assault and Battery, § 58.14 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice, § 415.13[7] (Matthew Bender)

2 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 21, Assault and Battery, § 21.38 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Legal Forms, Ch. 104, Health Care Transactions, Consents, and Directives, § 104.11 (Matthew Bender)

555. Affirmative Defense—Statute of Limitations—Medical Malpractice—One-Year Limit (Code Civ. Proc., § 340.5)

[*Name of defendant] contends that [name of plaintiff]'s lawsuit was not filed within the time set by law. To succeed on this defense, [name of defendant] must prove that before [insert date one year before date of filing], [name of plaintiff] discovered, or knew of facts that would have caused a reasonable person to suspect, that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] had suffered harm that was caused by someone's wrongful conduct.

[If, however, [*name of plaintiff] proves [insert tolling provision(s) of general applicability, e.g., Code Civ. Proc., §§ 351 [absence from California], 352 [insanity], 352.1 [prisoners], 352.5 [restitution orders], 353.1 [court's assumption of attorney's practice], 354 [war], 356 [injunction]], the period within which [name of plaintiff] had to file the lawsuit is extended for the amount of time that [insert tolling provision, e.g., [name of defendant] was absent from California].]

New April 2009; Revised May 2020

Directions for Use

Use CACI No. 556, Affirmative Defense—Statute of Limitations—Medical Malpractice—Three-Year Limit, if the three-year limitation provision is at issue.

If the notice of intent to sue required by Code of Civil Procedure section 364 is served within 90 days of the date on which the statute of limitations will run, the statute of limitations is tolled for 90 days beyond the end of the limitations period. (See Code Civ. Proc., § 364; Woods v. Young (1991) 53 Cal.3d 315, 325–326 [279 Cal.Rptr. 613, 807 P.2d 455].) Adjust the "date one year before the date of filing" in the instruction accordingly. If there is an issue of fact with regard to compliance with the requirements of section 364, the instruction may need to be modified accordingly.

Give the optional last paragraph if there is a question of fact concerning a tolling provision from the Code of Civil Procedure. If so, the verdict form should ask the jury to find (1) the "discovery" date (the date on which the plaintiff discovered or knew of facts that would have caused a reasonable person to suspect that the person had suffered harm that was caused by someone's wrongful conduct); (2) whether the tolling provision applies; and (3) if so, for what period of time. The court can then add the additional time to the discovery date and determine whether the action is timely.

Contrary to the otherwise applicable rule (see CACI No. 455, Statute of Limitations—Delayed Discovery), the defendant has been given the burden of proving that the plaintiff discovered or should have discovered the facts alleged to constitute the defendant's wrongdoing more than one year before filing the action.

(See Samuels v. Mix (1999) 22 Cal.4th 1, 8–10 [91 Cal.Rptr.2d 273, 989 P.2d 701] [construing structurally similar Code Civ. Proc., § 340.6, on legal malpractice, to place burden regarding delayed discovery on the defendant and disapproving Burgon v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1979) 93 Cal.App.3d 813 [155 Cal.Rptr. 763], which had reached the opposite result under Code Civ. Proc., § 340.5].) See also CACI No. 610, Affirmative Defense—Statute of Limitations—Attorney Malpractice—One-Year Limit.

Sources and Authority

- Statutes of Limitation for Medical Malpractice. Code of Civil Procedure section 340.5.
- Notice of Intent to Commence Action. Code of Civil Procedure section 364(a).
- 90-Day Extension of Limitation Period. Code of Civil Procedure section 364(d).
- "The one-year limitation period of section 340.5 is a codification of the discovery rule, under which a cause of action accrues when the plaintiff is aware, or reasonably should be aware, of 'injury,' a term of art which means 'both the negligent cause and the damaging effect of the alleged wrongful act.' " (Arroyo v. Plosay (2014) 225 Cal.App.4th 279, 290 [170 Cal.Rptr.3d 125].)
- "When a plaintiff has information which would put a reasonable person on inquiry, when a plaintiff's "reasonably founded suspicions [have been] aroused" and the plaintiff has "become alerted to the necessity for investigation and pursuit of her remedies," the one-year period commences. "Possession of 'presumptive' as well as 'actual' knowledge will commence the running of the statute." ' " (Dolan v. Borelli (1993) 13 Cal.App.4th 816, 823 [16 Cal.Rptr.2d 714], internal citations omitted.)
- "[W]hen the plaintiff in a medical malpractice action alleges the defendant health care provider misdiagnosed or failed to diagnose a preexisting disease or condition, there is no injury for purposes of section 340.5 until the plaintiff first experiences appreciable harm as a result of the misdiagnosis, which is when the plaintiff first becomes aware that a preexisting disease or condition has developed into a more serious one." (Drexler v. Petersen (2016) 4 Cal.App.5th 1181, 1183–1184 [209 Cal.Rtpr.3d 332].)
- "Injury from the failure to diagnose a latent, progressive condition occurs 'when the undiagnosed condition develops into a more serious condition,' and that more serious condition is made manifest by an appreciable increase or alteration in symptoms. A patient's concerns or suspicions about a diagnosis do not trigger the statute of limitations when no more serious condition is manifest and no lack of diligence is shown." (Filosa v. Alagappan (2020) 59 Cal.App.5th 772, 781 [273 Cal.Rptr.3d 731], internal citations omitted.)
- "The fact that [plaintiff] contemplated suing [defendants] is strong evidence that [plaintiff] suspected the doctors had not properly diagnosed or treated his headaches. Even with the presence of such suspicions, however, the one-year and three-year limitations periods did not begin to run until [plaintiff] discovered his injury—that is, became aware of additional, appreciable harm from his preexisting condition—and, with respect to the one-year limitations period, also had reason to believe that injury was caused by the wrongdoing of [defendants]." (Drexler, supra, 4 Cal.App.5th at p. 1190, internal citation omitted.)

- "We see no reason to apply the second sentence of section 340.5 to the one-year period it does not mention, in addition to the three-year period it does mention. The general purpose of MICRA does not require us to expand that sentence beyond its language." (Belton v. Bowers Ambulance Serv. (1999) 20 Cal.4th 928, 934 [86 Cal.Rptr.2d 107, 978 P.2d 591] [Code Civ. Proc., § 352.1, which tolls statutes of limitation for prisoners, applies to extend one-year period of Code Civ. Proc., § 340.5].)
- "The implications of Belton's analysis for our case here is inescapable. Like tolling the statute of limitations for confined prisoners under section 352.1, tolling under section 351 for a defendant's absence from California is of general applicability [and therefore extends the one-year period of Code of Civil Procedure section 340.5]. (For other general tolling provisions, see § 352 [minors or insanity]; § 352.5 [restitution orders]; § 353.1 [court's assumption of attorney's practice]; § 354 [war]; § 356 [injunction].)" (Kaplan v. Mamelak (2008) 162 Cal.App.4th 637, 643 [75 Cal.Rptr.3d 861].)
- "[A] plaintiff's minority as such does not toll the limitations period of section 340.5. When the Legislature added the separate statute of limitations for minors to section 340.5 in 1975, it clearly intended that the general provision for tolling of statutes of limitation during a person's minority (§ 352, subd. (a)(1)) should no longer apply to medical malpractice actions." (Steketee v. Lintz (1985) 38 Cal.3d 46, 53 [210 Cal.Rptr 781, 694 P.2d 1153], internal citations omitted.)
- "Section 340.5 creates two separate statutes of limitations, both of which must be satisfied if a plaintiff is to timely file a medical malpractice action. First, the plaintiff must file within one year after she first 'discovers' the injury and the negligent cause of that injury. Secondly, she must file within three years after she first experiences harm from the injury. This means that if a plaintiff does not 'discover' the negligent cause of her injury until more than three years after she first experiences harm from the injury, she will not be able to bring a malpractice action against the medical practitioner or hospital whose malpractice caused her injury." (Ashworth v. Memorial Hospital (1988) 206 Cal.App.3d 1046, 1054 [254 Cal.Rptr. 104], original italics.)
- "That legislative purpose [re: Code Civ. Proc., § 364] is best effectuated by construing section 364(d) as tolling the one-year statute of limitations when section 364(a)'s ninety-day notice of intent to sue is served during, but not before, the last ninety days of the one-year limitations period. Because the statute of limitations is tolled for 90 days and not merely extended by 90 days from the date of service of the notice, this construction results in a period of 1 year and 90 days in which to file the lawsuit. In providing for a waiting period of at least 90 days before suit can be brought, this construction achieves the legislative objective of encouraging negotiated resolutions of disputes." (Woods, supra, 53 Cal.3d at p. 325.)

- "[I]f the act or omission that led to the plaintiff's injuries was negligence in the maintenance of equipment that, under the prevailing standard of care, was reasonably required to treat or accommodate a physical or mental condition of the patient, the plaintiff's claim is one of professional negligence under section 340.5. But section 340.5 does not extend to negligence in the maintenance of equipment and premises that are merely convenient for, or incidental to, the provision of medical care to a patient." (Flores v. Presbyterian Intercommunity Hospital (2016) 63 Cal.4th 75, 88 [201 Cal.Rptr.3d 449, 369 P.3d 229]; see Johnson v. Open Door Community Health Centers (2017) 15 Cal.App.5th 153, 157–162 [222 Cal.Rptr.3d 839] [tripping over scale does not involve provision of medical care].)
- "[W]hile MICRA is not limited to suits by patients, it 'applies only to actions alleging injury suffered as a result of negligence in . . . the provision of medical care to patients.' Driving to an accident victim is not the same as providing medical care to the victim. A paramedic's exercise of due care while driving is not 'necessary or otherwise integrally related to the medical treatment and diagnosis of the patient", at least when the patient is not in the vehicle.' " (Aldana v. Stillwagon (2016) 2 Cal.App.5th 1, 8 [205 Cal.Rptr.3d 719], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 5-B, When To Sue—Statute Of Limitations, ¶ 5:109 (The Rutter Group)

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) §§ 9.26, 9.67–9.72

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Professionals, § 31.60 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice, § 415.47 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 175, Physicians and Surgeons: Medical Malpractice, § 175.45 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

McDonald, California Medical Malpractice: Law and Practice, §§ 7:1–7:7 (Thomson Reuters)

556. Affirmative Defense—Statute of Limitations—Medical Malpractice—Three-Year Limit (Code Civ. Proc., § 340.5)

[*Name of defendant] contends that [name of plaintiff]'s lawsuit was not filed within the time set by law. To succeed on this defense, [name of defendant] must prove that [name of plaintiff]'s alleged injury occurred before [insert date three years before date of filing].

[If, however, [*name of plaintiff] proves

[*Choose one or more of the following options:]

[that [he/she/*nonbinary pronoun/it] did not discover the alleged wrongful act or omission because [name of defendant] acted fraudulently[,/; or]]

[that [*name of defendant] intentionally concealed facts constituting the wrongful act or omission[,/; or]]

[that the alleged wrongful act or omission involved the presence of an object that had no therapeutic or diagnostic purpose or effect in [*name of plaintiff]'s body[,/;]]

the period within which [*name of plaintiff] had to file the lawsuit is extended for the amount of time that [insert tolling provision, e.g., [name of defendant] intentionally concealed the facts].]

New April 2009; Revised November 2017

Directions for Use

Use CACI No. 555, Affirmative Defense—Statute of Limitations—Medical Malpractice—One-Year Limit, if the one-year limitation provision is at issue.

If no tolling provision from Code of Civil Procedure section 340.5 is at issue, read only the first paragraph. Read the rest of the instruction if there is a question of fact concerning a tolling provision. If so, the verdict form should ask the jury to find (1) the date on which the alleged injury occurred; (2) whether the tolling provision applies; and (3) if so, for what period of time. The court can then add the additional time to the date of injury and determine whether the action is timely.

If the notice of intent to sue required by Code of Civil Procedure section 364 is served within 90 days of the date on which the statute of limitations will run, the statute of limitations is tolled for 90 days beyond the end of the limitation period. (See Code Civ. Proc., § 364; Russell v. Stanford Univ. Hospital (1997) 15 Cal.4th 783, 789–790 [64 Cal.Rptr.2d 97, 937 P.2d 640].) If there is an issue of fact with regard to compliance with the requirements of section 364, the instruction may need to be modified accordingly.

If the claim involves a diagnosis error, the cause of action accrues when the plaintiff first experiences "appreciable harm" as a result of the defendant's diagnosis error. Appreciable harm occurs when the plaintiff first becomes aware, or reasonably should have become aware, that a preexisting disease or condition has developed into a more serious one. (Drexler v. Petersen (2016) 4 Cal.App.5th 1181, 1183–1184, 1194 [209 Cal.Rptr.3d 332].) When this has occurred is a question of fact for the jury unless the facts are undisputed. (Id. at p. 1197.) Appreciable harm determines when the injury occurred to complete the cause of action; it is not a question of delayed discovery. Therefore, appreciable harm is required to trigger the three-year limitation period of Code of Civil Procedure section 340.5. (Steingart v. White (1988) 198 Cal.App.3d 406, 414–417 [243 Cal.Rptr. 678].)

Sources and Authority

- Three-Year Limitation Period for Medical Malpractice. Code of Civil Procedure section 340.5.
- "No tolling provision outside of MICRA can extend the three-year maximum time period that section 340.5 establishes." (Belton v. Bowers Ambulance Serv. (1999) 20 Cal.4th 928, 931 [86 Cal.Rptr.2d 107, 978 P.2d 591]; see also Fogarty v. Superior Court (1981) 117 Cal.App.3d 316, 319–321 [172 Cal.Rptr. 594] [Code Civ. Proc., § 352 does not toll statute for insanity].)
- "The three-year limitations period of section 340.5 provides an outer limit which terminates all malpractice liability and it commences to run when the patient is aware of the physical manifestation of her injury without regard to awareness of the negligent cause." (Hills v. Aronsohn (1984) 152 Cal.App.3d 753, 760 [199 Cal.Rptr. 816].)
- "The fact that [plaintiff] contemplated suing [defendants] is strong evidence that [plaintiff] suspected the doctors had not properly diagnosed or treated his headaches. Even with the presence of such suspicions, however, the one-year and three-year limitations periods did not begin to run until [plaintiff] discovered his injury—that is, became aware of additional, appreciable harm from his preexisting condition—and, with respect to the one-year limitations period, also had reason to believe that injury was caused by the wrongdoing of [defendants]." (Drexler, supra, 4 Cal.App.5th at p. 1190, internal citation omitted.)
- "Section 340.5 creates two separate statutes of limitations, both of which must be satisfied if a plaintiff is to timely file a medical malpractice action. First, the plaintiff must file within one year after she first 'discovers' the injury and the negligent cause of that injury. Secondly, she must file within three years after she first experiences harm from the injury. This means that if a plaintiff does not 'discover' the negligent cause of her injury until more than three years after she first experiences harm from the injury, she will not be able to bring a malpractice action against the medical practitioner or hospital whose malpractice caused her injury." (Ashworth v. Memorial Hospital (1988) 206 Cal.App.3d 1046, 1054 [254 Cal.Rptr. 104], original italics.)
- "The same considerations of legislative intent that compelled us, in [Woods v. Young (1991) 53 Cal.3d 315, 325–326 [279 Cal.Rptr. 613, 807 P.2d 455]], to construe Code of Civil Procedure section 364, subdivision (d), as 'tolling' the one-year limitations period also apply to the three-year limitation. Unless the limitations period is so construed, the legislative purpose of reducing the cost and increasing the efficiency of medical malpractice litigation by, among other things, encouraging negotiated resolution of disputes will be frustrated. Moreover, a plaintiff's attorney who gives notice within the last 90 days of the 3-year limitations period will confront the dilemma we addressed in Woods, i.e., a choice between preserving the plaintiff's cause of action by violating the 90-day notice period under Code of Civil Procedure section 364, subdivision (d)—thereby invoking potential disciplinary proceedings by the State Bar—and forfeiting the client's cause of action. In the absence of tolling, the practical effect of the statute would be to shorten the statutory limitations period from three years to two years and nine months. As in the case of the one-year limitation, we discern no legislative intent to do so." (Russell, supra, 15 Cal.4th at pp. 789–790.)

- "[T]he 'no therapeutic or diagnostic purpose or effect' qualification in section 340.5 means the foreign body exception does not apply to objects and substances intended to be permanently implanted, but items temporarily placed in the body as part of a procedure and meant to be removed at a later time do come within it." (Maher v. County of Alameda (2014) 223 Cal.App.4th 1340, 1352 [168 Cal.Rptr.3d 56].)
- "[I]f the act or omission that led to the plaintiff's injuries was negligence in the maintenance of equipment that, under the prevailing standard of care, was reasonably required to treat or accommodate a physical or mental condition of the patient, the plaintiff's claim is one of professional negligence under section 340.5. But section 340.5 does not extend to negligence in the maintenance of equipment and premises that are merely convenient for, or incidental to, the provision of medical care to a patient." (Flores v. Presbyterian Intercommunity Hospital (2016) 63 Cal.4th 75, 88 [201 Cal.Rptr.3d 449, 369 P.3d 229]; see Johnson v. Open Door Community Health Centers (2017) 15 Cal.App.5th 153, 157–162 [222 Cal.Rptr.3d 839] [tripping over scale does not involve provision of medical care].)
- "[W]hile MICRA is not limited to suits by patients, it 'applies only to actions alleging injury suffered as a result of negligence in . . . the provision of medical care to patients.' Driving to an accident victim is not the same as providing medical care to the victim. A paramedic's exercise of due care while driving is not 'necessary or otherwise integrally related to the medical treatment and diagnosis of the patient", at least when the patient is not in the vehicle.. . .' " (Aldana v. Stillwagon (2016) 2 Cal.App.5th 1, 8 [205 Cal.Rptr.3d 719], internal citations omitted.)
- "[W]hen the plaintiff in a medical malpractice action alleges the defendant health care provider misdiagnosed or failed to diagnose a preexisting disease or condition, there is no injury for purposes of section 340.5 until the plaintiff first experiences appreciable harm as a result of the misdiagnosis, which is when the plaintiff first becomes aware that a preexisting disease or condition has developed into a more serious one." (Drexler, supra, 4 Cal.App.5th 1183–1184.)

- "Applying the well-settled definition of injury set forth in the cases cited ante to the facts here, it must be concluded [plaintiff] suffered no damaging affect or appreciable harm from [defendant]'s asserted neglect until [doctor] discovered her cancer in April 1985. Her complaint was therefore timely with respect to the three-year limit." (Steingart, supra, 198 Cal.App.3d at p. 414.)

Secondary Sources

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 1-B, First Steps in Handling a Personal Injury Case—Initial Evaluation of Case: Decision to Accept or Reject Employment or Undertake Further Evaluation of Claim, ¶ 1:67.1 (The Rutter Group)

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) §§ 9.26, 9.67–9.72

4 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 31, Liability of Physicians and Other Medical Professionals, § 31.60 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice, § 415.47 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 175, Physicians and Surgeons: Medical Malpractice, § 175.45 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

McDonald, California Medical Malpractice: Law and Practice, §§ 7:1–7:7 (Thomson Reuters)

557–599. Reserved for Future Use

VF-500. Medical Negligence

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Was [name of defendant] negligent in the diagnosis or treatment of [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Was [name of defendant]'s negligence a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other past economic loss $_____]

   Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

   [b. Future economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other future economic loss $_____]

   Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

   [c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

   [d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

   TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, December 2010, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 500, Medical Negligence—Essential Factual Elements.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 3. The breakdown is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-501. Medical Negligence—Informed Consent—Affirmative Defense—Plaintiff Would Have Consented Even If Informed

---

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant] perform a [insert medical procedure] on [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Did [name of plaintiff] give [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] informed consent for the [insert medical procedure]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is no, then answer question 3. If you answered yes, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Would a reasonable person in [name of plaintiff]'s position have refused the [insert medical procedure] if that person had been adequately informed of the possible results and risks of [and alternatives to] the [insert medical procedure]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. Would [name of plaintiff] have consented to the [insert medical procedure] even if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] had been given adequate information about the risks of the [insert medical procedure]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 4 is no, then answer question 5. If you answered yes, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

5. Was [name of plaintiff] harmed as a consequence of a result or risk that [name of defendant] should have explained before the [insert medical procedure] was performed?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 5 is yes, then answer question 6. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

6. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

[a. Past economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other past economic loss $_____]

Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, December 2010, June 2015, December 2016, May 2020, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 533, Failure to Obtain Informed Consent—Essential Factual Elements, and CACI No. 550, Affirmative Defense—Plaintiff Would Have Consented.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 6. The breakdown is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the affirmative defense, which is contained in question 4, is not an issue in the case, question 4 should be omitted and the remaining questions renumbered accordingly.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-502. Medical Negligence—Informed Consent—Affirmative Defense—Emergency

---

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant] perform a [insert medical procedure] on [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Did [name of plaintiff] give [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] informed consent to the [insert medical procedure]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is no, then answer question 3. If you answered yes, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Would a reasonable person in [name of plaintiff]'s position have refused the [insert medical procedure] if that person had been fully informed of the possible results and risks of [and alternatives to] the [insert medical procedure]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. Was [name of plaintiff] harmed as a consequence of a result or risk that [name of defendant] should have explained before the [insert medical procedure] was performed?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 4 is yes, then answer question 5. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

5. Did [name of defendant] reasonably believe the [insert medical procedure] had to be done immediately in order to preserve the life or health of [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 5 is no, then answer question 7. If you answered yes to this question, answer question 6.

6. Was [name of plaintiff] unconscious?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 6 is no, then answer question 7. If you answered yes, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

7. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

[a. Past economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other past economic loss $_____]

Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, October 2008, December 2010, December 2016, May 2020, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 533, Failure to Obtain Informed Consent—Essential Factual Elements, and CACI No. 554, Affirmative Defense—Emergency.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

Depending on the facts, alternative language may be substituted for question 6 as in item 2 of CACI No. 554. If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 7. The breakdown is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the affirmative defense, which is contained in questions 5 and 6, is not an issue in the case, then questions 5 and 6 should be omitted and the remaining questions renumbered accordingly.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-503–VF-599. Reserved for Future Use

PROFESSIONAL NEGLIGENCE

600. Standard of Care

[A/An] [*insert type of professional] is negligent if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] fails to use the skill and care that a reasonably careful [insert type of professional] would have used in similar circumstances. This level of skill, knowledge, and care is sometimes referred to as "the standard of care."

[You must determine the level of skill and care that a reasonably careful [*insert type of professional] would use in similar circumstances based only on the testimony of the expert witnesses[, including [name of defendant],] who have testified in this case.]

New September 2003; Revised October 2004, December 2007, May 2020

Directions for Use

Use this instruction for all professional negligence cases other than professional medical negligence, for which CACI No. 501, Standard of Care for Health Care Professionals, should be used. See CACI No. 400, Negligence—Essential Factual Elements, for an instruction on the plaintiff's burden of proof. The word "legal" or "professional" should be added before the word "negligence" in the first paragraph of CACI No. 400. (See Sources and Authority following CACI No. 500, Medical Negligence—Essential Factual Elements.)

Read the second paragraph if the standard of care must be established by expert testimony.

See CACI Nos. 219–221 on evaluating the credibility of expert witnesses.

If the defendant is a specialist in a field, this instruction should be modified to reflect that the defendant is held to the standard of care of a specialist. (Wright v. Williams (1975) 47 Cal.App.3d 802, 810 [121 Cal.Rptr. 194].) The standard of care for claims related to a specialist's expertise is determined by expert testimony. (Id. at pp. 810–811.)

Whether an attorney-client relationship exists is a question of law. (Responsible Citizens v. Superior Court (1993) 16 Cal.App.4th 1717, 1733 [20 Cal.Rptr.2d 756].) If the evidence bearing upon this decision is in conflict, preliminary factual determinations are necessary. (Ibid.) Special instructions may need to be crafted for that purpose.

Sources and Authority

- "The elements of a cause of action in tort for professional negligence are (1) the duty of the professional to use such skill, prudence, and diligence as other members of his profession commonly possess and exercise; (2) a breach of that duty; (3) a proximate causal connection between the negligent conduct and the resulting injury; and (4) actual loss or damage resulting from the professional's negligence." (Budd v. Nixen (1971) 6 Cal.3d 195, 200 [98 Cal.Rptr. 849, 491 P.2d 433].)

- "Plaintiffs' argument that CACI No. 600 altered their burden of proof is misguided in that it assumes that a 'professional' standard of care is inherently different than the standard in ordinary negligence cases. It is not. 'With respect to professionals, their specialized education and training do not serve to impose an increased duty of care but rather are considered additional "circumstances' relevant to an overall assessment of what constitutes "ordinary prudence" in a particular situation.' 'Since the standard of care remains constant in terms of "ordinary prudence," it is clear that denominating a cause of action as one for "professional negligence" does not transmute its underlying character. For substantive purposes, it merely serves to establish the basis by which "ordinary prudence" will be calculated and the defendant's conduct evaluated.' " (LAOSD Asbestos Cases (2016) 5 Cal.App.5th 1022, 1050 [211 Cal.Rptr.3d 261], internal citation omitted.)
- " 'In addressing breach of duty, "the crucial inquiry is whether [the attorney's] advice was so legally deficient when it was given that he [or she] may be found to have failed to use 'such skill, prudence, and diligence as lawyers of ordinary skill and capacity commonly possess and exercise in the performance of the tasks which they undertake.' . . ." . . .' " (Blanks v. Seyfarth Shaw LLP (2009) 171 Cal.App.4th 336, 357 [89 Cal.Rptr.3d 710].)
- "[A]n attorney's duty to exercise the skill and care that a reasonably careful attorney would use in similar circumstances extends to prelitigation investigation and evaluation of a client's potential claims. ' "When one suspects that another has caused harm, a preliminary investigation is usually necessary in order to know whether one has a potential legal claim, evaluate the likelihood of success, and decide whether or not to assert it. Consequently, the investigation of a potential claim is normally and reasonably part of effective litigation, if not an essential part of it." ' With the duty to investigate comes an attorney's duty to evaluate and advise clients of the risks of contemplated litigation." (Mireskandari v. Edwards Wildman Palmer LLP (2022) 77 Cal.App.5th 247, 260 [292 Cal.Rptr.3d 410], internal citations omitted.)
- "[I]f the allegedly negligent conduct does not cause damage, it generates no cause of action in tort." (Moua v. Pittullo, Howington, Barker, Abernathy, LLP (2014) 228 Cal.App.4th 107, 112–113 [174 Cal.Rptr.3d 662].)
- "[T]he issue of negligence in a legal malpractice case is ordinarily an issue of fact." (Blanks, supra, 171 Cal.App.4th at p. 376.)
- " '[T]he requirement that the plaintiff prove causation should not be confused with the method or means of doing so. Phrases such as "trial within a trial," "case within a case," . . . and "better deal" scenario describe methods of proving causation, not the causation requirement itself or the test for determining whether causation has been established.' " (Knutson v. Foster (2018) 25 Cal.App.5th 1075, 1091 [236 Cal.Rptr.3d 473].)

- "Plaintiffs argue that 'laying pipe is not a "profession." ' However, case law, statutes, and secondary sources suggest that the scope of those held to a 'professional' standard of care—a standard of care similar to others in their profession, as opposed to that of a 'reasonable person'—is broad enough to encompass a wide range of specialized skills. As a general matter, '[t]hose undertaking to render expert services in the practice of a profession or trade are required to have and apply the skill, knowledge and competence ordinarily possessed by their fellow practitioners under similar circumstances, and failure to do so subjects them to liability for negligence.' " (LAOSD Asbestos Cases, supra, 5 Cal.App.5th at p. 1050.)
- "It is well settled that an attorney is liable for malpractice when his negligent investigation, advice, or conduct of the client's affairs results in loss of the client's meritorious claim." (Gutierrez v. Mofid (1985) 39 Cal.3d 892, 900 [218 Cal.Rptr. 313, 705 P.2d 886].)
- "[A] lawyer holding himself out to the public and the profession as specializing in an area of the law must exercise the skill, prudence, and diligence exercised by other specialists of ordinary skill and capacity specializing in the same field." (Wright, supra, 47 Cal.App.3d at p. 810.)
- "To establish a [professional] malpractice claim, a plaintiff is required to present expert testimony establishing the appropriate standard of care in the relevant community. 'Standard of care " 'is a matter peculiarly within the knowledge of experts; it presents the basic issue in a malpractice action and can only be proved by their testimony [citations] . . . .' " [Citation.]' " (Quigley v. McClellan (2013) 214 Cal.App.4th 1276, 1283 [154 Cal.Rptr.3d 719], internal citations omitted.)
- "California law does not require an expert witness to prove professional malpractice in all circumstances. 'In professional malpractice cases, expert opinion testimony is required to prove or disprove that the defendant performed in accordance with the prevailing standard of care [citation], except in cases where the negligence is obvious to laymen.' " (Ryan v. Real Estate of the Pacific, Inc. (2019) 32 Cal.App.5th 637, 644–645 [244 Cal.Rptr.3d 129].)
- "Where . . . the malpractice action is brought against an attorney holding himself out as a legal specialist and the claim against him is related to his expertise as such, then only a person knowledgeable in the specialty can define the applicable duty of care and opine whether it was met." (Wright, supra, 47 Cal.App.3d at pp. 810–811, footnote and internal citations omitted.)
- "The standard is that of members of the profession 'in the same or a similar locality under similar circumstances' . . . . The duty encompasses both a knowledge of law and an obligation of diligent research and informed judgment." (Wright, supra, 47 Cal.App.3d at p. 809, internal citations omitted; but see Avivi v. Centro Medico Urgente Medical Center (2008) 159 Cal.App.4th 463, 470–471 [71 Cal.Rptr.3d 707] [geographical location may be a factor to be considered, but by itself, does not provide a practical basis for measuring similar circumstances].)

- Failing to Act Competently. Rules of Professional Conduct, rule 3-110.

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Attorneys, §§ 307

4 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Pleadings, § 598

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1066–1070, 1124, 1125–1126, 1128–1131

Vapnek, et al., California Practice Guide: Professional Responsibility, Ch. 1-A, Sources Of Regulation Of Practice Of Law In California-Overview, ¶ 1:39 (The Rutter Group)

Vapnek, et al., California Practice Guide: Professional Responsibility, Ch. 6-E, Professional Liability, ¶¶ 6:230–6:234 (The Rutter Group)

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 1, Negligence: Duty and Breach, § 1.31 (Matthew Bender)

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 30, General Principles of Liability of Professionals, §§ 30.12, 30.13, Ch. 32, Liability of Attorneys, §§ 32.11, 32.13 (Matthew Bender)

7 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 76, Attorney Professional Liability, §§ 76.50, 76.51, 76.53 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence, §§ 380.50, 380.51 (Matthew Bender)

2A California Points and Authorities, Ch. 24A, Attorneys at Law: Malpractice, § 24A.20 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

601. Legal Malpractice—Causation

To recover damages from [*name of defendant], [name of plaintiff] must prove that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] would have obtained a better result if [name of defendant] had acted as a reasonably careful attorney. [Name of plaintiff] was not harmed by [name of defendant]'s conduct if the same harm would have occurred anyway without that conduct.

New September 2003; Revised June 2015, May 2020, December 2022

Directions for Use

In cases involving professionals other than attorneys, this instruction would need to be modified by inserting the type of the professional in place of "attorney." (See, e.g., Mattco Forge, Inc. v. Arthur Young & Co. (1997) 52 Cal.App.4th 820, 829–830 [60 Cal.Rptr.2d 780] [trial-within-a-trial method was applied to accountants].)

The plaintiff must prove that but for the attorney's negligent acts or omissions, the plaintiff would have obtained a more favorable result. (Viner v. Sweet (2003) 30 Cal.4th 1232, 1244 [135 Cal.Rptr.2d 629, 70 P.3d 1046].) The second sentence expresses this "but for" standard.

Sources and Authority

- "If the allegedly negligent conduct does not cause damage, it generates no cause of action in tort. The mere breach of a professional duty, causing only nominal damages, speculative harm, or the threat of future harm—not yet realized—does not suffice to create a cause of action for negligence." (Jordache Enterprises, Inc. v. Brobeck, Phleger & Harrison (1998) 18 Cal.4th 739, 749–750 [76 Cal.Rptr.2d 749, 958 P.2d 1062].)
- "In the legal malpractice context, the elements of causation and damage are particularly closely linked." (Namikas v. Miller (2014) 225 Cal.App.4th 1574, 1582 [171 Cal.Rptr.3d 23].)
- "In a client's action against an attorney for legal malpractice, the client must prove, among other things, that the attorney's negligent acts or omissions caused the client to suffer some financial harm or loss. When the alleged malpractice occurred in the performance of transactional work (giving advice or preparing documents for a business transaction), must the client prove this causation element according to the 'but for' test, meaning that the harm or loss would not have occurred without the attorney's malpractice? The answer is yes." (Viner, supra, 30 Cal.4th at p. 1235.)
- "[The trial-within-a-trial method] is the most effective safeguard yet devised against speculative and conjectural claims in this era of ever expanding litigation. It is a standard of proof designed to limit damages to those actually caused by a professional's malfeasance." (Mattco Forge Inc., supra, 52 Cal.App.4th at p. 834.)

- " 'Damage to be subject to a proper award must be such as follows the act complained of as a legal certainty . . . .' Conversely, ' " '[t]he mere probability that a certain event would have happened, upon which a claim for damages is predicated, will not support the claim or furnish the foundation of an action for such damages.' " ' " (Filbin v. Fitzgerald (2012) 211 Cal.App.4th 154, 165–166 [149 Cal.Rptr.3d 422], original italics, footnote and internal citations omitted.)
- "One who establishes malpractice on the part of his or her attorney in prosecuting a lawsuit must also prove that careful management of it would have resulted in a favorable judgment and collection thereof, as there is no damage in the absence of these latter elements." (DiPalma v. Seldman (1994) 27 Cal.App.4th 1499, 1506–1507 [33 Cal.Rptr.2d 219], original italics.)
- "[W]hen an attorney breaches the duty of care by failing to advise the client of reasonably foreseeable risks of litigation before a complaint is filed, the client need not prove the subsequently filed litigation would have been successful to establish the causation element of his professional negligence claim. Rather, the client can demonstrate he 'would have obtained a more favorable result', by proving that, but for the attorney's negligence, he would not have pursued the litigation and thus would not have incurred the damages attributable to the foreseeable risks that the attorney negligently failed to disclose. In other words, to answer the 'crucial causation inquiry' articulated in Viner—'what would have happened if the defendant attorney had not been negligent'—the client may respond with evidence showing he would not have filed the litigation in the first place and he would have been better off as a result." (Mireskandari v. Edwards Wildman Palmer LLP (2022) 77 Cal.App.5th 247, 262 [292 Cal.Rptr.3d 410], internal citations omitted.)
- " 'The element of collectibility requires a showing of the debtor's solvency. "['W]here a claim is alleged to have been lost by an attorney's negligence, . . . to recover more than nominal damages it must be shown that it was a valid subsisting debt, and that the debtor was solvent.' [Citation.]" The loss of a collectible judgment "by definition means the lost opportunity to collect a money judgment from a solvent [defendant] and is certainly legally sufficient evidence of actual damage." ' " (Wise v. DLA Piper LLP (US) (2013) 220 Cal.App.4th 1180, 1190 [164 Cal.Rptr.3d 54], original italics, internal citations omitted.)
- "Collectibility is part of the plaintiff's case, and a component of the causation and damages showing, rather than an affirmative defense which the Attorney Defendants must demonstrate." (Wise, supra, 220 Cal.App.4th at p. 1191.)
- "Because of the legal malpractice, the original target is out of range; thus, the misperforming attorney must stand in and submit to being the target instead of the former target which the attorney negligently permitted to escape. This is the essence of the case-within-a-case doctrine." (Arciniega v. Bank of San Bernardino (1997) 52 Cal.App.4th 213, 231 [60 Cal.Rptr.2d 495].)
- "Where the attorney's negligence does not result in a total loss of the client's claim, the measure of damages is the difference between what was recovered and what would have been recovered but for the attorney's wrongful act or omission. [¶] Thus, in a legal malpractice action, if a reasonably competent attorney would have obtained a $3 million recovery for the client but the negligent attorney obtained only a $2 million recovery, the client's damage due to the attorney's negligence would be $1 million—the difference between what a competent attorney would have obtained and what the negligent attorney obtained." (Norton v. Superior Court (1994) 24 Cal.App.4th 1750, 1758 [30 Cal.Rptr.2d 217].)

- "[A] plaintiff who alleges an inadequate settlement in the underlying action must prove that, if not for the malpractice, she would certainly have received more money in settlement or at trial. [¶] The requirement that a plaintiff need prove damages to 'a legal certainty' is difficult to meet in any case. It is particularly so in 'settle and sue' cases . . . ." (Filbin, supra, 211 Cal.App.4th at p. 166, original italics, internal citation omitted.)
- "[W]e conclude the applicable standard of proof for the elements of causation and damages in a 'settle and sue' legal malpractice action is the preponderance of the evidence standard. First, use of the preponderance of the evidence standard of proof is appropriate because it is the 'default standard of proof in civil cases' and use of a higher standard of proof 'occurs only when interests " 'more substantial than mere loss of money' " are at stake.' " (Masellis v. Law Office of Leslie F. Jensen (2020) 50 Cal.App.5th 1077, 1092 [264 Cal.Rptr.3d 621].)
- "In a legal malpractice action, causation is an issue of fact for the jury to decide except in those cases where reasonable minds cannot differ; in those cases, the trial court may decide the issue itself as a matter of law." (Yanez v. Plummer (2013) 221 Cal.App.4th 180, 187 [164 Cal.Rptr.3d 309].)
- "For purposes of determining whether a more favorable outcome would have been obtained, the object of the exercise is not to ' "recreate what a particular judge or fact finder would have done. Rather, the [finder of fact's] task is to determine what a reasonable judge or fact finder would have done . . . ." ' " (O'Shea v. Lindenberg (2021) 64 Cal.App.5th 228, 236 [278 Cal.Rptr.3d 654].)
- "If the underlying issue originally was a factual question that would have gone to a tribunal rather than a judge, it is the jury who must decide what a reasonable tribunal would have done. The identity or expertise of the original trier of fact (i.e., a judge or an arbitrator or another type of adjudicator) does not alter the jury's responsibility in the legal malpractice trial-within-a-trial." (Blanks v. Seyfarth Shaw LLP (2009) 171 Cal.App.4th 336, 357–358 [89 Cal.Rptr.3d 710].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, California Procedure (5th ed. 2008) Attorneys, §§ 330–331, 333

Vapnek et al., California Practice Guide: Professional Responsibility, Ch. 6-E, Professional Liability, ¶ 6:322 (The Rutter Group)

3 Neil M. Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 32, Liability of Attorneys, § 32.30 (Matthew Bender, Rev. Ed.)

7 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 76, Attorney Professional Liability, § 76.70 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

2A California Points and Authorities, Ch. 24A, Attorneys at Law: Malpractice, § 24A.20 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

602. Success Not Required

[A/An] [*insert type of professional] is not necessarily negligent just because [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] efforts are unsuccessful or [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] makes an error that was reasonable under the circumstances. [A/An] [insert type of professional] is negligent only if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was not as skillful, knowledgeable, or careful as another reasonable [insert type of professional] would have been in similar circumstances.

New September 2003; Revised December 2007

Directions for Use

Use this instruction for all professional negligence cases other than professional medical negligence, for which CACI No. 505, Success Not Required, should be used.

Sources and Authority

- "The services of experts are sought because of their special skill. They have a duty to exercise the ordinary skill and competence of members of their profession, and a failure to discharge that duty will subject them to liability for negligence. Those who hire such persons are not justified in expecting infallibility, but can expect only reasonable care and competence. They purchase service, not insurance." (Gagne v. Bertran (1954) 43 Cal.2d 481, 489 [275 P.2d 15].)
- "This rule [of Gagne v. Bertran, supra] has been consistently followed in this state with respect to professional services (Roberts v. Karr, 178 Cal.App.2d 535 [3 Cal.Rptr. 98] (surveyor); Gautier v. General Telephone Co., 234 Cal.App.2d 302 [44 Cal.Rptr. 404] (communications services); Bonadiman-McCain, Inc. v. Snow, 183 Cal.App.2d 58 [6 Cal.Rptr. 52] (engineer); Lindner v. Barlow, Davis & Wood, 210 Cal.App.2d 660 [27 Cal.Rptr. 101] (accountant); Pancoast v. Russell, 148 Cal.App.2d 909 [307 P.2d 719] (architect))." (Allied Properties v. John A. Blume & Associates (1972) 25 Cal.App.3d 848, 856 [102 Cal.Rptr. 259].)
- "The attorney is not liable for every mistake he may make in his practice; he is not, in the absence of an express agreement, an insurer of the soundness of his opinions or of the validity of an instrument that he is engaged to draft; and he is not liable for being in error as to a question of law on which reasonable doubt may be entertained by well-informed lawyers." (Lucas v. Hamm (1961) 56 Cal.2d 583, 591 [15 Cal.Rptr. 821, 364 P.2d 685], cert. denied (1962) 368 U.S. 987 [82 S.Ct. 603, 7 L.Ed.2d 525], internal citations omitted.)
- Jury instructions stating this principle are proper: "[A]n attorney does not ordinarily guarantee the soundness of his opinions and, accordingly, is not liable for every mistake he may make in his practice. He is expected, however, to possess knowledge of those plain and elementary principles of law which are commonly known by well informed attorneys, and to discover those additional rules of law which, although not commonly known, may readily be found by standard research techniques." (Smith v. Lewis (1975) 13 Cal.3d 349, 358 [118 Cal.Rptr. 621, 530 P.2d 589], overruled in part on other grounds in In re Marriage of Brown (1976) 15 Cal.3d 838, 851 [126 Cal.Rptr. 633, 544 P.2d 561].)

- "In order to prevail on this theory and escape a negligence finding, an attorney must show that there were unsettled or debatable areas of the law that were the subject of the legal advice rendered and this advice was based upon 'reasonable research in an effort to ascertain relevant legal principles and to make an informed decision as to a course of conduct based upon an intelligent assessment of the problem.' " (Blanks v. Seyfarth Shaw LLP (2009) 171 Cal.App.4th 336, 378–379 [89 Cal.Rptr.3d 710].)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, California Procedure (5th ed. 2008) Attorneys, §§ 326–329

Vapnek et al., California Practice Guide: Professional Responsibility, Ch. 6-E, Professional Liability, ¶ 6:234 (The Rutter Group)

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 32, Liability of Attorneys, §§ 32.11, 32.62 (Matthew Bender)

7 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 76, Attorney Professional Liability, § 76.50 (Matthew Bender)

1 California Legal Forms, Ch. 1A, Role of Counsel in Starting a New Business, §§ 1A.30–1A.32 (Matthew Bender)

603. Alternative Legal Decisions or Strategies

An attorney is not necessarily negligent just because the attorney [chooses one legal strategy/makes a decision/makes a recommendation] and it turns out that another [strategy/decision/recommendation] would have been a better choice.

New September 2003; Revised May 2020

Sources and Authority

- "We recognize, of course, that an attorney engaging in litigation may have occasion to choose among various alternative strategies available to his client . . . ." (Smith v. Lewis (1975) 13 Cal.3d 349, 359 [118 Cal.Rptr. 621, 530 P.2d 589], overruled in part on other grounds in In re Marriage of Brown (1976) 15 Cal.3d 838, 851 [126 Cal.Rptr. 633, 544 P.2d 561].)
- " 'In view of the complexity of the law and the circumstances which call for difficult choices among possible courses of action, the attorney cannot be held legally responsible for an honest and reasonable mistake of law or an unfortunate selection of remedy or other procedural step.' [Citation.]" (Banerian v. O'Malley (1974) 42 Cal.App.3d 604, 613 [116 Cal.Rptr. 919].)

Secondary Sources

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 32, Liability of Attorneys, § 32.11 (Matthew Bender)

7 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 76, Attorney Professional Liability (Matthew Bender)

2A California Points and Authorities, Ch. 24A, Attorneys at Law: Malpractice (Matthew Bender)

604. Referral to Legal Specialist

If a reasonably careful attorney in a similar situation would have referred [name of plaintiff] to a legal specialist, then [name of defendant] was negligent if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] did not do so.

However, if [name of defendant] handled the matter with as much skill and care as a reasonable legal specialist would have, then [name of defendant] was not negligent.

New September 2003

Sources and Authority

- This type of an instruction was approved for use in legal malpractice cases in Horne v. Peckham (1979) 97 Cal.App.3d 404, 414–415 [158 Cal.Rptr. 714], disapproved on other grounds in ITT Small Business Finance Corp. v. Niles (1994) 9 Cal.4th 245, 256 [36 Cal.Rptr.2d 552, 885 P.2d 965].
- Failing to Act Competently. Rule of Professional Conduct: Rule 3-110(C).

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, California Procedure (5th ed. 2008) Attorneys, § 294

605. Reserved for Future Use

606. Legal Malpractice Causing Criminal Conviction—Actual Innocence

---

[Name of plaintiff] alleges that [name of defendant] was negligent in defending [him/her/nonbinary pronoun] in a criminal case, and as a result, [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was wrongly convicted. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must first prove that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was actually innocent of the charges for which [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was convicted.

New April 2009

Directions for Use

Give this instruction after CACI No. 400, Negligence—Essential Factual Elements, and CACI No. 600, Standard of Care, in a legal malpractice action arising from an underlying criminal case.

To prove actual innocence, the plaintiff must first prove legal exoneration. (See Coscia v. McKenna & Cuneo (2001) 25 Cal.4th 1194, 1201 [108 Cal.Rptr.2d 471, 25 P.3d 670].) Presumably, exoneration will be decided by the court as a matter of law. If there is a question of fact regarding exoneration, this instruction should be modified accordingly.

However, one may be exonerated without actually being innocent of the charges; for example, by the People's decision not to retry the case on remand because of insufficient evidence. (See Coscia, supra, 25 Cal.4th at p. 1205 [exoneration is prerequisite to proving actual innocence (emphasis added)].) Do not give this instruction if the court determines as a matter of law that the exoneration does establish actual innocence; for example, if later-discovered DNA evidence conclusively proved that the plaintiff could not have committed the offense.

Sources and Authority

- Statute of Limitations: Factual Innocence. Code of Civil Procedure section 340.6(a).
- "In a legal malpractice action arising from a civil proceeding, the elements are (1) the duty of the attorney to use such skill, prudence, and diligence as members of his or her profession commonly possess and exercise; (2) a breach of that duty; (3) a proximate causal connection between the breach and the resulting injury; and (4) actual loss or damage resulting from the attorney's negligence. In a legal malpractice case arising out of a criminal proceeding, California, like most jurisdictions, also requires proof of actual innocence." (Wilkinson v. Zelen (2008) 167 Cal.App.4th 37, 45 [83 Cal.Rptr.3d 779], internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]hose policy considerations [underlying the actual-innocence requirement] are as follows. 'First, we should not permit a guilty defendant to profit from his or her own wrong. [Citation.] Second, to allow guilty defendants to shift their punishment to their former attorneys would undermine the criminal justice system. [Citation.] Third, "a defendant's own criminal act remains the ultimate source of his predicament irrespective of counsel's subsequent negligence." [Citation.] Fourth, a guilty defendant who is convicted or given a longer sentence as a result of counsel's incompetence can obtain postconviction relief on that basis; in contrast, "a civil matter lost through an attorney's negligence is lost forever." [Citation.] Fifth, there are formidable practical problems with criminal malpractice litigation, including the difficulty of quantifying damages and the complexity of the standard of proof, which must combine the preponderance of the evidence standard with the reasonable doubt standard applicable in a criminal trial. [Citation.]' " (Khodayari v. Mashburn (2011) 200 Cal.App.4th 1184, 1193 [132 Cal.Rptr.3d 903].)

- "If the defendant has in fact committed a crime, the remedy of a new trial or other relief is sufficient reparation in light of the countervailing public policies and considering the purpose and function of constitutional guaranties." Wiley v. County of San Diego (1998) 19 Cal.4th 532, 543 [79 Cal.Rptr.2d 672, 966 P.2d 983].)
- "The question of actual innocence is inherently factual. While proof of the government's inability to prove guilt may involve technical defenses and evidentiary rules, proof of actual innocence obliges the malpractice plaintiff 'to convince the civil jurors of his innocence.' Thus, the determination of actual innocence is rooted in the goal of reliable factfinding." (Salisbury v. County of Orange (2005) 131 Cal.App.4th 756, 764–765 [31 Cal.Rptr.3d 831], internal citations omitted.)
- "[A]n individual convicted of a criminal offense must obtain reversal of his or her conviction, or other exoneration by postconviction relief, in order to establish actual innocence in a criminal malpractice action. . . . [P]ublic policy considerations require that only an innocent person wrongly convicted be deemed to have suffered a legally compensable harm. Unless a person convicted of a criminal offense is successful in obtaining postconviction relief, the policies reviewed in Wiley [supra] preclude recovery in a legal malpractice action." (Coscia, supra, 25 Cal.4th at p. 1201.)
- "[A] plaintiff must obtain postconviction relief in the form of a final disposition of the underlying criminal case—for example, by acquittal after retrial, reversal on appeal with directions to dismiss the charges, reversal followed by the People's refusal to continue the prosecution, or a grant of habeas corpus relief—as a prerequisite to proving actual innocence in a malpractice action against former criminal defense counsel." (Coscia, supra, 25 Cal.4th at p. 1205.)
- "[T]he rationale of Wiley and Coscia requires a plaintiff in a criminal legal malpractice case to show actual innocence and postconviction exoneration on any guilty finding for a lesser included offense, even though the plaintiff alleges he received negligent representation only on the greater offense." (Sangha v.

LaBarbera (2006) 146 Cal.App.4th 79, 87 [52 Cal.Rptr.3d 640].)

- "[Plaintiff] must be exonerated of all transactionally related offenses in order to satisfy the holding in Coscia. Because the judicially noticed facts unequivocally demonstrate that [plaintiff] plead no contest to two offenses transactionally related to the felony charge of battery on a custodial officer in order to settle the criminal action, and she was placed on probation for those offenses, she cannot in good faith plead exoneration." (Wilkinson, supra, 167 Cal.App.4th at p. 48.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, California Procedure (5th ed. 2008) Attorneys, § 290

Vapnek, et al., California Practice Guide: Professional Responsibility, Ch. 6-H, Professional Competence In Criminal Cases, ¶¶ 6:935–6:944 (The Rutter Group)

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 32, Liability of Attorneys, § 32.02 (Matthew Bender)

7 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 76, Attorney Professional Liability, §§ 76.10, 76.381 (Matthew Bender)

2A California Points and Authorities, Ch. 24A, Attorneys at Law: Malpractice, § 24A.32 (Matthew Bender)

607–609. Reserved for Future Use

610. Affirmative Defense—Statute of Limitations—Attorney Malpractice—One-Year Limit (Code Civ. Proc., § 340.6)

[*Name of defendant] contends that [name of plaintiff]'s lawsuit was not filed within the time set by law. To succeed on this defense, [name of defendant] must prove that before [insert date one year before date of filing] [name of plaintiff] knew, or with reasonable diligence should have discovered, the facts of [name of defendant]'s alleged wrongful act or omission.

[If, however, [*name of plaintiff] proves

[*Choose one or more of the following three options:]

[that [he/she/*nonbinary pronoun/it] did not sustain actual injury until on or after [insert date one year before date of filing][,/; or]]

[that on or after [*insert date one year before date of filing] [name of defendant] continued to represent [name of plaintiff] regarding the specific subject matter in which the wrongful act or omission occurred[,/; or]]

[that on or after [*insert date one year before date of filing] [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] was under a legal or physical disability that restricted [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] ability to file a lawsuit[,/;]]

the period within which [*name of plaintiff] had to file the lawsuit is extended for the amount of time that [insert tolling provision, e.g., [name of defendant] continued to represent [name of plaintiff]].]

New April 2007; Revised April 2009, May 2020

Directions for Use

Use CACI No. 611, Affirmative Defense—Statute of Limitations—Attorney Malpractice—Four-Year Limit, if the four-year limitation provision is at issue.

The court may need to define the term "actual injury" depending on the facts and circumstances of the particular case.

If no tolling provision from Code of Civil Procedure section 340.6 is at issue, read only through the end of the first paragraph. Read the rest of the instruction if there is a question of fact concerning a tolling provision. If so, the verdict form should ask the jury to find (1) the "discovery" date (the date on which the plaintiff discovered or knew of facts that would have caused a reasonable person to suspect that the person had suffered harm that was caused by someone's wrongful conduct); (2) whether the tolling provision applies; and (3) if so, for what period of time. The court can then add the additional time to the discovery date and determine whether the action is timely.

Sources and Authority

- Statute of Limitation for Attorney Malpractice. Code of Civil Procedure section 340.6.
- Persons Under Disabilities. Code of Civil Procedure section 352.
- "Under section 340.6, the one-year limitations period commences when the plaintiff actually or constructively discovers the facts of the wrongful act or omission, but the period is tolled until the plaintiff sustains actual injury. That is to say, the statute of limitations will not run during the time the plaintiff cannot bring a cause of action for damages from professional negligence." (Jordache Enterprises, Inc. v. Brobeck, Phleger & Harrison (1998) 18 Cal.4th 739, 751 [76 Cal.Rptr.2d 749, 958 P.2d 1062].)
- "Summary judgment was proper under section 340.6, subdivision (a)'s one-year limitations period only if the undisputed facts compel the conclusion that [plaintiff] was on inquiry notice of his claim more than one year before the complaint was filed. Inquiry notice exist where 'the plaintiffs have reason to at least suspect that a type of wrongdoing has injured them.' ' "A plaintiff need not be aware of the specific 'facts' necessary to establish the claim; that is a process contemplated by pretrial discovery. Once the plaintiff has a suspicion of wrongdoing, and therefore an incentive to sue, she must decide whether to file suit or sit on her rights. So long as a suspicion exists, it is clear that the plaintiff must go find the facts; she cannot wait for the facts to find her." [Citation.]' " (Genisman v. Carley (2018) 29 Cal.App.5th 45, 50–51 [239 Cal.Rptr.3d 780], internal citation omitted.)
- " ' "[S]ubjective suspicion is not required. If a person becomes aware of facts which would make a reasonably prudent person suspicious, he or she has a duty to investigate further and is charged with knowledge of matters which would have been revealed by such an investigation." [Citation.]' " (Genisman, supra, 29 Cal.App.5th at p. 51.)
- "For purposes of section 340.6, 'actual injury occurs when the plaintiff sustains any loss or injury legally cognizable as damages in a legal malpractice action based on the acts or omissions that the plaintiff alleged.' While 'nominal damages will not end the tolling of section 340.6's limitations period,' it is 'the fact of damage, rather than the amount, [that] is the critical factor.' " (Genisman, supra, 29 Cal.App.5th at p. 52, internal citation omitted.)
- "Actual injury refers only to the legally cognizable damage necessary to assert the cause of action. There is no requirement that an adjudication or settlement must first confirm a causal nexus between the attorney's error and the asserted injury. The determination of actual injury requires only a factual analysis of the claimed error and its consequences." (Truong v. Glasser (2009) 181 Cal.App.4th 102, 113 [103 Cal.Rptr.3d 811].)
- " '[S]ection 340.6, subdivision (a)(1), will not toll the limitations period once the client can plead damages that could establish a cause of action for legal malpractice.' '[T]he limitations period is not tolled after the plaintiff sustains actual injury [even] if the injury is, in some sense, remediable. [Citation.] Furthermore, the statutory scheme does not depend on the plaintiff's recognizing actual injury. Actual injury must be noticeable, but the language of the tolling provision does not require that it be noticed.' On the other hand, 'the statute of limitations will not run during the time the plaintiff cannot bring a cause of action for damages from professional negligence' because the plaintiff cannot allege actual injury resulted from an attorney's malpractice." (Croucier v. Chavos (2012) 207 Cal.App.4th 1138, 1148 [144 Cal.Rptr.3d 180], internal citations omitted.)

- "[A]ctual injury exists even if the client has yet to 'sustain[] all, or even the greater part, of the damages occasioned by his attorney's negligence'; even if the client will encounter 'difficulty in proving damages'; and even if that damage might be mitigated or entirely eliminated in the future. [¶] However, 'actual injury' does not include 'speculative and contingent injuries . . . that do not yet exist . . . .' " (Shaoxing City Maolong Wuzhong Down Products, Ltd. v. Keehn & Associates, APC (2015) 238 Cal.App.4th 1031, 1036 [190 Cal.Rptr.3d 90], internal citations omitted.)
- "[B]ecause 'determining actual injury is predominately a factual inquiry' to the extent a question remains on this point, the matter is properly resolved by the trier of fact . . . ." (Callahan v. Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher LLP (2011) 194 Cal.App.4th 557, 576 [125 Cal.Rptr.3d 120].)
- "[W]here, as here, the 'material facts are undisputed, the trial court can resolve the matter [of actual injury] as a question of law in conformity with summary judgment principles.' " (Shaoxing City Maolong Wuzhong Down Products, Ltd., supra, 238 Cal.App.4th at pp. 1037–1038.)
- "[P]rior to the enactment of section 340.6 the running of the statute of limitations coincided with accrual of the plaintiff's malpractice cause of action, including damages. By contrast, under the provisions of section 340.6, discovery of the negligent act or omission initiates the statutory period, and the absence of injury or damages serves as a tolling factor." (Adams v. Paul (1995) 11 Cal.4th 583, 589, fn. 2 [46 Cal.Rptr.2d 594, 904 P.2d 1205], internal citations omitted.)
- "[A] defendant must prove the facts necessary to enjoy the benefit of a statute of limitations." (Samuels v. Mix (1999) 22 Cal.4th 1, 10 [91 Cal.Rptr.2d 273, 989 P.2d 701], internal citations omitted.)
- "[D]efendant, if he is to avail himself of the statute's one-year-from-discovery limitation defense, has the burden of proving, under the 'traditional allocation of the burden of proof' that plaintiff discovered or should have discovered the facts alleged to constitute defendant's wrongdoing more than one year prior to filing this action." (Samuels, supra, 22 Cal.4th at pp. 8–9, internal citations omitted.)
- "In ordinary tort and contract actions, the statute of limitations, it is true, begins to run upon the occurrence of the last element essential to the cause of action. The plaintiff's ignorance of the cause of action, or of the identity of the wrongdoer, does not toll the statute. In cases of professional malpractice, however, postponement of the period of limitations until discovery finds justification in the special nature of the relationship between the professional man and his client." (Neel v. Magana, Olney, Levy, Cathcart & Gelfand (1971) 6 Cal.3d 176, 187–188 [98 Cal.Rptr. 837, 491 P.2d 421], footnote omitted.)

- "We hold that a cause of action for legal malpractice does not accrue until the client discovers, or should discover, the facts establishing the elements of his cause of action." (Neel, supra, 6 Cal.3d at p. 194.)
- " '[W]here there is a professional relationship, the degree of diligence in ferreting out the negligence for the purpose of the statute of limitations is diminished. [Citation.]' " (Stueve Bros. Farms, LLC v. Berger Kahn (2013) 222 Cal.App.4th 303, 315 [166 Cal.Rptr.3d 116].)
- "If the allegedly negligent conduct does not cause damage, it generates no cause of action in tort. The mere breach of a professional duty, causing only nominal damages, speculative harm, or the threat of future harm—not yet realized—does not suffice to create a cause of action for negligence. Hence, until the client suffers appreciable harm as a consequence of his attorney's negligence, the client cannot establish a cause of action for malpractice." (Budd v. Nixen (1971) 6 Cal.3d 195, 200 [98 Cal.Rptr. 849, 491 P.2d 433], internal citations omitted.)
- "A plaintiff who is aware of, and has been actually injured by, attorney malpractice in a matter need not file suit for malpractice while that attorney is still representing him on the same 'specific subject matter.' " (Shaoxing City Maolong Wuzhong Down Products, Ltd., supra, 238 Cal.App.4th at p. 1038.)
- "The continuous representation tolling provision in section 340.6, subdivision (a)(2) 'was adopted in order to "avoid the disruption of an attorney-client relationship by a lawsuit while enabling the attorney to correct or minimize an apparent error, and to prevent an attorney from defeating a malpractice cause of action by continuing to represent the client until the statutory period has expired." ' " (Kelly v. Orr (2016) 243 Cal.App.4th 940, 950 [196 Cal.Rptr.3d 901].)
- "The mere existence of an attorney-client relationship does not trigger the continuous representation rule: 'Instead, the statute's tolling language addresses a particular phase of such a relationship-representation regarding a specific subject matter. Moreover, the limitations period is not tolled when an attorney's subsequent role is only tangentially related to the legal representation the attorney provided to the plaintiff. Therefore, "[t]he inquiry is not whether an attorney-client relationship still exists but when the representation of the specific matter terminated." ' Tolling does not apply where there is a continuing relationship between the attorney and client 'involving only unrelated matters.' " (Lockton v. O'Rourke (2010) 184 Cal.App.4th 1051, 1064 [109 Cal.Rptr.3d 392], original italics, internal citations omitted.)
- "[W]here a client hires a law firm to represent it, the provisions of section 340.6 apply to that firm; the term 'attorney' in section 340.6 may embrace the entire partnership, law corporation, or other legal entity the client retains. [¶] That either an attorney or a firm may be the subject of an action does not support a reading under which representation by one attorney or firm might toll the limitations period as to another no longer affiliated attorney or firm. Rather, the text implies an action against a law firm is tolled so long as that firm continues representation, just as an action against an attorney is tolled so long as that attorney continues representation, but representation by one attorney or firm does not toll claims that may exist against a different, unaffiliated attorney or firm." (Beal Bank, SSB v. Arter & Hadden, LLP (2007) 42 Cal.4th 503, 509 [66 Cal.Rptr.3d 52, 167 P.3d 666], original italics.)

- " '[W]hen an attorney leaves a firm and takes a client with him or her, . . . the tolling in ongoing matters [does not] continue for claims against the former firm and partners.' " (Stueve Bros. Farms, LLC, supra, 222 Cal.App.4th at p. 314.)
- " 'Ordinarily, an attorney's representation is not completed until the agreed tasks or events have occurred, the client consents to termination or a court grants an application by counsel for withdrawal.' 'The rule is that, for purposes of the statute of limitations, the attorney's representation is concluded when the parties so agree, and that result does not depend upon formal termination, such as withdrawing as counsel of record.' 'Continuity of representation ultimately depends, not on the client's subjective beliefs, but rather on evidence of an ongoing mutual relationship and of activities in furtherance of the relationship.' " (Nielsen v. Beck (2007) 157 Cal.App.4th 1041, 1049 [69 Cal.Rptr.3d 435], internal citations omitted.)
- "[A]n attorney may withdraw from representation within the meaning of the statute, 'even absent a client's consent.' Such withdrawal 'does not depend on whether the attorney has formally withdrawn from representation, such as by securing a court order granting permission to withdraw.' ' " '[I]n the event of an attorney's unilateral withdrawal or abandonment of the client, the representation ends when the client actually has or reasonably should have no expectation that the attorney will provide further legal services. [Citations.] That may occur upon the attorney's express notification to the client that the attorney will perform no further services.' " ' " (Wang v. Nesse (2022) 81 Cal.App.5th 428, 440 [297 Cal.Rptr.3d 149], internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]he continuous representation tolling provision in section 340.6, subdivision (a)(2), applies to toll legal malpractice claims brought by successor trustees against attorneys who represented the predecessor trustee." (Kelly, supra, 243 Cal.App.4th at p. 951.)
- "[A]bsent a statutory standard to determine when an attorney's representation of a client regarding a specific subject matter ends, and consistent with the purposes of the continuing representation rule, we conclude that for purposes of . . . section 340.6, subdivision (a)(2), in the event of an attorney's unilateral withdrawal or abandonment of the client, the representation ends when the client actually has or reasonably should have no expectation that the attorney will provide further legal services. . . . That may occur upon the attorney's express notification to the client that the attorney will perform no further services, or, if the attorney remains silent, may be inferred from the circumstances. Absent actual notice to the client that the attorney will perform no further legal services or circumstances that reasonably should cause the client to so conclude, a client should be entitled to rely on an attorney to perform the agreed services and should not be required to interrupt the attorney-client relationship by filing a malpractice complaint. After a client has no reasonable expectation that the attorney will provide further legal services, however, the client is no longer hindered by a potential disruption of the attorney-client relationship and no longer relies on the attorney's continuing representation, so the tolling should end. To this extent and for these reasons, we conclude that continuous representation should be viewed objectively from the client's perspective . . . ." (Laclette v. Galindo (2010) 184 Cal.App.4th 919, 928 [109 Cal.Rptr.3d 660], original italics.)

- "Continuity of representation ultimately depends, not on the client's subjective beliefs, but rather on evidence of an ongoing mutual relationship and of activities in furtherance of the relationship." (GoTek Energy, Inc. v. SoCal IP Law Group, LLP (2016) 3 Cal.App.5th 1240, 1248 [208 Cal.Rptr.3d 428], original italics.)
- "Section 340.6, subdivision (a), states that 'in no event' shall the prescriptive period be tolled except under those circumstances specified in the statute. Thus, the Legislature expressly intended to disallow tolling under any circumstances not enumerated in the statute." (Laird v. Blacker (1992) 2 Cal.4th 606, 618 [7 Cal.Rptr.2d 550, 828 P.2d 691] [applying rule to one-year limitation period]; cf. Belton v. Bowers Ambulance Serv. (1999) 20 Cal.4th 928, 934 [86 Cal.Rptr.2d 107, 978 P.2d 591] [substantially similar language in Code Civ. Proc., § 340.5, applicable to medical malpractice, construed to apply only to three-year limitation period].)
- "[T]he fourth tolling provision of section 340.6, subdivision (a)—that is, the provision applicable to legal and physical disabilities—encompasses the circumstances set forth in section 351 [exception, where defendant is out of the state]." (Jocer Enterprises, Inc. v. Price (2010) 183 Cal.App.4th 559, 569 [107 Cal.Rptr.3d 539].)
- "[A] would-be plaintiff is 'imprisoned on a criminal charge' within the meaning of section 352.1 if he or she is serving a term of imprisonment in the state prison." (Austin v. Medicis (2018) 21 Cal.App.5th 577, 597 [230 Cal.Rptr.3d 528].)
- "In light of the Legislature's intent that section 340.6(a) cover more than claims for legal malpractice, the term 'professional services' is best understood to include nonlegal services governed by an attorney's professional obligations." (Lee v. Hanley (2015) 61 Cal.4th 1225, 1237 [191 Cal.Rptr.3d 536, 354 P.3d 334].)
- "For purposes of section 340.6(a), the question is not simply whether a claim alleges misconduct that entails the violation of a professional obligation. Rather, the question is whether the claim, in order to succeed, necessarily depends on proof that an attorney violated a professional obligation as opposed to some generally applicable nonprofessional obligation." (Lee, supra, 61 Cal.4th at p. 1238.)

- "Lee held that 'section 340.6(a)'s time bar applies to claims whose merits necessarily depend on proof that an attorney violated a professional obligation in the course of providing professional services. In this context, a "professional obligation" is an obligation that an attorney has by virtue of being an attorney, such as fiduciary obligations, the obligation to perform competently, the obligation to perform the services contemplated in a legal services contract into which an attorney has entered, and the obligations embodied in the State Bar Rules of Professional Conduct.' " (Foxen v. Carpenter (2016) 6 Cal.App.5th 284, 292 [211 Cal.Rptr.3d 372].)
- "In sum, consistent with Lee, section 340.6(a) applies to malicious prosecution claims against attorneys who performed professional services in the underlying litigation." (Connelly v. Bornstein (2019) 33 Cal.App.5th 783, 799 [245 Cal.Rptr.3d 452].)

Secondary Sources

3 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Actions, §§ 679–702

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 32, Liability of Attorneys, § 32.60 (Matthew Bender)

7 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 76, Attorney Professional Liability, §§ 76.170, 76.430 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence, § 380.150[3] (Matthew Bender)

611. Affirmative Defense—Statute of Limitations—Attorney Malpractice—Four-Year Limit (Code Civ. Proc., § 340.6)

[*Name of defendant] contends that [name of plaintiff]'s lawsuit was not filed within the time set by law. To succeed on this defense, [name of defendant] must prove that [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] alleged wrongful act or omission occurred before [insert date four years before date of filing].

[If, however, [*name of plaintiff] proves

[*Choose one or more of the following four options:]

[that [he/she/*nonbinary pronoun/it] did not sustain actual injury until on or after [insert date four years before date of filing]][,/; or]]

[that on or after [*insert date four years before date of filing] [name of defendant] continued to represent [name of plaintiff] regarding the specific subject matter in which the wrongful act or omission occurred[,/; or]]

[that on or after [*insert date four years before date of filing] [name of defendant] knowingly concealed the facts constituting the wrongful act or omission[,/; or]]

[that on or after [*insert date four years before date of filing] [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] was under a legal or physical disability that restricted [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] ability to file a lawsuit[,/;]]

the period within which [*name of plaintiff] had to file the lawsuit is extended for the amount of time that [insert tolling provision, e.g., [name of defendant] knowingly concealed the facts].]

New April 2007; Revised April 2009

Directions for Use

Use CACI No. 610, Affirmative Defense—Statute of Limitations—Attorney Malpractice—One-Year Limit, if the one-year limitation provision is at issue.

If no tolling provision from Code of Civil Procedure section 340.6 is at issue, read only through the end of the first paragraph. Read the rest of the instruction if there is a question of fact concerning a tolling provision. If so, the verdict form should ask the jury to find (1) the date on which the alleged wrongful act or omission occurred; (2) whether the tolling provision applies; and (3) if so, for what period of time. The court can then add the additional time to the date on which the alleged wrongful act or omission occurred and determine whether the action is timely.

The court may need to define the term "actual injury" depending on the facts and circumstances of the particular case.

Sources and Authority

- Statute of Limitation for Attorney Malpractice. Code of Civil Procedure section 340.6.
- Persons Under Disabilities. Code of Civil Procedure section 352.
- "Under section 340.6, the one-year limitations period commences when the plaintiff actually or constructively discovers the facts of the wrongful act or omission, but the period is tolled until the plaintiff sustains actual injury. That is to say, the statute of limitations will not run during the time the plaintiff cannot bring a cause of action for damages from professional negligence." (Jordache Enterprises, Inc. v. Brobeck, Phleger & Harrison (1998) 18 Cal.4th 739, 751 [76 Cal.Rptr.2d 749, 958 P.2d 1062].)
- "Actual injury refers only to the legally cognizable damage necessary to assert the cause of action. There is no requirement that an adjudication or settlement must first confirm a causal nexus between the attorney's error and the asserted injury. The determination of actual injury requires only a factual analysis of the claimed error and its consequences. The inquiry necessarily is more qualitative than quantitative because the fact of damage, rather than the amount, is the critical factor." (Truong v. Glasser (2009) 181 Cal.App.4th 102, 113 [103 Cal.Rptr.3d 811].)
- " '[S]ection 340.6, subdivision (a)(1), will not toll the limitations period once the client can plead damages that could establish a cause of action for legal malpractice.' '[T]he limitations period is not tolled after the plaintiff sustains actual injury [even] if the injury is, in some sense, remediable. [Citation.] Furthermore, the statutory scheme does not depend on the plaintiff's recognizing actual injury. Actual injury must be noticeable, but the language of the tolling provision does not require that it be noticed.' On the other hand, 'the statute of limitations will not run during the time the plaintiff cannot bring a cause of action for damages from professional negligence' because the plaintiff cannot allege actual injury resulted from an attorney's malpractice." (Croucier v. Chavos (2012) 207 Cal.App.4th 1138, 1148 [144 Cal.Rptr.3d 180], internal citations omitted.)
- "[A]ctual injury exists even if the client has yet to 'sustain[] all, or even the greater part, of the damages occasioned by his attorney's negligence'; even if the client will encounter 'difficulty in proving damages'; and even if that damage might be mitigated or entirely eliminated in the future. [¶] However, 'actual injury' does not include 'speculative and contingent injuries . . . that do not yet exist . . . .' " (Shaoxing City Maolong Wuzhong Down Products, Ltd. v. Keehn & Associates, APC (2015) 238 Cal.App.4th 1031, 1036 [190 Cal.Rptr.3d 90], internal citations omitted.)
- "[B]ecause 'determining actual injury is predominately a factual inquiry' to the extent a question remains on this point, the matter is properly resolved by the trier of fact . . . ." (Callahan v. Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher LLP (2011) 194 Cal.App.4th 557, 576 [125 Cal.Rptr.3d 120].)

- "[W]here, as here, the 'material facts are undisputed, the trial court can resolve the matter [of actual injury] as a question of law in conformity with summary judgment principles.' " (Shaoxing City Maolong Wuzhong Down Products, Ltd., supra, 238 Cal.App.4th at pp. 1037–1038.)
- "[P]rior to the enactment of section 340.6 the running of the statute of limitations coincided with accrual of the plaintiff's malpractice cause of action, including damages. By contrast, under the provisions of section 340.6, discovery of the negligent act or omission initiates the statutory period, and the absence of injury or damages serves as a tolling factor." (Adams v. Paul (1995) 11 Cal.4th 583, 598 fn. 2 [46 Cal.Rptr.2d 594, 904 P.2d 1205], internal citations omitted.)
- "[A] defendant must prove the facts necessary to enjoy the benefit of a statute of limitations." (Samuels v. Mix (1999) 22 Cal.4th 1, 10 [91 Cal.Rptr.2d 273, 989 P.2d 701], internal citations omitted.)
- "In ordinary tort and contract actions, the statute of limitations, it is true, begins to run upon the occurrence of the last element essential to the cause of action. The plaintiff's ignorance of the cause of action, or of the identity of the wrongdoer, does not toll the statute. In cases of professional malpractice, however, postponement of the period of limitations until discovery finds justification in the special nature of the relationship between the professional man and his client." (Neel v. Magana, Olney, Levy, Cathcart & Gelfand (1971) 6 Cal.3d 176, 187–188 [98 Cal.Rptr. 837, 491 P.2d 421], footnote omitted.)
- "If the allegedly negligent conduct does not cause damage, it generates no cause of action in tort. The mere breach of a professional duty, causing only nominal damages, speculative harm, or the threat of future harm—not yet realized—does not suffice to create a cause of action for negligence. Hence, until the client suffers appreciable harm as a consequence of his attorney's negligence, the client cannot establish a cause of action for malpractice." (Budd v. Nixen (1971) 6 Cal.3d 195, 200 [98 Cal.Rptr. 849, 491 P.2d 433], internal citations omitted.)
- "A plaintiff who is aware of, and has been actually injured by, attorney malpractice in a matter need not file suit for malpractice while that attorney is still representing him on the same 'specific subject matter.' " (Shaoxing City Maolong Wuzhong Down Products, Ltd., supra, 238 Cal.App.4th at p. 1038.)
- "The continuous representation tolling provision in section 340.6, subdivision (a)(2) 'was adopted in order to "avoid the disruption of an attorney-client relationship by a lawsuit while enabling the attorney to correct or minimize an apparent error, and to prevent an attorney from defeating a malpractice cause of action by continuing to represent the client until the statutory period has expired." ' " (Kelly v. Orr (2016) 243 Cal.App.4th 940, 950 [196 Cal.Rptr.3d 901].)
- "The mere existence of an attorney-client relationship does not trigger the continuous representation rule: 'Instead, the statute's tolling language addresses a particular phase of such a relationship-representation regarding a specific subject matter. Moreover, the limitations period is not tolled when an attorney's subsequent role is only tangentially related to the legal representation the attorney provided to the plaintiff. Therefore, "[t]he inquiry is not whether an attorney-client relationship still exists but when the representation of the specific matter terminated." ' Tolling does not apply where there is a continuing relationship between the attorney and client 'involving only unrelated matters.' " (Lockton v. O'Rourke (2010) 184 Cal.App.4th 1051, 1064 [109 Cal.Rptr.3d 392], original italics, internal citations omitted.)

- "[W]here a client hires a law firm to represent it, the provisions of section 340.6 apply to that firm; the term 'attorney' in section 340.6 may embrace the entire partnership, law corporation, or other legal entity the client retains. [¶] That either an attorney or a firm may be the subject of an action does not support a reading under which representation by one attorney or firm might toll the limitations period as to another no longer affiliated attorney or firm. Rather, the text implies an action against a law firm is tolled so long as that firm continues representation, just as an action against an attorney is tolled so long as that attorney continues representation, but representation by one attorney or firm does not toll claims that may exist against a different, unaffiliated attorney or firm." (Beal Bank, SSB v. Arter & Hadden, LLP (2007) 42 Cal.4th 503, 509 [66 Cal.Rptr.3d 52, 167 P.3d 666], original italics.)
- " '[W]hen an attorney leaves a firm and takes a client with him or her, . . . the tolling in ongoing matters [does not] continue for claims against the former firm and partners.' " (Stueve Bros. Farms, LLC v. Berger Kahn (2013) 222 Cal.App.4th 303, 314 [166 Cal.Rptr.3d 116].)
- " 'Ordinarily, an attorney's representation is not completed until the agreed tasks or events have occurred, the client consents to termination or a court grants an application by counsel for withdrawal.' 'The rule is that, for purposes of the statute of limitations, the attorney's representation is concluded when the parties so agree, and that result does not depend upon formal termination, such as withdrawing as counsel of record.' 'Continuity of representation ultimately depends, not on the client's subjective beliefs, but rather on evidence of an ongoing mutual relationship and of activities in furtherance of the relationship.' " (Nielsen v. Beck (2007) 157 Cal.App.4th 1041, 1049 [69 Cal.Rptr.3d 435], internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]he continuous representation tolling provision in section 340.6, subdivision (a)(2), applies to toll legal malpractice claims brought by successor trustees against attorneys who represented the predecessor trustee." (Kelly, supra, 243 Cal.App.4th at p. 951.)
- "[A]bsent a statutory standard to determine when an attorney's representation of a client regarding a specific subject matter ends, and consistent with the purposes of the continuing representation rule, we conclude that for purposes of . . . section 340.6, subdivision (a)(2), in the event of an attorney's unilateral withdrawal or abandonment of the client, the representation ends when the client actually has or reasonably should have no expectation that the attorney will provide further legal services. . . . That may occur upon the attorney's express notification to the client that the attorney will perform no further services, or, if the attorney remains silent, may be inferred from the circumstances. Absent actual notice to the client that the attorney will perform no further legal services or circumstances that reasonably should cause the client to so conclude, a client should be entitled to rely on an attorney to perform the agreed services and should not be required to interrupt the attorney-client relationship by filing a malpractice complaint. After a client has no reasonable expectation that the attorney will provide further legal services, however, the client is no longer hindered by a potential disruption of the attorney-client relationship and no longer relies on the attorney's continuing representation, so the tolling should end. To this extent and for these reasons, we conclude that continuous representation should be viewed objectively from the client's perspective . . . ." (Laclette v. Galindo (2010) 184 Cal.App.4th 919, 928 [109 Cal.Rptr.3d 660], original italics.)

- "Continuity of representation ultimately depends, not on the client's subjective beliefs, but rather on evidence of an ongoing mutual relationship and of activities in furtherance of the relationship." (GoTek Energy, Inc. v. SoCal IP Law Group, LLP (2016) 3 Cal.App.5th 1240, 1248 [208 Cal.Rptr.3d 428], original italics.)
- "[T]he fourth tolling provision of section 340.6, subdivision (a)—that is, the provision applicable to legal and physical disabilities—encompasses the circumstances set forth in section 351 [exception, where defendant is out of the state]." (Jocer Enterprises, Inc. v. Price (2010) 183 Cal.App.4th 559, 569 [107 Cal.Rptr.3d 539].)
- "[A] would-be plaintiff is 'imprisoned on a criminal charge' within the meaning of section 352.1 if he or she is serving a term of imprisonment in the state prison." (Austin v. Medicis (2018) 21 Cal.App.5th 577, 597 [230 Cal.Rptr.3d 528].)
- "In light of the Legislature's intent that section 340.6(a) cover more than claims for legal malpractice, the term 'professional services' is best understood to include nonlegal services governed by an attorney's professional obligations." (Lee v. Hanley (2015) 61 Cal.4th 1225, 1237 [191 Cal.Rptr.3d 536, 354 P.3d 334].)
- "For purposes of section 340.6(a), the question is not simply whether a claim alleges misconduct that entails the violation of a professional obligation. Rather, the question is whether the claim, in order to succeed, necessarily depends on proof that an attorney violated a professional obligation as opposed to some generally applicable nonprofessional obligation." (Lee, supra, 61 Cal.4th at p. 1238.)
- "Lee held that 'section 340.6(a)'s time bar applies to claims whose merits necessarily depend on proof that an attorney violated a professional obligation in the course of providing professional services. In this context, a "professional obligation" is an obligation that an attorney has by virtue of being an attorney, such as fiduciary obligations, the obligation to perform competently, the obligation to perform the services contemplated in a legal services contract into which an attorney has entered, and the obligations embodied in the State Bar Rules of Professional Conduct.' " (Foxen v. Carpenter (2016) 6 Cal.App.5th 284, 292 [211 Cal.Rptr.3d 372].)

- "In sum, consistent with Lee, section 340.6(a) applies to malicious prosecution claims against attorneys who performed professional services in the underlying litigation." (Connelly v. Bornstein (2019) 33 Cal.App.5th 783, 799 [245 Cal.Rptr.3d 452].)

Secondary Sources

3 Witkin, California Procedure (6th ed. 2021) Actions, §§ 679–702

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 32, Liability of Attorneys, § 32.60 (Matthew Bender)

7 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 76, Attorney Professional Liability, §§ 76.170, 76.430 (Matthew Bender)

33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence, § 380.150[3] (Matthew Bender)

612–699. Reserved for Future Use

MOTOR VEHICLES AND HIGHWAY SAFETY

700. Basic Standard of Care

A person must use reasonable care in driving a vehicle. Drivers must keep a lookout for pedestrians, obstacles, and other vehicles. They must also control the speed and movement of their vehicles. The failure to use reasonable care in driving a vehicle is negligence.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This instruction states the common-law standard of reasonable care in driving. It applies to negligent conduct that is not covered by provisions of the Vehicle Code: "Aside from the mandate of the statute, the driver of a motor vehicle is bound to use reasonable care to anticipate the presence on the streets of other persons having equal rights with himself to be there." (Zarzana v. Neve Drug Co. (1919) 180 Cal. 32, 37 [179 P. 203].)

The instructions in this series should be used in conjunction with instructions on the elements of negligence contained in the negligence series.

Sources and Authority

- The common-law duty supplements statutory driving regulations: "[A driver is] under a duty, both by statute and common law, to operate his vehicle without negligence so as to abstain from injuring any other person or his property." (Bewley v. Riggs (1968) 262 Cal.App.2d 188, 194 [68 Cal.Rptr. 520].)
- The standard of care is that of a reasonably careful person under the circumstances: "[The driver] was required to act as a reasonably prudent person under the same or similar circumstances . . . ." (Watkins v. Ohman (1967) 251 Cal.App.2d 501, 502–503 [59 Cal.Rptr. 709].)
- " 'The degree of care required in watching the movements of a particular machine depends upon the facts and circumstances existing at the time and place of the accident' and a driver is required to use that degree of care, only, which would be required of a reasonably prudent driver under similar circumstances." (Whitford v. Pacific Gas and Electric Co. (1955) 136 Cal.App.2d 697, 702 [289 P.2d 278], internal citations omitted.)
- The common-law requirement goes to the issues of lookout and control. Regardless of whether a driver was complying with the speed limit, "[he was] still bound to anticipate that he might meet persons at any point of the street and in order to avoid a charge of negligence he was bound to use ordinary care and to keep an ordinarily careful lookout for such persons and keep his machine under such control as would enable him to avoid a collision." (Boccalero v. Wadleigh (1931) 113 Cal.App. 376, 379 [298 P. 526], internal citation omitted.)
- "The operator of a vehicle must keep a proper lookout for other vehicles or persons on the highway and must keep his car under such control as will enable him to avoid a collision; failure to keep such a lookout constitutes negligence." (Downing v. Barrett Mobile Home Transport, Inc. (1974) 38 Cal.App.3d 519, 524 [113 Cal.Rptr. 277].)

- On the lookout requirement, one court observed: "The driver of an automobile is bound to use reasonable care to anticipate the presence on the highway of others who have equal right to be there and the fact that his vision is temporarily interfered with, either by the glaring sun or headlights, does not relieve him from that duty." (Hill v. Peres (1934) 136 Cal.App. 132, 137 [28 P.2d 946], internal citations omitted.)
- On the control requirement, one court observed: "Cases in which the problem has been presented adhere to the view that a driver must at all times exercise ordinary care to avoid a collision including swerving or altering his course, in addition to applying his brakes, if that would be a reasonable means of avoiding the collision." (Guyton v. City of Los Angeles (1959) 174 Cal.App.2d 354, 362 [344 P.2d 910].)
- "The age of a minor who operates a motor vehicle will not excuse him from liability for driving it in a negligent manner, and he will be required to meet the standard established primarily for adults." (Prichard v. Veterans Cab Co. (1965) 63 Cal.2d 727, 732 [47 Cal.Rptr. 904, 408 P.2d 360].)
- Drivers with mental disabilities are required to exercise the ordinary care required of an adult without such disability. (Fox v. City and County of San Francisco (1975) 47 Cal.App.3d 164, 173 [120 Cal.Rptr. 779].)

Secondary Sources

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) §§ 4.1–4.5

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 20, Motor Vehicles, § 20.01 (Matthew Bender)

8 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 82, Automobiles: Causes of Action, § 82.10 (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts § 25:22 (Thomson Reuters)

701. Definition of Right-of-Way

When the law requires a [driver/pedestrian] to "yield the right-of-way" to [another/a] [vehicle/pedestrian], this means that the [driver/pedestrian] must let the [other] [vehicle/pedestrian] go first.

Even if someone has the right-of-way, that person must use reasonable care to avoid an accident.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This instruction should be given following a reading of the appropriate Vehicle Code section.

If the case involves a statutory right-of-way, the jury could also be given instructions on negligence per se, if applicable.

Sources and Authority

- "Right of Way" Defined. Vehicle Code section 525.
- Intersection Right of Way. Vehicle Code section 21800.
- Left Turn Right of Way. Vehicle Code section 21801.
- Approaching Entrance to Intersection. Vehicle Code section 21802.
- Intersection Controlled by Yield Right-of-Way Sign. Vehicle Code section 21803.
- Entry Onto Highway. Vehicle Code section 21804.
- Equestrian Crossings. Vehicle Code section 21805.
- Authorized Emergency Vehicles. Vehicle Code section 21806.
- "Right of way rules have been described as simply establishing 'a practical basis for necessary courtesy on the highway.' " (Eagar v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1973) 32 Cal.App.3d 116, 122 [107 Cal.Rptr. 819].)
- "[A] driver entering a public highway from private property who collides with a vehicle traveling on the public road is not necessarily liable for a violation of [Vehicle Code] section 21804. Rather, the driver violates this section only if he or she fails to act as a ' "reasonably prudent and cautious [person]." ' Whether the driver failed to so act is a question of fact for the trier of fact to decide." (Spriesterbach v. Holland (2013) 215 Cal.App.4th 255, 266 [155 Cal.Rptr.3d 306], internal citation omitted.)
- "Of course, even if [defendant] had the right of way, he had a duty to exercise reasonable care to avoid an accident, and the jury was so instructed." (Eagar, supra, 32 Cal.App.3d. at p. 123, fn. 3, internal citation omitted.)
- "Where a car has actually entered an intersection before the other approaches it, the driver of the first car has the right to assume that he will be given the right of way and be permitted to pass through the intersection without danger of collision. He has a right to assume that the driver of the other car will obey the law, slow down, and yield the right of way, if slowing down be necessary to prevent a collision." (Minnegren v. Nozar (2016) 4 Cal.App.5th 500, 508 [208 Cal.Rptr.3d 655].)

- "When, as here, each motorist has acted reasonably and the pedestrian has failed to exercise due care for her own safety, the law of this state does not permit the technical violation of the pedestrian's right of way statute to impose negligence on the motorists as a matter of law. The statute creates a preferential, but not absolute, right in favor of the pedestrian who is still under a duty to exercise ordinary care." (Byrne v. City and County of San Francisco (1980) 113 Cal.App.3d 731, 742 [170 Cal.Rptr. 302].)
- " 'Even where a right of way is given by statute, if conditions so require it to avoid injury to others, the right of way must be yielded.' " (Bove v. Beckman (1965) 236 Cal.App.2d 555, 563 [46 Cal.Rptr. 164], internal citation omitted.)
- "Although such a driver may have the right-of-way, he is not absolved of the duty to exercise ordinary care; may not proceed blindly in disregard of an obvious danger; and must be watchful of the direction in which danger is most likely to be apprehended." (Malone v. Perryman (1964) 226 Cal.App.2d 227, 234 [37 Cal.Rptr. 864].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1010, 1011

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) Automobiles, § 4.15

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 20, Motor Vehicles, § 20.68 (Matthew Bender)

8 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 82, Automobiles: Causes of Action, §§ 82.10, 82.68 (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts § 25:26 (Thomson Reuters)

702. Waiver of Right-of-Way

A [driver/pedestrian] who has the right-of-way may give up that right and let another person go first. If the other person reasonably believes that a [driver/pedestrian] has given up the right-of-way, then the other person may go first.

New September 2003; Revised May 2020, May 2021

Sources and Authority

- "[I]f one who has the right of way 'conducts himself in such a definite manner as to create a reasonable belief in the mind of another person that the right-of-way has been waived, then such other person is entitled to assume that the right of way has been given up to him . . .'." (Hopkins v. Tye (1959) 174 Cal.App.2d 431, 433 [344 P.2d 640].)
- "A conscious intentional act of waiver of the right of way by the pedestrian is not required. Whether there is a waiver depends upon the acts of the pedestrian. If they are such that a driver could reasonably believe that the pedestrian did not intend to assert her right of way, a waiver occurs." (Cohen v. Bay Area Pie Company (1963) 217 Cal.App.2d 69, 72–73 [31 Cal.Rptr. 426], internal citation omitted.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1010, 1011

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 4.15

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 20, Motor Vehicles, § 20.68[1][c] (Matthew Bender)

703. Definition of "Immediate Hazard"

The statute just read to you uses the words "immediate hazard." An immediate hazard exists if the approaching vehicle is so near or is approaching so fast that a reasonably careful person would realize that there is a danger of collision [or accident].

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This instruction is designed to be given as a supplement to the several Vehicle Code provisions that contain the term "immediate hazard." (Veh. Code, §§ 21802 [Approaching intersection entrance], 21803 [Yield right of way], 21804 [Public or private property], 21805 [Equestrian crossings], 21950 [Crosswalks], 21953 [Tunnel or overhead crossing], 21954 [Pedestrian outside crosswalk], 22451 [Train signals].)

Sources and Authority

- "It is to be noted that the legislature has not set a hard and fast rule for the conduct of drivers approaching through highways but has provided the general rule that such drivers must yield the right of way to others traveling on the highway who are approaching so closely as to constitute 'an immediate hazard.' Our complex traffic problems are such that the circumstances of the traffic on a through highway as a driver approaches must govern his conduct in determining whether it is an immediate hazard. Whether a driver acts with due care or negligently in proceeding across a through highway must as a general rule be left to the determination of the jury in view of all the circumstances." (Wilkinson v. Marcellus (1952) 51 Cal.App.2d 630, 633 [125 P.2d 584].)
- At least one court has held that the term "immediate hazard" should be defined for the jury if a party so requests. (Hickenbottom v. Jeppesen (1956) 144 Cal.App.2d 115, 121 [300 P.2d 689].) However, any error in failing to define the term will be considered harmless if other instructions cover that point: "The words 'immediate hazard' seem reasonably clear in the context in which they appear, both in the statute and in the instruction given; the hazard of a collision." (Ibid.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1010, 1011

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) §§ 4.10–4.11

704. Left Turns (Veh. Code, § 21801)

The statute just read to you uses the word "hazard." A "hazard" exists if any approaching vehicle is so near or is approaching so fast that a reasonably careful person would realize that there is a danger of a collision [or accident].

[A driver who is attempting to make a left turn must make sure that no oncoming vehicles are close enough to be a hazard before the driver proceeds across each lane.]

New September 2003; Revised May 2020

Directions for Use

The bracketed paragraph should be given in appropriate cases involving multiple lanes of oncoming traffic. (Sesler v. Ghumman (1990) 219 Cal.App.3d 218, 227 [268 Cal.Rptr. 70].)

Sources and Authority

- Duty to Yield Right of Way: Left Turn. Vehicle Code section 21801(a).
- "We hold section 21802, subdivision (a), requires that where, as here, some, but not all, of the oncoming vehicles have yielded their right-of-way to a left-turning driver, that driver has a continuing duty during the turning movement to ascertain, before proceeding across the next open lane(s), if any vehicle is approaching from the opposite direction so close as to constitute a hazard." (Sesler, supra, 219 Cal.App.3d at pp. 224–225)
- Noting that in 1957 the Legislature added the phrase "at any time during the turning movement" to this section, the court in In re Kirk (1962) 202 Cal.App.2d 288, 291 [20 Cal.Rptr. 787], reasoned that "if the oncoming vehicle in the lane closest to the left turning vehicle surrenders its right of way by indicating to the operator of the left turning vehicle that it desires him to proceed, such operator may not proceed beyond that first lane of traffic, now effectively blocked by the waiving vehicle, if in fact other vehicles approaching in any of the other oncoming lanes will constitute a hazard to the left turning vehicle during the turning movement."

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1010, 1011

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) §§ 4.10–4.11

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 20, Motor Vehicles, § 20.68[2][g] (Matthew Bender)

705. Turning (Veh. Code, § 22107)

A driver must use reasonable care when turning [or moving to the right or to the left].

New September 2003

Directions for Use

An instruction on this point should be given only if the jury is instructed on Vehicle Code section 22107. It should be read after that section has been given. (Anderson v. Latimer (1985) 166 Cal.App.3d 667, 672–673 [212 Cal.Rptr. 544].)

Sources and Authority

- Turning and Changing Lanes. Vehicle Code section 22107.
- "This provision does not require the driver to know that a turn can be made with safety but only that he must exercise reasonable care, and whether such care has been exercised is normally a question of fact." (Butigan v. Yellow Cab Co. (1958) 49 Cal.2d 652, 656 [320 P.2d 500].)
- Courts have held that a reading of section 22107 should be followed by an instruction clarifying that the driver is under a duty to exercise only as much care as a reasonably prudent person when making a turn or movement: "An instruction to a jury concerning Vehicle Code, section 544 [now 22107] must make it clear that the driver who is about to turn must exercise such care as would a reasonably prudent man under similar circumstances, no more and no less." (Lewis v. Franklin (1958) 161 Cal.App.2d 177, 184 [326 P.2d 625].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1014, 1015, 1017

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) §§ 4.10–4.11

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 20, Motor Vehicles, § 20.67 (Matthew Bender)

8 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 82, Automobiles: Causes of Action, §§ 82.66, 82.67 (Matthew Bender)

706. Basic Speed Law (Veh. Code, § 22350)

A person must drive at a reasonable speed. Whether a particular speed is reasonable depends on the circumstances such as traffic, weather, visibility, and road conditions. Drivers must not drive so fast that they create a danger to people or property.

If [*name of plaintiff/defendant] has proved that [name of defendant/plaintiff] was not driving at a reasonable speed at the time of the accident, then [name of defendant/plaintiff] was negligent.

New September 2003; Revised December 2016

Directions for Use

Driving at an unreasonable speed is negligence per se (see Hert v. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. (1935) 4 Cal.App.2d 598, 599 [41 P.2d 369]), which establishes the first element of CACI No. 400, Negligence—Essential Factual Elements. Plaintiff must still prove the other two elements of harm and causation. (See CACI No. 430, Causation: Substantial Factor.)

Sources and Authority

- Speeding. Vehicle Code section 22350.
- "The so-called basic speed law is primarily a regulation of the conduct of the operators of vehicles. They are bound to know the conditions which dictate the speeds at which they can drive with a reasonable degree of safety. They know, or should know, their cars and their own ability to handle them, and especially their ability to come to a stop at different speeds and under different conditions of the surface of the highway." (Wilding v. Norton (1957) 156 Cal.App.2d 374, 379 [319 P.2d 440].)
- "Whether Vehicle Code section 22350 has been violated is a question of fact." (Leighton v. Dodge (1965) 236 Cal.App.2d 54, 57 [45 Cal.Rptr. 820], internal citation omitted.)
- "A number of cases have held that it is proper to give an instruction in the terms of this section and to inform the jury that a violation of the statute is negligence." (Hardin v. San Jose City Lines, Inc. (1953) 41 Cal.2d 432, 438 [260 P.2d 63].)
- Compliance with the posted speed law does not negate negligence as a matter of law. (Maxwell v. Colburn (1980) 105 Cal.App.3d 180, 186 [163 Cal.Rptr. 912].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1009

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 4.16

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 20, Motor Vehicles, § 20.63[3][a] (Matthew Bender)

707. Speed Limit (Veh. Code, § 22352)

The speed limit where the accident occurred was [insert number] miles per hour.

The speed limit is a factor to consider when you decide whether or not [name of plaintiff/name of defendant] was negligent. A driver is not necessarily negligent just because the driver was driving faster than the speed limit. However, a driver may be negligent even if the driver was driving at or below the speed limit.

New September 2003; Revised May 2020

Sources and Authority

- Speed Limits. Vehicle Code section 22352.
- Speeding as Negligence. Vehicle Code section 40831.
- A party is entitled to an instruction that the prima facie speed limit is a factor for the jury to consider in making its negligence determination. (Hardin v. San Jose City Lines, Inc. (1953) 41 Cal.2d 432, 439 [260 P.2d 63].)
- "The mere driving of an automobile in excess of the speed limit does not show negligence as a matter of law. The jury was free to find [defendant] not guilty of negligence even if they found that he was exceeding the speed limit." (Williams v. Cole (1960) 181 Cal.App.2d 70, 74 [5 Cal.Rptr. 24], internal citations omitted.)
- The burden of proving negligence in a civil action is on the party charging negligence, and even if such party has established speed in excess of the applicable prima facie limit the party must establish negligence under the circumstances. (Faselli v. Southern Pacific Co. (1957) 150 Cal.App.2d 644, 648 [310 P.2d 698].)
- "Even though the Texaco truck was traveling at a speed less than the maximum specified in the Vehicle Code, the reasonableness of its speed was a question of fact under all the circumstances, and circumstances may make travel at a speed less than the maximum rate a negligent operation of a motor vehicle." (Scott v. Texaco, Inc. (1966) 239 Cal.App.2d 431, 436–437 [48 Cal.Rptr. 785], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1009

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 4.18

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 20, Motor Vehicles, § 20.63[2][c], [4] (Matthew Bender)

8 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 82, Automobiles: Causes of Action, § 82.10 (Matthew Bender)

708. Maximum Speed Limit (Veh. Code, §§ 22349, 22356)

The maximum speed limit where the accident occurred was [*insert number] miles per hour.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

An instruction on maximum speed limits could be useful to help frame the issue for the jury. On the other hand, a specific instruction on the maximum speed limits may be unnecessary. In the event that there is sufficient evidence to support an instruction that one of the parties violated the maximum speed limit, the judge could give the negligence per se instructions while reciting the specific code section. In that event, the judge would not give an instruction on the basic speed law. (See Hargrave v. Winquist (1982) 134 Cal.App.3d 916 [185 Cal.Rptr. 30].)

Sources and Authority

- General Maximum Speed is 65 Miles Per Hour. Vehicle Code section 22349(a).
- Basic Maximum Speed for Two-Lane Undivided Highways is 55 Miles Per Hour. Vehicle Code section 22349(b).
- Maximum Speed at Selected Locations is 70 Miles Per Hour. Vehicle Code section 22356.
- Driving Too Slowly. Vehicle Code section 22400(a).

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1009

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 4.17

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 20, Motor Vehicles, § 20.63[2][b], [4][b][iii] (Matthew Bender)

709. Driving Under the Influence (Veh. Code, §§ 23152, 23153)

The statute just read to you uses the term "under the influence." A driver is not necessarily "under the influence" just because the driver has consumed some alcohol [or drugs]. A driver is "under the influence" when the driver has consumed an amount of alcohol [or drugs] that impairs the driver's ability to drive in a reasonably careful manner.

New September 2003; Revised May 2020

Directions for Use

This instruction is designed to supplement a negligence per se instruction on driving under the influence.

The presumption of intoxication based on a 0.08 blood level applies to criminal prosecutions only. There is no statutory or case authority supporting the conclusion that the presumption applies in civil cases. (Hyatt v. Sierra Boat Co. (1978) 79 Cal.App.3d 325, 334 [145 Cal.Rptr. 47].)

For a definition of "drug," see Vehicle Code section 312: "The term 'drug' means any substance or combination of substances, other than alcohol, which could so affect the nervous system, brain, or muscles of a person as to impair, to an appreciable degree, his ability to drive a vehicle in the manner that an ordinarily prudent and cautious man, in full possession of his faculties, using reasonable care, would drive a similar vehicle under like conditions."

Sources and Authority

- Driving Under the Influence of Alcohol or Drugs. Vehicle Code sections 23152(a), 23153(a).
- "All of the decided cases on the subject recognize that it is negligence as a matter of law to drive a vehicle upon a public highway while in an intoxicated condition." (Zamucen v. Crocker (1957) 149 Cal.App.2d 312, 316 [308 P.2d 384], internal citations omitted.)
- The term "under the influence" was first defined in People v. Dingle (1922) 56 Cal.App. 445, 449 [205 P. 705], as follows: "[I]f intoxicating liquor has so far affected the nervous system, brain, or muscles of the driver of an automobile as to impair, to an appreciable degree, his ability to operate his car in the manner that an ordinarily prudent and cautious man, in the full possession of his faculties, using reasonable care, would operate or drive a similar vehicle under like conditions, then such driver is 'under the influence of intoxicating liquor' within the meaning of the statute."
- "One is not necessarily under the influence of intoxicating liquor as the result of taking one or more drinks. The circumstances and effect must be considered; whether or not a person was under the influence of intoxicating liquor at a certain time is a question of fact for the jury to decide." (Pittman v. Boiven (1967) 249 Cal.App.2d 207, 217 [57 Cal.Rptr. 319].)

- Driving while "under the influence" under Vehicle Code sections 23152 and 23153 is not the same as "being under the influence" of a controlled substance under Health and Safety Code section 11550. Under the Vehicle Code provisions, "the defendant's ability to drive must actually be impaired," while the Health and Safety Code provision is violated as soon as the influence is present "in any detectable manner." (People v. Enriquez (1996) 42 Cal.App.4th 661, 665 [49 Cal.Rptr.2d 710].)
- Courts have also distinguished the "under the influence" standard from the "obvious intoxication" standard used in Business and Professions Code section 25602.1. (Jones v. Toyota Motor Co. (1988) 198 Cal.App.3d 364, 368 [243 Cal.Rptr. 611]: " 'Under the influence' is defined by a person's capability to drive safely, whereas 'obvious intoxication' is defined by a person's appearance.")

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1014, 1015, 1017

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 4.25

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 20, Motor Vehicles, § 20.02[3][b] (Matthew Bender)

2 California Civil Practice: Torts § 25:28 (Thomson Reuters)

710. Duties of Care for Pedestrians and Drivers in Crosswalk (Veh. Code, § 21950)

A driver of a vehicle must yield the right-of-way to a pedestrian who is crossing the roadway within any marked crosswalk or within any unmarked crosswalk at an intersection. When approaching a pedestrian who is within any marked or unmarked crosswalk, a driver must use reasonable care and must reduce the vehicle's speed or take any other action necessary to ensure the safety of the pedestrian.

Pedestrians must also use reasonable care for their own safety. Pedestrians may not suddenly leave a curb or other place of safety and walk or run into the path of a vehicle that is so close as to constitute an immediate hazard. Pedestrians also must not unnecessarily stop or delay traffic while in a marked or unmarked crosswalk.

The failure of a pedestrian to exercise reasonable care does not relieve a driver of a vehicle from the duty of exercising reasonable care for the safety of any pedestrian within any marked crosswalk or within any unmarked crosswalk at an intersection.

New September 2003; Revised December 2016, May 2020

Directions for Use

This instruction sets forth the respective duties of drivers and pedestrians in a crosswalk. (See Veh. Code, § 21950.) Crosswalk accidents often present a comparative negligence analysis based on the statutory duties of both parties.

Sources and Authority

- Right-of-Way at Crosswalks. Vehicle Code section 21950.
- Vehicles Stopped for Pedestrians at Crosswalks. Vehicle Code section 21951.
- "Driving a motor vehicle may be sufficiently dangerous to warrant special instructions, but it is not so hazardous that it always requires 'extreme caution.' " (Menchaca v. Helms Bakeries, Inc. (1968) 68 Cal.2d 535, 544 [67 Cal.Rptr. 775, 439 P.2d 903], internal citations omitted.)
- "When the pedestrian suddenly leaves his place of safety, the vehicle must be so close as to constitute an immediate hazard. Such wording [in Veh. Code, § 21950] indicates the statute was intended to apply to those situations where a pedestrian unexpectedly asserts his right-of-way in an intersection at a time when the vehicle is so close that it is virtually impossible to avoid an accident. Typical situations include when a pedestrian steps, jumps, walks or runs directly in front of a vehicle travelling in lanes which are adjacent to the curb or other place of safety occupied by the pedestrian. Under such circumstances, the vehicle would most certainly constitute an immediate hazard to the pedestrian." (Spann v. Ballesty (1969) 276 Cal.App.2d 754, 761 [81 Cal.Rptr. 229], original italics.)

- "It is undisputed that defendant did not yield the right of way to plaintiff. Such failure constitutes a violation of the statute and negligence as a matter of law in the absence of reasonable explanation for defendant's conduct." (Schmitt v. Henderson (1969) 1 Cal.3d 460, 463 [82 Cal.Rptr 502, 462 P.2d 30].)
- "When, as here, each motorist has acted reasonably and the pedestrian has failed to exercise due care for her own safety, the law of this state does not permit the technical violation of the pedestrian's right of way statute to impose negligence on the motorists as a matter of law. The statute creates a preferential, but not absolute, right in favor of the pedestrian who is still under a duty to exercise ordinary care." (Byrne v. City and County of San Francisco (1980) 113 Cal.App.3d 731, 742 [170 Cal.Rptr. 302], internal citation omitted.)
- "While it is the duty of both the driver of a motor vehicle and a pedestrian, using a public roadway, to exercise ordinary care, that duty does not require necessarily the same amount of caution from each. The driver of a motor vehicle, when ordinarily careful, will be alertly conscious of the fact that he is in charge of a machine capable of projecting into serious consequences any negligence of his own. Thus his caution must be adequate to that responsibility as related to all the surrounding circumstances. A pedestrian, on the other hand, has only his own physical body to manage and with which to set in motion a cause of injury. While, usually, that fact limits his capacity to cause injury, as compared with a vehicle driver, still, in exercising ordinary care, he, too, will be alertly conscious of the mechanical power acting, or that may act, on the public roadway, and of the possible, serious consequences from any conflict between himself and such forces. And the caution required of him is measured by the possibilities of injury apparent to him in the conditions at hand, or that would be apparent to a person of ordinary prudence in the same position." (Cucinella v. Weston Biscuit Co. (1954) 42 Cal.2d 71, 75–76, 81 [265 P.2d 513] [proposed jury instruction correctly stated the law].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1012, 1013, 1016

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) §§ 4.72–4.73

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 20, Motor Vehicles, §§ 20.10–20.12 (Matthew Bender)

8 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 82, Automobiles: Causes of Action, § 82.10 (Matthew Bender)

711. The Passenger's Duty of Care for Own Safety

A passenger is not required to be aware of the conditions on the highway and is entitled to expect that a driver will use reasonable care. However, if a passenger becomes aware of [a danger on the highway] [the driver's impairment or failure to use reasonable care], then the passenger must take reasonable steps to protect the passenger's own safety.

New September 2003; Revised May 2020

Sources and Authority

- " 'In the absence of some fact brought to his attention which would cause a person of ordinary prudence to act otherwise, a passenger in an automobile has no duty to observe traffic conditions on the highway, and his mere failure to do so, without more, will not support a finding of contributory negligence. In other words, an automobile passenger's "duty to look" does not arise until some factor of danger comes to his attention, thus charging him as a person of ordinary prudence to take steps for his own safety. . . .' " (Casey v. Russell (1982) 138 Cal.App.3d 379, 386–387 [188 Cal.Rptr. 18], internal citations omitted.)
- "Even when negligence of a driver may not be imputed to him, the passenger is bound to exercise ordinary care for his own safety. He may not shut his eyes to an obvious danger; he may not blindly rely on the driver in approaching a place of danger. He is normally bound to protest against actual negligence or recklessness of the driver, the extent of his duty in this regard depending upon the particular circumstances of each case and ordinarily being a question of fact for the jury." (Pobor v. Western Pacific Railroad Co. (1961) 55 Cal.2d 314, 324 [11 Cal.Rptr. 106, 359 P.2d 474], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) §§ 4.67–4.71

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 20, Motor Vehicles, § 20.03[2][c] (Matthew Bender)

2 California Civil Practice: Torts § 25:29 (Thomson Reuters)

712. Affirmative Defense—Failure to Wear a Seat Belt

[*Name of defendant] claims that [name of plaintiff] was negligent because [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] failed to wear a seat belt. To succeed, [name of defendant] must prove all of the following:

1. That a working seat belt was available;
2. That a reasonably careful person in [name of plaintiff]'s situation would have used the seat belt;
3. That [name of plaintiff] failed to wear a seat belt; and
4. That [name of plaintiff]'s injuries would have been avoided or less severe if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] had used the seat belt.

[In deciding whether a reasonably careful person would have used a seat belt, you may consider Vehicle Code section 27315, which states: [*insert pertinent provision].]

New September 2003; Revised October 2008

Directions for Use

Note that the Motor Vehicle Safety Act (Veh. Code, § 27315) applies only to persons 16 years or older. (Veh. Code, § 27315(d)(1).) No case law regarding whether persons under 16 can be found comparatively negligent for failing to wear a seat belt has been found.

Sources and Authority

- Failure to Wear Seat Belt as Negligence. Vehicle Code section 27315(i).
- "Defendants . . . are required to prove two issues of fact: (1) the defendant must show whether in the exercise of ordinary care the plaintiff should have used the seat belt which was available to him. . . . (2) The defendant must show what the consequence to the plaintiff would have been had seat belts been used." (Franklin v. Gibson (1982) 138 Cal.App.3d 340, 343 [188 Cal.Rptr. 23].)
- "Upon a retrial the court or jury will determine whether in the exercise of ordinary care [plaintiff] should have used the seat belt; expert testimony will be required to prove whether [plaintiff] would have been injured, and, if so, the extent of the injuries he would have sustained if he had been using the seat belt . . . ." (Truman v. Vargas (1969) 275 Cal.App.2d 976, 983 [80 Cal.Rptr. 373].)
- In Housley v. Godinez (1992) 4 Cal.App.4th 737, 747 [6 Cal.Rptr.2d 111], the court approved of the following jury instruction, which was read in addition to section 27315: "The Defendants have raised the seat belt defense in this case. First, you must decide whether in the exercise of ordinary care, the Plaintiff should have used seat belts, if available to him. Second you must determine with expert testimony the nature of injuries and damages Plaintiff would have sustained if he had used seat belts."

- "[Section 27315] permits the civil trial courts to instruct on the existence of the seat belt statute in appropriate cases, while allowing the jury to decide what weight, if any, to give the statute in determining the standard of reasonable care." (Housley, supra, 4 Cal.App.4th at p. 747.)
- "[N]othing in the statute prohibits a jury from knowing and considering its very existence when determining the reasonableness of driving without a seat belt." (Housley, supra, 4 Cal.App.4th at p. 744.)
- "There was evidence presented that appellant's failure to wear a seat belt worsened his injuries. The foreseeability test clearly eliminates this act as a supervening cause because it is the general likelihood of the type of injury that must be unforeseeable in order to absolve defendant; the extent of injury need not be foreseeable." (Hardison v. Bushnell (1993) 18 Cal.App.4th 22, 28 [22 Cal.Rptr.2d 106].)
- "Expert testimony is not always required to prove that failure to use a seat belt may cause at least some, if not all, of plaintiff's claimed injuries. [¶] Depending on the facts of the case, expert testimony may be necessary for the jury to distinguish the injuries that [plaintiff] unavoidably sustained in the collision from the injuries he could have avoided if he had worn a seat belt." (Lara v. Nevitt (2004) 123 Cal.App.4th 454, 458–459 [19 Cal.Rptr.3d 865], internal citation omitted.)
- "The seat belt defense does not depend on a Vehicle Code violation nor is it eviscerated by a Vehicle Code exemption from the requirement to wear seat belts." (Lara, supra, 123 Cal.App.4th at p. 461 fn. 3.)

Secondary Sources

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) § 4.71

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 20, Motor Vehicles, § 20.05[2] (Matthew Bender)

8 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 82, Automobiles: Causes of Action, § 82.10 (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts § 25:26 (Thomson Reuters)

713–719. Reserved for Future Use

720. Motor Vehicle Owner Liability—Permissive Use of Vehicle

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was harmed and that [name of defendant] is responsible for the harm because [name of defendant] gave [name of driver] permission to operate the vehicle. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of driver] was negligent in operating the vehicle;
2. That [name of defendant] was an owner of the vehicle at the time of the injury to [name of plaintiff]; and
3. That [name of defendant], by words or conduct, gave permission to [name of driver] to use the vehicle.

In determining whether permission was given, you may consider the relationship between the owner and the operator. [For example, if the parties are related or the owner and the operator are employer and employee, such a relationship may support a finding that there was implied permission to use the vehicle.]

[If the vehicle owner has given a person permission to use the vehicle, and that person authorizes a third person to operate the vehicle, the third person may be considered to have used the vehicle with the permission of the owner.]

New September 2003

Directions for Use

Separate instructions will be necessary regarding the negligence of the driver and that it caused harm to the plaintiff. Read bracketed language if appropriate to the facts. If ownership of the vehicle is uncontested, element 2 may be deleted.

Sources and Authority

- Permissive Use. Vehicle Code section 17150.
- Permissive Use: Limitation on Liability. Vehicle Code section 17151(a).
- The statutory limitation under section 17151(a) "does not apply . . . to a vehicle owner's own common law negligence, as distinguished from the owner's statutory vicarious liability for the operator's negligence." (Fremont Compensation Insurance Co. v. Hartnett (1993) 19 Cal.App.4th 669, 675–676 [23 Cal.Rptr.2d 567].)
- "[U]nless the evidence points to one conclusion only, the question of the existence of the requisite permission under [section 17150] is one to be determined by the trier of fact, 'upon the facts and circumstances in evidence and the inferences reasonably to be drawn therefrom.' " (Peterson v. Grieger, Inc. (1961) 57 Cal.2d 43, 51 [17 Cal.Rptr. 828, 367 P.2d 420], internal citations omitted.)

- "[P]ermission cannot be left to speculation or conjecture nor be assumed, but must be affirmatively proved, and the fact of permission is just as important to sustain the imposition of liability as is the fact of ownership." (Scheff v. Roberts (1950) 35 Cal.2d 10, 12 [215 P.2d 925], internal citations omitted.)
- "Where the issue of implied permissive use is involved, the general relationship existing between the owner and the operator, is of paramount importance. Where, for example, the parties are related by blood, or marriage, or where the relationship between the owner and the operator is that of principal and agent, weaker direct evidence will support a finding of such use than where the parties are only acquaintances or strangers." (Elkinton v. California State Automobile Assn., Interstate Insurance Bureau (1959) 173 Cal.App.2d 338, 344 [343 P.2d 396], internal citations omitted.)
- "There is no doubt that the word 'owner' as used in [the predecessor to Vehicle Code section 17150] for the purpose of creating a liability thereunder, is not synonymous with that word as used in the ordinary sense of referring to a person or persons whose title is good as against all others. Under the Vehicle Code there may be several such 'owners' at any one time. One or more persons may be an 'owner,' and thus liable for the injuries of a third party, even though no such 'owner' possesses all of the normal incidents of ownership." (Stoddart v. Peirce (1959) 53 Cal.2d 105, 115 [346 P.2d 774], internal citation omitted.)
- "The question whether the [defendant] was an owner for purposes of imposition of liability for negligence [under Vehicle Code section 17150] was one of fact." (Campbell v. Security Pacific Nat. Bank (1976) 62 Cal.App.3d 379, 385 [133 Cal.Rptr. 77].)
- "Strict compliance with Vehicle Code section 5602 [regarding the sale or transfer of a vehicle] is required to enable a transferring owner to escape the liability imposed by section 17150 on account of an accident occurring before notice of the transfer is received by the Motor Vehicle Department." (Laureano v. Christensen (1971) 18 Cal.App.3d 515, 520–521 [95 Cal.Rptr. 872].)
- "[T]he true and actual owner of an automobile [is not] relieved from liability by the expedient of registration in the name of another. . . . It is clear that it was the legislative intent to make the actual owners of automobiles liable for the negligence of those to whom permission is given to drive them. According to the allegations of the complaint defendants . . . were in fact the true owners of the car and had control of it, the registration being in the name of defendant [driver] for the purpose of avoiding liability." (McCalla v. Grosse (1941) 42 Cal.App.2d 546, 549–550 [109 P.2d 358].)
- "[I]t is a question of fact in cases of co-ownership, as it is in cases of single ownership, whether the operation of an automobile is with or without the consent, express or implied, of an owner who is not personally participating in such operation. The mere fact of co-ownership does not necessarily or conclusively establish that the common owners have consented to any usage or possession among themselves of a type for which permission is essential." (Krum v. Malloy (1943) 22 Cal.2d 132, 136 [137 P.2d 18].)

- "The immunity of the negligent operator under the [Workers' Compensation] Act does not insulate a vehicle owner who is neither the plaintiff's employer nor co-employee from liability under section 17150. [¶] Since the owner's liability does not arise from the status or liability of the operator, the defenses applicable to the operator are not available to the owner." (Galvis v. Petito (1993) 13 Cal.App.4th 551, 554 [16 Cal.Rptr.2d 560].)
- "The doctrine of 'negligent entrustment' is clearly distinguishable from the theory of 'vicarious liability.' Negligent entrustment is a common law liability doctrine. Conversely, the obligation of a lending owner of an automobile is one of statutory liability. An owner of an automobile may be independently negligent in entrusting it to an incompetent driver. California is one of several states which recognizes the liability of an automobile owner who has entrusted a car to an incompetent, reckless, or inexperienced driver, and has supplemented the common law doctrine of negligent entrustment by enactment of a specific consent statute." (Syah v. Johnson (1966) 247 Cal.App.2d 534, 538 [55 Cal.Rptr. 741], internal citations omitted.)
- For purposes of liability under the permissive use statute, "[s]ince defendant [car owner] had the opportunity of making such investigation as he deemed necessary to satisfy himself as to the identity of the [renter] to whom he intrusted his automobile, he should not be permitted to escape liability to a third party because of any fraudulent misrepresentation made by the renter of the car to him." (Tuderios v. Hertz Drivurself Stations, Inc. (1945) 70 Cal.App.2d 192, 198 [160 P.2d 554].)
- "[T]he provisions of Proposition 51 do not operate to reduce the liability of vehicle owners imposed by Vehicle Code section 17150." (Rashtian v. BRAC-BH, Inc. (1992) 9 Cal.App.4th 1847, 1849 [12 Cal.Rptr.2d 411].)
- "[I]f the evidence shows that an automobile was being driven by an employee of the owner at the time of an accident, the jury may infer that the employee was operating the automobile with the permission of the owner." (Hicks v. Reis (1943) 21 Cal.2d 654, 659 [134 P.2d 788], internal quotation marks and citations omitted.)
- "The mere fact that at the time of an accident one is driving an automobile belonging to another is not, of itself, sufficient to establish that the former was driving the car with the permission of the owner." (Di Rebaylio v. Herndon (1935) 6 Cal.App.2d 567, 569 [44 P.2d 581].)
- "[I]mplied permission to use an automobile may be found even where the owner and permittee expressly deny that permission was given." (Anderson v. Wagnon (1952) 110 Cal.App.2d 362, 366 [242 P.2d 915].)
- "[I]n determining whether there has been an implied permission, it is not necessary that the owner have prior knowledge that the driver intends to use the car, but it must be 'under circumstances from which consent to use the car is necessarily implied.' " (Mucci v. Winter (1951) 103 Cal.App.2d 627, 631 [230 P.2d 22], internal citation omitted.)

- For purposes of statutory vicarious liability, "if the owner entrusts his car to another he invests him with the same authority to select an operator which the owner has in the first instance. . . . [¶] . . . The owner is thus liable for negligent acts by a subpermittee even though the subpermittee operated the owner's vehicle with authorization only from the permittee, since the foundation of the statutory liability is the permission given to another to use an instrumentality which if improperly used is a danger and menace to the public." (Peterson v. Grieger, Inc. (1961) 57 Cal.2d 43, 54 [17 Cal.Rptr. 828, 367 P.2d 420], internal quotation marks and citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1416–1421, 1427

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) Automobiles, §§ 4.28–4.32, 4.37

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 20, Motor Vehicles, § 20.20 (Matthew Bender)

8 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 82, Automobiles: Causes of Action, §§ 82.11, 82.16 (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts §§ 25:44–25:45 (Thomson Reuters)

721. Motor Vehicle Owner Liability—Affirmative Defense—Use Beyond Scope of Permission

---

[Name of defendant] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] is not responsible for [name of plaintiff]'s harm because [name of driver]'s use of the vehicle exceeded the scope of the permission given. To succeed, [name of defendant] must prove both of the following:

1. That [name of defendant], by words or conduct, gave permission to [name of driver] to use the vehicle for a limited time, place, or purpose; and
2. That [name of driver]'s use of the vehicle substantially violated the time, place, or purpose specified.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This instruction is intended for use when the vehicle owner contends that the use of the vehicle exceeded the scope of the permission, thereby terminating the permission.

Sources and Authority

- Permissive Use. Vehicle Code section 17150.
- "[W]here the permission is granted for a limited time, any use after the expiration of the period is without consent, and the owner is not liable, unless the circumstances justify an inference of implied consent to further use. [¶] . . . On principle, there is no fundamental ground of distinction between a limitation of time and one of purpose or place, insofar as permission is concerned; and it would seem clear that a substantial violation of either limitation terminates the original express consent and makes the subsequent use without permission. . . . [¶] . . . [T]he substantial violation of limitations as to locality or purpose of use operate in the same manner as violation of time limitations, absolving the owner from liability." (Henrietta v. Evans (1938) 10 Cal.2d 526, 528–529 [75 P.2d 1051], internal citations omitted.)
- "[W]here restrictions by the owner as to time, purpose, or area are involved, the owner's permission is considered terminated only where there has been a substantial violation of such restrictions, and it is a question of fact whether under all the circumstances presented, such restrictions as to time, purpose, or area have been substantially violated prior to the occurrence of the accident so as to vitiate the owner's permission and thus absolve him from the vicarious liability imposed under [the predecessor to section 17150]." (Peterson v. Grieger, Inc. (1961) 57 Cal.2d 43, 52 [17 Cal.Rptr. 828, 367 P.2d 420], internal citations omitted.)

- "What is a substantial deviation from a permitted use is a question of fact under the circumstances of each case." (Garmon v. Sebastian (1960) 181 Cal.App.2d 254, 260 [5 Cal.Rptr. 101].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1428

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) Automobiles, §§ 4.35–4.36

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 20, Motor Vehicles, § 20.20[5][c] (Matthew Bender)

8 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 82, Automobiles: Causes of Action, § 82.16 (Matthew Bender)

722. Adult's Liability for Minor's Permissive Use of Motor Vehicle

---

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was harmed and that [name of defendant] is responsible for the harm because [name of defendant] gave [name of minor] permission to operate the vehicle. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of minor] was negligent in operating the vehicle;
2. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed;
3. That [name of minor]'s negligence was a substantial factor in causing the harm; and
4. That [name of defendant], by words or conduct, gave [name of minor] permission to use the vehicle.

New September 2003; Revised April 2004, October 2004

Directions for Use

Under Vehicle Code section 17708, an element of this cause of action is that the defendant must have "custody" of the minor driver. The instruction omits this element because it will most likely be stipulated to or decided by the judge as a matter of law. If there are contested issues of fact regarding this element, this instruction may be augmented to include the specific factual findings necessary to arrive at a determination of custody.

Sources and Authority

- Parental Liability for Minor's Vehicle Operation. Vehicle Code section 17708.
- "[I]t was incumbent upon [plaintiffs], in order to fasten liability upon [the parents] for the minor's negligence, to establish two necessary facts. These facts were, first, that at the time the collision occurred respondents had custody of the minor and, second, that they had given to the minor their permission, either express or implied, to his driving the automobile by the negligent operation of which the injuries were caused." (Sommers v. Van Der Linden (1938) 24 Cal.App.2d 375, 380 [75 P.2d 83].)
- "Whether or not a sufficient custody existed, within the meaning of the statute, might well depend upon evidence of specific facts showing the nature, kind and extent of the custody and right of control which the respondent [grandfather] actually had." (Hughes v. Wardwell (1953) 117 Cal.App.2d 406, 409 [255 P.2d 881].)
- "In the absence of statute, ordinarily a parent is not liable for the torts of his minor child. A parent, however, becomes liable for the torts of his minor child if that child in committing a tort is his agent and acting within the child's authority." (Van Den Eikhof v. Hocker (1978) 87 Cal.App.3d 900, 904–905 [151

Cal.Rptr. 456], internal citations omitted.)

- " '[P]erson having custody of the minor' means person having permanent legal custody, and not a person such as a school teacher whose control over his pupils is limited in time and scope." (Hathaway v. Siskiyou Union High School Dist. (1944) 66 Cal.App.2d 103, 114 [151 P.2d 861].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1412–1415

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) Automobiles, §§ 4.42–4.43

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 20, Motor Vehicles, § 20.30[1] (Matthew Bender)

8 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 82, Automobiles: Causes of Action, § 82.16, Ch. 83, Automobiles: Bringing the Action, § 83.133 (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts § 25:52 (Thomson Reuters)

723. Liability of Cosigner of Minor's Application for Driver's License

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was harmed by [name of minor]'s negligence in operating the vehicle and that [name of defendant] is responsible for the harm because [name of defendant] signed [name of minor]'s application for a driver's license. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of minor] was negligent in operating the vehicle;
2. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed;
3. That [name of minor]'s negligence was a substantial factor in causing the harm;
4. That [name of defendant] signed [name of minor]'s application for a driver's license; and
5. That at the time of the collision [name of minor]'s driver's license had not been canceled or revoked by the Department of Motor Vehicles.

New September 2003

Sources and Authority

- Liability of Cosigner of Minor's Driver's License Application. Vehicle Code section 17707.
- No Liability if Minor is Agent of Another. Vehicle Code section 17710.
- Application for Relief From Liability. Vehicle Code section 17711.
- "Cancellation accomplishes voluntarily what revocation [of minor's driver's license] accomplishes involuntarily. If termination is accomplished by the latter method, resort to the former becomes superfluous. Once revocation occurs, the driving privilege is at an end. Thereafter there is no reason and no necessity for a voluntary application to terminate that which has already been terminated involuntarily. Both means are equally effective to terminate the driving privilege and to terminate the signer's liability." (Hamilton v. Dick (1967) 254 Cal.App.2d 123, 125 [61 Cal.Rptr. 894].)
- "[T]he negligence of the minor son of the [parents] is imputed to them . . . by virtue of their having signed his application for an operator's license, which was not revoked or cancelled at the time of the accident in question, notwithstanding the fact that the license was then temporarily suspended" and even though the parents specifically forbade the minor from operating the vehicle. (Sleeper v. Woodmansee (1936) 11 Cal.App.2d 595, 598 [54 P.2d 519].)
- "It seems quite evident that, in adopting [the predecessors to sections 17150 and 17707] of the Vehicle Code, the legislature intended to create a limited liability for imputed negligence against both the owner of an automobile and the signer of a driver's license. . . . We must assume the legislature intended to fix a limited liability . . . for imputed negligence against the owner of an automobile and the signer of a driver's license or either of them and that it did not intend to double that limited liability when the same individual was both the owner of the machine and the signer of the license." (Rogers v. Foppiano (1937) 23 Cal.App.2d 87, 92–93 [72 P.2d 239].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1412–1415

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) Automobiles, §§ 4.41, 4.43

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 20, Motor Vehicles, § 20.30[2] (Matthew Bender)

8 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 82, Automobiles: Causes of Action, § 82.16, Ch. 83, Automobiles: Bringing the Action, § 83.134 (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts § 25:52 (Thomson Reuters)

724. Negligent Entrustment of Motor Vehicle

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was harmed because [name of defendant] negligently permitted [name of driver] to use [name of defendant]'s vehicle. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of driver] was negligent in operating the vehicle;
2. That [name of defendant] [owned the vehicle operated by [name of driver]/had possession of the vehicle operated by [name of driver] with the owner's permission];
3. That [name of defendant] knew, or should have known, that [name of driver] was incompetent or unfit to drive the vehicle;
4. That [name of defendant] permitted [name of driver] to drive the vehicle; and
5. That [name of driver]'s incompetence or unfitness to drive was a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff].

New September 2003; Revised December 2009

Directions for Use

For a definition of "negligence," see CACI No. 401, Basic Standard of Care.

Sources and Authority

- Permissive Use by Unlicensed Driver. Vehicle Code section 14606(a).
- Permissive Use by Unlicensed Minor. Vehicle Code section 14607.
- Rental to Unlicensed Driver. Vehicle Code section 14608(a).
- " ' "[I]t is generally recognized that one who places or entrusts his [or her] motor vehicle in the hands of one whom he [or she] knows, or from the circumstances is charged with knowing, is incompetent or unfit to drive, may be held liable for an injury inflicted by the use made thereof by that driver, provided the plaintiff can establish that the injury complained of was proximately caused by the driver's disqualification, incompetency, inexperience or recklessness . . . ." ' " (Flores v. Enterprise Rent-A-Car Co. (2010) 188 Cal.App.4th 1055, 1063 [116 Cal.Rptr.3d 71].)
- "A rental car company may be held liable for negligently entrusting one of its cars to a customer. . . . In determining whether defendant was negligent in entrusting its car to [the driver], defendant's conduct is to be measured by what an ordinarily prudent person would do in similar circumstances." (Osborn v. Hertz Corp. (1988) 205 Cal.App.3d 703, 709 [252 Cal.Rptr. 613], internal citations omitted.)

- "Liability for negligent entrustment is determined by applying general principles of negligence, and ordinarily it is for the jury to determine whether the owner has exercised the required degree of care." (Allen v. Toledo (1980) 109 Cal.App.3d 415, 421 [167 Cal.Rptr. 270], internal citations omitted.)
- " 'A claim that an employer was negligent in hiring or retaining an employee-driver rarely differs in substance from a claim that an employer was negligent in entrusting a vehicle to the employee. Awareness, constructive or actual, that a person is unfit or incompetent to drive underlies a claim that an employer was negligent in hiring or retaining that person as a driver. (See Judicial Council of Cal. Civ. Jury Instns. (2010) CACI No. 426.) That same awareness underlies a claim for negligent entrustment. (See CACI No. 724.) In a typical case . . . the two claims are functionally identical.' " (McKenna v. Beesley (2021) 67 Cal.App.5th 552, 566–567 [282 Cal.Rptr.3d 431], internal citation and footnote omitted.)
- "[I]f an employer admits vicarious liability for its employee's negligent driving in the scope of employment, 'the damages attributable to both employer and employee will be coextensive.' Thus, when a plaintiff alleges a negligent entrustment or hiring cause of action against the employer and the employer admits vicarious liability for its employee's negligent driving, the universe of defendants who can be held responsible for plaintiff's damages is reduced by one—the employer—for purposes of apportioning fault under Proposition 51. Consequently, the employer would not be mentioned on the special verdict form. The jury must divide fault for the accident among the listed tortfeasors, and the employer is liable only for whatever share of fault the jury assigns to the employee." (Diaz v. Carcamo (2011) 51 Cal.4th 1148, 1159 [126 Cal.Rptr.3d 443, 253 P.3d 535], internal citation omitted.)
- "[O]rdinarily, in the absence of a special relationship between the parties, there is no duty to control the conduct of a third person so as to prevent him from causing harm to another and . . . this rule applies even where the third person's conduct is made possible only because the defendant has relinquished control of his property to the third person, unless the defendant has reason to believe that the third person is incompetent to manage it." (Grafton v. Mollica (1965) 231 Cal.App.2d 860, 863 [42 Cal.Rptr. 306].)
- "[T]he tort requires demonstration of actual knowledge of facts showing or suggesting the driver's incompetence—not merely his lack of a license. . . . For liability to exist, knowledge must be shown of the user's incompetence or inability safely to use the [vehicle]." (Dodge Center v. Superior Court (1988) 199 Cal.App.3d 332, 341 [244 Cal.Rptr. 789], internal citations omitted.)
- "Knowledge of possession of a temporary permit allowing a person to drive only if accompanied by a licensed driver is sufficient to put the entrustor 'upon inquiry as to the competency of' the unlicensed driver. . . . It is then for the jury to determine under the circumstances whether the entrustor is negligent in permitting the unlicensed driver to operate the vehicle." (Nault v. Smith (1961) 194 Cal.App.2d 257, 267–268 [14 Cal.Rptr. 889], internal citations omitted.)

- "In cases involving negligent entrustment of a vehicle, liability ' "is imposed on [a] vehicle owner or permitter because of his own independent negligence and not the negligence of the driver." ' " (Ghezavat v. Harris (2019) 40 Cal.App.5th 555, 559 [252 Cal.Rptr.3d 887].)
- "[E]ntrustment of a vehicle to an intoxicated person is not negligence per se. A plaintiff must prove defendant had knowledge of plaintiff's incompetence when entrusting the vehicle." (Blake v. Moore (1984) 162 Cal.App.3d 700, 706 [208 Cal.Rptr. 703].)
- "[T]he mere sale of an automobile to an unlicensed and inexperienced person does not constitute negligence per se." (Perez v. G & W Chevrolet, Inc. (1969) 274 Cal.App.2d 766, 768 [79 Cal.Rptr. 287].)
- "It is well-settled that where a company knows that an employee has no operator's license that such knowledge is sufficient to put the employer on inquiry as to his competency; it is for the jury to determine under such circumstances whether the employer was negligent in permitting the employee to drive a vehicle." (Syah v. Johnson (1966) 247 Cal.App.2d 534, 545 [55 Cal.Rptr. 741].)
- "[I]t has generally been held that the owner of an automobile is under no duty to persons who may be injured by its use to keep it out of the hands of a third person in the absence of facts putting the owner on notice that the third person is incompetent to handle it." (Richards v. Stanley (1954) 43 Cal.2d 60, 63 [271 P.2d 23], internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]he mere fact of co-ownership does not prevent one co-owner from controlling use of the vehicle by the other co-owner. Thus, where . . . plaintiff alleges that one co-owner had power over the use of the vehicle by the other and that the negligent co-owner drove with the express or implied consent of such controlling co-owner, who knew of the driver's incompetence, the basis for a cause of action for negligent entrustment has been stated." (Mettelka v. Superior Court (1985) 173 Cal.App.3d 1245, 1250 [219 Cal.Rptr. 697].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1372–1377

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 2(II)-B, Liability Arising From Operation Of Motor Vehicle, ¶ 2:985 (The Rutter Group)

Croskey et al., California Practice Guide: Insurance Litigation, Ch. 7D-D, Liability Based On Negligent Entrustment, ¶ 7:1332 (The Rutter Group)

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) Automobiles, § 4.38

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 20, Motor Vehicles, § 20.21 (Matthew Bender)

8 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 82, Automobiles: Causes of Action, § 82.11 (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts § 25:47 (Thomson Reuters)

725–729. Reserved for Future Use

730. Emergency Vehicle Exemption (Veh. Code, § 21055)

[Name of defendant] claims that [name of public employee] was not required to comply with Vehicle Code section [insert section number] because [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was operating an authorized emergency vehicle and was responding to an emergency at the time of the accident.

To establish that [name of public employee] was not required to comply with section [insert section number], [name of defendant] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of public employee] was operating an authorized emergency vehicle;
2. That [name of public employee] was responding to an emergency situation at the time of the accident; and
3. That [name of public employee] sounded a siren when reasonably necessary and displayed front red warning lights.

If you decide that [name of defendant] proved all of these things, then you cannot find it negligent for a violation of section [insert section number]. However, even if you decide that [name of defendant] proved all of these things, you may find it negligent if [name of public employee] failed to operate [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] vehicle with reasonable care, taking into account the emergency situation.

New September 2003; Revised December 2022

Directions for Use

This instruction assumes that the public employer is the only defendant. Change the "it" pronouns in the final paragraph if there are other defendants in the case (e.g., if the public employee is also a defendant).

For a definition of "emergency," see CACI No. 731, Definition of "Emergency."

Sources and Authority

- Authorized Emergency Vehicle Exemption. Vehicle Code section 21055.
- "Authorized Emergency Vehicle" Defined. Vehicle Code section 165.
- Authorized Emergency Vehicle: Public Employee Immunity. Vehicle Code section 17004.
- Emergency Vehicle Drivers: Duty Regarding Public Safety. Vehicle Code section 21056.
- "The purpose of the statute is to provide a 'clear and speedy pathway' for these municipal vehicles on their flights to emergencies in which the entire public are necessarily concerned." (Peerless Laundry Services v. City of Los Angeles (1952) 109 Cal.App.2d 703, 707 [241 P.2d 269].)

- "The effect of Vehicle Code sections 21055 and 21056 is: where the driver of an authorized emergency vehicle is engaged in a specified emergency function he may violate certain rules of the road, such as speed and right of way laws, if he activates his red light and where necessary his siren in order to alert other users of the road to the situation. In such circumstances the driver may not be held to be negligent solely upon the violation of specified rules of the road, but may be held to be negligent if he fails to exercise due regard for the safety of others under the circumstances. Where the driver of an emergency vehicle fails to activate his red light, and where necessary his siren, he is not exempt from the rules of the road even though he may be engaged in a proper emergency function, and negligence may be based upon the violation of the rules of the road." (City of Sacramento v. Superior Court (1982) 131 Cal.App.3d 395, 402–403 [182 Cal.Rptr. 443], internal citations omitted.)
- "Notwithstanding [Vehicle Code section 17004], a public entity is liable for injuries proximately caused by negligent acts or omissions in the operation of any motor vehicle by an employee of the public entity, acting within the scope of his or her employment." (City of San Jose v. Superior Court (1985) 166 Cal.App.3d 695, 698 [212 Cal.Rptr. 661], internal citations omitted.)
- "If the driver of an authorized emergency vehicle is responding to an emergency call and gives the prescribed warnings by red light and siren, a charge of negligence against him may not be predicated on his violation of the designated Vehicle Code sections; but if he does not give the warnings, the contrary is true; and in the event the charged negligence is premised on conduct without the scope of the exemption a common-law standard of care is applicable." (Grant v. Petronella (1975) 50 Cal.App.3d 281, 286 [123 Cal.Rptr. 399], internal citations omitted.)
- "Where the driver of an emergency vehicle responding to an emergency call does not give the warnings prescribed by section 21055, the legislative warning policy expressed in that section dictates the conclusion [that] the common-law standard of care governing his conduct does not include a consideration of the emergency circumstances attendant upon his response to an emergency call." (Grant, supra, 50 Cal.App.3d at p. 289, footnote omitted.)
- "It will be remembered that the exemption provided by section 454 [from which section 21055] of the Vehicle Code [was derived] was available to appellant as an affirmative defense, and upon appellant rested the burden of proving the necessary compliance with its provisions." (Washington v. City and County of San Francisco (1954) 123 Cal.App.2d 235, 242 [266 P.2d 828].)
- "In short the statute exempts the employer of such a driver from liability for negligence attributable to his failure to comply with specified statutory provisions, but it does not in any manner purport to exempt the employer from liability due to negligence attributable to the driver's failure to maintain that standard of care imposed by the common law." (Torres v. City of Los Angeles (1962) 58 Cal.2d 35, 47 [22 Cal.Rptr. 866, 372 P.2d 906].)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 394–398

2 Government Tort Liability Practice (Cont.Ed.Bar 4th ed.) §§ 11.140–11.144

2 Neil M. Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 20, Motor Vehicles, § 20.55 (Matthew Bender, Rev. Ed.)

20 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 246, Emergency Vehicles, § 246.13 (Matthew Bender)

731. Definition of "Emergency" (Veh. Code, § 21055)

An "emergency" exists if the driver of an authorized emergency vehicle is [*insert one of the following]

[responding to an emergency call.]

[involved in rescue operations.]

[in the immediate pursuit of an actual or suspected violator of the law.]

[responding to, but not returning from, a fire alarm.]

[operating a fire department vehicle while traveling from one place to another place because of an emergency call.]

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This instruction is based on the language of Vehicle Code section 21055(a) and is only intended for cases in which there is a factual issue regarding whether the defendant was acting in response to an emergency at the time of the accident. (Washington v. City and County of San Francisco (1954) 123 Cal.App.2d 235, 241 [266 P.2d 828].)

Sources and Authority

- Authorized Emergency Vehicle Exemption. Vehicle Code section 21055(a).
- "Whether a vehicle is driven in response to an emergency call depends on the nature of the call received and the situation as presented to the mind of the driver and not upon whether there is an emergency in fact. The driver, of course, should have reasonable grounds to believe that there is an emergency." (Gallup v. Sparks-Mundo Engineering Co. (1954) 43 Cal.2d 1, 5 [271 P.2d 34], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 358, 394–398

2 Government Tort Liability Practice (Cont.Ed.Bar 4th ed.) §§ 11.140–11.144

732–799. Reserved for Future Use

VF-700. Motor Vehicle Owner Liability—Permissive Use of Vehicle

---

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Was [name of defendant] an owner of the vehicle at the time of the injury to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Did [name of defendant], by words or conduct, give permission to [name of driver] to use the vehicle?

   _____ Yes _____ No

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised December 2010, May 2024

Directions for Use

This is for use in conjunction with the general negligence verdict forms involving motor vehicles. The two questions here should be incorporated into the verdict form regarding the underlying case. The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 720, Motor Vehicle Owner Liability—Permissive Use of Vehicle.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

VF-701. Motor Vehicle Owner Liability—Permissive Use of Vehicle—Affirmative Defense—Use Beyond Scope of Permission

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Was [name of defendant] an owner of the vehicle at the time of the injury to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Did [name of defendant], by words or conduct, give permission to [name of driver] to use the vehicle?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Was [name of defendant]'s permission to use the vehicle given for a limited time, place, or purpose?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. Did [name of driver]'s use of the vehicle substantially violate the limitations as to time, place, or purpose?

   _____ Yes _____ No

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised December 2010, May 2024

Directions for Use

This is for use in conjunction with the general negligence verdict forms involving motor vehicles. The four questions here should be incorporated into the verdict form regarding the underlying case. The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 720, Motor Vehicle Owner Liability—Permissive Use of Vehicle, and CACI No. 721*, Motor Vehicle Owner Liability—Affirmative Defense—Use Beyond Scope of Permission.*

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

VF-702. Adult's Liability for Minor's Permissive Use of Motor Vehicle

---

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Was [name of minor] negligent in operating the vehicle?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Was [name of minor]'s negligence a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Did [name of defendant], by words or conduct, give [name of minor] permission to use the vehicle?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other past economic loss $_____]

   Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

   [b. Future economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other future economic loss $_____]

   Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised October 2004, April 2007, December 2010, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 722, Adult's Liability for Minor's Permissive Use of Motor Vehicle.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 4 and do not have to categorize "economic" and "noneconomic" damages, especially if it is not a Proposition 51 case. The breakdown of damages is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-703. Liability of Cosigner of Minor's Application for Driver's License

---

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Was [name of minor] negligent in operating the vehicle?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Was [name of minor]'s negligence a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Did [name of defendant] sign [name of minor]'s application for a driver's license?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. At the time of the collision, had [name of minor]'s driver's license been cancelled or revoked by the Department of Motor Vehicles?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 4 is no, then answer question 5. If you answered yes, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

5. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other past economic loss $_____]

   Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, December 2010, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 723, Liability of Cosigner of Minor's Application for Driver's License.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 5 and do not have to categorize "economic" and "noneconomic" damages, especially if it is not a Proposition 51 case. The breakdown of damages is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-704. Negligent Entrustment of Motor Vehicle

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Was [name of driver] negligent in operating the vehicle?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Did [name of defendant] own the vehicle operated by [name of driver] or did [name of defendant] have possession of the vehicle operated by [name of driver] with the owner's permission?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Did [name of defendant] know, or should [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] have known, that [name of driver] was incompetent or unfit to drive?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. Did [name of defendant] permit [name of driver] to drive the vehicle?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 4 is yes, then answer question 5. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

5. Was [name of driver]'s incompetence or unfitness to drive a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 5 is yes, then answer question 6. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

6. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other past economic loss $_____]

Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, December 2010, June 2011, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 724, Negligent Entrustment of Motor Vehicle. Modify to include elements of negligence instruction against the driver if plaintiff is suing both driver and owner.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 6 and do not have to categorize "economic" and "noneconomic" damages, especially if it is not a Proposition 51 case. The breakdown of damages is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-705–VF-799. Reserved for Future Use

RAILROAD CROSSINGS

800. Basic Standard of Care for Railroads

Railroad companies must use reasonable care to avoid causing injury to anyone crossing railroad tracks from a street or roadway. [Railroad companies must use reasonable care in the design and maintenance of warning signals and protective devices at railroad crossings.] [Train operators must use reasonable care in operating their trains at railroad crossings.] The failure to use reasonable care is negligence.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

The instructions in this series should be used together with one or more of the instructions that follow, which give specific guidance on the nature and scope of a railroad's duties of care regarding grade crossings.

Consideration should be given as to whether any of the asserted theories of liability are preempted by federal law (see CSX Transportation, Inc. v. Easterwood (1993) 507 U.S. 658 [113 S.Ct. 1732, 123 L.Ed.2d 387] and Norfolk Southern Railway Co. v. Shanklin (2000) 529 U.S. 344 [120 S.Ct. 1467, 146 L.Ed.2d 374]). If so, it may be necessary to modify this instruction to avoid indirect reference to these theories.

Sources and Authority

- The California Supreme Court has stated the duty of railroads at crossings as follows: "Generally speaking, the duty to exercise reasonable or ordinary care is imposed upon the operator of a railroad at public highway crossings with respect to persons traveling upon the highway and over the crossing, both as to the manner of operating the train and the maintenance of the crossing. The standard of care is that of the man of ordinary prudence under the circumstances." (Peri v. Los Angeles Junction Ry. Co. (1943) 22 Cal.2d 111, 120 [137 P.2d 441], internal citations omitted.)
- "Ordinarily the issue of the negligence in crossing cases, whether the railroad was negligent in the design and maintenance of the crossing or in the operation of the train, is one of fact as in other negligence cases." (Romo v. Southern Pacific Transportation Co. (1977) 71 Cal.App.3d 909, 916 [139 Cal.Rptr. 787], internal citations omitted.)
- The amount of care that is "reasonable" varies in proportion to the circumstances constituting the probable danger. (Romo, supra, 71 Cal.App.3d at p. 916.)
- "Where the conditions existing at the crossing create an unusual hazard or danger, the operator of the railroad must exercise care commensurate with those circumstances, and whether he has done so is a question of fact." (Peri, supra, 22 Cal.2d at p. 123.)
- "We hold that . . . federal regulations adopted by the Secretary of Transportation pre-empt respondent's negligence action only insofar as it asserts that petitioner's train was traveling at an excessive speed." (CSX Transportation, Inc., supra, 507 U.S. at p. 676.)

- "When the [Federal Highway Administration] approves a crossing improvement project and the State installs the warning devices using federal funds, [federal regulations] establish a federal standard for the adequacy of those devices that displaces state tort law addressing the same subject." (Norfolk Southern Railway Co., supra, 529 U.S. at p. 357.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1039, 1239, 1240, 1479

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) Railroad Crossings, § 12.2

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 23, Carriers, §§ 23.25–23.26 (Matthew Bender)

42 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 485, Railroads, § 485.61 (Matthew Bender)

801. Duty to Comply With Safety Regulations

An [ordinance/regulation] of the [*insert name of entity] provides as follows: [insert text of ordinance or regulation]

Railroad companies must obey safety regulations. Regulations state only the minimum measure of care required of a railroad company. Particular conditions and situations may require a company to use more care than the regulations require.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

Regulations adopted by the Secretary of Transportation pursuant to the Federal Railroad Safety Act preempt state common-law negligence claims based on general allegations of "excessive speed." (CSX Transportation, Inc. v. Easterwood (1993) 507 U.S. 658, 675 [113 S.Ct. 1732, 123 L.Ed.2d 387].) Also, claims alleging inadequate warning devices are preempted where federally funded grade crossing improvements have been installed. (Norfolk Southern Railway Co. v. Shanklin (2000) 529 U.S. 344, 359 [120 S.Ct. 1467, 146 L.Ed.2d 374].) This instruction is not intended to apply to situations in which a railroad's compliance with these federal safety regulations would preempt state law negligence claims.

Sources and Authority

- " ' "It is well settled that such statutory regulations constitute only the minimum measure of care required by the railroad, and it is usually a matter for the jury to determine whether something more than the minimum was required under the evidence in the case." ' A railroad company is not necessarily free from negligence, even though it may have literally complied with safety statutes or rules. The circumstances may require it to do more." (Hogue v. Southern Pacific Co. (1969) 1 Cal.3d 253, 258 [81 Cal.Rptr. 765, 460 P.2d 965], internal citations omitted; Peri v. Los Angeles Junction Ry. Co. (1943) 22 Cal.2d 111, 126 [137 P.2d 441].)
- "If the peculiar characteristics of a crossing call for the installation of automatic protection—or the upgrading of existing automatic protection—the railroad may be guilty of negligence in failing to provide such protection." (Romo v. Southern Pacific Transportation Co. (1977) 71 Cal.App.3d 909, 916 [139 Cal.Rptr. 787], internal citations omitted.)
- "We hold that . . . federal regulations adopted by the Secretary of Transportation pre-empt respondent's negligence action only insofar as it asserts that petitioner's train was traveling at an excessive speed." (CSX Transportation, Inc., supra, 507 U.S. at p. 676.)
- "When the [Federal Highway Administration] approves a crossing improvement project and the State installs the warning devices using federal funds, [federal regulations] establish a federal standard for the adequacy of those devices that displaces state tort law addressing the same subject." (Norfolk Southern Railway Co., supra, 529 U.S. at p. 357.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1039, 1239, 1240, 1479

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) Railroad Crossings, § 12.4

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 23, Carriers, § 23.25[4] (Matthew Bender)

42 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 485, Railroads, § 485.64 (Matthew Bender)

802. Reserved for Future Use

803. Regulating Speed

[A railroad company] [A train operator] must use reasonable care to control the train's speed as it approaches and passes through a railroad crossing. The [railroad company] [train operator] must control train speed with due regard for the safety of human life and property, taking into consideration the location and conditions of the crossing.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This instruction may not be appropriate in certain cases. Regulations adopted by the Secretary of Transportation pursuant to the Federal Railroad Safety Act preempt state common-law negligence claims based on general allegations of "excessive speed." (CSX Transportation, Inc. v. Easterwood (1993) 507 U.S. 658, 675 [113 S.Ct. 1732, 123 L.Ed.2d 387].) However, a negligence action based on a duty to slow or stop a train to avoid a specific, individual hazard is not preempted. (CSX Transportation, Inc., supra, 507 U.S. at 676, fn. 15.)

Sources and Authority

- "We hold that . . . federal regulations adopted by the Secretary of Transportation pre-empt respondent's negligence action only insofar as it asserts that petitioner's train was traveling at an excessive speed." (CSX Transportation, Inc., supra, 507 U.S. at p. 676.)
- "While it is true that no rate of speed is negligence per se in the absence of a statute or ordinance, it does not follow that a railroad company will be permitted to run its trains under all conditions at any rate of speed it may choose. It must regulate its speed with proper regard for the safety of human life and property, especially when running through towns and cities. . . . [T]he question whether or not a rate of speed is excessive is one of fact for the jury." (Young v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co. (1929) 208 Cal. 568, 572–573 [283 P. 61].)
- "The 'reasonably prudent person' test applies also to the speed at which a train approaches and passes a crossing, and material in the application of that test is 'that no unnecessary risk shall be cast upon the public' considering the 'location and surroundings' of the crossing involved. Specially mentioned is a 'crossing in a thickly populated community and extensively used.' " (Rice v. Southern Pacific Co. (1967) 247 Cal.App.2d 701, 707 [55 Cal.Rptr. 840], internal citations omitted.)
- "[I]t is for the jury to say whether the speed of a train was too high for a particular intersection." (Romo v. Southern Pacific Transportation Co. (1977) 71 Cal.App.3d 909, 916 [139 Cal.Rptr. 787].)
- Even when crossing protection is provided and the company speed limit is not exceeded, speeding is still a question of fact. (Herrera v. Southern Pacific Co. (1957) 155 Cal.App.2d 781, 787 [318 P.2d 784].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1039, 1239, 1240, 1479

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) Railroad Crossings, § 12.5

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 23, Carriers, § 23.26[6] (Matthew Bender)

42 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 485, Railroads, § 485.64 (Matthew Bender)

804. Lookout for Crossing Traffic

A train operator must keep a reasonable lookout for vehicles and people. If an operator discovers, or should have discovered, that a vehicle or a person is on or near the track, the operator must use reasonable care to avoid causing harm.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

For an instruction regarding the right to expect that others will use reasonable care, see CACI No. 411, Reliance on Good Conduct of Others.

Regulations adopted by the Secretary of Transportation pursuant to the Federal Railroad Safety Act preempt state common-law negligence claims based on general allegations of "excessive speed." (CSX Transportation, Inc. v. Easterwood (1993) 507 U.S. 658, 675 [113 S.Ct. 1732, 123 L.Ed.2d 387].) However, a negligence action based on a duty to slow or stop a train to avoid a specific, individual hazard is not preempted. (CSX Transportation, Inc., supra, 507 U.S. at p. 675, fn. 15.)

Sources and Authority

- "Obviously, the railroad may not be required to guarantee the safety of those crossing its tracks. It is not required to anticipate that at every crossing, an automobile will be driven in the path of the train. It is only required to exercise ordinary care to discover such automobiles and to thereafter exercise care to avoid a collision." (Essick v. Union Pacific Ry. Co. (1960) 182 Cal.App.2d 456, 463 [6 Cal.Rptr. 208].)
- The following instruction was approved in Essick, supra, 182 Cal.App.2d at p. 461: " 'The duty of [defendant] toward persons using the private crossing we are here concerned with was to exercise ordinary care to discover any such persons on or near the crossing and to exercise ordinary care to avoid injuring such persons after their presence on or near the track was discovered.' "
- "The train crew cannot assume that a highway crossing in the middle of a city will be clear and they must keep a reasonable lookout for the presence of intersecting traffic. This implies as a corollary the further obligation to have the train under such control as may be reasonably necessary to deal with situations which an ordinarily prudent operator would anticipate." (Herrera v. Southern Pacific Co. (1957) 155 Cal.App.2d 781, 785 [318 P.2d 784], internal citations omitted.)
- "The installation and maintenance of automatic signals does not relieve a railroad company of this duty of keeping a reasonable lookout for other traffic." (Herrera, supra, 155 Cal.App.2d at p. 786, internal citations omitted.)
- "We hold that . . . federal regulations adopted by the Secretary of Transportation pre-empt respondent's negligence action only insofar as it asserts that petitioner's train was traveling at an excessive speed." (CSX Transportation, Inc., supra, 507 U.S. at p. 676.) However, a negligence action based on a duty to slow or stop a train to avoid a specific, individual hazard is not preempted. (Ibid, fn. 15.)

- In a thoughtful opinion, the Oklahoma Supreme Court has held the following: "We hold that a specific, individual hazard is a person, vehicle, obstruction, object, or event which is not a fixed condition or feature of the crossing and which is not capable of being taken into account by the Secretary of Transportation in the promulgation of uniform, national speed regulations. In short, a specific, individual hazard refers to a unique occurrence which could lead to a specific and imminent collision and not to allegedly dangerous conditions at a particular crossing." (Myers v. Missouri Pacific Railroad Co. (Okla. 2002) 52 P.3d 1014, 1027, footnotes omitted.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1039, 1239, 1240, 1479

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) Railroad Crossings, § 12.6

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 23, Carriers, § 23.26[2] (Matthew Bender)

42 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 485, Railroads, § 485.62 (Matthew Bender)

805. Installing Warning Systems

Railroad companies must post signs or other devices that give the public reasonable warning of the presence of its tracks. A railroad company must use reasonable care in the design, installation, operation, and maintenance of its warning signals and protective systems. The amount of care that is reasonable depends on the particular characteristics of each crossing.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This instruction may not be appropriate in certain cases. Claims alleging inadequate warning devices are preempted where federally funded grade crossing improvements have been installed. (Norfolk Southern Railway Co. v. Shanklin (2000) 529 U.S. 344, 353 [120 S.Ct. 1467, 146 L.Ed.2d 374].)

Sources and Authority

- "[O]nce the [Federal Highway Administration] has funded the crossing improvement and the warning devices are actually installed and operating, the regulation 'displace[s] state and private decision-making authority by establishing a federal-law requirement that certain devices be installed or federal approval obtained.' " (Norfolk Southern Railway Co., supra, 529 U.S. at p. 354, internal citation omitted.)
- "It should be noted that nothing prevents a State from revisiting the adequacy of devices installed using federal funds. States are free to install more protective devices at such crossings with their own funds or with additional funding from the FHWA. What States cannot do—once they have installed federally funded devices at a particular crossing—is hold the railroad responsible for the adequacy of those devices." (Norfolk Southern Railway Co., supra, 529 U.S. at p. 358.)
- "If the peculiar characteristics of a crossing call for the installation of automatic protection—or the upgrading of existing automatic protection—the railroad may be guilty of negligence in failing to provide such protection." (Romo v. Southern Pacific Transportation Co. (1977) 71 Cal.App.3d 909, 916 [139 Cal.Rptr. 787], internal citation omitted.)
- "Whether a railroad is negligent in the design and maintenance of the crossing is a question of fact for the jury." (Wilkinson v. Southern Pacific Co. (1964) 224 Cal.App.2d 478, 487–488 [36 Cal.Rptr. 689], internal citation omitted.)
- "The defendant, having undertaken to warn travelers of the approach of its trains by the use of a wigwag, was under a duty to use reasonable care in the construction and maintenance of the signal system lest the appearance of safety created by the presence of the device constitute a trap for persons relying upon it for protection." (Startup v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co. (1947) 29 Cal.2d 866, 869 [180 P.2d 896].)

- "Whatever may be the purpose of maintaining an automatic wig-wag signal at a railroad crossing, even though it be intended to merely warn travelers of the approach of trains, common justice demands that it shall be so constructed and maintained that it will not lure travelers on the highway into danger. It follows that a company which does maintain such a defective system will be held liable for injuries sustained as the result of those imperfections, regardless of whether the system was designed to warn travelers of the approach of trains rather than to inform them of the danger from stationary cars which block the crossings." (Mallett v. Southern Pacific Co. (1937) 20 Cal.App.2d 500, 509 [68 P.2d 281].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1039, 1239, 1240, 1479

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) Railroad Crossings, §§ 12.8–12.9

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 23, Carriers, § 23.25[4] (Matthew Bender)

42 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 485, Railroads, § 485.64 (Matthew Bender)

806. Comparative Fault—Duty to Approach Crossing With Care

A driver approaching a railroad crossing is required to use reasonable care to discover whether a train is approaching. The amount of care that is reasonable will depend on the circumstances. A railroad track is itself a warning of danger. If the driver's view of approaching trains is blocked, the driver must use greater care than when the view is clear.

If a bell or signal has been placed to warn drivers of danger, a driver is not required to use as much care as when there are no such warnings. However, even if the warning devices are not activated, a driver must use reasonable care in looking and listening for approaching trains.

New September 2003; Revised December 2009, May 2020

Directions for Use

For an instruction regarding the prima facie speed limits set by Vehicle Code section 22352, see CACI No. 707, Speed Limit. For an instruction on the duty of care of a passenger, see CACI No. 711, The Passenger's Duty of Care for Own Safety. For instructions on negligence per se, see CACI Nos. 418 to 421.

Sources and Authority

- Vehicle Proceeding at Railroad Crossing. Vehicle Code section 22451.
- Speed Limit at Railroad Crossing. Vehicle Code section 22352(a)(1).
- "[T]hat the driver's view is somewhat obstructed does not make him contributorily negligent as a matter of law; whether his failure to stop, the place from which he looks and the character and extent of the obstruction to his view are such that a reasonably prudent person would not have so conducted himself are questions for the jury in determining whether he was guilty of contributory negligence." (Lucas v. Southern Pacific Co. (1971) 19 Cal.App.3d 124, 139 [96 Cal.Rptr. 356].)
- "A railroad track is itself a warning of danger and a driver intending to cross must avail himself of every opportunity to look and listen; if there are obstructions to the view, he is required to take greater care." (Wilkinson v. Southern Pacific Co. (1964) 224 Cal.App.2d 478, 488 [36 Cal.Rptr. 689], internal citation omitted.)
- "A railroad company will not be permitted to encourage persons to relax their vigil concerning the dangers that lurk in railroad crossings by assuring them, through the erection of safety devices, that the danger has been removed or minimized, and, at the same time, to hold them to the same degree of care as would be required if those devices had not been provided." (Will v. Southern Pacific Co. (1941) 18 Cal.2d 468, 474 [116 P.2d 44], internal citation omitted.)
- "[A] driver may not cross tracks in reliance upon the safety appliances installed by the railroad with complete disregard for his own safety and recover damages for injuries sustained by reason of his own failure to use reasonable care." (Will, supra, 18 Cal.2d at p. 475.)

- "Violation of the railroad's statutory duty to sound bell and whistle at a highway crossing does not absolve a driver from his failure to look and listen and, if necessitated by circumstances such as obstructed vision, even to stop." (Wilkinson, supra, 224 Cal.App.2d at p. 489.)
- "It is settled that a railroad may not encourage persons traveling on highways to rely on safety devices and then hold them to the same degree of care as if the devices were not present." (Startup v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co. (1947) 29 Cal.2d 866, 871 [180 P.2d 896].)
- "When a flagman or mechanical warning device has been provided at a railroad crossing, the driver of an automobile is thereby encouraged to relax his vigilance, and, in using other means to discover whether there is danger of approaching trains, he is not required to exercise the same quantum of care as would otherwise be necessary." (Spendlove v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co. (1947) 30 Cal.2d 632, 634 [184 P.2d 873], internal citations omitted.)
- "When the case before us was tried January 30, 1958, the stop, look and listen instruction was included in BAJI as instruction Number 203-B. Since the trial, the editors of BAJI have concluded that the instruction does not conform to the standards of negligence which prevail in California." (Anello v. Southern Pacific Co. (1959) 174 Cal.App.2d 317, 322 [344 P.2d 843].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts §§ 1039, 1239, 1240, 1479

California Tort Guide (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed.) Railroad Crossings, §§ 12.10–12.12

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 23, Carriers, § 23.27 (Matthew Bender)

42 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 485, Railroads § 485.67 (Matthew Bender)

807–899. Reserved for Future Use

COMMON CARRIERS

900. Introductory Instruction

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was harmed by [name of defendant]'s negligence while [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was a passenger on [name of defendant]'s [insert type of carrier, e.g., train].

[In this case, [name of defendant] was a common carrier at the time of the incident. A common carrier provides transportation to the general public.]

[or]

[[Name of plaintiff] also claims that [name of defendant] was a common carrier at the time of the incident.]

New September 2003

Directions for Use

Give either one of the bracketed sentences, depending on whether the defendant's status as a common carrier is contested or not.

This instruction is intended as an introductory instruction to frame the issues. CACI No. 400, Negligence—Essential Factual Elements, would still be given to set forth the elements that plaintiff has to prove in order to recover (i.e., negligence, harm, and causation).

Sources and Authority

- "Common Carrier" Defined. Civil Code section 2168.
- "Carriage" Defined. Civil Code section 2085.
- "[A] common carrier within the meaning of Civil Code section 2168 is any entity which holds itself out to the public generally and indifferently to transport goods or persons from place to place for profit." (Squaw Valley Ski Corporation v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal.App.4th 1499, 1508 [3 Cal.Rptr.2d 897].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1055–1064

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 23, Carriers, § 23.01 (Matthew Bender)

11 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 109, Carriers, § 109.32 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts § 28:1 (Thomson Reuters)

901. Status of Common Carrier Disputed

To prove that [name of defendant] was a common carrier, [name of plaintiff] must prove that it was in the business of transporting [the property of] the general public.

In deciding this issue, you may consider whether any of the following factors apply. These factors suggest that a carrier is a common carrier:

(a) The carrier maintains a regular place of business for the purpose of transporting passengers [or property].

(b) The carrier advertises its services to the general public.

(c) The carrier charges standard fees for its services.

(d) [Insert other applicable factor(s).]

A carrier can be a common carrier even if it does not have a regular schedule of departures, a fixed route, or a transportation license.

If you find that [name of defendant] was not a common carrier, then [name of defendant] did not have the duty of a common carrier, only a duty of ordinary care.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

The court should give the ordinary negligence instructions in conjunction with this one. Ordinary negligence is the standard applicable to private carriers.

Sources and Authority

- "Common Carrier" Defined. Civil Code section 2168.
- Contract of Carriage. Civil Code section 2085.
- "[A] common carrier within the meaning of Civil Code section 2168 is any entity which holds itself out to the public generally and indifferently to transport goods or persons from place to place for profit." (Squaw Valley Ski Corp. v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal.App.4th 1499, 1508 [3 Cal.Rptr.2d 897], internal citations omitted.)
- "Whether a party is a common carrier for reward may be decided as a matter of law when the material facts are not in dispute. When the material facts are disputed, it is a question of fact for the jury." (Huang v. The Bicycle Casino, Inc. (2016) 4 Cal.App.5th 329, 339 [208 Cal.Rptr.3d 591 [citing this instruction].)
- "Factors bearing on a party's common carrier status include (1) whether the party maintained an established place of business for the purpose of transporting passengers; (2) whether the party engaged in transportation as a regular business and not as a casual or occasional undertaking; (3) whether the party advertised its transportation services to the general public; and (4) whether the party charged standard rates for its service. The party need not have a regular schedule or a fixed route to be a common carrier, nor need the party have a transportation license. [¶] Not all these factors need be present for the party to be a common carrier subject to the heightened duty of care." (Huang, supra, 4 Cal.App.5th at p. 339, internal citations omitted; see also Gradus v. Hanson Aviation, Inc. (1984) 158 Cal.App.3d 1038, 1047–1048 [205 Cal.Rptr. 211] [approving jury instruction].)

- "In deciding whether [defendant] is a common carrier, a court may properly consider whether (1) the defendant maintains a regular place of business for the purpose of transportation; (2) the defendant advertises its services to the general public; and (3) the defendant charges standard fees for its services." (Martine v. Heavenly Valley Limited Partnership (2018) 27 Cal.App.5th 715, 725 [238 Cal.Rptr.3d 237, citing this instruction].)
- "Common carrier status emerged in California in the mid-19th century as a narrow concept involving stagecoaches hired purely for transportation. Over time, however, the concept expanded to include a wide array of recreational transport like scenic airplane and railway tours, ski lifts, and roller coasters. This expansion reflects the policy determination that a passenger's purpose, be it recreation, thrill-seeking, or simply conveyance from point A to B, should not control whether the operator should bear a higher duty to protect the passenger." (Grotheer v. Escape Adventures, Inc. (2017) 14 Cal.App.5th 1283, 1294 [222 Cal.Rptr.3d 633], internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]he key inquiry in the common carrier analysis is whether passengers expect the transportation to be safe because the operator is reasonably capable of controlling the risk of injury." (Grotheer, supra, 14 Cal.App.5th at p. 1295 [hot air balloon is not a common carrier].)
- "A private carrier . . . is bound only to accept carriage pursuant to special agreement." (Webster v. Ebright (1992) 3 Cal.App.4th 784, 787 [4 Cal.Rptr.2d 714].) Private carriers " 'make no public profession that they will carry for all who apply, but . . . occasionally or upon the particular occasion undertake for compensation to carry the goods of others upon such terms as may be agreed upon.' " (Id. at p. 788, internal citations omitted.)
- " '[T]he law applicable to common carriers is peculiarly rigorous, and it ought not to be extended to persons who have not expressly assumed that character, or by their conduct and from the nature of their business justified the belief on the part of the public that they intended to assume it.' " (Samuelson v. Public Utilities Com. (1951) 36 Cal.2d 722, 730 [227 P.2d 256], internal citation omitted.)
- "To be a common carrier, the entity merely must be of the character that members of the general public may, if they choose, avail themselves of it." (Squaw Valley Ski Corp., supra, 2 Cal.App.4th at pp. 1509–1510, internal citation omitted.)

- "Given the fact [defendant] indiscriminately offers its Shirley Lake chair lift to the public to carry skiers at a fixed rate from the bottom to the top of the Shirley Lake run, it logically comes within the Civil Code section 2168 definition of a common carrier." (Squaw Valley Ski Corp., supra, 2 Cal.App.4th at p. 1508.)
- "[T]he 'reward' contemplated by the statutory scheme need not be a fee charged for the transportation service. The reward may be the profit generated indirectly by easing customers' way through the carriers' premises." (Huang, supra, 4 Cal.App.5th at p. 339, internal citation omitted.)
- " '[T]he "public" does not mean everyone all of the time; naturally, passengers are restricted by the type of transportation the carrier affords. [Citations.] "One may be a common carrier though the nature of the service rendered is sufficiently specialized as to be of possible use to only a fraction of the total population." . . . To be a common carrier, the entity merely must be of the character that members of the general public may, if they choose, avail themselves of it.' " (Huang, supra, 4 Cal.App.5th at p. 339, internal citation omitted.)
- "Plaintiff also argues the public policy of protecting passengers of a common carrier for reward, as expressed in Civil Code section 2100, precludes limiting defendant's duty to riders on [bumper cars]. In Gomez v. Superior Court [(2005) 35 Cal.4th 1125, 1136, fn. 5 [29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 352, 113 P.3d 41]], we held that an operator of a 'roller coaster or similar amusement park ride can be a carrier of persons for reward' for purposes of Civil Code section 2100. At the same time, however, we expressed no opinion 'whether other, dissimilar, amusement rides or attractions can be carriers of persons for reward.' " (Nalwa v. Cedar Fair, L.P. (2012) 55 Cal.4th 1148, 1160 [150 Cal.Rptr.3d 551, 290 P.3d 1158] [bumper car ride is not common carrier].)
- "In the situation at bar, [defendant]'s motor cars were customarily and daily cruising the streets for patronage or awaiting calls of the public. It was a common carrier in transporting such patrons. But when it agreed to act as carrier of handicapped school children under agreement for its operators to escort the pupils to and from their schools and homes to the cab and to render such service exclusively for them at designated hours, the company ceased to be a common carrier while transporting the specified children during such hours." (Hopkins v. Yellow Cab Co. (1952) 114 Cal.App.2d 394, 398 [250 P.2d 330].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1056

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 23, Carriers, § 23.01 (Matthew Bender)

11 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 109, Carriers, § 109.14 (Matthew Bender)

3 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 33, Carriers, § 33.29 (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts §§ 28:1–28:2 (Thomson Reuters)

902. Duty of Common Carrier

Common carriers must carry passengers [or property] safely. Common carriers must use the highest care and the vigilance of a very cautious person. They must do all that human care, vigilance, and foresight reasonably can do under the circumstances to avoid harm to passengers [or property].

While a common carrier does not guarantee the safety of its passengers [or property that it transports], it must use reasonable skill to provide everything necessary for safe transportation, in view of the transportation used and the practical operation of the business.

New September 2003

Sources and Authority

- Duty of Common Carrier. Civil Code section 2100.
- "Common carriers bind themselves to carry safely those whom they take into their vehicles, and owe both a duty of utmost care and the vigilance of a very cautious person towards their passengers. Such carriers are responsible for any, even the slightest, negligence and are required to do all that human care, vigilance, and foresight reasonably can do under all the circumstances." (Acosta v. Southern California Rapid Transit Dist. (1970) 2 Cal.3d 19, 27 [84 Cal.Rptr. 184, 465 P.2d 72], internal citations omitted.)
- "The Civil Code treats common carriers differently depending on whether they act gratuitously or for reward. 'A carrier of persons without reward must use ordinary care and diligence for their safe carriage.' But '[c]arriers of persons for reward have long been subject to a heightened duty of care.' Such carriers 'must use the utmost care and diligence for [passengers'] safe carriage, must provide everything necessary for that purpose, and must exercise to that end a reasonable degree of skill.' While these carriers are not insurers of their passengers' safety, '[t]his standard of care requires common carriers 'to do all that human care, vigilance, and foresight reasonably can do under the circumstances.' " (Huang v. The Bicycle Casino, Inc. (2016) 4 Cal.App.5th 329, 338 [208 Cal.Rptr.3d 591], internal citations omitted.)
- "This elevated standard of care for common carriers has its origin in English common law. It is based on a recognition that the privilege of serving the public as a common carrier necessarily entails great responsibility, requiring common carriers to exercise a high duty of care towards their customers." (Squaw Valley Ski Corp. v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal.App.4th 1499, 1507 [3 Cal.Rptr.2d 897], internal citations omitted.)
- "Common carriers are not, however, insurers of their passengers' safety. Rather, the degree of care and diligence which they must exercise is only such as can reasonably be exercised consistent with the character and mode of conveyance adopted and the practical operation of the business of the carrier." (Lopez v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1985) 40 Cal.3d 780, 785 [221 Cal.Rptr. 840, 710 P.2d 907], internal citations omitted.)

- "[I]f a passenger injures herself when encountering minor commonplace hazards that one expects in a station or terminal, the heightened duty does not apply." (Churchman v. Bay Area Rapid Transit Dist. (2019) 39 Cal.App.5th 246, 251 [252 Cal.Rptr.3d 167].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1055, 1057

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 23, Carriers, § 23.02 (Matthew Bender)

11 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 109, Carriers, § 109.32 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

2A California Points and Authorities, Ch. 33, Carriers, § 33.22 (Matthew Bender)

22 California Legal Forms, Ch. 54, Shipment of Property, § 54.32 (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts §§ 28:6–28:9 (Thomson Reuters)

903. Duty to Provide and Maintain Safe Equipment

Common carriers must use the highest care in constructing, servicing, inspecting, and maintaining their vehicles and equipment for transporting passengers [or property].

A common carrier is responsible for a defect in its vehicles and equipment used for transporting passengers [or property] if the common carrier:

(a) Created the defect; or

(b) Knew of the defect; or

(c) Would have known of the defect if it had used the highest care.

Common carriers must keep up with modern improvements in transportation. While they are not required to seek out and use every new invention, they must adopt commonly accepted safety designs and devices in the vehicles and equipment they use for transporting passengers [or property].

New September 2003

Directions for Use

To correct the impression that a carrier is absolutely liable for unsafe equipment, this instruction should be given together with instructions stating that a common carrier does not guarantee the safety of its passengers and that the level of care is the highest that reasonably can be exercised consistent with the mode of transportation used and the practical operation of its business as a carrier (see CACI No. 902, Duty of Common Carrier). (Gradus v. Hanson Aviation, Inc. (1984) 158 Cal.App.3d 1038, 1049–1050 [205 Cal.Rptr. 211].)

Sources and Authority

- Duty of Common Carrier. Civil Code section 2101.
- "The duty of care imposed on a common carrier of passengers includes the duty to furnish safe facilities for their passage." (Cooper v. National Railroad Passenger Corporation (1975) 45 Cal.App.3d 389, 395 [119 Cal.Rptr. 541], internal citations omitted, disapproved on other grounds in Ewing v. Cloverleaf Bowl (1978) 20 Cal.3d 389, 401 [143 Cal.Rptr. 13, 572 P.2d 1155].)
- Failure to give an instruction on Civil Code section 2101 may not be error where an instruction on the "utmost care" standard is given. (Powell v. Dell-Air Aviation, Inc. (1968) 268 Cal.App.2d 451, 457–458 [74 Cal.Rptr. 3].)
- The Supreme Court found error where an instruction omitted the duty to inspect: "An owner is bound to use the utmost care and diligence in the maintenance of elevators. In the fulfillment of this obligation something more than regular and frequent inspections is required. Perfunctory inspections, although regularly and frequently made, would not meet the obligation appellant owed to respondents. In order to fulfill the duty imposed upon it by law appellant was required to use due care in servicing, inspecting and maintaining the elevator and all the appliances appurtenant thereto. The instruction erroneously failed to include this requirement." (Brown v. George Pepperdine Foundation (1943) 23 Cal.2d 256, 261 [143 P.2d 929], internal citations omitted.)

- "The [equipment] must, therefore, under the standard of utmost care required of a carrier, be constructed, maintained and operated with the purpose and design to prevent injury . . . ." (Vandagriff v. J.C. Penney (1964) 228 Cal.App.2d 579, 582 [39 Cal.Rptr. 671].)
- Notice of defect is required where the carrier did not create dangerous condition: "In our view, the high degree of care required of a common carrier might impose a greater duty to inspect and thus make notice or knowledge more easily established, but the concept of the carrier's legal responsibility does not exclude the factor of notice or knowledge. The weight of authority supports the proposition that, in cases such as the instant one, actual or constructive notice is a prerequisite to the carrier's liability." (Gray v. City and County of San Francisco (1962) 202 Cal.App.2d 319, 330–331 [20 Cal.Rptr. 894].)
- Common carriers "must keep pace with science and art and modern improvement in their application to the carriage of passengers." (Greyhound Lines, Inc. v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal.App.3d 356, 359 [83 Cal.Rptr. 343], citing Treadwell v. Whittier (1889) 80 Cal. 574, 592, 600 [22 P. 266].)
- In Treadwell, the court approved of a jury instruction stating that while elevator operators "were not required to seek and apply every new invention, they must adopt such as are found by experience to combine the greater safety with practical use." The court said the instruction "is but a fair deduction from the rule that the defendants must use the utmost care and diligence to carry safely those who ride in their [conveyance] . . . ." (Treadwell, supra, 80 Cal. at pp. 599–600.) The court held that common carriers "are bound for defects in the vehicles which they furnish, which might have been discovered by the most careful examination . . . ." (Id. at p. 595.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1055, 1057

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch 23, Carriers, § 23.03[5] (Matthew Bender)

11 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 109, Carriers (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts § 28:15 (Thomson Reuters)

904. Duty of Common Carrier Toward Passengers With Illness or Disability

If a common carrier voluntarily accepts a person with an illness or a disability as a passenger and is aware of that person's condition, it must use as much additional care as is reasonably necessary to ensure the passenger's safety.

New September 2003; Revised May 2023

Sources and Authority

- "[I]f the company voluntarily accepts a person as a passenger, without an attendant, whose inability to care for himself is apparent or made known to its servants and renders special care and assistance necessary, the company is negligent if such assistance is not afforded. In such case it must exercise the degree of care commensurate with the responsibility which it has thus voluntarily assumed, and that care must be such as is reasonably necessary to insure the safety of the passenger, in view of his mental and physical condition. This is a duty required by law as well as the dictates of humanity." (McBride v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1955) 44 Cal.2d 113, 119–120 [279 P.2d 966], internal citation omitted.)

Secondary Sources

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 23, Carriers, § 23.02[6] (Matthew Bender)

11 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 109, Carriers, § 109.33[1] (Matthew Bender)

2A California Points and Authorities, Ch. 33, Carriers (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts § 28:6 (Thomson Reuters)

905. Duty of Common Carrier Toward Minor Passengers

If a common carrier voluntarily accepts a child as a passenger, it must use as much additional care as is reasonably necessary to ensure the child's safety.

New September 2003

Sources and Authority

- A common carrier owes a greater duty of care to minor passengers: "It is settled law that a carrier owes a greater quantum of care to a child of tender years accepted by it as a passenger than it would to an adult." (Brizzolari v. Market Street Ry. Co. (1935) 7 Cal.App.2d 246, 248 [46 P.2d 783].)
- "In this instruction, the court admonished the jury that a carrier of passengers owes to children who are passengers on its cars a greater degree of care than it owes to adults. Such an instruction is proper." (Mudrick v. Market Street Ry. Co. (1938) 11 Cal.2d 724, 734 [81 P.2d 950].)

Secondary Sources

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 23, Carriers, § 23.02[6] (Matthew Bender)

11 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 109, Carriers (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts § 28:6 (Thomson Reuters)

906. Duty of Passenger for Own Safety

While a common carrier must use the highest care for its passengers' safety, passengers need only use reasonable care for their own safety.

New September 2003; Revised May 2017

Directions for Use

This instruction is intended to clarify that passengers and common carriers have different standards of care.

Sources and Authority

- "As applied to the standard of care imposed upon the common carrier as compared to the standard imposed on the passenger it is both erroneous and misleading to tell the jury, as was done here, that there are no degrees of negligence or contributory negligence in California, since the common carrier is in fact held to a higher degree of care than is the passenger. To follow this erroneous and misleading statement with the instruction, in the identical language used in another instruction concerning the defendant carrier's duty of care, that 'any negligence, however slight,' of the decedent proximately contributing to her death would bar a recovery, was to inform the jury that in determining negligence and contributory negligence they must apply the same standard of care." (Wilson v. City and County of San Francisco (1959) 174 Cal.App.2d 273, 276 [344 P.2d 828].)
- 'Whether unidentified passengers might be primarily or partially responsible for [plaintiff]'s injury, or whether she bears some responsibility for it herself, are questions for the trier of fact in considering causation." (Huang v. The Bicycle Casino, Inc. (2016) 4 Cal.App.5th 329, 346 [208 Cal.Rptr.3d 591].)

Secondary Sources

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 23, Carriers, § 23.07[1] (Matthew Bender)

11 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 109, Carriers (Matthew Bender)

2 California Civil Practice: Torts § 28:32 (Thomson Reuters)

907. Status of Passenger Disputed

A common carrier owes the highest care and vigilance to persons only while they are passengers. [*Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was [name of defendant]'s passenger at the time of the incident.

To establish that [*name of plaintiff] was a passenger, [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of plaintiff] intended to become a passenger;
2. That [name of plaintiff] was accepted as a passenger by [name of defendant]; and
3. That [name of plaintiff] placed [himself/herself/nonbinary pronoun] under the control of [name of defendant].

To be a passenger, it is not necessary for the person to actually enter the carrier's vehicle [*or name mode of travel, e.g., bus, train]; however, the carrier must have taken some action indicating acceptance of the person as a passenger. A person continues to be a passenger until the person safely leaves the carrier's vehicle [or equipment].

A common carrier must use the highest care and vigilance in providing its passengers with a safe place to get on and off its vehicles [or equipment].

New September 2003; Revised May 2020

Sources and Authority

- The heightened degree of care for common carriers is owed only while "passengers are in transitu, and until they have safely departed the carrier's vehicle." (Marshall v. United Airlines (1973) 35 Cal.App.3d 84, 86 [110 Cal.Rptr. 416].)
- The relationship of carrier and passenger is "created when one offers to become a passenger, and is accepted as a passenger after he has placed himself under the control of the carrier." (Grier v. Ferrant (1944) 62 Cal.App.2d 306, 310 [144 P.2d 631].)
- It is not necessary that the passenger have entered the vehicle for the relationship to exist: " 'The relation is in force when one, intending in good faith to become a passenger, goes to the place designated as the site of departure at the appropriate time and the carrier takes some action indicating acceptance of the passenger as a traveler.' " (Orr v. Pacific Southwest Airlines (1989) 208 Cal.App.3d 1467, 1473 [257 Cal.Rptr. 18], internal citations omitted.)
- The carrier-passenger relationship terminates once the passenger has disembarked and entered a place of relative safety. (McGettigan v. Bay Area Rapid Transit Dist. (1997) 57 Cal.App.4th 1011, 1018 [67 Cal.Rptr.2d 516].)

- Carriers must exercise utmost care " '[u]ntil the passenger reaches a place outside the sphere of any activity of the carrier which might reasonably constitute a mobile or animated hazard to the passenger.' " (Brandelius v. City and County of San Francisco (1957) 47 Cal.2d 729, 735 [306 P.2d 432], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1058, 1059

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 23, Carriers, § 23.02[4] (Matthew Bender)

11 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 109, Carriers, § 109.36 (Matthew Bender)

2A California Points and Authorities, Ch. 33, Carriers, § 33.22 (Matthew Bender)

2 California Civil Practice: Torts § 28:7 (Thomson Reuters)

908. Duty to Protect Passengers From Assault

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] was negligent in failing to prevent an attack by another. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove both of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] knew or, by using the highest care, should have known that a passenger was reasonably likely to attack another passenger; and
2. That by using the highest care, [name of defendant] could have prevented or reduced the harm from the attack.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This instruction must be used in conjunction with the instructions in the negligence series.

Sources and Authority

- Restatement Second of Torts, section 315 states:

  As a general rule, one owes no duty to control the conduct of another, nor to warn those endangered by such conduct. Such a duty may arise, however, if

  (a) a special relation exists between the actor and the third person which imposes a duty upon the actor to control the third person's conduct, or

  (b) a special relation exists between the actor and the other which gives the other a right of protection.

- The Supreme Court has held that "[t]he relationship between a common carrier and its passengers is . . . a special relationship." (Lopez v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1985) 40 Cal.3d 780, 789 [221 Cal.Rptr. 840, 710 P.2d 907].)
- The common carrier standard of "utmost care" applies to the duty of a carrier to protect a passenger from assaults by fellow passengers. (Terrell v. Key System (1945) 69 Cal.App.2d 682, 686 [159 P.2d 704].) However, the duty can only arise if "in the exercise of the required degree of care the carrier has or should have knowledge of conditions from which it may reasonably be apprehended that an assault on a passenger may occur, and has the ability in the exercise of that degree of care to prevent the injury." (Ibid., internal citations omitted.)
- The Lopez court stated the standard of care as follows: "[C]arriers are not insurers of their passenger's safety and will not automatically be liable, regardless of the circumstances, for any injury suffered by a passenger at the hands of a fellow passenger. Rather, a carrier is liable for injuries resulting from an assault by one passenger upon another only where, in the exercise of the required degree of care, the carrier has or should have knowledge from which it may reasonably be apprehended that an assault on a passenger may occur, and has the ability in the exercise of that degree of care to prevent the injury." (Lopez, supra, 40 Cal.3d at p. 791, internal citation omitted.)

- There is no liability when a sudden assault occurs with no warning. (City and County of San Francisco v. Superior Court (1994) 31 Cal.App.4th 45, 49 [36 Cal.Rptr.2d 372].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1062, 1063

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 23, Carriers, § 23.03[3] (Matthew Bender)

11 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 109, Carriers (Matthew Bender)

2A California Points and Authorities, Ch. 33, Carriers (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts § 28:16 (Thomson Reuters)

909–999. Reserved for Future Use

PREMISES LIABILITY

1000. Premises Liability—Essential Factual Elements

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was harmed because of the way [name of defendant] managed [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] property. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] [owned/leased/occupied/controlled] the property;
2. That [name of defendant] was negligent in the use or maintenance of the property;
3. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
4. That [name of defendant]'s negligence was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New September 2003; Revised June 2005, December 2011

Directions for Use

For cases involving public entity defendants, see instructions on dangerous conditions of public property (CACI No. 1100 et seq.).

Sources and Authority

- General Duty to Exercise Due Care. Civil Code section 1714(a).
- "The elements of a negligence claim and a premises liability claim are the same: a legal duty of care, breach of that duty, and proximate cause resulting in injury. Premises liability ' "is grounded in the possession of the premises and the attendant right to control and manage the premises" '; accordingly, ' "mere possession with its attendant right to control conditions on the premises is a sufficient basis for the imposition of an affirmative duty to act." ' But the duty arising from possession and control of property is adherence to the same standard of care that applies in negligence cases. In determining whether a premises owner owes a duty to persons on its property, we apply the Rowland [Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal.2d 108 [70 Cal.Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561]] factors. Indeed, Rowland itself involved premises liability.' " (Kesner v. Superior Court (2016) 1 Cal.5th 1132, 1159 [210 Cal.Rptr.3d 283, 384 P.3d 283], internal citations omitted.)
- "The owner of premises is under a duty to exercise ordinary care in the management of such premises in order to avoid exposing persons to an unreasonable risk of harm. A failure to fulfill this duty is negligence." (Brooks v. Eugene Burger Management Corp. (1989) 215 Cal.App.3d 1611, 1619 [264 Cal.Rptr. 756].)
- " '[P]roperty owners are liable for injuries on land they own, possess, or control.' But . . . the phrase 'own, possess, or control' is stated in the alternative. A defendant need not own, possess and control property in order to be held liable; control alone is sufficient." (Alcaraz v. Vece (1997) 14 Cal.4th 1149, 1162 [60 Cal.Rptr.2d 448, 929 P.2d 1239], original italics, internal citations omitted.)

- " ' "[A] landowner's duty of care to avoid exposing others to a risk of injury is not limited to injuries that occur on premises owned or controlled by the landowner." ' 'Rather, the duty of care encompasses a duty to avoid exposing persons to risks of injury that occur off site if the landowner's property is maintained in such a manner as to expose persons to an unreasonable risk of injury offsite.' " (Kesner, supra, 5 Cal.5th at p. 1159, internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1224–1228

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 15, General Premises Liability, § 15.01 (Matthew Bender)

6 California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 170, The Premises: Duties and Liabilities, §§ 170.01, 170.20 (Matthew Bender)

11 California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 381, Tort Liability of Property Owners, § 381.01 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 421, Premises Liability, § 421.11 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 178, Premises Liability, § 178.20 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts §§ 16:1–16:3 (Thomson Reuters)

1001. Basic Duty of Care

A person who [owns/leases/occupies/controls] property is negligent if that person fails to use reasonable care to keep the property in a reasonably safe condition. A person who [owns/leases/occupies/controls] property must use reasonable care to discover any unsafe conditions and to repair, replace, or give adequate warning of anything that could be reasonably expected to harm others.

In deciding whether [*name of defendant] used reasonable care, you may consider, among other factors, the following:

(a) The location of the property;

(b) The likelihood that someone would come on to the property in the same manner as [*name of plaintiff] did;

(c) The likelihood of harm;

(d) The probable seriousness of such harm;

(e) Whether [*name of defendant] knew or should have known of the condition that created the risk of harm;

(f) The difficulty of protecting against the risk of such harm; [and]

(g) The extent of [*name of defendant]'s control over the condition that created the risk of harm; [and]

(h) [*Other relevant factor(s).]

New September 2003; Revised June 2010, May 2020

Directions for Use

Not all of these factors will apply to every case. Select those that are appropriate to the facts of the case.

Under the doctrine of nondelegable duty, a property owner cannot escape liability for failure to maintain property in a safe condition by delegating the duty to an independent contractor. (Brown v. George Pepperdine Foundation (1943) 23 Cal.2d 256, 260 [143 P.2d 929].) For an instruction for use with regard to a landowner's liability for the acts of an independent contractor, see CACI No. 3713, Nondelegable Duty.

Sources and Authority

- "Broadly speaking, premises liability alleges a defendant property owner allowed a dangerous condition on its property or failed to take reasonable steps to secure its property against criminal acts by third parties." (Delgado v. American Multi- Cinema, Inc. (1999) 72 Cal.App.4th 1403, 1406, fn. 1 [85 Cal.Rptr.2d 838], internal citation omitted.)

- "It is now well established that California law requires landowners to maintain land in their possession and control in a reasonably safe condition." (Ann M. v. Pacific Plaza Shopping Center (1993) 6 Cal.4th 666, 674 [25 Cal.Rptr.2d 137, 863 P.2d 207], internal citations omitted.)
- "To comply with this duty, a person who controls property must ' " ' "inspect [the premises] or take other proper means to ascertain their condition" ' " ' and, if a dangerous condition exists that would have been discovered by the exercise of reasonable care, has a duty to give adequate warning of or remedy it." (Staats v. Vintner's Golf Club, LLC (2018) 25 Cal.App.5th 826, 833 [236 Cal.Rptr.3d 236].)
- "[T]he measures an operator must take to comply with the duty to keep the premises in a reasonably safe condition depend on the circumstances, and the issue is a question for the jury unless the facts of the case are not reasonably in dispute." (Staats, supra, 25 Cal.App.5th at p. 840.)
- "An owner of real property is 'not the insurer of [a] visitor's personal safety . . . .' However, an owner is responsible ' "for an injury occasioned to another by [the owner's] want of ordinary care or skill in the management of his or her property. . . ." ' Accordingly, landowners are required 'to maintain land in their possession and control in a reasonably safe condition', and to use due care to eliminate dangerous conditions on their property." (Taylor v. Trimble (2017) 13 Cal.App.5th 934, 943–944 [220 Cal.Rptr.3d 741], internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]he issue concerning a landlord's duty is not the existence of the duty, but rather the scope of the duty under the particular facts of the case. Reference to the scope of the landlord's duty 'is intended to describe the specific steps a landlord must take in a given specific circumstance to maintain the property's safety to protect a tenant from a specific class of risk.' " (Lawrence v. La Jolla Beach & Tennis Club, Inc. (2014) 231 Cal.App.4th 11, 23 [179 Cal.Rptr.3d 758], original italics, internal citation omitted.)
- "The proper test to be applied to the liability of the possessor of land . . . is whether in the management of his property he has acted as a reasonable man in view of the probability of injury to others . . . ." (Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal.2d 108, 119 [70 Cal.Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561].)
- " ' "[A] property owner is not liable for damages caused by a minor, trivial, or insignificant defect' on its property." The so-called 'trivial defect doctrine' recognizes that ' "persons who maintain walkways, whether public or private, are not required to maintain them in an absolutely perfect condition. The duty of care imposed on a property owner, even one with actual notice, does not require the repair of minor defects." ' " (Fajardo v. Dailey (2022) 85 Cal.App.5th 221, 226 [300 Cal.Rptr.3d 707], internal citation omitted.)
- In this state, duties are no longer imposed on an occupier of land solely on the basis of rigid classifications of trespasser, licensee, and invitee. The purpose of plaintiff's presence on the land is not determinative. We have recognized, however, that this purpose may have some bearing upon the liability issue. This purpose therefore must be considered along with other factors weighing for and against the imposition of a duty on the landowner." (Ann M., supra, 6 Cal.4th at pp. 674–675, internal citations omitted.)

- "As stated in Beauchamp v. Los Gatos Golf Course (1969) 273 Cal.App.2d 20, 25 [77 Cal.Rptr. 914], '[t]he term "invitee" has not been abandoned, nor have "trespasser" and "licensee." In the minds of the jury, whether a possessor of the premises has acted as a reasonable man toward a plaintiff, in view of the probability of injury to him, will tend to involve the circumstances under which he came upon defendant's land; and the probability of exposure of plaintiff and others of his class to the risk of injury; as well as whether the condition itself presented an unreasonable risk of harm, in view of the foreseeable use of the property.' Thus, the court concluded, and we agree, Rowland 'does not generally abrogate the decisions declaring the substantive duties of the possessor of land to invitees nor those establishing the correlative rights and duties of invitees.' (Id., at p. 27.)" (Williams v. Carl Karcher Enterprises, Inc. (1986) 182 Cal.App.3d 479, 486–487 [227 Cal.Rptr. 465], overruled on other grounds in Soule v. GM Corp. (1994) 8 Cal.4th 548 [34 Cal.Rptr.2d 607, 882 P.2d 298].)
- "The distinction between artificial and natural conditions [has been] rejected." (Sprecher v. Adamson Companies (1981) 30 Cal.3d 358, 371 [178 Cal.Rptr. 783, 636 P.2d 1121].)
- "It must also be emphasized that the liability imposed is for negligence. The question is whether in the management of his property, the possessor of land has acted as a reasonable person under all the circumstances. The likelihood of injury to plaintiff, the probable seriousness of such injury, the burden of reducing or avoiding the risk, the location of the land, and the possessor's degree of control over the risk-creating condition are among the factors to be considered by the trier of fact in evaluating the reasonableness of a defendant's conduct." (Sprecher, supra, 30 Cal.3d at p. 372.)
- "[A] landowner's duty of care to avoid exposing others to a risk of injury is not limited to injuries that occur on premises owned or controlled by the landowner. Rather, the duty of care encompasses a duty to avoid exposing persons to risks of injury that occur off site if the landowner's property is maintained in such a manner as to expose persons to an unreasonable risk of injury offsite. (Annocki v. Peterson Enterprises, LLC (2014) 232 Cal.App.4th 32, 38 [180 Cal.Rptr.3d 474].)
- "The duty which a possessor of land owes to others to put and maintain it in reasonably safe condition is nondelegable. If an independent contractor, no matter how carefully selected, is employed to perform it, the possessor is answerable for harm caused by the negligent failure of his contractor to put or maintain the buildings and structures in reasonably safe condition, irrespective of whether the contractor's negligence lies in his incompetence, carelessness, inattention or delay." (Brown, supra, 23 Cal.2d at p. 260.)

- "[A] defendant property owner's compliance with a law or safety regulation, in and of itself, does not establish that the owner has utilized due care. The owner's compliance with applicable safety regulations, while relevant to show due care, is not dispositive, if there are other circumstances requiring a higher degree of care." (Lawrence, supra, 231 Cal.App.4th at p. 31.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1228

Friedman et al., California Practice Guide: Landlord-Tenant, Ch. 6-A, Liability For Defective Conditions On Premises, ¶ 6:1 et seq. (The Rutter Group)

Friedman et al., California Practice Guide: Landlord-Tenant, Ch. 6-B, Landlord Liability For Injuries From Acts Of Others, ¶ 6:48 et seq. (The Rutter Group)

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 15, General Premises Liability, § 15.01 (Matthew Bender)

6 California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 170, The Premises: Duties and Liabilities, §§ 170.01, 170.03, 170.20 (Matthew Bender)

11 California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 381, Tort Liability of Property Owners, § 381.01 (Matthew Bender)

29 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 334, Landlord and Tenant: Claims for Damages, §§ 334.10, 334.50 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 421, Premises Liability, § 421.11 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 178, Premises Liability, § 178.20 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1 California Civil Practice: Torts § 16:3 (Thomson Reuters)

1002. Extent of Control Over Premises Area

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] controlled the property involved in [name of plaintiff]'s harm, even though [name of defendant] did not own or lease it. A person controls property that the person does not own or lease when the person uses the property as if it were the person's own. A person is responsible for maintaining, in reasonably safe condition, all areas that person controls.

New September 2003; Revised May 2020

Directions for Use

Use this instruction only for property that is not actually owned or leased by the defendant.

Sources and Authority

- "[A] defendant's duty to maintain land in a reasonably safe condition extends to land over which the defendant exercises control, regardless of who owns the land. 'As long as the defendant exercised control over the land, the location of the property line would not affect the defendant's potential liability.' " (University of Southern California v. Superior Court (2018) 30 Cal.App.5th 429, 445 [241 Cal.Rptr.3d 616], internal citation omitted.)
- "Even if a hazard located on publicly owned property is created by a third party, an abutting owner or occupier of private property will be held liable for injuries caused by that hazard if the owner or occupier has ' "dramati[cally] assert[ed]" ' any of the ' "right[s] normally associated with ownership or . . . possession" ' by undertaking affirmative acts that are consistent with being the owner or occupier of the property and that go beyond the 'minimal, neighborly maintenance of property owned by another.' " (Lopez v. City of Los Angeles (2020) 55 Cal.App.5th 244, 258 [269 Cal.Rptr.3d 377].)
- "In Alcaraz . . . , our Supreme Court held that a landowner who exercises control over an adjoining strip of land has a duty to protect or warn others entering the adjacent land of a known hazard there. This duty arises even if the person does not own or exercise control over the hazard and even if the person does not own the abutting property on which the hazard is located. . . . [¶] The Alcaraz court concluded that such evidence was 'sufficient to raise a triable issue of fact as to whether defendants exercised control over the strip of land containing the meter box and thus owed a duty of care to protect or warn plaintiff of the allegedly dangerous condition of the property.' " (Contreras v. Anderson (1997) 59 Cal.App.4th 188, 197–198 [69 Cal.Rptr.2d 69], footnote and internal citations omitted.)
- " '[A] defendant cannot be held liable for the defective or dangerous condition of property which it [does] not own, possess, or control.' Thus, ' "[a] tenant ordinarily is not liable for injuries to his invitees occurring outside the leased premises on common passageways over which he has no control. [Citations.] Responsibility in such cases rests on the owner, who has the right of control and the duty to maintain that part of the premises in a safe condition. It is clear, however, that if the tenant exercises control over a common passageway outside the leased premises, he may become liable to his business invitees if he fails to warn them of a dangerous condition existing thereon." ' The ' "crucial element is control." ' " (Moses v. Roger-McKeever (2023) 91 Cal.App.5th 172, 179 [308 Cal.Rptr.3d 149], internal citation omited.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1225, 1226

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 15, General Premises Liability, § 15.03 (Matthew Bender)

11 California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 381, Tort Liability of Property Owners, §§ 381.03–381.04 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 421, Premises Liability, § 421.15 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 178, Premises Liability, § 178.60 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1 California Civil Practice: Torts § 16:2 (Thomson Reuters)

1003. Unsafe Conditions

[Name of defendant] was negligent in the use or maintenance of the property if:

1. A condition on the property created an unreasonable risk of harm;
2. [Name of defendant] knew or, through the exercise of reasonable care, should have known about it; and
3. [Name of defendant] failed to repair the condition, protect against harm from the condition, or give adequate warning of the condition.

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, October 2008

Directions for Use

Read this instruction with CACI No. 1000, Premises Liability—Essential Factual Elements, in a premises liability case involving an unsafe condition on property. If there is an issue as to the owner's constructive knowledge of the condition (element 2), also give CACI No. 1011, Constructive Notice Regarding Dangerous Conditions on Property.

Sources and Authority

- "Where the occupier of land is aware of a concealed condition involving in the absence of precautions an unreasonable risk of harm to those coming in contact with it and is aware that a person on the premises is about to come in contact with it, the trier of fact can reasonably conclude that a failure to warn or to repair the condition constitutes negligence. Whether or not a guest has a right to expect that his host will remedy dangerous conditions on his account, he should reasonably be entitled to rely upon a warning of the dangerous condition so that he, like the host, will be in a position to take special precautions when he comes in contact with it." (Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal.2d 108, 119 [70 Cal.Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561].)
- " '[T]he proprietor of a store who knows of, or by the exercise of reasonable care could discover, an artificial condition upon his premises which he should foresee exposes his business visitors to an unreasonable risk, and who has no basis for believing that they will discover the condition or realize the risk involved, is under a duty to exercise ordinary care either to make the condition reasonably safe for their use or to give a warning adequate to enable them to avoid the harm. . . .' [Plaintiff] was entitled to have the jury so instructed." (Williams v. Carl Karcher Enters., Inc. (1986) 182 Cal.App.3d 479, 488 [227 Cal.Rptr. 465], internal citations omitted, disapproved on other grounds in Soule

v. GM Corp. (1994) 8 Cal.4th 548, 574, 580 [34 Cal.Rptr.2d 607, 882 P.2d 298].)

- "Because the owner is not the insurer of the visitor's personal safety, the owner's actual or constructive knowledge of the dangerous condition is a key to establishing its liability. Although the owner's lack of knowledge is not a defense, '[t]o impose liability for injuries suffered by an invitee due to [a] defective condition of the premises, the owner or occupier "must have either actual or constructive knowledge of the dangerous condition or have been able by the exercise of ordinary care to discover the condition, which if known to him, he should realize as involving an unreasonable risk to invitees on his premises. . . ." ' " (Ortega v. Kmart Corp. (2001) 26 Cal.4th 1200, 1206 [114 Cal.Rptr.2d 470, 36 P.3d 11], internal citation omitted.)
- "By inviting the public to its store, an owner or possessor has the duty 'to exercise ordinary care and prudence to keep the aisles and passageways of the premises in and through which, by their location and arrangement, a customer in making purchases is induced to go, in a reasonably safe condition so as not unnecessarily to expose the customer to danger or accident.' " (Hassaine v. Club Demonstration Services, Inc. (2022) 77 Cal.App.5th 843, 852 [293 Cal.Rptr.3d 20], internal citation omitted.)
- "Where the dangerous or defective condition of the property which causes the injury has been created by reason of the negligence of the owner of the property or his employee acting within the scope of the employment, the owner of the property cannot be permitted to assert that he had no notice or knowledge of the defective or dangerous condition in an action by an invitee for injuries suffered by reason of the dangerous condition. Under such circumstances knowledge thereof is imputed to him. Where the dangerous condition is brought about by natural wear and tear, or third persons, or acts of God or by other causes which are not due to the negligence of the owner, or his employees, then to impose liability the owner must have either actual or constructive knowledge of the dangerous condition or have been able by the exercise of ordinary care to discover the condition, which if known to him, he should realize as involving an unreasonable risk to invitees on his premises. His negligence in such cases is founded upon his failure to exercise ordinary care in remedying the defect after he has discovered it or as a man of ordinary prudence should have discovered it." (Hatfield v. Levy Bros. (1941) 18 Cal.2d 798, 806 [117 P.2d 841], internal citation omitted.)
- "Generally speaking, a property owner must have actual or constructive knowledge of a dangerous condition before liability will be imposed. In the ordinary slip-and-fall case, . . . the cause of the dangerous condition is not necessarily linked to an employee. Consequently, there is no issue of respondeat superior. Where, however, 'the evidence is such that a reasonable inference can be drawn that the condition was created by employees of the [defendant], then [the defendant] is charged with notice of the dangerous condition.' " (Getchell v.

Rogers Jewelry (2012) 203 Cal.App.4th 381, 385 [136 Cal.Rptr.3d 641], internal citation omitted.)

- "[U]nder current California law, a store owner's choice of a particular 'mode of operation' does not eliminate a slip-and-fall plaintiff's burden of proving the owner had knowledge of the dangerous condition that caused the accident. Moreover, it would not be prudent to hold otherwise. Without this knowledge requirement, certain store owners would essentially incur strict liability for slip-and-fall injuries, i.e., they would be insurers of the safety of their patrons. For example, whether the french fry was dropped 10 seconds or 10 hours before the accident would be of no consequence to the liability finding. However, this is not to say that a store owner's business choices do not impact the negligence analysis. If the store owner's practices create a higher risk that dangerous conditions will exist, ordinary care will require a corresponding increase in precautions." (Moore v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. (2003) 111 Cal.App.4th 472, 479 [3 Cal.Rptr. 3d 813].)
- "Although liability might easily be found where the landowner has actual knowledge of the dangerous condition, '[the] landowner's lack of knowledge of the dangerous condition is not a defense. He has an affirmative duty to exercise ordinary care to keep the premises in a reasonably safe condition, and therefore must inspect them or take other proper means to ascertain their condition. And if, by the exercise of reasonable care, he would have discovered the dangerous condition, he is liable.' " (Swanberg v. O'Mectin (1984) 157 Cal.App.3d 325, 330 [203 Cal.Rptr. 701], internal citation omitted.)
- "[A] real estate agent has a duty to notify visitors of marketed property of concealed dangerous conditions of which the agent has actual or constructive knowledge. The agent's actual or constructive knowledge of a dangerous condition is imputed to his or her principal, the property owner, who shares with the agent liability for damages proximately caused by a breach of this duty." (Hall v. Rockcliff Realtors (2013) 215 Cal.App.4th 1134, 1141 [155 Cal.Rptr.3d 739].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1261–1265

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 15, General Premises Liability, § 15.04 (Matthew Bender)

6 California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 170, The Premises: Duties and Liabilities, § 170.02 (Matthew Bender)

11 California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 381, Tort Liability of Property Owners, § 381.20 (Matthew Bender)

29 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 334, Landlord and Tenant: Claims for Damages, §§ 334.10, 334.51 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 421, Premises Liability, § 421.14 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 178, Premises Liability, § 178.23 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts § 16:4 (Thomson Reuters)

1004. Obviously Unsafe Conditions

If an unsafe condition of the property is so obvious that a person could reasonably be expected to observe it, then the [owner/occupier/one who controls the property] does not have to warn others about the dangerous condition.

However, the [owner/occupier/one who controls the property] still must use reasonable care to protect against the risk of harm if it is foreseeable that the condition may cause injury to someone who because of necessity encounters the condition.

New September 2003; Revised May 2018, December 2022

Directions for Use

Give this instruction with CACI No. 1001, Basic Duty of Care, if it is alleged that the condition causing injury was obvious. The first paragraph addresses the lack of a duty to warn of an obviously unsafe condition. (Jacobs v. Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage Co. (2017) 14 Cal.App.5th 438, 447 [221 Cal.Rptr.3d 701].)

The second paragraph addresses when there may be a duty to take some remedial action. Landowners may have a duty to take precautions to protect against the risk of harm from an obviously unsafe condition, even if they do not have a duty to warn. (Osborn v. Mission Ready Mix (1990) 224 Cal.App.3d 104, 121–122 [273 Cal.Rptr. 457].)

Sources and Authority

- "Foreseeability of harm is typically absent when a dangerous condition is open and obvious. 'Generally, if a danger is so obvious that a person could reasonably be expected to see it, the condition itself serves as a warning, and the landowner is under no further duty to remedy or warn of the condition.' In that situation, owners and possessors of land are entitled to assume others will 'perceive the obvious' and take action to avoid the dangerous condition." (Jacobs, supra, 14 Cal.App.5th at p. 447, internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]here may be situations 'in which an obvious hazard, for which no warning is necessary, nonetheless gives rise to a duty on a landowner's part to remedy the hazard because knowledge of the hazard is inadequate to prevent injury.' This is so when, for example, the practical necessity of encountering the danger, when weighed against the apparent risk involved, is such that, under the circumstances, a person might choose to encounter the danger." (Johnson v. The Raytheon Co., Inc. (2019) 33 Cal.App.5th 617, 632 [245 Cal.Rptr.3d 282], internal citation omitted.)
- "There may be a duty of care owed even where a dangerous condition is open and obvious, when 'it is foreseeable that the danger may cause injury despite the fact that it is obvious (e.g., when necessity requires persons to encounter it).' In other words, 'the obviousness of the condition and its dangerousness . . . will not negate a duty of care when it is foreseeable that, because of necessity or other circumstances, a person may choose to encounter the condition.' " (Montes v. Young Men's Christian Assn. of Glendale, California (2022) 81 Cal.App.5th 1134, 1140 [297 Cal.Rptr.3d 791], internal citations omitted, original italics.)

- "[I]t is foreseeable that even an obvious danger may cause injury, if the practical necessity of encountering the danger, when weighed against the apparent risk involved, is such that under the circumstances, a person might choose to encounter the danger. The foreseeability of injury, in turn, when considered along with various other policy considerations such as the extent of the burden to the defendant and consequences to the community of imposing a duty to remedy such danger may lead to the legal conclusion that the defendant 'owes a duty of due care "to all persons who are foreseeably endangered by his conduct, with respect to all risks which make the conduct unreasonably dangerous." ' " (Osborn, supra, 224 Cal.App.3d at p. 121, internal citation omitted.)
- "[W]hen a worker, whose work requires him or her to encounter a danger which is obvious or observable, is injured, '[t]he jury [is] entitled to balance the [plaintiff's] necessity against the danger, even if it be assumed that it was an apparent one. This [is] a factual issue. [Citations.]' In other words, under certain circumstances, an obvious or apparent risk of danger does not automatically absolve a defendant of liability for injury caused thereby." (Osborn, supra, 224 Cal.App.3d at p. 118, original italics, internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]he obvious nature of a danger is not, in and of itself, sufficient to establish that the owner of the premises on which the danger is located is not liable for injuries caused thereby, and that although obviousness of danger may negate any duty to warn, it does not necessarily negate the duty to remedy." (Osborn, supra, 224 Cal.App.3d at p. 119.)
- "The issue is whether there is any evidence from which a trier of fact could find that, as a practical necessity, [plaintiff] was foreseeably required to expose himself to the danger of falling into the empty pool." (Jacobs, supra, 14 Cal.App.5th at p. 447.)
- "It is incorrect to instruct a jury categorically that a business owner cannot be held liable for an injury resulting from an obvious danger. There may be a duty to remedy a dangerous condition, even though there is no duty to warn thereof, if the condition is foreseeable. [¶] . . . The jury was free to consider whether [the business owner] was directly negligent in failing to correct any foreseeable, dangerous condition of the cables which may have contributed to the cause of [the plaintiff's] injuries." (Felmlee v. Falcon Cable TV (1995) 36 Cal.App.4th 1032, 1040 [43 Cal.Rptr.2d 158], internal citation omitted.)
- "[T]he 'obvious danger' exception to a landowner's ordinary duty of care is in reality a recharacterization of the former assumption of the risk doctrine, i.e., where the condition is so apparent that the plaintiff must have realized the danger involved, he assumes the risk of injury even if the defendant was negligent. . . . [T]his type of assumption of the risk has now been merged into comparative negligence." (Donohue v. San Francisco Housing Authority (1993) 16 Cal.App.4th 658, 665 [20 Cal.Rptr.2d 148], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1233, 1267–1269

1 Neil M. Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 15, General Premises Liability, § 15.04[4] (Matthew Bender, Rev. Ed.)

11 California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 381, Tort Liability of Property Owners, §§ 381.20, 381.32 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 421, Premises Liability, § 421.14 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 178, Premises Liability, § 178.25 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1005. Business Proprietor's or Property Owner's Liability for the Criminal Conduct of Others

---

[An owner of a business that is open to the public/A landlord] must use reasonable care to protect [patrons/guests/tenants] from another person's criminal conduct on [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] property if the [owner/landlord] can reasonably anticipate that conduct.

You must decide whether the steps taken by [name of defendant] to protect persons such as [name of plaintiff] were adequate and reasonable under the circumstances.

New September 2003; Revised May 2018

Directions for Use

A business owner or a landlord has a duty to take affirmative steps to protect against the criminal acts of a third party if the conduct can be reasonably anticipated. (Ann M. v. Pacific Plaza Shopping Center (1993) 6 Cal.4th 666, 676 [25 Cal.Rptr.2d 137, 863 P.2d 207], disapproved on other grounds in Reid v. Google, Inc. (2010) 50 Cal.4th 512, 527, fn. 5 [113 Cal.Rptr.3d 327, 235 P.3d 988].) Whether there is a duty as defined in the first paragraph is a question of law for the court. The jury then decides whether the defendant's remedial measures were reasonable and adequate under the circumstances (second paragraph). (Isaacs v. Huntington Memorial Hospital (1985) 38 Cal.3d 112, 131 [211 Cal.Rptr. 356, 695 P.2d 653].)

Sources and Authority

- "A landlord generally owes a tenant the duty, arising out of their special relationship, to take reasonable measures to secure areas under the landlord's control against foreseeable criminal acts of third parties." (Castaneda v. Olsher (2007) 41 Cal.4th 1205, 1213 [63 Cal.Rptr.3d 99, 162 P.3d 610].)
- "[B]road language used in Isaacs has tended to confuse duty analysis generally in that the opinion can be read to hold that foreseeability in the context of determining duty is normally a question of fact reserved for the jury. Any such reading of Isaacs is in error. Foreseeability, when analyzed to determine the existence or scope of a duty, is a question of law to be decided by the court." (Ann M., supra, 6 Cal.4th at p. 678, internal citation omitted.)
- "[T]he decision to impose a duty of care to protect against criminal assaults requires 'balancing the foreseeability of the harm against the burden of the duty to be imposed. [Citation.] " '[I]n cases where the burden of preventing future harm is great, a high degree of foreseeability may be required. [Citation.] On the other hand, in cases where there are strong policy reasons for preventing the harm, or the harm can be prevented by simple means, a lesser degree of foreseeability may be required.' [Citation.]" [Citation.] Or, as one appellate court has accurately explained, duty in such circumstances is determined by a balancing of "foreseeability" of the criminal acts against the "burdensomeness, vagueness, and efficacy" of the proposed security measures.' " (Wiener v. Southcoast Childcare Centers, Inc. (2004) 32 Cal.4th 1138, 1146–1147 [12 Cal.Rptr.3d 615, 88 P.3d 517].)

- " 'A possessor of land who holds it open to the public for entry for his business purposes is subject to liability to members of the public while they are upon the land for such a purpose, for physical harm caused by the accidental, negligent, or intentionally harmful acts of third persons or animals, and by the failure of the possessor to exercise reasonable care to (a) discover that such acts are being done or are likely to be done, or (b) give a warning adequate to enable the visitors to avoid the harm, or otherwise to protect them against it.' " (Taylor v. Centennial Bowl, Inc. (1966) 65 Cal.2d 114, 124 [52 Cal.Rptr. 561, 416 P.2d 793], quoting Restatement of Torts, § 344.)
- "[T]he property holder only 'has a duty to protect against types of crimes of which he has notice and which are likely to recur if the common areas are not secure.' The court's focus in determining duty ' " 'is not to decide whether a particular plaintiff's injury was reasonably foreseeable in light of a particular defendant's conduct, but rather to evaluate more generally whether the category of negligent conduct at issue is sufficiently likely to result in the kind of harm experienced that liability may appropriately be imposed on the negligent party.' [Citation.]" ' " (Janice H. v. 696 North Robertson, LLC (2016) 1 Cal.App.5th 586, 594 [205 Cal.Rptr.3d 103], internal citation omitted.)
- "[O]nly when 'heightened' foreseeability of third party criminal activity on the premises exists—shown by prior similar incidents or other indications of a reasonably foreseeable risk of violent criminal assaults in that location—does the scope of a business proprietor's special-relationship-based duty include an obligation to provide guards to protect the safety of patrons." (Delgado v. Trax Bar & Grill (2005) 36 Cal.4th 224, 240 [30 Cal.Rptr.3d 145, 113 P.3d 1159], internal citations and footnote omitted, original italics.)
- "[F]oreseeability, whether heightened or reduced, is tested by what the defendant knows, not what the defendant could have or should have learned." (Margaret W. v. Kelley R. (2006) 139 Cal.App.4th 141, 158 [42 Cal.Rptr.3d 519].)
- "Here [defendant] argues it has no duty unless and until it experiences a similar criminal incident. We disagree. While a property holder generally has a duty to protect against types of crimes of which he is on notice, the absence of previous occurrences does not end the duty inquiry. We look to all of the factual circumstances to assess foreseeability." (Janice H., supra, 1 Cal.App.5th at p. 595, internal citation omitted.)
- "Knowing there is a general potential for rowdy or troublesome conduct by bar patrons, however, does not make the category of aggressive parking lot assaults reasonably foreseeable, any more so than the presumed awareness of previous assaults and robberies or problems with transients on the property establishes the foreseeability of a violent sexual assault." (Williams v. Fremont Corners, Inc. (2019) 37 Cal.App.5th 654, 671–672 [250 Cal.Rptr.3d 46].)

- "Even when proprietors . . . have no duty . . . to provide a security guard or undertake other similarly burdensome preventative measures, the proprietor is not necessarily insulated from liability under the special relationship doctrine. A proprietor that has no duty . . . to hire a security guard or to undertake other similarly burdensome preventative measures still owes a duty of due care to a patron or invitee by virtue of the special relationship, and there are circumstances (apart from the failure to provide a security guard or undertake other similarly burdensome preventative measures) that may give rise to liability based upon the proprietor's special relationship." (Delgado, supra, 36 Cal.4th at pp. 240–241.)
- A business proprietor is not an insurer of the safety of his invitees, "but he is required to exercise reasonable care for their safety and is liable for injuries resulting from a breach of this duty. The general duty includes not only the duty to inspect the premises in order to uncover dangerous conditions, but, as well, the duty to take affirmative action to control the wrongful acts of third persons which threaten invitees where the occupant has reasonable cause to anticipate such acts and the probability of injury resulting therefrom." (Taylor, supra, 65 Cal.2d at p. 121, internal citations omitted.)
- "In the case of a landlord, this general duty of maintenance, which is owed to tenants and patrons, has been held to include the duty to take reasonable steps to secure common areas against foreseeable criminal acts of third parties that are likely to occur in the absence of such precautionary measures." (Ann M., supra, 6 Cal.4th at p. 674, internal citation omitted.) (Frances T. v. Village Green Owners Assn. (1986) 42 Cal.3d 490, 499–501 [229 Cal.Rptr. 456, 723 P.2d 573].)
- "[Restatement Second of Torts] Section 314A identifies 'special relations' which give rise to a duty to protect another. Section 344 of the Restatement Second of Torts expands on that duty as it applies to business operators." (Ky. Fried Chicken of Cal. v. Superior Court (1997) 14 Cal.4th 814, 823 [59 Cal.Rptr.2d 756, 927 P.2d 1260].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1271–1291

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 15, General Premises Liability, § 15.06 (Matthew Bender)

6 California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 170, The Premises: Duties and Liabilities, § 170.05 (Matthew Bender)

11 California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 381, Tort Liability of Property Owners, § 381.21 (Matthew Bender)

29 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 334, Landlord and Tenant: Claims for Damages, §§ 334.12, 334.23, 334.57 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 421, Premises Liability, § 421.30 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 178, Premises Liability, § 178.60 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts § 16:5 (Thomson Reuters)

1006. Landlord's Duty

A landlord must conduct reasonable periodic inspections of rental property whenever the landlord has the legal right of possession. Before giving possession of leased property to a tenant [or on renewal of a lease] [or after retaking possession from a tenant], a landlord must conduct a reasonable inspection of the property for unsafe conditions and must take reasonable precautions to prevent injury due to the conditions that were or reasonably should have been discovered in the process. The inspection must include common areas under the landlord's control.

After a tenant has taken possession, a landlord must take reasonable precautions to prevent injury due to any unsafe condition in an area of the premises under the landlord's control if the landlord knows or reasonably should have known about it.

[After a tenant has taken possession, a landlord must take reasonable precautions to prevent injury due to any unsafe condition in an area of the premises under the tenant's control if the landlord has actual knowledge of the condition and the right and ability to correct it.]

New September 2003; Revised April 2008, April 2009, December 2009, June 2010

Directions for Use

Give this instruction with CACI No. 1000, Premises Liability—Essential Factual Elements, CACI No. 1001, Basic Duty of Care, and CACI No. 1003, Unsafe Conditions, if the injury occurred on rental property and the landlord is alleged to be liable. Include the last paragraph if the property is not within the landlord's immediate control.

Include "or on renewal of a lease" for commercial tenancies. (See Mora v. Baker Commodities, Inc. (1989) 210 Cal.App.3d 771, 781 [258 Cal.Rptr. 669].) While no case appears to have specifically addressed a landlord's duty to inspect on renewal of a residential lease, it would seem impossible to impose such a duty with regard to a month-to-month tenancy. Whether there might be a duty to inspect on renewal of a long-term residential lease appears to be unresolved.

Under the doctrine of nondelegable duty, a landlord cannot escape liability for failure to maintain property in a safe condition by delegating the duty to an independent contractor. (Srithong v. Total Investment Co. (1994) 23 Cal.App.4th 721, 726 [28 Cal.Rptr.2d 672].) For an instruction for use with regard to a landlord's liability for the acts of an independent contractor, see CACI No. 3713, Nondelegable Duty.

Sources and Authority

- "A landlord owes a duty of care to a tenant to provide and maintain safe conditions on the leased premises. This duty of care also extends to the general public. 'A lessor who leases property for a purpose involving the admission of the public is under a duty to see that it is safe for the purposes intended, and to exercise reasonable care to inspect and repair the premises before possession is transferred so as to prevent any unreasonable risk of harm to the public who may enter. An agreement to renew a lease or relet the premises . . . cannot relieve the lessor of his duty to see that the premises are reasonably safe at that time.' [¶] Where there is a duty to exercise reasonable care in the inspection of premises for dangerous conditions, the lack of awareness of the dangerous condition does not generally preclude liability. 'Although liability might easily be found where the landowner has actual knowledge of the dangerous condition "[t]he landowner's lack of knowledge of the dangerous condition is not a defense. He has an affirmative duty to exercise ordinary care to keep the premises in a reasonably safe condition, and therefore must inspect them or take other proper means to ascertain their condition. And if, by the exercise of reasonable care, he would have discovered the dangerous condition, he is liable." ' " (Portillo v. Aiassa (1994) 27 Cal.App.4th 1128, 1134 [32 Cal.Rptr.2d 755], internal citations omitted.)

- "Public policy precludes landlord liability for a dangerous condition on the premises which came into existence after possession has passed to a tenant. This is based on the principle that the landlord has surrendered possession and control of the land to the tenant and has no right even to enter without permission. It would not be reasonable to hold a lessor liable if the lessor did not have the power, opportunity, and ability to eliminate the dangerous condition." (Garcia v. Holt (2015) 242 Cal.App.4th 600, 604 [195 Cal.Rptr.3d 47], internal citations omitted.)
- "The rationale for this rule has been that property law regards a lease as equivalent to a sale of the land for the term of the lease. As stated by Prosser: 'In the absence of agreement to the contrary, the lessor surrenders both possession and control of the land to the lessee, retaining only a reversionary interest; and he has no right even to enter without the permission of the lessee. Consequently, it is the general rule that he is under no obligation to anyone to look after the premises or keep them in repair, and is not responsible, either to persons injured on the land or to those outside of it, for conditions which develop or are created by the tenant after possession has been transferred. Neither is he responsible, in general, for the activities which the tenant carries on upon the land after such transfer, even when they create a nuisance.' " (Uccello v. Laudenslayer (1975) 44 Cal.App.3d 504, 510–511 [118 Cal.Rptr. 741], internal citations omitted.)
- "To this general rule of nonliability, the law has developed a number of exceptions, such as where the landlord covenants or volunteers to repair a defective condition on the premises, where the landlord has actual knowledge of defects which are unknown and not apparent to the tenant and he fails to disclose them to the tenant, where there is a nuisance existing on the property at the time the lease is made or renewed, when a safety law has been violated, or where the injury occurs on a part of the premises over which the landlord retains control, such as common hallways, stairs, elevators, or roof. [¶] A common element in these exceptions is that either at or after the time possession is given to the tenant the landlord retains or acquires a recognizable degree of control over the dangerous condition with a concomitant right and power to obviate the condition and prevent the injury. In these situations, the law imposes on the landlord a duty to use ordinary care to eliminate the condition with resulting liability for injuries caused by his failure so to act." (Uccello, supra, 44 Cal.App.3d at p. 511, internal citations omitted.)

- "With regard to landlords, 'reasonable care ordinarily involves making sure the property is safe at the beginning of the tenancy, and repairing any hazards the landlord learns about later.' ' "Because a landlord has relinquished possessory interest in the land, his or her duty of care to third parties injured on the land is attenuated as compared with the tenant who enjoys possession and control. Thus, before liability may be thrust on a landlord for a third party's injury due to a dangerous condition on the land, the plaintiff must show that the landlord had actual knowledge of the dangerous condition in question, plus the right and ability to cure the condition." ' " (Day v. Lupo Vine Street, L.P. (2018) 22 Cal.App.5th 62, 69 [231 Cal.Rptr.3d 193], internal citations omitted.)
- "Limiting a landlord's obligations releases it from needing to engage in potentially intrusive oversight of the property, thus permitting the tenant to enjoy its tenancy unmolested." (Salinas v. Martin (2008) 166 Cal.App.4th 404, 412 [82 Cal.Rptr.3d 735], internal citations omitted.)
- "[A] commercial landowner cannot totally abrogate its landowner responsibilities merely by signing a lease. As the owner of property, a lessor out of possession must exercise due care and must act reasonably toward the tenant as well as to unknown third persons. At the time the lease is executed and upon renewal a landlord has a right to reenter the property, has control of the property, and must inspect the premises to make the premises reasonably safe from dangerous conditions. Even if the commercial landlord executes a contract which requires the tenant to maintain the property in a certain condition, the landlord is obligated at the time the lease is executed to take reasonable precautions to avoid unnecessary danger." (Mora, supra, 210 Cal.App.3d at p. 781, internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]he landlord's responsibility to inspect is limited. Like a residential landlord, the duty to inspect charges the lessor 'only with those matters which would have been disclosed by a reasonable inspection.' The burden of reducing or avoiding the risk and the likelihood of injury will affect the determination of what constitutes a reasonable inspection. The landlord's obligation is only to do what is reasonable under the circumstances. The landlord need not take extraordinary measures or make unreasonable expenditures of time and money in trying to discover hazards unless the circumstances so warrant. When there is a potential serious danger, which is foreseeable, a landlord should anticipate the danger and conduct a reasonable inspection before passing possession to the tenant. However, if no such inspection is warranted, the landlord has no such obligation." (Mora, supra, 210 Cal.App.3d at p. 782, internal citations and footnote omitted.)

- "It is one thing for a landlord to leave a tenant alone who is complying with its lease. It is entirely different, however, for a landlord to ignore a defaulting tenant's possible neglect of property. Neglected property endangers the public, and a landlord's detachment frustrates the public policy of keeping property in good repair and safe. To strike the right balance between safety and disfavored self-help, we hold that [the landlord]'s duty to inspect attached upon entry of the judgment of possession in the unlawful detainer action and included reasonable periodic inspections thereafter." (Stone v. Center Trust Retail Properties, Inc. (2008) 163 Cal.App.4th 608, 613 [77 Cal.Rptr.3d 556].)
- "[I]t is established that a landlord owes a duty of care to its tenants to take reasonable steps to secure the common areas under its control." (Ann M. v. Pacific Plaza Shopping Center (1993) 6 Cal.4th 666, 675 [25 Cal.Rptr.2d 137, 863 P.2d 207].)
- "The existence of the landlord's duty to others to maintain the property in a reasonably safe condition is a question of law for the court." (Johnson v. Prasad (2014) 224 Cal.App.4th 74, 79 [168 Cal.Rptr.3d 196].)
- "The reasonableness of a landlord's conduct under all the circumstances is for the jury. A triable issue of fact exists as to whether the defendants' maintenance of a low, open, unguarded window in a common hallway where they knew young children were likely to play constituted a breach of their duty to take reasonable precautions to prevent children falling out of the window." (Amos v. Alpha Prop. Mgmt. (1999) 73 Cal.App.4th 895, 904 [87 Cal.Rptr.2d 34], internal citation omitted.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1284, 1285

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 15, General Premises Liability, § 15.02 (Matthew Bender)

6 California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 170, The Premises: Duties and Liabilities, § 170.03 (Matthew Bender)

29 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 334, Landlord and Tenant: Claims for Damages, §§ 334.10, 334.53 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 421, Premises Liability, § 421.11 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 178, Premises Liability, § 178.23 (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts §§ 16:12–16:16 (Thomson Reuters)

1007. Sidewalk Abutting Property

[An owner of/An occupier of/One who controls] property must avoid creating an unsafe condition on the surrounding public streets or sidewalks.

New September 2003; Revised December 2022

Sources and Authority

- "It is the general rule that in the absence of a statute a landowner is under no duty to maintain in a safe condition a public street abutting upon his property. There is, however, an exception to this rule . . . . It has been held that an abutting owner is liable for the condition of portions of the public sidewalk which he has altered or constructed for the benefit of his property and which serve a use independent of and apart from the ordinary and accustomed use for which sidewalks are designed." (Sexton v. Brooks (1952) 39 Cal.2d 153, 157 [245 P.2d 496], internal citation omitted.)
- "An abutting owner has always had a duty to refrain from doing an affirmative act which would render the sidewalk dangerous to the public." (Selger v. Steven Brothers, Inc. (1990) 222 Cal.App.3d 1585, 1592 [272 Cal.Rptr. 544], internal citations omitted.)
- "[A] landowner may face liability for injury to another, incurred outside of the former's property (on an adjacent street), if the injury is found to be caused by a traffic obstruction in the form of shrubbery growing from the property." (Swanberg v. O'Mectin (1984) 157 Cal.App.3d 325, 330 [203 Cal.Rptr. 701].)
- "The occupier of real property owes a duty to exercise ordinary care in the use and management of his or her land. The occupier must maintain such land in a manner as to not injure the users of an abutting street or sidewalk." (Lompoc Unified School Dist. v. Superior Court (1993) 20 Cal.App.4th 1688, 1693 [26 Cal.Rptr.2d 122], internal citations omitted.)
- "An ordinance requiring the abutting landowner to maintain the sidewalk would be construed to create a duty of care to third persons only if the ordinance clearly and unambiguously so provided." (Selger, supra, 222 Cal.App.3d at p. 1590, internal citations omitted.)
- "Persons who maintain walkways—whether public or private—are not required to maintain them in absolutely perfect condition. 'The duty of care imposed on a property owner, even one with actual notice, does not require the repair of minor defects.' The rule is no less applicable in a privately owned townhome development. Moreover, what constitutes a minor defect may be a question of law." (Cadam v. Somerset Gardens Townhouse HOA (2011) 200 Cal.App.4th 383, 388–389 [132 Cal.Rptr.3d 617], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1231–1234

Friedman et al., California Practice Guide: Landlord-Tenant, Ch. 6-A, Liability For Defective Conditions On Premises, ¶ 6:1 et seq. (The Rutter Group)

Friedman et al., California Practice Guide: Landlord-Tenant, Ch. 6-B, Landlord Liability For Injuries From Acts Of Others, ¶ 6:48 et seq. (The Rutter Group)

1 Neil M. Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 15, General Premises Liability, § 15.03[4] (Matthew Bender, Rev. Ed.)

11 California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 381, Tort Liability of Property Owners, § 381.03 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 178, Premises Liability, § 178.29 (Matthew Bender)

1008. Liability for Adjacent Altered Sidewalk—Essential Factual Elements

---

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was harmed because [name of defendant] was negligent in constructing and maintaining an altered portion of the sidewalk next to [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] property. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] [or a previous owner] altered [or requested the city to alter] the portion of the sidewalk that caused the harm;
2. That the alteration provided a benefit solely to [name of defendant]'s property;
3. That the alteration served a purpose different from ordinary sidewalk use;
4. That [name of defendant] failed to use reasonable care in creating or maintaining the altered portion of the sidewalk;
5. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
6. That [name of defendant]'s negligence was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New September 2003

Sources and Authority

- An abutting landowner who has altered an adjacent sidewalk for the benefit of his property apart from the ordinary use for which it was designed has a duty to employ ordinary care in making such alteration and in maintaining that portion of the sidewalk in a reasonably safe condition. (Peters v. City & County of San Francisco (1953) 41 Cal.2d 419, 423 [260 P.2d 55]; see Selger v. Steven Brothers, Inc. (1990) 222 Cal.App.3d 1585, 1594 [272 Cal.Rptr. 544].)
- The duty of care regarding altered sidewalks usually arises in cases "involving traps on sidewalks, including ' "coal holes, meter boxes, and other devices of similar character located in the sidewalk which benefit the abutting owner and are located where the general public is likely to walk . . . ." ' " (Contreras v. Anderson (1997) 59 Cal.App.4th 188, 202 [69 Cal.Rptr.2d 69], internal citation omitted.)
- Liability depends on findings of (1) special benefit to the owner's property, (2) alteration of sidewalk for a nontypical purpose, and (3) the degree of exclusivity of benefit. (Contreras, supra, 59 Cal.App.4th at p. 202.)
- "The significance of the degree of exclusivity is that proportionately, the greater the exclusivity of use, the more an improvement benefits solely the adjoining property and the more reasonable it is to impose upon the landowner a duty to maintain the improvement in a reasonably safe condition." (Seaber v. Hotel Del Coronado (1991) 1 Cal.App.4th 481, 491 [2 Cal.Rptr.2d 405].)

- The requirement of due care in altering a sidewalk applies only to that portion of the sidewalk that is actually altered: "The rule cited by plaintiff requires the owner to keep the altered portion in reasonably safe condition or be liable for injuries resulting therefrom. Plaintiff did not trip on defendant's floral displays, she slipped on the dog dropping, a hazard which defendant did not create." (Selger, supra, 222 Cal.App.3d at p. 1595.)
- "The duty to maintain portions of a sidewalk which have been altered for the benefit of the property runs with the land, and a property owner cannot avoid liability on the ground that the condition was created by or at the request of his predecessors in title." (Peters, supra, 41 Cal.2d at p. 423.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1231–1234

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 15, General Premises Liability, § 15.03[4] (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 178, Premises Liability, § 178.29 (Matthew Bender)

1009A. Liability to Employees of Independent Contractors for Unsafe Concealed Conditions

---

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was harmed by an unsafe concealed condition while employed by [name of plaintiff's employer] and working on [name of defendant]'s property. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] [owned/leased/occupied/controlled] the property;
2. That [name of defendant] knew, or reasonably should have known, of a preexisting unsafe concealed condition on the property;
3. That [name of plaintiff's employer] neither knew nor could be reasonably expected to know of the unsafe concealed condition through a reasonable inspection of the worksite;
4. That [name of defendant] failed to warn [name of plaintiff's employer] of the condition;
5. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
6. That [name of defendant]'s conduct was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

An unsafe condition is concealed if either it is not visible or its dangerous nature is not apparent to a reasonable person.

Derived from former CACI No. 1009 April 2007; Revised April 2009, December 2011, May 2024, November 2024*

Directions for Use

This instruction is for use if a concealed dangerous condition on property causes injury to an employee of an independent contractor hired to perform work on the property. For an instruction for injuries to others due to a concealed condition, see CACI No. 1003, Unsafe Conditions. For an instruction for injuries based on the hirer's retained control over the contractor's performance of work, see CACI No. 1009B, Liability to Employees of Independent Contractors for Unsafe Conditions—Retained Control. For an instruction for injuries based on the property owner's providing defective equipment, see CACI No. 1009D, Liability to Employees of Independent Contractors for Unsafe Conditions—Defective Equipment.

Element 3 expresses the independent contractor's limited duty to inspect the premises for potential safety hazards. (Gonzalez v. Mathis (2021) 12 Cal.5th 29, 53–54 [282 Cal.Rptr.3d 658, 493 P.3d 212]; Acosta v. MAS Realty, LLC (2023) 96 Cal.App.5th 635, 659 [314 Cal.Rptr.3d 507] ["[A] contractor has a duty to inspect the worksite to identify safety hazards before beginning work"].) The duty to inspect the worksite includes the duty to inspect the means to access the worksite. (Acosta, supra, 96 Cal.App.5th at p. 662.) When an employee alleges injury due to an unsafe concealed condition encountered while accessing the worksite, the court may wish to modify element 3 to include a description of the means to access the worksite.

Sources and Authority

- "[T]he hirer as landowner may be independently liable to the contractor's employee, even if it does not retain control over the work, if: (1) it knows or reasonably should know of a concealed, preexisting hazardous condition on its premises; (2) the contractor does not know and could not reasonably ascertain the condition; and (3) the landowner fails to warn the contractor." (Kinsman v. Unocal Corp. (2005) 37 Cal.4th 659, 675 [36 Cal.Rptr.3d 495, 123 P.3d 931].)
- "[T]here is no reason to distinguish conceptually between premises liability based on a hazardous substance that is concealed because it is invisible to the contractor and known only to the landowner and premises liability based on a hazardous substance that is visible but is known to be hazardous only to the landowner. If the hazard is not reasonably apparent, and is known only to the landowner, it is a concealed hazard, whether or not the substance creating the hazard is visible." (Kinsman, supra, 37 Cal.4th at p. 678.)
- "A landowner's duty generally includes a duty to inspect for concealed hazards. But the responsibility for job safety delegated to independent contractors may and generally does include explicitly or implicitly a limited duty to inspect the premises as well. Therefore, . . . the landowner would not be liable when the contractor has failed to engage in inspections of the premises implicitly or explicitly delegated to it. Thus, for example, an employee of a roofing contractor sent to repair a defective roof would generally not be able to sue the hirer if injured when he fell through the same roof due to a structural defect, inasmuch as inspection for such defects could reasonably be implied to be within the scope of the contractor's employment. On the other hand, if the same employee fell from a ladder because the wall on which the ladder was propped collapsed, assuming that this defect was not related to the roof under repair, the employee may be able to sustain a suit against the hirer. Put in other terms, the contractor was not being paid to inspect the premises generally, and therefore the duty of general inspection could not be said to have been delegated to it. Under those circumstances, the landowner's failure to reasonably inspect the premises, when a hidden hazard leads directly to the employee's injury, may well result in liability." (Kinsman, supra, 37 Cal.4th at pp. 677–678, internal citations omitted.)
- "[A]n independent contractor does not have a duty to inspect all of the landowner's property or to identify hazards wholly outside his area of expertise. But a landowner who hires an independent contractor 'presumptively delegates to that contractor its tort law duty to provide a safe workplace for the contractor's employees,' and thus the independent contractor has a duty to determine whether its employees can safely perform the work they have been hired to do. That includes a duty to inspect not only the worksite itself, but the 'means to access the worksite.' " (Acosta, supra, 96 Cal.App.5th at pp. 661–662, internal citations omitted.)

- "Horizon, as the independent contractor hired by defendants, had a duty to ensure a safe workplace for its employees and is deemed to have been aware of any hazards that a reasonable inspection of the workplace would have revealed. Whether the independent contractor actually inspected, or whether an employee of the independent contractor actually communicated an unsafe condition to the contractor, is irrelevant—what matters is whether the hazard would have been revealed by a reasonable inspection." (Acosta, supra, 96 Cal.App.5th at p. 663, original italics.)
- "We emphasize that our holding applies only to hazards on the premises of which the independent contractor is aware or should reasonably detect. Although we recognized in Kinsman that the delegation of responsibility for workplace safety to independent contractors may include a limited duty to inspect the premises, it would not be reasonable to expect [an independent contractor] to identify every conceivable dangerous condition on the roof given that he is not a licensed roofer and was not hired to repair the roof." (Gonzalez, supra, 12 Cal.5th at p. 54, internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]he initial formulation of the Kinsman test asks whether the independent contractor could reasonably have discovered the latent hazardous condition; the gloss on the test for obvious hazards asks whether knowledge of the hazard is inadequate to prevent injury. Both of these tests are defeated where, as here, there is undisputed evidence that the hazard could reasonably have been discovered (by inspecting the ladder) and, once discovered, avoided (by getting another ladder)." (Johnson v. Raytheon Co. (2019) 33 Cal.App.5th 617, 632 [245 Cal.Rptr.3d 282].)
- "The court also told the jury that [defendant] was liable if its negligent use or maintenance of the property was a substantial factor in harming [plaintiff] (see CACI Nos. 1000, 1001, 1003 & 1011). These instructions were erroneous because they did not say that these principles would only apply to [defendant] if the hazard was concealed." (Alaniz v. Sun Pacific Shippers, L.P. (2020) 48 Cal.App.5th 332, 338–339 [261 Cal.Rptr.3d 702].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1259 et seq.

Friedman et al., California Practice Guide: Landlord-Tenant, Ch. 6-A, Liability For Defective Conditions On Premises, ¶¶ 6:4, 6:9.12 (The Rutter Group)

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 15, General Premises Liability, §§ 15.04[4], 15.08 (Matthew Bender)

11 California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 381, Tort Liability of Property Owners, § 381.20 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 421, Premises Liability, §§ 421.11–421.12 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 178, Premises Liability, § 178.20 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1009B. Liability to Employees of Independent Contractors for Unsafe Conditions—Retained Control

---

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was harmed by an unsafe condition while employed by [name of contractor] and working on [specify nature of work that defendant hired the contractor to perform]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] retained some control over [name of contractor]'s manner of performance of [specify nature of contracted work];
2. That [name of defendant] actually exercised [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] retained control over that work by [specify alleged negligence of defendant];
3. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
4. That [name of defendant]'s negligent exercise of [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] retained control affirmatively contributed to [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

---

*Derived from former CACI No. 1009 April 2007; Revised April 2009, December 2010, December 2011, May 2017, May 2022, November 2024

Directions for Use

This instruction is for use if a dangerous condition on property causes injury to an employee of an independent contractor hired to perform work on the property. The basis of liability is that the defendant retained control over the manner of performance of some part of the work entrusted to the contractor. (Sandoval v. Qualcomm Inc. (2021) 12 Cal.5th 256, 273 [283 Cal.Rptr.3d 519, 494 P.3d 487].) Both retaining control and actually exercising control over some aspect of the work is required because hirers who fully and effectively delegate work to a contractor owe no tort duty to that contractor's workers. (See Ibid.) If there is a question of fact regarding whether the defendant entrusted the work to the contractor, the instruction should be modified. For an instruction for injuries to others due to a concealed condition, see CACI No. 1003, Unsafe Conditions. For an instruction for injuries based on unsafe conditions not discoverable by the plaintiff's employer, see CACI No. 1009A, Liability to Employees of Independent Contractors for Unsafe Concealed Conditions. For an instruction for injuries based on the property owner's providing defective equipment, see CACI No. 1009D, Liability to Employees of Independent Contractors for Unsafe Conditions—Defective Equipment.

The hirer's exercise of retained control must have "affirmatively contributed" to the plaintiff's injury. (Hooker v. Department of Transportation (2002) 27 Cal.4th 198, 202 [115 Cal.Rptr.2d 853, 38 P.3d 1081]; see Sandoval, supra, 12 Cal.5th at p. 277.)

However, the affirmative contribution need not be active conduct but may be a failure to act. (Hooker, supra, 27 Cal.4th at p. 212, fn. 3; see Sandoval, supra, 12 Cal.5th at p. 277.) "Affirmative contribution" means that there must be causation between the hirer's exercising retained control and the plaintiff's injury. Modification may be required if the defendant's failure to act is alleged pursuant to Hooker.

Sources and Authority

- "A hirer 'retains control' where it retains a sufficient degree of authority over the manner of performance of the work entrusted to the contractor. . . . So 'retained control' refers specifically to a hirer's authority over work entrusted to the contractor, i.e., work the contractor has agreed to perform. For simplicity we will often call this the 'contracted work'—irrespective of whether it's set out in a written contract or arises from an informal agreement. A hirer's authority over noncontract work—although potentially giving rise to other tort duties—thus does not give rise to a retained control duty unless it has the effect of creating authority over the contracted work." (Sandoval, supra, 12 Cal.5th at pp. 274–275.)
- "We conclude that a hirer of an independent contractor is not liable to an employee of the contractor merely because the hirer retained control over safety conditions at a worksite, but that a hirer is liable to an employee of a contractor insofar as a hirer's exercise of retained control affirmatively contributed to the employee's injuries." (Hooker, supra, 27 Cal.4th at p. 202, original italics.)
- "Imposing tort liability on a hirer of an independent contractor when the hirer's conduct has affirmatively contributed to the injuries of the contractor's employee is consistent with the rationale of our decisions in Privette [v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal.4th 689], Toland [v. Sunland Housing Group, Inc. (1998) 18 Cal.4th 253] and Camargo [v. Tjaarda Dairy (2001) 25 Cal.4th 1235] because the liability of the hirer in such a case is not ' "in essence 'vicarious' or 'derivative' in the sense that it derives from the 'act or omission' of the hired contractor." ' To the contrary, the liability of the hirer in such a case is direct in a much stronger sense of that term." (Hooker, supra, 27 Cal.4th at pp. 211–212, original italics, internal citations and footnote omitted.)
- "Contract workers must prove that the hirer both retained control and actually exercised that retained control in such a way as to affirmatively contribute to the injury." (Sandoval, supra, 12 Cal.5th at p. 276, original italics.)
- "Such affirmative contribution need not always be in the form of actively directing a contractor or contractor's employee. There will be times when a hirer will be liable for its omissions. For example, if the hirer promises to undertake a particular safety measure, then the hirer's negligent failure to do so should result in liability if such negligence leads to an employee injury." (Hooker, supra, 27 Cal.4th at p. 212, fn. 3.)
- " 'Affirmative contribution' means that the hirer's exercise of retained control contributes to the injury in a way that isn't merely derivative of the contractor's contribution to the injury. Where the contractor's conduct is the immediate cause of injury, the affirmative contribution requirement can be satisfied only if the hirer in some respect induced—not just failed to prevent—the contractor's injury-causing conduct." (Sandoval, supra, 12 Cal.5th at p. 277, internal citation omitted.)

- "If a hirer entrusts work to an independent contractor, but retains control over safety conditions at a jobsite and then negligently exercises that control in a manner that affirmatively contributes to an employee's injuries, the hirer is liable for those injuries, based on its own negligent exercise of that retained control." (Tverberg v. Fillner Constr., Inc. (2012) 202 Cal.App.4th 1439, 1446 [136 Cal.Rptr.3d 521].)
- "[A]ffirmative contribution is a different sort of inquiry than substantial factor causation. For instance, a fact finder might reasonably conclude that a hirer's negligent hiring of the contractor was a substantial factor in bringing about a contract worker's injury, and yet negligent hiring is not affirmative contribution because the hirer's liability is essentially derivative of the contractor's conduct. Conversely, affirmative contribution does not itself require that the hirer's contribution to the injury be substantial." (Sandoval, supra, 12 Cal.5th at p. 278, internal citations omitted.)
- "A hirer's failure to correct an unsafe condition, by itself, does not establish an affirmative contribution." (Khosh v. Staples Construction Co., Inc. (2016) 4 Cal.App.5th 712, 718 [208 Cal.Rptr.3d 699].)
- "On facts [showing a contractor's awareness of a hazard], then, it is the contractor's responsibility, not the hirer's responsibility, to take the necessary precautions to protect its employees from a known workplace hazard. And should the contractor fail to take the necessary precautions, . . . its employees cannot fault the hirer for the contractor's own failure." (McCullar v. SMC Contracting, Inc. (2022) 83 Cal.App.5th 1005, 1017 [298 Cal.Rptr.3d 785].)
- "When the employer directs that work be done by use of a particular mode or otherwise interferes with the means and methods of accomplishing the work, an affirmative contribution occurs. When the hirer does not fully delegate the task of providing a safe working environment but in some manner actively participates in how the job is done, the hirer may be held liable to the employee if its participation affirmatively contributed to the employee's injury. [¶] By contrast, passively permitting an unsafe condition to occur rather than directing it to occur does not constitute affirmative contribution. The failure to institute specific safety measures is not actionable unless there is some evidence that the hirer or the contractor had agreed to implement these measures. Thus, the failure to exercise retained control does not constitute an affirmative contribution to an injury. Such affirmative contribution must be based on a negligent exercise of control. In order for a worker to recover on a retained control theory, the hirer must engage in some active participation." (Tverberg, supra, 202 Cal.App.4th at p. 1446, internal citations omitted.)
- "Although plaintiffs concede that [contractor] had exclusive control over how the window washing would be done, they urge that [owner] nonetheless is liable because it affirmatively contributed to decedent's injuries 'not [by] active conduct but . . . in the form of an omission to act.' Although it is undeniable that [owner]'s failure to equip its building with roof anchors contributed to decedent's death, McKown [v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. (2002) 27 Cal.4th 219] does not support plaintiffs' suggestion that a passive omission of this type is actionable. . . . Subsequent Supreme Court decisions . . . have repeatedly rejected the suggestion that the passive provision of an unsafe workplace is actionable. . . . Accordingly, the failure to provide safety equipment does not constitute an 'affirmative contribution' to an injury within the meaning of McKown." (Delgadillo v. Television Center, Inc. (2018) 20 Cal.App.5th 1078, 1093 [229 Cal.Rptr.3d 594], original italics.)

- "[U]nder Government Code section 815.4, a public entity can be held liable under the retained control doctrine, provided a private person would be liable under the same circumstances. This means that the public entity must negligently exercise its retained control so as to affirmatively contribute to the injuries of the employee of the independent contractor." (McCarty v. Department of Transportation (2008) 164 Cal.App.4th 955, 985 [79 Cal.Rptr.3d 777], original italics.)
- "The Privette line of decisions establishes a presumption that an independent contractor's hirer 'delegates to that contractor its tort law duty to provide a safe workplace for the contractor's employees.' . . . [T]he Privette presumption affects the burden of producing evidence." (Alvarez v. Seaside Transportation Services LLC (2017) 13 Cal.App.5th 635, 642 [221 Cal.Rptr.3d 119], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

Friedman et al., California Practice Guide: Landlord-Tenant, Ch. 6-A, Liability For Defective Conditions On Premises, ¶ 6:1 et seq. (The Rutter Group)

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 15, General Premises Liability, § 15.08 (Matthew Bender)

11 California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 381, Tort Liability of Property Owners, § 381.23 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 421, Premises Liability, §§ 421.11, 421.12 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 178, Premises Liability, § 178.20 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1009C. Reserved for Future Use

1009D. Liability to Employees of Independent Contractors for Unsafe Conditions—Defective Equipment

---

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was harmed by an unsafe condition while employed by [name of plaintiff's employer] and working on [name of defendant]'s property. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] [owned/leased/occupied/controlled] the property;
2. That [name of defendant] negligently provided unsafe equipment that contributed to [name of plaintiff]'s injuries;
3. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
4. That [name of defendant]'s conduct was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

---

*Derived from CACI No. 1009B April 2009; Revised December 2011, November 2024

Directions for Use

This instruction is for use if a dangerous condition on property causes injury to an employee of an independent contractor hired to perform work on the property. The basis of liability is that the defendant provided defective equipment. For an instruction for injuries to others due to a concealed condition, see CACI No. 1003, Unsafe Conditions. For an instruction for injuries based on unsafe concealed conditions not discoverable by the plaintiff's employer, see CACI No. 1009A, Liability to Employees of Independent Contractors for Unsafe Concealed Conditions. For an instruction for injuries based on the hirer's retained control over the contractor's performance of work, see CACI No. 1009B, Liability to Employees of Independent Contractors for Unsafe Conditions—Retained Control.

Sources and Authority

- "[W]hen a hirer of an independent contractor, by negligently furnishing unsafe equipment to the contractor, affirmatively contributes to the injury of an employee of the contractor, the hirer should be liable to the employee for the consequences of the hirer's own negligence." (Elsner v. Uveges (2004) 34 Cal.4th 915, 937 [22 Cal.Rptr.3d 530, 102 P.3d 915].)
- " '[W]here the hiring party actively contributes to the injury by supplying defective equipment, it is the hiring party's own negligence that renders it liable, not that of the contractor.' " (McKown v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. (2002) 27 Cal.4th 219, 225 [115 Cal.Rptr.2d 868, 38 P.3d 1094], internal citation omitted.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1259

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 15, General Premises Liability, § 15.08 (Matthew Bender)

11 California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 381, Tort Liability of Property Owners, § 381.23 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 421, Premises Liability, § 421.15 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 178, Premises Liability, § 178.24 (Matthew Bender)

1010. Affirmative Defense—Recreation Immunity—Exceptions (Civ. Code, § 846)

[*Name of defendant] is not responsible for [name of plaintiff]'s harm if [name of defendant] proves that [name of plaintiff]'s harm resulted from [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/name of person causing injury's] entry on or use of [name of defendant]'s property for a recreational purpose. However, [name of defendant] may be still responsible for [name of plaintiff]'s harm if [name of plaintiff] proves that

[Choose one or more of the following three options:]

[[*name of defendant] willfully or maliciously failed to protect others from or warn others about a dangerous [condition/use/structure/activity] on the property.]

[or]

[a charge or fee was paid to [*name of defendant/the owner] for permission to enter the property for a recreational purpose.]

[or]

[[*name of defendant] expressly invited [name of plaintiff] to enter the property.]

If you find that [*name of plaintiff] has proven one or more of these three exceptions to immunity, then you must still decide whether [name of defendant] is liable in light of the other instructions that I will give you.

New September 2003; Revised October 2008, December 2014, May 2017, November 2017, May 2021, May 2023

Directions for Use

This instruction sets forth the statutory exceptions to recreational immunity. (See Civ. Code, § 846.) In the opening paragraph, if the plaintiff was not the recreational user of the property, insert the name of the person whose conduct on the property is alleged to have caused plaintiff's injury. Immunity extends to injuries to persons who are neither on the property nor engaged in a recreational purpose if the injury was caused by a recreational user of the property. (See Wang v. Nibbelink (2016) 4 Cal.App.5th 1, 17 [208 Cal.Rptr.3d 461], disapproved on other grounds in Hoffmann v. Young (2022) 13 Cal.5th 1257, 1270, fn. 13 [297 Cal.Rptr.3d 607, 515 P.3d 635].)

Choose one or more of the optional exceptions according to the facts. Depending on the facts, the court could instruct that the activity involved was a "recreational purpose" as a matter of law. For a nonexhaustive list of "recreational purposes," refer to Civil Code section 846.

Whether the term "willful or malicious failure" has a unique meaning under this statute is not entirely clear. One court construing this statute has said that three elements must be present to raise a negligent act to the level of willful misconduct: (1) actual or constructive knowledge of the peril to be apprehended, (2) actual or constructive knowledge that injury is a probable, as opposed to a possible, result of the danger, and (3) conscious failure to act to avoid the peril. (See New v. Consolidated Rock Products Co. (1985) 171 Cal.App.3d 681, 689–690 [217 Cal.Rptr. 522].)

For the second exception involving payment of a fee, insert the name of the defendant if the defendant is the landowner. If the defendant is someone who is alleged to have created a dangerous condition on the property other than the landowner, select "the owner." (See Pacific Gas & Electric Co. v. Superior Court (2017) 10 Cal.App.5th 563, 566 [216 Cal.Rptr.3d 426].)

For the third exception involving an express invitation onto the property, "a qualifying invitation under [Civil Code] section 846(d)(3) may be made by a landowner's authorized agent who issued the invitation on the landowner's behalf." (Hoffmann, supra, 13 Cal.5th at pp. 1276–1277.) The plaintiff bears the burden of proving the invitation was made by a properly authorized agent or otherwise making "the showing that a nonlandowner's invitation operates as an invitation by the landowner." (Id. at pp. 1275, 1277, fn. 16.) In some cases, it may be necessary to modify the third exception to identify the person who extended the invitation on behalf of the defendant. California law, however, does not require a "direct, personal request" from the landowner to the injured entrant. (Id. at p. 1270, fn. 13.)

Sources and Authority

- Recreational Immunity. Civil Code section 846.
- "[A]n owner of . . . real property owes no duty of care to keep the premises safe for entry or use by others for recreational purposes or to give recreational users warning of hazards on the property, unless: (1) the landowner willfully or maliciously fails to guard or warn against a dangerous condition, use, structure or activity; (2) permission to enter for a recreational purpose is granted for a consideration; or (3) the landowner expressly invites rather than merely permits the user to come upon the premises." (Ornelas v. Randolph (1993) 4 Cal.4th 1095, 1099–1100 [17 Cal.Rptr.2d 594, 847 P.2d 560].)
- "Generally, whether one has entered property for a recreational purpose within the meaning of the statute is a question of fact, to be determined through a consideration of the 'totality of the facts and circumstances, including . . . the prior use of the land. While the plaintiff's subjective intent will not be controlling, it is relevant to show purpose.' " (Ornelas, supra, 4 Cal.4th at p. 1102, internal citation omitted.)
- "To the extent plaintiff suggests that 'jogging' is not an activity with a recreational purpose because it is not specifically enumerated in section 846, subdivision (b), her suggestion is plainly without merit, as section 846, subdivision (b) is an illustrative, not exhaustive, list." (Rucker v. WINCAL, LLC (2022) 74 Cal.App.5th 883, 889 [290 Cal.Rptr.3d 56].)

- "The phrase 'interest in real property' should not be given a narrow or technical interpretation that would frustrate the Legislature's intention in passing and amending section 846." (Hubbard v. Brown (1990) 50 Cal.3d 189, 196 [266 Cal.Rptr. 491, 785 P.2d 1183].)
- "[D]efendants' status as business invitees of the landowner does not satisfy the prerequisite that the party seeking to invoke the immunity provisions of section 846 be '[a]n owner of any estate or any other interest in real property, whether possessory or nonpossessory.' Although such invitee may be entitled to be present on the property during such time as the work is being performed, such presence does not convey any estate or interest in the property." (Jenson v. Kenneth I. Mullen, Consulting Engineers, Inc. (1989) 211 Cal.App.3d 653, 658 [259 Cal.Rptr. 552].)
- "Subpart (c) of the third paragraph of section 846 is not limited to injuries to persons on the premises and therefore on its face encompasses persons off-premises such as [plaintiff] and her husband. It is not limited to injuries to recreational participants. Had the Legislature wanted to narrow the third paragraph's immunity to injured recreational users, it could have done so, as it did in the first paragraph." (Wang, supra, 4 Cal.App.5th at p. 17.)
- "The concept of willful misconduct has a well-established, well-defined meaning in California law. 'Willful or wanton misconduct is intentional wrongful conduct, done either with a knowledge that serious injury to another will probably result, or with a wanton and reckless disregard of the possible results.' " (New, supra, 171 Cal.App.3d at p. 689, internal citations omitted.)
- "Clearly, consideration means some type of entrance fee or charge for permitting a person to use specially constructed facilities. There are many amusement facilities in government-owned parks that charge admission fees and a consideration in this or a similar context was intended." (Moore v. City of Torrance (1979) 101 Cal.App.3d 66, 72 [166 Cal.Rptr. 192], disapproved of on other grounds in Delta Farms Reclamation Dist. v. Superior Court (1983) 33 Cal.3d 699, 707 [190 Cal.Rptr. 494, 660 P.2d 1168].)
- "We conclude that the consideration exception to recreational use immunity does apply to [defendant] even though [plaintiff]'s fee for recreational access to the campground was not paid to it . . . . We hold that the payment of consideration in exchange for permission to enter a premises for a recreational purpose abrogates the section 846 immunity of any nonpossessory interest holder who is potentially responsible for the plaintiff's injuries, including a licensee or easement holder who possesses only a limited right to enter and use a premises on specified terms but no right to control third party access to the premises. The contrary interpretation urged by [defendant], making immunity contingent not on payment of consideration but its receipt, is supported neither by the statutory text nor the Legislature's purpose in enacting section 846, which was to encourage free public access to property for recreational use. It also would lead to troubling, anomalous results we do not think the Legislature intended. At bottom, construing this exception as applying only to defendants who receive or benefit from the consideration paid loses sight of the fact that recreational immunity is merely a tool. It is the Legislature's chosen means, not an end unto itself." (Pacific Gas & Electric Co., supra, 10 Cal.App.5th at p. 566.)

- "A landowner must gain some immediate and reasonably direct advantage, usually in the form of an entrance fee, before the exception to immunity for consideration under section 846 comes into play." (Johnson, supra, 21 Cal.App.4th at p. 317, disapproved on other grounds in Hoffmann, supra, 13 Cal.5th at p. 1270, fn. 13.)
- "The purpose of section 846 is to encourage landowners to permit people to use their property for recreational use without fear of reprisal in the form of lawsuits. The trial court should therefore construe the exceptions for consideration and express invitees narrowly. (Johnson, supra, 21 Cal.App.4th at p. 315, disapproved on other grounds in Hoffmann, supra, 13 Cal.5th at p. 1270, fn. 13.)
- "The language of section 846, item (c), which refers to 'any persons who are expressly invited rather than merely permitted to come upon the premises by the landowner' does not say a person must be invited for a recreational purpose. The exception instead defines a person who is 'expressly invited' by distinguishing this person from one who is 'merely permitted' to come onto the land." (Calhoon v. Lewis (2000) 81 Cal.App.4th 108, 114 [96 Cal.Rptr.2d 394], original italics.)
- "Civil Code section 846's liability shield does not extend to acts of vehicular negligence by a landowner or by the landowner's employee while acting within the course of the employment. We base this conclusion on section 846's plain language. The statutory phrase 'keep the premises safe' is an apt description of the property-based duties underlying premises liability, a liability category that does not include vehicular negligence. Furthermore, a broad construction of that statutory phrase would render superfluous another provision of section 846 shielding landowners from liability for failure to warn recreational users about hazardous conditions or activities on the land." (Klein v. United States of America (2010) 50 Cal.4th 68, 72 [112 Cal.Rptr.3d 722, 235 P.3d 42].)
- "[W]e hold that a plaintiff may rely on the exception and impose liability if there is a showing that a landowner, or an agent acting on his or her behalf, extended an express invitation to come onto the property. (Hoffmann, supra, 13 Cal.5th at p. 1263.)
- "[T]he general rule of section 846(a) relieves a landowner of any duty to keep his or her premises safe for recreational users. Section 846(d)(3) creates an exception to the rule of section 846(a) for those persons who are expressly invited to come upon the premises by the landowner. Plaintiff seeks the shelter of this exception. Accordingly, she should bear the burden of persuasion on the point." (Hoffmann, supra, 13 Cal.5th at p. 1275.)
- "[W]e do not foreclose other ways that a plaintiff might 'make the showing that a nonlandowner's invitation operates as an invitation by the landowner.' Rather, we 'conclude that one way for a plaintiff invoking section 846(d)(3) to meet [the burden of showing the exception applies] would be to rely on agency principles.' " (Hoffmann, supra, 13 Cal.5th at p. 1277, fn. 16, original italics, second alteration original, internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1245–1253

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 15, General Premises Liability, § 15.22 (Matthew Bender)

11 California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 381, Tort Liability of Property Owners, § 381.30 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 421, Premises Liability, §§ 421.20–421.23 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 178, Premises Liability, § 178.130 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts § 16:34 (Thomson Reuters)

1011. Constructive Notice Regarding Dangerous Conditions on Property

---

In determining whether [name of defendant] should have known of the condition that created the risk of harm, you must decide whether, under all the circumstances, the condition was of such a nature and existed long enough that [name of defendant] had sufficient time to discover it and, using reasonable care:

1. Repair the condition; or
2. Protect against harm from the condition; or
3. Adequately warn of the condition.

[[Name of defendant] must make reasonable inspections of the property to discover unsafe conditions. If an inspection was not made within a reasonable time before the accident, this may show that the condition existed long enough so that [a store/[a/an] [insert other commercial enterprise]] owner using reasonable care would have discovered it.]

New September 2003; Revised February 2007, October 2008

Directions for Use

This instruction is intended for use if there is an issue concerning the owner's constructive knowledge of a dangerous condition. It should be given with CACI No. 1003, Unsafe Conditions.

The bracketed second paragraph of this instruction is based on Ortega v. Kmart (2001) 26 Cal.4th 1200 [114 Cal.Rptr.2d 470, 36 P.3d 11]. Ortega involved a store. The court should determine whether the bracketed portion of this instruction applies to other types of property.

Sources and Authority

- "It is well established in California that although a store owner is not an insurer of the safety of its patrons, the owner does owe them a duty to exercise reasonable care in keeping the premises reasonably safe." (Ortega, supra, 26 Cal.4th at p. 1205, internal citation omitted.)
- "We conclude that a plaintiff may prove a dangerous condition existed for an unreasonable time with circumstantial evidence, and that . . . 'evidence that an inspection had not been made within a particular period of time prior to an accident may warrant an inference that the defective condition existed long enough so that a person exercising reasonable care would have discovered it.' " (Ortega, supra, 26 Cal.4th at p. 1210, internal citation omitted.)
- "A store owner exercises ordinary care by making reasonable inspections of the portions of the premises open to customers, and the care required is commensurate with the risks involved." (Ortega, supra, 26 Cal.4th at p. 1205, internal citation omitted.)

- "Because the owner is not the insurer of the visitor's personal safety, the owner's actual or constructive knowledge of the dangerous condition is a key to establishing its liability." (Ortega, supra, 26 Cal.4th at p. 1206, internal citations omitted.)
- "Courts have also held that where the plaintiff relies on the failure to correct a dangerous condition to prove the owner's negligence, the plaintiff has the burden of showing that the owner had notice of the defect in sufficient time to correct it." (Ortega, supra, 26 Cal.4th at p. 1206, internal citations omitted.)
- "The plaintiff need not show actual knowledge where evidence suggests that the dangerous condition was present for a sufficient period of time to charge the owner with constructive knowledge of its existence." (Ortega, supra, 26 Cal.4th at p. 1206, internal citations omitted.)
- "We emphasize that allowing the inference does not change the rule that if a store owner has taken care in the discharge of its duty, by inspecting its premises in a reasonable manner, then no breach will be found even if a plaintiff does suffer injury." (Ortega, supra, 26 Cal.4th at p. 1211, internal citations omitted.)
- "We conclude that plaintiffs still have the burden of producing evidence that the dangerous condition existed for at least a sufficient time to support a finding that the defendant had constructive notice of the hazardous condition. We also conclude, however, that plaintiffs may demonstrate the storekeeper had constructive notice of the dangerous condition if they can show that the site had not been inspected within a reasonable period of time so that a person exercising due care would have discovered and corrected the hazard. In other words, if the plaintiffs can show an inspection was not made within a particular period of time prior to an accident, they may raise an inference the condition did exist long enough for the owner to have discovered it. It remains a question of fact for the jury whether, under all the circumstances, the defective condition existed long enough so that it would have been discovered and remedied by an owner in the exercise of reasonable care." (Ortega, supra, at pp. 1212–1213, internal citations omitted.)
- "To comply with this duty, a person who controls property must ' " ' "inspect [the premises] or take other proper means to ascertain their condition" ' " ' and, if a dangerous condition exists that would have been discovered by the exercise of reasonable care, has a duty to give adequate warning of or remedy it." (Staats v. Vintner's Golf Club, LLC (2018) 25 Cal.App.5th 826, 833 [236 Cal.Rptr.3d 236].)
- "Generally speaking, a property owner must have actual or constructive knowledge of a dangerous condition before liability will be imposed. In the ordinary slip and fall case, . . . the cause of the dangerous condition is not necessarily linked to an employee. Consequently, there is no issue of respondeat superior. Where, however, 'the evidence is such that a reasonable inference can be drawn that the condition was created by employees of the [defendant], then [the defendant] is charged with notice of the dangerous condition.' " (Getchell v. Rogers Jewelry (2012) 203 Cal.App.4th 381, 385 [136 Cal.Rptr.3d 641], internal citation omitted.)

- "Although no two accidents happen in the same way, to be admissible for showing notice to a landowner of a dangerous condition, evidence of another similar accident must have occurred under substantially the same circumstances." (Howard v. Omni Hotels Mgmt. Corp. (2012) 203 Cal.App.4th 403, 432 [136 Cal.Rptr.3d 739].)

Secondary Sources

Friedman et al., California Practice Guide: Landlord-Tenant, Ch. 6-A, Liability For Defective Conditions On Premises, ¶ 6:1 et seq. (The Rutter Group)

Friedman et al., California Practice Guide: Landlord-Tenant, Ch. 6-B, Landlord Liability For Injuries From Acts Of Others, ¶ 6:48 et seq. (The Rutter Group)

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 15, General Premises Liability, § 15.04 (Matthew Bender)

11 California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 381, Tort Liability of Property Owners, § 381.20 (Matthew Bender)

36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 421, Premises Liability, § 421.14 (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 178, Premises Liability, § 178.23 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1012. Knowledge of Employee Imputed to Owner

If you find that the condition causing the risk of harm was created by [name of defendant] or [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] employee acting within the scope of [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] employment, then you must conclude that [name of defendant] knew of this condition.

New October 2004

Sources and Authority

- "Where the dangerous or defective condition of the property which causes the injury has been created by reason of the negligence of the owner of the property or his employee acting within the scope of the employment, the owner of the property cannot be permitted to assert that he had no notice or knowledge of the defective or dangerous condition in an action by an invitee for injuries suffered by reason of the dangerous condition. Under such circumstances knowledge thereof is imputed to him." (Hatfield v. Levy Bros. (1941) 18 Cal.2d 798, 806 [117 P.2d 841], internal citation omitted.)
- "When an unsafe condition which causes injury to an invitee has been created by the owner of the property himself or by an employee within the scope of his employment, the invitee need not prove the owner's notice or knowledge of the dangerous condition; the knowledge is imputed to the owner." (Sanders v. MacFarlane's Candies (1953) 119 Cal.App.2d 497, 501 [259 P.2d 1010], internal citation omitted.)
- "Where the evidence shows, as it does in this case, that the condition which caused the injury was created by the employees of the respondent, or the evidence is such that a reasonable inference can be drawn that the condition was created by employees of the respondent, then respondent is charged with notice of the dangerous condition." (Oldham v. Atchison, T. & S.F. Ry. Co. (1948) 85 Cal.App.2d 214, 218–219 [192 P.2d 516].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1262

1 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 15, General Premises Liability, §§ 15.04[5], 15.08 (Matthew Bender)

11 California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 381, Tort Liability of Property Owners, § 381.20[1] (Matthew Bender)

21 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 248, Employer's Liability for Employee's Torts, § 248.11 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

17 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 178, Premises Liability, § 178.24 (Matthew Bender)

1013–1099. Reserved for Future Use

VF-1000. Premises Liability—Comparative Negligence of Others Not at Issue

---

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant] [own/lease/occupy/control] the property?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Was [name of defendant] negligent in the use or maintenance of the property?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Was [name of defendant]'s negligence a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other past economic loss $_____]

   Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

   [b. Future economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other future economic loss $_____]

   Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, December 2010, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1000, Premises Liability—Essential Factual Elements.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 4. The breakdown is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-1001. Premises Liability—Affirmative Defense—Recreation Immunity—Exceptions

---

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant] [own/lease/occupy/control] the property?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Was [name of defendant] negligent in the [use/maintenance] of the property?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Was [name of defendant]'s negligence a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. Did [name of plaintiff/name of person causing injury] enter on or use [name of defendant]'s property for a recreational purpose?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 4 is yes, then answer question 5. If you answered no, skip question 5 and answer question 6.

5. Did [name of defendant] willfully or maliciously fail to protect others from or warn others about a dangerous [condition/use/structure/activity] on the property?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 5 is yes, then answer question 6. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

6. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

[lost earnings $ _____]
[lost profits $ _____]
[medical expenses $ _____]
[other past economic loss $ _____]

Total Past Economic Damages: $ _____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $ _____]
[lost profits $ _____]
[medical expenses $ _____]
[other future economic loss $ _____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $ _____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:]

$ _____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:]

$ _____]
TOTAL $ _____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, October 2008, December 2010, December 2014, December 2016, May 2017, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1000, Premises Liability—Essential Factual Elements, and CACI No. 1010, Affirmative Defense—Recreation Immunity—Exceptions.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If either of the other two exceptions to recreational immunity from Civil Code section 846 is at issue, question 5 should be replaced with appropriate language for the applicable exception. (See CACI No. 1010.)

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 6. The breakdown is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-1002. Premises Liability—Comparative Fault of Plaintiff at Issue

---

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant] [own/lease/occupy/control] the property?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Was [name of defendant] negligent in the use or maintenance of the property?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Was [name of defendant]'s negligence a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other past economic loss $_____]

   Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

   [b. Future economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other future economic loss $_____]

   Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

If [name of plaintiff] has proved any damages, then answer question 5. If [name of plaintiff] has not proved any damages, then stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

5. Was [name of plaintiff] also negligent?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 5 is yes, then answer question 6. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

6. Was [name of plaintiff]'s negligence a substantial factor in causing [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] harm?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 6 is yes, then answer question 7. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

7. What percentage of responsibility for [name of plaintiff]'s harm do you assign to the following?

[Name of defendant]:	_____ %
[Name of plaintiff]:	_____ %
TOTAL	100 %

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New February 2005; Revised April 2007, December 2009, December 2010, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1000, Premises Liability—Essential Factual Elements, CACI No. 405, Comparative Fault of Plaintiff, and CACI No. 406, Apportionment of Responsibility.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 4. The breakdown is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-1003–VF-1099. Reserved for Future Use

DANGEROUS CONDITION OF PUBLIC PROPERTY

1100. Dangerous Condition on Public Property—Essential Factual Elements (Gov. Code, § 835)

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was harmed by a dangerous condition of [name of defendant]'s property. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] owned [or controlled] the property;
2. That the property was in a dangerous condition at the time of the injury;
3. That the dangerous condition created a reasonably foreseeable risk of the kind of injury that occurred;
4. [That negligent or wrongful conduct of [name of defendant]'s employee acting within the scope of employment created the dangerous condition;]

   [or]

   [That [name of defendant] had notice of the dangerous condition for a long enough time to have protected against it;]
5. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
6. That the dangerous condition was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New September 2003; Revised October 2008, December 2015, June 2016, May 2020

Directions for Use

For element 4, choose either or both options depending on whether liability is alleged under Government Code section 835(a), 835(b), or both.

See also CACI No. 1102, Definition of "Dangerous Condition," and CACI No. 1103, Notice.

Sources and Authority

- Liability of Public Entity for Dangerous Condition of Property. Government Code section 835.
- Actual Notice. Government Code section 835.2(a).
- Constructive Notice. Government Code section 835.2(b).
- Definitions. Government Code section 830.
- "The Government Claims Act (§ 810 et seq.; the Act) 'is a comprehensive statutory scheme that sets forth the liabilities and immunities of public entities and public employees for torts.' Section 835 . . . prescribes the conditions under which a public entity may be held liable for injuries caused by a dangerous condition of public property. Section 835 provides that a public entity may be held liable for such injuries 'if the plaintiff establishes that the property was in a dangerous condition at the time of the injury, that the injury was proximately caused by the dangerous condition, [and] that the dangerous condition created a reasonably foreseeable risk of the kind of injury which was incurred.' In addition, the plaintiff must establish that either: (a) '[a] negligent or wrongful act or omission of an employee of the public entity within the scope of his employment created the dangerous condition,' or (b) '[t]he public entity had . . . notice of the dangerous condition . . . a sufficient time prior to the injury to have taken measures to protect against the dangerous condition.' " (Cordova v. City of Los Angeles (2015) 61 Cal.4th 1099, 1104 [190 Cal.Rptr.3d 850, 353 P.3d 773], internal citations omitted.)

- "Under the Government Claims Act (Gov. Code, § 810 et seq.), a public entity can be held liable for either creating a dangerous condition on its property or failing to protect against such a condition when the entity had notice of the danger and sufficient time to remedy the situation." (Tansavatdi v. City of Rancho Palos Verdes (2023) 14 Cal.5th 639, 647 [307 Cal.Rptr.3d 346, 527 P.3d 873], internal citations omitted.)
- "[A] public entity may be liable for a dangerous condition of public property even when the immediate cause of a plaintiff's injury is a third party's negligent or illegal act (such as a motorist's negligent driving), if some physical characteristic of the property exposes its users to increased danger from third party negligence or criminality. Public entity liability lies under section 835 when some feature of the property increased or intensified the danger to users from third party conduct." (Castro v. City of Thousand Oaks (2015) 239 Cal.App.4th 1451, 1457–1458 [192 Cal.Rptr.3d 376], internal citation omitted.)
- "Subdivisions (a) and (b) of section 835 obviously address two different types of cases. However, what distinguishes the two types of cases is not simply whether the public entity has notice of the dangerous condition. Instead, what distinguishes the two cases in practice is who created the dangerous condition. Because an entity must act through its employees, virtually all suits brought on account of dangerous conditions created by the entity will be brought under subdivision (a). In contrast, subdivision (b) can also support suits based on dangerous conditions not created by the entity or its employees." (Brown v. Poway Unified School Dist. (1993) 4 Cal.4th 820, 836 [15 Cal.Rptr.2d 679, 843 P.2d 624].)
- "[T]he res ipsa loquitur presumption does not satisfy the requirements for holding a public entity liable under section 835, subdivision (a). Res ipsa loquitur requires the plaintiff to show only (1) that the accident was of a kind which ordinarily does not occur in the absence of negligence, (2) that the instrumentality of harm was within the defendant's exclusive control, and (3) that the plaintiff did not voluntarily contribute to his or her own injuries. Subdivision (a), in contrast, requires the plaintiff to show that an employee of the public entity 'created' the dangerous condition; in view of the legislative history . . . , the term 'created' must be defined as the sort of involvement by an employee that would justify a presumption of notice on the entity's part." (Brown, supra, 4 Cal.4th at p. 836.)

- "Focusing on the language in Pritchard, supra, 178 Cal.App.2d at page 256, stating that where the public entity 'has itself created the dangerous condition it is per se culpable,' plaintiff argues that the negligence that section 835, subdivision (a), refers to is not common law negligence, but something that exists whenever the public entity creates the dangerous condition of property. We disagree. If the Legislature had wanted to impose liability whenever a public entity created a dangerous condition, it would merely have required plaintiff to establish that an act or omission of an employee of the public entity within the scope of his employment created the dangerous condition. Instead, section 835, subdivision (a), requires the plaintiff to establish that a 'negligent or wrongful act or omission of an employee of the public entity within the scope of his employment created the dangerous condition.' (Italics added.) Plaintiff's interpretation would transform the highly meaningful words 'negligent or wrongful' into meaningless surplusage, contrary to the rule of statutory interpretation that courts should avoid a construction that makes any word surplusage." (Metcalf v. County of San Joaquin (2008) 42 Cal.4th 1121, 1135 [72 Cal.Rptr.3d 382, 176 P.2d 654], original italics, internal citation omitted.)
- "In order to recover under Government Code section 835, it is not necessary for plaintiff to prove a negligent act and notice; either negligence or notice will suffice." (Curtis v. State of California (1982) 128 Cal.App.3d 668, 693 [180 Cal.Rptr. 843], original italics.)
- "A public entity may not be held liable under section 835 for a dangerous condition of property that it does not own or control." (Goddard v. Department of Fish & Wildlife (2015) 243 Cal.App.4th 350, 359 [196 Cal.Rptr.3d 625].)
- "For liability to be imposed on a public entity for a dangerous condition of property, the entity must be in a position to protect against or warn of the hazard. Therefore, the crucial element is not ownership, but rather control." (Mamola v. State of California ex rel. Dept. of Transportation (1979) 94 Cal.App.3d 781, 788 [156 Cal.Rptr. 614], internal citation omitted.)
- "Liability for injury caused by a dangerous condition of property has been imposed when an unreasonable risk of harm is created by a combination of defect in the property and acts of third parties. However, courts have consistently refused to characterize harmful third party conduct as a dangerous condition—absent some concurrent contributing defect in the property itself." (Hayes v. State of California (1974) 11 Cal.3d 469, 472 [113 Cal.Rptr. 599, 521 P.2d 855], internal citations omitted.)
- "[P]laintiffs in this case must show that a dangerous condition of property—that is, a condition that creates a substantial risk of injury to the public—proximately caused the fatal injuries their decedents suffered as a result of the collision with [third party]'s car. But nothing in the statute requires plaintiffs to show that the allegedly dangerous condition also caused the third party conduct that precipitated the accident." (Cordova, supra, 61 Cal.4th at p. 1106.)

- "Although generally a question of fact, a property defect is not a dangerous condition as a matter of law if the court determines, 'viewing the evidence most favorably to the plaintiff, . . . that the risk created by the condition was of such a minor, trivial or insignificant nature in view of the surrounding circumstances that no reasonable person would conclude that the condition created a substantial risk of injury . . . .' " (Nunez v. City of Redondo Beach (2022) 81 Cal.App.5th 749, 757 [297 Cal.Rptr.3d 461].)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 425–426

Friedman et al., California Practice Guide: Landlord-Tenant, Ch. 6-C, Immunity From Liability, ¶ 6:91 et seq. (The Rutter Group)

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 2(III)-D, Liability For "Dangerous Conditions" of Public Property, ¶ 2:2785 et seq. (The Rutter Group)

2 California Government Tort Liability Practice (Cont.Ed.Bar 4th ed.) §§ 12.9–12.55

5 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 61, Particular Liabilities and Immunities of Public Entities and Public Employees, §§ 61.01–61.03 (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Government Claims Act, §§ 464.80–464.86 (Matthew Bender)

19A California Points and Authorities, Ch. 196, Public Entities, §§ 196.210–196.214 (Matthew Bender)

1101. Control

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] controlled the property at the time of the incident. In deciding whether [name of defendant] controlled the property, you should consider whether it had the power to prevent, fix, or guard against the dangerous condition. You should also consider whether [name of defendant] treated the property as if it were its property.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This instruction will not be necessary in most cases. Ownership of public property is generally established as a matter of law by evidence of holding title or other similar evidence.

The power to regulate privately owned facilities is not enough, in and of itself, to impose liability on a public entity (i.e., it is not "control"). (Aaitui v. Grande Properties (1994) 29 Cal.App.4th 1369, 1377–1378 [35 Cal.Rptr.2d 123].)

Sources and Authority

- "Public Property" Defined. Government Code section 830(c).
- " '[C]ontrol exists if the public entity has the "power to prevent, remedy or guard against the dangerous condition." ' " (Goddard v. Department of Fish & Wildlife (2015) 243 Cal.App.4th 350, 364 [196 Cal.Rptr.3d 625].)
- "Where the public entity's relationship to the dangerous property is not clear, aid may be sought by inquiring whether the particular defendant had control, in the sense of power to prevent, remedy or guard against the dangerous condition; whether his ownership is a naked title or whether it is coupled with control; and whether a private defendant, having a similar relationship to the property, would be responsible for its safe condition." (Low v. City of Sacramento (1970) 7 Cal.App.3d 826, 833–834 [87 Cal.Rptr. 173] [city and county jointly liable for defect in parking strip fronting county hospital].)
- "The Low-type inquiry and result are only appropriate '. . . [where] the public entity's relationship to the dangerous property is not clear . . . .' " (Searcy v. Hemet Unified School Dist. (1986) 177 Cal.App.3d 792, 800 [223 Cal.Rptr. 206], internal citation omitted.)
- "For liability to be imposed on a public entity for a dangerous condition of property, the entity must be in a position to protect against or warn of the hazard. Therefore, the crucial element is not ownership, but rather control." (Mamola v. State of California ex rel. Dept. of Transportation (1979) 94 Cal.App.3d 781, 788 [156 Cal.Rptr. 614], internal citation omitted.)
- "[I]n identifying the defendant with whom control resides, location of the power to correct the dangerous condition is an aid." (Low, supra, 7 Cal.App.3d at p. 832.)

- The issue of control may be decided as a matter of law if the facts are uncontroverted. (Aaitui, supra, 29 Cal.App.4th at p. 1377; Low, supra, 7 Cal.App.3d at p. 834.)
- In Holmes v. City of Oakland (1968) 260 Cal.App.2d 378, 385 [67 Cal.Rptr. 197], the court found that the city had control over a railroad right-of-way over a city street where a city ordinance had reserved extensive powers to regulate and inspect the railroad company's easement.
- The requisite ownership or control must exist at the time of the incident. (Longfellow v. County of San Luis Obispo (1983) 144 Cal.App.3d 379, 383 [192 Cal.Rptr. 580]; Tolan v. State of California ex rel. Dept. of Transportation (1979) 100 Cal.App.3d 980, 983 [161 Cal.Rptr. 307].)
- "[A] public entity can be held liable for an accident caused by a condition that exists on property adjacent to a public highway if the condition ' " 'is so connected with or in such proximity to the traveled portion of the highway as to render it unsafe to those traveling thereon.' " ' " (Carson v. Facilities Development Co. (1984) 36 Cal.3d 830, 841 [206 Cal.Rptr. 136, 686 P.2d 656], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 302–306

2 California Government Tort Liability Practice (Cont.Ed.Bar 4th ed.) §§ 12.9–12.14

5 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 61, Particular Liabilities and Immunities of Public Entities and Public Employees, § 61.01[3][b] (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Government Claims Act, § 464.81 (Matthew Bender)

19A California Points and Authorities, Ch. 196, Public Entities, § 196.11 (Matthew Bender)

1102. Definition of "Dangerous Condition" (Gov. Code, § 830(a))

A "dangerous condition" is a condition of public property that creates a substantial risk of injury to members of the general public when the property [or adjacent property] is used with reasonable care and in a reasonably foreseeable manner. A condition that creates only a minor risk of injury is not a dangerous condition. [Whether the property is in a dangerous condition is to be determined without regard to whether [[*name of plaintiff]/ [or] [name of third party]] exercised or failed to exercise reasonable care in [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] use of the property.]

New September 2003; Revised June 2010, May 2020

Directions for Use

Give this instruction if a plaintiff claims that a condition of public property creates a substantial risk of injury to the plaintiff as a user of public or adjacent property when the property was used with reasonable care and in a reasonably foreseeable manner. (Gov. Code, § 830(a).) For claims involving conditions on the adjacent property that are alleged to have contributed to making the public property dangerous, give CACI No. 1125, Conditions on Adjacent Property.

Give the last sentence if comparative fault is at issue. It clarifies that comparative fault does not negate the possible existence of a dangerous condition. (See Fredette v. City of Long Beach (1986) 187 Cal.App.3d 122, 131 [231 Cal.Rptr. 598].)

Sources and Authority

- "Dangerous Condition" Defined. Government Code section 830(a).
- No Liability for Minor Risk. Government Code section 830.2.
- "The Act defines a ' "[d]angerous condition" ' as 'a condition of property that creates a substantial (as distinguished from a minor, trivial or insignificant) risk of injury when such property or adjacent property is used with due care in a manner in which it is reasonably foreseeable that it will be used.' Public property is in a dangerous condition within the meaning of section 835 if it 'is physically damaged, deteriorated, or defective in such a way as to foreseeably endanger those using the property itself.' " (Cordova v. City of L.A. (2015) 61 Cal.4th 1099, 1105 [190 Cal.Rptr.3d 850, 353 P.3d 773], internal citations omitted.)
- "A public entity is not, without more, liable under section 835 for the harmful conduct of third parties on its property. But if a condition of public property 'creates a substantial risk of injury even when the property is used with due care', a public entity 'gains no immunity from liability simply because, in a particular case, the dangerous condition of its property combines with a third party's negligent conduct to inflict injury.' " (Cordova, supra, 61 Cal.4th at p. 1105, internal citations omitted.)

- "In general, '[whether] a given set of facts and circumstances creates a dangerous condition is usually a question of fact and may only be resolved as a question of law if reasonable minds can come to but one conclusion.' " (Peterson v. San Francisco Community College Dist. (1984) 36 Cal.3d 799, 810 [205 Cal.Rptr. 842, 685 P.2d 1193], internal citation omitted.)
- "An initial and essential element of recovery for premises liability under the governing statutes is proof a dangerous condition existed. The law imposes no duty on a landowner—including a public entity—to repair trivial defects, or 'to maintain [its property] in an absolutely perfect condition.' " (Stathoulis v. City of Montebello (2008) 164 Cal.App.4th 559, 566 [78 Cal.Rptr.3d 910], internal citations omitted.)
- "The status of a condition as 'dangerous' for purposes of the statutory definition does not depend on whether the plaintiff or other persons were actually exercising due care but on whether the condition of the property posed a substantial risk of injury to persons who were exercising due care." (Cole v. Town of Los Gatos (2012) 205 Cal.App.4th 749, 768 [140 Cal.Rptr.3d 722], original italics.)
- "[T]he fact the particular plaintiff may not have used due care is relevant only to his [or her] comparative fault and not to the issue of the presence of a dangerous condition." (Castro v. City of Thousand Oaks (2015) 239 Cal.App.4th 1451, 1459 [192 Cal.Rptr.3d 376].)
- "The negligence of a plaintiff-user of public property . . . is a defense which may be asserted by a public entity; it has no bearing upon the determination of a 'dangerous condition' in the first instance. . . . If, however, it can be shown that the property is safe when used with due care and that a risk of harm is created only when foreseeable users fail to exercise due care, then such property is not 'dangerous' within the meaning of section 830, subdivision (a)." (Fredette, supra, 187 Cal.App.3d at p. 131, internal citation omitted.)
- "Even though it is foreseeable that persons may use public property without due care, a public entity may not be held liable for failing to take precautions to protect such persons." (Fredette, supra, 187 Cal.App.3d at p. 132, internal citation omitted.)
- "With respect to public streets, courts have observed 'any property can be dangerous if used in a sufficiently improper manner. For this reason, a public entity is only required to provide roads that are safe for reasonably foreseeable careful use. [Citation.] "If [] it can be shown that the property is safe when used with due care and that a risk of harm is created only when foreseeable users fail to exercise due care, then such property is not 'dangerous' within the meaning of section 830, subdivision (a)." [Citation.]' " (Sun v. City of Oakland (2008) 166 Cal.App.4th 1177, 1183 [83 Cal.Rptr.3d 372], internal citations omitted.)
- "A public entity is not charged with anticipating that a person will use the property in a criminal way, here, driving with a 'willful or wanton disregard for safety of persons or property . . . .' " (Fuller v. Department of Transportation (2019) 38 Cal.App.5th 1034, 1042 [251 Cal.Rptr.3d 549].)

- "[A] prior dangerous condition may require street lighting or other means to lessen the danger but the absence of street lighting is itself not a dangerous condition." (Mixon v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (2012) 207 Cal.App.4th 124, 133 [142 Cal.Rptr.3d 633].)
- "Although public entities may be held liable for injuries occurring to reasonably foreseeable users of the property, even when the property is used for a purpose for which it is not designed or which is illegal, liability may ensue only if the property creates a substantial risk of injury when it is used with due care. Whether a condition creates a substantial risk of harm depends on how the general public would use the property exercising due care, including children who are held to a lower standard of care. (§ 830.) The standard is an objective one; a plaintiff's particular condition . . . , does not alter the standard." (Schonfeldt v. State of California (1998) 61 Cal.App.4th 1462, 1466 [72 Cal.Rptr.2d 464], internal citations omitted.)
- "A public entity may be liable for a dangerous condition of public property even where the immediate cause of a plaintiff's injury is a third party's negligence if some physical characteristic of the property exposes its users to increased danger from third party negligence. 'But it is insufficient to show only harmful third party conduct, like the conduct of a motorist. " '[T]hird party conduct, by itself, unrelated to the condition of the property, does not constitute a "dangerous condition" for which a public entity may be held liable.' " . . . There must be a defect in the physical condition of the property and that defect must have some causal relationship to the third party conduct that injures the plaintiff. . . .' " (Salas v. Department of Transportation (2011) 198 Cal.App.4th 1058, 1069–1070 [129 Cal.Rptr.3d 690], internal citation omitted.)
- "Nothing in the provisions of section 835, however, specifically precludes a finding that a public entity may be under a duty, given special circumstances, to protect against harmful criminal conduct on its property." (Peterson, supra, 36 Cal.3d at pp. 810–811, internal citations omitted.)
- "Two points applicable to this case are . . . well established: first, that the location of public property, by virtue of which users are subjected to hazards on adjacent property, may constitute a 'dangerous condition' under sections 830 and 835; second, that a physical condition of the public property that increases the risk of injury from third party conduct may be a 'dangerous condition' under the statutes." (Bonanno v. Central Contra Costa Transit Authority (2003) 30 Cal.4th 139, 154 [132 Cal.Rptr.2d 341, 65 P.3d 807].)
- "[T]he absence of other similar accidents is 'relevant to the determination of whether a condition is dangerous.' But the city cites no authority for the proposition that the absence of other similar accidents is dispositive of whether a condition is dangerous, or that it compels a finding of nondangerousness absent other evidence." (Lane v. City of Sacramento (2010) 183 Cal.App.4th 1337, 1346 [107 Cal.Rptr.3d 730], original italics, internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 321

2 California Government Tort Liability Practice (Cont.Ed.Bar 4th ed.) § 12.15

5 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 61, Particular Liabilities and Immunities of Public Entities and Public Employees, § 61.01[2][a] (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Government Claims Act, § 464.81 (Matthew Bender)

19A California Points and Authorities, Ch. 196, Public Entities, § 196.11 (Matthew Bender)

1103. Notice (Gov. Code, § 835.2)

[Name of plaintiff] must prove that [name of defendant] had notice of the dangerous condition before the incident occurred. To prove that there was notice, [name of plaintiff] must prove:

[That [name of defendant] knew of the condition and knew or should have known that it was dangerous. A public entity knows of a dangerous condition if an employee knows of the condition and reasonably should have informed the entity about it.]

[or]

[That the condition had existed for enough time before the incident and was so obvious that the [name of defendant] reasonably should have discovered the condition and known that it was dangerous.]

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This instruction is intended to be used where the plaintiff relies on Government Code section 835(b). This instruction should be modified if the plaintiff is relying on both section 835(a) and section 835(b) to clarify that proof of notice is not necessary under section 835(a).

For an instruction regarding reasonable inspection systems, see CACI No. 1104, Inspection System.

Sources and Authority

- Actual Notice. Government Code section 835.2(a).
- Constructive Notice. Government Code section 835.2(b).
- "[Defendant] asserts that '[t]he absence of any prior accidents or injuries on the gravel shoulder is evidence of lack of notice.' Assuming this to be true, at most it establishes grounds for a finding in [defendant]'s favor, which is hardly enough to sustain a summary judgment. Nor is plaintiff required to prove that [defendant] knew for a fact that accidents of this kind would occur. The test for actual notice was satisfied if [defendant] had 'actual knowledge of the existence of the condition and knew or should have known of its dangerous character.' " (Cole v. Town of Los Gatos (2012) 205 Cal.App.4th 749, 779–780 [140 Cal.Rptr.3d 722].)
- "To establish 'actual notice,' it is not enough to show that the state employees had a general knowledge that people do leave hot coals on public beaches. There must be some evidence that the employees had knowledge of the particular dangerous condition in question." (State v. Superior Court of San Mateo County (1968) 263 Cal.App.2d 396, 399 [69 Cal.Rptr. 683], internal citations omitted.)

- "Whether the dangerous condition was obvious and whether it existed for a sufficient period of time are threshold elements to establish a claim of constructive notice. Where the plaintiff fails to present direct or circumstantial evidence as to either element, his claim is deficient as a matter of law." (Heskel v. City of San Diego (2014) 227 Cal.App.4th 313, 317 [173 Cal.Rptr.3d 768], internal citation omitted.)
- " 'It is well settled that constructive notice can be shown by the long continued existence of the dangerous or defective condition, and it is a question of fact for the jury to determine whether the condition complained of has existed for a sufficient time to give the public agency constructive notice.' " (Erfurt v. State of California (1983) 141 Cal.App.3d 837, 844–845 [190 Cal.Rptr 569], internal citations omitted.)
- "Admissible evidence for establishing constructive notice is defined by [Government Code section 835.2(b)] as including whether a reasonably adequate inspection system would have informed the public entity, and whether it maintained and operated such an inspection system with due care." (Heskel, supra, 227 Cal.App.4th at p. 317.)
- "In the instant case, it can be validly argued that there was a triable issue on the question of inspection, but in determining whether there is constructive notice, the method of inspection has been held to be secondary." (Superior Court of San Mateo County, supra, 263 Cal.App.2d at p. 400, internal citation omitted.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 323

2 California Government Tort Liability Practice (Cont.Ed.Bar 4th ed.) §§ 12.45–12.51

5 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 61, Particular Liabilities and Immunities of Public Entities and Public Employees, § 61.01[4][b] (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Government Claims Act, § 464.81 (Matthew Bender)

19A California Points and Authorities, Ch. 196, Public Entities, § 196.11 (Matthew Bender)

1104. Inspection System (Gov. Code, § 835.2(b)(1) & (2))

In deciding whether [name of defendant] should have discovered the dangerous condition, you may consider whether it had a reasonable inspection system and whether a reasonable system would have revealed the dangerous condition.

[In determining whether an inspection system is reasonable, you may consider the practicality and cost of the system and balance those factors against the likelihood and seriousness of the potential danger if no such system existed.]

[*and/or]

[If [name of defendant] had a reasonable inspection system but did not detect the dangerous condition, you may consider whether it used reasonable care in maintaining and operating the system.]

New September 2003

Directions for Use

Read the first paragraph and one or both of the bracketed paragraphs as appropriate to the facts.

Sources and Authority

- Admissible Evidence of Due Care. Government Code section 835.2(b).
- "Constructive notice may be found where the dangerous condition would have been discovered by a reasonable inspection." (Straughter v. State of California (1976) 89 Cal.App.3d 102, 109 [152 Cal.Rptr. 147], citing to Stanford v. City of Ontario (1972) 6 Cal.3d 870, 882 [101 Cal.Rptr. 97, 495 P.2d 425].)
- "The questions of whether a dangerous condition could have been discovered by reasonable inspection and whether there was adequate time for preventive measures are properly left to the jury." (Carson v. Facilities Development Co. (1984) 36 Cal.3d 830, 843 [206 Cal.Rptr. 136, 686 P.2d 656], internal citations omitted.)
- "Although judicial decisions do not always link the issue of constructive notice to the reasonable inspection system . . . , the Tort Claims Act indicates that, absent other persuasive evidence, the relationship between constructive notice and inspection may be crucial." (California Government Tort Liability Practice (Cont.Ed.Bar 3d ed. 1992), § 3.37.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 323

2 California Government Tort Liability Practice (Cont.Ed.Bar 4th ed.)

§§ 12.48–12.50

5 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 61, Particular Liabilities and Immunities of Public Entities and Public Employees, § 61.03[4][b] (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Government Claims Act, § 464.81 (Matthew Bender)

19A California Points and Authorities, Ch. 196, Public Entities, § 196.11 (Matthew Bender)

1105–1109. Reserved for Future Use

1110. Affirmative Defense—Natural Conditions (Gov. Code, § 831.2)

A public entity is not responsible for harm caused by a natural condition of an unimproved public property. If [name of defendant] proves that [name of plaintiff]'s injury was caused by such a condition, then it is not responsible for the injury.

New September 2003

Sources and Authority

- Natural Condition of Unimproved Public Property. Government Code section 831.2.
- Public Beaches. Government Code section 831.21.
- "The immunity provided by section 831.2 is absolute and applies regardless of whether the public entity had knowledge of the dangerous condition or failed to give warning. The legislative purpose in enacting section 831.2 was to ensure that public entities will not prohibit public access to recreational areas due to the burden and expense of defending against personal injury suits and of placing such land in a safe condition." (Goddard v. Department of Fish & Wildlife (2015) 243 Cal.App.4th 350, 360 [196 Cal.Rptr.3d 625], internal citations omitted.)
- "The natural condition immunity applies even 'where the public entity had knowledge of a dangerous condition which amounted to a hidden trap.' As a consequence, courts have held there is no liability for failure to warn of a known dangerous condition when the danger is a natural condition of unimproved public property." (Alana M. v. State of California (2016) 245 Cal.App.4th 1482, 1488 [200 Cal.Rptr.3d 410], internal citation omitted.)
- "The statutory immunity extends to 'an injury caused by a natural condition of any unimproved public property.' The use of the term 'caused' is significant. Here, although the injury occurred on improved property, that is, the paved parking lot, it was caused by the trees, native flora located near—and perhaps superadjacent to—the improved parking lot, but themselves on unimproved property." (Meddock v. County of Yolo (2013) 220 Cal.App.4th 170, 177 [162 Cal.Rptr.3d 796], original italics, footnote and internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]he statute presents two fact questions: whether a condition is 'natural' and whether the property is 'unimproved' public property." (County of San Mateo v. Superior Court (2017) 13 Cal.App.5th 724, 731 [221 Cal.Rptr.3d 138].)
- "[T]o qualify public property as improved so as to take it outside the immunity statute 'some form of physical change in the condition of the property at the location of the injury, which justifies the conclusion that the public entity is responsible for reasonable risk management in that area, [is] required to preclude application of the immunity.' " (Meddock, supra, 220 Cal.App.4th at p. 178 [162 Cal.Rptr.3d 796], original italics.)

- "It is also the rule that 'improvement of a portion of a park area does not remove the immunity from the unimproved areas.' 'The reasonableness of this rule is apparent. Otherwise, the immunity as to an entire park area improved in any way would be demolished. [Citation.] This would, in turn, seriously thwart accessibility and enjoyment of public lands by discouraging the construction of such improvements as restrooms, fire rings, campsites, entrance gates, parking areas and maintenance buildings.' " (Alana M., supra, 245 Cal.App.4th at pp. 1488–1489.)
- "We express no opinion, however, as to whether proof of a causal link is merely sufficient to defeat immunity or, as Alana M. held, necessary. [Plaintiff] contends proof of a causal connection between improvements and the accident is necessary to establish that property is improved and thus accepts the burden of having to prove this. Therefore, for purposes here, we will assume without deciding that proof that human conduct or improvements created, contributed to, or exacerbated the dangerousness of a natural condition is not only a sufficient but necessary, additional element of establishing that property is 'improved.' " (County of San Mateo, supra, 13 Cal.App.5th at p. 740.)
- "It is now generally settled that human-altered conditions, especially those that have existed for some years, which merely duplicate models common to nature are still 'natural conditions' as a matter of law for the purposes of Government Code section 831.2." (Tessier v. City of Newport Beach (1990) 219 Cal.App.3d 310, 314 [268 Cal.Rptr. 233].)
- "Immunity under section 831.2 exists even where the public entity's nearby improvements together with natural forces add to the buildup of sand on a public beach." (Morin v. County of Los Angeles (1989) 215 Cal.App.3d 184, 188 [263 Cal.Rptr. 479].)
- "The statutory immunity is fully applicable to manmade lakes and reservoirs. Moreover, section 831.2 has been broadly construed to provide immunity even where a natural condition has been affected in some manner by human activity or nearby improvements." (Goddard, supra, 243 Cal.App.4th at p. 361, internal citations omitted.)
- "The mere attachment of a rope on defendant's undeveloped land by an unknown third party did not change the 'natural condition' of the land." (Kuykendall v. State of California (1986) 178 Cal.App.3d 563, 566 [223 Cal.Rptr. 763].)
- "Essentially, [plaintiff]'s position is she was entitled to a campsite in the forest safe from falling trees, but this 'is exactly the type of complaint section 831.2 was designed to protect public entities against.' " (Alana M., supra, 245 Cal.App.4th at p. 1493.)
- "The courts have generally understood campsites with amenities to be improved, including the court in Alana M." (County of San Mateo, supra, 13 Cal.App.5th at p. 736.)

- "Given the intent of the Legislature in enacting section 831.2, we hold that wild animals are a natural part of the condition of unimproved public property within the meaning of the statute." (Arroyo, supra, 34 Cal.App.4th at p. 762.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 302, 308

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 2(III)-D, Liability For "Dangerous Conditions" Of Public Property, ¶ 2:2825 et seq. (The Rutter Group)

2 California Government Tort Liability Practice (Cont.Ed.Bar 4th ed.) §§ 12.82–12.87

5 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 61, Particular Liabilities and Immunities of Public Entities and Public Employees, § 61.03 (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Government Claims Act, § 464.85 (Matthew Bender)

19A California Points and Authorities, Ch. 196, Public Entities, §§ 196.12, 196.214 (Matthew Bender)

1111. Affirmative Defense—Condition Created by Reasonable Act or Omission (Gov. Code, § 835.4(a))

A public entity is not legally responsible for harm caused by a dangerous condition if the act or omission of its employee that created the dangerous condition was reasonable. If [name of defendant] proves that the act or omission that created the dangerous condition was reasonable, then your verdict must be for [name of defendant].

In determining whether the employee's conduct was reasonable, you must weigh the likelihood and the seriousness of the potential injury against the practicality and cost of either:

(a) taking alternative action that would not have created the risk of injury; or

(b) protecting against the risk of injury.

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, April 2008

Directions for Use

This instruction states a defense to the theory that the entity created a dangerous condition of public property. (Gov. Code, §§ 835(a), 835.4(a).)

Sources and Authority

- No Public Entity Liability for Reasonable Act or Omission. Government Code section 835.4(a).
- "There are, of course, affirmative defenses pleaded which may require trial as well: such as . . . the special defense under Government Code, section 835.4 of the reasonableness, practicability, and cost of the alternative measures plaintiffs claim should have been taken to protect against a dangerous condition."Hibbs v. Los Angeles County Flood Control Dist. (1967) 252 Cal.App.2d 166, 172 [60 Cal.Rptr. 364].)
- "Reasonableness is a question of fact for the trier of fact, and is determined by weighing the probability and gravity of potential injury against the practicability and cost of the action." (Biron v. City of Redding (2014) 225 Cal.App.4th 1264, 1281 [170 Cal.Rptr.3d 848].)
- "The Court of Appeal found conceptual difficulties in the interplay between section 835, subdivision (a) (plaintiff must establish negligence) and section 835.4, subdivision (a) (providing a defense if the public entity establishes that the act or omission that created the condition was reasonable). As it noted, normally 'negligence is the absence of reasonableness.' That being the case, the court reasoned, one cannot reasonably act negligently. Because of this conundrum, the Court of Appeal found that section 835.4 does not provide an affirmative defense. (¶) We disagree. Section 835.4 clearly creates an affirmative defense that the public entity must establish. Moreover, the Legislature created this defense specifically for public entities. The California Law Revision Commission explained, 'Under this section, a public entity may absolve itself from liability for creating or failing to remedy a dangerous condition by showing that it would have been too costly and impractical for the public entity to have done anything else. . . . This defense has been provided public entities in recognition that, despite limited manpower and budgets, there is much that they are required to do. Unlike private enterprise, a public entity often cannot weigh the advantage of engaging in an activity against the cost and decide not to engage in it. Government cannot 'go out of the business' of governing. Therefore, a public entity should not be liable for injuries caused by a dangerous condition if it is able to show that under all the circumstances, including the alternative courses of action available to it and the practicability and cost of pursuing such alternatives, its action in creating or failing to remedy the condition was not unreasonable.' " (Metcalf v. County of San Joaquin (2008) 42 Cal.4th 1121, 1137–1138 [72 Cal.Rptr.3d 382, 176 P.3d 654], footnote and internal citation omitted.)

- "The reasonableness standard referred to in section 835.4 differs from the reasonableness standard that applies under sections 830 and 835 and ordinary tort principles. Under the latter principles, the reasonableness of the defendant's conduct does not depend upon the existence of other, conflicting claims on the defendant's resources or the political barriers to acting in a reasonable manner." (Metcalf, supra, 42 Cal.4th at p. 1138.)
- "In sum, we conclude that negligence under section 835, subdivision (a), is established under ordinary tort principles concerning the reasonableness of a defendant's conduct in light of the foreseeable risk of harm. The plaintiff has the burden to demonstrate that the defendant's conduct was unreasonable under this standard . . . . If the plaintiff carries this burden, the public entity may defend under the provisions of section 835.4—a defense that is unique to public entities." (Metcalf, supra, 42 Cal.4th at p. 1139.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 324

2 California Government Tort Liability Practice (Cont.Ed.Bar 4th ed.) §§ 12.61–12.62

5 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 61, Particular Liabilities and Immunities of Public Entities and Public Employees, § 61.03 (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Government Claims Act, § 464.86 (Matthew Bender)

19A California Points and Authorities, Ch. 196, Public Entities, §§ 196.12, 196.300 (Matthew Bender)

1112. Affirmative Defense—Reasonable Act or Omission to Correct (Gov. Code, § 835.4(b))

A public entity is not responsible for harm caused by a dangerous condition if its failure to take sufficient steps to protect against the risk of injury was reasonable. If [name of defendant] proves that its conduct was reasonable, then your verdict must be for [name of defendant].

In determining whether [name of defendant]'s conduct was reasonable, you must consider how much time and opportunity it had to take action. You must also weigh the likelihood and the seriousness of the potential injury against the practicality and cost of protecting against the risk of injury.

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, April 2008

Directions for Use

This instruction states a defense to the theory that the entity had notice of a dangerous condition (that it did not create) and failed to take adequate protective measures. (Gov. Code, §§ 835(b), 835.4(b).)

Sources and Authority

- No Public Entity Liability for Reasonable Act or Omission. Government Code section 835.4(b).
- "There are, of course, affirmative defenses pleaded which may require trial as well: such as . . . the special defense under Government Code, section 835.4 of the reasonableness, practicability, and cost of the alternative measures plaintiffs claim should have been taken to protect against a dangerous condition." (Hibbs v. Los Angeles County Flood Control Dist. (1967) 252 Cal.App.2d 166, 172 [60 Cal.Rptr. 364].)
- "Under section 835.4, subdivision (b), however, the question of the reasonableness of the state's action in light of the practicability and cost of the applicable safeguards is a matter for the jury's determination." (Ducey v. Argo Sales Co. (1979) 25 Cal.3d 707, 720 [159 Cal.Rptr. 835, 602 P.2d 755], footnote omitted.)
- "Unlike section 830.6 relating to design immunity, section 835.4 subdivision (b), does not provide that the reasonableness of the action taken shall be determined by the 'trial or appellate court.' " (De La Rosa v. City of San Bernardino (1971) 16 Cal.App.3d 739, 749 [94 Cal.Rptr. 175].)
- "The reasonableness standard referred to in section 835.4 differs from the reasonableness standard that applies under sections 830 and 835 and ordinary tort principles. Under the latter principles, the reasonableness of the defendant's conduct does not depend upon the existence of other, conflicting claims on the defendant's resources or the political barriers to acting in a reasonable manner. But, as the California Law Revision Commission recognized, public entities may also defend against liability on the basis that, because of financial or political constraints, the public entity may not be able to accomplish what reasonably would be expected of a private entity." (Metcalf v. County of San Joaquin (2008) 42 Cal.4th 1121, 1138 [72 Cal.Rptr.3d 382, 176 P.3d 654].)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 324

2 California Government Tort Liability Practice (Cont.Ed.Bar 4th ed.) §§ 12.63–12.65

5 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 61, Particular Liabilities and Immunities of Public Entities and Public Employees, § 61.03 (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Government Claims Act, § 464.86 (Matthew Bender)

19A California Points and Authorities, Ch. 196, Public Entities, §§ 196.12, 196.300 (Matthew Bender)

1113–1119. Reserved for Future Use

1120. Failure to Provide Traffic Control Signals (Gov. Code, § 830.4)

You may not find that [*name of defendant]'s property was in a dangerous condition just because it did not provide a [insert device or marking]. However, you may consider the lack of a [insert device or marking], along with other circumstances shown by the evidence, in determining whether [name of defendant]'s property was dangerous.

New September 2003

Sources and Authority

- No Liability for Failure to Provide Traffic Controls. Government Code section 830.4.
- " '[T]he statutory scheme precludes a plaintiff from imposing liability on a public entity for creating a dangerous condition merely because it did not install the described traffic control devices.' In short, '[t]he lack of a traffic signal at the intersection does not constitute proof of a dangerous condition.' " (Mixon v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (2012) 207 Cal.App.4th 124, 135 [142 Cal.Rptr.3d 633], internal citation omitted.)
- "Cases interpreting this statute have held that it provides a shield against liability only in those situations where the alleged dangerous condition exists solely as a result of the public entity's failure to provide a regulatory traffic device or street marking. If a traffic intersection is dangerous for reasons other than the failure to provide regulatory signals or street markings, the statute provides no immunity." (Washington v. City and County of San Francisco (1990) 219 Cal.App.3d 1531, 1534–1535 [269 Cal.Rptr. 58].)
- "A public entity does not create a dangerous condition on its property 'merely because of the failure to provide regulatory traffic control signals, stop signs, yield right-of-way signs, or speed restriction signs . . . .' (§ 830.4.) If, on the other hand, the government installs traffic signals and invites the public to justifiably rely on them, liability will attach if the signals malfunction, confusing or misleading motorists, and causing an accident to occur. The reasoning behind this rule is that the government creates a dangerous condition and a trap when it operates traffic signals that, for example, direct motorists to 'go' in all four directions of an intersection simultaneously, with predictable results." (Chowdhury v. City of Los Angeles (1995) 38 Cal.App.4th 1187, 1194–1195 [45 Cal.Rptr.2d 657], internal citations omitted.)
- "If the government turns off traffic signals entirely to avoid confusion, liability does not attach. 'When the [traffic] lights were turned off, their defective condition could no longer mislead or misdirect the injured party.' The same result obtains whether the traffic signals are extinguished by design or by accident." (Chowdhury, supra, 38 Cal.App.4th at p. 1195, internal citations omitted.)

- "Although section 830.4 . . . provides that a condition of public property is not a dangerous one merely because of the failure to provide regulatory traffic control signals, the absence of such signals for the protection of pedestrians must be taken into consideration, together with other factors. . . . [T]he lack of crosswalk markings, better illumination and warning signs became important factors in the case when the [pedestrian] subway itself was in a dangerous condition." (Gardner v. City of San Jose (1967) 248 Cal.App.2d 798, 803 [57 Cal.Rptr. 176].)
- "In short, a dangerous condition proven to exist, for reasons other than or in addition to the mere failure to provide the controls or markings described in section 830.4, may constitute a proximate cause of injury without regard to whether such condition also constitutes a 'trap,' as described by section 830.8, to one using the public improvement with due care because of the failure to post signs different from those dealt with by section 830.4 warning of that dangerous condition." (Washington, supra, 219 Cal.App.3d at p. 1537.)
- "[D]efendant did not cite, nor have we located, any authority to extend this statutory immunity to a private entity alleged to have been negligent. To the contrary, a defendant that 'is not a "public entity" . . . is not entitled to claim the immunity set forth in the Tort Claims Act.' " (Lichtman v. Siemens Industry Inc. (2017) 16 Cal.App.5th 914, 930 [224 Cal.Rptr.3d 725].)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 316

2 California Government Tort Liability Practice (Cont.Ed.Bar 4th ed.) § 12.75

5 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 61, Particular Liabilities and Immunities of Public Entities and Public Employees, § 61.03[4] (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Government Claims Act, § 464.85 (Matthew Bender)

19A California Points and Authorities, Ch. 196, Public Entities, §§ 196.12, 196.210 (Matthew Bender)

1121. Failure to Provide Traffic Warning Signals, Signs, or Markings (Gov. Code, § 830.8)

A public entity is not responsible for harm caused by the lack of a [*insert relevant warning device] unless a reasonably careful person would not notice or anticipate a dangerous condition of property without the [insert relevant warning device].

New September 2003

Sources and Authority

- No Liability for Failure to Provide Traffic Control. Government Code section 830.8.
- "Section 830.8 provides a limited immunity for public entities exercising their discretion in the placement of warning signs described in the Vehicle Code. 'The broad discretion allowed a public entity in the placement of road control signs is limited, however, by the requirement that there be adequate warning of dangerous conditions not reasonably apparent to motorists.' Thus where the failure to post a warning sign results in a concealed trap for those exercising due care, section 830.8 immunity does not apply." (Kessler v. State of California (1988) 206 Cal.App.3d 317, 321–322 [253 Cal.Rptr. 537], internal citations omitted.)
- "[A] concealed dangerous condition that is a trap to motorists or pedestrians may require the posting of a warning sign but the absence of a warning sign itself is not a dangerous condition." (Mixon v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (2012) 207 Cal.App.4th 124, 136 [142 Cal.Rptr.3d 633].)
- "A public entity may be liable for accidents proximately caused by its failure to provide a signal, sign, marking or device to warn of a dangerous condition which endangers the safe movement of traffic 'and which would not be reasonably apparent to, and would not have been anticipated by, a person exercising due care.' This 'concealed trap' statute applies to accidents proximately caused when, for example, the public entity fails to post signs warning of a sharp or poorly banked curve ahead on its road or of a hidden intersection behind a promontory, or where a design defect in the roadway causes moisture to freeze and create an icy road surface, a fact known to the public entity but not to unsuspecting motorists, or where road work is being performed on a highway." (Chowdhury v. City of Los Angeles (1995) 38 Cal.App.4th 1187, 1196–1197 [45 Cal.Rptr.2d 657], internal citations omitted.)
- "[W]arning devices are required under Government Code section 830.8 and 830 (fog) only if a dangerous condition exists." (Callahan v. City and County of San Francisco (1971) 15 Cal.App.3d 374, 380 [93 Cal.Rptr. 122].)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 316, 317

2 California Government Tort Liability Practice (Cont.Ed.Bar 4th ed.) §§ 12.76–12.79

5 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 61, Particular Liabilities and Immunities of Public Entities and Public Employees, § 61.03[4] (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Government Claims Act, § 464.85 (Matthew Bender)

19A California Points and Authorities, Ch. 196, Public Entities, §§ 196.12, 196.304 (Matthew Bender)

1122. Affirmative Defense—Weather Conditions Affecting Streets and Highways (Gov. Code, § 831)

[*Name of defendant] claims it cannot be held responsible for [name of plaintiff]'s harm because the harm was caused by [insert weather condition, e.g., fog, wind, rain, flood, ice, or snow] affecting the use of a public street or highway. To succeed, [name of defendant] must prove both of the following:

1. That [insert weather condition, e.g., fog, wind, rain, flood, ice, or snow] affecting the use of a public street or highway was the cause of [name of plaintiff]'s harm; and
2. That a reasonably careful person using the public streets and highways would have noticed the [insert weather condition, e.g., fog, wind, rain, flood, ice, or snow] and anticipated its effect on the use of the street or highway.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

The immunity provided by Government Code section 831 does not apply to: (1) effects that would not be reasonably apparent to and anticipated by a person exercising reasonable care, (2) situations where the weather effect combines with other factors that make the road dangerous, (3) sunlight that blinds drivers, or (4) where the weather conditions resulted in physical damage to or deterioration of the street or highway. (Erfurt v. State of California (1983) 141 Cal.App.3d 837, 845–846 [190 Cal.Rptr. 569]; see Flournoy v. State of California (1969) 275 Cal.App.2d 806, 814 [80 Cal.Rptr. 485].)

Sources and Authority

- No Liability for Weather Conditions. Government Code section 831.
- Weather immunity is an affirmative defense. (Bossi v. State of California (1981) 119 Cal.App.3d 313, 321 [174 Cal.Rptr. 93] [jury properly instructed regarding section 831, but issue was moot because jury did not reach it]; see also Allyson v. Department of Transportation (1997) 53 Cal.App.4th 1304, 1319 [62 Cal.Rptr.2d 490].)
- CalTrans's duty regarding transitory conditions affecting road surface and highway safety is discretionary, not mandatory. (Allyson, supra, 53 Cal.App.4th at p. 1319.) Accordingly, section 831 immunity is available to CalTrans in appropriate circumstances. (Id. at pp. 1320–1321.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 333

2 California Government Tort Liability Practice (Cont.Ed.Bar 4th ed.) §§ 12.80–12.81

5 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 61, Particular Liabilities and Immunities of Public Entities and Public Employees, § 61.03[5] (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Government Claims Act, § 464.85 (Matthew Bender)

19A California Points and Authorities, Ch. 196, Public Entities, §§ 196.12, 196.301 (Matthew Bender)

1123. Affirmative Defense—Design Immunity (Gov. Code, § 830.6)

[*Name of defendant] claims that it is not responsible for harm to [name of plaintiff] caused by the plan or design of the [insert type of property, e.g., highway]. In order to prove this claim, [name of defendant] must prove both of the following:

1. That the plan or design was [prepared in conformity with standards previously] approved before [construction/improvement] by the [[legislative body of the public entity, e.g., city council]/[other body or employee, e.g., city civil engineer]] exercising [its/specifically delegated] discretionary authority to approve the plan or design; and
2. That the plan or design of the [e.g., highway] was a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff].

New December 2014; Revised June 2016

Directions for Use

Give this instruction to present the affirmative defense of design immunity to a claim for liability caused by a dangerous condition on public property. (Gov. Code, § 830.6; see Martinez v. County of Ventura (2014) 225 Cal.App.4th 364, 369 [169 Cal.Rptr.3d 880] [design immunity is an affirmative defense that the public entity must plead and prove].)

A public entity claiming design immunity must establish three elements: (1) a causal relationship between the plan or design and the accident; (2) discretionary approval of the plan or design before construction; and (3) substantial evidence supporting the reasonableness of the plan or design. (Cornette v. Dept. of Transportation (2001) 26 Cal.4th 63, 66 [109 Cal.Rptr.2d 1, 26 P.3d 332].) The first two elements, causation and discretionary approval, are issues of fact for the jury to decide. (Id. at pp. 74–75; see also Alvis v. County of Ventura (2009) 178 Cal.App.4th 536, 550 [100 Cal.Rptr.3d 494] [elements may be resolved as issues of law only if facts are undisputed].) The third element, substantial evidence of reasonableness, must be tried by the court, not the jury. (Cornette, supra, 26 Cal.4th at pp. 66–67; see Gov. Code, § 830.6.)

In element 1, select "its" if it is the governing body that has exercised its discretionary authority. Select "specifically delegated" if it is some other body or employee.

The discretionary authority to approve the plan or design must be "vested," which means that the body or employee actually had the express authority to approve it. This authority cannot be implied from the circumstances. (Castro v. City of Thousand Oaks (2015) 239 Cal.App.4th 1451, 1457 [192 Cal.Rptr.3d 376].)

Sources and Authority

- Design Immunity. Government Code section 830.6.
- "The statutory defense of design immunity, however, precludes liability for injuries that were allegedly caused by a defect in the design of a public improvement when certain conditions are met. To obtain design immunity, a public entity must establish that the challenged design was discretionarily approved by authorized personnel and that substantial evidence supported the reasonableness of the plan." (Tansavatdi v. City of Rancho Palos Verdes (2023) 14 Cal.5th 639, 647 [307 Cal.Rptr.3d 346, 527 P.3d 873], internal citation omitted.)
- "The purpose of design immunity 'is to prevent a jury from second-guessing the decision of a public entity by reviewing the identical questions of risk that had previously been considered by the government officers who adopted or approved the plan or design. [Citation.]' ' "[T]o permit reexamination in tort litigation of particular discretionary decisions where reasonable men may differ as to how the discretion should be exercised would create too great a danger of impolitic interference with the freedom of decision-making by those public officials in whom the function of making such decisions has been vested." ' " (Martinez, supra, 225 Cal.App.4th at p. 369, internal citations omitted.)
- "Section 830.6 makes it quite clear that 'the trial or appellate court' is to determine whether 'there is any substantial evidence upon the basis of which (a) a reasonable public employee could have adopted the plan or design or the standards therefor or (b) a reasonable legislative body or other body or employee could have approved the plan or design or the standards therefor.' " (Cornette, supra, 26 Cal.4th at p. 66.)
- "To prove [the discretionary approval element of design immunity], the entity must show that the design was approved 'in advance' of the construction 'by the legislative body of the public entity or by some other body or employee exercising discretionary authority to give such approval or where such plan or design is prepared in conformity with standards previously so approved . . . .' 'Approval . . . is a vital precondition of the design immunity.' " (Martinez, supra, 225 Cal.App.4th at p. 369, internal citations omitted.)
- "A detailed plan, drawn up by a competent engineering firm, and approved by a city engineer in the exercise of his or her discretionary authority, is persuasive evidence of the element of prior approval." (Rodriguez v. Department of Transportation (2018) 21 Cal.App.5th 947, 955 [230 Cal.Rptr.3d 852].)
- "In many cases, the evidence of discretionary authority to approve a design decision is clear, or even undisputed. . . . When the discretionary approval issue is disputed, however, as it was here, we must determine whether the person who approved the construction had the discretionary authority to do so." (Martinez, supra, 225 Cal.App.4th at pp. 370–371, internal citations omitted.)
- "Discretionary approval need not be established with testimony of the individual who approved the project. A former employee may testify to the entity's 'discretionary approval custom and practice' even if the employee was not involved in the approval process at the time the challenged plan was approved." (Gonzales v. City of Atwater (2016) 6 Cal.App.5th 929, 947 [212 Cal.Rptr.3d 137], internal citation omitted.)

- "[T]he focus of discretional authority to approve a plan or design is fixed by law and will not be implied. '[T]he public entity claiming design immunity must prove that the person or entity who made the decision is vested with the authority to do so. Recognizing "implied" discretionary approval would vitiate this requirement and provide public entities with a blanket release from liability that finds no support in section 830.6.' " (Castro, supra, 239 Cal.App.4th at p. 1457.)
- "We conclude that the discretionary approval element of section 830.6 does not implicate the question whether the employee who approved the plans was aware of design standards or was aware that the design deviated from those standards. The issue of the adequacy of the deliberative process with respect to design standards may be considered in connection with the court's determination whether there is substantial evidence that the design was reasonable. In addition, the discretionary approval element does not require the entity to demonstrate in its prima facie case that the employee who had authority to and did approve the plans also had authority to disregard applicable standards." (Hampton v. County of San Diego (2015) 62 Cal.4th 340, 343 [195 Cal.Rptr.3d 773, 362 P.3d 417].)
- "[A] case involving design immunity does not function as a typical summary judgment case would. The court's role in evaluating the third element of the design immunity is not to provide a de novo interpretation of the design, but instead to decide whether there is 'any substantial evidence' supporting its reasonableness." (Menges v. Dept. of Transportation (2020) 59 Cal.App.5th 13, 21 [273 Cal.Rptr.3d 231].)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 243 et seq.

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 2(III)-D, Liability For "Dangerous Conditions" Of Public Property, ¶ 2:2855 et seq. (The Rutter Group)

5 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 61, Particular Liabilities and Immunities of Public Entities and Public Employees, § 61.03[3] (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Government Claims Act, § 464.85[2] (Matthew Bender)

19A California Points and Authorities, Ch. 196, Public Entities, § 196.12[1] (Matthew Bender)

1124. Loss of Design Immunity (Cornette)

[*Name of defendant] is responsible for harm to [name of plaintiff] caused by the plan or design of the [insert type of property, e.g., "highway"] if [name of plaintiff] proves all of the following:

1. That the [insert type of property, e.g., "highway"]'s plan[s] or design[s] had become dangerous because of a change in physical conditions;
2. That [name of defendant] had notice of the dangerous condition created because of the change in physical conditions; and
3. [That [name of defendant] had a reasonable time to obtain the funds and carry out the necessary corrective work to conform the property to a reasonable design or plan;]

   [or]

   [That [*name of defendant] was unable to correct the condition due to practical impossibility or lack of funds but did not reasonably attempt to provide adequate warnings of the dangerous condition.]

New September 2003; Revised June 2010; Renumbered from CACI No. 1123 and Revised December 2014

Directions for Use

Give this instruction if the plaintiff claims that the public entity defendant has lost its design immunity because of changed conditions since the design or plan was originally adopted. Read either or both options for element 3 depending on the facts of the case.

If the applicability of design immunity in the first instance is disputed, give CACI No. 1123, Affirmative Defense—Design Immunity. Also in this case, the introductory paragraph might begin with "Even if [name of defendant] proves both of these elements" (from CACI No. 1123).

Users should include CACI No. 1102, Definition of "Dangerous Condition," and CACI No. 1103, Notice, to define "dangerous condition" and "notice" in connection with this instruction. Additionally, the meaning and legal requirements for a "change of physical condition" have been the subject of numerous decisions involving specific contexts. Appropriate additional instructions to account for these decisions may be necessary.

Sources and Authority

- Design Immunity. Government Code section 830.6.

- "[W]here a plan or design of a construction of, or improvement to, public property, although shown to have been reasonably approved in advance or prepared in conformity with standards previously so approved, as being safe, nevertheless in its actual operation under changed physical conditions produces a dangerous condition of public property and causes injury, the public entity does not retain the statutory immunity from liability conferred on it by section 830.6." (Dammann v. Golden Gate Bridge, Highway & Transportation Dist. (2012) 212 Cal.App.4th 335, 343 [150 Cal.Rptr.3d 829], quoting Baldwin v. State (1972) 6 Cal.3d 424, 438 [99 Cal.Rptr. 145, 491 P.2d 1121], original italics.)
- "Design immunity does not necessarily continue in perpetuity. To demonstrate loss of design immunity a plaintiff must also establish three elements: (1) the plan or design has become dangerous because of a change in physical conditions; (2) the public entity had actual or constructive notice of the dangerous condition thus created; and (3) the public entity had a reasonable time to obtain the funds and carry out the necessary remedial work to bring the property back into conformity with a reasonable design or plan, or the public entity, unable to remedy the condition due to practical impossibility or lack of funds, had not reasonably attempted to provide adequate warnings." (Cornette v. Dept. of Transportation (2001) 26 Cal.4th 63, 66 [109 Cal.Rptr.2d 1, 26 P.3d 332], internal citations omitted.)
- "The rationale for design immunity is to prevent a jury from second-guessing the decision of a public entity by reviewing the identical questions of risk that had previously been considered by the government officers who adopted or approved the plan or design." (Cornette, supra, 26 Cal.4th at p. 69, internal citation omitted.)
- "Section 830.6 makes it quite clear that 'the trial or appellate court' is to determine whether 'there is any substantial evidence upon the basis of which (a) a reasonable public employee could have adopted the plan or design or the standards therefor or (b) a reasonable legislative body or other body or employee could have approved the plan or design or the standards therefor.' The question presented by this case is whether the Legislature intended that the three issues involved in determining whether a public entity has lost its design immunity should also be tried by the court. Our examination of the text of section 830.6, the legislative history of that section, and our prior decisions leads us to the conclusion that, where triable issues of material fact are presented, as they were here, a plaintiff has a right to a jury trial as to the issues involved in loss of design immunity." (Cornette, supra, 26 Cal.4th at pp. 66–67.)
- "[T]echnological advances . . . do not constitute the 'changed physical conditions' necessary to defeat the [defendant]'s defense of design immunity under Baldwin and Cornette." (Dammann, supra, 22 Cal.App.4th at p. 351.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 338 et seq.

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 2(III)-D, Liability For "Dangerous Conditions" Of Public Property, ¶ 2:2865 et seq. (The Rutter Group)

5 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 61, Particular Liabilities and Immunities of Public Entities and Public Employees, § 61.03[3][b] (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Government Claims Act, § 464.85 (Matthew Bender)

19A California Points and Authorities, Ch. 196, Public Entities, § 196.12 (Matthew Bender)

1125. Conditions on Adjacent Property

[Name of public entity defendant]'s property may be considered dangerous if [a] condition[s] on adjacent property contribute[s] to exposing those using [name of public entity defendant]'s property to a substantial risk of injury.

[Name of plaintiff] claims that the following condition[s] on adjacent property contributed to making [name of public entity defendant]'s property dangerous: [specify]. You should consider [this/these] condition[s] in deciding whether [name of public entity defendant]'s property was in a dangerous condition.

New November 2019

Directions for Use

Give this instruction if the plaintiff claims that conditions on property adjacent to the public property that is alleged to be dangerous contributed to making the public property dangerous. This instruction should be given with, and not instead of, the applicable basic instructions for dangerous conditions on public property (see CACI Nos. 1100 through 1103).

This instruction is for use when a plaintiff's claim involves conditions on property adjacent to the public property. A different instruction will be required if a dangerous condition on public property creates a substantial risk of injury to one using adjacent property.

Sources and Authority

- "A California Law Revision Commission comment accompanying the statute's 1963 enactment expands on the relationship between public property and adjacent property with regard to dangerous conditions: ' "Adjacent property" as used in the definition of "dangerous condition" refers to the area that is exposed to the risk created by a dangerous condition of the public property. . . . [¶] . . . A public entity may be liable only for dangerous conditions of its own property. But its own property may be considered dangerous if it creates a substantial risk of injury to adjacent property or to persons on adjacent property; and its own property may be considered dangerous if a condition on the adjacent property exposes those using the public property to a substantial risk of injury.' " (Bonanno v. Central Contra Costa Transit Authority (2003) 30 Cal.4th 139, 147–148 [132 Cal.Rptr.2d 341, 65 P.3d 807].)
- "The third and fourth sentences of the City's '[d]esign of the [d]riveway' instruction improperly told the jury that it could not 'rely on' elements of the driveway, including 'the placement of the stop sign, the left turn pocket, and the presence of the pink cement' in deciding whether 'a dangerous condition existed.' This was legally incorrect, and it directly conflicted with another instruction given to the jury, which told it that the City's 'property may be considered dangerous if a condition on adjacent property, such as the pink stamped concrete or the location of the stop sign, exposes those using the public property to a substantial risk of injury in conjunction with the adjacent property.' Giving the jury these two conflicting instructions could not have been anything but hopelessly confusing to the jury." (Guernsey v. City of Salinas (2018) 30 Cal.App.5th 269, 281–282 [241 Cal.Rptr.3d 335].)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 311, 321 et seq.

5 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 61, Tort Claims Against Public Entities and Employees, § 61.01 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers, § 464.84 (Matthew Bender)

19A California Points and Authorities, Ch. 196, Public Entities, § 196.213 (Matthew Bender)

1126. Failure to Warn of a Dangerous Roadway Condition Resulting From an Approved Design—Essential Factual Elements

---

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] is responsible for [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] harm caused by [name of defendant]'s failure to warn of [insert description of dangerous condition resulting from an approved design]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] had notice that its approved design created a dangerous condition;
2. That [name of defendant] failed to warn of the dangerous condition;
3. That the dangerous condition would not have been reasonably apparent to or anticipated by a person exercising due care;
4. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
5. That the absence of a warning was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New November 2024

Directions for Use

Give this instruction if the plaintiff claims that the public entity defendant failed to warn of a dangerous roadway condition resulting from an approved design, even if the approved design would otherwise be covered by design immunity. Whether this instruction should be given when a public entity produces evidence that it considered whether to provide a warning, in other words whether design immunity might affect a failure to warn claim, is unsettled. (Tansavatdi v. City of Rancho Palos Verdes (2023) 14 Cal.5th 639, 661 [307 Cal.Rptr.3d 346, 527 P.3d 873] [expressing no view on the issue]; but cf. Stufkosky v. Department of Transportation (2023) 97 Cal.App.5th 492, 501 [315 Cal.Rptr.3d 331] [affirming summary judgment in favor of public entity on failure to warn claim].) For an instruction on design immunity, see CACI No. 1123, Affirmative Defense—Design Immunity.

Give CACI No. 1102, Definition of "Dangerous Condition," and CACI No. 1103, Notice, to define a dangerous condition and actual and constructive notice in connection with this instruction.

Sources and Authority

- Liability of Public Entity for Dangerous Condition of Property. Government Code section 835.
- Actual Notice. Government Code section 835.2(a).

- Constructive Notice. Government Code section 835.2(b).
- Definitions. Government Code section 830.
- "[W]e conclude that where the state is immune from liability for injuries caused by a dangerous condition of its property because the dangerous condition was created as a result of a plan or design which conferred immunity under section 830.6, the state may nevertheless be liable for failure to warn of this dangerous condition where the failure to warn is negligent and is an independent, separate, concurring cause of the accident." (Cameron v. State of California (1972) 7 Cal.3d 318, 329 [102 Cal.Rptr. 305, 497 P.2d 777].)
- "[W]hile Cameron [v. State of California] generally permits claims for failure to warn of a dangerous traffic condition that is subject to design immunity, a plaintiff pursuing such a claim must nonetheless prove various elements that are not present when pursuing a claim alleging a public entity created that dangerous condition: (1) the public entity had actual or constructive notice that the approved design resulted in a dangerous condition; (2) the dangerous condition qualified as a concealed trap, i.e., 'would not [have been] reasonably apparent to, and would not have been anticipated by, a person exercising due care'; and (3) the absence of a warning was a substantial factor in bringing about the injury." (Tansavatdi, supra, 14 Cal.5th at pp. 661–662, original italics.)
- "In sum, we find nothing illogical about interpreting sections 830.6 and 835 in a manner that compels government entities to provide a warning when they know (or should know) that an approved roadway design presents concealed dangers to the public." (Tansavatdi, supra, 14 Cal.5th at p. 668.)
- "Finally, we note that while Cameron concluded a public entity can be held liable for failing to warn of a dangerous roadway feature that was the result of a properly approved design, our decision did not address whether design immunity might apply if the public entity is able to show that the presence or absence of warning signs was part of the approved design. The plaintiffs in Cameron specifically alleged that the state's failure to warn was not part of any approved plan, and they acknowledged in their petition for review that section 830.6 might apply 'where the presence or absence of signs was a considered element of the plan or design.' In this case, the City's summary judgment motion argued only that section 830.6 shields public entities from failure to warn claims involving an approved feature of the roadway; the City did not argue that the evidence offered in support of its design immunity defense showed city officials had considered whether to provide a warning about the discontinuance of the bike lane. Thus, as in Cameron, we have no occasion to consider, and express no view on, how design immunity might affect a failure to warn claim when a public entity does produce evidence that it considered whether to provide a warning." (Tansavatdi, supra, 14 Cal.5th at p. 661, internal citation and footnote omitted].)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (12th ed. 2018), Ch. 9, Torts, §§ 316, 323, 335

California Causes of Action, Ch. 18, Government Tort Liability, §§ 3:00, 3.60

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 2(III)-D, Government Entity Liability and Immunity (The Rutter Group)

California Civil Practice: Torts § 31:20 (Thomson Reuters)

1127–1199. Reserved for Future Use

VF-1100. Dangerous Condition of Public Property

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant] own [or control] the property?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Was the property in a dangerous condition at the time of the injury?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Did the dangerous condition create a reasonably foreseeable risk that this kind of injury would occur?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. [Did the negligent or wrongful conduct of [name of defendant]'s employee acting within the scope of employment create the dangerous condition?]

   [or]

   [Did [name of defendant] have notice of the dangerous condition for a long enough time for [name of defendant] to have protected against it?]

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 4 is yes, then answer question 5. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

5. Was the dangerous condition a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 5 is yes, then answer question 6. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

6. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

[a. Past economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other past economic loss $_____]

Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, December 2010, December 2016, May 2020, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1100, Dangerous Condition on Public Property—Essential Factual Elements.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 6. The breakdown is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-1101. Dangerous Condition of Public Property—Affirmative Defense—Reasonable Act or Omission (Gov. Code, § 835.4)

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant] own [or control] the property?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Was the property in a dangerous condition at the time of the incident?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Did the dangerous condition create a reasonably foreseeable risk that this kind of incident would occur?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. [Did negligent or wrongful conduct of [name of defendant]'s employee acting within the scope of the employee's employment create the dangerous condition?]

   _____ Yes _____ No

   [or]

   [Did [name of defendant] have notice of the dangerous condition for a long enough time to have protected against it?]

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to [either option for] question 4 is yes, then answer question 5. If you answered no [to both options], stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

5. Was the dangerous condition a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 5 is yes, then answer question 6. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

6. [Answer if you answered yes to the first option for question 4: When you consider the likelihood and seriousness of potential injury, compared with the practicality and cost of either (a) taking alternative action that would not have created the risk of injury, or (b) protecting against the risk of injury, was [*name of defendant]'s [act/specify failure to act] that created the dangerous condition reasonable under the circumstances?]

_____ Yes _____ No

[or]

[Answer if you answered yes to the second option for question 4: When you consider the likelihood and seriousness of potential injury, compared with (a) how much time and opportunity [*name of defendant] had to take action, and (b) the practicality and cost of protecting against the risk of injury, was [name of defendant]'s failure to take sufficient steps to protect against the risk of injury created by the dangerous condition reasonable under the circumstances?]

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to [either option for] question 6 is no, then answer question 7. If you answered yes [to both options], stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

7. What are [*name of plaintiff]'s damages?

[a. Past economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other past economic loss $_____]

Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, April 2008, October 2008, June 2010, December 2010, December 2016, May 2020, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1100, Dangerous Condition on Public Property—Essential Factual Elements, CACI No. 1111, Affirmative Defense—Condition Created by Reasonable Act or Omission, and CACI No. 1112, Affirmative Defense—Reasonable Act or Omission to Correct.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

For questions 4 and 6, choose the first bracketed options if liability is alleged because of an employee's negligent conduct under Government Code section 835(a). Use the second bracketed options if liability is alleged for failure to act after actual or constructive notice under Government Code section 835(b). Both options may be given if the plaintiff is proceeding under both theories of liability.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 7. The breakdown is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest.

This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-1102–VF-1199. Reserved for Future Use

PRODUCTS LIABILITY

1200. Strict Liability—Essential Factual Elements

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was harmed by a product [distributed/manufactured/sold] by [name of defendant] that:

[contained a manufacturing defect;] [or]

[was defectively designed;] [or]

[did not include sufficient [instructions] [or] [warning of potential safety hazards].]

New September 2003

Sources and Authority

- "Products liability is the name currently given to the area of the law involving the liability of those who supply goods or products for the use of others to purchasers, users, and bystanders for losses of various kinds resulting from so-called defects in those products." (Johnson v. United States Steel Corp. (2015) 240 Cal.App.4th 22, 30 [192 Cal.Rptr.3d 158].)
- "A manufacturer, distributor, or retailer is liable in tort if a defect in the manufacture or design of its product causes injury while the product is being used in a reasonably foreseeable way." (Soule v. GM Corp. (1994) 8 Cal.4th 548, 560 [34 Cal.Rptr.2d 607, 882 P.2d 298], internal citations omitted.)
- "Strict liability has been invoked for three types of defects—manufacturing defects, design defects, and 'warning defects,' i.e., inadequate warnings or failures to warn." (Anderson v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1991) 53 Cal.3d 987, 995 [281 Cal.Rptr. 528, 810 P.2d 549].)
- "Under the Restatement [Rest.3d Torts, Products Liability, § 2], a product is defective if it: '(a) contains a manufacturing defect when the product departs from its intended design even though all possible care was exercised in the preparation and marketing of the product; [¶] (b) is defective in design when the foreseeable risks of harm posed by the product could have been reduced or avoided by the adoption of a reasonable alternative design by the seller or other distributor, or a predecessor in the commercial chain of distribution, and the omission of the alternative design renders the product not reasonably safe; [¶] (c) is defective because of inadequate instructions or warnings when the foreseeable risks of harm posed by the product could have been reduced or avoided by the provision of reasonable instructions or warnings by the seller or other distributor, or a predecessor in the commercial chain of distribution, and the omission of the instructions or warnings renders the product not reasonably safe.' " (Brady v. Calsol, Inc. (2015) 241 Cal.App.4th 1212, 1218–1219 [194 Cal.Rptr.3d 243].)
- "A manufacturer is strictly liable in tort when an article he places on the market, knowing that it is to be used without inspection for defects, proves to have a defect that causes injury to a human being. . . . The purpose of such liability is to insure that the costs of injuries resulting from defective products are borne by the manufacturers that put such products on the market rather than by the injured persons who are powerless to protect themselves." (Greenman v. Yuba Power Products, Inc. (1963) 59 Cal.2d 57, 62–63 [27 Cal.Rptr. 697, 377 P.2d 897].)

- "[S]trict products liability causes of action need not be pled in terms of classic negligence elements (duty, breach, causation and damages)." (Elsheref v. Applied Materials, Inc. (2014) 223 Cal.App.4th 451, 464 [167 Cal.Rptr.3d 257].)
- "[S]trict liability has never been, and is not now, absolute liability. As has been repeatedly expressed, under strict liability the manufacturer does not thereby become the insurer of the safety of the product's user." (Sanchez v. Hitachi Koki, Co. (2013) 217 Cal.App.4th 948, 956 [158 Cal.Rptr.3d 907].)
- "Beyond manufacturers, anyone identifiable as 'an integral part of the overall producing and marketing enterprise' is subject to strict liability." (Arriaga v. CitiCapital Commercial Corp. (2008) 167 Cal.App.4th 1527, 1534 [85 Cal.Rptr.3d 143].)
- "Generally, the imposition of strict liability hinges on the extent to which a party was 'responsible for placing products in the stream of commerce.' When the purchase of a product 'is the primary objective or essence of the transaction, strict liability applies even to those who are mere conduits in distributing the product to the consumer.' In contrast, the doctrine of strict liability is ordinarily inapplicable to transactions 'whose primary objective is obtaining services,' and to transactions in which the 'service aspect predominates and any product sale is merely incidental to the provision of the service.' Thus, '[i]n a given transaction involving both products and services, liability will often depend upon the defendant's role.' " (Hernandezcueva v. E.F. Brady Co., Inc. (2015) 243 Cal.App.4th 249, 258 [196 Cal.Rptr.3d 594], internal citations omitted.)
- "[U]nder the stream-of-commerce approach to strict liability[,] no precise legal relationship to the member of the enterprise causing the defect to be manufactured or to the member most closely connected with the customer is required before the courts will impose strict liability. It is the defendant's participatory connection, for his personal profit or other benefit, with the injury-producing product and with the enterprise that created consumer demand for and reliance upon the product (and not the defendant's legal relationship (such as agency) with the manufacturer or other entities involved in the manufacturing-marketing system) which calls for imposition of strict liability." (Hernandezcueva, supra, 243 Cal.App.4th at pp. 257–258.)
- " '[S]trict liability is not imposed even if the defendant is technically a "link in the chain" in getting the product to the consumer market if the judicially perceived policy considerations are not satisfied. Thus, a defendant will not be held strictly liable unless doing so will enhance product safety, maximize protection to the injured plaintiff, and apportion costs among the defendants.

[Citations.]' " (Hernandezcueva, supra, 234 Cal.App.4th at p. 258.)

- "California cases have found that a defendant involved in the marketing/distribution process may be held strictly liable 'if three factors are present: (1) the defendant received a direct financial benefit from its activities and from the sale of the product; (2) the defendant's role was integral to the business enterprise such that the defendant's conduct was a necessary factor in bringing the product to the initial consumer market; and (3) the defendant had control over, or a substantial ability to influence, the manufacturing or distribution process. [Citation.]' . . . 'The application of strict liability in any particular factual setting is determined largely by the policies that underlie the doctrine.' " (Petitpas v. Ford Motor Co. (2017) 13 Cal.App.5th 261, 270 [220 Cal.Rptr.3d 185], internal citation omitted.)
- "The component parts doctrine provides that the manufacturer of a component part is not liable for injuries caused by the finished product into which the component has been incorporated unless the component itself was defective and caused harm." (O'Neil v. Crane Co. (2012) 53 Cal.4th 335, 355 [135 Cal.Rptr.3d 288, 266 P.3d 987].)
- "The only exceptions to this rule [that a product manufacturer generally may not be held strictly liable for harm caused by another manufacturer's product] arise when the defendant bears some direct responsibility for the harm, either because the defendant's own product contributed substantially to the harm, or because the defendant participated substantially in creating a harmful combined use of the products." (O'Neil, supra, 53 Cal.4th at p. 362, internal citation omitted.)
- "[T]o hold a defendant strictly liable under a marketing/distribution theory, the plaintiff must demonstrate that: '(1) the defendant received a direct financial benefit from its activities and from the sale of the product; (2) the defendant's role was integral to the business enterprise such that the defendant's conduct was a necessary factor in bringing the product to the initial consumer market; and (3) the defendant had control over, or a substantial ability to influence, the manufacturing or distribution process.' " (Arriaga, supra, 167 Cal.App.4th at p. 1535.)
- "[T]he doctrine of strict liability may not be restricted on a theory of privity of contract. Since the doctrine applies even where the manufacturer has attempted to limit liability, they further make it clear that the doctrine may not be limited on the theory that no representation of safety is made to the bystander. [¶¶] If anything, bystanders should be entitled to greater protection than the consumer or user where injury to bystanders from the defect is reasonably foreseeable. Consumers and users, at least, have the opportunity to inspect for defects and to limit their purchases to articles manufactured by reputable manufacturers and sold by reputable retailers, whereas the bystander ordinarily has no such opportunities. In short, the bystander is in greater need of protection from defective products which are dangerous, and if any distinction should be made between bystanders and users, it should be made, contrary to the position of defendants, to extend greater liability in favor of the bystanders." (Elmore v.

American Motors Corp. (1969) 70 Cal.2d 578, 586 [75 Cal.Rptr. 652, 451 P.2d 84].)

- "Engineers who do not participate in bringing a product to market and simply design a product are not subject to strict products liability." (Romine v. Johnson Controls, Inc. (2014) 224 Cal.App.4th 990, 1008 [169 Cal.Rptr.3d 208].)
- "As a provider of services rather than a seller of a product, the hospital is not subject to strict liability for a defective product provided to the patient during the course of his or her treatment." (Bigler-Engler v. Breg, Inc. (2017) 7 Cal.App.5th 276, 316 [213 Cal.Rptr.3d 82] [however, causes of action based in negligence are not affected].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1591–1601

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 2(II)-D, Strict Liability For Defective Products, ¶¶ 2:1207, 2:1215 (The Rutter Group)

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 2, Liability for Defective Products, § 2.10 (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability, § 460.11 (Matthew Bender)

19 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 190, Products Liability, § 190.20 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1201. Strict Liability—Manufacturing Defect—Essential Factual Elements

---

[Name of plaintiff] claims that the [product] contained a manufacturing defect. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] [manufactured/distributed/sold] the [product];
2. That the [product] contained a manufacturing defect when it left [name of defendant]'s possession;
3. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
4. That the [product]'s defect was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New September 2003; Revised April 2009, December 2009, June 2011, May 2020

Directions for Use

To make a prima facie case, the plaintiff has the initial burden of producing evidence that the plaintiff was injured while the product was being used in an intended or reasonably foreseeable manner. If this prima facie burden is met, the burden of proof shifts to the defendant to prove that the plaintiff's injury resulted from a misuse of the product. (See Perez v. VAS S.p.A. (2010) 188 Cal.App.4th 658, 678 [115 Cal.Rptr.3d 590] [risk-benefit design defect case]; Cronin v. J.B.E. Olson Corp. (1972) 8 Cal.3d 121, 125–126 [104 Cal.Rptr. 433, 501 P.2d 1153] [product misuse asserted as a defense to manufacturing defect]; see also CACI No. 1245, Affirmative Defense—Product Misuse or Modification.) Product misuse is a complete defense to strict products liability if the defendant proves that an unforeseeable abuse or alteration of the product after it left the manufacturer's hands was the sole cause of the plaintiff's injury. (Campbell v. Southern Pacific Co. (1978) 22 Cal.3d 51, 56 [148 Cal.Rptr. 596, 583 P.2d 121]; see CACI No. 1245.) Misuse or modification that was a substantial factor in, but not the sole cause of, plaintiff's harm may also be considered in determining the comparative fault of the plaintiff or of third persons. See CACI No. 1207A, Strict Liability—Comparative Fault of Plaintiff, and CACI No. 1207B, Strict Liability—Comparative Fault of Third Person.

Sources and Authority

- "[T]he term defect as utilized in the strict liability context is neither self-defining nor susceptible to a single definition applicable in all contexts." (Johnson v. United States Steel Corp. (2015) 240 Cal.App.4th 22, 31 [192 Cal.Rptr.3d 158].)
- "A manufacturing defect occurs when an item is manufactured in a substandard condition." (Gonzalez v. Autoliv ASP, Inc. (2007) 154 Cal.App.4th 780, 792 [64 Cal.Rptr.3d 908].)

- "A product has a manufacturing defect if it differs from the manufacturer's intended result or from other ostensibly identical units of the same product line. In other words, a product has a manufacturing defect if the product as manufactured does not conform to the manufacturer's design." (Garrett v. Howmedica Osteonics Corp. (2013) 214 Cal.App.4th 173, 190 [153 Cal.Rptr.3d 693].)
- " 'Regardless of the theory which liability is predicated upon . . . it is obvious that to hold a producer, manufacturer, or seller liable for injury caused by a particular product, there must first be proof that the defendant produced, manufactured, sold, or was in some way responsible for the product . . . .' " (Garcia v. Joseph Vince Co. (1978) 84 Cal.App.3d 868, 874 [148 Cal.Rptr. 843], internal citation omitted.)
- "[W]here a plaintiff alleges a product is defective, proof that the product has malfunctioned is essential to establish liability for an injury caused by the defect." (Khan v. Shiley Inc. (1990) 217 Cal.App.3d 848, 855 [266 Cal.Rptr. 106], original italics.)
- "We think that a requirement that a plaintiff also prove that the defect made the product 'unreasonably dangerous' places upon him a significantly increased burden and represents a step backward in the area pioneered by this court." (Cronin, supra, 8 Cal.3d at pp. 134–135.)
- "[T]he policy underlying the doctrine of strict liability compels the conclusion that recovery should not be limited to cases involving latent defects." (Luque v. McLean (1972) 8 Cal.3d 136, 145 [104 Cal.Rptr. 443, 501 P.2d 1163].)
- "A manufacturer is liable only when a defect in its product was a legal cause of injury. A tort is a legal cause of injury only when it is a substantial factor in producing the injury." (Soule v. General Motors Corp. (1994) 8 Cal.4th 548, 572 [34 Cal.Rptr.2d 607, 882 P.2d 298], internal citations omitted.)
- "[Plaintiff] argues whether the alleged defects in the cup were a cause of her injuries is a question for the jury. ' "Ordinarily, proximate cause is a question of fact which cannot be decided as a matter of law. . . . Nevertheless, where the facts are such that the only reasonable conclusion is an absence of causation, the question is one of law, not of fact." ' " (Shih v. Starbucks Corp. (2020) 53 Cal.App.5th 1063, 1071 [267 Cal.Rptr.3d 919], internal citation omitted.)
- "[S]trict liability should not be imposed upon a manufacturer when injury results from a use of its product that is not reasonably foreseeable." (Cronin, supra, 8 Cal.3d at p. 126.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1591

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 2(II)-D, Strict Liability For Defective Products, ¶¶ 2:1215, 2:1216 (The Rutter Group)

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 2, Liability for Defective Products, § 2.11, Ch. 7, Proof, § 7.06 (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability, §§ 460.11, 460.30 (Matthew Bender)

19 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 190, Products Liability, § 190.140 (Matthew Bender)

1202. Strict Liability—"Manufacturing Defect" Explained

A product contains a manufacturing defect if the product differs from the manufacturer's design or specifications or from other typical units of the same product line.

New September 2003

Sources and Authority

- The Supreme Court has defined a manufacturing defect as follows: "In general, a manufacturing or production defect is readily identifiable because a defective product is one that differs from the manufacturer's intended result or from other ostensibly identical units of the same product line." (Barker v. Lull Engineering Co. (1978) 20 Cal.3d 413, 429 [143 Cal.Rptr. 225, 573 P.2d 443].)
- "[A] defective product is viewed as one which fails to match the quality of most like products, and the manufacturer is then liable for injuries resulting from deviations from the norm . . . ." (Jiminez v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1971) 4 Cal.3d 379, 383 [93 Cal.Rptr. 769, 482 P.2d 681].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1644 et seq.

1203. Strict Liability—Design Defect—Consumer Expectation Test—Essential Factual Elements

---

[Name of plaintiff] claims the [product]'s design was defective because the [product] did not perform as safely as an ordinary consumer would have expected it to perform. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] [manufactured/distributed/sold] the [product];
2. That the [product] did not perform as safely as an ordinary consumer would have expected it to perform when used or misused in an intended or reasonably foreseeable way;
3. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
4. That the [product]'s failure to perform safely was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New September 2003; Revised December 2005, April 2009, December 2009, June 2011, January 2018, May 2020

Directions for Use

The consumer expectation test and the risk-benefit test for design defect are not mutually exclusive, and depending on the facts and circumstances of the case, both may be presented to the trier of fact in the same case. (Demara v. The Raymond Corp. (2017) 13 Cal.App.5th 545, 554 [221 Cal.Rptr.3d 102].) If both tests are asserted by the plaintiff, the burden-of-proof instructions must make it clear that the two tests are alternatives. (Bracisco v. Beech Aircraft Corp. (1984) 159 Cal.App.3d 1101, 1106–1107 [206 Cal.Rptr. 431].)

The court must make an initial determination as to whether the consumer expectation test applies to the product. In some cases, the court may determine that the product is one to which the test may, but not necessarily does, apply, leaving the determination to the jury. (See Saller v. Crown Cork & Seal Co., Inc. (2010) 187 Cal.App.4th 1220, 1233–1234 [115 Cal.Rptr.3d 151].) In such a case, modify the instruction to advise the jury that it must first determine whether the product is one about which an ordinary consumer can form reasonable minimum safety expectations.

To make a prima facie case, the plaintiff has the initial burden of producing evidence that the plaintiff was injured while the product was being used in an intended or reasonably foreseeable manner. If this prima facie burden is met, the burden of proof shifts to the defendant to prove that the plaintiff's injury resulted from a misuse of the product. (See Perez v. VAS S.p.A. (2010) 188 Cal.App.4th 658, 678 [115 Cal.Rptr.3d 590] [risk-benefit case]; see also CACI No. 1245, Affirmative Defense—Product Misuse or Modification.) Product misuse is a complete defense to strict products liability if the defendant proves that an unforeseeable abuse or alteration of the product after it left the manufacturer's hands was the sole cause of the plaintiff's injury. (Campbell v. Southern Pacific Co. (1978) 22 Cal.3d 51, 56 [148 Cal.Rptr. 596, 583 P.2d 121]; see CACI No. 1245.) Misuse or modification that was a substantial factor in, but not the sole cause of, plaintiff's harm may also be considered in determining the comparative fault of the plaintiff or of third persons. See CACI No. 1207A, Strict Liability—Comparative Fault of Plaintiff, and CACI No. 1207B, Strict Liability—Comparative Fault of Third Person.

Sources and Authority

- "A manufacturer, distributor, or retailer is liable in tort if a defect in the manufacture or design of its product causes injury while the product is being used in a reasonably foreseeable way." (Soule v. General Motors Corp. (1994) 8 Cal.4th 548, 560 [34 Cal.Rptr.2d 607, 882 P.2d 298].)
- "[T]he term defect as utilized in the strict liability context is neither self-defining nor susceptible to a single definition applicable in all contexts." (Johnson v. United States Steel Corp. (2015) 240 Cal.App.4th 22, 31 [192 Cal.Rptr.3d 158].)
- "[A] product is defective in design either (1) if the product has failed to perform as safely as an ordinary consumer would expect when used in an intended or reasonably foreseeable manner, or (2) if, in light of the relevant factors . . . , the benefits of the challenged design do not outweigh the risk of danger inherent in such design." (Barker v. Lull Engineering Co. (1978) 20 Cal.3d 413, 418 [143 Cal.Rptr. 225, 573 P.2d 443].)
- "The [consumer-expectation and risk-benefit] tests provide alternative means for a plaintiff to prove design defect and do not serve as defenses to one another. A product may be defective under the consumer expectation test even if the benefits of the design outweigh the risks. [Citation.] On the other hand, a product may be defective if it satisfies consumer expectations but contains an excessively preventable danger in that the risks of the design outweigh its benefits." (Chavez v. Glock, Inc. (2012) 207 Cal.App.4th 1283, 1303 [144 Cal.Rptr.3d 326].)
- "In order to establish a design defect under the consumer expectation test when a ' " 'product is one within the common experience of ordinary consumers,' " ' the plaintiff must ' " 'provide[] evidence concerning (1) his or her use of the product; (2) the circumstances surrounding the injury; and (3) the objective features of the product which are relevant to an evaluation of its safety.' [Citation.] The test is that of a hypothetical reasonable consumer, not the expectation of the particular plaintiff in the case." ' " (Trejo v. Johnson & Johnson (2017) 13 Cal.App.5th 110, 157 [220 Cal.Rptr.3d 127].)
- "The rationale of the consumer expectations test is that '[t]he purposes, behaviors, and dangers of certain products are commonly understood by those who ordinarily use them.' Therefore, in some cases, ordinary knowledge of the product's characteristics may permit an inference that the product did not perform as safely as it should. 'If the facts permit such a conclusion, and if the failure resulted from the product's design, a finding of defect is warranted without any further proof,' and the manufacturer may not defend by presenting expert evidence of a risk/benefit analysis. . . . Nonetheless, the inherent complexity of the product itself is not controlling on the issue of whether the consumer expectations test applies; a complex product 'may perform so unsafely that the defect is apparent to the common reason, experience, and understanding of its ordinary consumers.' " (Saller, supra, 187 Cal.App.4th at p. 1232, original italics, internal citations omitted.)

- "The critical question, in assessing the applicability of the consumer expectation test, is not whether the product, when considered in isolation, is beyond the ordinary knowledge of the consumer, but whether the product, in the context of the facts and circumstances of its failure, is one about which the ordinary consumers can form minimum safety expectations." (Pannu v. Land Rover North America, Inc. (2011) 191 Cal.App.4th 1298, 1311–1312 [120 Cal.Rptr.3d 605].)
- "Whether the jury should be instructed on either the consumer expectations test or the risk/benefit test depends upon the particular facts of the case. In a jury case, the trial court must initially determine as a question of foundation, within the context of the facts and circumstances of the particular case, whether the product is one about which the ordinary consumer can form reasonable minimum safety expectations. 'If the court concludes it is not, no consumer expectation instruction should be given. . . . If, on the other hand, the trial court finds there is sufficient evidence to support a finding that the ordinary consumer can form reasonable minimum safety expectations, the court should instruct the jury, consistent with Evidence Code section 403, subdivision (c), to determine whether the consumer expectation test applies to the product at issue in the circumstances of the case [or] to disregard the evidence about consumer expectations unless the jury finds that the test is applicable. If it finds the test applicable, the jury then must decide whether the product failed to perform as safely as an ordinary consumer would expect when the product is used in an intended or reasonably foreseeable manner.' " (Saller, supra, 187 Cal.App.4th at pp. 1233–1234, internal citations omitted.)
- "[The] dual standard for design defect assures an injured plaintiff protection from products that either fall below ordinary consumer expectations as to safety or that, on balance, are not as safely designed as they should be." (Barker, supra, 20 Cal.3d at p. 418.)
- The consumer expectation test "acknowledges the relationship between strict tort liability for a defective product and the common law doctrine of warranty, which holds that a product's presence on the market includes an implied representation 'that it [will] safely do the jobs for which it was built.' " (Soule, supra, 8 Cal.4th at p. 562, internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]he jury may not be left free to find a violation of ordinary consumer expectations whenever it chooses. Unless the facts actually permit an inference that the product's performance did not meet the minimum safety expectations of its ordinary users, the jury must engage in the balancing of risks and benefits required by the second prong of Barker. Accordingly, as Barker indicated, instructions are misleading and incorrect if they allow a jury to avoid this risk-benefit analysis in a case where it is required." (Soule, supra, 8 Cal.4th at p. 568.)

- "[T]he consumer expectation test does not apply merely because the consumer states that he or she did not expect to be injured by the product." (Trejo, supra, 13 Cal.App.5th at p. 159.)
- "[T]he consumer expectation test is reserved for cases in which the everyday experience of the product's users permits a conclusion that the product's design violated minimum safety assumptions, and is thus defective regardless of expert opinion about the merits of the design." (Soule, supra, 8 Cal.4th at p. 567, original italics.)
- "[A] product's users include anyone whose injury was 'reasonably foreseeable.' " (Demara, supra, 13 Cal.App.5th at p. 559.)
- "If the facts permit an inference that the product at issue is one about which consumers may form minimum safety assumptions in the context of a particular accident, then it is enough for a plaintiff, proceeding under the consumer expectation test, to show the circumstances of the accident and 'the objective features of the product which are relevant to an evaluation of its safety' [citation], leaving it to the fact finder to 'employ "[its] own sense of whether the product meets ordinary expectations as to its safety under the circumstances presented by the evidence." ' [Citations.] Expert testimony as to what consumers ordinarily 'expect' is generally improper." (Chavez, supra, 207 Cal.App.4th at p. 1303.)
- "That causation for a plaintiff's injuries was proved through expert testimony does not mean that an ordinary consumer would be unable to form assumptions about the product's safety. Accordingly, the trial court properly instructed the jury on the consumer expectations test." (Romine v. Johnson Controls, Inc. (2014) 224 Cal.App.4th 990, 1004 [169 Cal.Rptr.3d 208], internal citations omitted.)
- "Generally, ' "[e]xpert witnesses may not be used to demonstrate what an ordinary consumer would or should expect," because the idea behind the consumer expectations test is that the lay jurors have common knowledge about the product's basic safety.' However, 'where the product is in specialized use with a limited group of consumers[,] . . . '. . . expert testimony on the limited subject of what the product's actual consumers do expect may be proper" ' because ' "the expectations of the product's limited group of ordinary consumers are beyond the lay experience common to all jurors." ' " (Verrazono v. Gehl Co. (2020) 50 Cal.App.5th 636, 646–647 [263 Cal.Rptr.3d 663], original italics, internal citation omitted.)
- "In determining whether a product's safety satisfies [the consumer expectation test], the jury considers the expectations of a hypothetical reasonable consumer, rather than those of the particular plaintiff in the case." (Campbell v. General Motors Corp. (1982) 32 Cal.3d 112, 126, fn. 6 [184 Cal.Rptr. 891, 649 P.2d 224].)

- "[E]vidence as to what the scientific community knew about the dangers . . . and when they knew it is not relevant to show what the ordinary consumer of [defendant]'s product reasonably expected in terms of safety at the time of [plaintiff]'s exposure. It is the knowledge and reasonable expectations of the consumer, not the scientific community, that is relevant under the consumer expectations test." (Morton v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1995) 33 Cal.App.4th 1529, 1536 [40 Cal.Rptr.2d 22].)
- "Where liability depends on the proof of a design defect, no practical difference exists between negligence and strict liability; the claims merge." (Lambert v. General Motors (1998) 67 Cal.App.4th 1179, 1185 [79 Cal.Rptr.2d 657].)
- " '[T]he law now requires a manufacturer to foresee some degree of misuse and abuse of his product, either by the user or by third parties, and to take reasonable precautions to minimize the harm that may result from misuse and abuse. . . . [T]he extent to which designers and manufacturers of dangerous machinery are required to anticipate safety neglect presents an issue of fact.' " (Wright v. Stang Manufacturing Co. (1997) 54 Cal.App.4th 1218, 1235 [63 Cal.Rptr.2d 422].)
- "[T]he plaintiff bears an initial burden of making 'a prima facie showing that the injury was proximately caused by the product's design.' This showing requires evidence that the plaintiff was injured while using the product in an intended or reasonably foreseeable manner and that the plaintiff's ability to avoid injury was frustrated by the absence of a safety device, or by the nature of the product's design. If this prima facie burden is met, the burden of proof shifts to the defendant to prove, in light of the relevant factors, that the product is not defective. Importantly, the plaintiff's prima facie burden of producing evidence that injury occurred while the product was being used in an intended or reasonably foreseeable manner must be distinguished from the ultimate burden of proof that rests with the defendant to establish that its product was not defective because the plaintiff's injury resulted from a misuse of the product." (Perez, supra, 188 Cal.App.4th at p. 678, original italics, internal citations omitted.)
- "The use of asbestos insulation is a product that is within the understanding of ordinary lay consumers." (Saller, supra, 187 Cal.App.4th at p. 1236.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1615–1631

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 2(II)-D, Strict Liability For Defective Products, ¶¶ 2:1220–2:1222 (The Rutter Group)

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 2, Liability for Defective Products, § 2.11, Ch. 7, Proof, § 7.02 (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability, § 460.11

(Matthew Bender)

19 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 190, Products Liability, § 190.116 (Matthew Bender)

1204. Strict Liability—Design Defect—Risk-Benefit Test—Essential Factual Elements—Shifting Burden of Proof

---

[Name of plaintiff] claims that the [product]'s design caused harm to [name of plaintiff]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] [manufactured/distributed/sold] the [product];
2. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
3. That the [product]'s design was a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff].

If [name of plaintiff] has proved these three facts, then your decision on this claim must be for [name of plaintiff] unless [name of defendant] proves that the benefits of the [product]'s design outweigh the risks of the design. In deciding whether the benefits outweigh the risks, you should consider the following:

(a) The gravity of the potential harm resulting from the use of the [product];

(b) The likelihood that this harm would occur;

(c) The feasibility of an alternative safer design at the time of manufacture;

(d) The cost of an alternative design; [and]

(e) The disadvantages of an alternative design; [and]

[(f) [Other relevant factor(s)].]

New September 2003; Revised February 2007, April 2009, December 2009, December 2010, June 2011, January 2018, May 2019, May 2020

Directions for Use

The consumer expectation test and the risk-benefit test for design defect are not mutually exclusive, and depending on the facts and circumstances of the case, both may be presented to the trier of fact in the same case. (Demara v. The Raymond Corp. (2017) 13 Cal.App.5th 545, 554 [221 Cal.Rptr.3d 102].) If the plaintiff asserts both tests, the instructions must make it clear that the two tests are alternatives. (Bracisco v. Beech Aircraft Corp. (1984) 159 Cal.App.3d 1101, 1106–1107 [206 Cal.Rptr. 431].) Risk-benefit weighing is not a formal part of, nor may it serve as a defense to, the consumer expectations test. (Chavez v. Glock, Inc. (2012) 207 Cal.App.4th 1283, 1303 [144 Cal.Rptr.3d 326].)

To make a prima facie case, the plaintiff has the initial burden of producing evidence that the plaintiff was injured while the product was being used in an intended or reasonably foreseeable manner. If this prima facie burden is met, the burden of proof shifts to the defendant to prove that the plaintiff's injury resulted from a misuse of the product. (See Perez v. VAS S.p.A. (2010) 188 Cal.App.4th 658, 678 [115 Cal.Rptr.3d 590]; see also CACI No. 1245, Affirmative Defense—Product Misuse or Modification.) Product misuse is a complete defense to strict products liability if the defendant proves that an unforeseeable abuse or alteration of the product after it left the manufacturer's hands was the sole cause of the plaintiff's injury. (Campbell v. Southern Pacific Co. (1978) 22 Cal.3d 51, 56 [148 Cal.Rptr. 596, 583 P.2d 121]; see CACI No. 1245.) Misuse or modification that was a substantial factor in, but not the sole cause of, plaintiff's harm may also be considered in determining the comparative fault of the plaintiff or of third persons. See CACI No. 1207A, Strict Liability—Comparative Fault of Plaintiff, and CACI No. 1207B, Strict Liability—Comparative Fault of Third Person.

If evidence of industry custom and practice has been admitted for a limited purpose, at the timely request of a party opposing this evidence, the jury must be given a limiting instruction on how this evidence may and may not be considered under the risk-benefit test. (See Kim v. Toyota Motor Corp. (2018) 6 Cal.5th 21, 30, 38 [237 Cal.Rptr.3d 205, 424 P.3d 290].)

Aesthetics might be an additional factor to be considered in an appropriate case in which there is evidence that appearance is important in the marketability of the product. (See Bell v. Bayerische Motoren Werke Aktiengesellschaft (2010) 181 Cal.App.4th 1108, 1131 [105 Cal.Rptr.3d 485].)

Sources and Authority

- "A manufacturer, distributor, or retailer is liable in tort if a defect in the manufacture or design of its product causes injury while the product is being used in a reasonably foreseeable way." (Soule v. General Motors Corp. (1994) 8 Cal.4th 548, 560 [34 Cal.Rptr.2d 607, 882 P.2d 298].)
- "[T]he term defect as utilized in the strict liability context is neither self-defining nor susceptible to a single definition applicable in all contexts." (Johnson v. United States Steel Corp. (2015) 240 Cal.App.4th 22, 31 [192 Cal.Rptr.3d 158].)
- "The risk-benefit test requires the plaintiff to first 'demonstrate[] that the product's design proximately caused his injury.' If the plaintiff makes this initial showing, the defendant must then 'establish, in light of the relevant factors, that, on balance, the benefits of the challenged design outweigh the risk of danger inherent in such design.' " (Kim, supra, 6 Cal.5th at p. 30, internal citation omitted.)
- "Appellants are therefore correct in asserting that it was not their burden to show that the risks involved in the loader's design—the lack of mechanical safety devices, or of a warning—outweighed the benefits of these aspects of its designs. The trial court's instruction to the jury, which quite likely would have been understood to place this burden on appellants, was therefore an error." (Lunghi v.

Clark Equipment Co., Inc. (1984) 153 Cal.App.3d 485, 497–498 [200 Cal.Rptr. 387], internal citations omitted.)

- "[U]nder the risk/benefit test, the plaintiff may establish the product is defective by showing that its design proximately caused his injury and the defendant then fails to establish that on balance the benefits of the challenged design outweigh the risk of danger inherent in such design. In such case, the jury must evaluate the product's design by considering the gravity of the danger posed by the design, the likelihood such danger would occur, the feasibility of a safer alternative design, the financial cost of an improved design, and the adverse consequences to the consumer resulting from an alternative design. 'In such cases, the jury must consider the manufacturer's evidence of competing design considerations . . . , and the issue of design defect cannot fairly be resolved by standardless reference to the "expectations" of an "ordinary consumer." ' " (Saller v. Crown Cork & Seal Co., Inc. (2010) 187 Cal.App.4th 1220, 1233 [115 Cal.Rptr.3d 151], internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]he defendant's burden is one 'affecting the burden of proof, rather than simply the burden of producing evidence.' " (Moreno v. Fey Manufacturing Corp. (1983) 149 Cal.App.3d 23, 27 [196 Cal.Rptr. 487].)
- "The [consumer-expectation and risk-benefit] tests provide alternative means for a plaintiff to prove design defect and do not serve as defenses to one another. A product may be defective under the consumer expectation test even if the benefits of the design outweigh the risks. [Citation.] On the other hand, a product may be defective if it satisfies consumer expectations but contains an excessively preventable danger in that the risks of the design outweigh its benefits." (Chavez, supra, 207 Cal.App.4th at p. 1303.)
- "Under Barker, in short, the plaintiff bears an initial burden of making 'a prima facie showing that the injury was proximately caused by the product's design.' This showing requires evidence that the plaintiff was injured while using the product in an intended or reasonably foreseeable manner and that the plaintiff's ability to avoid injury was frustrated by the absence of a safety device, or by the nature of the product's design. If this prima facie burden is met, the burden of proof shifts to the defendant to prove, in light of the relevant factors, that the product is not defective. Importantly, the plaintiff's prima facie burden of producing evidence that injury occurred while the product was being used in an intended or reasonably foreseeable manner must be distinguished from the ultimate burden of proof that rests with the defendant to establish that its product was not defective because the plaintiff's injury resulted from a misuse of the product." (Perez, supra, 188 Cal.App.4th at p. 678, original italics, internal citations omitted.)
- " '[I]n evaluating the adequacy of a product's design pursuant to [the risk-benefit] standard, a jury may consider, among other relevant factors, the gravity of the danger posed by the challenged design, the likelihood that such danger would occur, the mechanical feasibility of a safer alternative design, the financial cost of an improved design, and the adverse consequences to the product and to the consumer that would result from an alternative design.' " (Gonzalez v. Autoliv ASP, Inc. (2007) 154 Cal.App.4th 780, 786–787 [64 Cal.Rptr.3d 908], internal citations omitted.)

- "[E]xpert evidence about compliance with industry standards can be considered on the issue of defective design, in light of all other relevant circumstances, even if such compliance is not a complete defense. An action on a design defect theory can be prosecuted and defended through expert testimony that is addressed to the elements of such a claim, including risk-benefit considerations." (Howard v. Omni Hotels Management Corp. (2012) 203 Cal.App.4th 403, 426 [136 Cal.Rptr.3d 739].)
- "In some defective design cases, 'the feasibility of a reasonable alternative design is obvious and understandable to laypersons and therefore expert testimony is unnecessary to support a finding that the product should have been designed differently and more safely. For example, when a manufacturer sells a soft stuffed toy with hard plastic buttons that are easily removable and likely to choke and suffocate a small child who foreseeably attempts to swallow them, the plaintiff should be able to reach the trier of fact . . . without hiring an expert to demonstrate the feasibility of an alternative safer design.' " (Camacho v. JLG Industries Inc. (2023) 93 Cal.App.5th 809, 816 [311 Cal.Rptr.3d 372], internal citation omitted.)
- "We stress that while industry custom and practice evidence is not categorically inadmissible, neither is it categorically admissible; its admissibility will depend on application of the ordinary rules of evidence in the circumstances of the case. . . . First, the party seeking admission of such evidence must establish its relevance to at least one of the elements of the risk-benefit test, either causation or the Barker factors. The evidence is relevant to the Barker inquiry if it sheds light on whether, objectively speaking, the product was designed as safely as it should have been, given 'the complexity of, and trade-offs implicit in, the design process.' Whether the evidence serves this purpose depends on whether, under the circumstances of the case, it is reasonable to conclude that other manufacturers' choices do, as the Court of Appeal put it, 'reflect legitimate, independent research and practical experience regarding the appropriate balance of product safety, cost, and functionality.' If the proponent of the evidence establishes a sufficient basis for drawing such a conclusion, the evidence is admissible, even though one side or the other may argue it is entitled to little weight because industry participants have weighed the relevant considerations incorrectly. The evidence may not, however, be introduced simply for the purpose of showing the manufacturer was acting no worse than its competitors." (Kim, supra, 6 Cal.5th at p. 37, internal citations omitted.)
- "[I]f the party opposing admission of this evidence makes a timely request, the trial court must issue a jury instruction that explains how this evidence may and may not be considered under the risk-benefit test." (Kim, supra, 6 Cal.5th at p. 38.)
- "Plaintiffs contend aesthetics is not a proper consideration in the risk-benefit analysis, and the trial court's ruling to the contrary was an '[e]rror in law.' We disagree. In our view, much of the perceived benefit of a car lies in its appearance. A car is not a strictly utilitarian product. We believe that a jury properly may consider aesthetics in balancing the benefits of a challenged design against the risk of danger inherent in the design. Although consideration of the disadvantages of an alternative design (CACI No. 1204, factor (e)) would encompass any impact on aesthetics, we conclude that there was no error in the trial court's approval of the modification listing aesthetics as a relevant factor." (Bell, supra, 181 Cal.App.4th at p. 1131, internal citations omitted.)

- "Taken together, section 2, subdivision (b), and section 5 of the Restatement indicate that a component part manufacturer may be held liable for a defect in the component. When viewed in its entirety, the Restatement does not support [defendant]'s argument that '[o]nly if the component part analysis establishes sufficient control over the design of the alleged defect should the component manufacturer be held to the standard of the risk-benefit test.' Instead, the test considering foreseeable risks of harm and alternative designs is applied to the component part manufacturer when the alleged defect is in the component." (Gonzalez, supra, 154 Cal.App.4th at pp. 789–790.)
- "Where liability depends on the proof of a design defect, no practical difference exists between negligence and strict liability; the claims merge." (Lambert v. General Motors (1998) 67 Cal.App.4th 1179, 1185 [79 Cal.Rptr.2d 657].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1621–1630

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 2(II)-D, Strict Liability For Defective Products, ¶¶ 2:1223–2:1224 (The Rutter Group)

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 7, Proof, § 7.02 (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability, § 460.11 (Matthew Bender)

19 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 190, Products Liability, §§ 190.111-190.114 (Matthew Bender)

1205. Strict Liability—Failure to Warn—Essential Factual Elements

[Name of plaintiff] claims that the [product] lacked sufficient [instructions] [or] [warning of potential [risks/side effects/allergic reactions]]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] [manufactured/distributed/sold] the [product];
2. That the [product] had potential [risks/side effects/allergic reactions] that were [known/ [or] knowable in light of the [scientific/ [and] medical] knowledge that was generally accepted in the scientific community] at the time of [manufacture/distribution/sale];
3. That the potential [risks/side effects/allergic reactions] presented a substantial danger when the [product] is used or misused in an intended or reasonably foreseeable way;
4. That ordinary consumers would not have recognized the potential [risks/side effects/allergic reactions];
5. That [name of defendant] failed to adequately warn [or instruct] of the potential [risks/side effects/allergic reactions];
6. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
7. That the lack of sufficient [instructions] [or] [warnings] was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

[The warning must be given to the prescribing physician and must include the potential risks, side effects, or allergic reactions that may follow the foreseeable use of the product. [Name of defendant] had a continuing duty to warn physicians as long as the product was in use.]

New September 2003; Revised April 2009, December 2009, June 2011, December 2011, May 2020

Directions for Use

With regard to element 2, it has been often stated in the case law that a manufacturer is liable for failure to warn of a risk that is "knowable in light of generally recognized and prevailing best scientific and medical knowledge available." (See, e.g., Anderson v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1991) 53 Cal.3d 987, 1002 [281 Cal.Rptr. 528, 810 P.2d 549]; Carlin v. Superior Court (1996) 13 Cal.4th 1104, 1112 [56 Cal.Rptr.2d 162, 920 P.2d 1347]; Saller v. Crown Cork & Seal Company (2010) 187 Cal.App.4th 1220, 1239 [115 Cal.Rptr.3d 151]; Rosa v. City of Seaside (N.D. Cal. 2009) 675 F.Supp.2d 1006, 1012.) The advisory committee believes that this standard is captured by the phrase "generally accepted in the scientific community." A risk may be "generally recognized" as a view (knowledge) advanced by one body of scientific thought and experiment, but it may not be the "prevailing" or "best" scientific view; that is, it may be a minority view. The committee believes that when a risk is (1) generally recognized (2) as prevailing in the relevant scientific community, and (3) represents the best scholarship available, it is sufficient to say that the risk is knowable in light of "the generally accepted" scientific knowledge.

The last bracketed paragraph should be read only in prescription product cases: In the case of prescription drugs and implants, the physician stands in the shoes of the ordinary user because it is through the physician that a patient learns of the properties and proper use of the drug or implant. Thus, the duty to warn in these cases runs to the physician, not the patient. (Bigler-Engler v. Breg, Inc. (2017) 7 Cal.App 5th 276, 319 [213 Cal.Rptr.3d 82], original italics.)

To make a prima facie case, the plaintiff has the initial burden of producing evidence that the plaintiff was injured while the product was being used in an intended or reasonably foreseeable manner. If this prima facie burden is met, the burden of proof shifts to the defendant to prove that the plaintiff's injury resulted from a misuse of the product. (See Perez v. VAS S.p.A. (2010) 188 Cal.App.4th 658, 678 [115 Cal.Rptr.3d 590] [risk-benefit design defect case].) See also CACI No. 1245, Affirmative Defense—Product Misuse or Modification. Product misuse is a complete defense to strict products liability if the defendant proves that an unforeseeable abuse or alteration of the product after it left the manufacturer's hands was the sole cause of the plaintiff's injury. (Campbell v. Southern Pacific Co. (1978) 22 Cal.3d 51, 56 [148 Cal.Rptr. 596, 583 P.2d 121]; see CACI No. 1245.) Misuse or modification that was a substantial factor in, but not the sole cause of, plaintiff's harm may also be considered in determining the comparative fault of the plaintiff or of third persons. See CACI No. 1207A, Strict Liability—Comparative Fault of Plaintiff, and CACI No. 1207B, Strict Liability—Comparative Fault of Third Person.

Sources and Authority

- "Our law recognizes that even ' "a product flawlessly designed and produced may nevertheless possess such risks to the user without a suitable warning that it becomes 'defective' simply by the absence of a warning." . . .' Thus, manufacturers have a duty to warn consumers about the hazards inherent in their products. The purpose of requiring adequate warnings is to inform consumers about a product's hazards and faults of which they are unaware, so that the consumer may then either refrain from using the product altogether or avoid the danger by careful use." (Taylor v. Elliott Turbomachinery Co., Inc. (2009) 171 Cal.App.4th 564, 577 [90 Cal.Rptr.3d 414], internal citations and footnote omitted.)
- "Negligence and strict products liability are separate and distinct bases for liability that do not automatically collapse into each other because the plaintiff might allege both when a product warning contributes to her injury." (Conte v.

Wyeth, Inc. (2008) 168 Cal.App.4th 89, 101 [85 Cal.Rptr.3d 299].)

- "The 'known or knowable' standard arguably derives from negligence principles, and failure to warn claims are generally ' "rooted in negligence" to a greater extent than' manufacturing or design defect claims. Unlike those other defects, a ' "warning defect" relates to a failure extraneous to the product itself' and can only be assessed by examining the manufacturer's conduct. These principles notwithstanding, California law recognizes separate failure to warn claims under both strict liability and negligence theories. In general, a product seller will be strictly liable for failure to warn if a warning was feasible and the absence of a warning caused the plaintiff's injury. Reasonableness of the seller's failure to warn is immaterial in the strict liability context. Conversely, to prevail on a claim for negligent failure to warn, the plaintiff must prove that the seller's conduct fell below the standard of care. If a prudent seller would have acted reasonably in not giving a warning, the seller will not have been negligent." (Webb v. Special Electric Co., Inc. (2016) 63 Cal.4th 167, 181 [202 Cal.Rptr.3d 460, 370 P.3d 1022], original italics, footnote and internal citations omitted.)
- "It is true that the two types of failure to warn claims are not necessarily exclusive: 'No valid reason appears to require a plaintiff to elect whether to proceed on the theory of strict liability in tort or on the theory of negligence. . . . [¶] Nor does it appear that instructions on the two theories will be confusing to the jury. There is nothing inconsistent in instructions on the two theories and to a large extent the two theories parallel and supplement each other.' Despite the often significant overlap between the theories of negligence and strict liability based on a product defect, a plaintiff is entitled to instructions on both theories if both are supported by the evidence." (Oxford v. Foster Wheeler LLC (2009) 177 Cal.App.4th 700, 717 [99 Cal.Rptr.3d 418].)
- "The actual knowledge of the individual manufacturer, even if reasonably prudent, is not the issue. We view the standard to require that the manufacturer is held to the knowledge and skill of an expert in the field; it is obliged to keep abreast of any scientific discoveries and is presumed to know the results of all such advances." (Carlin, supra, 13 Cal.4th at p. 1113, fn. 3.)
- "[A] defendant in a strict products liability action based upon an alleged failure to warn of a risk of harm may present evidence of the state of the art, i.e., evidence that the particular risk was neither known nor knowable by the application of scientific knowledge available at the time of manufacture and/or distribution." (Anderson, supra, 53 Cal.3d at p. 1004.)
- "[T]here can be no liability for failure to warn where the instructions or warnings sufficiently alert the user to the possibility of danger." (Aguayo v. Crompton & Knowles Corp. (1986) 183 Cal.App.3d 1032, 1042 [228 Cal.Rptr. 768], internal citation omitted.)
- "A duty to warn or disclose danger arises when an article is or should be known to be dangerous for its intended use, either inherently or because of defects." (DeLeon v. Commercial Manufacturing and Supply Co. (1983) 148 Cal.App.3d 336, 343 [195 Cal.Rptr. 867], internal citation omitted.)

- "California is well settled into the majority view that knowledge, actual or constructive, is a requisite for strict liability for failure to warn . . . ." (Anderson, supra, 53 Cal.3d at p. 1000.)
- "[T]he duty to warn is not conditioned upon [actual or constructive] knowledge [of a danger] where the defectiveness of a product depends on the adequacy of instructions furnished by the supplier which are essential to the assembly and use of its product." (Midgley v. S. S. Kresge Co. (1976) 55 Cal.App.3d 67, 74 [127 Cal.Rptr. 217].)
- Under Cronin, plaintiffs in cases involving manufacturing and design defects do not have to prove that a defect made a product unreasonably dangerous; however, that case "did not preclude weighing the degree of dangerousness in the failure to warn cases." (Cavers v. Cushman Motor Sales, Inc. (1979) 95 Cal.App.3d 338, 343 [157 Cal.Rptr. 142].)
- "Two types of warnings may be given. If the product's dangers may be avoided or mitigated by proper use of the product, 'the manufacturer may be required adequately to instruct the consumer as to how the product should be used.' If the risks involved in the use of the product are unavoidable, as in the case of potential side effects of prescription drugs, the supplier must give an adequate warning to enable the potential user to make an informed choice whether to use the product or abstain." (Buckner v. Milwaukee Electric Tool Corp. (2013) 222 Cal.App.4th 522, 532 [166 Cal.Rptr.3d 202], internal citation omitted.)
- "[T]he warning requirement is not limited to unreasonably or unavoidably dangerous products. Rather, directions or warnings are in order where reasonably required to prevent the use of a product from becoming unreasonably dangerous. It is the lack of such a warning which renders a product unreasonably dangerous and therefore defective." (Gonzales v. Carmenita Ford Truck Sales, Inc. (1987) 192 Cal.App.3d 1143, 1151 [238 Cal.Rptr. 18], original italics.)
- "In most cases, . . . the adequacy of a warning is a question of fact for the jury." (Jackson v. Deft, Inc. (1990) 223 Cal.App.3d 1305, 1320 [273 Cal.Rptr. 214].)
- "There is no duty to warn of known risks or obvious dangers." (Chavez v. Glock, Inc. (2012) 207 Cal.App.4th 1283, 1304 [144 Cal.Rptr.3d 326].)
- "In the context of prescription drugs, a manufacturer's duty is to warn physicians about the risks known or reasonably known to the manufacturer. The manufacturer has no duty to warn of risks that are 'merely speculative or conjectural, or so remote and insignificant as to be negligible.' " (T.H. v. Novartis Pharmaceuticals Corp. (2017) 4 Cal.5th 145, 164 [226 Cal.Rptr.3d 336, 407 P.3d 18], internal citations omitted.)
- "[A] pharmaceutical manufacturer may not be required to provide warning of a risk known to the medical community." (Carlin, supra, 13 Cal.4th at p. 1116.)
- "To prevail on her failure-to-warn claims, [plaintiff] ' "will ultimately have to prove that if [defendant] had properly reported the adverse events to the FDA as required under federal law, that information would have reached [her] doctors in time to prevent [her] injuries.' [Citation.]" But at this stage, [plaintiff] need only allege ' "a causal connection" ' between [defendant's] failure to report and her injuries." (Mize v. Mentor Worldwide LLC (2020) 51 Cal.App.5th 850, 863–864 [265 Cal.Rptr.3d 468], internal citation omitted.)

- "To be liable in California, even under a strict liability theory, the plaintiff must prove that the defendant's failure to warn was a substantial factor in causing his or her injury. (CACI No. 1205.) The natural corollary to this requirement is that a defendant is not liable to a plaintiff if the injury would have occurred even if the defendant had issued adequate warnings." (Huitt v. Southern California Gas Co. (2010) 188 Cal.App.4th 1586, 1604 [116 Cal.Rptr.3d 453].)
- "When a manufacturer or distributor has no effective way to convey a product warning to the ultimate consumer, the manufacturer should be permitted to rely on downstream suppliers to provide the warning. 'Modern life would be intolerable unless one were permitted to rely to a certain extent on others doing what they normally do, particularly if it is their duty to do so.' " (Persons v. Salomon N. Am. (1990) 217 Cal.App.3d 168, 178 [265 Cal.Rptr. 773], internal citation omitted.)
- "[A] manufacturer's liability to the ultimate consumer may be extinguished by 'intervening cause' where the manufacturer either provides adequate warnings to a middleman or the middleman alters the product before passing it to the final consumer." (Garza v. Asbestos Corp., Ltd. (2008) 161 Cal.App.4th 651, 661 [74 Cal.Rptr.3d 359].)
- " 'A manufacturer's duty to warn is a continuous duty which lasts as long as the product is in use.' [¶] . . . [T]he manufacturer must continue to provide physicians with warnings, at least so long as it is manufacturing and distributing the product." (Valentine v. Baxter Healthcare Corp. (1999) 68 Cal.App.4th 1467, 1482 [81 Cal.Rptr.2d 252].)
- " '[T]he law now requires a manufacturer to foresee some degree of misuse and abuse of his product, either by the user or by third parties, and to take reasonable precautions to minimize the harm that may result from misuse and abuse. . . . [T]he extent to which designers and manufacturers of dangerous machinery are required to anticipate safety neglect presents an issue of fact. . . . [A] manufacturer owes a foreseeable user of its product a duty to warn of risks of using the product.' " (Wright v. Stang Manufacturing Co. (1997) 54 Cal.App.4th 1218, 1235 [63 Cal.Rptr.2d 422].)
- "California law does not impose a duty to warn about dangers arising entirely from another manufacturer's product, even if it is foreseeable that the products will be used together." (O'Neil v. Crane Co. (2012) 53 Cal.4th 335, 361 [135 Cal.Rptr.3d 288, 266 P.3d 987].)
- "The O'Neil [supra] court concluded that Tellez-Cordova [Tellez-Cordova v. Campbell-Hausfeld/Scott Fetzger Co. (2004) 129 Cal.App.4th 577] marked an exception to the general rule barring imposition of strict liability on a manufacturer for harm caused by another manufacturer's product. That exception is applicable when 'the defendant's own product contributed substantially to the harm . . . .' In expounding the exception, the court rejected the notion that imposition of strict liability on manufacturers is appropriate when it is merely foreseeable that their products will be used in conjunction with products made or sold by others. The O'Neil court further explained: 'Recognizing a duty to warn was appropriate in Tellez-Cordova because there the defendant's product was intended to be used with another product for the very activity that created a hazardous situation. Where the intended use of a product inevitably creates a hazardous situation, it is reasonable to expect the manufacturer to give warnings. Conversely, where the hazard arises entirely from another product, and the defendant's product does not create or contribute to that hazard, liability is not appropriate.' " (Sherman v. Hennessy Industries, Inc. (2015) 237 Cal.App.4th 1133, 1142 [188 Cal.Rptr.3d 769], original italics, internal citations omitted; see also Hetzel v. Hennessy Industries, Inc. (2016) 247 Cal.App.4th 521, 529 [202 Cal.Rptr.3d 310] [O'Neil does not require evidence of exclusive use, but rather requires a showing of inevitable use]; Rondon v. Hennessy Industries, Inc. (2016) 247 Cal.App.4th 1367, 1379 [202 Cal.Rptr.3d 773] [same].)

- "[L]ike a manufacturer, a raw material supplier has a duty to warn about product risks that are known or knowable in light of available medical and scientific knowledge." (Webb, supra, 63 Cal.4th at p. 181.)
- "[T]he duty of a component manufacturer or supplier to warn about the hazards of its products is not unlimited. . . . 'Making suppliers of inherently safe raw materials and component parts pay for the mistakes of the finished product manufacturer would not only be unfair, but it also would impose and intolerable burden on the business world . . . . Suppliers of versatile materials like chains, valves, sand gravel, etc., cannot be expected to become experts in the infinite number of finished products that might conceivably incorporate their multi-use raw materials or components.' Thus, cases have subjected claims made against component suppliers to two related doctrines, the 'raw material supplier defense' and 'the bulk sales/sophisticated purchaser rule.' Although the doctrines are distinct, their application oftentimes overlaps and together they present factors which should be carefully considered in evaluating the liability of component suppliers. Those factors include whether the raw materials or components are inherently dangerous, whether the materials are significantly altered before integration into an end product, whether the supplier was involved in designing the end-product and whether the manufacturer of the end product was in a position to discover and disclose hazards." (Artiglio v. General Electric Co. (1998) 61 Cal.App.4th 830, 837 [71 Cal.Rptr.2d 817].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1631–1643

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 2(II)-D, Strict Liability

for Defective Products, ¶¶ 2:1275–2:1276 (The Rutter Group)

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 2, Liability for Defective Products, § 2.11[4]; Ch. 7, Proof, § 7.05 (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability, §§ 460.11, 460.164 (Matthew Bender)

19 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 190, Products Liability, §§ 190.193–190.194 (Matthew Bender)

1206. Strict Liability—Failure to Warn—Products Containing Allergens (Not Prescription Drugs)—Essential Factual Elements

---

[Name of plaintiff] claims that the [product] was defective because it lacked sufficient warnings of potential allergic reactions. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] [manufactured/distributed/sold] the [product];
2. That a substantial number of people are allergic to an ingredient in the [product];
3. That the danger of the ingredient is not generally known, or, if known, the ingredient is one that a consumer would not reasonably expect to find in the [product];
4. That [name of defendant] knew or, by the use of scientific knowledge available at the time, should have known of the ingredient's danger and presence;
5. That [name of defendant] failed to provide sufficient warnings concerning the ingredient's danger or presence;
6. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
7. That the lack of sufficient warnings was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

A fuller definition of "scientific knowledge" may be appropriate in certain cases. Such a definition would advise that the defendant did not adequately warn of a potential risk, side effect, or allergic reaction that was "knowable in light of the generally recognized and prevailing best scientific and medical knowledge available," (Carlin v. Superior Court (1996) 13 Cal.4th 1104, 1112 [56 Cal.Rptr.2d 162, 920 P.2d 1347]), and knowable " 'by the application of reasonable, developed human skill and foresight.' " (Livingston v. Marie Callenders Inc. (1999) 72 Cal.App.4th 830, 839 [85 Cal.Rptr.2d 528].)

Sources and Authority

- This instruction is based on the holding in Livingston v. Marie Callenders, Inc. (1999) 72 Cal.App.4th 830, 838–839 [85 Cal.Rptr.2d 528], adopting Restatement Second of Torts, section 402A, comment j, and Restatement Third of Torts: Products Liability, section 2, comment k, in cases involving allergic reactions.
- "California has adopted the Restatement Second of Torts, section 402A, comment j, application of strict tort liability failure to warn in the case of allergies. Several Court of Appeal decisions in the context of allergic reactions to nonfood products are consistent with or have expressly adopted comment j." (Livingston, supra, 72 Cal.App.4th at p. 838.)

- Restatement Second of Torts, section 402A, comment j, states: "In order to prevent the product from being unreasonably dangerous, the seller may be required to give directions or warning, on the container, as to its use. The seller may reasonably assume that those with common allergies, as for example to eggs or strawberries, will be aware of them, and he is not required to warn against them. Where, however, the product contains an ingredient to which a substantial number of the population are allergic, and the ingredient is one whose danger is not generally known, or if known is one which the consumer would reasonably not expect to find in the product, the seller is required to give warning against it, if he has knowledge, or by the application of reasonable, developed human skill and foresight should have knowledge, of the presence of the ingredient and the danger. Likewise in the case of poisonous drugs, or those unduly dangerous . . . ."
- "[A] defendant may be liable to a plaintiff who suffered an allergic reaction to a product on a strict liability failure to warn theory when: the defendant's product contained 'an ingredient to which a substantial number of the population are allergic'; the ingredient 'is one whose danger is not generally known, or if known is one which the consumer would reasonably not expect to find in the product'; and where the defendant knew or 'by the application of reasonable, developed human skill and foresight should have know[n], of the presence of the ingredient and the danger.' " (Livingston, supra, 72 Cal.App.4th at p. 839.)
- "The recently adopted Restatement Third of Torts: Products Liability, section 2, comment k, . . . similarly states: 'Cases of adverse allergic or idiosyncratic reactions involve a special subset of products that may be defective because of inadequate warnings . . . . [¶] The general rule in cases involving allergic reactions is that a warning is required when the harm-causing ingredient is one to which a substantial number of persons are allergic.' Further, the Restatement Third of Torts: Products Liability, section 2, comment k notes: 'The ingredient that causes the allergic reaction must be one whose danger or whose presence in the product is not generally known to consumers. . . . When the presence of the allergenic ingredient would not be anticipated by a reasonable user or consumer, warnings concerning its presence are required.' " (Livingston, supra, 72 Cal.App.4th at pp. 838–839)
- "[T]hose issues [noted in the Restatement] are for the trier of fact to determine." (Livingston, supra, 72 Cal.App.4th at p. 840.)
- Livingston was a food product case; however there are several non-food product cases that are consistent with or have also expressly adopted comment j. (See McKinney v. Revlon, Inc. (1992) 2 Cal.App.4th 602, 607, 608 fn. 3 [3 Cal.Rptr.2d 72] [home hair-frosting product]; Oakes v. E.I. DuPont de Nemours & Co., Inc. (1969) 272 Cal.App.2d 645, 649 [77 Cal.Rptr. 709] [weed killer]; Harris v. Belton (1968) 258 Cal.App.2d 595, 608 [65 Cal.Rptr. 808] [skin tone cream].)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1631–1643

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability, §§ 460.11, 460.165 (Matthew Bender)

1207A. Strict Liability—Comparative Fault of Plaintiff

[Name of defendant] claims that [name of plaintiff]'s own negligence contributed to [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] harm. To succeed on this claim, [name of defendant] must prove both of the following:

1. [insert one or more of the following:]

   [That [name of plaintiff] negligently [used/misused/modified] the [product];] [or]

   [That [name of plaintiff] was [otherwise] negligent;]

   and

2. That this negligence was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

If [name of defendant] proves the above, [name of plaintiff]'s damages are reduced by your determination of the percentage of [name of plaintiff]'s responsibility. I will calculate the actual reduction.

Derived from former CACI No. 1207 April 2009; Revised December 2009, May 2020

Directions for Use

Give this instruction if the defendant alleges that the plaintiff's own negligence contributed to the plaintiff's harm. See also CACI No. 405, Comparative Fault of Plaintiff. For an instruction on the comparative fault of a third person, see CACI No. 1207B, Strict Liability—Comparative Fault of Third Person.

Subsequent misuse or modification may be considered in determining comparative fault if it was a substantial factor in causing the plaintiff's injury. (See Torres v. Xomox Corp. (1996) 49 Cal.App.4th 1, 17 [56 Cal.Rptr.2d 455].) Unforeseeable misuse or modification can be a complete defense if it is the sole cause of the plaintiff's harm. (See Campbell v. Southern Pacific Co. (1978) 22 Cal.3d 51, 56 [148 Cal.Rptr. 596, 583 P.2d 121].) See also CACI No. 1245, Affirmative Defense—Product Misuse or Modification.

Sources and Authority

- "[W]e do not permit plaintiff's own conduct relative to the product to escape unexamined, and as to that share of plaintiff's damages which flows from his own fault we discern no reason of policy why it should, following Li, be borne by others." (Daly v. General Motors Corp. (1978) 20 Cal.3d 725, 737 [144 Cal.Rptr. 380, 575 P.2d 1162] [comparative fault applies to strict product liability actions].)
- "[A] petitioner's recovery may accordingly be reduced, but not barred, where his lack of reasonable care is shown to have contributed to his injury." (Bradfield v. Trans World Airlines, Inc. (1979) 88 Cal.App.3d 681, 686 [152 Cal.Rptr. 172].)

- "The record does not support [defendant]'s assertion that modification of the bracket was the sole cause of the accident. The record does indicate that if the bracket had not been modified there would have been no need to remove it to reach the flange bolts, and thus the modification was one apparent cause of [plaintiff]'s death. However, a number of other causes, or potential causes, were established, including: [plaintiff]'s failure to wear protective clothing; [third party]'s failure to furnish the correct replacement bracket for the valve; [third party]'s failure to furnish [employer] with all of the literature it received from [defendant]; and negligence on the part of [employer] independent of its modification of the valve, including violations of various federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration regulations governing equipment and training in connection with the accident." (Torres, supra, 49 Cal.App.4th at p. 17.)
- "While a jury may well find [plaintiff]'s conduct substantially contributed to the accident [citing this instruction], we cannot say that conduct, even if sufficient to establish criminal storage of a firearm, absolves [defendants], as a matter of law, from all liability for a design defect that may otherwise be shown to exist in the Glock 21. [Plaintiff]'s responsibility for his own injuries is quintessentially a question for the jury." (Chavez v. Glock, Inc. (2012) 207 Cal.App.4th 1283, 1308 [144 Cal.Rptr.3d 326], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1709

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 8, Defenses, §§ 8.03, 8.04 (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability, §§ 460.53, 460.182 (Matthew Bender)

19 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 190, Products Liability, § 190.253 (Matthew Bender)

1207B. Strict Liability—Comparative Fault of Third Person

[*Name of defendant] claims that the [negligence/fault] of [name(s) or description(s) of nonparty tortfeasor(s)] [also] contributed to [name of plaintiff]'s harm. To succeed on this claim, [name of defendant] must prove both of the following:

1. [Insert one or both of the following:]

   [That [*name(s) or description(s) of nonparty tortfeasor(s)] negligently modified the [product];] [or]

   [That [*name(s) or description(s) of nonparty tortfeasor(s)] was [otherwise] [negligent/at fault];]

   and

2. That this [negligence/fault] was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

If you find that the [negligence/ [or] fault] of more than one person, including [*name of defendant][, [name of plaintiff],] and [name(s) or description(s) of nonparty tortfeasor(s)], was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm, you must then decide how much responsibility each has by assigning percentages of responsibility to each person listed on the verdict form. The percentages must total 100 percent.

You will make a separate finding of [*name of plaintiff]'s total damages, if any. In determining an amount of damages, you should not consider any person's assigned percentage of responsibility.

["Person" can mean an individual or a business entity.]

Derived from former CACI No. 1207 April 2009; Revised December 2009, December 2015

Directions for Use

Give this instruction if the defendant has raised the issue of the comparative fault of a third person who is not also a defendant at trial, including defendants who settled before trial and nonjoined alleged tortfeasors. (See Dafonte v. Up-Right, Inc. (1992) 2 Cal.4th 593, 603 [7 Cal.Rptr.2d 238, 828 P.2d 140]; see also CACI No. 406, Apportionment of Responsibility.) For an instruction on the comparative fault of the plaintiff, see CACI No. 1207A, Strict Liability—Comparative Fault of Plaintiff.

This instruction may also be used to allocate liability between a negligent and a strictly liable defendant (Safeway Stores, Inc. v. Nest-Kart (1978) 21 Cal.3d 322, 332 [146 Cal. Rptr. 550, 579 P.2d 441].) or between two strictly liable defendants if multiple products are involved. (Arena v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1998) 63

Cal.App.4th 1178, 1198 [74 Cal.Rptr.2d 580].) However, there is no comparative fault among entities in the distribution chain of the same product. Each remains fully liable for the plaintiff's economic and noneconomic damages. (Bigler-Engler v. Breg, Inc. (2017) 7 Cal.App.5th 276, 325 [213 Cal.Rptr.3d 82].)

In the first sentence, include "also" if the defendant concedes some degree of liability or alleges the comparative fault of the plaintiff, and select "fault" unless the only basis for liability at issue is negligence. Include the last paragraph if any of the defendants or others alleged to have contributed to the plaintiff's harm are not individuals.

Subsequent misuse or modification may be considered in determining comparative fault if it was a substantial factor in causing the plaintiff's injury. (See Torres v. Xomox Corp. (1996) 49 Cal.App.4th 1, 17 [56 Cal.Rptr.2d 455].) Unforeseeable misuse or modification can be a complete defense if it is the sole cause of the plaintiff's harm. (See Campbell v. Southern Pacific Co. (1978) 22 Cal.3d 51, 56 [148 Cal.Rptr. 596, 583 P.2d 121].) See also CACI No. 1245, Affirmative Defense—Product Misuse or Modification.

Sources and Authority

- "[T]he comparative indemnity doctrine may be utilized to allocate liability between a negligent and a strictly liable defendant." (Safeway Stores, Inc., supra, 21 Cal.3d at p. 332.)
- "The record does not support [defendant]'s assertion that modification of the bracket was the sole cause of the accident. The record does indicate that if the bracket had not been modified there would have been no need to remove it to reach the flange bolts, and thus the modification was one apparent cause of [plaintiff]'s death. However, a number of other causes, or potential causes, were established, including: [plaintiff]'s failure to wear protective clothing; [third party]'s failure to furnish the correct replacement bracket for the valve; [third party]'s failure to furnish [employer] with all of the literature it received from [defendant]; and negligence on the part of [employer] independent of its modification of the valve, including violations of various federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration regulations governing equipment and training in connection with the accident." (Torres, supra, 49 Cal.App.4th at p. 17.)
- "This case does not present a situation where several defendants in the chain of distribution seek apportionment under Proposition 51 based on their relevant fault for injuries caused by a single defective product. In such a situation, courts have held that Proposition 51 does not apply and each defendant is liable for the plaintiff's full noneconomic damages under traditional principles of joint and several liability." (Bigler-Engler, supra, 7 Cal.App 5th at p. 325, fn. 35.)
- "Proposition 51 is applicable in a strict liability asbestos exposure case where multiple products cause the plaintiff's injuries and the evidence provides a basis to allocate liability for noneconomic damages between the defective products. Where the evidence shows that a particular product is responsible for only a part of plaintiff's injury, Proposition 51 requires apportionment of the responsibility for that part of the injury to that particular product's chain of distribution." (Arena, supra, 63 Cal.App.4th at p. 1198.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1709

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 8, Defenses, §§ 8.03, 8.04 (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability, §§ 460.53, 460.182 (Matthew Bender)

19 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 190, Products Liability, § 190.253 (Matthew Bender)

1208. Component Parts Rule

[*Name of defendant] [manufactured/distributed/supplied] [a/an] [component part], which was then integrated into [a/an] [end product]. [Name of defendant] may be liable for harm caused by a defective [end product] if [name of plaintiff] proves that (1) [name of defendant] substantially participated in the integration of its [component part] into the design of the [end product] and (2) as a result of the integration of the [component part] into the [end product], the [end product] was defective under the instruction(s) you have been given on [manufacturing defect/design defect/failure to warn].

New November 2018

Directions for Use

Give this instruction if the component parts rule is at issue. This rule generally relieves a component parts manufacturer, distributor, or supplier of liability for injuries caused by a defect in the product into which the component was integrated. However, there are two exceptions to the rule so that a component-parts defendant may nevertheless be found liable. First, the component itself may have been defective; or second, (a) the defendant may have substantially participated in the integration of the component into the design of the end product, (b) the integration of the component caused the end product to be defective, and (c) the defect in the product causes the harm. (Ramos v. Brenntag Specialties, Inc. (2016) 63 Cal.4th 500, 508 [203 Cal.Rptr.3d 273, 372 P.3d 200].) While the component parts rule is labelled a defense (see Webb v. Special Electric Co., Inc. (2016) 63 Cal.4th 167, 183 [202 Cal.Rptr.3d 460, 370 P.3d 1022]; see also Romine v. Johnson Controls, Inc. (2014) 224 Cal.App.4th 990, 1006 fn. 6 [169 Cal.Rptr.3d 208]), the plaintiff has the burden of avoiding the defense by proving one of the exceptions.

This instruction is for use under the second exception. To prove that the end product was defective or lacked a required warning, the plaintiff must prove a manufacturing or design defect, or a failure to warn, as with any other strict product liability claim, using CACI No. 1201, Strict Liability—Manufacturing Defect—Essential Factual Elements, CACI No. 1203, Strict Liability—Design Defect—Consumer Expectation Test—Essential Factual Elements, or CACI No. 1204, Strict Liability—Design Defect—Risk-Benefit Test—Essential Factual Elements (or both), or CACI No. 1205, Strict Liability—Failure to Warn—Essential Factual Elements. The plaintiff has the same burden if the claim is that the component itself was defective or lacked a required warning.

The component parts rule does not apply if the injury is caused by the component when it is being used as intended before integration into another product. (See Ramos, supra, 63 Cal.4th at p. 504.)

Sources and Authority

- "Another defense protects manufacturers and sellers of component parts from liability to users of finished products incorporating their components. Under the component parts doctrine, the supplier of a product component is not liable for injuries caused by the finished product unless (1) the component itself was defective and caused injury or (2) the supplier participated in integrating the component into a product, the integration caused the product to be defective, and that defect caused injury." (Webb, supra, 63 Cal.4th at p. 183.)
- "In Webb [supra], we explained that the component parts doctrine . . . and as accurately reflected in section 5 of the Restatement Third of Torts, Products Liability—applies (1) when a supplier provides a component or raw material that is not itself defective (by virtue of a manufacturing, design, or warning defect), (2) the component or raw material is changed or transformed when incorporated through the manufacturing process into a different finished or end product, and (3) an end user of the finished product is allegedly injured by a defect in the finished product." (Ramos, supra, 63 Cal.4th at pp. 507–508, internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]he component parts doctrine provides protection to the supplier of the component or raw material, subjecting that entity to liability for harm caused by a product into which the component has been integrated only if the supplier "(b)(1) . . . substantially participates in the integration of the component into the design of the product; and [¶] (2) the integration of the component causes the product to be defective . . . ; and [¶] (3) the defect in the product causes the harm." (Ramos, supra, 63 Cal.4th at p. 508.)
- " 'Component parts are products, whether sold or distributed separately or assembled with other component parts.' 'Product components include raw materials, bulk products, and other constituent products sold for integration into other products.' Component manufacturers and suppliers, as sellers of 'products,' are subject to products liability. 'Like manufacturers, suppliers, and retailers of complete products, component manufacturers and suppliers are "an integral part of the overall producing and marketing enterprise," and may in a particular case "be the only member of that enterprise reasonably available to the injured plaintiff," and may be in the best position to ensure product safety.' " (Johnson v. United States Steel Corp. (2015) 240 Cal.App.4th 22, 33 [192 Cal.Rptr.3d 158], internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]he duty of a component manufacturer or supplier to warn about the hazards of its products is not unlimited. . . . 'Making suppliers of inherently safe raw materials and component parts pay for the mistakes of the finished product manufacturer would not only be unfair, but it also would impose and [sic] intolerable burden on the business world . . . . Suppliers of versatile materials like chains, valves, sand gravel, etc., cannot be expected to become experts in the infinite number of finished products that might conceivably incorporate their multi-use raw materials or components.' Thus, cases have subjected claims made against component suppliers to two related doctrines, the 'raw material supplier defense' and 'the bulk sales/sophisticated purchaser rule.' Although the doctrines are distinct, their application oftentimes overlaps and together they present factors which should be carefully considered in evaluating the liability of component suppliers. Those factors include whether the raw materials or components are inherently dangerous, whether the materials are significantly altered before integration into an end product, whether the supplier was involved in designing the end-product and whether the manufacturer of the end product was in a position to discover and disclose hazards." (Artiglio, supra, 61 Cal.App.4th at p. 837.)

- "[T]he protection afforded to defendants by the component parts doctrine does not apply when the product supplied has not been incorporated into a different finished or end product but instead, as here, itself allegedly causes injury when used in the manner intended by the product supplier." (Ramos, supra, 63 Cal.4th at p. 504.)
- "The Restatement further explains 'Product components include raw materials. . . . Thus, when raw materials are contaminated or otherwise defective within the meaning of § 2(a), the seller of the raw material is subject to liability for harm caused by such defects.' California courts have generally adopted the component parts doctrine as it is articulated in the Restatement." (Brady v. Calsol, Inc. (2015) 241 Cal.App.4th 1212, 1219 [194 Cal.Rptr.3d 243], internal citation omitted.)
- "The California Supreme Court has not determined whether the component parts defense is limited to fungible products." (Romine, supra, 224 Cal.App.4th at p. 1006, fn. 6.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1617, 1666

1209–1219. Reserved for Future Use

1220. Negligence—Essential Factual Elements

[*Name of plaintiff] [also] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was harmed by [name of defendant]'s negligence and that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] should be held responsible for that harm. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] [designed/manufactured/supplied/installed/inspected/repaired/rented] the [product];
2. That [name of defendant] was negligent in [designing/manufacturing/supplying/installing/inspecting/repairing/renting] the [product];
3. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
4. That [name of defendant]'s negligence was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New September 2003; Revised December 2012

Directions for Use

Use this instruction to allege a manufacturing or design defect under a negligence theory. Also give CACI No. 1221, Negligence—Basic Standard of Care. If a defect is also alleged under a theory of strict liability, include "also" in the first sentence. For an instruction on negligent failure to warn, see CACI No. 1222, Negligence—Manufacturer or Supplier—Duty to Warn—Essential Factual Elements.

This instruction may also be given in an action against a defendant who is alleged to have negligently supplied, installed, inspected, repaired, or rented the product.

Presumably, the judge will have already determined that the defendant owed the plaintiff a duty because the product was of a type that could endanger others if it was negligently made. (See Ky. Fried Chicken of Cal. v. Superior Court (1997) 14 Cal.4th 814, 819 [59 Cal.Rptr.2d 756, 927 P.2d 1260] [existence of a duty is a question of law for the court].) Accordingly, no duty element is included in this instruction.

Sources and Authority

- "As with an action asserted under a strict liability theory, under a negligence theory the plaintiff must prove a defect caused injury. However, '[u]nder a negligence theory, plaintiff must also prove "an additional element, namely, that the defect in the product was due to negligence of the defendant." ' " (Chavez v. Glock, Inc. (2012) 207 Cal.App.4th 1283, 1304–1305 [144 Cal.Rptr.3d 326], internal citation omitted.)
- "No valid reason appears to require a plaintiff to elect whether to proceed on the theory of strict liability in tort or on the theory of negligence. . . . Nor does it appear that instructions on the two theories will be confusing to the jury. There is nothing inconsistent in instructions on the two theories and to a large extent the two theories parallel and supplement each other." (Jiminez v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1971) 4 Cal.3d 379, 387 [93 Cal.Rptr. 769, 482 P.2d 681].)

- "The courts of this state are committed to the doctrine that the duty of care exists in the absence of privity of contract not only where the article manufactured is inherently dangerous but also where it is reasonably certain, if negligently manufactured or constructed, to place life and limb in peril." (Sheward v. Virtue (1942) 20 Cal.2d 410, 412 [126 P.2d 345], internal citations omitted.)
- Manufacturers or other suppliers of goods and buyers or users have a "special relationship" giving rise to an affirmative duty to assist or protect. (6 Witkin, Summary of Cal. Law (10th ed. 2005) §§ 1038–1042, 1048, 1049.)
- Restatement Second of Torts, section 388, comment (c), provides: "These rules . . . apply to sellers, lessors, donors, or lenders, irrespective of whether the chattel is made by them or by a third person. They apply to all kinds of bailors. . . . They also apply to one who undertakes the repair of a chattel and who delivers it back with knowledge that it is defective because of the work which he is employed to do upon it."

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1594

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 2, Liability for Defective Products, § 2.20 (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability, § 460.32 (Matthew Bender)

19 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 190, Products Liability, § 190.190 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1221. Negligence—Basic Standard of Care

A [designer/manufacturer/supplier/installer/repairer] is negligent if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] fails to use the amount of care in [designing/manufacturing/inspecting/installing/repairing] the product that a reasonably careful [designer/manufacturer/supplier/installer/ repairer] would use in similar circumstances to avoid exposing others to a foreseeable risk of harm.

In determining whether [*name of defendant] used reasonable care, you should balance what [name of defendant] knew or should have known about the likelihood and severity of potential harm from the product against the burden of taking safety measures to reduce or avoid the harm.

New September 2003; Revised December 2012

Directions for Use

Give this instruction with CACI No. 1220, Negligence—Essential Factual Elements. This instruction gives guidance to the jury as to how to evaluate element 2 (defendant was negligent) of CACI 1220. For an instruction on negligent failure to warn, see CACI No. 1222, Negligence—Manufacturer or Supplier—Duty to Warn—Essential Factual Elements.

The duty to inspect or test is included in the "knew or should have known" standard of this instruction: "If the manufacturer designs the product safely, manufactures the product safely, and provides an adequate warning of dangers inherent in the use of the product, then a failure to test the product cannot, standing alone, cause any injury. The duty to test is a subpart of the other three duties because a breach of the duty to test cannot by itself cause any injury." (Valentine v. Baxter Healthcare Corp. (1999) 68 Cal.App.4th 1467, 1486 [81 Cal.Rptr.2d 252], quoting Kociemba v. G.D. Searle & Co. (D. Minn. 1989) 707 F.Supp. 1517, 1527.)

Sources and Authority

- "A manufacturer/seller of a product is under a duty to exercise reasonable care in its design so that it can be safely used as intended by its buyer/consumer." (Williams v. Beechnut Nutrition Corp. (1986) 185 Cal.App.3d 135, 141 [229 Cal.Rptr. 605].) This duty " 'extends to all persons within the range of potential danger.' " (Ibid., internal citations omitted.)
- "In determining what precautions, if any, were required under the circumstances, the likelihood of harm, and the gravity of the harm if it happens, must be balanced against the burden of the precaution which would be effective to avoid the harm." (Putensen v. Clay Adams, Inc. (1970) 12 Cal.App.3d 1062, 1077–1078 [91 Cal.Rptr. 319], internal citations omitted.)
- [E]xpert testimony about the safety of a product, in light of industry standards, can also take into account other applicable and relevant circumstances. As framed by CACI No. 1221, the negligence inquiry asks if the manufacturer failed to use the amount of care in designing the product that a reasonably careful designer or manufacturer would have used in similar circumstances." (Howard v. Omni Hotels Management Corp. (2012) 203 Cal.App.4th 403, 430 [136 Cal.Rptr.3d 739], internal citations omitted.)

- "[F]reedom from negligence does not inure to the manufacturer because it purchased parts from another which were defective." (Sheward v. Virtue (1942) 20 Cal.2d 410, 412 [126 P.2d 345].)
- "The duty of a manufacturer with respect to the design of products placed on the market is defined in the Restatement Second of Torts, section 398: 'A manufacturer of a chattel made under a plan or design which makes it dangerous for the uses for which it is manufactured is subject to liability to others whom he should expect to use the chattel or to be endangered by its probable use for physical harm caused by his failure to exercise reasonable care in the adoption of a safe plan or design.' Thus, the manufacturer must use reasonable care 'to so design his product as to make it not accident-proof, but safe for the use for which it was [sic] intended.' What is 'reasonable care,' of course, varies with the facts of each case, but it involves a balancing of the likelihood of harm to be expected from a machine with a given design and the gravity of harm if it happens against the burden of the precaution which would be effective to avoid the harm." (Pike v. Frank G. Hough Co. (1970) 2 Cal.3d 465, 470 [85 Cal.Rptr. 629, 467 P.2d 229], internal citation omitted.)
- " '[T]he test of negligent design "involves a balancing of the likelihood of harm to be expected from a machine with a given design and the gravity of harm if it happens against the burden of the precaution which would be effective to avoid the harm." [Citation.] . . . "A manufacturer or other seller can be negligent in marketing a product because of the way it was designed. In short, even if a seller had done all that he could reasonably have done to warn about a risk or hazard related to the way a product was designed, it could be that a reasonable person would conclude that the magnitude of the reasonably foreseeable harm as designed outweighed the utility of the product as so designed." [Citation.] Thus, "most of the evidentiary matters" relevant to applying the risk/benefit test in strict liability cases "are similar to the issues typically presented in a negligent design case." ' " (Chavez v. Glock, Inc. (2012) 207 Cal.App.4th 1283, 1305 [144 Cal.Rptr.3d 326].)
- "A danger is unreasonable when it is foreseeable, and the manufacturer's ability, actual, constructive, or potential, to forestall unreasonable danger is the measure of its duty in the design of its product." (Balido v. Improved Machinery, Inc. (1972) 29 Cal.App.3d 633, 640 [105 Cal.Rptr. 890], disapproved on other grounds in Regents of University of California v. Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co. (1978) 21 Cal.3d 624, 641–642 [147 Cal.Rptr. 486, 581 P.2d 197].)
- "With respect to tests or inspections, it is well settled that where an article is such that it is reasonably certain, if negligently manufactured or designed, to place life and limb in peril, the manufacturer is chargeable with negligence if the defective condition could be disclosed by reasonable inspection and tests, and such inspection and tests are omitted." (Putensen, supra, 12 Cal.App.3d at p. 1078, internal citations omitted.)

- "[W]here an article is either inherently dangerous or reasonably certain to place life and limb in peril when negligently made, a manufacturer owes a duty of care to those who are the ultimate users. This duty requires reasonable care to be exercised in assembling component parts and inspecting and testing them before the product leaves the plant." (Reynolds v. Natural Gas Equipment, Inc. (1960) 184 Cal.App.2d 724, 736 [7 Cal.Rptr. 879], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1631–1643

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 2(II)-D, Strict Liability For Defective Products, ¶¶ 2:1271, 2:1295, 2:1331, 2:1381 (The Rutter Group)

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 2, Liability for Defective Products, § 2.21 (Matthew Bender)

19 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 190, Products Liability, § 190.190 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1222. Negligence—Manufacturer or Supplier—Duty to Warn—Essential Factual Elements

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] was negligent by not using reasonable care to warn [or instruct] about the [product]'s dangerous condition or about facts that made the [product] likely to be dangerous. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] [manufactured/distributed/sold] the [product];
2. That [name of defendant] knew or reasonably should have known that the [product] was dangerous or was likely to be dangerous when used or misused in a reasonably foreseeable manner;
3. That [name of defendant] knew or reasonably should have known that users would not realize the danger;
4. That [name of defendant] failed to adequately warn of the danger [or instruct on the safe use of the [product]];
5. That a reasonable [manufacturer/distributor/seller] under the same or similar circumstances would have warned of the danger [or instructed on the safe use of the [product]];
6. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
7. That [name of defendant]'s failure to warn [or instruct] was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

[The warning must be given to the prescribing physician and must include the potential risks or side effects that may follow the foreseeable use of the product. [Name of defendant] had a continuing duty to warn physicians as long as the product was in use.]

New September 2003; Revised June 2011, December 2012, May 2020

Directions for Use

Give this instruction in a case involving product liability in which a claim for failure to warn is included under a negligence theory. For an instruction on failure to warn under strict liability and for additional sources and authority, see CACI No. 1205, Strict Liability—Failure to Warn—Essential Factual Elements. For instructions on design and manufacturing defect under a negligence theory, see CACI No. 1220, Negligence—Essential Factual Elements, and CACI No. 1221, Negligence—Basic Standard of Care.

To make a prima facie case, the plaintiff has the initial burden of producing evidence that the plaintiff was injured while the product was being used in an intended or reasonably foreseeable manner. If this prima facie burden is met, the burden of proof shifts to the defendant to prove that the plaintiff's injury resulted from a misuse of the product. (See Perez v. VAS S.p.A. (2010) 188 Cal.App.4th 658, 678 [115 Cal.Rptr.3d 590] [strict liability design defect risk-benefit case].) See also CACI No. 1245, Affirmative Defense—Product Misuse or Modification. Product misuse is a complete defense to strict products liability if the defendant proves that an unforeseeable abuse or alteration of the product after it left the manufacturer's hands was the sole cause of the plaintiff's injury. (Campbell v. Southern Pacific Co. (1978) 22 Cal.3d 51, 56 [148 Cal.Rptr. 596, 583 P.2d 121]; see CACI No. 1245.) Misuse or modification that was a substantial factor in, but not the sole cause of, plaintiff's harm may also be considered in determining the comparative fault of the plaintiff or of third persons. See CACI No. 1207A, Strict Liability—Comparative Fault of Plaintiff, and CACI No. 1207B, Strict Liability—Comparative Fault of Third Person.

The last bracketed paragraph is to be used in prescription drug cases only.

Sources and Authority

- "[T]he manufacturer has a duty to use reasonable care to give warning of the dangerous condition of the product or of facts which make it likely to be dangerous to those whom he should expect to use the product or be endangered by its probable use, if the manufacturer has reason to believe that they will not realize its dangerous condition." (Putensen v. Clay Adams, Inc. (1970) 12 Cal.App.3d 1062, 1076–1077 [91 Cal.Rptr. 319].)
- "Under California law, a manufacturer generally has no duty to warn of risks from another manufacturer's product, and is typically liable only for harm caused by its own product." (Johnson & Johnson Talcum Powder Cases (2019) 37 Cal.App.5th 292, 315 [249 Cal.Rptr.3d 642].)
- "Negligence law in a failure-to-warn case requires a plaintiff to prove that a manufacturer or distributor did not warn of a particular risk for reasons which fell below the acceptable standard of care, i.e., what a reasonably prudent manufacturer would have known and warned about." (Chavez v. Glock, Inc. (2012) 207 Cal.App.4th 1283, 1305 [144 Cal.Rptr.3d 326], internal citation omitted.)
- "Thus, the question defendants wanted included in the special verdict form—whether a reasonable manufacturer under the same or similar circumstances would have given a warning—is an essential inquiry in the negligent failure to warn claim." (Trejo v. Johnson & Johnson (2017) 13 Cal.App.5th 110, 137 [220 Cal.Rptr.3d 127] [citing this instruction].)
- "Negligence and strict products liability are separate and distinct bases for liability that do not automatically collapse into each other because the plaintiff might allege both when a product warning contributes to her injury." (Conte v. Wyeth, Inc. (2008) 168 Cal.App.4th 89, 101 [85 Cal.Rptr.3d 299].)
- "The 'known or knowable' standard arguably derives from negligence principles, and failure to warn claims are generally ' "rooted in negligence" to a greater extent than' manufacturing or design defect claims. Unlike those other defects, a ' "warning defect" relates to a failure extraneous to the product itself' and can only be assessed by examining the manufacturer's conduct. These principles notwithstanding, California law recognizes separate failure to warn claims under both strict liability and negligence theories. In general, a product seller will be strictly liable for failure to warn if a warning was feasible and the absence of a warning caused the plaintiff's injury. Reasonableness of the seller's failure to warn is immaterial in the strict liability context. Conversely, to prevail on a claim for negligent failure to warn, the plaintiff must prove that the seller's conduct fell below the standard of care. If a prudent seller would have acted reasonably in not giving a warning, the seller will not have been negligent." (Webb v. Special Electric Co., Inc. (2016) 63 Cal.4th 167, 181 [202 Cal.Rptr.3d 460, 370 P.3d 1022], footnote and internal citations omitted.)

- "It is true that the two types of failure to warn claims are not necessarily exclusive: 'No valid reason appears to require a plaintiff to elect whether to proceed on the theory of strict liability in tort or on the theory of negligence. . . . [¶] Nor does it appear that instructions on the two theories will be confusing to the jury. There is nothing inconsistent in instructions on the two theories and to a large extent the two theories parallel and supplement each other.' Despite the often significant overlap between the theories of negligence and strict liability based on a product defect, a plaintiff is entitled to instructions on both theories if both are supported by the evidence." (Oxford v. Foster Wheeler LLC (2009) 177 Cal.App.4th 700, 717 [99 Cal.Rptr.3d 418].)
- "(1) [T]he strict liability instructions 'more than subsumed the elements of duty to warn set forth in the negligence instructions'; (2) under the instructions, there is no 'real difference between a warning to ordinary users about a product use that involves a substantial danger, and a warning about a product that is dangerous or likely to be dangerous for its intended use'; (3) [defendant]'s duty under the strict liability instructions 'to warn of potential risks and side effects envelope[d] a broader set of risk factors than the duty, [under the] negligence instructions, to warn of facts which make the product "likely to be dangerous" for its intended use'; (4) the reference in the strict liability instructions here to 'potential risks . . . that were known or knowable through the use of scientific knowledge' encompasses the concept in the negligence instructions of risks [defendant] 'knew or reasonably should have known'; and (5) for all these reasons, the jury's finding that [defendant] was not liable under a strict liability theory 'disposed of any liability for failure to warn' on a negligence theory." (Trejo, supra, 13 Cal.App.5th at pp. 132–133, original italics, internal citations omitted.)
- "In the context of prescription drugs, a manufacturer's duty is to warn physicians about the risks known or reasonably known to the manufacturer. The manufacturer has no duty to warn of risks that are 'merely speculative or conjectural, or so remote and insignificant as to be negligible.' If the manufacturer provides an adequate warning to the prescribing physician, the manufacturer need not communicate a warning directly to the patient who uses the drug." (T.H. v. Novartis Pharmaceuticals Corp. (2017) 4 Cal.5th 145, 164 [226 Cal.Rptr.3d 336, 407 P.3d 18], internal citations omitted.)

- "Because the same warning label must appear on the brand-name drug as well as its generic bioequivalent, a brand-name drug manufacturer owes a duty of reasonable care in ensuring that the label includes appropriate warnings, regardless of whether the end user has been dispensed the brand-name drug or its generic bioequivalent. If the person exposed to the generic drug can reasonably allege that the brand-name drug manufacturer's failure to update its warning label foreseeably and proximately caused physical injury, then the brand-name manufacturer's liability for its own negligence does not automatically terminate merely because the brand-name manufacturer transferred its rights in the brand-name drug to a successor manufacturer." (T.H., supra, 4 Cal.5th at p. 156.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1317–1321

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 2(II)-D, Strict Liability For Defective Products, ¶¶ 2:1271, 2:1295 (The Rutter Group)

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 2, Liability for Defective Products, § 2.21, Ch. 7, Proof, § 7.05 (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability, § 460.11 (Matthew Bender)

19 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 190, Products Liability, § 190.165 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1223. Negligence—Recall/Retrofit

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] was negligent because [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] failed to [recall/retrofit] the [product]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] [manufactured/distributed/sold] the [product];
2. That [name of defendant] knew or reasonably should have known that the [product] was dangerous or was likely to be dangerous when used in a reasonably foreseeable manner;
3. That [name of defendant] became aware of this defect after the [product] was sold;
4. That [name of defendant] failed to [recall/retrofit] [or warn of the danger of] the [product];
5. That a reasonable [manufacturer/distributor/seller] under the same or similar circumstances would have [recalled/retrofitted] the [product];
6. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
7. That [name of defendant]'s failure to [recall/retrofit] the [product] was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New September 2003; Revised October 2004

Directions for Use

If the issue concerns a negligently conducted recall, modify this instruction accordingly.

Sources and Authority

- "Failure to conduct an adequate retrofit campaign may constitute negligence apart from the issue of defective design." (Hernandez v. Badger Construction Equipment Co. (1994) 28 Cal.App.4th 1791, 1827 [34 Cal.Rptr.2d 732], internal citation omitted.)
- In Lunghi v. Clark Equipment Co. (1984) 153 Cal.App.3d 485 [200 Cal.Rptr. 387], the court observed that, where the evidence showed that the manufacturer became aware of dangers after the product had been on the market, the jury "could still have found that Clark's knowledge of the injuries caused by these features imposed a duty to warn of the danger, and/or a duty to conduct an adequate retrofit campaign." The failure to meet the standard of reasonable care with regard to either of these duties could have supported a finding of negligence. (Id. at p. 494, original italics.)

- In Balido v. Improved Machinery, Inc. (1972) 29 Cal.App.3d 633 [105 Cal.Rptr. 890] (disapproved on other grounds in Regents of University of California v. Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co. (1978) 21 Cal.3d 624, 641–642 [147 Cal.Rptr. 486, 581 P.2d 197]), the court concluded that a jury could reasonably have found negligence based upon the manufacturer's failure to retrofit equipment determined to be unsafe after it was sold, even though the manufacturer told the equipment's owners of the safety problems and offered to correct those problems for $500. (Id. at p. 649.)
- If a customer fails to comply with a recall notice, this will not automatically absolve the manufacturer from liability: "A manufacturer cannot delegate responsibility for the safety of its product to dealers, much less purchasers." (Springmeyer v. Ford Motor Co. (1998) 60 Cal.App.4th 1541, 1562–1563 [71 Cal.Rptr.2d 190], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1643

1 California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 7, Problems of Causation, § 7.06 (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability, § 460.52 (Matthew Bender)

1224. Negligence—Negligence for Product Rental/Standard of Care

---

[A person who rents products to others for money is negligent if that person fails to use reasonable care to:

1. Inspect the products for defects;
2. Make them safe for their intended use; and
3. Adequately warn of any known dangers.]

[or]

[A person who lends products to others without charge only is required to use reasonable care to warn of known defects.]

New September 2003; Revised May 2020

Directions for Use

Use this instruction in conjunction with CACI No. 1220, Negligence—Essential Factual Elements, and instead of CACI No. 1221, Negligence—Basic Standard of Care, in cases involving rentals.

If the case involves a product lent gratuitously for the mutual benefit of the parties (e.g., to a prospective purchaser), the first paragraph is applicable and the instruction needs to be modified.

In a purely gratuitous lending case, if the object is a "dangerous instrumentality" there may be a duty to conduct a reasonable inspection before lending. (See Tierstein v. Licht (1959) 174 Cal.App.2d 835, 842 [345 P.2d 341].)

Sources and Authority

- Duties of Lessor of Personal Property. Civil Code section 1955.
- If a bailment is for hire, or provides a mutual benefit, the bailor has a duty to the bailee and to third persons to (1) warn of actually known defects and (2) to use reasonable care to make an examination of the good before lending it "in order to make certain that it [is] fit for the use known to be intended." (Tierstein, supra, 174 Cal.App.2d at pp. 840–841.)
- A bailment, otherwise gratuitous, where made to induce a purchase, has been considered sufficient to give rise to the same duty of reasonable care on the part of the bailor as an ordinary bailment for hire. This is regarded as a bailment for mutual benefit. (Tierstein, supra, 174 Cal.App.2d at p. 842.)
- Under either a negligence or an implied warranty theory, "the essential inquiry . . . is whether [the defendants] made such inspection of their equipment as was necessary to discharge their duty of reasonable care." (McNeal v. Greenberg (1953) 40 Cal.2d 740, 742 [255 P.2d 810].) The bailor is not an insurer or guarantor. (Tierstein, supra, 174 Cal.App.2d at p. 841.)

- Restatement Second of Torts, section 408, provides: "One who leases a chattel as safe for immediate use is subject to liability to those whom he should expect to use the chattel, or to be endangered by its probable use, for physical harm caused by its use in a manner for which, and by a person for whose use, it is leased, if the lessor fails to exercise reasonable care to make it safe for such use or to disclose its actual condition to those who may be expected to use it."
- This Restatement section was cited with approval in Rae v. California Equipment Co. (1939) 12 Cal.2d 563, 569 [86 P.2d 352].
- "The general rule is that the only duty which a gratuitous bailor owes either to the bailee or to third persons is to warn them of actually known defects which render the chattel dangerous for the purpose for which it is ordinarily used; he has no liability for injuries caused by defects in the subject matter of the bailment of which he was not aware." (Tierstein, supra, 174 Cal.App.2d at p. 841.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1670

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 20, Motor Vehicles, § 20.053 (Matthew Bender)

44 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 413, Personal Property Leases, § 413.34 (Matthew Bender)

1225–1229. Reserved for Future Use

1230. Express Warranty—Essential Factual Elements

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] was harmed by the [product] because [name of defendant] represented, either by words or actions, that the [product] [insert description of alleged express warranty, e.g., "was safe"], but the [product] was not as represented. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] [insert one or more of the following:]

   [gave [*name of plaintiff] a written warranty that the [product] [insert description of written warranty];] [or]

   [made a [statement of fact/promise] [to/received by] [*name of plaintiff] that the [product] [insert description of alleged express warranty];] [or]

   [gave [*name of plaintiff] a description of the [product];] [or]

   [gave [*name of plaintiff] a sample or model of the [product];]

2. That the [product] [insert one or more of the following:]

   [did not perform as [stated/promised];] [or]

   [did not meet the quality of the [description/sample/model];]

[3. That [*name of plaintiff] took reasonable steps to notify [name of defendant] within a reasonable time that the [product] was not as represented, whether or not [name of defendant] received such notice;]

4. That [name of defendant] failed to [repair/specify other remedy provided by warranty] the [product] as required by the warranty;
5. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
6. That the failure of the [product] to be as represented was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

[Formal words such as "warranty" or "guarantee" are not required to create a warranty. It is also not necessary for [*name of defendant] to have specifically intended to create a warranty. But a warranty is not created if [name of defendant] simply stated the value of the goods or only gave [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] opinion of or recommendation regarding the goods.]

New September 2003; Revised February 2005, June 2015

Directions for Use

This instruction is for use if breach of an express warranty is alleged under the California Commercial Code. (See Orichian v. BMW of North America, LLC (2014) 226 Cal.App.4th 1322, 1333–1334 [172 Cal.Rptr.3d 876]; Comm. Code, § 2313.) If a breach of written warranty under the federal Magnuson-Moss Warranty Act (see 15 U.S.C. § 2301 et seq.) is alleged, give the first option for element 1. (See 15 U.S.C. §§ 2310(d)(1), 2301(6).)

The giving of notice to the seller is not required in personal injury or property damage lawsuits against a manufacturer or another supplier with whom the plaintiff has not directly dealt. (Greenman v. Yuba Power Products, Inc. (1963) 59 Cal.2d 57, 61 [27 Cal.Rptr. 697, 377 P.2d 897]; Gherna v. Ford Motor Co. (1966) 246 Cal.App.2d 639, 652–653 [55 Cal.Rptr. 94].)

If an instruction on the giving of notice to the seller is needed, see CACI No. 1243, Notification/Reasonable Time.

Sources and Authority

- Express Warranties. California Uniform Commercial Code section 2313.
- Applicable to "Transactions in Goods." California Uniform Commercial Code section 2102.
- "Goods" Defined. California Uniform Commercial Code section 2105.
- Damages Under Commercial Code. California Uniform Commercial Code section 2714.
- "An express warranty 'is a contractual promise from the seller that the goods conform to the promise. If they do not, the buyer is entitled to recover the difference between the value of the goods accepted by the buyer and the value of the goods had they been as warranted.' " (Dagher v. Ford Motor Co. (2015) 238 Cal.App.4th 905, 928 [190 Cal.Rptr.3d 261].)
- "A warranty relates to the title, character, quality, identity, or condition of the goods. The purpose of the law of warranty is to determine what it is that the seller has in essence agreed to sell." (Keith v. Buchanan (1985) 173 Cal.App.3d 13, 20 [220 Cal.Rptr. 392], internal citation omitted.)
- "The essential elements of a cause of action under the California Uniform Commercial Code for breach of an express warranty to repair defects are (1) an express warranty to repair defects given in connection with the sale of goods; (2) the existence of a defect covered by the warranty; (3) the buyer's notice to the seller of such a defect within a reasonable time after its discovery; (4) the seller's failure to repair the defect in compliance with the warranty; and (5) resulting damages." (Orichian, supra, 226 Cal.App.4th at pp. 1333–1334, internal citations omitted.)
- "Privity is not required for an action based upon an express warranty." (Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal.3d 104, 115, fn. 8 [120 Cal.Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377].)
- "Used car owners that obtain their vehicles via private sales and who comply with the warranty terms may seek to enforce the express warranty against the manufacturer by bringing an action under the Commercial Code based on breach of express warranty. Such an action does not require that the plaintiff purchase the vehicle from a retail seller." (Dagher, supra, 238 Cal.App.4th at p. 928.)

- " 'The determination as to whether a particular statement is an expression of opinion or an affirmation of a fact is often difficult, and frequently is dependent upon the facts and circumstances existing at the time the statement is made.' " (Keith, supra, 173 Cal.App.3d at p. 21, internal citation omitted.)
- "Statements made by a seller during the course of negotiation over a contract are presumptively affirmations of fact unless it can be demonstrated that the buyer could only have reasonably considered the statement as a statement of the seller's opinion. Commentators have noted several factors which tend to indicate an opinion statement. These are (1) a lack of specificity in the statement made, (2) a statement that is made in an equivocal manner, or (3) a statement which reveals that the goods are experimental in nature." (Keith, supra, 173 Cal.App.3d at p. 21.)
- "It is important to note . . . that even statements of opinion can become warranties under the code if they become part of the basis of the bargain." (Hauter, supra, 14 Cal.3d at p. 115, fn. 10.)
- "The basis of the bargain requirement represents a significant change in the law of warranties. Whereas plaintiffs in the past have had to prove their reliance upon specific promises made by the seller, the Uniform Commercial Code requires no such proof." (Hauter, supra, 14 Cal.3d at p. 115, internal citations omitted.)
- "It is immaterial whether defendant had actual knowledge of the contraindications. 'The obligation of a warranty is absolute, and is imposed as a matter of law irrespective of whether the seller knew or should have known of the falsity of his representations.' " (Grinnell v. Charles Pfizer & Co. (1969) 274 Cal.App.2d 424, 442 [79 Cal.Rptr. 369], internal citations omitted.)
- "[A] sale is ordinarily an essential element of any warranty, express or implied . . . ." (Fogo v. Cutter Laboratories, Inc. (1977) 68 Cal.App.3d 744, 759 [137 Cal.Rptr. 417], internal citations omitted.)
- "Neither Magnuson-Moss nor the California Uniform Commercial Code requires proof that a defect substantially impairs the use, value, or safety of a vehicle in order to establish a breach of an express or written warranty, as required under Song-Beverly." (Orichian, supra, 226 Cal.App.4th at p. 1331; fn. 9, see CACI No. 3204, "Substantially Impaired" Explained.)

Secondary Sources

4 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Sales, §§ 57–67

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 2, Liability for Defective Products, §§ 2.31–2.33, Ch. 7, Proof, § 7.03 (Matthew Bender)

44 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties,

§§ 502.23, 502.42–502.50, 502.140–502.150 (Matthew Bender)

20 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 206, Sales, § 206.60 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1231. Implied Warranty of Merchantability—Essential Factual Elements

---

[Name of plaintiff] [also] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] was harmed by the [product] that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] bought from [name of defendant] because the [product] did not have the quality that a buyer would expect. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of plaintiff] bought the [product] from [name of defendant];
2. That, at the time of purchase, [name of defendant] was in the business of selling these goods [or by [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] occupation held [himself/herself/nonbinary pronoun/itself] out as having special knowledge or skill regarding these goods];
3. That the [product] [insert one or more of the following:]

   [was not of the same quality as those generally acceptable in the trade;]

   [was not fit for the ordinary purposes for which such goods are used;]

   [did not conform to the quality established by the parties' prior dealings or by usage of trade;]

   [other ground as set forth in California Uniform Commercial Code section 2314(2);]
4. [That [name of plaintiff] took reasonable steps to notify [name of defendant] within a reasonable time that the [product] did not have the expected quality;]
5. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
6. That the failure of the [product] to have the expected quality was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This cause of action could also apply to products that are leased. If so, modify the instruction accordingly.

The giving of notice to the seller is not required in personal injury or property damage lawsuits against a manufacturer or another supplier with whom the plaintiff has not directly dealt. (Greenman v. Yuba Power Products, Inc. (1963) 59 Cal.2d 57, 61 [27 Cal.Rptr. 697, 377 P.2d 897]; Gherna v. Ford Motor Co. (1966) 246 Cal.App.2d 639, 652–653 [55 Cal.Rptr. 94].)

If an instruction on the giving of notice to the seller is needed, see CACI No. 1243, Notification/Reasonable Time.

Sources and Authority

- Implied Warranty of Merchantability. California Uniform Commercial Code section 2314.
- Customary Dealings of Parties. California Uniform Commercial Code section 1303.
- "Merchant" Defined. California Uniform Commercial Code section 2104(1).
- "Goods" Defined. California Uniform Commercial Code section 2105(1).
- "Unlike express warranties, which are basically contractual in nature, the implied warranty of merchantability arises by operation of law. It does not 'impose a general requirement that goods precisely fulfill the expectation of the buyer. Instead, it provides for a minimum level of quality.' " (American Suzuki Motor Corp. v. Superior Court (1995) 37 Cal.App.4th 1291, 1295–1296 [44 Cal.Rptr.2d 526], internal citations omitted.)
- "[I]n cases involving personal injuries resulting from defective products, the theory of strict liability in tort has virtually superseded the concept of implied warranties." (Grinnell v. Charles Pfizer & Co. (1969) 274 Cal.App.2d 424, 432 [79 Cal.Rptr. 369].)
- "Vertical privity is a prerequisite in California for recovery on a theory of breach of the implied warranties of fitness and merchantability." (United States Roofing, Inc. v. Credit Alliance Corp. (1991) 228 Cal.App.3d 1431, 1441 [279 Cal.Rptr. 533], internal citations omitted.)
- "[Plaintiff] comes within a well-recognized exception to the [privity] rule: he is a member of the purchaser's family." (Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal.3d 104, 115, fn. 8 [120 Cal.Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377].)
- "Therefore, says plaintiff, . . . in view of modern industrial usage employe[e]s should be considered a member of the industrial 'family' of the employer—whether corporate or private—and to thus stand in such privity to the manufacturer as to permit the employe[e]s to be covered by warranties made to the purchaser-employer. [¶] We are persuaded that this position is meritorious." (Peterson v. Lamb Rubber Co. (1960) 54 Cal.2d 339, 347 [5 Cal.Rptr. 863, 353 P.2d 575].)
- "A buyer who is damaged by a breach of implied warranty has two possible measures of those damages: one where the buyer has rightfully rejected or 'justifiably revoked acceptance' of the goods, and one where the buyer has accepted the goods." (Simgel Co., Inc. v. Jaguar Land Rover North America, LLC (2020) 55 Cal.App.5th 305, 315–316 [269 Cal.Rptr.3d 364].)

Secondary Sources

4 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Sales, § 51

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 2, Liability for Defective Products, §§ 2.31–2.33, Ch. 7, Proof, § 7.03 (Matthew Bender)

44 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties, §§ 502.24, 502.51, 502.200–502.214 (Matthew Bender)

20 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 206, Sales, § 206.63 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1232. Implied Warranty of Fitness for a Particular Purpose—Essential Factual Elements

---

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] was harmed by the [product] that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] bought from [name of defendant] because the [product] was not suitable for [name of plaintiff]'s intended purpose. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of plaintiff] bought the [product] from [name of defendant];
2. That, at the time of purchase, [name of defendant] knew or had reason to know that [name of plaintiff] intended to use the product for a particular purpose;
3. That, at the time of purchase, [name of defendant] knew or had reason to know that [name of plaintiff] was relying on [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] skill and judgment to select or furnish a product that was suitable for the particular purpose;
4. That [name of plaintiff] justifiably relied on [name of defendant]'s skill and judgment;
5. That the [product] was not suitable for the particular purpose;
6. [That [name of plaintiff] took reasonable steps to notify [name of defendant] within a reasonable time that the [product] was not suitable;]
7. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
8. That the failure of the [product] to be suitable was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This cause of action could also apply to products that are leased. If so, modify the instruction accordingly.

The giving of notice to the seller is not required in personal injury or property damage lawsuits against a manufacturer or another supplier with whom the plaintiff has not directly dealt. (Greenman v. Yuba Power Products, Inc. (1963) 59 Cal.2d 57, 61 [27 Cal.Rptr. 697, 377 P.2d 897]; Gherna v. Ford Motor Co. (1966) 246 Cal.App.2d 639, 652–653 [55 Cal.Rptr. 94].)

If an instruction on the giving of notice to the seller is needed, see CACI No. 1243, Notification/Reasonable Time.

Sources and Authority

- Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose. California Uniform Commercial Code section 2315.
- "A warranty is a contractual term concerning some aspect of the sale, such as title to the goods, or their quality or quantity." (4 Witkin, Summary of California Law (10th ed. 2005) Sales, § 51.)
- "An implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose arises only where (1) the purchaser at the time of contracting intends to use the goods for a particular purpose, (2) the seller at the time of contracting has reason to know of this particular purpose, (3) the buyer relies on the seller's skill or judgment to select or furnish goods suitable for the particular purpose, and (4) the seller at the time of contracting has reason to know that the buyer is relying on such skill and judgment." (Keith v. Buchanan (1985) 173 Cal.App.3d 13, 25 [220 Cal.Rptr. 392], internal citation omitted.)
- " 'A "particular purpose" differs from the ordinary purpose for which the goods are used in that it envisages a specific use by the buyer which is peculiar to the nature of his business whereas the ordinary purposes for which goods are used are those envisaged in the concept of merchantability and go to uses which are customarily made of the goods in question.' " (American Suzuki Motor Corp. v. Superior Court (1995) 37 Cal.App.4th 1291, 1295, fn. 2 [44 Cal.Rptr.2d 526], internal citation omitted.)
- "The warranty of fitness for a particular purpose is not limited to sales by a merchant as is the warranty of merchantability. It may be imposed on any seller possessing sufficient skill and judgment to justify the buyer's reliance. The Code drafters suggest, however, that a nonmerchant seller will only in particular circumstances have that degree of skill and judgment necessary to justify imposing the warranty." (4 Witkin, Summary of California Law (10th ed. 2005) Sales, § 75.)
- "The reliance elements are important to the consideration of whether an implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose exists. . . . The major question in determining the existence of an implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose is the reliance by the buyer upon the skill and judgment of the seller to select an article suitable for his needs." (Keith, supra, 173 Cal.App.3d at p. 25, internal citations omitted.)
- In Keith, the reviewing court upheld the trial court's finding that there was no reliance because "the plaintiff did not rely on the skill and judgment of the defendants to select a suitable vessel, but that he rather relied on his own experts." (Keith, supra, 173 Cal.App.3d at p. 25.)
- "Vertical privity is a prerequisite in California for recovery on a theory of breach of the implied warranties of fitness and merchantability." (United States Roofing, Inc. v. Credit Alliance Corp. (1991) 228 Cal.App.3d 1431, 1441 [279 Cal.Rptr. 533], internal citations omitted.)

- Although privity appears to be required for actions based upon the implied warranty of merchantability, there are exceptions to this rule, such as one for members of the purchaser's family. (Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal.3d 104, 115, fn. 8 [120 Cal.Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377].) Vertical privity is also waived for employees. (Peterson v. Lamb Rubber Co. (1960) 54 Cal.2d 339 [5 Cal.Rptr. 863, 353 P.2d 575].) A plaintiff satisfies the privity requirement when he or she leases or negotiates the sale or lease of the product. (United States Roofing, supra.)

Secondary Sources

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 2, Liability for Defective Products, § 2.31 (Matthew Bender)

44 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties, §§ 502.24, 502.51, 502.220 (Matthew Bender)

20 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 206, Sales (Matthew Bender)

1233. Implied Warranty of Merchantability for Food—Essential Factual Elements

---

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was harmed by the [food product] that was sold by [name of defendant] because the [food product] was not fit for human consumption. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of plaintiff] [ate/drank] a [food product] sold by [name of defendant];
2. That, at the time of purchase, [name of defendant] was in the business of selling the [food product] [or by [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] occupation held [himself/herself/nonbinary pronoun/itself] out as having special knowledge or skill regarding this [food product]];
3. That the [food product] was harmful when consumed;
4. That the harmful condition would not reasonably be expected by the average consumer;
5. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
6. That the [food product] was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

If an instruction on the giving of notice to the seller is needed, see CACI No. 1243, Notification/Reasonable Time.

The advisory committee believes that the judge, not the jury, would decide whether the food substance is natural or foreign under Mexicali Rose v. Superior Court (1992) 1 Cal.4th 617 [4 Cal.Rptr.2d 145, 822 P.2d 1292].

Sources and Authority

- "In the peculiar context of foodstuffs, the theory of breach of an implied warranty of merchantability has closer affinities to tort law than to contract law because it allows recovery of damages, without regard to privity of contract, for personal injuries as well as economic loss." (Shade Foods, Inc. v. Innovative Products Sales & Marketing, Inc. (2000) 78 Cal.App.4th 847, 871 [93 Cal.Rptr.2d 364], internal citations omitted.)
- "If the injury-producing substance is natural to the preparation of the food served, it can be said that it was reasonably expected by its very nature and the food cannot be determined unfit or defective. A plaintiff in such a case has no cause of action in strict liability or implied warranty. If, however, the presence of the natural substance is due to a restaurateur's failure to exercise due care in food preparation, the injured patron may sue under a negligence theory." (Mexicali Rose v. Superior Court (1992) 1 Cal.4th 617, 633 [4 Cal.Rptr.2d 145, 822 P.2d 1292].)

- "If the injury-causing substance is foreign to the food served, then the injured patron may also state a cause of action in implied warranty and strict liability, and the trier of fact will determine whether the substance (i) could be reasonably expected by the average consumer and (ii) rendered the food unfit or defective." (Mexicali Rose, supra, 1 Cal.4th at p. 633.)
- The Mexicali Rose decision was limited to commercial restaurant establishments. (Mexicali Rose, supra, 1 Cal.4th at p. 619, fn. 1.) However, the reasoning of that case has been applied to supermarkets. (Ford v. Miller Meat Co. (1994) 28 Cal.App.4th 1196 [33 Cal.Rptr.2d 899].)
- "The term 'natural' refers to bones and other substances natural to the product served, and does not encompass substances such as mold, botulinus bacteria or other substances (like rat flesh or cow eyes) not natural to the preparation of the product served." (Mexicali Rose, supra, 1 Cal.4th at p. 631, fn. 5.)
- It appears that the court would decide as a matter of law if the injury-producing substance is "natural" or not: "If the injury-producing substance is natural to the preparation of the food served, it can be said that it was reasonably expected by its very nature and the food cannot be determined unfit or defective. A plaintiff in such a case has no cause of action in strict liability or implied warranty." (Mexicali Rose, supra, 1 Cal.4th at p. 633.)

Secondary Sources

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 2, Liability for Defective Products, § 2.32 (Matthew Bender)

22 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 268, Food, § 268.14A (Matthew Bender)

44 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties, § 502.201 (Matthew Bender)

1234–1239. Reserved for Future Use

1240. Affirmative Defense to Express Warranty—Not "Basis of Bargain"

[*Name of defendant] is not responsible for any harm to [name of plaintiff] if [name of defendant] proves that [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] [statement/description/sample/model/other] was not a basis of the parties' bargain.

The [statement/description/sample/model/*other] is presumed to be a basis of the bargain. To overcome this presumption, [name of defendant] must prove that the resulting bargain was not based in any way on the [statement/description/sample/model/other].

If [*name of defendant] proves that [name of plaintiff] had actual knowledge of the true condition of the [product] before agreeing to buy, the resulting bargain was not based in any way on the [statement/description/sample/model/other].

New September 2003; Revoked June 2010; Restored and Revised December 2010

Sources and Authority

- Creation of Express Warranties. California Uniform Commercial Code section 2313.
- "The key under [California Uniform Commercial Code section 2313] is that the seller's statements—whether fact or opinion—must become 'part of the basis of the bargain.' The basis of the bargain requirement represents a significant change in the law of warranties. Whereas plaintiffs in the past have had to prove their reliance upon specific promises made by the seller, the Uniform Commercial Code requires no such proof. According to official comment 3 to the Uniform Commercial Code following section 2313, 'no particular reliance . . . need be shown in order to weave [the seller's affirmations of fact] into the fabric of the agreement. Rather, any fact which is to take such affirmations, once made, out of the agreement requires clear affirmative proof.' " (Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal.3d 104, 115 [120 Cal.Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377, internal citations and footnote omitted.)
- "The California Supreme Court, in discussing the continued viability of the reliance factor, noted that commentators have disagreed in regard to the impact of this development. Some have indicated that it shifts the burden of proving nonreliance to the seller, and others have indicated that the code eliminates the concept of reliance altogether." (Keith v. Buchanan (1985) 173 Cal.App.3d 13, 22 [220 Cal.Rptr. 392], citing Hauter, supra, 14 Cal.3d at pp. 115–116.)
- "The official Uniform Commercial Code comment in regard to section 2-313 'indicates that in actual practice affirmations of fact made by the seller about the goods during a bargain are regarded as part of the description of those goods; hence no particular reliance on such statements need be shown in order to weave them into the fabric of the agreement.' It is clear from the new language of this code section that the concept of reliance has been purposefully abandoned." (Keith, supra, 173 Cal.App.3d at p. 23, internal citations omitted.)

- "The change of the language in section 2313 of the California Uniform Commercial Code modifies both the degree of reliance and the burden of proof in express warranties under the code. A warranty statement made by a seller is presumptively part of the basis of the bargain, and the burden is on the seller to prove that the resulting bargain does not rest at all on the representation." (Keith, supra, 173 Cal.App.3d at p. 23.)
- "[O]nce affirmations have been made, they are woven into the fabric of the agreement and the seller must present 'clear affirmative proof' to remove them from the agreement." (Weinstat v. Dentsply International, Inc. (2010) 180 Cal.App.4th 1213, 1234 [103 Cal.Rptr.3d 614.)
- "[W]hile the basis of the bargain of course includes dickered terms to which the buyer specifically assents, section 2313 itself does not suggest that express warranty protection is confined to them such that affirmations by the seller that are not dickered are excluded. Any affirmation, once made, is part of the agreement unless there is 'clear affirmative proof' that the affirmation has been taken out of the agreement." (Weinstat, supra, 180 Cal.App.4th at p. 1229.)
- "The official comment to section 2313 is also instructive on this point, providing: 'The precise time when words of description or affirmation are made . . . is not material. The sole question is whether the language . . . [is] fairly to be regarded as part of the contract.' Thus, the California Uniform Commercial Code contemplates that affirmations, promises and descriptions about the goods contained in product manuals and other materials that are given to the buyer at the time of delivery can become part of the basis of the bargain, and can be 'fairly . . . regarded as part of the contract,' notwithstanding that delivery occurs after the purchase price has been paid." (Weinstat, supra, 180 Cal.App.4th at p. 1230.)
- "The buyer's actual knowledge of the true condition of the goods prior to the making of the contract may make it plain that the seller's statement was not relied upon as one of the inducements for the purchase, but the burden is on the seller to demonstrate such knowledge on the part of the buyer. Where the buyer inspects the goods before purchase, he may be deemed to have waived the seller's express warranties. But, an examination or inspection by the buyer of the goods does not necessarily discharge the seller from an express warranty if the defect was not actually discovered and waived." (Keith, supra, 173 Cal.App.3d at pp. 23–24.)
- "First, . . . affirmations and descriptions in product literature received at the time of delivery but after payment of the purchase price are, without more, part of the basis of the bargain, period. Second, the seller's right to rebut goes to proof that extracts the affirmations from the 'agreement' or 'bargain of the parties in fact,' not, as Keith would suggest, to proof that they were not an inducement for the purchase. Relying on Keith, the court in effect equated the concept of the 'bargain in fact of the parties' with the concept of reliance, but . . . the two are not synonymous. Moreover, the opinion in Keith contradicts itself on this matter. On the one hand the opinion states unequivocally that '[i]t is clear' section 2313 'purposefully abandoned' the concept of reliance. On the other hand, we must ask if section 2313 has eliminated the concept of reliance from express warranty law all together, by what logic can reliance reappear, by its absence, as an affirmative defense?" (Weinstat, supra, 180 Cal.App.4th at p. 1234, internal citation omitted.)

Secondary Sources

44 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties, § 502.62 (Matthew Bender)

20 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 206, Sales, § 206.60 (Matthew Bender)

21 California Legal Forms, Ch. 52, Sales of Goods Under the Uniform Commercial Code, § 52.290[1] (Matthew Bender)

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation, Ch. 24, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Warranty, 24.36[4]

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 8, Defenses, § 8.07 (Matthew Bender)

1241. Affirmative Defense—Exclusion or Modification of Express Warranty

---

[*Name of defendant] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] is not responsible for any harm to [name of plaintiff] because [name of defendant], by words or conduct, limited [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] representations regarding the [product]. To succeed, [name of defendant] must prove that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] clearly limited the representations regarding [insert alleged warranty, e.g., "seaworthiness"].

New September 2003

Directions for Use

Limitation can be by words or conduct.

Sources and Authority

- Creation of Express Warranty by Words or Conduct. California Uniform Commercial Code section 2316(1).
- The California Uniform Commercial Code Comment to section 2316 states: "This section is designed principally to deal with those frequent clauses in sales contracts which seek to exclude 'all warranties, express or implied.' It seeks to protect a buyer from unexpected and unbargained language of express warranty . . . ."
- "Although section 2316 has drawn criticism for its vagueness, its purpose is clear. No warranty, express or implied, can be modified or disclaimed unless a seller clearly limits his liability." (Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal.3d 104, 118–119 [120 Cal.Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377], internal citations omitted.)
- "Because a disclaimer or modification is inconsistent with an express warranty, words of disclaimer or modification give way to words of warranty unless some clear agreement between the parties dictates the contrary relationship. At the very least, section 2316 allows limitation of warranties only by means of words that clearly communicate that a particular risk falls on the buyer." (Hauter, supra, 14 Cal.3d at p. 119, internal citation omitted.)
- "[A]ny disclaimer or modification must be strictly construed against the seller." (Hauter, supra, 14 Cal.3d at p. 119.)
- "Strict construction against the person who has both warranted a particular fact to be true and then attempted to disclaim the warranty is especially appropriate in light of the fact that '[a] disclaimer of an express warranty is essentially contradictory . . . .' " (Fundin v. Chicago Pneumatic Tool Co. (1984) 152 Cal.App.3d 951, 958 [199 Cal.Rptr. 789], internal citation omitted.)
- "A disclaimer of warranties must be specifically bargained for so that a disclaimer in a warranty given to the buyer after he signs the contract is not binding." (Dorman v. International Harvester Co. (1975) 46 Cal.App.3d 11, 19–20 [120 Cal.Rptr. 516].)

- "Interpretation of a written document, where extrinsic evidence is unnecessary, is a question of law for the trial court to determine." (Temple v. Velcro USA, Inc. (1983) 148 Cal.App.3d 1090, 1095 [196 Cal.Rptr. 531], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 8, Defenses, § 8.07 (Matthew Bender)

44 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties, § 502.23 (Matthew Bender)

1242. Affirmative Defense—Exclusion of Implied Warranties

[*Name of defendant] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] is not responsible for any harm to [name of plaintiff] because [name of defendant] eliminated any implied representations relating to [the quality that a buyer would expect from the [product]] [or] [the [product]'s fitness for a particular purpose]. To succeed, [name of defendant] must prove:

[*Insert one or more of the following:]

[That the sale of the [*product] included notice using words such as "with all faults," "as is," or other language that would have made a buyer aware that the [product] was being sold without any guarantees.]

[That, before entering into the contract, [*name of plaintiff] examined the [product/sample/model] as fully as desired and that a complete examination would have revealed the [product]'s deficiency.]

[That [*name of plaintiff] refused, after a demand by [name of defendant], to examine the [product/sample/model] and that such examination would have revealed the [product]'s deficiency.]

[That the parties' prior dealings, course of performance, or usage of trade had eliminated any implied representations.]

New September 2003

Sources and Authority

- Exclusion or Modification of Implied Warranties. California Uniform Commercial Code section 2316.
- The California Uniform Commercial Code Comment to this section states: "Disclaimer of the implied warranty of merchantability is permitted under subsection (2), but with the safeguard that such disclaimers must mention merchantability and in case of a writing must be conspicuous."
- The California Uniform Commercial Code Comment to section 2316 states: "Unlike the implied warranty of merchantability, implied warranties of fitness for a particular purpose may be excluded by general language, but only if it is in writing and conspicuous." Accordingly, disclaimers of warranties for a particular purpose are probably issues for the court only. Section 1201(10) provides: "A term or clause is conspicuous when it is so written that a reasonable person against whom it is to operate ought to have noticed it. A printed heading in capitals (as: NONNEGOTIABLE BILL OF LADING) is conspicuous. Language in the body of a form is 'conspicuous' if it is in larger or other contrasting type or color. But in a telegram any stated term is 'conspicuous.' Whether a term or clause is 'conspicuous' or not is for decision by the court."

- The California Uniform Commercial Code Comment to section 2316 observes that "oral language of disclaimer may raise issues of fact as to whether reliance by the buyer occurred and whether the seller had 'reason to know' under the section on implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose."
- The California Uniform Commercial Code Comment to section 2316 states that the three exceptions listed under subdivision (3) "are common factual situations in which the circumstances surrounding the transaction are in themselves sufficient to call the buyer's attention to the fact that no implied warranties are made or that a certain implied warranty is being excluded."
- The California Uniform Commercial Code comment to section 2316 states: "Paragraph (a) of subsection (3) deals with general terms such as 'as is,' 'as they stand,' 'with all faults,' and the like. Such terms in ordinary commercial usage are understood to mean that the buyer takes the entire risk as to the quality of the goods involved."
- The California Uniform Commercial Code comment to section 2316 states: "In order to bring the transaction within the scope of 'refused to examine' in paragraph (b), it is not sufficient that the goods are available for inspection. There must in addition be a demand by the seller that the buyer examine the goods fully."
- The California Uniform Commercial Code comment to section 2316 states: "The particular buyer's skill and the normal method of examining goods in the circumstances determine what defects are excluded by the examination."
- "Interpretation of a written document, where extrinsic evidence is unnecessary, is a question of law for the trial court to determine." (Temple, supra, 148 Cal.App.3d at p. 1095, internal citations omitted.)
- "A disclaimer of warranties must be specifically bargained for so that a disclaimer in a warranty given to the buyer after he signs the contract is not binding." (Dorman v. International Harvester Co. (1975) 46 Cal.App.3d 11, 19–20 [120 Cal.Rptr. 516].)
- "[A]ny disclaimer or modification must be strictly construed against the seller." (Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal.3d 104, 119 [120 Cal.Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377].)

Secondary Sources

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 8, Defenses, § 8.07 (Matthew Bender)

44 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties, § 502.24 (Matthew Bender)

1243. Notification/Reasonable Time

If a buyer is required to notify the seller that a product [is not as represented] [does not have the expected quality] [is not suitable] [is in a harmful condition], [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] must do so within a reasonable time after [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] discovers or should have discovered this. A reasonable time depends on the circumstances of the case. In determining whether notice was given within a reasonable time, you must apply a more relaxed standard to a retail consumer than you would to a merchant buyer. A buyer notifies a seller by taking such steps as may be reasonably required to inform the seller [regardless of whether the seller actually receives the notice].

New September 2003

Sources and Authority

- Notice to Seller of Breach. California Uniform Commercial Code section 2607(3).
- The California Uniform Commercial Code comment to section 2-607(4) states: "The time of notification is to be determined by applying commercial standards to a merchant buyer. 'A reasonable time' for notification from a retail consumer is to be judged by different standards so that in his case it will be extended, for the rule of requiring notification is designed to defeat commercial bad faith, not to deprive a good faith consumer of his remedy. [¶] The content of the notification need merely be sufficient to let the seller know that the transaction is still troublesome and must be watched. There is no reason to require that the notification which saves the buyer's rights under this section must include a clear statement of all the objections that will be relied on by the buyer, as under the section covering statements of defects upon rejection (Section 2-605). Nor is there reason for requiring the notification to be a claim for damages or of any threatened litigation or other resort to a remedy. The notification which saves the buyer's rights under this Article need only be such as informs the seller that the transaction is claimed to involve a breach, and thus opens the way for normal settlement through negotiation."
- "Notification" Defined. California Uniform Commercial Code section 1202(d).
- What is a Reasonable Time. California Uniform Commercial Code section 1205(a).
- A plaintiff is not required to prove that he or she gave notice of a breach of warranty in personal injury and property damage lawsuits against a manufacturer or another supplier with whom the plaintiff has not directly dealt. (Greenman v. Yuba Power Products, Inc. (1963) 59 Cal.2d 57, 61 [27 Cal.Rptr. 697, 377 P.2d 897]; Gherna v. Ford Motor Co. (1966) 246 Cal.App.2d 639, 652–653 [55 Cal.Rptr. 94].)

- Notice is more likely to be required in disputes between merchants. (See Fieldstone Co. v. Briggs Plumbing Products, Inc. (1997) 54 Cal.App.4th 357, 369–370 [62 Cal.Rptr.2d 701].)
- When required, notice must be pleaded and proved. (Vogel v. Thrifty Drug Co. (1954) 43 Cal.2d 184, 188 [272 P.2d 1].)
- The purpose of the demand for notice is to protect the seller from stale claims (Whitfield v. Jessup (1948) 31 Cal.2d 826, 828 [193 P.2d 1]; Metowski v. Traid Corp. (1972) 28 Cal.App.3d 332, 339 [104 Cal.Rptr. 599]) and to give the defendant an opportunity to repair the defective item, reduce damages, improve products in the future, and negotiate settlements. (Pollard v. Saxe & Yolles Development Co. (1974) 12 Cal.3d 374, 380 [115 Cal.Rptr. 648, 525 P.2d 88].)

Secondary Sources

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 8, Defenses, § 8.07 (Matthew Bender)

44 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties, §§ 502.28, 502.100 (Matthew Bender)

1244. Affirmative Defense—Sophisticated User

[Name of defendant] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] is not responsible for any harm to [name of plaintiff] based on a failure to warn because [name of plaintiff] is a sophisticated user of the [product]. To succeed on this defense, [name of defendant] must prove that, at the time of the injury, [name of plaintiff], because of [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] particular position, training, experience, knowledge, or skill, knew or should have known of the [product]'s risk, harm, or danger.

New October 2008; Revised December 2014

Directions for Use

Give this instruction as a defense to CACI No. 1205, Strict Liability—Failure to Warn—Essential Factual Elements, or CACI No. 1222, Negligence—Manufacturer or Supplier—Duty to Warn—Essential Factual Elements.

In some cases, it may be necessary to expand this instruction to state that the plaintiff knew or should have known of the particular risk posed by the product, of the severity of the potential consequences, and how to use the product to reduce or avoid the risks, to the extent that information was known to the defendant. (See Buckner v. Milwaukee Electric Tool Corp. (2013) 222 Cal.App.4th 522, 536 [166 Cal.Rptr.3d 202].)

Sources and Authority

- "A manufacturer is not liable to a sophisticated user of its product for failure to warn of a risk, harm, or danger, if the sophisticated user knew or should have known of that risk, harm, or danger." (Johnson v. American Standard, Inc. (2008) 43 Cal.4th 56, 71 [74 Cal.Rptr.3d 108, 179 P.3d 905].)
- "The sophisticated user defense exempts manufacturers from their typical obligation to provide product users with warnings about the products' potential hazards. The defense is considered an exception to the manufacturer's general duty to warn consumers, and therefore, in most jurisdictions, if successfully argued, acts as an affirmative defense to negate the manufacturer's duty to warn." (Johnson, supra, 43 Cal.4th at p. 65, internal citation omitted.)
- "Under the sophisticated user defense, sophisticated users need not be warned about dangers of which they are already aware or should be aware. Because these sophisticated users are charged with knowing the particular product's dangers, the failure to warn about those dangers is not the legal cause of any harm that product may cause. The rationale supporting the defense is that 'the failure to provide warnings about risks already known to a sophisticated purchaser usually is not a proximate cause of harm resulting from those risks suffered by the buyer's employees or downstream purchasers.' This is because the user's knowledge of the dangers is the equivalent of prior notice." (Johnson, supra, 43 Cal.4th at p. 65, internal citations omitted.)

- "[T]he defense applies equally to strict liability and negligent failure to warn cases. The duty to warn is measured by what is generally known or should have been known to the class of sophisticated users, rather than by the individual plaintiff's subjective knowledge." (Johnson, supra, 43 Cal.4th at pp. 65–66, internal citations omitted.)
- "[A] manufacturer is not liable to a sophisticated user for failure to warn, even if the failure to warn is a failure to provide a warning required by statute." (Johnson v. Honeywell Internat. Inc. (2009) 179 Cal.App.4th 549, 556 [101 Cal.Rptr.3d 726].)
- "The sophisticated user defense concerns warnings. Sophisticated users 'are charged with knowing the particular product's dangers.' 'The rationale supporting the defense is that "the failure to provide warnings about risks already known to a sophisticated purchaser usually is not a proximate cause of harm resulting from those risks suffered by the buyer's employees or downstream purchasers." [Citation.]' [¶] [Plaintiff]'s design defect cause of action was not concerned with warnings. Instead, he alleged that respondents' design of their refrigerant was defective. We see no logical reason why a defense that is based on the need for warning should apply." (Johnson, supra, 179 Cal.App.4th at p. 559, internal citations omitted.)
- "The relevant time for determining user sophistication for purposes of this exception to a manufacturer's duty to warn is when the sophisticated user is injured and knew or should have known of the risk." (Johnson, supra, 43 Cal.4th at p. 73.)
- "Johnson did not impute an intermediary's knowledge to the plaintiff, or charge him with any knowledge except that which had been made available to him through his training and which, by reason of his profession and certification, he should have had. In contrast, [defendant]'s proposed instruction is not based on the theory that [plaintiff] had the opportunity to acquire any knowledge of the dangers of asbestos, let alone the obligation to do so. Instead, it contends that its customers . . . knew or should have known (from public sources) of the dangers of asbestos, and that its duty to warn [plaintiff] is measured by the knowledge [the customers] should have had. It is apparent that such a theory has nothing to do with Johnson." (Stewart v. Union Carbide Corp. (2010) 190 Cal.App.4th 23, 28–29 [117 Cal.Rptr.3d 791].)
- "Thus, in actions by employees or servants, the critical issue concerns their knowledge (or potential knowledge), rather than an intermediary's sophistication. [¶] This conclusion flows directly from [Restatement Third of Torts] section 388 itself. Under section 388, a supplier of a dangerous item to users 'directly or through a third person' is subject to liability for a failure to warn, when the supplier 'has no reason to believe that those for whose use the [item] is supplied will realize its dangerous condition.' Accordingly, to avoid liability, there must be some basis for the supplier to believe that the ultimate user knows, or should know, of the item's hazards. In view of this requirement, the intermediary's sophistication is not, as matter of law, sufficient to avert liability; there must be a sufficient reason for believing that the intermediary's sophistication is likely to operate to protect the user, or that the user is likely to discover the hazards in some other manner. The fact that the user is an employee or servant of the sophisticated intermediary cannot plausibly be regarded as a sufficient reason, as a matter of law, to infer that the latter will protect the former. We therefore reject [defendant]'s contention that an intermediary's sophistication invariably shields suppliers from liability to the intermediary's employees or servants." (Pfeifer v. John Crane, Inc. (2013) 220 Cal.App.4th 1270, 1296–1297 [164 Cal.Rptr.3d 112].)

- "In order to establish the defense, a manufacturer must demonstrate that sophisticated users of the product know what the risks are, including the degree of danger involved (i.e., the severity of the potential injury), and how to use the product to reduce or avoid the risks, to the extent that information is known to the manufacturer." (Buckner, supra, 222 Cal.App.4th at p. 536.)
- " 'Under the "should have known" standard there will be some users who were actually unaware of the dangers. However, the same could be said of the currently accepted obvious danger rule; obvious dangers are obvious to most, but are not obvious to absolutely everyone. The obvious danger rule is an objective test, and the courts do not inquire into the user's subjective knowledge in such a case. In other words, even if a user was truly unaware of a product's hazards, that fact is irrelevant if the danger was objectively obvious. [Citations.] Thus, under the sophisticated user defense, the inquiry focuses on whether the plaintiff knew, or should have known, of the particular risk of harm from the product giving rise to the injury.' [Citation]" (Moran v. Foster Wheeler Energy Corp. (2016) 246 Cal.App.4th 500, 511 [200 Cal.Rptr.3d 902].)
- "[S]peculation about a risk does not give rise to constructive knowledge of a risk under the 'should have known' test." (Scott v. Ford Motor Co. (2014) 224 Cal.App.4th 1492, 1501 [169 Cal.Rptr.3d 823], original italics.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1631, 1703, 1708–1709

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 2(II)-D, Strict Liability For Defective Products, ¶ 2:1277 (The Rutter Group)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability, § 460.185 (Matthew Bender)

19 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 190, Products Liability, § 190.246 (Matthew Bender)

1245. Affirmative Defense—Product Misuse or Modification

[Name of defendant] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] is not responsible for [name of plaintiff]'s claimed harm because the [product] was [misused/ [or] modified] after it left [name of defendant]'s possession. To succeed on this defense, [name of defendant] must prove that:

1. The [product] was [misused/ [or] modified] after it left [name of defendant]'s possession; and
2. The [misuse/ [or] modification] was so highly extraordinary that it was not reasonably foreseeable to [name of defendant], and therefore should be considered as the sole cause of [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New April 2009; Revised December 2009, June 2011, December 2013

Directions for Use

Give this instruction if the defendant claims a complete defense to strict product liability because the product was misused or modified after it left the defendant's possession and control in an unforeseeable way, and the evidence permits defendant to argue that the subsequent misuse or modification was the sole cause of the plaintiff's injury. (See Campbell v. Southern Pacific Co. (1978) 22 Cal.3d 51, 56 [148 Cal.Rptr. 596, 583 P.2d 121].) If misuse or modification was a substantial factor contributing to, but not the sole cause of, plaintiff's harm, there is no complete defense, but the conduct of the plaintiff or of third parties may be considered under principles of comparative negligence or fault. (See Torres v. Xomox Corp. (1996) 49 Cal.App.4th 1, 15–21 [56 Cal.Rptr.2d 455].) See CACI No. 1207A, Strict Liability—Comparative Fault of Plaintiff, and CACI No. 1207B, Strict Liability—Comparative Fault of Third Person.

Third party negligence that is the immediate cause of an injury may be viewed as a superseding cause if it is so highly extraordinary as to be unforeseeable. Product misuse or modification may be deemed to be a superseding cause, which provides a complete defense to liability. (See Torres, supra, 49 Cal.App. 4th at pp. 18–19.) Element 2 incorporates this aspect of superseding cause as an explanation of what is meant by "sole cause." If misuse or modification truly were the sole cause, the product would not be defective.

It would appear that at least one court views superseding cause as a different standard from sole cause. (See Perez v. VAS S.p.A. (2010) 188 Cal.App.4th 658, 685 [115 Cal.Rptr.3d 590] [product misuse may serve as a complete defense when the misuse was so unforeseeable that it should be deemed the sole or superseding cause], original italics.)

Sources and Authority

- " '[T]he law now requires a manufacturer to foresee some degree of misuse and abuse of his product, either by the user or by third parties, and to take reasonable precautions to minimize the harm that may result from misuse and abuse. . . . [T]he extent to which designers and manufacturers of dangerous machinery are required to anticipate safety neglect presents an issue of fact. . . . [A] manufacturer owes a foreseeable user of its product a duty to warn of risks of using the product.' " (Wright v. Stang Mfg. Co. (1997) 54 Cal.App.4th 1218, 1235 [63 Cal.Rptr.2d 422].)
- "[P]roduct misuse [is] a defense to strict products liability only when the defendant prove[s] that an unforeseeable abuse or alteration of the product after it left the manufacturer's hands was the sole reason that the product caused injury." (Campbell, supra, 22 Cal.3d at p. 56, original italics, internal citations omitted.)
- "[S]trict liability should not be imposed upon a manufacturer when injury results from a use of its product that is not reasonably foreseeable." (Cronin v. J.B.E. Olson Corp. (1972) 8 Cal.3d 121, 126 [104 Cal.Rptr. 433, 501 P.2d 1153].)
- "[Defendant] contends . . . that it cannot be held liable for any design defect because the accident was attributable to the misuse of the rewinder by [employer] and [plaintiff]. In order to avoid liability for product defect, [defendant] was required to prove, as an affirmative defense, that [employer]'s and [plaintiff]'s misuse of the machine . . . was an unforeseeable, superseding cause of the injury to [plaintiff]." Perez, supra, 188 Cal.App.4th at pp. 679–680.)
- "[P]roduct misuse may serve as a complete defense when the misuse 'was so unforeseeable that it should be deemed the sole or superseding cause.' . . . '[T]he defense of "superseding cause . . ." . . . absolves a tortfeasor, even though his [or her] conduct was a substantial contributing factor, when an independent event intervenes in the chain of causation, producing harm of a kind and degree so far beyond the risk the original tortfeasor should have foreseen that the law deems it unfair to hold him responsible. [Citations.]' Here, the trial court reasonably concluded, in substance, that [plaintiff]'s misuse of the rewinder was so extreme as to be the sole cause of his injury. That conclusion dispensed with the need to apply principles of comparative fault." (Perez, supra, 188 Cal.App.4th at p. 685, original italics.)
- "Third party negligence which is the immediate cause of an injury may be viewed as a superseding cause when it is so highly extraordinary as to be unforeseeable. 'The foreseeability required is of the risk of harm, not of the particular intervening act. In other words, the defendant may be liable if his conduct was 'a substantial factor' in bringing about the harm, though he neither foresaw nor should have foreseen the extent of the harm or the manner in which it occurred.' It must appear that the intervening act has produced 'harm of a kind and degree so far beyond the risk the original tortfeasor should have foreseen that the law deems it unfair to hold him responsible.' " (Torres, supra, 49

Cal.App.4th at pp. 18–19, internal citations omitted.)

- " 'Misuse' is a defense only when that misuse is the actual cause of the plaintiff's injury, not when some other defect produces the harm. This causation is one of the elements of the 'misuse' affirmative defense and thus the burden falls on the defendant to prove it." (Huynh v. Ingersoll-Rand (1993) 16 Cal.App.4th 825, 831 [20 Cal.Rptr.2d 296], internal citation omitted.)
- "[Defendant] further contends that [plaintiff]'s injuries arose not from a defective product, but rather, from his parents' modification of the product or their negligent supervision of its use. These arguments cannot be advanced by demurrer. Creation of an unreasonable risk of harm through product modification or negligent supervision is not clearly established on the face of [plaintiff]'s complaint. Instead, these theories must be pled as affirmative defenses." (Williams v. Beechnut Nutrition Corp. (1986) 185 Cal.App.3d 135, 141 [229 Cal.Rptr. 605].)
- "[Defendant]'s alternative contention [plaintiff]'s failure to safely store the Glock 21 was the sole proximate cause of his injuries is not an appropriate ground for granting summary judgment. Product misuse, an affirmative defense, is a superseding cause of injury that absolves a tortfeasor of his or her own wrongful conduct only when the misuse was ' "so highly extraordinary as to be unforeseeable." ' [citing this instruction] 'However, foreseeability is a question for the jury unless undisputed facts leave no room for a reasonable difference of opinion.' " (Chavez v. Glock, Inc. (2012) 207 Cal.App.4th 1283, 1308 [144 Cal.Rptr.3d 326], internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]here are cases in which the modification of a product has been determined to be so substantial and unforeseeable as to constitute a superseding cause of an injury as a matter of law. However, foreseeability is a question for the jury unless undisputed facts leave no room for a reasonable difference of opinion. Thus, the issue of superseding cause is generally one of fact. Superseding cause has been viewed as an issue of fact even in cases where 'safety neglect' by an employer has increased the risk of injury, or modification of the product has made it more dangerous." (Torres, supra, 49 Cal.App.4th at p. 19, internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 1696, 1697

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 2(II)-D, Strict Liability For Defective Products, ¶ 2:1329 et seq. (The Rutter Group)

California Product Liability Actions, Ch. 2, Liability for Defective Products, § 2.13[4] (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability, § 460.183 (Matthew Bender)

19 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 190, Products Liability, § 190.201 (Matthew Bender)

1246. Affirmative Defense—Design Defect—Government Contractor

---

[*Name of defendant] may not be held liable for design defects in the [product] if it proves all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] contracted with the United States government to provide the [product] for military use;
2. That the United States approved reasonably precise specifications for the [product];
3. That the [product] conformed to those specifications; and
4. [That [name of defendant] warned the United States about the dangers in the use of the [product] that were known to [name of defendant] but not to the United States.]

   [or]

4. [That the United States was aware of the dangers in the use of the [product].]

New June 2010; Revised December 2010, November 2024

Directions for Use

This instruction is for use if the defendant's product whose design is challenged was provided to the United States government for military use. The essence of the defense is that the plaintiff should not be able to impose on a government contractor a duty under state law that is contrary to the duty imposed by the government contract. (Boyle v. United Technologies Corp. (1988) 487 U.S. 500, 508–509 [108 S.Ct. 2510, 101 L.Ed.2d 442].)

It has been stated that the defense is not limited to military contracts (see Oxford v. Foster Wheeler LLC (2009) 177 Cal.App.4th 700, 710 [99 Cal.Rptr.3d 418]), though no California court has expressly so held. (See Kase v. Metalclad Insulation Corp. (2016) 6 Cal.App.5th 623, 637 [212 Cal.Rptr.3d 198] [citing cases from courts outside of California that have observed that the defense may not be limited to military contracts].)

Depending on the facts of the case, choose one of the bracketed choices in element 4.

Different standards and elements apply in a failure-to-warn case. For an instruction for use in such a case, see CACI No. 1247, Affirmative Defense—Failure to Warn—Government Contractor.

Sources and Authority

- "The [United States] Supreme Court noted that in areas of ' "uniquely federal interests" ' state law may be preempted or displaced by federal law, and that civil liability arising from the performance of federal procurement contracts is such an area. The court further determined that preemption or displacement of state law occurs in an area of uniquely federal interests only where a ' "significant conflict" ' exists between an identifiable federal policy or interest and the operation of state law. The court concluded that 'state law which holds Government contractors liable for design defects in military equipment does in some circumstances present a "significant conflict" with federal policy and must be displaced.' " (Oxford, supra, 177 Cal.App.4th at p. 708, quoting Boyle, supra, 487 U.S. at pp. 500, 504, 507, 512.)

- "Liability for design defects in military equipment cannot be imposed, pursuant to state law, when (1) the United States approved reasonably precise specifications; (2) the equipment conformed to those specifications; and (3) the supplier warned the United States about the dangers in the use of the equipment that were known to the supplier but not to the United States. The first two of these conditions assure that the suit is within the area where the policy of the 'discretionary function' would be frustrated—i.e., they assure that the design feature in question was considered by a Government officer, and not merely by the contractor itself. The third condition is necessary because, in its absence, the displacement of state tort law would create some incentive for the manufacturer to withhold knowledge of risks, since conveying that knowledge might disrupt the contract but withholding it would produce no liability. We adopt this provision lest our effort to protect discretionary functions perversely impede them by cutting off information highly relevant to the discretionary decision." (Boyle, supra, 487 U.S. at pp. 512–513.)
- "[T]he fact that a company supplies goods to the military does not, in and of itself, immunize it from liability for the injuries caused by those goods. Where the goods ordered by the military are those readily available, in substantially similar form, to commercial users, the military contractor defense does not apply." (In re Hawaii Federal Asbestos Cases (9th Cir. 1992) 960 F.2d 806, 811.)
- "[W]here a purchase does not involve 'reasonably precise specifications' bearing on the challenged design feature, the government necessarily has not made a considered evaluation of and affirmative judgment call about the design." (Kase, supra, 6 Cal.App.5th at p. 628.)
- "In our view, if a product is produced according to military specifications and used by the military because of particular qualities which serve a military purpose, and is incidentally sold commercially as well, that product may nonetheless still qualify as military equipment under the military contractor defense." (Jackson v. Deft, Inc. (1990) 223 Cal.App.3d 1305, 1319 [273 Cal.Rptr. 214]; see also Kase, supra, 6 Cal.App.5th at p. 637 ["We continue to agree with Jackson and Oxford that a product's commercial availability does not necessarily foreclose the government contractor defense."].)
- "While courts such as the court in Hawaii have sought to confine the government contractor defense to products that are made exclusively for the military, we agree with the court in Jackson that this limitation is unduly confining. Though the court in Boyle discussed the parameters of the contractor defense in terms of 'military equipment,' use of that term appears to have followed from the facts of that case. Other courts considering this issue have concluded the defense is not limited to military contracts. . . . [Boyle's] application focuses instead on whether the issue or area is one involving 'uniquely federal interests' and, if so, whether the application of state law presents a 'significant conflict' with federal policy." (Oxford, supra, 177 Cal.App.4th at p. 710; the split on this issue in the federal and other state courts is noted in Carley v. Wheeled Coach (3d Cir. 1993) 991 F.2d 1117, 1119, fn. 1.)

- "[T]he Supreme Court in Boyle did not expressly limit its holding to products liability causes of action. Thus, the government contractor defense is applicable to related negligence claims." (Oxford, supra, 177 Cal.App.4th at p. 711.)
- "[I]n order to satisfy the first condition—government 'approval' . . . the government's involvement must transcend rubber stamping." (Oxford, supra, 177 Cal.App.4th at p. 712.)
- "[A]pproval must result from a 'continuous exchange' and 'back and forth dialogue' between the contractor and the government. When the government engages in a thorough review of the allegedly defective design and takes an active role in testing and implementing that design, Boyle's first element is met." (Getz v. Boeing Co. (9th Cir. 2011) 654 F.3d 852, 861, internal citation omitted.)
- "[T]he operative test for conformity with reasonably precise specifications turns on whether 'the alleged defect . . . exist[ed] independently of the design itself.' 'To say that a product failed to conform to specifications is just another way of saying that it was defectively manufactured.' Therefore, absent some evidence of a latent manufacturing defect, a military contractor can establish conformity with reasonably precise specifications by showing '[e]xtensive government involvement in the design, review, development and testing of a product' and by demonstrating 'extensive acceptance and use of the product following production.' " (Getz, supra, 654 F.3d at p. 864, internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]he cases recognize that a contractor 'can demonstrate a fully informed government decision by showing either that they conveyed the relevant known and "substantial enough" dangers . . . or that the government did not need the warnings because it already possessed that information.' " (Kase, supra, 6 Cal.App.5th at p. 643, original italics, internal citations omitted.)
- "Although the source of the government contractor defense is the United States' sovereign immunity, we have explicitly stated that 'the government contractor defense does not confer sovereign immunity on contractors.' " (Rodriguez v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (9th Cir. 2010) 627 F.3d 1259, 1265.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1704

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 2(II)-D, Strict Liability For Defective Products, ¶¶ 2:1270, 2:1316, 2:1631 (The Rutter Group)

1 California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 8, Defenses, § 8.05 (Matthew Bender)

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 21, Aviation Tort Law, § 21.02[6] (Matthew Bender)

2 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 16, Airplanes and Airports, § 16.10[5] (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability, § 460.104[23] (Matthew Bender)

1247. Affirmative Defense—Failure to Warn—Government Contractor

---

[Name of defendant] may not be held liable for failure to warn about the dangers in the use of the [product] if it proves all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] contracted with the United States government to provide the [product] for military use;
2. That the United States imposed reasonably precise specifications regarding the provision of warnings for the [product];
3. That the [product] conformed to those specifications regarding warnings; and

[4. That [name of defendant] warned the United States about the dangers in the use of the [product] that were known to [name of defendant] but not to the United States.]

[or]

[4. That the United States was aware of the dangers in the use of the [product].]

New December 2010; Revised November 2024

Directions for Use

This instruction is for use if the defendant's product about which a failure to warn is alleged (see CACI No. 1205, Strict Liability—Failure to Warn—Essential Factual Elements, and CACI No. 1222, Negligence—Manufacturer or Supplier—Duty to Warn—Essential Factual Elements) was provided to the United States government for military use. The essence of the defense is that the plaintiff should not be able to impose on a government contractor a duty under state law that is contrary to the duty imposed by the government contract. (Boyle v. United Technologies Corp. (1988) 487 U.S. 500, 508–509 [108 S.Ct. 2510, 101 L.Ed.2d 442].)

It has been stated that the defense is not limited to military contracts (see Oxford v. Foster Wheeler LLC (2009) 177 Cal.App.4th 700, 710 [99 Cal.Rptr.3d 418]), though no California court has expressly so held. (See Kase v. Metalclad Insulation Corp. (2016) 6 Cal.App.5th 623, 637 [212 Cal.Rptr.3d 198] [citing cases from courts outside of California that have observed that the defense may not be limited to military contracts].)

Depending on the facts of the case, choose one of the bracketed choices in element 4.

Different standards and elements apply in a design defect case. For an instruction for use in such a case, see CACI No. 1246, Affirmative Defense—Design Defect—Government Contractor.

Sources and Authority

- "The appellate court in Tate [Tate v. Boeing Helicopters (6th Cir. 1995) 55 F.3d 1150, 1157] offered an alternative test for applying the government contractor defense in the context of failure to warn claims: 'When state law would otherwise impose liability for a failure to warn of dangers in using military equipment, that law is displaced if the contractor can show: (1) the United States exercised its discretion and approved the warnings, if any; (2) the contractor provided warnings that conformed to the approved warnings; and (3) the contractor warned the United States of the dangers in the equipment's use about which the contractor knew, but the United States did not.' " (Oxford, supra, 177 Cal.App.4th at p. 712.)
- "As in design defect cases, in order to satisfy the first condition—government 'approval'—in failure to warn cases, the government's involvement must transcend rubber stamping. And where the government goes beyond approval and actually determines for itself the warnings to be provided, the contractor has surely satisfied the first condition because the government exercised its discretion. The second condition in failure to warn cases, as in design defect cases, assures that the defense protects the government's, not the contractor's, exercise of discretion. Finally, the third condition encourages frank communication to the government of the equipment's dangers and increases the likelihood that the government will make a well-informed judgment." (Oxford, supra, 177 Cal.App.4th at p. 712, quoting Tate, supra, 55 F.3d at p. 1157.)
- "Under California law, a manufacturer has a duty to warn of a danger when the manufacturer has knowledge of the danger or has reason to know of it and has no reason to know that those who use the product will realize its dangerous condition. Whereas the government contractor's defense may be used to trump a design defect claim by proving that the government, not the contractor, is responsible for the defective design, that defense is inapplicable to a failure to warn claim in the absence of evidence that in making its decision whether to provide a warning . . . , [defendant] was 'acting in compliance with "reasonably precise specifications" imposed on [it] by the United States.' " (Butler v. Ingalls Shipbuilding (9th Cir. 1996) 89 F.3d 582, 586, internal citations omitted.)
- "In a failure-to-warn action, where no conflict exists between requirements imposed under a federal contract and a state law duty to warn, regardless of any conflict which may exist between the contract and state law design requirements, Boyle commands that we defer to the operation of state law." (Butler, supra, 89 F.3d at p. 586.)
- "Defendants' evidence did not establish as a matter of law the necessary significant conflict between federal contracting requirements and state law. Although defendants' evidence did show that certain warnings were required by the military specifications, that evidence did not establish that the specifications placed any limitation on additional information from the manufacturers to users of their products. Instead, the evidence suggested no such limitation existed." (Jackson v. Deft, Inc. (1990) 223 Cal.App.3d 1305, 1317 [273 Cal.Rptr. 214].)

- "The [United States] Supreme Court noted that in areas of ' "uniquely federal interests" ' state law may be preempted or displaced by federal law, and that civil liability arising from the performance of federal procurement contracts is such an area. The court further determined that preemption or displacement of state law occurs in an area of uniquely federal interests only where a ' "significant conflict" ' exists between an identifiable federal policy or interest and the operation of state law." (Oxford, supra, 177 Cal.App.4th at p. 708, quoting Boyle, supra, 487 U.S. at pp. 500, 504, 507, 512.)
- "[T]he Supreme Court in Boyle did not expressly limit its holding to products liability causes of action. Thus, the government contractor defense is applicable to related negligence claims." (Oxford, supra, 177 Cal.App.4th at p. 711.)
- "[T]he fact that a company supplies goods to the military does not, in and of itself, immunize it from liability for the injuries caused by those goods. Where the goods ordered by the military are those readily available, in substantially similar form, to commercial users, the military contractor defense does not apply." (In re Hawaii Federal Asbestos Cases (9th Cir. 1992) 960 F.2d 806, 811.)
- "In our view, if a product is produced according to military specifications and used by the military because of particular qualities which serve a military purpose, and is incidentally sold commercially as well, that product may nonetheless still qualify as military equipment under the military contractor defense." (Jackson, supra, 223 Cal.App.3d at p. 1319.)
- "While courts such as the court in Hawaii have sought to confine the government contractor defense to products that are made exclusively for the military, we agree with the court in Jackson that this limitation is unduly confining. Though the court in Boyle discussed the parameters of the contractor defense in terms of 'military equipment,' use of that term appears to have followed from the facts of that case. Other courts considering this issue have concluded the defense is not limited to military contracts. . . . [Boyle's] application focuses instead on whether the issue or area is one involving 'uniquely federal interests' and, if so, whether the application of state law presents a 'significant conflict' with federal policy." (Oxford, supra, 177 Cal.App.4th at p. 710.)
- "[T]he cases recognize that a contractor 'can demonstrate a fully informed government decision by showing either that they conveyed the relevant known and "substantial enough" dangers . . . or that the government did not need the warnings because it already possessed that information.' " (Kase, supra, 6 Cal.App.5th at p. 643, original italics, internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1704

1 California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 8, Defenses, § 8.05 (Matthew Bender)

2 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 21, Aviation Tort Law, § 21.02[6] (Matthew Bender)

2 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 16, Airplanes and Airports, § 16.10[5] (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability, § 460.104[23] (Matthew Bender)

1248. Affirmative Defense—Inherently Unsafe Consumer Product (Civ. Code, § 1714.45)

[Name of defendant] claims that it is not responsible for [name of plaintiff]'s claimed harm because [specify product] is an inherently unsafe consumer product. To succeed on this defense, [name of defendant] must prove all of the following:

1. That [product] is a common consumer product intended for personal consumption; and
2. That [product] is inherently unsafe;
3. But [product] is no more dangerous than what an ordinary consumer of the product with knowledge common to the community would expect.

New June 2016

Directions for Use

This instruction sets forth an immunity defense to product liability for a product that is clearly recognizable as inherently dangerous. (See Civ. Code, § 1714.45(a).) The statute requires that the product be "a common consumer product intended for personal consumption, such as sugar, castor oil, alcohol, and butter, as identified in comment i to Section 402A of the Restatement (Second) of Torts." (Civ. Code, § 1714.45(a)(2).) This reference is perhaps somewhat confusing because the Restatement comment makes it clear that sugar, castor oil, alcohol, and butter are not unreasonably dangerous. The implication from the statutory references is that although they are not unreasonably dangerous, they are inherently unsafe and thus within the protection provided to the manufacturer by the statute.

Sources and Authority

- Nonliability for Inherently Unsafe Consumer Product. Civil Code section 1714.45.
- Comment i to Section 402A of the Restatement (Second) of Torts provides: "Unreasonably dangerous. The rule stated in this Section applies only where the defective condition of the product makes it unreasonably dangerous to the user or consumer. Many products cannot possibly be made entirely safe for all consumption, and any food or drug necessarily involves some risk of harm, if only from over-consumption. Ordinary sugar is a deadly poison to diabetics, and castor oil found use under Mussolini as an instrument of torture. That is not what is meant by "unreasonably dangerous" in this Section. The article sold must be dangerous to an extent beyond that which would be contemplated by the ordinary consumer who purchases it, with the ordinary knowledge common to the community as to its characteristics. Good whiskey is not unreasonably dangerous merely because it will make some people drunk, and is especially dangerous to alcoholics; but bad whiskey, containing a dangerous amount of fusel oil, is unreasonably dangerous. Good tobacco is not unreasonably dangerous merely because the effects of smoking may be harmful; but tobacco containing something like marijuana may be unreasonably dangerous. Good butter is not unreasonably dangerous merely because, if such be the case, it deposits cholesterol in the arteries and leads to heart attacks; but bad butter, contaminated with poisonous fish oil, is unreasonably dangerous."

- "Additional limitations on the scope of the immunity may be deduced from the history and purpose of the Immunity Statute . . . .The statute's express premise . . . was 'that suppliers of certain products which are "inherently unsafe," but which the public wishes to have available despite awareness of their dangers, should not be responsible in tort for resulting harm to those who voluntarily consumed the products despite such knowledge.' . . . [T]he Immunity Statute [is] based on the principle that 'if a product is pure and unadulterated, its inherent or unavoidable danger, commonly known to the community which consumes it anyway, does not expose the seller to liability for resulting harm to a voluntary user.' " (Naegele v. R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. (2002) 28 Cal.4th 856, 862 [123 Cal.Rptr.2d 61, 50 P.3d 769], internal citations omitted.)
- "The law should not ignore interactive effects that might render a product more dangerous than is contemplated by the ordinary consumer who purchases it and possesses the ordinary knowledge common to the community as to the product's characteristics. Therefore, when a court addresses whether a multi-ingredient product is a common consumer product for purposes of Civil Code section 1714.45 and the ingredients have an interactive effect, the product and its inherent dangers must be considered as a whole so that the interactive effects of its ingredients are not overlooked or trivialized." (Fiorini v. City Brewing Co., LLC (2014) 231 Cal.App.4th 306, 325 [179 Cal.Rptr.3d 827].)
- "The foregoing inferences preclude us from finding, as a matter of law, that [product] was a common consumer product for purposes of Civil Code section 1714.45, subdivision (a). As a result, that factual question should be presented to the trier of fact." (Fiorini, supra, 231 Cal.App.4th at p. 326, footnote omitted.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1930 et seq.

California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 2, Liability for Defective Products, § 2.11[5] (Matthew Bender)

5 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 74, Resolving Multiparty Tort Litigation, § 74.04 (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability, §§ 460.11, 460.70 (Matthew Bender)

19 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 190, Products Liability, § 190.80A et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1249. Affirmative Defense—Reliance on Knowledgeable Intermediary

[*Name of defendant] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] is not responsible for any harm to [name of plaintiff] based on a failure to warn because [name of defendant] sold [specify product, e.g., asbestos] to an intermediary purchaser [name of intermediary]; and [name of defendant] relied on [name of intermediary] to provide adequate warnings to end users of [e.g., asbestos]. To succeed on this defense, [name of defendant] must prove:

1. That [name of defendant] sold [specify product, e.g., asbestos] to [name of intermediary];

[2. That [*name of defendant] conveyed adequate warnings of the particular risks in the use of [e.g., asbestos] to [name of intermediary].]

[or]

[2. That [*name of defendant] knew that [name of intermediary] was aware of, or should have been aware of, the particular risks of [e.g., asbestos];]

and

3. That [name of defendant] actually and reasonably relied on [name of intermediary] to convey adequate warnings of the particular risks in the use of [e.g., asbestos] to those who, like [name of plaintiff], might encounter the risk of [e.g., asbestos].

   Reasonable reliance depends on many factors, including, but not limited to:

   a. The degree of risk posed by [e.g., asbestos];

   b. The feasibility of [name of defendant]'s directly warning those who might encounter [e.g., asbestos] in a finished product; and

   c. The likelihood that the intermediary purchaser will convey warnings.

      In determining the likelihood that [*name of intermediary] would convey adequate warnings, consider what a supplier of [e.g., asbestos] should know about [name of intermediary]. Factors to consider include, but are not limited to:

      (1) Whether [*name of intermediary] knew or should have been aware of the specific risks posed by [e.g., asbestos];

(2) Whether [name of intermediary] had a reputation for carefulness; and

(3) Whether [name of intermediary] was willing to, and had the ability to, communicate adequate warnings to end users.

New May 2017

Directions for Use

Give this instruction if the defendant supplier of materials claims that it gave warnings to an intermediary purchaser or relied on an intermediary purchaser to provide warnings to end users of the product. Reasonable reliance on an intermediary is an affirmative defense to a claim of failure to warn under both strict liability and negligence theories. (See Webb v. Special Electric Co., Inc. (2016) 63 Cal.4th 167, 187 [202 Cal.Rptr.3d 460, 370 P.3d 1022].)

This instruction sets forth all of the elements of the defense. The reasonableness of the defendant's reliance under factors a–c on the intermediary to warn end users is a question of fact. (Webb, supra, 63 Cal.4th at p. 180.)

Sources and Authority

- "When a hazardous raw material is supplied for any purpose, including the manufacture of a finished product, the supplier has a duty to warn about the material's dangers. Under the sophisticated intermediary doctrine, the supplier can discharge this duty if it conveys adequate warnings to the material's purchaser, or sells to a sufficiently sophisticated purchaser, and reasonably relies on the purchaser to convey adequate warnings to others, including those who encounter the material in a finished product. Reasonable reliance depends on many circumstances, including the degree of risk posed by the material, the likelihood the purchaser will convey warnings, and the feasibility of directly warning end users. The doctrine balances the competing policies of compensating those injured by dangerous products and encouraging conduct that can feasibly be performed." (Webb, supra, 63 Cal.4th at p. 177.)
- "To establish a defense under the sophisticated intermediary doctrine, a product supplier must show not only that it warned or sold to a knowledgeable intermediary, but also that it actually and reasonably relied on the intermediary to convey warnings to end users. This inquiry will typically raise questions of fact for the jury to resolve unless critical facts establishing reasonableness are undisputed." (Webb, supra, 63 Cal.4th at pp. 189–190.)
- "Because the sophisticated intermediary doctrine is an affirmative defense, the supplier bears the burden of proving that it adequately warned the intermediary, or knew the intermediary was aware or should have been aware of the specific hazard, and reasonably relied on the intermediary to transmit warnings." (Webb, supra, 63 Cal.4th at p. 187.)
- "Like the sophisticated user defense, the sophisticated intermediary defense applies to failure to warn claims sounding in either strict liability or negligence. As we have previously observed, 'there is little functional difference between the two theories in the failure to warn context.' '[I]n failure to warn cases, whether asserted on negligence or strict liability grounds, there is but one unitary theory of liability which is negligence based—the duty to use reasonable care in promulgating a warning.' " (Webb, supra, 63 Cal.4th at p. 187, internal citations omitted.)

- "The goal of products liability law is not merely to spread risk but also 'to "induce conduct that is capable of being performed." ' The sophisticated intermediary doctrine serves this goal by recognizing a product supplier's duty to warn but permitting the supplier to discharge this duty in a responsible and practical way. It appropriately and equitably balances the practical realities of supplying products with the need for consumer safety." (Webb, supra, 63 Cal.4th at p. 187, internal citation omitted.)
- "The 'gravity' of risk factor encompasses both the 'serious or trivial character of the harm' that is possible and the likelihood that this harm will result. This factor focuses on the nature of the material supplied. If the substance is extremely dangerous, the supplier may need to take additional steps, such as inquiring about the intermediary's warning practices, to ensure that warnings are communicated. The overarching question is the reasonableness of the supplier's conduct given the potential severity of the harm." (Webb, supra, 63 Cal.4th at p. 190, internal citation omitted.)
- "The second Restatement factor, measuring the likelihood that the intermediary will warn, focuses on the reliability of the intermediary. The supplier's knowledge about the intermediary's reliability is judged by an objective standard, based on what a reasonable supplier would have known under the circumstances. Relevant concerns for this factor include, for example, the intermediary's level of knowledge about the hazard, its reputation for carefulness or consideration, and its willingness, and ability, to communicate adequate warnings to end users. Of course, a supplier is always free to inquire about the intermediary's warning policies and practices as a means of assessing the intermediary's reliability. The Second Restatement suggests economic motivations may also be important. For example, an intermediary manufacturer may have an incentive to withhold necessary information about a component material if warnings would make its product less attractive." (Webb, supra, 63 Cal.4th at p. 190, internal citations omitted.)
- "It is also significant if, under the circumstances giving rise to the plaintiff's claim, the intermediary itself had a legal duty to warn end users about the particular hazard in question. In general, ' "every person has a right to presume that every other person will perform his duty and obey the law." ' As the Restatement notes, '[m]odern life would be intolerable unless one were permitted to rely to a certain extent on others' doing what they normally do, particularly if it is their duty to do so.' This consideration may be especially relevant in the context of a raw material or other component supplied for use in making a finished product. Under California law, a product manufacturer has a legal duty to warn its customers of all known or knowable dangers arising from use of the product. However, regardless of the purchaser's independent duty, the supplier cannot reasonably ignore known facts that would provide notice of a substantial risk that the intermediary might fail to warn or that warnings might fail to reach the consumer." (Webb, supra, 63 Cal.4th at p. 191, internal citations omitted.)

- "When raw materials are supplied in bulk for the manufacture of a finished product, it may be difficult for the supplier to convey warnings to the product's ultimate consumers. These suppliers likely have no way to identify ultimate product users and no ready means to communicate with them." (Webb, supra, 63 Cal.4th at p. 191.)
- "We recognize that direct proof of actual reliance may be difficult to obtain when, as in the case of latent disease, the material was supplied to an intermediary long ago. However, actual reliance is an inference the factfinder should be able to draw from circumstantial evidence about the parties' dealings." (Webb, supra, 63 Cal.4th at p. 193.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1321

1 California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 2, Liability for Defective Products, § 2.21[3][c] (Matthew Bender)

40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability, § 460.11[10][b] (Matthew Bender)

19 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 190, Products Liability, § 190.263 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1250–1299. Reserved for Future Use

VF-1200. Strict Products Liability—Manufacturing Defect—Comparative Fault at Issue

---

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant] [manufacture/distribute/sell] the [product]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Did the [product] contain a manufacturing defect when it left [name of defendant]'s possession?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Was the manufacturing defect a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages? Do not reduce the damages based on the fault, if any, of [name of plaintiff] or [name/description of other person].

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other past economic loss $_____]

   Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

   [b. Future economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

If [name of plaintiff] has proved any damages, answer question 5. If [name of plaintiff] has not proved any damages, then stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

5. Was [name of plaintiff] negligent?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 5 is yes, then answer question 6. If you answered no, insert the number zero next to [name of plaintiff]'s name in question 9 and answer question 7.

6. Was [name of plaintiff]'s negligence a substantial factor in causing [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] harm?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 6 is yes, then answer questions 7 and 9. If you answered no, insert the number zero next to [name of plaintiff]'s name in question 9 and answer question 7.

7. Was [name/description of other person] negligent?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 7 is yes, then answer question 8. If you answered no, insert the number zero next to [name/description of other person]'s name in question 9.

8. Was [name/description of other person]'s negligence a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 8 is yes, then answer question 9. If you answered no, insert the number zero next to [name/description of other person]'s name in question 9.

9. What percentage of responsibility for [name of plaintiff]'s harm do you assign to:

[Name of defendant]:	_____ **%
[Name of plaintiff]:	_____ **%
[Name/description of other person]:	_____ **%
TOTAL	100 %

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, April 2009, December 2009, December 2010, June 2011, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1201, Strict Liability—Manufacturing Defect—Essential Factual Elements, CACI No. 1207A, Strict Liability—Comparative Fault of Plaintiff, and CACI No. 1207B, Strict Liability—Comparative Fault of Third Person. If product misuse or modification is alleged as a complete defense (see CACI No. 1245, Affirmative Defense—Product Misuse or Modification), questions 2 and 3 of CACI No. VF-1201, Strict Products Liability—Design Defect—Consumer Expectation Test—Affirmative Defense—Misuse or Modification, may be included after question 1.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If the negligence or fault of more than one third person is alleged to have contributed to the plaintiff's injury, repeat questions 7 and 8.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 4. The breakdown is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-1201. Strict Products Liability—Design Defect—Affirmative Defense—Misuse or Modification

---

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant] [manufacture/distribute/sell] the [product]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Was the [product] [misused/ [or] modified] after it left [name of defendant]'s possession in a way that was so highly extraordinary that it was not reasonably foreseeable to [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, skip question 3 and answer question 4.

3. Was the [misuse/ [or] modification] the sole cause of [name of plaintiff]'s harm?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is no, then answer question 4. If you answered yes, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

[4. Is the [*product] one about which an ordinary consumer can form reasonable minimum safety expectations?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 4 is yes, answer question 5. If your answer is no, skip question 5 and answer question 6.]

[5. Did the [*product] fail to perform as safely as an ordinary consumer would have expected when used or misused in an intended or reasonably foreseeable way?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   Regardless of your answer to question 5, answer question 6.]

[6. Did the benefits of the [*product]'s design outweigh the risks of the design?

   _____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 5 is yes or your answer to question 6 is no, answer question 7. If you answered no to question 5 and yes to question 6, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.]

7. Was the [product]'s design a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 7 is yes, then answer question 8. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

8. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

[a. Past economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other past economic loss $_____]

Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised October 2004, April 2007, April 2009, December 2010, June 2011, December 2011, December 2014, December 2016, May 2020, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1203, Strict Liability—Design Defect—Consumer Expectation Test—Essential Factual Elements, CACI No. 1204, Strict Liability—Design Defect—Risk-Benefit Test—Essential Factual Elements—Shifting Burden of Proof, and CACI No. 1245, Affirmative Defense—Product Misuse or Modification. If the comparative fault or negligence of the plaintiff or of third persons is at issue, questions 6 through 9 of CACI No. VF-1200, Strict Products Liability—Manufacturing Defect—Comparative Fault at Issue, may be added at the end.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

This verdict form can be used in a case in which the jury will decide design defect under both the consumer expectation and the risk-benefit tests. If only the risk-benefit test is at issue, omit questions 4 and 5. If only the consumer expectation test is at issue, omit question 6. Modify the transitional language following questions 5 and 6 if only one test is at issue in the case. Include question 4 if the court has decided to give to the jury the preliminary question as to whether the consumer expectation test can be applied to the product at issue in the case. (See Saller v. Crown Cork & Seal Co., Inc. (2010) 187 Cal.App.4th 1220, 1233–1234 [115 Cal.Rptr.3d 151].) An additional question may be needed if the defendant claims that the plaintiff's injuries were caused by some product other than the defendant's.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 8. The breakdown is optional depending on the circumstances.

If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-1202. Strict Products Liability—Design Defect—Risk-Benefit Test

Revoked December 2014; See CACI No. VF-1201

VF-1203. Strict Products Liability—Failure to Warn

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant] [manufacture/distribute/sell] the [product]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Did the [product] have potential [risks/side effects/allergic reactions] that were [known/ [or] knowable in light of the [scientific/ [and] medical] knowledge that was generally accepted in the scientific community] at the time of [manufacture/distribution/sale]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Did the potential [risks/side effects/allergic reactions] present a substantial danger to persons using or misusing the [product] in an intended or reasonably foreseeable way?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. Would ordinary consumers have recognized the potential [risks/side effects/allergic reactions]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 4 is no, then answer question 5. If you answered yes, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

5. Did [name of defendant] fail to adequately warn [or instruct] of the potential [risks/side effects/allergic reactions]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 5 is yes, then answer question 6. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

6. Was the lack of sufficient [instructions] [or] [warnings] a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 6 is yes, then answer question 7. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

7. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

[a. Past economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other past economic loss $_____]

Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, April 2009, December 2010, June 2011, December 2011, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1205, Strict Liability—Failure to Warn—Essential Factual Elements. If product misuse or modification is alleged as a complete defense (see CACI No. 1245, Affirmative Defense—Product Misuse or Modification), questions 2 and 3 of CACI No. VF-1201, Strict Products Liability—Design Defect—Consumer Expectation Test—Affirmative Defense—Misuse or Modification, may be included after question 1. If the comparative fault or negligence of the plaintiff or of third persons is at issue, questions 7 through 9 of CACI No. VF-1200, Strict Products Liability—Manufacturing Defect—Comparative Fault at Issue, may be added at the end.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 7. The breakdown is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-1204. Products Liability—Negligence—Comparative Fault of Plaintiff at Issue

---

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant] [design/manufacture/supply/install/inspect/repair/rent] the [product]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Was [name of defendant] negligent in [designing/manufacturing/supplying/installing/inspecting/repairing/renting] the [product]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Was [name of defendant]'s negligence a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. What are [name of plaintiff]'s total damages? Do not reduce the damages based on the fault, if any, of [name of plaintiff].

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other past economic loss $_____]

   Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

   [b. Future economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

If [name of plaintiff] has proved any damages, answer question 5. If [name of plaintiff] has not proved any damages, then stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

5. Was [name of plaintiff] negligent?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 5 is yes, then answer question 6. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

6. Was [name of plaintiff]'s negligence a substantial factor in causing [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] harm?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 6 is yes, then answer question 7. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

7. What percentage of responsibility for [name of plaintiff]'s harm do you assign to:

[Name of defendant]:	_____ %
[Name of plaintiff]:	_____ %
TOTAL	100 %

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, December 2009, December 2010, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1220, Negligence—Essential Factual Elements, and CACI No. 405, Comparative Fault of Plaintiff.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 4. The breakdown is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant] [manufacture/distribute/sell] the [product]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Did [name of defendant] know or should [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] reasonably have known that the [product] was dangerous or was likely to be dangerous when used or misused in a reasonably foreseeable manner?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Did [name of defendant] know or should [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/it] reasonably have known that users would not realize the danger?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. Did [name of defendant] fail to adequately warn of the danger [or instruct on the safe use of] the [product]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 4 is yes, then answer question 5. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

5. Would a reasonable [manufacturer/distributor/seller] under the same or similar circumstances have warned of the danger [or instructed on the safe use of] the [product]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 5 is yes, then answer question 6. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

6. Was [name of defendant]'s failure to warn a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 6 is yes, then answer question 7. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

7. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

[a. Past economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other past economic loss $_____]

Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, December 2010, June 2011, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1222, Negligence—Manufacturer or Supplier—Duty to Warn—Essential Factual Elements.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 7. The breakdown is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-1206. Products Liability—Express Warranty—Affirmative Defense—Not "Basis of Bargain"

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant] represent to [name of plaintiff] by a [statement/description/sample/model/other] that the [product] [insert description of alleged express warranty]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Was the resulting bargain between the parties in which [name of plaintiff] decided to [purchase/use] the [product] based in any way on [name of defendant]'s [statement/description/sample/model/other]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Did the [product] fail to [perform] [or] [have the same quality] as represented?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. Was the failure of the [product] to [perform] [or] [meet the quality] as represented a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 4 is yes, then answer question 5. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

5. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other past economic loss $_____]

Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised February 2005, April 2007, December 2010, June 2011, December 2016, May 2020, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1230, Express Warranty—Essential Factual Elements, and CACI No. 1240, Affirmative Defense to Express Warranty—Not "Basis of Bargain."

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

Under various circumstances, the plaintiff must also prove that the plaintiff made a reasonable attempt to notify the defendant of the defect. Thus, if appropriate, the following question should be added before the question regarding the plaintiff's harm: "Did [name of plaintiff] take reasonable steps to notify [name of defendant] within a reasonable time that the [product] [was not/did not perform] as requested?"

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 5. The breakdown is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

Do not include question 2 if the affirmative defense is not at issue.

VF-1207. Products Liability—Implied Warranty of Merchantability—Affirmative Defense—Exclusion of Implied Warranties

---

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of plaintiff] buy the [product] from [name of defendant]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Was [name of defendant] in the business of selling these goods?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Did the sale of the [product] include notice that would have made a buyer aware that it was being sold without any representations relating to the quality that a buyer would expect?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is no, then answer question 4. If you answered yes, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. Was the [product] fit for the ordinary purposes for which such goods are used?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 4 is no, then answer question 5. If you answered yes, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

5. Was the failure of the [product] to have the expected quality a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 5 is yes, then answer question 6. If you answered no stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

6. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other past economic loss $_____]

Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, December 2010, December 2016, May 2020, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1231, Implied Warranty of Merchantability—Essential Factual Elements, and CACI No. 1242, Affirmative Defense—Exclusion of Implied Warranties.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

Under various circumstances, the plaintiff must also prove that the plaintiff made a reasonable attempt to notify the defendant of the defect. Thus, where appropriate, the following question should be added prior to the question regarding the plaintiff's harm: "Did [name of plaintiff] take reasonable steps to notify [name of defendant] within a reasonable time that the [product] [was not/did not perform] as requested?"

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 6. The breakdown is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

Question 2 should be modified if the defendant purported to have special knowledge or skill regarding the goods. Question 3 should be modified if a different ground of liability is asserted under Commercial Code section 2314(2). Question 6 should be modified if the defendant is asserting other grounds under Commercial Code section 2316(3). This form should also be modified if notification is an issue.

Do not include question 3 if the affirmative defense is not at issue.

VF-1208. Products Liability—Implied Warranty of Fitness for a Particular Purpose

---

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of plaintiff] buy the [product] from [name of defendant]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. At the time of purchase, did [name of defendant] know or have reason to know that [name of plaintiff] intended to use the [product] for a particular purpose?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. At the time of purchase, did [name of defendant] know that [name of plaintiff] was relying on [name of defendant]'s skill and judgment to select or furnish a product that was suitable for the particular purpose?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. Did [name of plaintiff] justifiably rely on [name of defendant]'s skill and judgment?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 4 is yes, then answer question 5. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

5. Was the [product] suitable for the particular purpose?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 5 is no, then answer question 6. If you answered yes, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

6. Was the failure of the [product] to be suitable a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 6 is yes, then answer question 7. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

7. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

[a. Past economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other past economic loss $_____]

Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, December 2010, December 2016, May 2020, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1232, Implied Warranty of Fitness for a Particular Purpose—Essential Factual Elements.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 7. The breakdown is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

Question 2 of this form should be modified if the defendant purported to have special knowledge or skill regarding the goods. Question 3 should be modified if a different ground of liability is asserted under Commercial Code section 2314(2). This form should also be modified if notification is an issue.

VF-1209–VF-1299. Reserved for Future Use

ASSAULT AND BATTERY

1300. Battery—Essential Factual Elements

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] committed a battery. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] [touched [name of plaintiff]] [or] [caused [name of plaintiff] to be touched] with the intent to harm or offend [him/her/nonbinary pronoun];
2. That [name of plaintiff] did not consent to the touching; [and]
3. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed [or offended] by [name of defendant]'s conduct[./; and]

[4. That a reasonable person in [*name of plaintiff]'s situation would have been offended by the touching.]

New September 2003; Revised October 2004

Directions for Use

Give the bracketed words in element 3 and element 4 if the offensive nature of the conduct is at issue. In most cases, it will be clear whether the alleged conduct was offensive. The offensive nature of the conduct will most likely not be at issue if the conduct was clearly harmful.

For a definition of "intent," see CACI No. 1320, Intent.

Sources and Authority

- Consent as Defense. Civil Code section 3515.
- "The essential elements of a cause of action for battery are: (1) defendant touched plaintiff, or caused plaintiff to be touched, with the intent to harm or offend plaintiff; (2) plaintiff did not consent to the touching; (3) plaintiff was harmed or offended by defendant's conduct; and (4) a reasonable person in plaintiff's position would have been offended by the touching." (So v. Shin (2013) 212 Cal.App.4th 652, 669 [151 Cal.Rptr.3d 257] [citing this instruction].)
- "A battery is a violation of an individual's interest in freedom from intentional, unlawful, harmful or offensive unconsented contacts with his or her person." (Rains v. Superior Court (1984) 150 Cal.App.3d 933, 938 [198 Cal.Rptr. 249].)
- "Although it is not incorrect to say that battery is an unlawful touching, . . . it is redundant to use 'unlawful' in defining battery in a jury instruction, and may be misleading to do so without informing the jury what would make the conduct unlawful." (Barouh v. Haberman (1994) 26 Cal.App.4th 40, 45 [31 Cal.Rptr.2d 259], internal citation omitted.)
- "The crimes of assault and battery are intentional torts. In the perpetration of such crimes negligence is not involved. As between the guilty aggressor and the person attacked the former may not shield himself behind the charge that his victim may have been guilty of contributory negligence, for such a plea is unavailable to him." (Bartosh v. Banning (1967) 251 Cal.App.2d 378, 385 [59 Cal.Rptr. 382].)

- " 'It has long been established, both in tort and criminal law, that "the least touching" may constitute battery. In other words, force against the person is enough; it need not be violent or severe, it need not cause bodily harm or even pain, and it need not leave any mark.' " (People v. Mansfield (1988) 200 Cal.App.3d 82, 88 [245 Cal.Rptr. 800], internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]he tort of battery generally is not limited to direct body-to-body contact. In fact, the commentary to the Restatement Second of Torts clearly states that the '[m]eaning of "contact with another's person" ' . . . does not require that one 'should bring any part of his own body in contact with another's person. . . . [One] is liable [for battery] in this Section if [one] throws a substance, such as water, upon the other . . . .' " (Mount Vernon Fire Ins. Co. v. Busby (2013) 219 Cal.App.4th 876, 881 [162 Cal.Rptr.3d 211].)
- "The element of lack of consent to the particular contact is an essential element of battery." (Rains, supra, 150 Cal.App.3d at p. 938.)
- "As a general rule, one who consents to a touching cannot recover in an action for battery. . . . However, it is well-recognized a person may place conditions on the consent. If the actor exceeds the terms or conditions of the consent, the consent does not protect the actor from liability for the excessive act." (Ashcraft v. King (1991) 228 Cal.App.3d 604, 609–610 [278 Cal.Rptr. 900].)
- "In an action for civil battery the element of intent is satisfied if the evidence shows defendant acted with a 'willful disregard' of the plaintiff's rights." (Ashcraft, supra, 228 Cal.App.3d at p. 613, internal citation omitted.)
- " 'The usages of decent society determine what is offensive.' " (Barouh, supra, 26 Cal.App.4th at p. 46, fn. 5, internal citation omitted.)
- "Even though pushing a door cannot be deemed a harmful injury, the pushing of a door which was touching the prosecutrix could be deemed an offensive touching and a battery is defined as a harmful or offensive touching." (People v. Puckett (1975) 44 Cal.App.3d 607, 614–615 [118 Cal.Rptr. 884].)
- " 'If defendant unlawfully aims at one person and hits another he is guilty of assault and battery on the party he hit, the injury being the direct, natural and probable consequence of the wrongful act.' " (Singer v. Marx (1956) 144 Cal.App.2d 637, 642 [301 P.2d 440], internal citation omitted.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 452–488

Chin et al., California Practice Guide: Employment Litigation, Ch. 5-J, Assault And Battery, ¶ 5:858 et seq. (The Rutter Group)

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 41, Assault and Battery, § 41.01[3] (Matthew Bender)

6 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 58, Assault and Battery, § 58.13 (Matthew Bender)

2 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 21, Assault and Battery, § 21.21 (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts §§ 12:7–12:9 (Thomson Reuters)

1301. Assault—Essential Factual Elements

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] assaulted [him/her/nonbinary pronoun]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

[1. That [*name of defendant] acted, intending to cause harmful [or offensive] contact;

2. That [*name of plaintiff] reasonably believed that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was about to be touched in a harmful [or an offensive] manner;]

[or]

[1. That [*name of defendant] threatened to touch [name of plaintiff] in a harmful [or an offensive] manner;

2. That it reasonably appeared to [*name of plaintiff] that [name of defendant] was about to carry out the threat;]

3. That [*name of plaintiff] did not consent to [name of defendant]'s conduct;

4. That [*name of plaintiff] was harmed; and

5. That [*name of defendant]'s conduct was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

[A touching is offensive if it offends a reasonable sense of personal dignity.]

[Words alone do not amount to an assault.]

New September 2003; Revised October 2004, June 2005

Directions for Use

For a definition of "intent," see CACI No. 1320, Intent. The last bracketed sentence should be read in cases in which there is a dispute as to whether the defendant's conduct involved more than words.

Sources and Authority

- "The essential elements of a cause of action for assault are: (1) defendant acted with intent to cause harmful or offensive contact, or threatened to touch plaintiff in a harmful or offensive manner; (2) plaintiff reasonably believed she was about to be touched in a harmful or offensive manner or it reasonably appeared to plaintiff that defendant was about to carry out the threat; (3) plaintiff did not consent to defendant's conduct; (4) plaintiff was harmed; and (5) defendant's conduct was a substantial factor in causing plaintiff's harm." (So v. Shin (2013)

212 Cal.App.4th 652, 668–669 [151 Cal.Rptr.3d 257] [citing this instruction].)

- " 'Generally speaking, an assault is a demonstration of an unlawful intent by one person to inflict immediate injury on the person of another then present.' " (Plotnik v. Meihaus (2012) 208 Cal. App. 4th 1590, 1603–1604 [146 Cal.Rptr.3d 585].)
- "A civil action for assault is based upon an invasion of the right of a person to live without being put in fear of personal harm." (Lowry v. Standard Oil Co. of California (1944) 63 Cal.App.2d 1, 6–7 [146 P.2d 57], internal citation omitted.)
- "The tort of assault is complete when the anticipation of harm occurs." (Kiseskey v. Carpenters' Trust for Southern California (1983) 144 Cal.App.3d 222, 232 [192 Cal.Rptr 492].)
- "Furthermore, . . . 'while apprehension of that contact is the basis of assault [citation,] [m]ere words, however threatening, will not amount to an assault. [Citations.]' " (Plotnik, supra, 208 Cal.App.4th at p. 1604.)
- Restatement Second of Torts, section 21 provides:

  (1) An actor is subject to liability to another for assault if

  (a) he acts intending to cause a harmful or offensive contact with the person of the other or a third person, or an imminent apprehension of such a contact, and

  (b) the other is thereby put in such imminent apprehension.

  (2) An action which is not done with the intention stated in Subsection (1, a) does not make the actor liable to the other for an apprehension caused thereby although the act involves an unreasonable risk of causing it and, therefore, would be negligent or reckless if the risk threatened bodily harm.

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 452–488

Chin et al., California Practice Guide: Employment Litigation, Ch. 5-J, Assault And Battery, ¶ 5:856 et seq. (The Rutter Group)

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 41, Assault and Battery, § 41.01[4] (Matthew Bender)

6 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 58, Assault and Battery, § 58.15 (Matthew Bender)

2 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 21, Assault and Battery, § 21.20 (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts §§ 12:3–12:6 (Thomson Reuters)

1302. Consent Explained

A plaintiff may express consent by words or acts that are reasonably understood by another person as consent.

A plaintiff may also express consent by silence or inaction if a reasonable person would understand that the silence or inaction intended to indicate consent.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

See CACI No. 1303, Invalid Consent, if there is an issue concerning the validity of plaintiff's consent.

Sources and Authority

- Consent as Defense. Civil Code section 3515.
- "The element of lack of consent to the particular contact is an essential element of battery." (Rains v. Superior Court (1984) 150 Cal.App.3d 933, 938 [198 Cal.Rptr. 249].)
- "Consent to an act, otherwise a battery, normally vitiates the wrong." (Barbara A. v. John G. (1983) 145 Cal.App.3d 369, 375 [193 Cal.Rptr. 422].)
- "As a general rule, one who consents to a touching cannot recover in an action for battery. . . . However, it is well-recognized a person may place conditions on the consent. If the actor exceeds the terms or conditions of the consent, the consent does not protect the actor from liability for the excessive act." (Ashcraft v. King (1991) 228 Cal.App.3d 604, 609–610 [278 Cal.Rptr. 900].)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 457–488

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 41, Assault and Battery, § 41.20 (Matthew Bender)

6 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 58, Assault and Battery, § 58.91 (Matthew Bender)

2 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 21, Assault and Battery, § 21.24 (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts §§ 12:9, 12:18–12:19 (Thomson Reuters)

1303. Invalid Consent

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] consent [was obtained by fraud/mistake/duress] [was obtained as a result of [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] incapacity] [or that [name of defendant]'s conduct went beyond the scope of [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] limited consent].

If [name of plaintiff] proves that [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] consent was [insert ground for vitiating consent, e.g., "obtained by fraud," "exceeded"], then you must find that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] did not consent.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

For instructions on fraud, mistake, and duress, see other instructions in the Contracts and Fraud or Deceit series.

Sources and Authority

- Restatement Second of Torts, section 892B provides:

  (1) Except as stated in subsection (2), consent to conduct of another is effective for all consequences of the conduct and for the invasion of any interests resulting from it.

  (2) If the person consenting to the conduct of another is induced to consent by a substantial mistake concerning the nature of the invasion of his interests or the extent of the harm to be expected from it and the mistake is known to the other or is induced by the other's misrepresentation, the consent is not effective for the unexpected invasion or harm.

  (3) Consent is not effective if it is given under duress.

- Consent may be invalidated if the act exceeds the scope of the consent or if the consent is fraudulently induced. (Barbara A. v. John G. (1983) 145 Cal.App.3d 369, 375 [193 Cal.Rptr. 422].)
- Liability may be found where a physician "intentionally deceive[s] another into submitting to otherwise offensive touching to achieve a nontherapeutic purpose known only to the physician." (Rains v. Superior Court (1984) 150 Cal.App.3d 933, 941 [198 Cal.Rptr. 249].)
- "As a general rule, one who consents to a touching cannot recover in an action for battery. . . . However, it is well-recognized a person may place conditions on the consent. If the actor exceeds the terms or conditions of the consent, the consent does not protect the actor from liability for the excessive act." (Ashcraft v. King (1991) 228 Cal.App.3d 604, 609–610 [278 Cal.Rptr. 900].)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 457–488

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 41, Assault and Battery, § 41.20 (Matthew Bender)

6 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 58, Assault and Battery, §§ 58.57, 58.91 (Matthew Bender)

2 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 21, Assault and Battery, § 21.24 (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts §§ 12:9, 12:18–12:19 (Thomson Reuters)

1304. Affirmative Defense—Self-Defense/Defense of Others

[*Name of defendant] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] is not responsible for [name of plaintiff]'s harm because [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was acting in [self-defense/defense of another]. To succeed, [name of defendant] must prove both of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] reasonably believed that [name of plaintiff] was going to harm [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/[insert identification of other person]]; and
2. That [name of defendant] used only the amount of force that was reasonably necessary to protect [himself/herself/nonbinary pronoun/[insert identification of other person]].

New September 2003; Revised June 2014

Sources and Authority

- Self Defense. Civil Code section 50.
- "When an alleged act of self-defense . . . is at issue, the question of what force was reasonable and justified is peculiarly one for determination by the trier of fact." (Burton v. Sanner (2012) 207 Cal.App.4th 12, 14 [142 Cal.Rptr.3d 782], original italics.)
- "Self-defense being an affirmative defense, it must, in a civil action, be established by the defendant by a preponderance of the evidence." (Bartosh v. Banning (1967) 251 Cal.App.2d 378, 386 [59 Cal.Rptr. 382].)
- "In a suit for assault and battery, the defendant is not liable if that defendant reasonably believed, in view of all the circumstances of the case, that the plaintiff was going to harm him or her and the defendant used only the amount of force reasonably necessary to protect himself or herself." (J.J. v. M.F. (2014) 223 Cal.App.4th 968, 976 [167 Cal.Rptr.3d 670] [citing this instruction].)
- "The right to use force against another has long been limited by the condition that the force be no more than ' "that which reasonably appears necessary, in view of all the circumstances of the case, to prevent the impending injury." 'When the amount of force used is justifiable under the circumstances, it is not willful and the actor may escape liability for intentionally injurious conduct that is otherwise actionable. But if force is applied in excess of that which is justified, the actor remains subject to liability for the damages resulting from the excessive use of force. . . . When an alleged act of self-defense or defense of property is at issue, the question of what force was reasonable and justified is peculiarly one for determination by the trier of fact." (Calvillo-Silva v. Home Grocery (1998) 19 Cal.4th 714, 730–731 [80 Cal.Rptr.2d 506, 968 P.2d 65], internal citations omitted.)

- "The right of self-defense is not limited by actualities. The correct rule . . . [is]: 'Generally . . . , the force that one may use in self-defense is that which reasonably appears necessary, in view of all the circumstances of the case, to prevent the impending injury.' In emphasizing that the law of self-defense is a law of necessity courts should never lose sight of the fact that the necessity may be either real or apparent." (Vaughn v. Jonas (1948) 31 Cal.2d 586, 599–600 [191 P.2d 432], internal citations omitted.)
- "The reasonableness standard is an objective standard." (Burton, supra, 207 Cal.App.4th at p. 20.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 489–493, 495

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 41, Assault and Battery, § 41.21 (Matthew Bender)

6 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 58, Assault and Battery, §§ 58.19–58.20, 58.70–58.71 (Matthew Bender)

2 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 21, Assault and Battery, § 21.40 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts §§ 12:20–12:21 (Thomson Reuters)

1305A. Battery by Law Enforcement Officer (Nondeadly Force)—Essential Factual Elements

---

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] harmed [him/her/nonbinary pronoun] by using unreasonable force to [arrest/detain [him/her/nonbinary pronoun]/ [,/or] prevent [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] escape/ [,/or] overcome [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] resistance]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] intentionally touched [name of plaintiff] [or caused [name of plaintiff] to be touched];
2. That [name of defendant] used unreasonable force on [name of plaintiff];
3. That [name of plaintiff] did not consent to the use of that force;
4. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
5. That [name of defendant]'s use of unreasonable force was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

[A/An] [*insert type of officer] may use reasonable force to [arrest/detain/ [,/or] prevent the escape of/ [,/or] overcome the resistance of] a person when the officer has reasonable cause to believe that that person has committed a crime. [Even if the officer is mistaken, a person being arrested or detained has a duty not to use force to resist the officer unless the officer is using unreasonable force.]

In deciding whether [*name of defendant] used unreasonable force, you must consider the totality of the circumstances and determine what amount of force a reasonable [insert type of officer] in [name of defendant]'s position would have used under the same or similar circumstances. "Totality of the circumstances" means all facts known to the officer at the time, including the conduct of [name of defendant] and [name of plaintiff] leading up to the use of force. You should consider, among other factors, the following:

(a) Whether [*name of plaintiff] reasonably appeared to pose an immediate threat to the safety of [name of defendant] or others;

(b) The seriousness of the crime at issue; and

(c) Whether [*name of plaintiff] was actively resisting [arrest/detention] or attempting to evade [arrest/detention].

[An officer who makes or attempts to make an arrest does not have to retreat or stop because the person being arrested resists or threatens to resist. Tactical repositioning or other deescalation tactics are not retreat. An officer does not lose the right to self-defense by using objectively reasonable force to [arrest/detain/ [,/or] prevent escape/ [,/or] overcome resistance.]

New September 2003; Revised December 2012, May 2020, November 2020; Renumbered from CACI No. 1305 and Revised May 2021

Directions for Use

See CACI No. 1302, Consent Explained, and CACI No. 1303, Invalid Consent, if there is an issue concerning the plaintiff's consent.

For additional authorities on excessive force, see the Sources and Authority for CACI No. 440, Negligent Use of Nondeadly Force by Law Enforcement Officer in Arrest or Other Seizure—Essential Factual Elements, CACI No. 441, Negligent Use of Deadly Force by Peace Officer—Essential Factual Elements, and CACI No. 3020, Excessive Use of Force—Unreasonable Arrest or Other Seizure—Essential Factual Elements.

By its terms, Penal Code section 835a's deadly force provisions apply to "peace officers." It would appear that a battery claim involving nondeadly force does not depend on whether the individual qualifies as a peace officer under the Penal Code. (See Pen. Code, § 835a; see also Pen. Code, § 830 et seq. [defining "peace officer"].) For cases involving the use of deadly force by a peace officer, use CACI No. 1305B, Battery by Peace Officer (Deadly Force)—Essential Factual Elements. (Pen. Code, § 835a.) This instruction and CACI No. 1305B may require modification if the jury must decide whether the force used by the defendant was deadly or nondeadly.

Include the bracketed sentence in the second paragraph only if the defendant claims that the person being arrested or detained resisted the officer.

Factors (a), (b), and (c) are often referred to as the "Graham factors." (See Graham v. Connor (1989) 490 U.S. 386, 396 [109 S.Ct. 1865, 104 L.Ed.2d 443].) The Graham factors are not exclusive (see Glenn v. Wash. County (9th Cir. 2011) 673 F.3d 864, 872); additional factors may be added if appropriate to the facts of the case.

Include the final bracketed paragraph only if the defendant claims that the person being arrested resisted arrest or threatened resistance.

Sources and Authority

- Use of Objectively Reasonable Force to Arrest. Penal Code section 835a.
- Duty to Submit to Arrest. Penal Code section 834a.
- "Plaintiff must prove unreasonable force as an element of the tort." (Edson v. City of Anaheim (1998) 63 Cal.App.4th 1269, 1272 [74 Cal.Rptr.2d 614].)
- " ' "The 'reasonableness' of a particular use of force must be judged from the perspective of a reasonable officer on the scene, rather than with the 20/20 vision of hindsight. . . . [T]he question is whether the officers' actions are 'objectively reasonable' in light of the facts and circumstances confronting them, without regard to their underlying intent or motivation. . . .' ' In calculating whether the amount of force was excessive, a trier of fact must recognize that peace officers are often forced to make split-second judgments, in tense circumstances, concerning the amount of force required." (Brown v. Ransweiler (2009) 171 Cal.App.4th 516, 527–528 [89 Cal.Rptr.3d 801], internal citations omitted.)

- "[T]here is no right to use force, reasonable or otherwise, to resist an unlawful detention . . . ." (Evans v. City of Bakersfield (1994) 22 Cal.App.4th 321, 333 [27 Cal.Rptr.2d 406].)
- "[E]xecution of an unlawful arrest or detention does not give license to an individual to strike or assault the officer unless excessive force is used or threatened; excessive force in that event triggers the individual's right of self-defense." (Evans, supra, 22 Cal.App.4th at p. 331, original italics, internal citation omitted.)
- "Consistent with these principles and the factors the high court has identified, the federal court in this case did not instruct the jury to conduct some abstract or nebulous balancing of competing interests. Instead, as noted above, it instructed the jury to determine the reasonableness of the officers' actions in light of 'the totality of the circumstances at the time,' including 'the severity of the crime at issue, whether the plaintiff posed a reasonable threat to the safety of the officer or others, and whether the plaintiff was actively resisting detention or attempting to escape.' The same consideration of the totality of the circumstances is required in determining reasonableness under California negligence law. Moreover, California's civil jury instructions specifically direct the jury, in determining whether police officers used unreasonable force for purposes of tort liability, to consider the same factors that the high court has identified and that the federal court's instructions in this case set forth. (Judicial Council of Cal. Civ. Jury Instns. (2008) CACI No. 1305.) Thus, plaintiffs err in arguing that the federal and state standards of reasonableness differ in that the former involves a fact finder's balancing of competing interests." (Hernandez v. City of Pomona (2009) 46 Cal.4th 501, 514 [94 Cal.Rptr.3d 1, 207 P.3d 506], internal citation omitted.)

Secondary Sources

1 Witkin & Epstein, California Criminal Law (4th ed. 2020) Crimes Against the Person, §§ 13–14

4 Witkin & Epstein, California Criminal Law (4th ed. 2020) Crimes Against the Person, § 39

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 496

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 41, Assault and Battery, § 41.24 (Matthew Bender)

6 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 58, Assault and Battery, §§ 58.22, 58.61, 58.92 (Matthew Bender)

2 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 21, Assault and Battery, § 21.20 et seq.

(Matthew Bender)
California Civil Practice: Torts § 12:22 (Thomson Reuters)

1305B. Battery by Peace Officer (Deadly Force)—Essential Factual Elements

---

A peace officer may use deadly force only when necessary in defense of human life. [*Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] unnecessarily used deadly force on [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/name of decedent]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] intentionally touched [name of plaintiff/decedent] [or caused [name of plaintiff/decedent] to be touched];
2. That [name of defendant] used deadly force on [name of plaintiff/decedent];
3. That [name of defendant]'s use of deadly force was not necessary to defend human life;
4. That [name of plaintiff/decedent] was [harmed/killed]; and
5. That [name of defendant]'s use of deadly force was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff/decedent]'s [harm/death].

[*Name of defendant]'s use of deadly force was necessary to defend human life only if a reasonable officer in the same situation would have believed, based on the totality of the circumstances known to or perceived by [name of defendant] at the time, that deadly force was necessary [insert one or both of the following:]

[to defend against an imminent threat of death or serious bodily harm to [*name of defendant] [or] [to another person][; or/.]]

[to apprehend a fleeing person for a felony, when all of the following conditions are present:

i. The felony threatened or resulted in death or serious bodily injury to another;

ii. [Name of defendant] reasonably believed that the person fleeing would cause death or serious bodily injury to another unless immediately apprehended; and

iii. If practical under the circumstances, [name of defendant] made reasonable efforts to identify [himself/herself/nonbinary pronoun] as a peace officer and to warn that deadly force would be used, unless the officer had objectively reasonable grounds to believe the person is aware of those facts.]

[A peace officer must not use deadly force against persons based only on the danger those persons pose to themselves, if an objectively reasonable officer would believe the person does not pose an imminent threat of death or serious bodily injury to the peace officer or to another person.]

[A person being [arrested/detained] has a duty not to use force to resist the peace officer unless the peace officer is using unreasonable force.]

"Deadly force" means any use of force that creates a substantial risk of causing death or serious bodily injury, including, but not limited to, the discharge of a firearm.

A threat of death or serious bodily injury is "imminent" when, based on the totality of the circumstances, a reasonable officer in the same situation would believe that a person has the present ability, opportunity, and apparent intent to immediately cause death or serious bodily injury to the peace officer or another person. An imminent harm is not merely a fear of future harm, no matter how great the fear and no matter how great the likelihood of the harm, but is one that, from appearances, must be instantly confronted and addressed.

"Totality of the circumstances" means all facts known to the peace officer at the time, including the conduct of [*name of defendant] and [name of plaintiff/decedent] leading up to the use of deadly force. In determining whether [name of defendant]'s use of deadly force was necessary in defense of human life, you must consider [name of defendant]'s tactical conduct and decisions before using deadly force on [name of plaintiff/decedent] and whether [name of defendant] used other available resources and techniques as [an] alternative[s] to deadly force, if it was reasonably safe and feasible to do so. [You must also consider whether [name of defendant] knew or had reason to know that the person against whom [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] used force was suffering from a physical, mental health, developmental, or intellectual disability [that may have affected the person's ability to understand or comply with commands from the officer[s]].]

[A peace officer who makes or attempts to make an arrest does not have to retreat or stop because the person being arrested is resisting or threatening to resist. Tactical repositioning or other deescalation tactics are not retreat. A peace officer does not lose the right to self-defense by use of objectively reasonable force to effect the arrest or to prevent escape or to overcome resistance. A peace officer does, however, have a duty to use reasonable tactical repositioning or other deescalation tactics.]

New May 2021

Directions for Use

Use this instruction for a claim of battery using deadly force by a peace officer. If a plaintiff alleges battery by both deadly and nondeadly force, or if the jury must decide whether the amount of force used was deadly or nondeadly, this instruction may be used along with the CACI No. 1305A, Battery by Law Enforcement Officer (Nondeadly Force)—Essential Factual Elements.

By its terms, Penal Code section 835a's deadly force provisions apply to "peace officers," a term defined by the Penal Code. (See Pen. Code, § 835a; see also Pen. Code, § 830 et seq. [defining "peace officer"].) That the defendant is a peace officer may be stipulated to or decided by the judge as a matter of law. In such a case, the judge must instruct the jury that the defendant was a peace officer. If there are contested issues of fact on this issue, include the specific factual findings necessary for the jury to determine whether the defendant was acting as a peace officer.

In the paragraph after the essential factual elements, select either or both bracketed options depending on the asserted justification(s) for the use of deadly force.

"Deadly force" means any use of force that creates a substantial risk of causing death or serious bodily injury, including, but not limited to, the discharge of a firearm. (Pen. Code, § 835a(e)(1).) Note that this definition does not require that the encounter result in the death of the person against whom the force was used. If there is no dispute about the use of deadly force, the court should instruct the jury that deadly force was used.

In the "totality of the circumstances" paragraph, do not include the final optional sentence or its optional clause unless there is evidence of a disability or evidence of the person's ability to comprehend or comply with the officer's commands.

Include the final bracketed paragraph only if the defendant claims that the person being arrested resisted arrest or threatened resistance.

In a wrongful death or survival action, use the name of the decedent victim where applicable and further modify the instruction as appropriate.

Sources and Authority

- Legislative Findings re Use of Force by Law Enforcement. Penal Code section 835a(a).
- When Use of Deadly Force is Justified. Penal Code section 835a(c).
- When Peace Officer Need Not Retreat. Penal Code section 835a(d).
- Definitions. Penal Code section 835a(e).
- "Peace Officer" Defined. Penal Code section 830 et seq.
- "[T]here is no right to use force, reasonable or otherwise, to resist an unlawful detention . . . ." (Evans v. City of Bakersfield (1994) 22 Cal.App.4th 321, 333 [27 Cal.Rptr.2d 406].)
- "[E]xecution of an unlawful arrest or detention does not give license to an individual to strike or assault the officer unless excessive force is used or threatened; excessive force in that event triggers the individual's right of self-defense." (Evans, supra, 22 Cal.App.4th at p. 331, original italics, internal citation omitted.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 427, 993

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 41, Assault and Battery, § 41.24 seq. (Matthew Bender)

6 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 58, Assault and Battery, § 58.22 (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts § 12:22 (Thomson Reuters)

1306. Sexual Battery—Essential Factual Elements (Civ. Code, § 1708.5)

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] committed a sexual battery. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove the following:

1. [(a) That [name of defendant] intended to cause a harmful [or offensive] contact with [name of plaintiff]'s [sexual organ/anus/ groin/buttocks/ [or] breast], and a sexually offensive contact with [name of plaintiff] resulted, either directly or indirectly;]

   [OR]

   [(b) That [name of defendant] intended to cause a harmful [or offensive] contact with [name of plaintiff] by use of [name of defendant]'s [sexual organ/anus/groin/buttocks/ [or] breast], and a sexually offensive contact with [name of plaintiff] resulted, either directly or indirectly;]

   [OR]

   [(c) That [name of defendant] caused an imminent fear of a harmful [or offensive] contact with [[name of plaintiff]'s [sexual organ/anus/groin/buttocks/ [or] breast]/ [or] [name of plaintiff] by use of [name of defendant]'s [sexual organ/anus/groin/buttocks/ [or] breast]], and a sexually offensive contact with [name of plaintiff] resulted, either directly or indirectly;]

   [OR]

   [(d) That [name of defendant] caused contact between a sexual organ, from which a condom had been removed, and [name of plaintiff]'s [sexual organ/anus/groin/buttocks/ [or] breast];]

   [OR]

   [(e) That [name of defendant] caused contact between [a/an] [sexual organ/anus/groin/buttocks/ [or] breast] and [name of plaintiff]'s sexual organ from which [name of defendant] had removed a condom;]

   AND

2. That [name of plaintiff] did not [consent to the touching/verbally consent to the condom being removed]; and

3. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed [or offended] by [name of defendant]'s conduct.

["Offensive contact" means contact that offends a reasonable sense of personal dignity.]

New October 2008; Revised May 2022

Directions for Use

Omit any of the options for element 1 that are not supported by the evidence. If more than one are at issue, include the word "OR" between them.

For sexual battery under Civil Code section 1708.5(d)(1) (defining "intimate part"), unconsented touching of a breast must involve the breast of a female. The instruction may require modification if there is a factual question on this issue.

Use the second bracketed alternative in element 2 only if option (d) or option (e) is at issue. (Compare Civ. Code, § 1708.5(a), (b), (c) with Civ. Code, § 1708.5(d), (e).) Modification of the instruction will be necessary if the plaintiff's claim involves any of options (a)–(c) and option (d) or option (e) because the consent requirement is not the same.

Give the bracketed words "or offensive" in element 1 and "or offended" in element 3 and include the optional last sentence if the offensive nature of the conduct is at issue. In most cases, it will be clear whether the alleged conduct was offensive. The offensive nature of the conduct will most likely not be at issue if the conduct was clearly harmful.

For a definition of "intent," see CACI No. 1320, Intent.

Sources and Authority

- Sexual Battery. Civil Code section 1708.5.
- Consent as Defense. Civil Code section 3515.
- "A cause of action for sexual battery under Civil Code section 1708.5 requires the batterer intend to cause a 'harmful or offensive' contact and the batteree suffer a 'sexually offensive contact.' Moreover, the section is interpreted to require that the batteree did not consent to the contact." (Angie M. v. Superior Court (1995) 37 Cal.App.4th 1217, 1225 [44 Cal.Rptr.2d 197], internal citation omitted.)
- "The element of lack of consent to the particular contact is an essential element of battery." (Rains v. Superior Court (1984) 150 Cal.App.3d 933, 938 [198 Cal.Rptr. 249].)
- "As a general rule, one who consents to a touching cannot recover in an action for battery. . . . However, it is well-recognized a person may place conditions on the consent. If the actor exceeds the terms or conditions of the consent, the consent does not protect the actor from liability for the excessive act." (Ashcraft v. King (1991) 228 Cal.App.3d 604, 609–610 [278 Cal.Rptr. 900].)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 452–488

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 41, Assault and Battery, § 41.01[3] (Matthew Bender)

6 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 58, Assault and Battery, §§ 58.27, 58.55 (Matthew Bender)

2 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 21, Assault and Battery, § 21.27 (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts §§ 12:7–12:9, 12:36–12:39 (Thomson Reuters)

1307–1319. Reserved for Future Use

1320. Intent

[*Name of defendant] acted intentionally if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] intended to [insert facts, e.g., "assault [name of plaintiff]," "commit a battery"] or if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was substantially certain that the [insert facts, e.g., "assault," "battery"] would result from [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] conduct.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This instruction may be used to define intent for other intentional torts, where appropriate.

Sources and Authority

- "In an action for civil battery the element of intent is satisfied if the evidence shows defendant acted with a 'willful disregard' of the plaintiff's rights." (Ashcraft v. King (1991) 228 Cal.App.3d 604, 613 [278 Cal.Rptr. 900], internal citation omitted.)
- "As a general rule, California law recognizes that '. . . every person is presumed to intend the natural and probable consequences of his acts.' Thus, a person who acts willfully may be said to intend ' " 'those consequences which (a) represent the very purpose for which an act is done (regardless of the likelihood of occurrence), or (b) are known to be substantially certain to result (regardless of desire).' " ' The same definition is applied to many intentional torts." (Gomez v. Acquistapace (1996) 50 Cal.App.4th 740, 746 [57 Cal.Rptr.2d 821], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 455

6 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 58, Assault and Battery, § 58.13[1] (Matthew Bender)

2 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 21, Assault and Battery, § 21.20 (Matthew Bender)

1321. Transferred Intent

If [name of defendant] intended to commit a battery or assault on one person, but by mistake or accident committed the act on [name of plaintiff], then the battery or assault is the same as if the intended person had been the victim.

New October 2008

Directions for Use

Use this instruction with CACI No. 1300, Battery—Essential Factual Elements, or CACI No. 1301, Assault—Essential Factual Elements, if it is alleged that the defendant intended to batter or assault one person, and mistakenly or accidentally battered or assaulted the plaintiff.

Sources and Authority

- "While throwing rocks at trees or into the street ordinarily is an innocent and lawful pastime, that same act when directed at another person is wrongful. The evidence at bar . . . warrants an inference that [defendant] threw at [third party] and inadvertently struck [plaintiff]. In such circumstances the doctrine of "transferred intent" renders him liable to [plaintiff]. . . . 'If defendant unlawfully aims at one person and hits another he is guilty of assault and battery on the party he hit, the injury being the direct, natural and probable consequence of the wrongful act.' The rule is not confined to criminal cases, as argued by respondents." (Singer v. Marx (1956) 144 Cal.App.2d 637, 642 [301 P.2d 440], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 455

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 41, Assault and Battery, § 41.01[3][c] (Matthew Bender)

6 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 58, Assault and Battery, §§ 58.13, 58.15 (Matthew Bender)

2 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 21, Assault and Battery, § 21.22 (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts § 12:8 (Thomson Reuters)

1322–1399. Reserved for Future Use

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant] [touch [name of plaintiff]] [or] [cause [name of plaintiff] to be touched] with the intent to harm or offend [him/her/nonbinary pronoun]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Did [name of plaintiff] consent to be touched?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is no, then answer question 3. If you answered yes, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Was [name of plaintiff] harmed [or offended] by [name of defendant]'s conduct?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

[4. Would a reasonable person in [name of plaintiff]'s situation have been offended by the touching?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 4 is yes, then answer question 5. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.]

5. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

[a. Past economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other past economic loss $_____]

Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised October 2004, April 2007, December 2010, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1300, Battery—Essential Factual Elements.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

Give the bracketed words in question 3 and bracketed question 4 only if the offensive nature of the conduct is at issue. In most cases, it will be clear whether the alleged conduct was offensive. The offensive nature of the conduct will most likely not be at issue if the conduct was clearly harmful.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 4 and do not have to categorize "economic" and "noneconomic" damages, especially if it is not a Proposition 51 case. The breakdown of damages is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant] [touch [name of plaintiff]] [or] [cause [name of plaintiff] to be touched] with the intent to harm or offend [him/her/nonbinary pronoun]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Did [name of plaintiff] consent to be touched?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is no, then answer question 3. If you answered yes, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Was [name of plaintiff] harmed [or offended] by [name of defendant]'s conduct?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

[4. Would a reasonable person in [name of plaintiff]'s situation have been offended by the touching?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 4 is yes, then answer question 5. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.]

5. Did [name of defendant] reasonably believe that [name of plaintiff] was going to harm [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/[insert identification of other person]]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 5 is yes, then answer question 6. If you answered no, skip question 6 and answer question 7.

6. Did [name of defendant] use only the amount of force that was reasonably necessary to protect [himself/herself/nonbinary pronoun/[insert identification of other person]]?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 6 is no, then answer question 7. If you answered yes, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

7. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

[a. Past economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other past economic loss $_____]

Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised October 2004, April 2007, December 2010, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1300, Battery—Essential Factual Elements, and CACI No. 1304, Self-Defense/Defense of Others.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

Give the bracketed words in question 3 and bracketed question 4 only if the offensive nature of the conduct is at issue. In most cases, it will be clear whether the alleged conduct was offensive. The offensive nature of the conduct will most likely not be at issue if the conduct was clearly harmful.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 7 and do not have to categorize "economic" and "noneconomic" damages, especially if it is not a Proposition 51 case. The breakdown of damages is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

[1. Did [name of defendant] act, intending to cause a harmful [or an offensive] contact with [name of plaintiff] or intending to place [him/her/nonbinary pronoun] in fear of a harmful or an offensive contact?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Did [name of plaintiff] reasonably believe that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was about to be touched in a harmful [or an offensive] manner?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.]

[1. Did [name of defendant] threaten to touch [name of plaintiff] in a harmful [or an offensive] manner?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Did it reasonably appear to [name of plaintiff] that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was about to be touched in a harmful [or an offensive] manner?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.]

3. Did [name of plaintiff] consent to [name of defendant]'s conduct?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 3 is no, then answer question 4. If you answered yes, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. Was [name of defendant]'s conduct a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

_____ Yes _____ No

If your answer to question 4 is yes, then answer question 5. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

5. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

[a. Past economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other past economic loss $_____]

Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised October 2004, June 2005, April 2007, December 2010, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1301, Assault—Essential Factual Elements.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

As appropriate to the facts of the case, read one of the bracketed alternative sets of questions 1 and 2.

Give the bracketed words in question 2 only if the offensive nature of the conduct is at issue. In most cases, it will be clear whether the alleged conduct was offensive. The offensive nature of the conduct will most likely not be at issue if the conduct was clearly harmful.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 5 and do not have to categorize "economic" and "noneconomic" damages, especially if it is not a Proposition 51 case. The breakdown of damages is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-1303A. Battery by Law Enforcement Officer (Nondeadly Force)

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant] intentionally touch [name of plaintiff] [or cause [name of plaintiff] to be touched]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Did [name of defendant] use unreasonable force on [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Did [name of plaintiff] consent to the use of that force?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is no, then answer question 4. If you answered yes, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. Was [name of defendant]'s use of unreasonable force a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 4 is yes, then answer question 5. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

5. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other past economic loss $_____]

   Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, December 2010, December 2016; Renumbered from CACI No. VF-1303 and Revised May 2021; Revised May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1305A, Battery by Law Enforcement Officer (Nondeadly Force)—Essential Factual Elements.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 5 and do not have to categorize "economic" and "noneconomic" damages, especially if it is not a Proposition 51 case. The breakdown of damages is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-1303B. Battery by Peace Officer (Deadly Force)

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant] intentionally touch [name of plaintiff/decedent] [or cause [name of plaintiff/decedent] to be touched]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Did [name of defendant] use deadly force that was not necessary in defense of human life on [name of plaintiff/decedent]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Was [name of defendant]'s use of deadly force a substantial factor in causing [harm/death] to [name of plaintiff/decedent]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other past economic loss $_____]

   Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

   [b. Future economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New May 2021; Revised May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1305B, Battery by Peace Officer (Deadly Force)—Essential Factual Elements.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 5 and do not have to categorize "economic" and "noneconomic" damages, especially if it is not a Proposition 51 case. The breakdown of damages is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-1304–VF-1399. Reserved for Future Use

FALSE IMPRISONMENT

1400. No Arrest Involved—Essential Factual Elements

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was wrongfully [restrained/confined/detained] by [name of defendant]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] intentionally deprived [name of plaintiff] of [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] freedom of movement by use of [physical barriers/force/threats of force/menace/fraud/deceit/unreasonable duress]; [and]
2. That the [restraint/confinement/detention] compelled [name of plaintiff] to stay or go somewhere for some appreciable time, however short;
3. That [name of plaintiff] did not [knowingly or voluntarily] consent;
4. That [name of plaintiff] was actually harmed; and
5. That [name of defendant]'s conduct was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

[If you find elements 1, 2, and 3 above, but you find that [*name of plaintiff] was not actually harmed, [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] is still entitled to a nominal sum, such as one dollar.]

[[*Name of plaintiff] need not have been aware that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was being [restrained/confined/detained] at the time.]

New September 2003; Revised December 2010, December 2011, May 2020

Directions for Use

In element 3, include the words "knowingly or voluntarily" if it is alleged that the plaintiff's consent was obtained by fraud. (See Scofield v. Critical Air Medicine, Inc. (1996) 45 Cal.App.4th 990, 1006, fn. 16 [52 Cal.Rptr.2d 915].)

Include the paragraph about nominal damages if there is a dispute about whether the plaintiff was actually harmed. (See Scofield, supra, 45 Cal.App.4th at p. 1007.) Include the last paragraph if applicable. (See Id. at pp. 1006–1007.)

If the defendant alleges the existence of a lawful privilege, the judge should read the applicable affirmative defense instructions immediately following this one.

Sources and Authority

- "The crime of false imprisonment is defined by Penal Code section 236 as the 'unlawful violation of the personal liberty of another.' The tort is identically defined. As we recently formulated it, the tort consists of the ' "nonconsensual, intentional confinement of a person, without lawful privilege, for an appreciable length of time, however short." ' That length of time can be as brief as 15 minutes. Restraint may be effectuated by means of physical force, threat of force or of arrest, confinement by physical barriers, or by means of any other form of unreasonable duress." (Fermino v. Fedco, Inc. (1994) 7 Cal.4th 701, 716 [30 Cal.Rptr.2d 18, 872 P.2d 559], internal citations omitted.)

- " '[T]he tort [of false imprisonment] consists of the " 'nonconsensual, intentional confinement of a person, without lawful privilege, for an appreciable length of time, however short.' " ' " (Scofield, supra, 45 Cal.App.4th at p. 1001, internal citations omitted.)
- "The only mental state required to be shown to prove false imprisonment is the intent to confine, or to create a similar intrusion." (Fermino, supra, 7 Cal.4th at p. 716.)
- "[False imprisonment] requires some restraint of the person and that he be deprived of his liberty or compelled to stay where he does not want to remain, or compelled to go where he does not wish to go; and that the person be restrained of his liberty without sufficient complaint or authority." (Collins v. County of Los Angeles (1966) 241 Cal.App.2d 451, 459–460 [50 Cal.Rptr. 586], internal citations omitted.)
- "[I]t is clear that force or the threat of force are not the only means by which the tort of false imprisonment can be achieved. Fraud or deceit or any unreasonable duress are alternative methods of accomplishing the tort." (Scofield, supra, 45 Cal.App.4th at p. 1002, internal citations omitted.)
- "Because '[t]here is no real or free consent when it is obtained through fraud' . . . the [plaintiffs'] confinement on the aircraft was nonconsensual and therefore actionable as a false imprisonment." (Scofield, supra, 45 Cal.App.4th at p. 1006, fn. 16, internal citations omitted.)
- "[C]ontemporaneous awareness of the false imprisonment is not, and need not be, an essential element of the tort." (Scofield, supra, 45 Cal.App.4th at p. 1006.)
- "[T]he critical question as to causation in intentional torts is whether the actor's conduct is a substantial factor in bringing about the type of harm which he intended from his original act." (Null v. City of Los Angeles (1988) 206 Cal.App.3d 1528, 1536, fn. 6 [254 Cal.Rptr. 492], internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]he law of this state clearly allows a cause of action for false imprisonment notwithstanding the fact a plaintiff suffered merely nominal damage." (Scofield, supra, 45 Cal.App.4th at p. 1007.)
- "In addition to recovery for emotional suffering and humiliation, one subjected to false imprisonment is entitled to compensation for other resultant harm, such as loss of time, physical discomfort or inconvenience, any resulting physical illness or injury to health, business interruption, and damage to reputation, as well as punitive damages in appropriate cases." (Scofield, supra, 45 Cal.App.4th at p. 1009, internal citation omitted.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 499–502

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 42, False Imprisonment and False Arrest, §§ 42.01, 42.07, 42.20 (Matthew Bender)

22 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 257, False Imprisonment, § 257.17 (Matthew Bender)

10 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 103, False Imprisonment, § 103.40 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1 California Civil Practice: Torts §§ 13:8–13:10 (Thomson Reuters)

1401. False Arrest Without Warrant by Peace Officer—Essential Factual Elements

---

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was wrongfully arrested by [name of defendant]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] arrested [name of plaintiff] without a warrant;
2. That [name of plaintiff] was [actually] harmed; and
3. That [name of defendant]'s conduct was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

Give CACI No. 1402, False Arrest Without Warrant—Affirmative Defense—Peace Officer—Probable Cause to Arrest, if applicable, immediately after this instruction.

If plaintiff is seeking nominal damages as an alternative to actual damages, insert the following paragraph above element 2:

> If you find the above, then the law assumes that [name of plaintiff] has been harmed and [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] is entitled to a nominal sum such as one dollar. [Name of plaintiff] is also entitled to additional damages if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] proves the following:

The second sentence of the above paragraph, along with the final two elements of this instruction, should be omitted if plaintiff is seeking nominal damages only. Read "actually" in the second element only if nominal damages are also being sought.

Sources and Authority

- "Arrest" Defined. Penal Code section 834.
- Public Employee Liability for False Arrest. Government Code section 820.4.
- "Peace Officer" Defined. Penal Code section 830 et seq.
- "False arrest and false imprisonment are the same tort. False arrest is a way of committing false imprisonment." (Cox v. Griffin (2019) 34 Cal.App.5th 440, 446, fn. 6 [246 Cal.Rptr.3d 185].)
- A person is liable for false imprisonment if he or she " 'authorizes, encourages, directs, or assists an officer to do an unlawful act, or procures an unlawful arrest, without process, or participates in the unlawful arrest . . . .' " (Du Lac v. Perma Trans Products, Inc. (1980) 103 Cal.App.3d 937, 941 [163 Cal.Rptr. 335], internal citation omitted.) Where a defendant "knowingly [gives] the police false or materially incomplete information, of a character that could be expected to stimulate an arrest" . . . "such conduct can be a basis for imposing liability for false imprisonment." (Id. at p. 942.)

- "It has long been the law that a cause of action for false imprisonment is stated where it is alleged that there was an arrest without process, followed by imprisonment and damages. Upon proof of those facts the burden is on the defendant to prove justification for the arrest." (Cervantez v. J.C. Penney Co. (1979) 24 Cal.3d 579, 592 [156 Cal.Rptr. 198, 595 P.2d 975].)
- "[T]he elements of the tort of false arrest are: defendant arrested plaintiffs without a warrant, plaintiffs were harmed, and defendant's conduct was a substantial factor in causing the harm." (Carcamo v. Los Angeles County Sheriff's Dept. (2021) 68 Cal.App.5th 608, 616 [283 Cal.Rptr.3d 647].)
- "False imprisonment and malicious prosecution are mutually inconsistent torts and only one, if either, will lie in this case. In a malicious criminal prosecution, the detention was malicious but it was accomplished properly, i.e., by means of a procedurally valid arrest. In contrast, if the plaintiff is arrested pursuant to a procedurally improper warrant or warrantless arrest, the remedy is a cause of action for false imprisonment." (Cummings v. Fire Ins. Exch. (1988) 202 Cal.App.3d 1407, 1422 [249 Cal.Rptr. 568].)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 507–513

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 42, False Imprisonment and False Arrest, § 42.23 (Matthew Bender)

22 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 257, False Imprisonment (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts § 13:20 (Thomson Reuters)

1402. False Arrest Without Warrant—Affirmative Defense—Peace Officer—Probable Cause to Arrest

---

[*Name of defendant] claims the arrest was not wrongful because [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] had the authority to arrest [name of plaintiff] without a warrant.

[If [*name of defendant] proves that [insert facts that, if proved, would constitute reasonable cause to believe that plaintiff had committed a crime in defendant's presence], then [name of defendant] had the authority to arrest [name of plaintiff] without a warrant.]

[*or]

[If [*name of defendant] proves that [insert facts that, if proved, would establish that defendant had reasonable cause to believe that plaintiff had committed a felony, whether or not a felony had actually been committed], then [name of defendant] had the authority to arrest [name of plaintiff] without a warrant.]

New September 2003

Directions for Use

In the brackets, the judge must insert the fact or facts that are actually controverted and that may be necessary to arrive at the probable cause determination. There may be one or more facts or combinations of facts that are necessary to make this determination, in which case they can be phrased in the alternative.

If a criminal act is alleged as justification, it may be necessary to instruct whether the crime is a felony, misdemeanor, or public offense.

Penal Code section 836 provides, in part, that a warrantless arrest may be made if a person has committed a felony, although not in the officer's presence. While the requirement of probable cause is not explicitly stated, it would seem that the officer must always have probable cause at the time of the arrest and that subsequent conviction of a felony does not sanitize an improper arrest.

If the first bracketed paragraph is used, the judge should include "in the officer's presence" as part of the facts that the jury needs to find if there is a factual dispute on this point.

Sources and Authority

- Arrest Without a Warrant. Penal Code section 836(a).
- Felonies and Misdemeanors. Penal Code section 17(a).
- "Peace Officers" Defined. Penal Code section 830 et seq.
- "An officer is not liable for false imprisonment for the arrest without a warrant of a person whom he has reasonable grounds to believe is guilty of a crime." (Allen v. McCoy (1933) 135 Cal.App. 500, 507–508 [27 P.2d 423].)

- "[P]robable cause for arrest in a criminal proceeding is the same as probable cause in a civil case for damages alleging false arrest." (Carcamo v. Los Angeles County Sheriff's Dept. (2021) 68 Cal.App.5th 608, 620–621 [283 Cal.Rptr.3d 647].)
- "It has long been the law that a cause of action for false imprisonment is stated where it is alleged that there was an arrest without process, followed by imprisonment and damages. Upon proof of those facts the burden is on the defendant to prove justification for the arrest. Considerations of both a practical and policy nature underlie this rule. The existence of justification is a matter which ordinarily lies peculiarly within the knowledge of the defendant. The plaintiff would encounter almost insurmountable practical problems in attempting to prove the negative proposition of the nonexistence of any justification. This rule also serves to assure that official intermeddling is justified, for it is a serious matter to accuse someone of committing a crime and to arrest him without the protection of the warrant process." (Cervantez v. J. C. Penney Co. (1979) 24 Cal.3d 579, 592 [156 Cal.Rptr. 198, 595 P.2d 975], footnote and internal citations omitted.)
- "We look to whether facts known to the arresting officer 'at the moment the arrest was made' ' "would persuade someone of 'reasonable caution' that the person to be arrested has committed a crime." ' " (Cornell v. City & County of San Francisco (2017) 17 Cal.App.5th 766, 779 [225 Cal.Rptr.3d 356], internal citations omitted.)
- "If the facts that gave rise to the arrest are undisputed, the issue of probable cause is a question of law for the trial court. When, however, the facts that gave rise to the arrest are controverted, the trial court must instruct the jury as to what facts, if established, would constitute probable cause. 'The trier of fact's function in false arrest cases is to resolve conflicts in the evidence. Accordingly, where the evidence is conflicting with respect to probable cause, " 'it [is] the duty of the court to instruct the jury as to what facts, if established, would constitute probable cause.' " . . . The jury then decides whether the evidence supports the necessary factual findings.' " (Levin v. United Air Lines, Inc. (2008) 158 Cal.App.4th 1002, 1018–1019 [70 Cal.Rptr.3d 535], internal citations omitted.)
- "The legal standard we apply to assess probable cause is an objective one in which the subjective motivations of the arresting officers have no role. But it is an overstatement to say that what is in the mind of an arresting officer is wholly irrelevant, for the objective test of reasonableness is simply a measure by which we assess whether the circumstances as subjectively perceived by the officer provide a reasonable basis for the seizure." (Cornell, supra, 17 Cal.App.5th at p. 779, internal citations omitted.)
- "The arrests of plaintiffs were justified only if defendants can meet their burden to show the arresting officer had probable cause, which is objectively reasonable cause to believe plaintiffs committed a crime. 'California courts speak of "reasonable cause" and "probable cause" interchangeably.' Can a law enforcement agency have objectively reasonable cause to believe plaintiffs committed a crime if deputies arrest them for violating a statute our Supreme Court declared void more than half a century ago? The answer is no." (Carcamo, supra, 68 Cal.App.5th at 618.)

- " 'Presence' is not mere physical proximity but is determined by whether the offense is apparent to the officer's senses." (People v. Sjosten (1968) 262 Cal.App.2d 539, 543–544 [68 Cal.Rptr. 832], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 509, 511

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 42, False Imprisonment and False Arrest, § 42.23 (Matthew Bender)

22 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 257, False Imprisonment, § 257.20 (Matthew Bender)

10 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 103, False Imprisonment, § 103.65 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts §§ 13:22–13:24 (Thomson Reuters)

1403. False Arrest Without Warrant by Private Citizen—Essential Factual Elements

---

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was wrongfully arrested by [name of defendant]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] intentionally caused [name of plaintiff] to be arrested without a warrant; [and]
2. That [name of plaintiff] was [actually] harmed; and
3. That [name of defendant]'s conduct was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

[A private person does not need to physically restrain a suspect in order to make a citizen's arrest. A private person can make a citizen's arrest by calling for a peace officer, reporting the offense, and pointing out the suspect.]

New September 2003; Revised December 2011

Directions for Use

Give CACI No. 1404, False Arrest Without Warrant—Affirmative Defense—Private Citizen—Probable Cause to Arrest, if applicable, immediately after this instruction.

If the plaintiff is seeking nominal damages as an alternative to actual damages, insert the following paragraph above element 2:

> If you find the above, then the law assumes that [name of plaintiff] has been harmed and [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] is entitled to a nominal sum such as one dollar. [Name of plaintiff] is also entitled to additional damages if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] proves the following:

The second sentence, along with the final two elements of this instruction, should be omitted if plaintiff is seeking nominal damages only. Read "actually" in the second element only if nominal damages are also being sought.

Sources and Authority

- "Arrest" Defined. Penal Code section 834.
- "False arrest and false imprisonment are the same tort. False arrest is a way of committing false imprisonment." (Cox v. Griffin (2019) 34 Cal.App.5th 440, 446, fn. 6 [246 Cal.Rptr.3d 185].)
- "It has long been the law that a cause of action for false imprisonment is stated where it is alleged that there was an arrest without process, followed by imprisonment and damages. Upon proof of those facts the burden is on the defendant to prove justification for the arrest." (Cervantez v. J.C. Penney Co.

(1979) 24 Cal.3d 579, 592 [156 Cal.Rptr. 198, 595 P.2d 975].)

- " '[T]he delegation of the physical act of arrest need not be express, but may be implied from the citizen's act of summoning an officer, reporting the offense, and pointing out the suspect.' " (Johanson v. Dept. of Motor Vehicles (1995) 36 Cal.App.4th 1209, 1216 [43 Cal.Rptr.2d 42], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 511, 512

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 42, False Imprisonment and False Arrest, § 42.22 (Matthew Bender)

22 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 257, False Imprisonment (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts §§ 13:8–13:10 (Thomson Reuters)

1404. False Arrest Without Warrant—Affirmative Defense—Private Citizen—Probable Cause to Arrest

---

[*Name of defendant] claims the citizen's arrest was not wrongful because [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] had the authority to cause [name of plaintiff] to be arrested without a warrant.

[If [*name of defendant] proves that [name of plaintiff] committed or attempted to commit a crime in [name of defendant]'s presence, then the arrest was lawful.]

[*or]

[If [*name of defendant] proves that a felony was committed and that [insert facts, that if proved, would establish that defendant had reasonable cause to believe that plaintiff had committed a felony], then the arrest was lawful.]

New September 2003

Directions for Use

The judge must insert in the brackets the fact or facts that are actually controverted and that may be necessary to arrive at the probable cause determination. There may be one or more facts or combinations of facts that are necessary to make this determination, in which case they can be phrased in the alternative.

If a criminal act is alleged as justification, it may be necessary to instruct whether the crime is a felony, misdemeanor, or public offense.

Penal Code section 837 provides, in part, that a warrantless arrest may be made if a person has committed a felony, although not in the citizen's presence. While the requirement of probable cause is not explicitly stated, it would seem that the citizen must always have probable cause at the time of the arrest and that subsequent conviction of a felony does not sanitize an improper arrest.

Sources and Authority

- Citizen's Arrest. Penal Code section 837.
- Felonies and Misdemeanors. Penal Code section 17(a).
- "What is probable cause, as has been often announced, is not a question of fact for the jury, but one of law for the court, to be decided in accordance with the circumstances at the time of the detention, unhampered by the outcome of the charge against the plaintiff of the public offense or by the conclusions of the trial court." (Collyer v. S.H. Kress Co. (1936) 5 Cal.2d 175, 181 [54 P.2d 20], internal citations omitted.)
- " 'Presence' is not mere physical proximity but is determined by whether the offense is apparent to the [person]'s senses." (People v. Sjosten (1968) 262 Cal.App.2d 539, 543–544 [68 Cal.Rptr. 832], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 511, 512

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 42, False Imprisonment and False Arrest, § 42.22 (Matthew Bender)

22 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 257, False Imprisonment, § 257.19 (Matthew Bender)

10 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 103, False Imprisonment, § 103.60 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts § 13:11 (Thomson Reuters)

1405. False Arrest With Warrant—Essential Factual Elements

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was wrongfully arrested by [name of defendant]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. [That [name of defendant] arrested [name of plaintiff];]

   [*or]

   [That [*name of defendant] intentionally caused [name of plaintiff] to be wrongfully arrested;]

2. That [insert facts supporting the invalidity of the warrant or the unlawfulness of the arrest, e.g., "the warrant for [name of plaintiff]'s arrest had expired"];

3. That [name of plaintiff] was [actually] harmed; and

4. That [name of defendant]'s conduct was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New September 2003; Revised December 2011

Directions for Use

CACI No. 1406, False Arrest With Warrant—Peace Officer—Affirmative Defense—"Good-Faith" Exception, should be given after this instruction if that defense is asserted.

If the plaintiff is seeking nominal damages as an alternative to actual damages, insert the following paragraph above element 3:

> If you find both of the above, then the law assumes that [name of plaintiff] has been harmed and [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] is entitled to a nominal sum such as one dollar. [Name of plaintiff] is also entitled to additional damages if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] proves the following:

The second sentence of the above paragraph, along with the final two elements of this instruction, should be omitted if plaintiff is seeking nominal damages only. Read "actually" in the third element only if nominal damages are also being sought.

Sources and Authority

- Penal Code section 834.
- Public Employee Liability for False Arrest. Government Code section 820.4.
- "False arrest and false imprisonment are the same tort. False arrest is a way of committing false imprisonment." (Cox v. Griffin (2019) 34 Cal.App.5th 440, 446, fn. 6 [246 Cal.Rptr.3d 185].)
- " 'The action for false imprisonment is frequently alleged to have been committed by reason of some wrongful arrest under some pretended or void order of some court, in which class of false imprisonment cases it is incumbent on the plaintiff to allege facts showing or tending to show that such arrest, under such court procedure, was wrongful, unauthorized and without any probable cause; . . . .' " (Peters v. Bigelow (1934) 137 Cal.App. 135, 139 [30 P.2d 450].)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 514–516

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 42, False Imprisonment and False Arrest, § 42.25 (Matthew Bender)

22 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 257, False Imprisonment, § 257.20 (Matthew Bender)

10 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 103, False Imprisonment, § 103.77 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts §§ 13:26–13:30 (Thomson Reuters)

1406. False Arrest With Warrant—Peace Officer—Affirmative Defense—"Good-Faith" Exception

---

[*Name of defendant] claims that the arrest was not wrongful. To succeed, [name of defendant] must prove all of the following:

1. That the arrest warrant would have appeared valid to a reasonably intelligent and informed person;
2. That [name of defendant] believed the warrant was valid; and
3. That [name of defendant] had a reasonable belief that [name of plaintiff] was the person referred to in the warrant.

If [*name of defendant] has proven all of the above, then the arrest was not wrongful.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

The absence-of-malice requirement is satisfied if the officer believes the warrant is valid and the warrant is valid on its face, notwithstanding any personal hostility or ill will.

Sources and Authority

- Immunity for Good-Faith Acts. Civil Code section 43.55(a).
- "With regard to Civil Code section 43.55, the immunity set forth therein for arrests made pursuant to a regular warrant is only conditional. A failure of any condition prevents the immunity from attaching to a public entity or employee." (Harden v. Bay Area Rapid Transit Dist. (1989) 215 Cal.App.3d 7, 14 [263 Cal.Rptr. 549].)
- " 'Malice,' as that term is used in section 43.55, refers not to the actual physical execution of the warrant, but to the officer's state of mind in procuring or executing the warrant. For instance, malice for purposes of section 43.55 has been found in situations where the officer purposefully withheld exculpatory evidence from the magistrate issuing the arrest warrant, where the officer knowingly used false information in order to obtain the warrant, or where the officer executes the warrant with knowledge that it has been recalled or is no longer valid." (Ting v. U.S. (9th Cir. 1991) 927 F.2d 1504, 1514, internal citations omitted.)
- Courts have described the meaning of a warrant "regular on its face" as follows: "Unless there is a clear absence of jurisdiction on the part of the court or magistrate issuing the process, it is sufficient if upon its face it [the warrant] appears to be valid in the judgment of an ordinarily intelligent and informed layman." (Allison v. County of Ventura (1977) 68 Cal.App.3d 689, 697 [137 Cal.Rptr. 542].)

- "Peace officers are not required to investigate the supportive legal proceedings from which a warrant issues. However, they are required to exercise the judgment of an 'ordinarily intelligent and informed layman' to observe the blatant and patent inadequacy of a warrant emanating from a civil action which directs arrest and neither sets bail nor informs the arrestee of the offense charged for which arrest is ordered." (Allison, supra, 68 Cal.App.3d at p. 703.)
- "A police officer must use reasonable prudence and diligence to determine whether a party being arrested is the one described in the warrant. The officer may not refuse to act upon information offered him which discloses the warrant is being served on the wrong person. But, the prudence and diligence required of an arresting officer in determining whether to make an arrest must be balanced against the need to act swiftly and to make on-the-spot evaluations, often under chaotic conditions." (Lopez v. City of Oxnard (1989) 207 Cal.App.3d 1, 7 [254 Cal.Rptr. 556].)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 514–516

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 42, False Imprisonment and False Arrest, § 42.25 (Matthew Bender)

22 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 257, False Imprisonment (Matthew Bender)

10 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 103, False Imprisonment (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts §§ 13:26–13:30 (Thomson Reuters)

1407. Unnecessary Delay in Processing/Releasing—Essential Factual Elements

---

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was wrongfully confined by [name of defendant]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] held [name of plaintiff] in custody;
2. That there was an unnecessary delay [insert facts, e.g., "in taking [name of plaintiff] before a judge" or "in releasing [name of plaintiff]"];
3. That [name of plaintiff] did not consent to the delay;
4. That [name of plaintiff] was [actually] harmed; and
5. That [name of defendant]'s conduct was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New September 2003; Revised December 2011

Directions for Use

If the plaintiff is seeking nominal damages as an alternative to actual damages, insert the following paragraph above element 4:

> If you find the above, then the law assumes that [name of plaintiff] has been harmed and [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] is entitled to a nominal sum such as one dollar. [Name of plaintiff] is also entitled to additional damages if [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] proves the following:

The second sentence of the above paragraph, along with the final two elements of this instruction, should be omitted if plaintiff is seeking nominal damages only. Read "actually" in the fourth element only if nominal damages are also being sought.

Sources and Authority

- "Arrest" Defined. Penal Code section 834.
- Time for Arraignment. Penal Code section 825(a).
- Public Employee Liability for False Arrest. Government Code section 820.4.
- "The critical factor is the necessity for any delay in arraignment. These provisions do not authorize a two-day detention in all cases. Instead, 'a limit [is placed] upon what may be considered a necessary delay, and a detention of less than two days, if unreasonable under the circumstances, is in violation of the statute' and of the Constitution." (People v. Thompson (1980) 27 Cal.3d 303, 329 [165 Cal.Rptr. 289, 611 P.2d 883].)
- " '[F]alse arrest' and 'false imprisonment' are not separate torts. False arrest is but one way of committing a false imprisonment, and they are distinguishable only in terminology." (Collins v. City and County of San Francisco (1975) 50 Cal.App.3d 671, 673 [123 Cal.Rptr. 525].)

- "In determining which delays are necessary, this court has rejected arguments that the delay was 'not unusual' or made 'the work of the police and the district attorney easier.' As the Court of Appeal recently observed, '[t]here is no authority to delay for the purpose of investigating the case. Subject to obvious health considerations the only permissible delay between the time of arrest and bringing the accused before a magistrate is the time necessary: to complete the arrest; to book the accused; to transport the accused to court; or the district attorney to evaluate the evidence for the limited purpose of determining what charge, if any, is to be filed; and to complete the necessary clerical and administrative tasks to prepare a formal pleading.' " (Youngblood v. Gates (1988) 200 Cal.App.3d 1302, 1319 [246 Cal.Rptr. 775], internal citations omitted.)
- "Although both false imprisonment and malicious prosecution may cause a person to be restrained or confined, under Asgari (Asgari v. City of Los Angeles (1997) 15 Cal.4th 744 [63 Cal.Rptr.2d 842, 937 P.2d 273]) only damages attributable to injuries arising from false arrest and false imprisonment are compensable in an action under state law against a public entity and its employees. False imprisonment ends at the point malicious prosecution begins which, under Asgari, is the point at which the person is arraigned." (County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (2000) 78 Cal.App.4th 212, 220–221 [92 Cal.Rptr.2d 668].)
- "[W]here the arrest is lawful, subsequent unreasonable delay in taking the person before a magistrate will not affect the legality of the arrest, although it will subject the offending person to liability for so much of the imprisonment as occurs after the period of necessary or reasonable delay." (Dragna v. White (1955) 45 Cal.2d 469, 473 [289 P.2d 428].)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 518

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 42, False Imprisonment and False Arrest, § 42.26 (Matthew Bender)

22 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 257, False Imprisonment, § 257.24 (Matthew Bender)

10 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 103, False Imprisonment, § 103.110 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts §§ 13:31–13:34 (Thomson Reuters)

1408. Affirmative Defense—Police Officer's Lawful Authority to Detain

---

[*Name of defendant] claims that the detention was not wrongful because [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] had a right to detain [name of plaintiff] for questioning or other limited investigation.

If [*name of defendant] has proven that [insert facts, that if established, would constitute a reasonable suspicion], then [name of defendant] had a right to detain [name of plaintiff] for questioning or other limited investigation.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

This instruction is intended to apply to false imprisonment actions not involving an arrest. The inserted facts must support a finding of reasonable suspicion as a matter of law.

If the factual issues are too complicated, consider bifurcating the trial.

Sources and Authority

- "In an action for false arrest and imprisonment, the question of reasonable or probable cause is ordinarily one for the court, and not for the jury. When the facts are admitted or are beyond controversy, the question is to be determined by the court alone. When the facts are controverted or the evidence conflicting, the determination of their legal effect by the court is necessarily hypothetical and the jury is to be told that if it finds the facts in a designated way such facts do or do not amount to probable cause." (Whaley v. Jansen (1962) 208 Cal.App.2d 222, 227 [25 Cal.Rptr. 184].)
- "Although the line may at times be a fine one, there is a well-settled distinction in law between an arrest and a detention. A detention is a lesser intrusion upon a person's liberty requiring less cause and consisting of briefly stopping a person for questioning or other limited investigation." (Cervantez v. J.C. Penney Co. (1979) 24 Cal.3d 579, 591, fn. 5 [156 Cal.Rptr. 198, 595 P.2d 975].)
- Government Code section 820.4 provides: "A public employee is not liable for his act or omission, exercising due care, in the execution or enforcement of any law. Nothing in this section exonerates a public employee from liability for false arrest or false imprisonment."
- "The Fourth Amendment to the United States Constitution prohibits seizures of persons, including brief investigative stops, when they are 'unreasonable.' Our state Constitution has a similar provision. A seizure occurs whenever a police officer 'by means of physical force or show of authority' restrains the liberty of a person to walk away." (People v. Souza (1994) 9 Cal.4th 224, 229 [36

Cal.Rptr.2d 569, 885 P.2d 982], internal citations omitted.)

- "A detention . . . has been said to occur 'if the suspect is not free to leave at will—if he is kept in the officer's presence by physical restraint, threat of force, or assertion of authority.' " (Evans v. City of Bakersfield (1994) 22 Cal.App.4th 321, 330 [27 Cal.Rptr.2d 406], internal citation omitted.)
- "It is settled that circumstances short of probable cause to make an arrest may justify a police officer stopping and briefly detaining a person for questioning or other limited investigation." (In re Tony C. (1978) 21 Cal.3d 888, 892 [148 Cal.Rptr. 366, 582 P.2d 957].)
- "A detention is reasonable under the Fourth Amendment when the detaining officer can point to specific articulable facts that, considered in light of the totality of the circumstances, provide some objective manifestation that the person detained may be involved in criminal activity." (Souza, supra, 9 Cal.4th at p. 231.)
- "The state bears the burden of justifying a detention, as with all warrantless intrusions." (People v. Wilkins (1986) 186 Cal.App.3d 804, 809 [231 Cal.Rptr. 1], internal citation omitted.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 504

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 42, False Imprisonment and False Arrest, § 42.20 (Matthew Bender)

22 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 257, False Imprisonment, § 257.20 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

10 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 103, False Imprisonment, § 103.65 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1409. Common Law Right to Detain for Investigation

[*Name of defendant] claims that the detention was not wrongful because [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] had a right to detain [name of plaintiff]. To succeed, [name of defendant] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] was the [owner/employer/employee/agent] of a business;
2. That [name of defendant] had reasonable grounds to believe that [name of plaintiff] had wrongfully [taken or damaged merchandise or other personal property] [secured services] from the business. If you find that [insert facts, that if established, would constitute reasonable grounds], then [name of defendant] had reasonable grounds to detain [name of plaintiff];
3. That [name of defendant] detained [name of plaintiff] for a reasonable amount of time; and
4. That [name of defendant] detained [name of plaintiff] in a reasonable manner.

New September 2003

Sources and Authority

- "[W]e conclude that the merchant's probable cause defense is limited to suits based upon a detention and does not extend to suits based upon an arrest." (Cervantez v. J.C. Penney Co. (1979) 24 Cal.3d 579, 591 [156 Cal.Rptr. 198, 595 P.2d 975].)
- "Ordinarily, the owner of property, in the exercise of his inherent right to protect the same, is justified in restraining another who seeks to interfere with or injure it." (Collyer v. S.H. Kress Co. (1936) 5 Cal.2d 175, 180 [54 P.2d 20], internal citation omitted.)
- "Merchants who detain individuals whom they have probable cause to believe are about to injure their property are privileged against a false imprisonment action. The detention itself must be carried out for a reasonable time and in a reasonable manner." (Fermino v. Fedco, Inc. (1994) 7 Cal.4th 701, 716 [30 Cal.Rptr.2d 18, 872 P.2d 559].)
- "We note that the merchant's privilege is a defense to a false imprisonment action. As such, the lack of that privilege on defendant's part need not be specifically pleaded by plaintiff. Although a false imprisonment must involve an 'unlawful' restraint on an individual's liberty, [plaintiff's] allegations sufficiently plead that her confinement was unlawful. Moreover, the question of whether a detainment was reasonable is generally a question of fact." (Fermino, supra, 7 Cal.4th at p. 723, fn. 8, internal citations omitted.)

- Penal Code section 490.5(f) provides, in part: "A merchant may detain a person for a reasonable time for the purpose of conducting an investigation in a reasonable manner whenever the merchant has probable cause to believe the person to be detained is attempting to unlawfully take or has unlawfully taken merchandise from the merchant's premises."

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 504, 505

3 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 42, False Imprisonment and False Arrest, § 42.20 (Matthew Bender)

22 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 257, False Imprisonment, § 257.17 (Matthew Bender)

10 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 103, False Imprisonment, § 103.41 (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Practice: Torts § 13:11 (Thomson Reuters)

1410–1499. Reserved for Future Use

VF-1400. False Imprisonment—No Arrest Involved

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant] intentionally deprive [name of plaintiff] of [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] freedom of movement by use of [physical barriers/force/threats of force/menace/fraud/deceit/unreasonable duress]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Did [name of plaintiff] consent?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is no, then answer question 3. If you answered yes, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Was [name of defendant]'s conduct a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other past economic loss $_____]

   Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

   [b. Future economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, December 2010, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1400, No Arrest Involved—Essential Factual Elements.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If the jury returns a verdict of no harm, the plaintiff is still entitled to an award of nominal damages, such as one dollar. If nominal damages are being sought, modify the directions after question 3 to direct the jury to skip question 4 and answer question 5 if they find no harm. Then add a new question 5: "What amount of nominal damages do you award [name of plaintiff]?" If this is done, add a direction after question 4 that the jury should not answer question 5. Please note that the committee has found no cases requiring the jury to determine the amount of nominal damages.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 4 and do not have to categorize "economic" and "noneconomic" damages, especially if it is not a Proposition 51 case. The breakdown of damages is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest.

This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-1401. False Imprisonment—No Arrest Involved—Affirmative Defense—Right to Detain for Investigation

---

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant] intentionally deprive [name of plaintiff] of [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] freedom of movement by use of [physical barriers/force/threats of force/menace/fraud/deceit/unreasonable duress]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Did [name of defendant] have the right to detain [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is no, then answer question 3. If you answered yes, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Did [name of plaintiff] consent?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is no, then answer question 4. If you answered yes, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. Was [name of defendant]'s conduct a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 4 is yes, then answer question 5. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

5. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other past economic loss $_____]

Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, December 2010, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1400, No Arrest Involved—Essential Factual Elements, and CACI No. 1409, Common Law Right to Detain for Investigation.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If the jury returns a verdict of no harm, the plaintiff is still entitled to an award of nominal damages, such as one dollar. If nominal damages are being sought, modify the directions after question 4 to direct the jury to skip question 5 and answer question 6 if they find no harm. Then add a new question 6: "What amount of nominal damages do you award [name of plaintiff]?" If this is done, add a direction after question 5 that the jury should not answer question 6. Please note that the committee has found no cases requiring the jury to determine the amount of nominal damages.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 5 and do not have to categorize "economic" and "noneconomic" damages, especially if it is not a Proposition 51 case. The breakdown of damages is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-1402. False Arrest Without Warrant

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant] [arrest [name of plaintiff]/intentionally cause [name of plaintiff] to be arrested] without a warrant?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Was [name of defendant]'s conduct a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other past economic loss $_____]

   Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

   [b. Future economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other future economic loss $_____]

   Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

   [c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

   [d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

   TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, December 2010, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1401, False Arrest Without Warrant by Peace Officer—Essential Factual Elements.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If the jury returns a verdict of no harm, the plaintiff is still entitled to an award of nominal damages, such as one dollar. If nominal damages are being sought, modify the directions after question 2 to direct the jury to skip question 3 and answer question 4 if they find no harm. Then add a new question 4: "What amount of nominal damages do you award [name of plaintiff]?" If this is done, add a direction after question 3 that the jury should not answer question 4. Please note that the committee has found no cases requiring the jury to determine the amount of nominal damages.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 3 and do not have to categorize "economic" and "noneconomic" damages, especially if it is not a Proposition 51 case. The breakdown of damages is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-1403. False Arrest Without Warrant by Peace Officer—Affirmative Defense—Probable Cause to Arrest

---

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant] arrest [name of plaintiff] without a warrant?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. [Did [insert facts that, if proved, would constitute reasonable cause to believe that plaintiff had committed a crime in defendant's presence]?]

   [or]

   [Did [*insert facts that, if proved, would establish that defendant had reasonable cause to believe that plaintiff had committed a felony, whether or not a felony had actually been committed]?]

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is no, then answer question 3. If you answered yes, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Was [name of defendant]'s conduct a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other past economic loss $_____]

   Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, December 2010, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1401, False Arrest Without Warrant by Peace Officer—Essential Factual Elements, and CACI No. 1402, False Arrest Without Warrant—Affirmative Defense—Peace Officer—Probable Cause to Arrest.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If the jury returns a verdict of no harm, the plaintiff is still entitled to an award of nominal damages, such as one dollar. If nominal damages are being sought, modify the directions after question 3 to direct the jury to skip question 4 and answer question 5 if they find no harm. Then add a new question 5: "What amount of nominal damages do you award [name of plaintiff]?" If this is done, add a direction after question 4 that the jury should not answer question 5. Please note that the committee has found no cases requiring the jury to determine the amount of nominal damages.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 4 and do not have to categorize "economic" and "noneconomic" damages, especially if it is not a Proposition 51 case. The breakdown of damages is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-1404. False Arrest Without Warrant by Private Citizen—Affirmative Defense—Probable Cause to Arrest

---

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant] intentionally cause [name of plaintiff] to be arrested without a warrant?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. [Did [name of plaintiff] commit or attempt to commit a crime in [name of defendant]'s presence?]

   [or]

   [Was a felony committed and [*insert facts, that if proved, would establish that defendant had reasonable cause to believe that plaintiff had committed a felony]?]

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is no, then answer question 3. If you answered yes, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Was [name of defendant]'s conduct a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other past economic loss $_____]

   Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, December 2010, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1403, False Arrest Without Warrant by Private Citizen—Essential Factual Elements, and CACI No. 1404, False Arrest Without Warrant—Affirmative Defense—Private Citizen—Probable Cause to Arrest.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 4 and do not have to categorize "economic" and "noneconomic" damages, especially if it is not a Proposition 51 case. The breakdown of damages is optional depending on the circumstances.

If the jury returns a verdict of no harm, the plaintiff is still entitled to an award of nominal damages, such as one dollar. If nominal damages are being sought, modify the directions after question 3 to direct the jury to skip question 4 and answer question 5 if they find no harm. Then add a new question 5: "What amount of nominal damages do you award [name of plaintiff]?" If this is done, add a direction after question 4 that the jury should not answer question 5. Please note that the committee has found no cases requiring the jury to determine the amount of nominal damages.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-1405. False Arrest With Warrant

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant] [arrest [name of plaintiff]/intentionally cause [name of plaintiff] to be arrested]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. [Insert question regarding facts supporting the invalidity of the warrant or the unlawfulness of the arrest, e.g., "Had the warrant for [name of plaintiff]'s arrest expired?"]

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Was [name of defendant]'s conduct a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other past economic loss $_____]

   Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

   [b. Future economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, December 2010, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1405, False Arrest With Warrant—Essential Factual Elements.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If the jury returns a verdict of no harm, the plaintiff is still entitled to an award of nominal damages, such as one dollar. If nominal damages are being sought, modify the directions after question 3 to direct the jury to skip question 4 and answer question 5 if they find no harm. Then add a new question 5: "What amount of nominal damages do you award [name of plaintiff]?" If this is done, add a direction after question 4 that the jury should not answer question 5. Please note that the committee has found no cases requiring the jury to determine the amount of nominal damages.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 4 and do not have to categorize "economic" and "noneconomic" damages, especially if it is not a Proposition 51 case. The breakdown of damages is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest.

This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-1406. False Arrest With Warrant—Peace Officer—Affirmative Defense—"Good-Faith" Exception

---

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant] arrest [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. [Insert question regarding facts supporting the invalidity of the warrant or the unlawfulness of the arrest, e.g., "Had the warrant for [name of plaintiff]'s arrest expired?"]

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Would the arrest warrant have appeared valid to a reasonably intelligent and informed person?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, skip questions 4 and 5 and answer question 6.

4. Did [name of defendant] believe the warrant was valid?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 4 is yes, then answer question 5. If you answered no, skip question 5 and answer question 6.

5. Did [name of defendant] have a reasonable belief that [name of plaintiff] was the person referred to in the warrant?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 5 is no, then answer question 6. If you answered yes, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

6. Was [name of defendant]'s conduct a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 6 is yes, then answer question 7. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

7. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

[a. Past economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other past economic loss $_____]

Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, December 2010, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1405, False Arrest With Warrant—Essential Factual Elements, and CACI No. 1406, False Arrest With Warrant—Peace Officer—Affirmative Defense—"Good-Faith" Exception.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If the jury returns a verdict of no harm, the plaintiff is still entitled to an award of nominal damages, such as one dollar. If nominal damages are being sought, modify the directions after question 6 to direct the jury to skip question 7 and answer question 8 if they find no harm. Then add a new question 8: "What amount of nominal damages do you award [name of plaintiff]?" If this is done, add a direction after question 7 that the jury should not answer question 8. Please note that the committee has found no cases requiring the jury to determine the amount of nominal damages.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 7 and do not have to categorize "economic" and "noneconomic" damages, especially if it is not a Proposition 51 case. The breakdown of damages is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-1407. False Imprisonment—Unnecessary Delay in Processing/ Releasing

---

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant] hold [name of plaintiff] in custody?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Was there an unnecessary delay [insert facts, e.g., "in taking [name of plaintiff] before a judge" or "in releasing [name of plaintiff]"]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Did [name of plaintiff] consent to the delay?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is no, then answer question 4. If you answered yes, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. Was [name of defendant]'s conduct a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 4 is yes, then answer question 5. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

5. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other past economic loss $_____]

   Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, December 2010, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1407, Unnecessary Delay in Processing/Releasing—Essential Factual Elements.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If the jury returns a verdict of no harm, the plaintiff is still entitled to an award of nominal damages, such as one dollar. If nominal damages are being sought, modify the directions after question 4 to direct the jury to skip question 5 and answer question 6 if they find no harm. Then add a new question 6: "What amount of nominal damages do you award [name of plaintiff]?" If this is done, add a direction after question 5 that the jury should not answer question 6. Please note that the committee has found no cases requiring the jury to determine the amount of nominal damages.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 5 and do not have to categorize "economic" and "noneconomic" damages, especially if it is not a Proposition 51 case. The breakdown of damages is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-1408–VF-1499. Reserved for Future Use

MALICIOUS PROSECUTION

1500. Former Criminal Proceeding—Essential Factual Elements

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] wrongfully caused a criminal proceeding to be brought against [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] was actively involved in causing [name of plaintiff] to be arrested [and prosecuted] [or in causing the continuation of the prosecution];

[2. That the criminal proceeding ended in [name of plaintiff]'s favor;]

[3. That no reasonable person in [name of defendant]'s circumstances would have believed that there were grounds for causing [name of plaintiff] to be arrested [and prosecuted];]

4. That [name of defendant] acted primarily for a purpose other than to bring [name of plaintiff] to justice;

5. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and

6. That [name of defendant]'s conduct was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

[The law requires that the trial judge, rather than the jury, decide if [name of plaintiff] has proven element 2 above, whether the criminal proceeding ended in [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] favor. But before I can do so, you must decide whether [name of plaintiff] has proven the following:

[*List all factual disputes that must be resolved by the jury.]

The special [verdict/interrogatory] form will ask for your finding on [this/these] issue[s].]

[The law [also] requires that the trial judge, rather than the jury, decide if [name of plaintiff] has proven element 3 above, whether a reasonable person in [name of defendant]'s circumstances would have believed that there were grounds for causing [name of plaintiff] to be arrested [and prosecuted]. But before I can do so, you must decide whether [name of plaintiff] has proven the following:

[*List all factual disputes that must be resolved by the jury.]

The special [verdict/interrogatory] form will ask for your finding on [this/these] issue[s].]

New September 2003; Revised April 2008, October 2008, June 2015, May 2018

Directions for Use

Give this instruction in a malicious prosecution case based on an underlying criminal prosecution. If there is an issue as to what it means to be "actively involved" in element 1, also give CACI No. 1504, Former Criminal Proceeding—"Actively Involved" Explained.

In elements 1 and 3 and in the next-to-last paragraph, include the bracketed references to prosecution if the arrest was without a warrant. Whether prosecution is required in an arrest on a warrant has not definitively been resolved. (See Van Audenhove v. Perry (2017) 11 Cal.App.5th 915, 919–925 [217 Cal.Rptr.3d 843].)

Malicious prosecution requires that the criminal proceeding have ended in the plaintiff's favor (element 2) and that the defendant did not reasonably believe that there were any grounds (probable cause) to initiate the proceeding (element 3). Probable cause is to be decided by the court as a matter of law. However, it may require the jury to find some preliminary facts before the court can make its legal determination, including facts regarding what the defendant knew or did not know at the time. (See Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal.3d 863, 881 [254 Cal.Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498].) If so, include element 3 and also the bracketed part of the instruction that refers to element 3.

Favorable termination is handled in much the same way. If a proceeding is terminated other than on the merits, there may be disputed facts that the jury must find in order to determine whether there has been a favorable termination. (See Fuentes v. Berry (1995) 38 Cal.App.4th 1800, 1808 [45 Cal.Rptr.2d 848].) If so, include element 2 and also the bracketed part of the instruction that refers to element 2. Once these facts are determined, the jury does not then make a second determination as to whether there has been a favorable termination. The matter is determined by the court based on the resolution of the disputed facts. (See Sierra Club Found. v. Graham (1999) 72 Cal.App.4th 1135, 1159 [85 Cal.Rptr.2d 726] [element of favorable termination is for court to decide].)

Either or both of the elements of probable cause and favorable termination should be omitted if there are no disputed facts regarding that element for the jury.

Element 4 expresses the malice requirement.

Sources and Authority

- Public Employee Immunity. Government Code section 821.6.
- "Malicious prosecution consists of initiating or procuring the arrest and prosecution of another under lawful process, but from malicious motives and without probable cause." (Cedars-Sinai Medical Center v. Superior Court (1988) 206 Cal.App.3d 414, 417 [253 Cal.Rptr. 561], internal citation omitted.)
- "The remedy of a malicious prosecution action lies to recompense the defendant who has suffered out of pocket loss in the form of attorney fees and costs, as well as emotional distress and injury to reputation because of groundless allegations made in pleadings which are public records." (Sagonowsky v. More (1998) 64 Cal.App.4th 122, 132 [75 Cal.Rptr.2d 118], internal citations omitted.)
- "[A] cause of action for malicious prosecution cannot be premised on an arrest that does not result in formal charges (at least when the arrest is not pursuant to a warrant)." (Van Audenhove, supra, 11 Cal.App.5th at p. 917 [rejecting Rest.2d Torts, § 654. subd. (2)(c)].)

- "Cases dealing with actions for malicious prosecution against private persons require that the defendant has at least sought out the police or prosecutorial authorities and falsely reported facts to them indicating that plaintiff has committed a crime." (Sullivan v. County of Los Angeles (1974) 12 Cal.3d 710, 720 [117 Cal.Rptr. 241, 527 P.2d 865], internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]he effect of the approved instruction [in Dreux v. Domec (1861) 18 Cal. 83] was to impose liability upon one who had not taken part until after the commencement of the prosecution." (Lujan v. Gordon (1977) 70 Cal.App.3d 260, 263 [138 Cal.Rptr. 654].)
- "When, as here, the claim of malicious prosecution is based upon initiation of a criminal prosecution, the question of probable cause is whether it was objectively reasonable for the defendant . . . to suspect the plaintiff . . . had committed a crime." (Greene v. Bank of America (2013) 216 Cal.App.4th 454, 465 [156 Cal.Rptr.3d 901].)
- "When there is a dispute as to the state of the defendant's knowledge and the existence of probable cause turns on resolution of that dispute, . . . the jury must resolve the threshold question of the defendant's factual knowledge or belief. Thus, when . . . there is evidence that the defendant may have known that the factual allegations on which his action depended were untrue, the jury must determine what facts the defendant knew before the trial court can determine the legal question whether such facts constituted probable cause to institute the challenged proceeding." (Sheldon Appel Co., supra, 47 Cal.3d at p. 881, internal citations omitted.)
- "Admittedly, the fact of the grand jury indictment gives rise to a prima facie case of probable cause, which the malicious prosecution plaintiff must rebut. However, as respondents' own authorities admit, that rebuttal may be by proof that the indictment was based on false or fraudulent testimony." (Williams v. Hartford Ins. Co. (1983) 147 Cal.App.3d 893, 900 [195 Cal.Rptr. 448].)
- "Acquittal of the criminal charge, in the criminal action, did not create a conflict of evidence on the issue of probable cause. [Citations.]" (Verdier v. Verdier (1957) 152 Cal.App.2d 348, 352, fn. 3 [313 P.2d 123].)
- " '[T]he plaintiff in a malicious prosecution action must plead and prove that the prior judicial proceeding of which he complains terminated in his favor.' Termination of the prior proceeding is not necessarily favorable simply because the party prevailed in the prior proceeding; the termination must relate to the merits of the action by reflecting either on the innocence of or lack of responsibility for the misconduct alleged against him." (Sagonowsky, supra, 64 Cal.App.4th at p. 128, internal citations omitted.)
- " 'The theory underlying the requirement of favorable termination is that it tends to indicate the innocence of the accused, and coupled with the other elements of lack of probable cause and malice, establishes the tort, that is, the malicious and unfounded charge of crime against an innocent person.' " (Cote v. Henderson (1990) 218 Cal.App.3d 796, 804 [267 Cal.Rptr. 274], quoting Jaffe v. Stone (1941) 18 Cal.2d 146, 150 [114 P.2d 335].)

- "[I]n most cases, a person who merely alerts law enforcement to a possible crime . . . is not liable if . . . law enforcement, on its own, after an independent investigation, decides to prosecute." (Cox v. Griffin (2019) 34 Cal.App.5th 440, 452 [246 Cal.Rptr.3d 185].)
- "Where a proceeding is terminated other than on the merits, the reasons underlying the termination must be examined to see if it reflects the opinion of the court or the prosecuting party that the action would not succeed. If a conflict arises as to the circumstances explaining a failure to prosecute an action further, the determination of the reasons underlying the dismissal is a question of fact." (Fuentes, supra, 38 Cal.App.4th at p. 1808, internal citations omitted.)
- "Generally, the requirements of the doctrine of collateral estoppel 'will be met when courts are asked to give preclusive effect to preliminary hearing probable cause findings in subsequent civil actions for false arrest and malicious prosecution. [Citation.]' 'A determination of probable cause at a preliminary hearing may preclude a suit for false arrest or for malicious prosecution'].) 'One notable exception to this rule would be in a situation where the plaintiff alleges that the arresting officer lied or fabricated evidence presented at the preliminary hearing. [Citation.] When the officer misrepresents the nature of the evidence supporting probable cause and that issue is not raised at the preliminary hearing, a finding of probable cause at the preliminary hearing would not preclude relitigation of the issue of integrity of the evidence.' Defendants argue, and we agree, that the stated exception itself contains an exception—i.e., if the plaintiff alleges that the arresting officer lied or fabricated evidence at the preliminary hearing, plaintiff challenges that evidence at the preliminary hearing as being false, and the magistrate decides the credibility issue in the arresting officer's favor, then collateral estoppel still may preclude relitigation of the issue in a subsequent civil proceeding involving probable cause." (Greene v. Bank of America (2015) 236 Cal.App.4th 922, 933 [186 Cal.Rptr.3d 887], internal citations omitted.)
- "The plea of nolo contendere is considered the same as a plea of guilty. Upon a plea of nolo contendere the court shall find the defendant guilty, and its legal effect is the same as a plea of guilty for all purposes. It negates the element of a favorable termination, which is a prerequisite to stating a cause of action for malicious prosecution." (Cote, supra, 218 Cal.App.3d at p. 803, internal citation omitted.)
- " 'Should a conflict arise as to the circumstances explaining the failure to prosecute, the trier of fact must exercise its traditional role in deciding the conflict.' " (Weaver v. Superior Court (1979) 95 Cal.App.3d 166, 185 [156 Cal.Rptr. 745], disapproved on other grounds in Sheldon Appel Co., supra, 47 Cal.3d at p. 882, original italics, internal citations omitted.)

- " 'For purposes of a malicious prosecution claim, malice "is not limited to actual hostility or ill will toward the plaintiff. . . ." [Citation.]' '[I]f the defendant had no substantial grounds for believing in the plaintiff's guilt, but, nevertheless, instigated proceedings against the plaintiff, it is logical to infer that the defendant's motive was improper.' " (Greene, supra, 216 Cal.App.4th at pp. 464–465, internal citation omitted.)
- "Malice may be inferred from want of probable cause, but want of probable cause cannot be inferred from malice, but must be affirmatively shown by the plaintiff." (Verdier, supra, 152 Cal.App.2d at p. 354.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 552–570, 605

4 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 43, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, § 43.01 (Matthew Bender)

31 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 357, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, § 357.10 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

14 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 147, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, §§ 147.20–147.53 (Matthew Bender)

1501. Wrongful Use of Civil Proceedings

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] wrongfully brought a lawsuit against [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] was actively involved in bringing [or continuing] the lawsuit;

[2. That the lawsuit ended in [name of plaintiff]'s favor;]

[3. That no reasonable person in [name of defendant]'s circumstances would have believed that there were reasonable grounds to bring the lawsuit against [name of plaintiff];]

4. That [name of defendant] acted primarily for a purpose other than succeeding on the merits of the claim;

5. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and

6. That [name of defendant]'s conduct was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

[The law requires that the trial judge, rather than the jury, decide if [name of plaintiff] has proven element 2 above, whether the earlier lawsuit ended in [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] favor. But before I can do so, you must decide whether [name of plaintiff] has proven the following:

[*List all factual disputes that must be resolved by the jury.]

The special [verdict/interrogatory] form will ask for your finding on [this/these] issue[s].]

[The law [also] requires that the trial judge, rather than the jury, decide if [name of plaintiff] has proven element 3 above, whether [name of defendant] had reasonable grounds for bringing the earlier lawsuit against [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it]. But before I can do so, you must decide whether [name of plaintiff] has proven the following:

[*List all factual disputes that must be resolved by the jury.]

The special [verdict/interrogatory] form will ask for your finding on [this/these] issue[s].]

New September 2003; Revised April 2008, October 2008

Directions for Use

Malicious prosecution requires that the proceeding have ended in the plaintiff's favor (element 2) and that the defendant did not reasonably believe that there were any grounds (probable cause) to initiate the proceeding (element 3). Probable cause is to be decided by the court as a matter of law. However, the jury may be required to find some preliminary facts before the court can make its legal determination, including facts regarding what the defendant knew or did not know at the time. (See Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal.3d 863, 881 [254 Cal.Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498].) If so, include element 3 and also the bracketed part of the instruction that refers to element 3.

Favorable termination is handled in much the same way. If a proceeding is terminated other than on the merits, there may be disputed facts that the jury must find in order to determine whether there has been a favorable termination. (See Fuentes v. Berry (1995) 38 Cal.App.4th 1800, 1808 [45 Cal.Rptr.2d 848].) If so, include element 2 and also the bracketed part of the instruction that refers to element 2. Once these facts are determined, the jury does not then make a second determination as to whether there has been a favorable termination. The matter is determined by the court based on the resolution of the disputed facts. (See Sierra Club Found. v. Graham (1999) 72 Cal.App.4th 1135, 1159 [85 Cal.Rptr.2d 726] [element of favorable termination is for court to decide].)

Either or both of the elements of probable cause and favorable termination should be omitted if there are no disputed facts regarding that element for the jury to decide.

Element 4 expresses the malice requirement.

Sources and Authority

- Public Employee Immunity. Government Code section 821.6.
- "To establish a cause of action for the malicious prosecution of a civil proceeding, a plaintiff must plead and prove that the prior action (1) was commenced by or at the direction of the defendant and was pursued to a legal termination in his, plaintiff's, favor; (2) was brought without probable cause; and (3) was initiated with malice." (Bertero v. National General Corp. (1974) 13 Cal.3d 43, 50 [118 Cal.Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608], internal citations omitted.)
- "The remedy of a malicious prosecution action lies to recompense the defendant who has suffered out of pocket loss in the form of attorney fees and costs, as well as emotional distress and injury to reputation because of groundless allegations made in pleadings which are public records." (Sagonowsky v. More (1998) 64 Cal.App.4th 122, 132 [75 Cal.Rptr.2d 118], internal citations omitted.)
- "The malicious commencement of a civil proceeding is actionable because it harms the individual against whom the claim is made, and also because it threatens the efficient administration of justice. The individual is harmed because he is compelled to defend against a fabricated claim which not only subjects him to the panoply of psychological pressures most civil defendants suffer, but also the additional stress of attempting to resist a suit commenced out of spite or ill will, often magnified by slanderous allegations in the pleadings." (Merlet v. Rizzo (1998) 64 Cal.App.4th 53, 59 [75 Cal.Rptr.2d 83], internal citation omitted.)

- "[The litigation privilege of Civil Code section 47] has been interpreted to apply to virtually all torts except malicious prosecution." (Kimmel v. Goland (1990) 51 Cal.3d 202, 209 [271 Cal.Rptr. 191, 793 P.2d 524].)
- "Liability for malicious prosecution is not limited to one who initiates an action. A person who did not file a complaint may be liable for malicious prosecution if he or she 'instigated' the suit or 'participated in it at a later time.' " (Nunez v. Pennisi (2015) 241 Cal.App.4th 861, 873 [193 Cal.Rptr.3d 912].)
- "[A] cause of action for malicious prosecution lies when predicated on a claim for affirmative relief asserted in a cross-pleading even though intimately related to a cause asserted in the complaint." (Bertero, supra, 13 Cal.3d at p. 53.)
- "A claim for malicious prosecution need not be addressed to an entire lawsuit; it may . . . be based upon only some of the causes of action alleged in the underlying lawsuit." (Franklin Mint Co. v. Manatt, Phelps & Phillips, LLP (2010) 184 Cal.App.4th 313, 333 [109 Cal.Rptr.3d 143].)
- "[F]avorable termination requires favorable resolution of the underlying action in its entirety, not merely a single cause of action. '[I]f the defendant in the underlying action prevails on all of the plaintiff's claims, he or she may successfully sue for malicious prosecution if any one of those claims was subjectively malicious and objectively unreasonable. But if the underlying plaintiff succeeds on any of his or her claims, the favorable termination requirement is unsatisfied and the malicious prosecution action cannot be maintained.' " (Citizens of Humanity, LLC v. Ramirez (2021) 63 Cal.App.5th 117, 128 [277 Cal.Rptr.3d 501], internal citation omitted.)
- "[A] lawyer is not immune from liability for malicious prosecution simply because the general area of law at issue is complex and there is no case law with the same facts that establishes that the underlying claim was untenable. Lawyers are charged with the responsibility of acquiring a reasonable understanding of the law governing the claim to be alleged. That achieving such an understanding may be more difficult in a specialized field is no defense to alleging an objectively untenable claim." (Franklin Mint Co., supra, 184 Cal.App.4th at p. 346.)
- "Our repeated references in Bertero to the types of harm suffered by an 'individual' who is forced to defend against a baseline suit do not indicate . . . that a malicious prosecution action can be brought only by an individual. On the contrary, there are valid policies which would be furthered by allowing nonindividuals to sue for malicious prosecution." (City of Long Beach v. Bozek (1982) 31 Cal.3d 527, 531 [183 Cal.Rptr. 86, 645 P.2d 137], reiterated on remand from United States Supreme Court at 33 Cal.3d 727 [but holding that public entity cannot sue for malicious prosecution].)
- "[T]he courts have refused to permit malicious prosecution claims when they are based on a prior proceeding that is (1) less formal or unlike the process in the superior court (i.e., a small claims hearing, an investigation or application not resulting in a formal proceeding), (2) purely defensive in nature, or (3) a continuation of an existing proceeding." (Merlet, supra, 64 Cal.App.4th at p. 60.)

- "[I]t is not enough that the present plaintiff (former defendant) prevailed in the action. The termination must ' "reflect on the merits," ' and be such that it 'tended to indicate [the former defendant's] innocence of or lack of responsibility for the alleged misconduct.' " (Drummond v. Desmarais (2009) 176 Cal.App.4th 439, 450 [98 Cal.Rptr.3d 183], internal citations omitted.)
- " 'The entry of summary judgment for the defense on an underlying claim on grounds of insufficient evidence does not establish as a matter of law that the litigant necessarily can "state[] and substantiate[]" . . . a subsequent malicious prosecution claim.' " (Cuevas-Martinez v. Sun Salt Sand, Inc. (2019) 35 Cal.App.5th 1109, 1120 [248 Cal.Rptr.3d 200].)
- " '[A] voluntary dismissal on technical grounds, such as lack of jurisdiction, laches, the statute of limitations or prematurity, does not constitute a favorable termination because it does not reflect on the substantive merits of the underlying claim. . . .' " (Drummond, supra, 176 Cal.App.4th at p. 456.)
- "[Code of Civil Procedure] Section 581c, subdivision (c) provides that where a motion for judgment of nonsuit is granted, 'unless the court in its order for judgment otherwise specifies, the judgment of nonsuit operates as an adjudication upon the merits.' . . . [¶] We acknowledge that not every judgment of nonsuit should be grounds for a subsequent malicious prosecution action. Some will be purely technical or procedural and will not reflect the merits of the action. In such cases, trial courts should exercise their discretion to specify that the judgment of nonsuit shall not operate as an adjudication upon the merits." (Nunez, supra, 241 Cal.App.4th at p. 874.)
- " ' "[T]hat a malicious prosecution suit may be maintained where only one of several claims in the prior action lacked probable cause [citation] does not alter the rule there must first be a favorable termination of the entire action." ' Thus, if the defendant in the underlying action prevails on all of the plaintiff's claims, he or she may successfully sue for malicious prosecution if any one of those claims was subjectively malicious and objectively unreasonable. But if the underlying plaintiff succeeds on any of his or her claims, the favorable termination requirement is unsatisfied and the malicious prosecution action cannot be maintained." (Lane v. Bell (2018) 20 Cal.App.5th 61, 64 [228 Cal.Rptr.3d 605], original italics, internal citation omitted.)
- "We hold that a malicious prosecution plaintiff, who has succeeded in all respects in defending a multiple-claim case, need not show that all such claims were resolved on the merits as long as at least one claim was terminated on the merits." (Maleti v. Wickers (2022) 82 Cal.App.5th 181, 195 [298 Cal.Rptr.3d 284], original italics, additional emphasis omitted.)
- " ' "A voluntary dismissal may be an implicit concession that the dismissing party cannot maintain the action and may constitute a decision on the merits. [Citations.] 'It is not enough, however, merely to show that the proceeding was dismissed.' [Citation.] The reasons for the dismissal of the action must be examined to determine whether the termination reflected on the merits." [Citations.]' Whether that dismissal is a favorable termination for purposes of a malicious prosecution claim depends on whether the dismissal of the [earlier] Lawsuit is considered to be on the merits reflecting [plaintiff's 'innocence' of the misconduct alleged." (JSJ Limited Partnership v. Mehrban (2012) 205 Cal.App.4th 1512, 1524 [141 Cal.Rptr.3d 338], internal citations omitted.)

- "If a conflict arises as to the circumstances explaining a failure to prosecute an action further, the determination of the reasons underlying the dismissal is a question of fact." (Fuentes, supra, 38 Cal.App.4th at p. 1808, internal citations omitted.)
- "[W]hen a dismissal results from negotiation, settlement, or consent, a favorable termination is normally not recognized. Under these latter circumstances, the dismissal reflects ambiguously on the merits of the action." (Weaver v. Superior Court (1979) 95 Cal.App.3d 166, 184–185 [156 Cal.Rptr. 745], internal citations omitted, disapproved on other grounds in Sheldon Appel Co., supra, 47 Cal.3d at p. 882.)
- "Not every case in which a terminating sanctions motion is granted necessarily results in a 'favorable termination.' But where the record from the underlying action is devoid of any attempt during discovery to substantiate allegations in the complaint, and the court's dismissal is justified by the plaintiff's lack of evidence to submit the case to a jury at trial, a prima facie showing of facts sufficient to satisfy the 'favorable termination' element of a malicious prosecution claim is established . . . ." (Daniels v. Robbins (2010) 182 Cal.App.4th 204, 219 [105 Cal.Rptr.3d 683].)
- "[T]he existence or absence of probable cause has traditionally been viewed as a question of law to be determined by the court, rather than a question of fact for the jury . . . . [¶] [It] requires a sensitive evaluation of legal principles and precedents, a task generally beyond the ken of lay jurors . . . ." (Sheldon Appel Co., supra, 47 Cal.3d at p. 875.)
- "When there is a dispute as to the state of the defendant's knowledge and the existence of probable cause turns on resolution of that dispute, . . . the jury must resolve the threshold question of the defendant's factual knowledge or belief. Thus, when . . . there is evidence that the defendant may have known that the factual allegations on which his action depended were untrue, the jury must determine what facts the defendant knew before the trial court can determine the legal question whether such facts constituted probable cause to institute the challenged proceeding." (Sheldon Appel Co., supra, 47 Cal.3d at p. 881, internal citations omitted.)
- "Whereas the malice element is directly concerned with the subjective mental state of the defendant in instituting the prior action, the probable cause element calls on the trial court to make an objective determination of the 'reasonableness' of the defendant's conduct, i.e., to determine whether, on the basis of the facts known to the defendant, the institution of the prior action was legally tenable." (Sheldon Appel Co., supra, 47 Cal.3d at p. 878, original italics.)

- " 'The benchmark for legal tenability is whether any reasonable attorney would have thought the claim was tenable. [Citation.]' " (Oviedo v. Windsor Twelve Properties, LLC (2012) 212 Cal.App.4th 97, 114 [151 Cal.Rptr.3d 117], internal citation omitted.)
- " 'The facts to be analyzed for probable cause are those known to the defendant [in the malicious prosecution action] at the time the underlying action was filed.' " (Walsh v. Bronson (1988) 200 Cal.App.3d 259, 264 [245 Cal.Rptr. 888], internal citations omitted.)
- "A litigant will lack probable cause for his action either if he relies upon facts which he has no reasonable cause to believe to be true, or if he seeks recovery upon a legal theory which is untenable under the facts known to him." (Soukup v. Law Offices of Herbert Hafif (2006) 39 Cal.4th 260, 292 [46 Cal.Rptr.3d 638, 139 P.3d 30].)
- "[W]e reject their contention that unpled hidden theories of liability are sufficient to create probable cause." (Jay v. Mahaffey (2013) 218 Cal.App.4th 1522, 1542 [161 Cal.Rptr.3d 700].)
- "California courts have held that victory at trial, though reversed on appeal, conclusively establishes probable cause." (Roberts v. Sentry Life Insurance (1999) 76 Cal.App.4th 375, 383 [90 Cal.Rptr.2d 408], original italics.)
- "California courts have long embraced the so-called interim adverse judgment rule, under which 'a trial court judgment or verdict in favor of the plaintiff or prosecutor in the underlying case, unless obtained by means of fraud or perjury, establishes probable cause to bring the underlying action, even though the judgment or verdict is overturned on appeal or by later ruling of the trial court.' This rule reflects a recognition that '[c]laims that have succeeded at a hearing on the merits, even if that result is subsequently reversed by the trial or appellate court, are not so lacking in potential merit that a reasonable attorney or litigant would necessarily have recognized their frivolousness.' That is to say, if a claim succeeds at a hearing on the merits, then, unless that success has been procured by certain improper means, the claim cannot be 'totally and completely without merit.' Although the rule arose from cases that had been resolved after trial, the rule has also been applied to the 'denial of defense summary judgment motions, directed verdict motions, and similar efforts at pretrial termination of the underlying case.' " (Parrish v. Latham & Watkins (2017) 3 Cal.5th 767, 776–777 [221 Cal.Rptr.3d 432, 400 P.3d 1], internal citations omitted.)
- "[T]he fraud exception requires ' "knowing use of false and perjured testimony." ' " (Antounian v. Louis Vuitton Malletier (2010) 189 Cal.App.4th 438, 452 [117 Cal.Rptr.3d 3].)
- "Probable cause may be present even where a suit lacks merit. . . . Suits which all reasonable lawyers agree totally lack merit—that is, those which lack probable cause—are the least meritorious of all meritless suits. Only this subgroup of meritless suits present[s] no probable cause." (Roberts, supra, 76 Cal.App.4th at p. 382.)

- "[A]n attorney may be held liable for malicious prosecution for continuing to prosecute a lawsuit discovered to lack probable cause." (Zamos v. Stroud (2004) 32 Cal.4th 958, 970 [12 Cal.Rptr.3d 54, 87 P.3d 802].)
- "Although attorneys may rely on their clients' allegations at the outset of a case, they may not continue to do so if the evidence developed through discovery indicates the allegations are unfounded or unreliable." (Cuevas-Martinez, supra, 35 Cal.App.5th at p. 1121.)
- "[W]here several claims are advanced in the underlying action, each must be based on probable cause." (Lanz v. Goldstone (2015) 243 Cal.App.4th 441, 459 [197 Cal.Rptr.3d 227].)
- "As an element of the tort of malicious prosecution, malice at its core refers to an improper motive for bringing the prior action. As an element of liability it reflects the core function of the tort, which is to secure compensation for harm inflicted by misusing the judicial system, i.e., using it for something other than to enforce legitimate rights and secure remedies to which the claimant may tenably claim an entitlement. Thus the cases speak of malice as being present when a suit is actuated by hostility or ill will, or for some purpose other than to secure relief. It is also said that a plaintiff acts with malice when he asserts a claim with knowledge of its falsity, because one who seeks to establish such a claim 'can only be motivated by an improper purpose.' A lack of probable cause will therefore support an inference of malice." (Drummond, supra, 176 Cal.App.4th at pp. 451–452, original italics, internal citations omitted.)
- "A lack of probable cause is a factor that may be considered in determining if the claim was prosecuted with malice [citation], but the lack of probable cause must be supplemented by other, additional evidence." (Silas v. Arden (2013) 213 Cal.App.4th 75, 90 [152 Cal.Rptr.3d 255].)
- "Because malice concerns the former plaintiff's actual mental state, it necessarily presents a question of fact." (Drummond, supra, 176 Cal.App.4th at p. 452.)
- " 'Since parties rarely admit an improper motive, malice is usually proven by circumstantial evidence and inferences drawn from the evidence.' '[M]alice can be inferred when a party continues to prosecute an action after becoming aware that the action lacks probable cause.' " (Cuevas-Martinez, supra, 35 Cal.App.5th at p. 1122, original italics.)
- "Negligence does not equate with malice. Nor does the negligent filing of a case necessarily constitute the malicious prosecution of that case." (Grindle v. Lorbeer (1987) 196 Cal.App.3d 1461, 1468 [242 Cal.Rptr. 562].)
- "The motive of the defendant must have been something other than that of bringing a perceived guilty person to justice or the satisfaction in a civil action of some personal or financial purpose." (Downey Venture v. LMI Insurance Co. (1998) 66 Cal.App.4th 478, 494 [78 Cal.Rptr.2d 142], internal citations omitted.)

- "Malice does not require that the defendants harbor actual ill will toward the plaintiff in the malicious prosecution case, and liability attaches to attitudes that range ' "from open hostility to indifference. [Citations.]" ' " (Cole v. Patricia A. Meyer & Associates, APC (2012) 206 Cal.App.4th 1095, 1113–1114 [142 Cal.Rptr.3d 646], internal citations omitted.)
- " ' "Suits with the hallmark of an improper purpose" include, but are not necessarily limited to, "those in which: ' ". . . (1) the person initiating them does not believe that his claim may be held valid; (2) the proceedings are begun primarily because of hostility or ill will; (3) the proceedings are initiated solely for the purpose of depriving the person against whom they are initiated of a beneficial use of his property; (4) the proceedings are initiated for the purpose of forcing a settlement which has no relation to the merits of the claim." ' " [Citation.] [¶] Evidence tending to show that the defendants did not subjectively believe that the action was tenable is relevant to whether an action was instituted or maintained with malice. [Citation.]' " (Oviedo, supra, 212 Cal.App.4th at pp. 113–114.)
- "Although Zamos [supra] did not explicitly address the malice element of a malicious prosecution case, its holding and reasoning compel us to conclude that malice formed after the filing of a complaint is actionable." (Daniels, supra, 182 Cal.App.4th at p. 226.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 554, 557, 562–569, 571–606

Ahart, California Practice Guide: Enforcing Judgments & Debts, Ch. 2-C, Liability For Unfair Collection Practices—Tort Liability, ¶ 2:428 (The Rutter Group)

4 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 43, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, §§ 43.01–43.10 (Matthew Bender)

31 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 357, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, § 357.10 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

14 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 147, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, § 147.20 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1502. Wrongful Use of Administrative Proceedings

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] wrongfully brought an administrative proceeding against [him/her/nonbinary pronoun/it]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] was actively involved in bringing [or continuing] the administrative proceeding;
2. That [name of administrative body] did not conduct an independent investigation;

[3. That the proceeding ended in [*name of plaintiff]'s favor;]

[4. That no reasonable person in [*name of defendant]'s circumstances would have believed that there were reasonable grounds to bring the proceeding against [name of plaintiff];]

5. That [name of defendant] acted primarily for a purpose other than succeeding on the merits of the claim;
6. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
7. That [name of defendant]'s conduct was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

[The law requires that the trial judge, rather than the jury, decide if [*name of plaintiff] has proven element 3 above, whether the criminal proceeding ended in [his/her/nonbinary pronoun/its] favor. But before I can do so, you must decide whether [name of plaintiff] has proven the following:

[*List all factual disputes that must be resolved by the jury.]

The special [verdict/interrogatory] form will ask for your finding on [this/these] issue[s].]

[The law [also] requires that the trial judge, rather than the jury, decide if [*name of plaintiff] has proven element 4 above, whether a reasonable person in [name of defendant]'s circumstances would have believed that there were reasonable grounds for bringing the proceeding against [name of plaintiff]. But before I can do so, you must decide whether [name of plaintiff] has proven the following:

[*List all factual disputes that must be resolved by the jury.]

The special [verdict/interrogatory] form will ask for your finding on [this/these] issue[s].]

New September 2003; Revised April 2008, October 2008

Directions for Use

Malicious prosecution requires that the proceeding have ended in the plaintiff's favor (element 3) and that the defendant did not reasonably believe that there were any grounds (probable cause) to initiate the proceeding (element 4). Probable cause is to be decided by the court as a matter of law. However, it may require the jury to find some preliminary facts before the court can make its legal determination, including facts regarding what the defendant knew or didn't know at the time. (See Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal.3d 863, 881 [254 Cal.Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498].) If so, include element 4 and also the bracketed part of the instruction that refers to element 4.

Favorable termination is handled in much the same way. If a proceeding is terminated other than on the merits, there may be disputed facts that the jury must find in order to determine whether there has been a favorable termination. (See Fuentes v. Berry (1995) 38 Cal.App.4th 1800, 1808 [45 Cal.Rptr.2d 848].) If so, include element 3 and also the bracketed part of the instruction that refers to element 3. Once these facts are determined, the jury does not then make a second determination as to whether there has been a favorable termination. The matter is determined by the court based on the resolution of the disputed facts. See Sierra Club Found. v. Graham (1999) 72 Cal.App.4th 1135, 1159 [85 Cal.Rptr.2d 726] [element of favorable termination is for court to decide].)

Either or both of the elements of probable cause and favorable termination should be omitted if there are no disputed facts regarding that element for the jury.

Element 5 expresses the malice requirement.

Sources and Authority

- Public Employee Immunity. Government Code section 821.6.
- " 'Where the prosecuting officer acts on an independent investigation of his own instead of on the statement of facts by the party making the complaint, the latter has not caused the prosecution and cannot be held liable in an action for malicious prosecution.' " (Werner v. Hearst Publications, Inc. (1944) 65 Cal.App.2d 667, 673 [151 P.2d 308], internal citation omitted.)
- "We adopt the rule set forth in section 680 of the Restatement of Torts and hold that an action for malicious prosecution may be founded upon the institution of a proceeding before an administrative agency." (Hardy v. Vial (1957) 48 Cal.2d 577, 581 [311 P.2d 494].)
- Government Code section 821.6 provides: "A public employee is not liable for injury caused by his instituting or prosecuting any judicial or administrative proceeding within the scope of his employment, even if he acts maliciously and without probable cause."
- " 'Where the prosecuting officer acts on an independent investigation of his own instead of on the statement of facts by the party making the complaint, the latter has not caused the prosecution and cannot be held liable in an action for malicious prosecution.' " (Werner v. Hearst Publications, Inc. (1944) 65

Cal.App.2d 667, 673 [151 P.2d 308], internal citation omitted.)

- "[W]e hold that the State Bar, not respondents, initiated, procured or continued the disciplinary proceedings of [plaintiff]. Therefore, [plaintiff] failed to allege the elements required for a malicious prosecution of an administrative proceeding against respondents." (Stanwyck v. Horne (1983) 146 Cal.App.3d 450, 459 [194 Cal.Rptr. 228].)
- "The [Board of Medical Quality Assurance] is similar to the State Bar Association. Each is empowered and directed to conduct an independent investigation of all complaints from the public prior to the filing of an accusation." (Hogen v. Valley Hospital (1983) 147 Cal.App.3d 119, 125 [195 Cal.Rptr. 5], internal citation omitted.)
- "Hogen and Stanwyck placed an additional pleading burden upon the plaintiff in a malicious prosecution case based upon the favorable termination of an administrative proceeding. Those cases held that since it is the administrative body, and not the individual initiating the complaint, which actually files the disciplinary proceeding, a cause of action for malicious prosecution will not lie if the administrative body conducts an independent preliminary investigation prior to initiating disciplinary proceedings." (Johnson v. Superior Court (1994) 25 Cal.App.4th 1564, 1568 [31 Cal.Rptr.2d 199].)
- "Where a proceeding is terminated other than on the merits, the reasons underlying the termination must be examined to see if it reflects the opinion of the court or the prosecuting party that the action would not succeed. If a conflict arises as to the circumstances explaining a failure to prosecute an action further, the determination of the reasons underlying the dismissal is a question of fact." (Fuentes, supra, 38 Cal.App.4th at p. 1808, internal citation omitted.)
- The same rules for determining probable cause in the wrongful institution of civil proceedings apply to cases alleging the wrongful institution of administrative proceedings. (Nicholson v. Lucas (1994) 21 Cal.App.4th 1657, 1666, fn. 4 [26 Cal.Rptr.2d 778].)
- "When there is a dispute as to the state of the defendant's knowledge and the existence of probable cause turns on resolution of that dispute, . . . the jury must resolve the threshold question of the defendant's factual knowledge or belief. Thus, when . . . there is evidence that the defendant may have known that the factual allegations on which his action depended were untrue, the jury must determine what facts the defendant knew before the trial court can determine the legal question whether such facts constituted probable cause to institute the challenged proceeding." (Sheldon Appel Co., supra, 47 Cal.3d at p. 881, internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 607–610

4 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 43, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, §§ 43.01–43.06 (Matthew Bender)

31 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 357, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, §§ 357.10–357.32 (Matthew Bender)

14 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 147, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, §§ 147.20–147.53 (Matthew Bender)

1503. Affirmative Defense—Proceeding Initiated by Public Employee Within Scope of Employment (Gov. Code, § 821.6)

[*Name of public entity defendant] claims that it cannot be held responsible for [name of plaintiff]'s harm, if any, because the [specify proceeding, e.g., civil action] was initiated by its employee who was acting within the scope of [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] employment. To establish this defense, [name of defendant] must prove that [name of employee] was acting within the scope of [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] employment.

New September 2003; Renumbered from CACI No. 1506 June 2013; Revised May 2018

Directions for Use

Give this instruction if there is an issue of fact as to whether the proceeding giving rise to the alleged malicious prosecution claim was initiated as a governmental action. Government Code section 821.6 provides immunity from liability for malicious prosecution for a public employee who is acting within the scope of employment, even if the employee acts maliciously and without probable cause. If the employee is immune, then there can be no vicarious liability on the entity. (Gov. Code, § 815.2.) This immunity is not unqualified, however; it applies only if the employee was acting within the scope of employment. (Tur v. City of Los Angeles (1996) 51 Cal.App.4th 897, 904 [59 Cal.Rptr.2d 470].)

For an instruction on scope of employment, see CACI No. 3720, Scope of Employment, in the Vicarious Responsibility series.

Sources and Authority

- Public Entity Vicarious Liability for Acts of Employee. Government Code section 815.2.
- Public Employee Immunity. Government Code section 821.6.
- "The defendants did not enjoy an unqualified immunity from suit. Their immunity would have depended on their proving by a preponderance of the evidence [that] they were acting within the scope of their employment in doing the acts alleged to constitute malicious prosecution." (Tur, supra, 51 Cal.App.4th at p. 904 [failure to instruct jury under section 821.6 was prejudicial error].)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 434 et seq.

4 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 43, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, § 43.06 (Matthew Bender)

31 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 357, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, § 357.23 (Matthew Bender)

14 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 147, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, § 147.31 (Matthew Bender)

1504. Former Criminal Proceeding—"Actively Involved" Explained

---

[Name of defendant] was "actively involved" in causing [name of plaintiff] to be prosecuted [or in causing the continuation of the prosecution] if after learning that there was no probable cause that [name of plaintiff] had committed a crime, [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] sought out the police or prosecutorial authorities and falsely reported facts to them indicating that [name of plaintiff] had committed a crime. Merely giving testimony or responding to law enforcement inquiries is not active involvement.

New June 2015

Directions for Use

Give this instruction in a malicious prosecution case arising from an earlier criminal proceeding. This instruction explains what is meant by "active involvement" in a criminal prosecution, as used in element 1 of CACI No. 1500, Former Criminal Proceeding—Essential Factual Elements.

Sources and Authority

- "Although a criminal prosecution normally is commenced through the action of government authorities, a private person may be liable for malicious prosecution under certain circumstances based on his or her role in the criminal proceeding. 'The relevant law is clear: "One may be civilly liable for malicious prosecution without personally signing the complaint initiating the criminal proceeding." ' " (Zucchet v. Galardi (2014) 229 Cal.App.4th 1466, 1481 [178 Cal.Rptr.3d 363, internal citation omitted.)
- "Malicious prosecution consists of initiating or procuring the arrest and prosecution of another under lawful process, but from malicious motives and without probable cause. . . . . [Italics in original.] The test is whether the defendant was actively instrumental in causing the prosecution.' " (Sullivan v. County of Los Angeles (1974) 12 Cal.3d 710, 720 [117 Cal. Rptr. 241, 527 P.2d 865], original italics.)
- "Cases dealing with actions for malicious prosecution against private persons require that the defendant has at least sought out the police or prosecutorial authorities and falsely reported facts to them indicating that plaintiff has committed a crime." (Greene v. Bank of America (2013) 216 Cal.App.4th 454, 464 [156 Cal.Rptr.3d 901].)
- "Public policy requires that 'private persons who aid in the enforcement of the law should be given an effective protection against the prejudice which is likely to arise from the termination of the prosecution in favor of the accused.' " (Cedars-Sinai Medical Ctr. v. Superior Court (1988) 206 Cal.App.3d 414, 418 [253 Cal.Rptr. 561].)
- "[M]erely giving testimony and responding to law enforcement inquiries in an active criminal proceeding does not constitute malicious prosecution." (Zucchet, supra, 229 Cal.App.4th at p. 1482.)

- "[T]o create liability for malicious prosecution . . . [t]he person must 'take [some affirmative action to encourage the prosecution by way of advice or pressure, as opposed to merely providing information.' " (Zucchet, supra, 229 Cal.App.4th at p. 1485.)
- "According to section 655 of the Restatement, '[a] private person who takes an active part in continuing or procuring the continuation of criminal proceedings initiated by himself or by another is subject to the same liability for malicious prosecution as if he had then initiated the proceedings.' " (Zucchet, supra, 229 Cal.App.4th at p. 1483.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 561

4 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 43, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, § 43.03 (Matthew Bender)

31 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 357, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, § 357.19 (Matthew Bender)

1505–1509. Reserved for Future Use

1510. Affirmative Defense—Reliance on Counsel

[*Name of defendant] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] had reasonable grounds for [causing or continuing the criminal proceeding/ bringing or continuing a [lawsuit/administrative proceeding]] because [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was relying on the advice of an attorney. To succeed, [name of defendant] must prove both of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] made a full and honest disclosure of all the important facts known to [him/her/nonbinary pronoun] to the [district attorney/attorney]; and
2. That [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] reasonably relied on the [district attorney/attorney]'s advice.

New September 2003; Renumbered from CACI No. 1505 June 2013

Sources and Authority

- " 'Good faith reliance on the advice of counsel, after truthful disclosure of all the relevant facts, is a complete defense to a malicious prosecution claim.' The burden of proving the advice of counsel defense is on [defendant]." (Nunez v. Pennisi (2015) 241 Cal.App.4th 861, 876–877 [193 Cal.Rptr.3d 912], internal citation omitted.)
- "[I]f the initiator acts in bad faith or withholds from counsel facts he knew or should have known would defeat a cause of action otherwise appearing from the information supplied, [the] defense fails." (Bertero v. National General Corp. (1974) 13 Cal.3d 43, 53–54 [118 Cal.Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608].)
- "[T]he defense that a criminal prosecution was commenced upon the advice of counsel is unavailing in an action for malicious prosecution if it appears . . . that the defendant did not believe that the accused was guilty of the crime charged." (Singleton v. Singleton (1945) 68 Cal.App.2d 681, 695 [157 P.2d 886].)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 602, 604

4 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 43, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, § 43.07 (Matthew Bender)

31 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 357, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, § 357.23 (Matthew Bender)

14 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 147, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, §§ 147.37, 147.46 (Matthew Bender)

1511. Wrongful Use of Civil Proceedings—Affirmative Defense—Attorney's Reliance on Information Provided by Client

When filing a lawsuit for a client, an attorney is entitled to rely on the facts and information provided by the client.

[*Name of attorney defendant] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] had reasonable grounds for bringing the lawsuit against [name of plaintiff] because [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] was relying on facts and information provided by [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] client. To succeed on this defense, [name of attorney defendant] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of client] provided [name of attorney defendant] with the following information: [specify information on which attorney relied];
2. That [name of attorney defendant] did not know that this information was false or inaccurate; and
3. That [name of attorney defendant] relied on the facts and information provided by the client.

New June 2013; Revised June 2014, May 2020

Directions for Use

Give this instruction if an attorney defendant alleges reliance on information provided by the client to establish probable cause. If a civil proceeding other than a lawsuit is involved, substitute the appropriate word for "lawsuit" throughout.

The presence or absence of probable cause on undisputed facts is a question of law for the court. (See Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal.3d 863, 881 [254 Cal.Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498]; CACI No. 1501, Wrongful Use of Civil Proceedings.) The questions here for the jury to resolve are what information was communicated to the attorney that established apparent probable cause, and whether the attorney knew that the information was inaccurate.

The attorney generally has no obligation to investigate the information provided by the client before filing suit. (See Sheldon Appel Co., supra, 47 Cal.3d at pp. 882–883.) Therefore, there is no liability under a theory that the attorney should have known that the information was false. Actual knowledge is required. But if the attorney later learns that the client has not been truthful, the attorney may no longer rely on the client's information to continue the lawsuit. (Daniels v. Robbins (2010) 182 Cal.App.4th 204, 223 [105 Cal.Rptr.3d 683].)

Sources and Authority

- "In general, a lawyer 'is entitled to rely on information provided by the client.' If the lawyer discovers the client's statements are false, the lawyer cannot rely on such statements in prosecuting an action." (Daniels, supra, 182 Cal.App.4th at p. 223, internal citation omitted.)

- "[W]hen evaluating a client's case and making an initial assessment of tenability, the attorney is entitled to rely on information provided by the client. An exception to this rule exists where the attorney is on notice of specific factual mistakes in the client's version of events. Absent such notice, an attorney 'may, without being guilty of malicious prosecution, vigorously pursue litigation in which he is unsure of whether his client or the client's adversary is truthful, so long as that issue is genuinely in doubt.' A respected authority has summed up the issue as follows: 'Usually, the client imparts information upon which the attorney relies in determining whether probable cause exists for initiating a proceeding. The rule is that the attorney may rely on those statements as a basis for exercising judgment and providing advice, unless the client's representations are known to be false.' " (Morrison v. Rudolph (2002) 103 Cal.App.4th 506, 512–513 [126 Cal.Rprt.2d 747], disapproved on other grounds in Zamos v. Stroud (2004) 32 Cal.4th 958, 972[12 Cal.Rptr.3d 54, 87 P.3d 802], internal citations omitted.)
- "The trial court found the undisputed facts establish that the lawyers had probable cause to assert the fraudulent inducement claim. We agree. It is undisputed that the allegations in the complaint accurately reflected the facts as given to the lawyers by [client] and that she never told them those facts were incorrect. The information provided to the lawyers, if true, was sufficient to state a cause of action . . . ." (Swat-Fame, Inc. v. Goldstein (2002) 101 Cal.App.4th 613, 625 [124 Cal.Rptr.2d 556], disapproved on other grounds in Zamos, supra, 32 Cal.4th at p. 972.)
- "Normally, the adequacy of a prefiling investigation is not relevant to the determination of probable cause." (Swat-Fame, Inc., supra, 101 Cal.App.4th at p. 627, disapproved on other grounds in Zamos, supra, 32 Cal.4th at p. 972.)
- "If the lawyer discovers the client's statements are false, the lawyer cannot rely on such statements in prosecuting an action." (Daniels, supra, 182 Cal.App.4th at p. 223.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 554, 603

4 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 43, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, § 43.05 (Matthew Bender)

31 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 357, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, § 357.23 (Matthew Bender)

14 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 147, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, § 147.27 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1512–1519. Reserved for Future Use

1520. Abuse of Process—Essential Factual Elements

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant] wrongfully [insert legal procedure, e.g., "took a deposition"]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] [insert legal procedure, e.g., "took the deposition of [name of deponent]"];
2. That [name of defendant] intentionally used this legal procedure to [insert alleged improper purpose that procedure was not designed to achieve];
3. That [name of plaintiff] was harmed; and
4. That [name of defendant]'s conduct was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s harm.

New September 2003

Sources and Authority

- " 'The common law tort of abuse of process arises when one uses the court's process for a purpose other than that for which the process was designed. [Citations.] It has been 'interpreted broadly to encompass the entire range of "procedures" incident to litigation.' [Citation.] [¶] '[T]he essence of the tort [is] . . . misuse of the power of the court; it is an act done in the name of the court and under its authority for the purpose of perpetrating an injustice.' [Citation.]' " (S.A. v. Maiden (2014) 229 Cal.App.4th 27, 41 [176 Cal.Rptr.3d 567].)
- "To establish a cause of action for abuse of process, a plaintiff must plead two essential elements: that the defendant (1) entertained an ulterior motive in using the process and (2) committed a wilful act in a wrongful manner." (Coleman v. Gulf Insurance Group (1986) 41 Cal.3d 782, 792 [226 Cal.Rptr. 90, 718 P.2d 77], internal citations omitted.)
- "A cause of action for abuse of process cannot be viable absent some harm to the plaintiff caused by the abuse of process." (Yee v. Superior Court (2019) 31 Cal. App. 5th 26, 37 [242 Cal.Rptr.3d 439].)
- "[Plaintiff]'s complaint indicates that he has pleaded the tort of abuse of process, long recognized at common law but infrequently utilized." (Kappel v. Bartlett (1988) 200 Cal.App.3d 1457, 1463 [246 Cal.Rptr. 815], internal citation omitted.)
- "Abuse of process is not just another name for malicious prosecution. Simply filing or maintaining a lawsuit for an improper purpose (such as might support a malicious prosecution cause of action) is not abuse of process. [Citation.] [¶] Malicious prosecution and abuse of process are distinct. The former concerns a meritless lawsuit (and all the damage it inflicted). The latter concerns the misuse of the tools the law affords litigants once they are in a lawsuit (regardless of whether there was probable cause to commence that lawsuit in the first place). Hence, abuse of process claims typically arise for improper or excessive attachments [citation] or improper use of discovery [citation]." (S.A., supra, 229 Cal.App.4th at pp. 41–42, original italics.)

- "[W]hile a defendant's act of improperly instituting or maintaining an action may, in an appropriate case, give rise to a cause of action for malicious prosecution, the mere filing or maintenance of a lawsuit—even for an improper purpose—is not a proper basis for an abuse of process action." (JSJ Limited Partnership v. Mehrban (2012) 205 Cal.App.4th 1512, 1523 [141 Cal.Rptr.3d 338].)
- "Some definite act or threat not authorized by the process or aimed at an objective not legitimate in the use of the process is required. And, generally, an action lies only where the process is used to obtain an unjustifiable collateral advantage. For this reason, mere vexation [and] harassment are not recognized as objectives sufficient to give rise to the tort." (Younger v. Solomon (1974) 38 Cal.App.3d 289, 297 [113 Cal.Rptr. 113], internal citations omitted.)
- "Process is action taken pursuant to judicial authority. It is not action taken without reference to the power of the court." (Adams v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal.App.4th 521, 530 [3 Cal.Rptr.2d 49].)
- "This broad reach of the 'abuse of process' tort can be explained historically, since the tort evolved as a 'catch-all' category to cover improper uses of the judicial machinery that did not fit within the earlier established, but narrowly circumscribed, action of malicious prosecution." (Younger, supra, 38 Cal.App.3d at p. 296, internal citations omitted.)
- " 'The improper purpose usually takes the form of coercion to obtain a collateral advantage, not properly involved in the proceeding itself, such as the surrender of property or the payment of money, by the use of the process as a threat or a club.' " (Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal.2d 210, 232–233 [317 P.2d 613], internal citation omitted.)
- "[A]n improper purpose may consist in achievement of a benefit totally extraneous to or of a result not within its legitimate scope. Mere ill will against the adverse party in the proceedings does not constitute an ulterior or improper motive." (Ion Equipment Corp. v. Nelson (1980) 110 Cal.App.3d 868, 876 [168 Cal.Rptr. 361], internal citations omitted.)
- "Merely obtaining or seeking process is not enough; there must be subsequent abuse, by a misuse of the judicial process for a purpose other than that which it was intended to serve. The gist of the tort is the improper use of the process after it is issued." (Adams, supra, 2 Cal.App.4th at pp. 530–531, internal citations omitted.)
- " ' "Some definite act or threat not authorized by the process, or aimed at an objective not legitimate in the use of the process, is required; and there is no liability where the defendant has done nothing more than carry out the process to its authorized conclusion, even though with bad intentions." ' " (Clark Equipment Co. v. Wheat (1979) 92 Cal.App.3d 503, 524 [154 Cal.Rptr. 874], internal citations omitted.)

- "[I]t is consistent with the purpose of section 47, subdivision (2) to exempt malicious prosecution while still applying the privilege to abuse of process causes of action." (Abraham v. Lancaster Community Hospital (1990) 217 Cal.App.3d 796, 824 [266 Cal.Rptr. 360].)
- "[T]he scope of 'publication or broadcast' includes noncommunicative conduct like the filing of a motion for a writ of sale, the filing of assessment liens, or the filing of a mechanic's lien. The privilege also applies to conduct or publications occurring outside the courtroom, to conduct or publications which are legally deficient for one reason or another, and even to malicious or fraudulent conduct or publications." (O'Keefe v. Kompa (2000) 84 Cal.App.4th 130, 134 [100 Cal.Rptr.2d 602], internal citations omitted.)
- "The use of the machinery of the legal system for an ulterior motive is a classic indicia of the tort of abuse of process. However, the tort requires abuse of legal process, not just filing suit." (Trear v. Sills (1999) 69 Cal.App.4th 1341, 1359 [82 Cal.Rptr.2d 281], internal citations omitted.)
- "We have located no authority extending the tort of abuse of process to administrative proceedings. Application of the tort to administrative proceedings would not serve the purpose of the tort, which is to preserve the integrity of the court." (Stolz v. Wong Communications Ltd. Partnership (1994) 25 Cal.App.4th 1811, 1822–1823 [31 Cal.Rptr.2d 229], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 611–622

4 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 43, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, §§ 43.20–43.25 (Matthew Bender)

31 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 357, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, § 357.51 (Matthew Bender)

14 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 147, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, § 147.70 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1521–1529. Reserved for Future Use

1530. Apportionment of Attorney Fees and Costs Between Proper and Improper Claims

---

[*Name of plaintiff] claims damages for attorney fees and costs reasonably and necessarily incurred in defending the underlying lawsuit.

If you find that [*name of plaintiff] is entitled to recover damages from [name of defendant], [name of plaintiff] is only entitled to attorney fees and costs reasonably and necessarily incurred in defending those claims that were brought without reasonable grounds. Those claims are [specify]. [Name of plaintiff] is not entitled to recover attorney fees and costs incurred in defending against the following claims: [specify].

[*Name of defendant] must prove the amount of attorney fees and costs that should be apportioned to those claims for which recovery is not allowed.

New June 2013

Directions for Use

Give this instruction if the court has found as a matter of law that some, but not all, of the claims in the underlying action were brought without probable cause. The elements of probable cause and favorable termination are to be decided by the court as a matter of law. (See Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal.3d 863, 881 [254 Cal.Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498] [probable cause]; Sierra Club Found. v. Graham (1999) 72 Cal.App.4th 1135, 1159 [85 Cal.Rptr.2d 726] [favorable termination]; see also the Directions for Use to CACI No. 1501, Wrongful Use of Civil Proceedings.)

If there are disputed facts that the jury must resolve before the court can make a finding on probable cause, this instruction should not be presented to the jury until after it has determined the facts on which the court's finding will be based.

Sources and Authority

- "Having established the liability of . . . defendants . . . , the [plaintiffs] were entitled to recover as part of their compensatory damage award the costs of defending the [underlying] action including their reasonable attorney fees." (Jackson v. Yarbray (2009) 179 Cal.App.4th 75, 90 [101 Cal.Rptr.3d 303].)
- "As in the case of the assertion of a maliciously prosecuted complaint with one for which there was probable cause, the burden of proving such an apportionment must rest with the party whose malicious conduct created the problem. To place the burden on the injured party rather than upon the wrongdoer would, in effect, clothe the transgressor with immunity when, because of the interrelationship of the defense and cross-action, the injured party could not apportion his damages."(Bertero v. National General Corp. (1974) 13 Cal.3d

43, 60 [118 Cal.Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608], internal citation omitted.)

- "Defendants also charge that under the Bertero rule the apportionment of damages between the theories of liability that are and are not supported by probable cause is difficult and 'highly speculative.' There is no showing, however, that juries cannot perform that task fairly and consistently if they are properly instructed—they draw more subtle distinctions every day. Moreover, any difficulty in this regard is chargeable to the tortfeasor . . . ." (Crowley v. Katleman (1994) 8 Cal.4th 666, 690 [34 Cal.Rptr.2d 386, 881 P.2d 1083].)
- "It was the defendants' burden, however, not the [plaintiffs]', to prove such an allocation, just as it generally is the burden of the defendant in a malicious prosecution action to prove certain attorney fees incurred in the underlying action are not recoverable because they are attributable to claims that had been properly pursued." (Jackson, supra, 179 Cal.App.4th at p. 96.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 554

Wegner et al., California Practice Guide: Civil Trials & Evidence, Ch. 17-D, Costs, ¶ 17:384 et seq. (The Rutter Group)

Wegner et al., California Practice Guide: Civil Trials & Evidence, Ch. 17-E, Attorney Fees As Costs, ¶ 17:544 et seq. (The Rutter Group)

4 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 43, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, § 43.08 (Matthew Bender)

31 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 357, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, § 357.18 (Matthew Bender)

14 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 147, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, § 147.45 (Matthew Bender)

1531–1599. Reserved for Future Use

VF-1500. Malicious Prosecution—Former Criminal Proceeding

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Was [name of defendant] actively involved in causing [name of plaintiff] to be arrested [and prosecuted] [or in causing the continuation of the prosecution]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Did [name of defendant] act primarily for a purpose other than that of bringing [name of plaintiff] to justice?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Was [name of defendant]'s conduct a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other past economic loss $_____]

   Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

   [b. Future economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, April 2008, December 2010, December 2016, May 2018, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1500, Former Criminal Proceeding. This form can be adapted to include the affirmative defense of reliance on counsel. See VF-1502 for a form that includes this affirmative defense.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

In question 1, include the bracketed reference to prosecution if the arrest was without a warrant.

If there are disputed issues of fact on the elements of probable cause or favorable termination that the jury must resolve, include additional questions or provide special interrogatories on these elements. (See CACI No. 1500, Former Criminal Proceeding, elements 2 and 3.)

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 4 and do not have to categorize "economic" and "noneconomic" damages, especially if it is not a Proposition 51 case. The breakdown of damages is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-1501. Malicious Prosecution—Wrongful Use of Civil Proceedings

---

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Was [name of defendant] actively involved in bringing [or continuing] a lawsuit against [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Did [name of defendant] act primarily for a purpose other than succeeding on the merits of the claim?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Was [name of defendant]'s conduct a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other past economic loss $_____]

   Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

   [b. Future economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, April 2008, December 2010, June 2011, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1501, Wrongful Use of Civil Proceedings. See VF-1502 for a form that includes the affirmative defense of reliance on counsel.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If there are disputed issues of fact on the elements of probable cause or favorable termination that the jury must resolve, include additional questions or provide special interrogatories on these elements. (See CACI No. 1501, elements 2 and 3).

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 4 and do not have to categorize "economic" and "noneconomic" damages, especially if it is not a Proposition 51 case. The breakdown of damages is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-1502. Malicious Prosecution—Wrongful Use of Civil Proceedings—Affirmative Defense—Reliance on Counsel

---

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Was [name of defendant] actively involved in bringing [or continuing] the lawsuit against [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Did [name of defendant] make a full and honest disclosure of all the important facts known to [him/her/nonbinary pronoun] to [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] attorney?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, skip question 3 and answer question 4.

3. Did [name of defendant] reasonably rely on [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] attorney's advice?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is no, then answer question 4. If you answered yes, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. Did [name of defendant] act primarily for a purpose other than succeeding on the merits of the claim?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 4 is yes, then answer question 5. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

5. Was [name of defendant]'s conduct a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 5 is yes, then answer question 6. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

6. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other past economic loss $_____]

Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, April 2008, December 2010, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1501, Wrongful Use of Civil Proceedings, and CACI No. 1510, Affirmative Defense—Reliance on Counsel.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If there are disputed issues of fact on the elements of probable cause or favorable termination that the jury must resolve, include additional questions or provide special interrogatories on these elements. (See CACI No. 1501, elements 2 and 3.)

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 6 and do not have to categorize "economic" and "noneconomic" damages, especially if it is not a Proposition 51 case. The breakdown of damages is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-1503. Malicious Prosecution—Wrongful Use of Administrative Proceedings

---

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Was [name of defendant] actively involved in bringing [or continuing] an administrative proceeding against [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Did [name of administrative body] conduct an independent investigation?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is no, then answer question 3. If you answered yes, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Did [name of defendant] act primarily for a purpose other than succeeding on the merits of the claim?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. Was [name of defendant]'s conduct a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 4 is yes, then answer question 5. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

5. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other past economic loss $_____]

Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

[b. Future economic loss

[lost earnings $_____]

[lost profits $_____]

[medical expenses $_____]

[other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, April 2008, December 2010, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1502, Wrongful Use of Administrative Proceedings. See VF-1502 for a form that includes the affirmative defense of reliance on counsel.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If there are disputed issues of fact on the elements of probable cause or favorable termination that the jury must resolve, include additional questions or provide special interrogatories on these elements. (See CACI No. 1502, elements 3 and 4.)

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 5 and do not have to categorize "economic" and "noneconomic" damages, especially if it is not a Proposition 51 case. The breakdown of damages is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-1504. Abuse of Process

We answer the questions submitted to us as follows:

1. Did [name of defendant] [insert legal procedure, e.g., "take the deposition of [name of deponent]"]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 1 is yes, then answer question 2. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

2. Did [name of defendant] intentionally use this legal procedure to [insert alleged improper purpose that procedure was not designed to achieve]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 2 is yes, then answer question 3. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

3. Was [name of defendant]'s conduct a substantial factor in causing harm to [name of plaintiff]?

   _____ Yes _____ No

   If your answer to question 3 is yes, then answer question 4. If you answered no, stop here, answer no further questions, and have the presiding juror sign and date this form.

4. What are [name of plaintiff]'s damages?

   [a. Past economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other past economic loss $_____]

   Total Past Economic Damages: $_____]

   [b. Future economic loss

   [lost earnings $_____]

   [lost profits $_____]

   [medical expenses $_____]

   [other future economic loss $_____]

Total Future Economic Damages: $_____]

[c. Past noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

[d. Future noneconomic loss, including [physical pain/mental suffering:] $_____]

TOTAL $_____

Signed: _____
Presiding Juror

Dated: _____

After [this verdict form has/all verdict forms have] been signed, notify the [clerk/bailiff/court attendant].

New September 2003; Revised April 2007, December 2010, December 2016, May 2024

Directions for Use

This verdict form is based on CACI No. 1520, Abuse of Process—Essential Factual Elements.

The special verdict forms in this section are intended only as models. They may need to be modified depending on the facts of the case.

If specificity is not required, users do not have to itemize all the damages listed in question 4 and do not have to categorize "economic" and "noneconomic" damages, especially if it is not a Proposition 51 case. The breakdown of damages is optional depending on the circumstances.

If there are multiple causes of action, users may wish to combine the individual forms into one form. If different damages are recoverable on different causes of action, replace the damages tables in all of the verdict forms with CACI No. VF-3920, Damages on Multiple Legal Theories.

If the jury is given the discretion under Civil Code section 3288 to award prejudgment interest (see Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal.3d 801, 814 [148 Cal.Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109]), give CACI No. 3935, Prejudgment Interest. This verdict form may need to be augmented for the jury to make any factual findings that are required in order to calculate the amount of prejudgment interest.

VF-1505–VF-1599. Reserved for Future Use

EMOTIONAL DISTRESS

1600. Intentional Infliction of Emotional Distress—Essential Factual Elements

---

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant]'s conduct caused [him/her/nonbinary pronoun] to suffer severe emotional distress. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant]'s conduct was outrageous;
2. [That [name of defendant] intended to cause [name of plaintiff] emotional distress;]

   [or]

   [That [name of defendant] acted with reckless disregard of the probability that [name of plaintiff] would suffer emotional distress, knowing that [name of plaintiff] was present when the conduct occurred;]
3. That [name of plaintiff] suffered severe emotional distress; and
4. That [name of defendant]'s conduct was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s severe emotional distress.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

CACI Nos. 1602–1604, regarding the elements of intentional infliction of emotional distress, should be given with this instruction.

Depending on the facts of the case, a plaintiff could choose one or both of the bracketed choices in element 2.

Sources and Authority

- "A cause of action for intentional infliction of emotional distress exists when there is '(1) extreme and outrageous conduct by the defendant with the intention of causing, or reckless disregard of the probability of causing, emotional distress; (2) the plaintiff's suffering severe or extreme emotional distress; and (3) actual and proximate causation of the emotional distress by the defendant's outrageous conduct.' A defendant's conduct is 'outrageous' when it is so 'extreme as to exceed all bounds of that usually tolerated in a civilized community.' And the defendant's conduct must be 'intended to inflict injury or engaged in with the realization that injury will result.' " (Hughes v. Pair (2009) 46 Cal.4th 1035, 1050–1051 [95 Cal.Rptr.3d 636, 209 P.3d 963])
- "[T]he trial court initially determines whether a defendant's conduct may reasonably be regarded as so extreme and outrageous as to permit recovery. Where reasonable men can differ, the jury determines whether the conduct has been extreme and outrageous to result in liability. Otherwise stated, the court determines whether severe emotional distress can be found; the jury determines whether on the evidence it has, in fact, existed." (Plotnik v. Meihaus (2012) 208 Cal.App.4th 1590, 1614 [146 Cal.Rptr.3d 585].)

- " '[I]t is generally held that there can be no recovery for mere profanity, obscenity, or abuse, without circumstances of aggravation, or for insults, indignities or threats which are considered to amount to nothing more than mere annoyances.' " (Yurick v. Superior Court (1989) 209 Cal.App.3d 1116, 1128 [257 Cal.Rptr. 665], internal citations omitted.)
- "Liability for IIED does not extend to ' " 'mere insults, indignities, threats, annoyances, petty oppressions, or other trivialities.' " ' Malicious or evil purpose is not essential to liability for IIED." (Crouch v. Trinity Christian Center of Santa Ana, Inc. (2019) 39 Cal.App.5th 995, 1007 [253 Cal.Rptr.3d 1], internal citations omitted.)
- "It is not enough that the conduct be intentional and outrageous. It must be conduct directed at the plaintiff, or occur in the presence of a plaintiff of whom the defendant is aware." (Christensen v. Superior Court (1991) 54 Cal.3d 868, 903–904 [2 Cal.Rptr.2d 79, 820 P.2d 181].)
- "A requirement of a special relationship does not appear in the California Supreme Court's formulation of the elements of IIED. To recover for negligent infliction of emotional distress, a plaintiff must prove a special relationship with the defendant but [the plaintiff] sought recovery for intentional infliction, for which proof of a special relationship is not required." (Crouch, supra, 39 Cal.App.5th at pp. 1009–1010.)
- "Severe emotional distress [is] emotional distress of such substantial quantity or enduring quality that no reasonable man in a civilized society should be expected to endure it." (Fletcher v. Western Life Insurance Co. (1970) 10 Cal.App.3d 376, 397 [89 Cal.Rptr. 78].)
- " 'The law limits claims of intentional infliction of emotional distress to egregious conduct toward plaintiff proximately caused by defendant.' The only exception to this rule is that recognized when the defendant is aware, but acts with reckless disregard of, the plaintiff and the probability that his or her conduct will cause severe emotional distress to that plaintiff. Where reckless disregard of the plaintiff's interests is the theory of recovery, the presence of the plaintiff at the time the outrageous conduct occurs is recognized as the element establishing a higher degree of culpability which, in turn, justifies recovery of greater damages by a broader group of plaintiffs than allowed on a negligent infliction of emotional distress theory." (Christensen, supra, 54 Cal.3d at pp. 905–906, internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 525–528

Croskey et al., California Practice Guide: Insurance Litigation, Ch. 11-E, Intentional

Infliction Of Emotional Distress, ¶ 11:61 et seq. (The Rutter Group)

4 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 44, Intentional Infliction of Emotional Distress, § 44.01 (Matthew Bender)

32 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 362, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress, § 362.10 (Matthew Bender)

15 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 153, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress, § 153.20 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1601. Intentional Infliction of Emotional Distress—Fear of Cancer, HIV, or AIDS

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant]'s conduct caused [him/her/nonbinary pronoun] to suffer severe emotional distress by exposing [name of plaintiff] to [insert applicable carcinogen, toxic substance, HIV, or AIDS]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant]'s conduct was outrageous;
2. That [name of defendant]'s conduct exposed [name of plaintiff] to [insert applicable carcinogen, toxic substance, HIV, or AIDS];
3. [That [name of defendant] intended to cause [name of plaintiff] emotional distress;] [or]

   [That [*name of defendant] acted with reckless disregard of the probability that [[name of plaintiff]/the group of individuals including [name of plaintiff]] would suffer emotional distress, knowing that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun/they] [was/were] present when the conduct occurred;]
4. That [name of plaintiff] suffered severe emotional distress from a reasonable fear of developing [insert applicable cancer, HIV, or AIDS]; and
5. That [name of defendant]'s conduct was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s severe emotional distress.

A fear of developing [*insert applicable cancer, HIV, or AIDS] is "reasonable" if the fear stems from the knowledge, confirmed by reliable medical or scientific opinion, that a person's risk of [insert applicable cancer, HIV, or AIDS] has significantly increased and that the resulting risk is significant.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

CACI Nos. 1602–1604, regarding the elements of intentional infliction of emotional distress, should be given with the above instruction. Depending on the facts of the case, a plaintiff could choose one or both of the bracketed choices in element 3.

There may be other harmful agents and medical conditions that could support this cause of action.

See CACI Nos. 1622 and 1623 for claims of negligent infliction of emotional distress involving fear of cancer, HIV, or AIDS.

Sources and Authority

- "The elements of the tort of intentional infliction of emotional distress are: '(1) extreme and outrageous conduct by the defendant with the intention of causing, or reckless disregard of the probability of causing, emotional distress; (2) the plaintiff's suffering severe or extreme emotional distress; and (3) actual and proximate causation of the emotional distress by the defendant's outrageous conduct.' " (Christensen v. Superior Court (1991) 54 Cal.3d 868, 903 [2 Cal.Rptr.2d 79, 820 P.2d 181], internal citation omitted; Potter v. Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. (1993) 6 Cal.4th 965, 1001 [25 Cal.Rptr.2d 550, 863 P.2d 795].)
- " 'The law limits claims of intentional infliction of emotional distress to egregious conduct toward plaintiff proximately caused by defendant.' The only exception to this rule is that recognized when the defendant is aware of, but acts with reckless disregard of, the plaintiff and the probability that his or her conduct will cause severe emotional distress to that plaintiff. Where reckless disregard of the plaintiff's interests is the theory of recovery, the presence of the plaintiff at the time the outrageous conduct occurs is recognized as the element establishing a higher degree of culpability which, in turn, justifies recovery of greater damages by a broader group of plaintiffs than allowed on a negligent infliction of emotional distress theory." (Christensen, supra, 54 Cal.3d at pp. 905–906, internal citations omitted.)
- "Severe emotional distress [is] emotional distress of such substantial quantity or enduring quality that no reasonable [person] in a civilized society should be expected to endure it." (Fletcher v. Western Life Insurance Co. (1970) 10 Cal.App.3d 376, 397 [89 Cal.Rptr. 78]; Potter, supra, 6 Cal.4th at p. 1004.)
- "[I]t must . . . be established that plaintiff's fear of cancer is reasonable, that is, that the fear is based upon medically or scientifically corroborated knowledge that the defendant's conduct has significantly increased the plaintiff's risk of cancer and that the plaintiff's actual risk of the threatened cancer is significant." (Potter, supra, 6 Cal.4th at p. 1004.)
- The court in Herbert v. Regents of University of California (1994) 26 Cal.App.4th 782, 787–788 [31 Cal.Rptr.2d 709] held that the rules relating to recovery of damages for fear of cancer apply to fear of AIDS. See also Kerins v. Hartley (1994) 27 Cal.App.4th 1062, 1075 [33 Cal.Rptr.2d 172].

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 539, 1174

32 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 362, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress, § 362.11[3][c] (Matthew Bender)

15 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 153, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress, § 153.38 (Matthew Bender)

1602. Intentional Infliction of Emotional Distress—"Outrageous Conduct" Defined

"Outrageous conduct" is conduct so extreme that it goes beyond all possible bounds of decency. Conduct is outrageous if a reasonable person would regard the conduct as intolerable in a civilized community. Outrageous conduct does not include trivialities such as indignities, annoyances, hurt feelings, or bad manners that a reasonable person is expected to endure.

In deciding whether [*name of defendant]'s conduct was outrageous, you may consider, among other factors, the following:

(a) Whether [*name of defendant] abused a position of authority or a relationship that gave [him/her/nonbinary pronoun] real or apparent power to affect [name of plaintiff]'s interests;

(b) Whether [*name of defendant] knew that [name of plaintiff] was particularly vulnerable to emotional distress; and

(c) Whether [*name of defendant] knew that [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] conduct would likely result in harm due to mental distress.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

Read the appropriate factors that apply to the facts of the case. Factors that do not apply may be deleted from this instruction.

Sources and Authority

- "Conduct to be outrageous must be so extreme as to exceed all bounds of that usually tolerated in a civilized community." (Davidson v. City of Westminster (1982) 32 Cal.3d 197, 209 [185 Cal.Rptr. 252, 649 P.2d 894].)
- "[W]hether conduct is outrageous is 'usually a question of fact' . . . . [However] many cases have dismissed intentional infliction of emotional distress cases on demurrer, concluding that the facts alleged do not amount to outrageous conduct as a matter of law." (Bock v. Hansen (2014) 225 Cal.App.4th 215, 235 [170 Cal.Rptr.3d 293], internal citations omitted.)
- "[L]iability 'does not extend to mere insults, indignities, threats, annoyances, petty oppressions, or other trivialities. . . . There is no occasion for the law to intervene . . . where someone's feelings are hurt.' " (Agarwal v. Johnson (1979) 25 Cal.3d 932, 946 [160 Cal.Rptr. 141, 603 P.2d 58], quoting Rest.2d Torts, § 46, com. d, overruled on other grounds in White v. Ultramar, Inc. (1999) 21 Cal.4th 563, 579–580 [88 Cal.Rptr.2d 19, 981 P.2d 944].)

- " 'Behavior may be considered outrageous if a defendant (1) abuses a relation or position that gives him power to damage the plaintiff's interests; (2) knows the plaintiff is susceptible to injuries through mental distress; or (3) acts intentionally or unreasonably with the recognition that the acts are likely to result in illness through mental distress. . . .' " (Molko v. Holy Spirit Ass'n (1988) 46 Cal.3d 1092, 1122 [252 Cal.Rptr. 122, 762 P.2d 46], internal citation omitted.)
- Relationships that have been recognized as significantly contributing to the conclusion that particular conduct was outrageous include: employer-employee (Alcorn v. Anbro Engineering, Inc. (1970) 2 Cal.3d 493, 498, fn.2 [86 Cal.Rptr. 88, 468 P.2d 216]), insurer-insured (Fletcher v. Western National Life Insurance Co. (1970) 10 Cal.App.3d 376, 403–404 [89 Cal.Rptr. 78]), landlord-tenant (Aweeka v. Bonds (1971) 20 Cal.App.3d 278, 281–282 [97 Cal.Rptr. 650]), hospital-patient (Bundren v. Superior Court (1983) 145 Cal.App.3d 784, 791–792 [193 Cal.Rptr. 671]), attorney-client (McDaniel v. Gile (1991) 230 Cal.App.3d 363, 373 [281 Cal.Rptr. 242]), collecting creditors (Bundren, supra, at p. 791, fn. 8), and religious institutions (Molko, supra, 46 Cal.3d at pp. 1122–1123).

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 525–528

4 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 44, Intentional Infliction of Emotional Distress, §§ 44.01, 44.03 (Matthew Bender)

32 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 362, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress, § 362.10[3][c] (Matthew Bender)

15 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 153, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress, § 153.20 (Matthew Bender)

1603. Intentional Infliction of Emotional Distress—"Reckless Disregard" Defined

---

[*Name of defendant] acted with reckless disregard in causing [name of plaintiff] emotional distress if:

1. [Name of defendant] knew that emotional distress would probably result from [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] conduct; or
2. [Name of defendant] gave little or no thought to the probable effects of [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] conduct.

New September 2003

Sources and Authority

- "[I]t is not essential to liability that a trier of fact find a malicious or evil purpose. It is enough that defendant 'devoted little or no thought' to probable consequences of his conduct." (KOVR-TV, Inc. v. Superior Court (1995) 31 Cal.App.4th 1023, 1031–1032 [37 Cal.Rptr.2d 431], internal citation omitted.)
- The requirement of reckless conduct is satisfied by a showing that the defendant acted in reckless disregard of the probability that the plaintiff would suffer emotional distress. (Little v. Stuyvesant Life Insurance Co. (1977) 67 Cal.App.3d 451, 462 [136 Cal.Rptr. 653]; Cervantez v. J.C. Penney Co. (1979) 24 Cal.3d 579, 593 [156 Cal.Rptr. 198, 595 P.2d 975].)
- "Where reckless disregard of the plaintiff's interests is the theory of recovery, the presence of the plaintiff at the time the outrageous conduct occurs is recognized as the element establishing a higher degree of culpability which, in turn, justifies recovery of greater damages by a broader group of plaintiffs than allowed on a negligent infliction of emotional distress theory." (Christensen v. Superior Court (1991) 54 Cal.3d 868, 905 [2 Cal.Rptr.2d 79, 820 P.2d 181].)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 525, 527

4 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 44, Intentional Infliction of Emotional Distress, § 44.01 (Matthew Bender)

32 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 362, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress, § 362.10[4] (Matthew Bender)

15 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 153, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress, § 153.21 (Matthew Bender)

1604. Intentional Infliction of Emotional Distress—"Severe Emotional Distress" Defined

---

Emotional distress includes suffering, anguish, fright, horror, nervousness, grief, anxiety, worry, shock, humiliation, and shame.

"Severe emotional distress" is not mild or brief; it must be so substantial or long lasting that no reasonable person in a civilized society should be expected to bear it. [*Name of plaintiff] is not required to prove physical injury to recover damages for severe emotional distress.

New September 2003

Sources and Authority

- " 'It is for the court to determine whether on the evidence severe emotional distress can be found; it is for the jury to determine whether, on the evidence, it has in fact existed.' " (Fletcher v. Western National Life Insurance Co. (1970) 10 Cal.App.3d 376, 397 [89 Cal.Rptr. 78], internal citation omitted.)
- "Emotional distress" includes any "highly unpleasant mental reactions, such as fright, horror, grief, shame, humiliation, embarrassment, anger, chagrin, disappointment, or worry." (Fletcher, supra, 10 Cal.App.3d at p. 397.)
- "With respect to the requirement that the plaintiff show severe emotional distress, this court has set a high bar. 'Severe emotional distress means "emotional distress of such substantial quality or enduring quality that no reasonable [person] in civilized society should be expected to endure it." ' " (Hughes v. Pair (2009) 46 Cal.4th 1035, 1051 [95 Cal.Rptr.3d 636, 209 P.3d 963].)
- " 'One who has wrongfully and intentionally [suffered severe emotional distress] may recover compensatory damages even though he or she has suffered no physical injury,' and 'the right to compensation exists even though no monetary loss has been sustained.' " (Grimes v. Carter (1966) 241 Cal.App.2d 694, 699 [50 Cal.Rptr. 808].)

Secondary Sources

4 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 44, Intentional Infliction of Emotional Distress, § 44.01 (Matthew Bender)

32 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 362, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress, § 362.10 (Matthew Bender)

15 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 153*, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress*, § 153.26 (Matthew Bender)

1605. Intentional Infliction of Emotional Distress—Affirmative Defense—Privileged Conduct

---

[*Name of defendant] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] is not responsible for [name of plaintiff]'s harm, if any, because [name of defendant]'s conduct was permissible. To succeed, [name of defendant] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] was [exercising [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] legal right to [insert legal right]] [or] [protecting [his/her/nonbinary pronoun] economic interests];
2. That [name of defendant]'s conduct was lawful and consistent with community standards; and
3. That [name of defendant] had a good-faith belief that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] had a legal right to engage in the conduct.

If you find all of the above, then [*name of defendant]'s conduct was permissible.

New September 2003

Directions for Use

Whether a given communication is within the privileges afforded by Civil Code section 47 is a legal question for the judge.

Sources and Authority

- "Whether treated as an element of the prima facie case or as a matter of defense, it must also appear that the defendants' conduct was unprivileged." (Fletcher v. Western National Life Insurance Co. (1970) 10 Cal.App.3d 376, 394 [89 Cal.Rptr. 78].)
- The statutory privileges that Civil Code section 47 affords to certain oral and written communications are applicable to claims for intentional infliction of emotional distress. (Agostini v. Strycula (1965) 231 Cal.App.2d 804, 808 [42 Cal.Rptr. 314].)
- "The usual formulation is that the [litigation] privilege applies to any communication (1) made in judicial or quasi-judicial proceedings; (2) by litigants or other participants authorized by law; (3) to achieve the objects of the litigation; and (4) that have some connection or logical relation to the action." (Silberg v. Anderson (1990) 50 Cal.3d 205, 212 [266 Cal.Rptr. 638, 786 P.2d 365].)
- "Where an employer seeks to protect his own self-interest and that of his employees in good faith and without abusing the privilege afforded him, the privilege obtains even though it is substantially certain that emotional distress will result from uttered statements." (Deaile v. General Telephone Co. of California (1974) 40 Cal.App.3d 841, 849–850 [115 Cal.Rptr. 582].)

- "Nevertheless, the exercise of the privilege to assert one's legal rights must be done in a permissible way and with a good faith belief in the existence of the rights asserted. It is well established that one who, in exercising the privilege of asserting his own economic interests, acts in an outrageous manner may be held liable for intentional infliction of emotional distress." (Fletcher, supra, 10 Cal.App.3d at p. 395, internal citations omitted.)
- "While it is recognized that the creditor possesses a qualified privilege to protect its economic interest, the privilege may be lost should the creditor use outrageous and unreasonable means in seeking payment." (Bundren v. Superior Court (1983) 145 Cal.App.3d 784, 789 [193 Cal.Rptr. 671].)
- "In determining whether the conduct is sufficiently outrageous or unreasonable to become actionable, it is not enough that the creditor's behavior is rude or insolent. However, such conduct may rise to the level of outrageous conduct where the creditor knows the debtor is susceptible to emotional distress because of her physical or mental condition." (Symonds v. Mercury Savings & Loan Assn. (1990) 225 Cal.App.3d 1458, 1469 [275 Cal.Rptr. 871], internal citations omitted.)

Secondary Sources

5 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, §§ 529, 530

4 Levy et al., California Torts, Ch. 44, Intentional Infliction of Emotional Distress, § 44.06 (Matthew Bender)

32 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 362, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress, § 362.10[8] (Matthew Bender)

15 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 153, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress, § 153.27 (Matthew Bender)

1606–1619. Reserved for Future Use

1620. Negligence—Recovery of Damages for Emotional Distress—No Physical Injury—Direct Victim—Essential Factual Elements

---

[Name of plaintiff] claims that [name of defendant]'s conduct caused [him/her/nonbinary pronoun] to suffer serious emotional distress. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] was negligent;
2. That [name of plaintiff] suffered serious emotional distress; and
3. That [name of defendant]'s negligence was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s serious emotional distress.

Emotional distress includes suffering, anguish, fright, horror, nervousness, grief, anxiety, worry, shock, humiliation, and shame. Serious emotional distress exists if an ordinary, reasonable person would be unable to cope with it.

New September 2003; Revised June 2014, December 2014

Directions for Use

Use this instruction in a negligence case if the only damages sought are for emotional distress. The doctrine of "negligent infliction of emotional distress" is not a separate tort or cause of action. It simply allows certain persons to recover damages for emotional distress only on a negligence cause of action even though they were not otherwise injured or harmed. (See Molien v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1980) 27 Cal.3d 916, 928 [167 Cal.Rptr. 831, 616 P.2d 813].)

A "direct victim" case is one in which the plaintiff's claim of emotional distress is based on the violation of a duty that the defendant owes directly to the plaintiff. (Ragland v. U.S. Bank National Assn. (2012) 209 Cal.App.4th 182, 205 [147 Cal.Rptr.3d 41].) The California Supreme Court has allowed plaintiffs to recover damages as "direct victims" in only three types of factual situations: (1) the negligent mishandling of corpses (Christensen v. Superior Court (1991) 54 Cal.3d 868, 879 [2 Cal.Rptr.2d 79, 820 P.2d 181]); (2) the negligent misdiagnosis of a disease that could potentially harm another (Molien, supra, 27 Cal.3d at p. 923); and (3) the negligent breach of a duty arising out of a preexisting relationship (Burgess v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal.4th 1064, 1076 [9 Cal.Rptr.2d 615, 831 P.2d 1197]).

The judge will normally decide whether a duty was owed to the plaintiff as a direct victim. If the issue of whether the plaintiff is a direct victim is contested, a special instruction with the factual dispute laid out for the jury will need to be drafted.

This instruction should be read in conjunction with either CACI No. 401, Basic Standard of Care, or CACI No. 418, Presumption of Negligence per se.

If the plaintiff witnesses the injury of another, use CACI No. 1621, Negligence—Recovery of Damages for Emotional Distress—No Physical Injury—Bystander—Essential Factual Elements. For instructions for use for emotional distress arising from exposure to carcinogens, HIV, or AIDS, see CACI No. 1622, Negligence—Recovery of Damages for Emotional Distress—No Physical Injury—Fear of Cancer, HIV, or AIDS—Essential Factual Elements, and CACI No. 1623, Negligence—Recovery of Damages for Emotional Distress—No Physical Injury—Fear of Cancer, HIV, or AIDS—Malicious, Oppressive, or Fraudulent Conduct—Essential Factual Elements.

Elements 1 and 3 of this instruction could be modified for use in a strict products liability case. A plaintiff may seek damages for the emotional shock of viewing the injuries of another when the incident is caused by defendant's defective product. (Kately v. Wilkinson (1983) 148 Cal.App.3d 576, 587 [195 Cal.Rptr. 902].)

The explanation in the last paragraph of what constitutes "serious" emotional distress comes from the California Supreme Court. (See Molien, supra, 27 Cal.3d at p. 928.) In Wong v. Jing, an appellate court subsequently held that serious emotional distress from negligence without other injury is the same as "severe" emotional distress for the tort of intentional infliction of emotional distress. (Wong v. Jing (2010) 189 Cal.App.4th 1354, 1378 [117 Cal.Rptr.3d 747].)

Sources and Authority

- " '[The] negligent causing of emotional distress is not an independent tort but the tort of negligence . . . .' 'The traditional elements of duty, breach of duty, causation, and damages apply. Whether a defendant owes a duty of care is a question of law. Its existence depends upon the foreseeability of the risk and upon a weighing of policy considerations for and against imposition of liability.' " (Marlene F. v. Affiliated Psychiatric Medical Clinic, Inc. (1989) 48 Cal.3d 583, 588 [257 Cal.Rptr. 98, 770 P.2d 278], internal citations omitted.)
- " 'Direct victim' cases are cases in which the plaintiff's claim of emotional distress is not based upon witnessing an injury to someone else, but rather is based upon the violation of a duty owed directly to the plaintiff." (Ragland, supra, 209 Cal.App.4th at p. 205.)
- "[D]uty is found where the plaintiff is a 'direct victim,' in that the emotional distress damages result from a duty owed the plaintiff 'that is "assumed by the defendant or imposed on the defendant as a matter of law, or that arises out of a relationship between the two." ' " (McMahon v. Craig (2009) 176 Cal.App.4th 1502, 1510 [97 Cal.Rptr.3d 555].)
- "We agree that the unqualified requirement of physical injury is no longer justifiable." (Molien, supra, 27 Cal.3d at p. 928.)
- "[S]erious mental distress may be found where a reasonable man, normally constituted, would be unable to adequately cope with the mental stress engendered by the circumstances of the case." (Molien, supra, 27 Cal.3d at pp. 927–928.)

- "In our view, this articulation of 'serious emotional distress' is functionally the same as the articulation of 'severe emotional distress' [as required for intentional infliction of emotional distress]. Indeed, given the meaning of both phrases, we can perceive no material distinction between them and can conceive of no reason why either would, or should, describe a greater or lesser degree of emotional distress than the other for purposes of establishing a tort claim seeking damages for such an injury." (Wong, supra, 189 Cal.App.4th at p. 1378.)

Secondary Sources

6 Witkin, Summary of California Law (11th ed. 2017) Torts, § 1138 et seq.

Haning et al., California Practice Guide: Personal Injury, Ch. 3-C, Specific Items Of Compensatory Damages, ¶ 3:899 et seq. (The Rutter Group)

1 California Torts, Ch. 5, Negligent Infliction of Emotional Distress, § 5.03 (Matthew Bender)

32 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 362, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress, § 362.11 (Matthew Bender)

15 California Points and Authorities, Ch. 153*, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress*, § 153.31 et seq. (Matthew Bender)

1621. Negligence—Recovery of Damages for Emotional Distress—No Physical Injury—Bystander—Essential Factual Elements

---

[*Name of plaintiff] claims that [he/she/nonbinary pronoun] suffered serious emotional distress as a result of perceiving [an injury to/the death of] [name of victim]. To establish this claim, [name of plaintiff] must prove all of the following:

1. That [name of defendant] negligently caused [injury to/the death of] [name of victim];
2. That when the [describe event, e.g., traffic accident] that caused [injury to/the death of] [name of victim] occurred, [name of plaintiff] was [virtually] present at the scene [through [specify technological means]];
3. That [name of plaintiff] was then aware that the [e.g., traffic accident] was causing [injury to/the death of] [name of victim];
4. That [name of plaintiff] suffered serious emotional distress; and
5. That [name of defendant]'s conduct was a substantial factor in causing [name of plaintiff]'s serious emotional distress.

[*Name of plaintiff] need not have been then aware that [name of defendant] had caused the [e.g., traffic accident].

Emotional distress includes suffering, anguish, fright, horror, nervousness, grief, anxiety, worry, shock, humiliation, and shame. Serious emotional distress exists if an ordinary, reasonable person would be unable to cope with it.

New September 2003; Revised December 2013, June 2014, December 2014, December 2015, May 2022

Directions for Use

