b) Amendments to Penal Code sections 1203.2(a), 1170(h)(5)(B) and 3456 (b) (Action Required)

The Criminal Law Advisory Committee, following the decision in People v. Leiva (2013) 56 Cal 4th 498, proposes statutory amendments to Penal Code sections 1203.2(a), 1170(h)(5)(B) and 3456 (b) to address the jurisdiction of courts to adjudicate alleged violations of supervision that occur after the original supervision term has expired, but during a period when supervision had been summarily revoked. The amendments would clarify the legislature's intent that the time during revocation, summary or otherwise, shall not be credited toward any period of supervision. This proposal was developed at the request of judges to ensure that court jurisdiction over defendants under any form of court-ordered supervision is preserved and to authorize courts to reinstate and extend supervision following a violation, whether or not the violation occurred during the original term of supervision.
