As stated above, when registering an out-of-state support order, the request must include a sworn statement that includes the amount of any alleged arrearage. Item 3 of form FL-570 states, "The amount of arrears is specified in section 1 on the attached Letter of Transmittal Requesting Registration." While the amount of support in arrears is listed in section 1 of the OCSE transmittal form, this information might not be listed in a letter of transmittal submitted by an individual; instead, an individual could just state the amount of arrearage in a separate sworn affidavit. The committee proposes revising item 3 of the form to read, "The amount of arrears is specified in the attached letter of transmittal requesting registration or sworn statement."

Finally, if an individual registers a support order, the court would not be required to return a copy of the paperwork to the LCSA, but would instead only return a conformed copy to the registering party. Therefore, the committee proposes revising item 8 in the Clerk's Certificate of Mailing section to state, "A copy was sent to the registering party on (date) …"

Policy implications

By removing references on the Judicial Council forms to federal child support forms, making the forms suitable for use when an individual registers a support order, and by having one form to contest the registration of a California order and another form to contest the registration of an out-of-state order, the whole process of registering a support order would become more consistent and increase access to justice: courts would have a Judicial Council form available to give the notice required upon registration, and litigants would be made more aware what defenses are available to the type of registration particular to their case.

Comments

This proposal circulated for comment as part of the spring 2019 invitation-to-comment cycle, from April 12 to June 10, 2019, to the standard mailing list for family and juvenile law proposals. Included on the list were appellate presiding justices, appellate court administrators, trial court presiding judges, trial court executive officers, judges, court administrators and clerks, attorneys, family law facilitators and self-help center staff, legal services attorneys, social workers, and other family law professionals. The proposal also went to the Department of Child Support Services, the Child Support Directors Association of California's Legal Practices Committee chair, the Judicial Council Forms Subcommittee chair, and child support commissioners.

Seven organizations or individuals provided comment: all seven commenters agreed with the proposal, although four commentators suggested some slight modifications to the forms. A chart with the full text of the comments received and the committee's responses is attached at pages 15–26.

Two of the commenters suggested revising the item on form FL-445—requesting a stay of enforcement of the support order because the order has been appealed—to also indicate that security for the payment of the support ordered has been provided, which the committee proposes be included in the form. Two commenters stated that the term "documents and relevant information accompanying the order" found in the clerk's certificate of mailing section on form FL-570 is not clearly defined and could cause confusion; however, the committee recommends using this term as it is taken directly from the applicable statute. Two commenters suggested revising form FL-575 to include all of the defenses to contest the registration of an out-of-state support order listed in the statute, and the committee recommends revising the form accordingly. The committee also proposes including other formatting revisions proposed by some commenters to make the forms clearer and more consistent, such as having portions of the instruction sections of forms FL-445 and FL-575 mirror each other.

Alternatives considered

The committee considered keeping form FL-575 as a dual-use form to contest the registration of a California or out-of-state support order, with additional warning language added regarding the defenses available to each type of registration. However, the committee instead thought it preferable to create a separate form to contest each type of registration. Additionally, the committee considered revising the references to federal forms on forms FL-570 and FL-575 as technical changes but chose to circulate both forms for comment in order to obtain suggestions for alternative language and to give the public, justice partners, and the courts proper notice that the forms would be modified.

Fiscal and Operational Impacts

The committee anticipates that this proposal will result in some initial costs to the courts to train judicial officers and court staff and would require courts to create copies of the new and updated forms but, because the forms are used on an as-needed basis, there may be no additional printing costs imposed. Additionally, any increased costs would be offset by the time saved by the courts now being able to use form FL-570 to give the required notice to the nonregistering party, where previously no Judicial Council form existed. Finally, having two separate forms to contest the registration of a California or out-of-state support order would help eliminate confusion for litigants regarding which potential defenses apply to which type of registration.

INFORMATION SHEET FOR REQUEST FOR HEARING REGARDING REGISTRATION OF CALIFORNIA SUPPORT ORDER

(Do NOT deliver this Information Sheet to the court clerk.)

Please follow these instructions to complete the Request for Hearing Regarding Registration of California Support Order (form FL-445) if you do not have a lawyer representing you. Your lawyer, if you have one, should complete this form. You can get free help with this form from the family law facilitator in your county.

This form should be used if you received a notice of registration telling you that a California support order is being registered in a California court but you do not want that support order registered. To request a hearing regarding the registration of an out-of-state support order, use form FL-575. To request a hearing regarding the registration of an International Hague Convention support order, use form FL-594.

You must file your completed request for hearing with the court clerk. The address of the court clerk is the same as the one shown for the superior court on the notice of registration you received. You may have to pay a filing fee to request a hearing. If you cannot afford to pay the filing fee, you must file a Request to Waive Court Fees (form FW-001). You can get this form from the court clerk, the California Courts website at www.courts.ca.gov, or the family law facilitator in your county (who can also assist you with the application). Provide an original Request for Hearing Regarding Registration of California Support Order and any attachments plus at least three copies for filing. Keep copies of the filed request and any attachments for service, and keep the other copy for your records.

Someone other than you, who is at least 18 years old, must serve (deliver) copies of the request on the other parent, or their lawyer if they have one in this case. A copy must also be served on the local child support agency, if that office is providing services in the case. The paperwork must be served at least 15 days before the hearing date. (Note: If the paperwork is served by mail, there are special rules regarding this service deadline.) Be sure to file your Proof of Service with the court clerk. More information about how to serve legal paperwork can be found on the California Courts website at www.courts.ca.gov/selfhelp-serving.htm or from the family law facilitator in your county.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR COMPLETING THE REQUEST FOR HEARING REGARDING REGISTRATION OF CALIFORNIA SUPPORT ORDER (YOU CAN COMPLETE THE FORM ON A COMPUTER, BY TYPING, OR BY PRINTING IN BLACK OR BLUE INK):

Instructions for Numbered Paragraphs

1. Leave this section blank. The court clerk will fill in the date, time, and location of the hearing.

2. Check this box if you do not want the support order to be registered. Then, check the box or boxes to tell the court the reasons why you do not want the support order to be registered.

   a. Check this box if you are not the person named in the statement for registration you received.

b. Check this box if the support order attached to the statement for registration you received is not a valid order. You will need to explain to the court why you believe the order is not valid in item 3 of the form.

c. You should check this box if you disagree with the amount of arrears (back support) listed in the paperwork attached to the statement for registration. Tell the court the correct amount of arrears owed in the space provided (if known). If you attach any documents to support your position, check the applicable box. (Note: This is not a valid defense if the amount of arrears listed in the paperwork attached to the statement for registration was already determined by another court.)

d. Check this box if you have another reason to object to the registration of the support order and state your reason in the space provided.

3. Check this box if you want enforcement of the support order stayed (stopped) because you have appealed the order, you have furnished security for the support order, and the appeal is still pending or if the order has been stayed by another court to give you time to appeal the order.

4. You must fully explain all of the reasons that you checked in item 2 or 3 of this request. If you need more space, you may attach additional sheets. Check the box labeled “Contained in the attached declaration" if you are attaching a declaration or additional pages explaining your reasons for this request.

You must date the form, print your name, and sign the form under penalty of perjury. When you sign the form, you are stating that the information you have provided is true and correct.

INFORMATION SHEET FOR REQUEST FOR HEARING REGARDING REGISTRATION OF OUT-OF-STATE SUPPORT ORDER

(Do NOT deliver this Information Sheet to the court clerk.)

Please follow these instructions to complete the Request for Hearing Regarding Registration of Out-of-State Support Order (form FL-575) if you do not have a lawyer representing you. Your lawyer, if you have one, should complete this form. You can get free help with this form from the family law facilitator in your county.

This form should be used if you received a notice of registration telling you that an out-of-state support order is being registered in a California court but you do not want that support order registered. To request a hearing regarding the registration of an International Hague Convention support order, use form FL-594. To request a hearing regarding the registration of a California support order, use form FL-445.

You must file your completed request for hearing with the court clerk. You must also give the court clerk addressed envelopes with postage paid to mail copies of your request for hearing to the other parties. The address of the court clerk is the same as the one shown for the superior court on the notice of registration you received. You may have to pay a filing fee to request a hearing. If you cannot afford to pay the filing fee, you must file a Request to Waive Court Fees (form FW-001). You can get this form from the court clerk, the California Courts website at www.courts.ca.gov, or the family law facilitator in your county (who can also assist you with the application).

1. Leave this section blank. The court clerk will fill in the date, time, and location of the hearing.

2. In this section you are telling the court why you do not want the support order to be registered. Check the box or boxes to tell the court the reasons why you do not want the support order to be registered.

   a. You should check this box if the court that issued the support order did not have jurisdiction over you to issue the order. You may need legal advice to find out if this is a valid reason in your case.

   b. Check this box if your support order was obtained by fraud. You may need legal advice to find out if this is a valid reason in your case.

   c. You should check this box if a court has suspended or vacated your support order. You should also check this box if your support order was modified by a later order. If the order was modified, you must attach a copy of your most recent support order to your request for hearing.

   d. Check this box if you have already filed an appeal to your support order and a court has stopped the order until the appeal is decided.

   e. You should check this box if you disagree with the amount of arrears (back support) listed in the letter of transmittal requesting registration or sworn statement. Tell the court the correct amount of arrears owed in the space provided (if known). If you attach any documents to support your position, check the applicable box.

2. f. Check this box only if your support order was made by a court outside California and cannot be enforced due to the statute of limitations in that jurisdiction.

   g. Check this box if there is a defense under California law to the remedy sought.

   h. Check this box if there is another support order involving the parties and children that is the controlling (correct) order. (Attach a copy of the other order.)

   i. Check this box if you have another reason to object to the registration of the support order and then specify the other reason.

3. You must fully explain all of the reasons that you checked in item 2 of this request. If you need more space, you may attach additional sheets. Check the box labeled "Contained in the attached declaration" if you are attaching a declaration or additional pages explaining your reasons for this request.

You must date the form, print your name, and sign the form under penalty of perjury. When you sign the form, you are stating that the information you have provided is true and correct.

1.	Orange County Bar Association by Deidre Kelly, President	AM	The proposal appropriately addresses the stated purpose. Specific Comments: Does Form FL-445 adequately set forth defenses? Yes. Does Form FL-575 adequately set forth defenses? Yes, but the form appears to require a "letter of transmittal requesting registration" which is done for interstate enforcement through the Local Child Support Agency (in California, that's the Dept. of Child Support Services), but is NOT part of a private registration process. Confusion by litigants or court clerks could result in denial of registration when no "letter of transmittal requesting registration" can be provided. In addition, the form also refers to "documents and relevant information accompanying the order" without guidance or definition of what those items are.	No response required. Fam. Code § 5700.602(a) requires that "a letter of transmittal requesting registration and enforcement" be submitted, along with copies of the order, a statement of arrears and the name of the support obligor, regardless of if the request to register is from an LCSA or is a private request. In order for the court to give proper notice to the non-registering party "[t]he notice must be accompanied by a copy of the registered order and the documents and relevant information accompanying the order." (Fam. Code, § 5700.605(a).) The committee discussed the suggestion to include a definition of "documents and relevant information" but does not recommend doing so as this term is taken directly from the statute.

			of different sizes? It appears that the proposal would work for courts of all sizes. GENERAL COMMENTS: FL-575 (Page 3, Paragraph 3): For consistency, the fourth sentence should be revised to mirror the instructions included on FL-445. "You can get this form from the court clerk, the California Courts website at www.courts.ca.gov, or the family law facilitator in your county (who can also assist you with the application)."	No response required. The committee agrees with the suggestion for the identified instruction language on form FL-575 to mirror the language on form FL-445 and has incorporated it into the revisions that it is recommending for adoption.
4.	Judy B. Louie, Director/Family Law Facilitator, ACCESS Center, Superior Court of San Francisco County	AM	Changing "attorney" to "lawyer" to make it more "plain English" doesn't make sense. Everyone knows what an attorney is. Registration of support order: proposed forms seem easier to use and understand.	With the large number of limited English proficient speakers in California, the committee does not agree with the suggestion to use the term "attorney" but to instead use the more commonly understood term "lawyer".
5.	California Department of Child Support Services by Kristen Donadee, Assistant Chief Counsel	AM	General Comments Overall, the department likes the concept of separating out the CA from the foreign support orders. We believe it is a much clearer process; however, the department wishes to point out that individual may utilize federal forms for this process. FL-445 (new) 1) Page 1, item 2 c. The department understands a court's need to know	FL-445 1) The committee agrees with this suggestion and has incorporated it, with

			obligor's position regarding arrearages, FC §5603 does not require an objector to specify what the correct amount of arrears are. 2) Page 1, item 2 d. Pursuant to FC §5603 (b) the court must make a finding regarding an appeal; it technically isn't a defense to registration like those listed in §5603(a), but instead will stay enforcement only when obligor furnishes security for the support payment. For this reason, JCC should either (1) remove this from the request; or (2) add information to inform the registering party that they will be required to bring evidence of the appeal to the hearing, that checking this box will not stop the registration, but only enforcement if ordered by the court and obligor posts security for the support. 3) Page 1, above the declaration under penalty of perjury. Add a box that says "____Additional pages attached" to denote any attachments and the number of pages. Since item 2c suggests that supporting documents are attached it may be helpful to know the number of pages that are supposed to be attached. 4) Page 2 Instructions for Numbered Paragraphs, item 2. This instruction should provide for the circumstance where an obligor objects on multiple items. It could read: "You must check	minor alterations, into the revisions that it is recommending for adoption, by indicating on the form that this information is not obligatory. 2) The committee agrees with this suggestion and has incorporated it, with minor alterations, into the revisions that it is recommending for adoption, by creating a new item 3 to request that the court stay enforcement of the order due to a pending appeal and that security for support has been furnished. 3) The committee discussed the suggestion to add a section regarding the number of pages attached but does not recommend its inclusion as it could cause confusion to the parties and the court if this item is referring to attached documents regarding arrears, an attached declaration, or both. 4) The committee agrees with this suggestion and has incorporated it, with minor alterations, into the revisions that it is recommending for adoption, by revising item 2 (and the corresponding

			the box(es) by your reason(s)." 5) Page 3, item c. This instruction makes it mandatory to write in the correct arrears amount. As stated above, FC §5603 does not require this; although it would be helpful for the court to know the obligor's position. Suggestion: Make this an optional piece of the form rather than mandatory. It could say: "Write in the correct amount of arrears in the space provided, alternately, explain why you believe the amount of arrears stated in the statement for registration you received was wrong in item 3 of this form." 6) Page 3, item d. Either remove this from the form or explain to the objecting obligor that they must provide evidence at the hearing and it will not stop registration, but instead stay enforcement if the court makes the findings required and if obligor posts security for the support during the stay. Form FL-570 Clerk's Certificate of Mailing: The term "and the documents and relevant information accompanying the order" is vague. Unless the clerk is sending all "documents and information accompanying the order" I could see a challenge later. FC 5700.602(5)(b) uses the term "documents	instructions_ to state, "check all that apply." 5) The committee agrees with this suggestion and has incorporated it, with minor alterations, into the revisions that it is recommending for adoption, by indicating on the form an in the instructions that this information is not obligatory. 6) The committee agrees with this suggestion and has incorporated it, with minor alterations, into the revisions that it is recommending for adoption, by creating a new item 3 to request that the court stay enforcement of the order due to a pending appeal and that security for support has been furnished. FL-570 While Family Code section 5700.602(5)(b) uses the term "documents and information," section 5700.605(a) uses more general language: "[t]he notice must be accompanied by a copy of the registered order and the documents and relevant information accompanying the order." The committee discussed the suggestion to include a

			and information". I suggest that JCC use the term within the statute to avoid the concern that the clerk is determining what is "relevant", or alternatively have a place for the clerk to list the documents that were served with the accompanying order so that it is clear what the party(ies) received. Form FL-575 1) Page 1, item 2(e). The department understands a court's need to know obligor's position regarding arrearages, FC § 5700.606 does not require an objector to specify what the correct amount of arrears are. 2) The defenses listed did not include two set forth in FC § 5700.607 as follows: (7) Statute of Limitations; but this is not necessary as CA has an "until paid" statute. 7.	Ronald Ladage, Chair, CSDA, Judicial Council Forms Committee, Director/Chief Attorney, El Dorado County DCSS	A	The Committee agrees with the proposal to create a new request for hearings form regarding registrations of specifically California orders. The continued use of the FL-575 for this purpose will cause confusion and delay for many court customers with the references to Federal forms, paperwork and defenses that are not relevant when registering a California (not out-of-state) order. Separating the forms will provide more clarity to pro per litigants about the appropriate defenses to a registration of a California support order instead of the defenses only appropriate to the registration of an out-of-state support order. Generally, dual use forms may cause confusion for litigants, attorneys and judges. We believe it is best to separate out such forms for direct use in the correct relevant circumstance. Form FL-445 The Committee believes that the listed defenses to registration on the FL-445 comport with the defenses as set out in Family Code §5603. 1) However, the Committee believes that the obligor may request a stay of enforcement under Family Code §5603 subsection (b), thus, we recommend adding a new provision 4 to read as follows:	No response required. 1) The committee agrees with this suggestion and has incorporated it, with minor alterations, into the revisions that it is recommending for adoption, by creating a new item 3 to request that the court stay

Executive Summary

The Family and Juvenile Law Advisory Committee proposes amending rules 5.350 and 5.635 of the California Rules of Court, and revising forms FL-100, FL-120, FL-170, FL-200, FL-220, FL-230, FL-235, FL-250, FL-260, FL-270, FL-272, FL-273, FL-274, FL-276, FL-278, FL-280, FL-281, FL-285, FL-290, FL-300-INFO, FL-600, FL-610, FL-615, FL-686, and FL-694. The revisions are necessary to comply with amendments to the Family Code made by Assembly Bill 2684 (Bloom; Stats. 2018, ch. 876) that replaced the word "paternity" with "parentage" and made statutes gender inclusive when possible.

Recommendation

The Family and Juvenile Law Advisory Committee recommends that the Judicial Council, effective January 1, 2020:

1. Amend rules 5.350 and 5.635 of the California Rules of Court to replace current text with the terms "voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity," "parentage," and "genetic testing" as needed.
2. Revise the following forms by replacing current text with the terms "voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity," "parentage," and "genetic testing" as needed:
   - Petition—Marriage/Domestic Partnership (form FL-100);
   - Response—Marriage/Domestic Partnership (form FL-120);
   - Declaration for Default or Uncontested Dissolution or Legal Separation (form FL-170);
   - Petition to Establish Parental Relationship (form FL-200);
   - Response to Petition to Establish Parental Relationship (form FL-220);
   - Declaration for Default or Uncontested Judgment (form FL-230);
   - Advisement and Waiver of Rights Re: Establishment of Parental Relationship (form FL-235);
   - Judgment (Uniform Parentage—Custody and Support) (form FL-250);
   - Petition for Custody and Support of Minor Children (form FL-260);
   - Response to Petition for Custody and Support of Minor Children (form FL-270);
   - Notice of Motion to Set Aside Judgment of Paternity (form FL-272);
   - Declaration in Support of Motion to Set Aside Judgment of Paternity (form FL-273);
   - Information Sheet for Completing Notice of Motion to Set Aside Judgment of Paternity (Forms FL-272 and FL-273) (form FL-274);
   - Response to Notice of Motion to Set Aside Judgment of Paternity (form FL-276);
   - Order After Hearing on Motion to Set Aside Judgment of Paternity (form FL-278);
   - Request for Hearing and Application to Set Aside Voluntary Declaration of Paternity (form FL-280);
   - Information Sheet for Completing Request for Hearing and Application to Set Aside Voluntary Declaration of Paternity (Form FL-280) (form FL-281);
   - Responsive Declaration to Application to Set Aside Voluntary Declaration of Paternity (form FL-285);
   - Order After Hearing on Motion to Set Aside Voluntary Declaration of Paternity (form FL-290);
   - Information Sheet for Request for Order (form FL-300-INFO);
   - Summons and Complaint or Supplemental Complaint Regarding Parental Obligations (form FL-600);
   - Answer to Complaint or Supplemental Complaint Regarding Parental Obligations (form FL-610);
   - Stipulation for Judgment or Supplemental Judgment Regarding Parental Obligations and Judgment (form FL-615);
   - Proof of Service by Mail (form FL-686); and
   - Advisement and Waiver of Rights for Stipulation (form FL-694).

3. Revise forms FL-273, FL-274, FL-280, and FL-281 to reflect the new rules regarding setting aside a voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity.
4. Revise forms FL-272, FL-276, FL-280, and FL-285 by changing the layout and language of the forms to make them more accessible and provide better clarity to litigants.
5. Revise and rename forms FL-272, FL-273, FL-274, FL-276, Fl-278, FL-280, FL-281, FL-285, and FL-290 by rephrasing "set aside" as "cancel (set aside)."
6. Revise the following forms to include gender-inclusive references to the parties and children or to make the interpreter's declaration gender inclusive: FL-100, FL-120, FL-200, FL-220, FL-260, FL-270, and FL-300-INFO.
7. Revise the following forms to make them consistent with current law and the formatting of other nongovernmental family law forms: FL-100, FL-120, FL-170, FL-200, FL-220, FL-260, and FL-270.
8. Revise form FL-615 to remove references to relief currently available to child support obligors under Family Code section 4007.5, which will sunset effective January 1, 2020.

Relevant Previous Council Action

The council adopted rule 5.350 effective July 1, 2000, and rule 5.635 effective July 1, 1995; both of these rules were subsequently renumbered and amended. The council adopted the following forms as follows:

- FL-600 and FL-610 effective January 1, 1997[1];
- FL-100, FL-120, FL-170, FL-200, FL-220, FL-230, FL-235, FL-250, FL-260, and FL-270 effective January 1, 1999[1];
- FL-694 effective January 1, 2003;
- FL-272, FL-273, FL-274, FL-276, FL-278, FL-280, FL-281, FL-285, and FL-290 effective January 1, 2006;
- FL-686 effective January 1, 2014; and
- FL-300-INFO effective January 1, 2016.

The rules have been amended and most of the forms have been revised multiple times over the years, although none of those modifications pertain directly to the current proposal.

Analysis/Rationale

Changes based on Assembly Bill 2684

The changes made to the Family Code by AB 2684 that require amending rules and revising various forms are as follows:

- Referring to any blood tests or genetic tests to determine paternity as "genetic testing (for parentage)";

[1] Effective January 1, 2003, these forms were renumbered to their current form number.

- Redefining the marital presumption of parentage by replacing references to "husband" and "wife" with "spouse";
- Changing the name of the voluntary declaration of paternity to "voluntary declaration of parentage";
- Redefining which parents may execute a voluntary declaration of parentage; and
- Amending the procedures and legal standards for setting aside a voluntary declaration of parentage.

These changes are consistent with other recent amendments to the Family Code that replaced the word "paternity" with "parentage" and an overall effort by the Legislature to make statutes gender neutral, when possible.

Currently, in order for a father to be named on the birth certificate of a child born in California outside of marriage, the mother and father both must sign a voluntary declaration of paternity, which is then filed with the California Department of Child Support Services (DCSS). Commencing January 1, 2020, this DCSS form will be called a "voluntary declaration of parentage." This form is referenced multiple times on various Judicial Council forms. However, for many years to come litigants will still come forward for relief from the courts with the old version of the form, the "voluntary declaration of paternity." Therefore, the committee proposes replacing all references in rules and on the forms with "voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity." This way, both versions of the voluntary declaration will be included.

Assembly Bill 2684 (see Link A) also removed all references to blood tests and instead uses the term "genetic testing." While any references to blood tests already have been removed from most family law forms in order to ensure greater consistency throughout the forms, the committee also proposes replacing the terms "genetic tests" and "parentage tests" with "genetic testing." Additionally, the council has already replaced "paternity" with "parentage" on many forms; however, the term still remains on several other forms. As such, the committee is also proposing replacing "paternity" with "parentage" as needed.

The great majority of the proposed revisions are technical in nature and entail simply replacing old terms with "voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity," "parentage," or "genetic testing," as applicable. However, AB 2684 also significantly altered the rules regarding voluntary declarations of parentage or paternity, as follows:

- Expands who is eligible to sign a voluntary declaration of parentage to include not only an unmarried mother and the only possible genetic parent, but also a mother who gave birth to the child using assisted reproduction and the intended parent.
- Adds, to the list of when a voluntary declaration of parentage is void, that the child has a presumed parent, a court has entered a judgment of parentage, another person has signed a valid declaration of parentage, the child has a parent as the result of assisted reproduction other than the signatories, the person seeking to establish parentage is a sperm or ova donor, or a person asserts that they are a parent and the child was not conceived through assisted reproduction.

- Revises what must be on the voluntary declaration of parentage developed by the DCSS to comply with the changes in this legislation.
- Limits the ability of signatories to challenge a voluntary declaration of parentage after the existing 60-day rescission period to challenges based on fraud, duress, and material mistake of fact, consistent with federal law, with the requirement that any such challenge be brought within two years of the effective date of the voluntary declaration. (This limit does not apply to a voluntary declaration that is void.) Clarifies that, unless the voluntary declaration is void, the existing process to challenge a voluntary declaration of parentage may only be brought by a person who is not a signatory of the declaration and who has standing, is an alleged parent who is not a donor, or is a presumed parent.
- Provides that, by signing a voluntary declaration of parentage, a signatory submits to personal jurisdiction in California in an action challenging the declaration. Prevents the court from suspending legal responsibilities arising from the declaration, including the duty to pay child support, during the pendency of a challenge to the declaration. If the court order in the challenge to the declaration is at variance with the child's birth certificate, the legislation requires the court to order a new birth certificate.[2]

Technical changes to forms

As stated above, the vast majority of the proposed revisions are technical in nature and entail simply replacing the old terms with the new terms. The committee proposes the council revise forms FL-600, FL-610, FL-615, FL-686, and FL-694 to reflect these changes, with no other major changes. The committee also proposes the council revise forms FL-272, FL-273, FL-274, FL-276, FL-278, FL-280, FL-281, FL-285, and FL-290 to reflect these technical changes and proposes further revisions as described below.

Family Code section 4007.5 sunsetting

The committee proposes the council revise form FL-615 to remove references to relief currently available to child support obligors under Family Code section 4007.5, which will sunset effective January 1, 2020. Legislation that would have removed the sunset date and made this section permanent unexpectedly lost support and is now inactive; meaning this section will repeal effective January 1, 2020. Twelve other forms that will be affected by the repeal of this statute are contained in a separate proposal to be revised as a technical change.[3]

Making forms more accessible

Given the high percentage of self-represented litigants in the area of family law, one of the committee's longstanding goals is to make family law forms easier to understand by improving the layout of forms and using more plain language. With this goal in mind, the committee proposes the council revise several forms, as follows:

[3] Judicial Council of Cal., Rules and Forms: Technical Changes Required by Sunsetting of Family Code section 4007.5.

- Inserting an instruction box just below the case caption, giving the filer basic instructions about the purpose of the form and how to file and serve the paperwork;
- Substituting "TO ALL PARTIES" for "TO (name)" so that the filer need not insert to whom the motion is being directed, leaving just the hearing information to be inserted by the court clerk;
- Replacing the term "set aside" with the more easily understood "cancel (set aside)";
- Inserting common-sense definitions of "marital presumption of parentage" and "guardian ad litem" where these terms are mentioned; and
- Including hyperlinks to other forms and content on the Judicial Council website that are referred to on the forms.

The committee proposes the council revise forms FL-272, FL-274, FL-280, and FL-285, as described above. Additionally, forms FL-272, FL-273, FL-274, FL-276, FL-278, FL-280, FL-281, FL-285, and FL-290 would be retitled and revised by changing the term "set aside" to "cancel (set aside)." Moreover, commencing January 1, 2020, the law regarding setting aside a voluntary declaration of parentage will be listed in Family Code sections 7576 and 7577, rather than Family Code section 7575(c), where it currently resides. Therefore, any references in the footers of the forms to section 7575(c) would be replaced with references to sections 7576 and 7577.

Substantive changes to set-aside rules (forms FL-273 and FL-280)

AB 2684 does substantially change the procedures and legal standards surrounding a request to set aside a voluntary declaration of parentage. Perhaps the biggest change is that the signatories of the voluntary declaration will no longer be able to request a set-aside under the grounds listed in Code of Civil Procedure section 473(b), but instead will only be able to request a set-aside based on fraud, duress, or material mistake of fact. Additionally, any such request must be filed by a signatory within two years of the effective date of the voluntary declaration. (If both signatories are adults when signing the form, the effective date is the date the form is filed with DCSS.)

In general, the current set-aside rules are still the same for a nonsignatory to request relief. However, the local child support agency was removed from the statute as being one of the parties that could bring such a motion. Furthermore, when a nonsignatory files a motion to set aside, Family Code section 7577(e) states that notice must be provided to the signatories of the voluntary declaration and "any person entitled to notice under section 7635" (i.e., natural parent, presumed parent, and alleged genetic parent). Joinder is also mandatory for "any person who asserts a claim to parentage" and "every signatory" of the declaration. (Fam. Code, §§ 7577(e), 7578(a).)

committee reviewed the issue of whether the new set-aside rules apply to these existing declarations, or will the old set-aside rules still apply? The committee acknowledged the difficulty of this question, but in the end reached the conclusion that the old set-aside rules should continue to apply to declarations filed before January 1, 2020.

In reaching this conclusion, the committee acknowledged that there are exceptions to the general rule set forth in Family Code section 4(c) that a new law applies immediately to all matters upon its effective date. Specifically, orders are governed by the law applicable when the order was made. (Fam. Code, § 4(e).) The committee noted that under California law, a voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity has the "same force and effect as a judgment for paternity"[4] or is "equivalent to a judgment of parentage."[5] And if the voluntary declaration is to be treated the same as a judgment, then its validity should be governed by the applicable law in place when it was signed and filed with DCSS.

Based on this assumption, the new set-aside rules have essentially created three separate classes of would-be filers: signatories of a voluntary declaration signed before January 1, 2020; signatories of a voluntary declaration signed on or after January 1, 2020; and nonsignatories. The committee proposes revising form FL-280 and item 4c of form FL-273 by making the forms more accessible as described above, and as follows:

- Inserting the new grounds for relief, with plain language definitions included in parentheses;
- Keeping the old grounds for relief; and
- Removing the section where the filer states, "I have complied with the time limits for filing this request to set aside …" (form FL-280, item 10).

The committee does not recommend creating forms to specifically address the grounds for relief and time limits for each separate class of filer, as this would make the forms too cumbersome and difficult to understand. Instead, the new grounds for relief are listed on the forms first, followed by the current grounds for relief with the following warning language inserted before the current defenses: "The following reasons apply only to voluntary declarations signed before January 1, 2020 or if you did not sign the declaration." Additionally, in the instructions to these request forms (FL-274 and FL-281), the following additional warning language was added to inform the filer of the change in law:

> Note: Effective January 1, 2020, the law regarding canceling (setting aside) voluntary declarations of parentage or paternity changed. If the declaration was filed after that date, the people that signed the declaration may only request that it be canceled because of fraud, duress, or material mistake of fact. If you did not sign the declaration or if it was filed before January 1, 2020, there may be other reasons to request the court cancel the declaration.

Amendments to rules 5.350 and 5.635

The committee proposes the council amend rule 5.350 as follows:

- Replacing "voluntary declaration of paternity" with "voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity";
- Replacing references to Family Code section 7575(c) with sections 7576 and 7577;
- Removing the reference to local child support agency in subdivision (b) to now read that only a "person who has signed a voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity, or another interested party," may file a motion to set aside; and
- Including the new verbiage discussed above for the voluntary declaration and request to cancel (set aside) when referencing the motion Request for Hearing and Application to Cancel (Set Aside) Voluntary Declaration of Parentage or Paternity (form FL-280).

The committee proposes the council amend rule 5.635 as follows:

- Replacing "voluntary declaration of paternity" with "voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity";
- Replacing other references to paternity with "parentage";
- Replacing "genetic tests" with "genetic testing"; and
- Replacing "man" and "father" with "person" and "parent," respectively, in subdivision (c) consistent with prior amendments to Family Code section 7611.

Changes to nongovernmental forms

Making forms gender neutral

AB 2684 amends portions of the Family Code by making it gender neutral (e.g., replacing "paternity" with "parentage" and replacing references to "husband" and "wife" with "spouse" in section 7540). These changes are consistent with other amendments to the Family Code and California statutes in general made by the Legislature, as evidenced by Senate Bill 179 (Atkins; Stats. 2018, ch. 853) regarding gender identity and Assembly Concurrent Resolution 260 (Stats. 2018, res. ch. 190) regarding the use of gender-neutral language and pronouns.

The committee proposes the council take this opportunity to further revise the forms by making them gender neutral, in addition to making the revisions required by AB 2684. For example, any references to "his or her" would been removed (e.g., item 12 on form FL-170), as would be the requirement of listing the sex of a child on a petition or response (forms FL-100, FL-120, FL-200, FL-220, FL-260, and FL-270). It should be noted that the gender of a child was never included on the governmental child support summons and complaint (form FL-600) or answer (form FL-610) since the adoption of those forms in 1997.

The committee sought specific comment about the proposal to change form FL-200, item 1b, and form FL-220, item 2b, as set forth below. In the current form FL-200, item 1b allows the petitioner to identify as "the father." However, this term may be too general, as a person may be a biological father, a presumed father, or an intended parent of a child under Family Code sections 7611 and 7630. Thus, the committee proposes the council change both forms to allow a petitioner to specify that the petitioner wants to be determined as "a parent" of the child. In form FL-200, the petitioner would be able to state the reason why the court should make that determination. Specifically, item 1b would be changed to "Petitioner wants to be determined as a parent of the child because (specify): …" Most commenters responded to this as a question of phrasing. No one disagreed with providing the opportunity for petitioners to allow participants to state why they wanted to be determined to be the parent.

However, not all references to gender-based terms could be removed from the revised forms. This is because, while AB 2684 did make many more sections of the Family Code gender inclusive, the rules for setting aside a judgment of parentage still use such terms as "previously established father," "previously established mother," "alleged father," "biological father," and "genetic father." (See Fam. Code, §§ 7645–7649.5.) Therefore, these terms were not entirely removed from all of the revised forms, such as form FL-273.

Other changes

The committee proposes the council make additional revisions to some of the nongovernmental family law forms to reflect changes in the law and make them consistent with other forms, as described below:

- FL-170, item 5c, would be revised to reflect an amendment to Family Code section 2110 under Senate Bill 340 (Stats. 2015, ch. 46), which allows a party to waive service of the preliminary declaration of disclosure as well as receipt of a final declaration of disclosure if the respondent was served with a summons by posting under a court order.
- In the titles of forms FL-200 and FL-220, "determine" would be substituted for "establish" with regard to the parental relationship. This change would reflect the use of the term "determine" in the Family Code. It would also cover actions in which a party is seeking to establish or disestablish a parental relationship.
- Form FL-170 would be revised to clarify that a party may only request restoration of a maiden name in an action for dissolution of marriage or nullity under Family Code section 2080.
- Forms FL-200, FL-220, and FL-260 would be revised to replace the term "visitation" with "visitation (parenting time)."
- Form FL-220 would be revised to indicate that the party completing the form must complete and attach Declaration Under Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act (form FL-105).
- Forms FL-170, FL-200, FL-260, and FL-270 would be revised to reorganize the presentation of the information to make the forms easier to complete.

Policy implications

By removing references on the Judicial Council forms to federal child support forms, making the forms suitable for use when an individual registers a support order, and by having one form to contest the registration of a California order and another form to contest the registration of an out-of-state order, the whole process of registering a support order would become more consistent and increase access to justice: courts would have a Judicial Council form available to give the notice required upon registration, and litigants would be made more aware of what defenses are available to the type of registration particular to their case.

Comments

This proposal circulated for comment as part of the spring 2019 invitation-to-comment cycle, from April 12 to June 10, 2019, to the standard mailing list for family and juvenile law proposals. Included on the list were appellate presiding justices, appellate court administrators, trial court presiding judges, trial court executive officers, judges, court administrators and clerks, attorneys, family law facilitators and self-help center staff, legal services attorneys, social workers, and other family law professionals. The proposal also went to the Department of Child Support Services, the Child Support Directors Association of California's Legal Practices Committee chair, the Judicial Council Forms Subcommittee chair, and child support commissioners.

In total, 12 different organizations or individuals submitted comments. Many commenters made thoughtful suggestions to the forms, primarily correcting typographical errors and simplifying language. There are three policy matters the committee considered.

Commenters were asked whether parties should be required to provide a voluntary declaration of parentage with their initial pleadings. Currently, that is optional with forms FL-100 and FL-120, FL-200 and FL-220, and FL-260 and FL-270. Five commenters weighed in on the issue: three (the Superior Court of Los Angeles County, the Orange County Bar Association, and the California Department of Child Support Services) recommended that it not be a requirement and two commenters (the Superior Courts of San Diego and Riverside Counties) recommended that it be required, although Riverside's comment suggests that it may not be necessary if a Declaration Under UCCJEA (form FL-105) is attached.

In its comment, the Superior Court of Los Angeles County noted that, "Judicial officers generally do not ask to see this. Parties frequently do not have a copy. If the other party wants to challenge that one was signed, then it could be ordered produced, and the burden would fall on the parties to produce the evidence." The Orange County Bar Association recommended that the forms not require that the declaration of parentage be attached "since most parents tend not to keep that form and instead keep the Birth Certificate. The 'POP Dec' ('Parental Opportunity Program Declaration') is retained by Dept. of Social Services if needed." The California Department of Social Services noted that, "Requiring the declaration prior to the Petition may delay filings while the Petitioner seeks to obtain a copy (and if it is from out of state it may be a significant delay). Some states such as Nevada have statutes that severely restrict access to the document. In these cases, requiring the form may prevent a participant from filing.

The San Diego court recommended that parties be required to attach the declarations of parentage to the initiating pleadings. They note that, "It may be helpful to add language in this section indicating that the social security numbers on the [voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity] should be redacted before it is attached." The Riverside court suggested that it should be required for forms FL-200 and FL-220. However, it suggested that it not be required for forms FL-260 and FL-270 because parties are required to attach form FL-105, Declaration Under Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act (UCCJEA), for those forms. Since FL-105 is required for each of the forms in question, it appears that Riverside might be willing to accept the FL-105 instead of the voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity.

After consideration, the committee determined that for forms FL-100, FL-110, FL-200 and FL 220, that the voluntary declaration should be strongly encouraged, but not required. It proposes using the language of the domestic violence forms which say "attach a copy if available." However, since the basis for jurisdiction in the FL-260 and FL-270 is that an official Voluntary Declaration of Parentage or Voluntary Declaration of Paternity has been signed and submitted to the Department of Child Support Services, the committee recommends that the form be mandatory for those cases. This prevents a party from mistakenly filing a case for custody and support only if parentage has not been legally determined. If the form is not available, the petitioner can instead file an FL-200 Petition to Determine Parentage to obtain orders for custody and support.

The invitation to comment also asked if forms FL-273 and FL-280 correctly reflect the new rules regarding setting aside a voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity. In reply to this question, three commenters replied "yes," and two replied "no," stating that the new law as amended effective January 1, 2020, should apply to all voluntary declarations of parentage or paternity, whether they were filed before or after the new law takes effect. Specifically, DCSS cited Family Code section 4(c) and stated the "new law applies 'to all matters governed by the new law, regardless of whether an event occurred or circumstance existed before, on, or after the operative date [citation omitted].'" The Child Support Directors Association's Judicial Council Forms Subcommittee also weighed in on the issue, commenting that once the new set-aside rules take effect on January 1, 2020, it is uncertain if the new law or old law should apply to voluntary declarations filed prior to January 1, 2020.

In response, the advisory committee carefully considered the issue and for the reasons detailed above, propose the forms continue to list the set-aside relief available under the old law, while acknowledging that the law will change effective January 1, 2020.

Alternatives considered

Amendments and revisions to the rules and forms listed above are required to reflect the statutory changes created by AB 2684. The committee considered two alternatives:
(1) recommending technical changes directly to the Judicial Council without circulating the rules and forms with the proposed changes for public comment, or (2) circulating the rules and forms to request specific comment on the proposed changes.

The committee chose the second option, to enable the committee to obtain suggestions for alternative language and give the public, justice partners, and the courts proper notice that the rules and forms would be altered. Additionally, while most of the revisions are technical in nature, the changes to the law regarding setting aside voluntary declarations of parentage are substantive.

Fiscal and Operational Impacts

The committee anticipates that courts would incur some costs to revise forms and add them to their case management systems, train court staff about the revised forms included in this proposal, and possibly revise local court rules and forms so they are consistent with the changes adopted by the Judicial Council.

Rule 5.350. Procedures for hearings to cancel (set aside) voluntary declarations of parentage or paternity when no previous action has been filed

(a) Purpose

This rule provides a procedure for a hearing to cancel (set aside) a voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity under Family Code sections ~~7575(c)~~ 7576 and 7577.

(b) Filing of request for hearing

A person who has signed a voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity, or ~~a local child support agency~~ another interested party, may ask that the declaration be canceled (set aside) by filing a completed Request for Hearing and Application to Cancel (Set Aside) Voluntary Declaration of Parentage or Paternity (form FL-280).

(c) * * *

(d) Notice of hearing

The person who is asking that the voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity be canceled (set aside) must serve, either by personal service or by mail, a copy of the request for hearing and a blank Responsive Declaration to Application to Cancel (Set Aside) Voluntary Declaration of Parentage or Paternity (form FL-285) on the other person or people who signed the voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity. If the local child support agency is providing services in the case, the person requesting the set-aside must also serve a copy of the request for hearing on the agency.

(e) Order after hearing

The decision of the court must be written on the Order After Hearing on Motion to Cancel (Set Aside) Voluntary Declaration of Parentage or Paternity (form FL-290). If the voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity is canceled (set aside), the clerk must mail a copy of the order to the Department of Child Support Services in order that the voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity be purged from the records.

(f) Use of court file in subsequent proceedings

Pleadings in any subsequent proceedings, including but not limited to proceedings under the Uniform Parentage Act, that involve the parties and child named in the voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity must be filed in the court file that was initiated by the filing of the Request for Hearing and Application to Cancel (Set Aside) Voluntary Declaration of Parentage or Paternity (form FL-280).

Rule 5.635. Parentage

(a) * * *

(b) Parentage inquiry (§§ 316.2, 726.4)

At the initial hearing on a petition filed under section 300 or at the dispositional hearing on a petition filed under section 601 or 602, and at hearings thereafter until or unless parentage has been established, the court must inquire of the child's parents present at the hearing and of any other appropriate person present as to the identity and address of any and all presumed or alleged parents of the child. Questions, at the discretion of the court, may include the following and others that may provide information regarding parentage:

(6) Has a man formally or informally acknowledged ~~paternity~~ parentage, including the execution and filing of a voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity under Family Code section 7570 et seq., and agreed to have his name placed on the child's birth certificate?

(7) ~~Have~~ Has genetic ~~tests~~ testing been administered, and, if so, what were the results?

(8) * * *

(c) Voluntary declaration

If a voluntary declaration as described in Family Code section 7570 et seq. has been executed and filed with the California Department of Child Support Services, the declaration establishes the ~~paternity~~ parentage of a child and has the same force and effect as a judgment of ~~paternity~~ parentage by a court. A ~~man~~ person is presumed to be the ~~father~~ parent of the child under Family Code section 7611 if the voluntary declaration has been properly executed and filed.

NOTICE—CANCELLATION OF RIGHTS: Dissolution or legal separation may automatically cancel the rights of a domestic partner or spouse under the other domestic partner's or spouse's will, trust, retirement plan, power of attorney, pay-on-death bank account, survivorship rights to any property owned in joint tenancy, and any other similar thing. It does not automatically cancel the right of a domestic partner or spouse as beneficiary of the other partner's or spouse's life insurance policy. You should review these matters, as well as any credit cards, other credit accounts, insurance polices, retirement plans, and credit reports, to determine whether they should be changed or whether you should take any other actions. NOTICE: You may redact (black out) social security numbers from any written material filed with the court in this case other than a form used to collect child, spousal or partner support.

NOTICE—CANCELLATION OF RIGHTS: Dissolution or legal separation may automatically cancel the rights of a domestic partner or spouse under the other domestic partner's or spouse's will, trust, retirement plan, power of attorney, pay-on-death bank account, survivorship rights to any property owned in joint tenancy, and any other similar thing. It does not automatically cancel the right of a domestic partner or spouse as beneficiary of the other partner's or spouse's life insurance policy. You should review these matters, as well as any credit cards, other credit accounts, insurance polices, retirement plans, and credit reports, to determine whether they should be changed or whether you should take any other actions. Some changes may require the agreement of your partner or spouse or a court order.

The original response must be filed in the court with proof of service of a copy on Petitioner.

DECLARATION FOR DEFAULT OR UNCONTESTED ☐ DISSOLUTION ☐ LEGAL SEPARATION	CASE NUMBER:

(NOTE: Items 1 through 12 apply to both dissolution and legal separation proceedings.)

1. I declare that if I appeared in court and were sworn, I would testify to the truth of the facts in this declaration.
2. I agree that my case will be proven by this declaration and that I will not appear before the court unless I am ordered by the court to do so.
3. All the information in the ☐ amended ☐ Petition ☐ Response is true and correct.
4. Type of case (check a, b, or c):
   a. ☐ Default without agreement
      (1) No response has been filed and there is no written agreement or stipulated judgment between the parties;
      (2) The default of the respondent was entered or is being requested, and I am not seeking any relief not requested in the petition; and
      (3) The following statement is true (check one):
         (A) ☐ There are no assets or debts to be disposed of by the court.
         (B) ☐ The community and quasi-community assets and debts are listed on the completed current Property Declaration (form FL-160), which includes an estimate of the value of the assets and debts that I propose to be distributed to each party. The division in the proposed Judgment (form FL-180) is a fair and equal division of the property and debts, or if there is a negative estate, the debts are assigned fairly and equitably.
   b. ☐ Default without agreement
      (1) No response has been filed and the parties have agreed that the matter may proceed as a default matter without notice; and
      (2) The parties have entered into a written agreement regarding their property and their marriage or domestic partnership rights, including support, the original of which is being or has been submitted to the court. I request that the court approve the agreement.
   c. ☐ Uncontested
      (1) Both parties have appeared in the case; and
      (2) The parties have entered into a written agreement regarding their property and their marriage or domestic partnership rights, including support, the original of which is being or has been submitted to the court. I request that the court approve the agreement.
5. Declaration of disclosure (check a, b, or c):
   a. ☐ Both the parties have filed, or are filing concurrently, a Declaration Regarding Service of Declaration of Disclosure (form FL-141) and an Income and Expense Declaration (form FL-150).
   b. ☐ This matter is proceeding by default. I am the petitioner in this action and have filed a proof of service of the preliminary Declaration of Disclosure (form FL-140) with the court. I hereby waive receipt of the final Declaration of Disclosure (form FL-140) from the respondent.
   c. ☐ This matter is proceeding by default. I am the petitioner in this action, and service of the summons on respondent was done by publication or posting under court order. Service of the preliminary Declaration of Disclosure (form FL-140) is not required. I hereby waive receipt of the final Declaration of Disclosure (form FL-140) from the respondent.

11. ☐ The judgment should be entered nunc pro tunc for the following reasons (specify):

12. ☐ Petitioner ☐ Respondent requests restoration of the former name as set forth in the proposed Judgment (form FL-180) (proceedings for dissolution or nullity of marriage only).

13. Irreconcilable differences have led to the irremediable breakdown of the marriage or domestic partnership, and there is no possibility of saving the marriage or domestic partnership through counseling or other means.

14. This declaration may be reviewed by a commissioner sitting as a temporary judge, who may determine whether to grant this request or require my appearance under Family Code section 2336.

STATEMENTS IN THIS BOX APPLY ONLY TO DISSOLUTIONS

15. If this is a dissolution of a marriage or domestic partnership created in another state, the petitioner or the respondent has been a resident of this county for at least three months and of the state of California for at least six months continuously and immediately preceding the date of the filing of the petition for dissolution of marriage or domestic partnership.
16. I ask that the court grant the request for a judgment of dissolution of marriage or domestic partnership based on irreconcilable differences and that the court make the orders set forth in the proposed Judgment (form FL-180) submitted with this declaration.
17. ☐ Status only judgment: This declaration is only for the termination of marital or domestic partner status. I ask the court to reserve jurisdiction over all other issues not requested in this declaration for later determination.

THIS STATEMENT APPLIES ONLY TO LEGAL SEPARATIONS

18. I ask that the court grant the request of a judgment for legal separation based on irreconcilable differences and that the court make the orders set forth in the proposed Judgment (form FL-180) submitted with this declaration.

    I understand that a judgment of legal separation does not terminate a marriage or domestic partnership, and that I am still married or a partner in a domestic partnership.

19. ☐ Other (specify):

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

A blank Response to Petition to Determine Parental Relationship (form FL-220) must be served on the respondent with this petition.

NOTICE: If you have a child from this relationship, the court is required to order child support based upon the income of both parents. Support normally continues until the child is 18. You should supply the court with information about your finances. Otherwise, the child support order will be based upon information supplied by the other parent. Any party required to pay child support must pay interest on overdue amounts at the "legal" rate, which is currently 10 percent.

ADVISEMENT AND WAIVER OF RIGHTS RE: DETERMINATION OF PARENTAL RELATIONSHIP

1. RIGHT TO BE REPRESENTED BY A LAWYER. I understand that I have the right to be represented by a lawyer of my own choice at my own expense. If I cannot afford a lawyer, I can contact the Lawyer Referral Association of the local bar association or the Family Law Facilitator for assistance.
2. RIGHT TO A TRIAL. I understand that I have a right to have a judge determine whether I am the parent of the children named in this action.
3. RIGHT TO CONFRONT AND CROSS-EXAMINE WITNESSES. I understand that in a trial I have the right to confront and cross-examine the witnesses against me and to present evidence and witnesses in my own defense.
4. RIGHT TO HAVE GENETIC TESTING. I understand that, where the law permits, I have the right to have the court order genetic testing. The court will decide who pays for the tests. The court could order that I pay none, some, or all of the costs of the tests.
5. OBLIGATIONS. I understand that if I admit that I am the parent of the children in this action that those children will be my children for legal purposes.
6. WAIVER. I understand that I am admitting that I am the parent of the children named in the stipulation and am giving up the rights stated above (except the right to an attorney if I have an attorney).
7. CHILD SUPPORT. I understand that I will have the duty to contribute to the support of the children named in this action and that this duty of support will continue for each child until the obligation is terminated by law.
8. CRIMINAL NON-SUPPORT. I understand that if I willfully fail to support the children, criminal proceedings may be initiated against me.

INFORMATION SHEET FOR COMPLETING NOTICE OF MOTION TO CANCEL (SET ASIDE) JUDGMENT OF PARENTAGE (FORMS FL-272 AND FL-273)

NOTICE: IF A COURT ORDERED YOU TO PAY CHILD SUPPORT, YOU MUST CONTINUE PAYING SUPPORT WHILE THIS ACTION IS PENDING.

Use the Notice of Motion to Cancel (Set Aside) Judgment of Parentage (form FL-272) and the Declaration in Support of Motion to Cancel (Set Aside) Judgment of Parentage (form FL-273) to cancel (set aside) an existing parentage judgment. If you are requesting to cancel (set aside) a parentage judgment for more than one child, complete a declaration (form FL-273) for each child. If there is a corresponding voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity, this motion may also be used to cancel (set aside) the voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity. The voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity and/or judgment of parentage may be canceled (set aside) only if the previously established parent is determined by genetic testing not to be the genetic parent of the child. (Even if the motion can be filed as described below, there may be other grounds to set aside the parentage judgment or other related relief may be available. You may wish to consult with an attorney or the family law facilitator in your county before completing and filing the motion.) In addition to this motion, you may file a separate motion to modify child support and set arrears. For information on changing the support order, see the Information Sheet on Changing a Child Support Order on page 2 of form FL-192.

The following persons may bring this motion: (1) a previously established parent, mother, or father; (2) a genetic mother; (3) a presumed parent or an alleged genetic parent who is not a donor; (4) a child; or (5) a legal representative of any of the above persons.

Your request must be filed within the time frame that applies to you:

(1) Within a two-year period starting on the date:

(a) when the previously established parent knew or should have known of a judgment that determined him or her to be the parent of the child (for example, the date a wage garnishment was served), or

(b) when the previously established parent knew or should have known of an action to determine parentage had been filed (for example, the date of service of a summons), whichever is first, except as provided in paragraphs (2)–(5) below, if parentage was established by a voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity.

(2) For all declarations filed before January 1, 2020:
(1) Before the child's second birthday, or (2) within six months of the entry of a court order or judgment for child custody, visitation, or support based on the declaration.

(3) For declarations filed on or after January 1, 2020, that you did NOT sign:
(1) Within two years of the effective date* of the declaration, or (2) within six months of the entry of a court order or judgment for child custody, visitation, or support based on the declaration.

(4) For declarations filed on or after January 1, 2020, that you did sign:
(1) Within two years of the effective date* of the declaration.

(*If both parents were 18 years or older when they signed the declaration, the effective date is when the declaration was filed with the Department of Child Support Services.)

(5) There are no deadlines to assert that the declaration was void (invalid) when it was signed under Family Code section 7573.5.

Note: Effective January 1, 2020, the law regarding canceling (setting aside) voluntary declarations of parentage or paternity changed. If the declaration was filed on or after that date, the people who signed the declaration may only request that it be canceled because of fraud, duress, or material mistake of fact*. If you did not sign the declaration or if it was filed before* January 1, 2020*, there may be other reasons to request that the court cancel the declaration.*

This motion may not be filed if any of the following conditions apply:

The parentage judgment resulted from a divorce, legal separation, or nullity.

The marital presumption contained in Family Code section 7540 applies. (The marital presumption means a child is legally considered to be a child of the marriage if the parents were married and living together as spouses at the time of conception and birth.)

Form Adopted for Optional Use Judicial Council of California
FL-274 [Rev. January 1, 2020]

Family Code, §§ 7577, 7576, 7646
www.courts.ca.gov

There is a voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity and there is no basis to cancel (set aside) the voluntary declaration.

There is another California judgment of parentage in a different case for the same previously established parent and child, unless both parentage judgments qualify for this motion and you filed a motion in each case.

The parentage judgment was not issued in California.

The parentage judgment is based on genetic testing that was done before the judgment and that indicated the previously established parent is the genetic parent of the child.

The judgment is based on an adoption.

The child was conceived by artificial insemination and the judgment is based on Family Code section 7613.

The child was conceived under a surrogacy agreement.

A copy of the completed motion and a blank Response to Notice of Motion to Cancel (Set Aside) Judgment of Parentage (form FL-276) must be served on the following, if applicable:

Any previously established parent, mother, or father;
Any presumed or intended parent or any person alleging to be a genetic parent;
The child's guardian ad litem, if any; and
The local child support agency (LCSA) if it is providing services.

GENETIC TESTING

In most cases, genetic testing will be required. If the LCSA is providing services, the LCSA will pay for and coordinate the genetic testing.

If you receive an administrative order for genetic testing from the LCSA, you may file a motion with the court seeking relief from the LCSA genetic testing order. However, the court may order your participation in genetic testing.

If any person refuses to submit to genetic testing after receipt of the LCSA order for genetic testing, or fails to seek relief from the court before the scheduled test date or within 10 days after the scheduled test date, the court may resolve the question of parentage against that person or enforce the LCSA order if the rights of others or the interest of justice so require.

The moving party is not required to present evidence of genetic testing indicating that the previously established parent is not the genetic parent of the child in order to bring this motion.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

An adult child may be included when completing forms FL-272 and FL-273.

A guardian ad litem may be appointed by the court to represent the best interest of the child.

If the previously established parent is found not to be the genetic parent of the child, the court may still deny this motion if it determines it is in the best interest of the child to do so.

If the court grants this motion to set aside the parentage judgment, the previously established parent has no right to reimbursement of any child support paid before the motion was granted.

Requests for Accommodations

Assistive listening systems, computer-assisted real-time captioning, or sign language interpreter services are available if you ask at least five days before the proceeding. Contact the clerk's office or go to www.courts.ca.gov/forms for Request for Accommodations by Persons With Disabilities and Response (form MC-410). (Civ. Code, § 54.8.)

INFORMATION SHEET FOR COMPLETING REQUEST FOR HEARING AND APPLICATION TO CANCEL (SET ASIDE) VOLUNTARY DECLARATION OF PARENTAGE OR PATERNITY (FORM FL-280)

(Do not deliver this information sheet to the court clerk.)

If you do not have a lawyer representing you, please follow these instructions to complete the Request for Hearing and Application to Cancel (Set Aside) Voluntary Declaration of Parentage or Paternity (form FL-280). If you do have a lawyer representing you, the lawyer should complete the request. Use form FL-280 if you want to set aside a voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity signed more than 60 days ago. If you file this request, the court or the local child support agency may order you, the other person who signed the voluntary declaration, and the child to submit to genetic testing to determine the child's parentage.

You must file the completed Request for Hearing and Application to Cancel (Set Aside) Voluntary Declaration of Parentage or Paternity and attachments with the court clerk. You may have to pay a filing fee when you file it. If you cannot afford to pay the filing fee, ask the court clerk for forms to apply for a waiver of court fees. If you need help completing this form, see a family law facilitator. Provide an original Request for Hearing and Application to Cancel (Set Aside) Voluntary Declaration of Parentage or Paternity and attachments plus at least three copies for filing. Keep the copies of the filed request. The Information Sheet for Service of Process (form FL-611) gives more information about serving your request. Serve one copy of the completed request on each of the people (besides you) who signed the voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity, along with a blank Responsive Declaration to Application to Cancel (Set aside) Voluntary Declaration of Parentage or Paternity (form FL-285). Serve another copy of the request on the local child support agency if that office is providing services in the case. Be sure to file your Proof of Service with the court clerk. Keep the other copy for your records. Someone other than you, who is at least 18 years old, must serve the other people (and the local child support agency, if applicable) with the request.

First box, top of form, left side. Print your name, address, telephone number, and e-mail address, if any, in this box.

Second box, left side. Print the county name and the court address in the box. Use the same county name and court address that are on your judgment or order for parentage or support. If you do not have a parentage or support judgment, visit the following website to find the right court: www.courts.ca.gov/find-my-court.htm.

If an order, a judgment, or a legal action has not been filed in the court based on the voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity:

a. Print your name in the space next to “Petitioner”;

b. Print the name of the other person who signed the voluntary declaration next to “Respondent”; and

c. Leave the space next to “Other Party” blank.

If an order, a judgment, or a legal action has been filed in the court based on the voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity, put the same names next to “Petitioner,” “Respondent,” and “Other Party” that are on the order, judgment, or other legal action that was filed in the court.

First box, top of form, right side. Leave this box blank for the court to use.

Second box, right side. Print the case number shown on your judgment or order for parentage, child support, visitation, or custody. If you do not have a judgment or order, the court clerk will give you a case number.

Item 1. The court clerk will fill in the date, time, department, or court address for setting a court hearing.

Items 3–4. If you need to have the court hear your case in less than the statutorily required time, you can ask the court for an earlier court date. If you need help with requesting an earlier court date, contact the family law facilitator in your county or go to www.courts.ca.gov/selfhelp.

Item 5. In the space provided, insert your name and check the box to indicate if you are the "Petitioner," "Respondent," or "Other." If you check the box for "Other," state your relationship to this case.

In the box at the top of page 2, left side, fill in the names of the parties exactly as you did in the third box on page 1. In the box on the right side, fill in your case number as listed on page 1.

Item 6.

a. Check this box if you want the court to order genetic testing and cancel (set aside) the voluntary declaration.

b. Check this box if you want the court to find the voluntary declaration is void (invalid).

Item 7. Provide information about the voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity. In the spaces provided, list the child's name and date of birth. Then list the names of the people who signed the voluntary declaration and the date they signed it. Also list the date the voluntary declaration was filed with the Department of Child Support Services (if known).

Item 8. Check this box if there are other cases involving the child listed in the voluntary declaration.

a. Check this box for divorce, legal separation, or nullity, and insert the case number (if known).

b. Check this box for parentage, custody, or child support, and insert the case number (if known).

c. Check this box for any other type of case, and insert the case number (if known).

d. Check this box if the local child support agency is providing services for the child, and insert the county.

Item 9. Check this box if there is a judgment or court order for parentage, child support, visitation, or custody based on the voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity. Fill in the date the judgment or order was entered and list the case number. (Note: this form is only to request the voluntary declaration be canceled (set aside); to request that a judgment of parentage be canceled (set aside), you must file a Notice of Motion to Cancel (Set Aside) Judgment of Parentage (form FL-272).)

Note: Effective January 1, 2020*, the law regarding canceling (setting aside) voluntary declarations of parentage or paternity changed. If the declaration was filed on or after that date, the people who signed the declaration may only request that it be canceled because of* fraud, duress, or material mistake of fact*. If you did not sign the declaration or if it was filed before* January 1, 2020*, there may be other reasons to request that the court cancel the declaration.*

Item 10a. Check this box if you believe the voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity should be canceled (set aside), and then check the box or boxes to tell the court the reasons why.

(1) Check this box if you were a victim of fraud, which means someone lied to you and kept you in ignorance of the true facts when you signed the voluntary declaration.

(2) Check this box if you were under duress, which means you were threatened or mentally coerced into signing the voluntary declaration.

(3) Check this box if you made a material mistake of fact, which means you thought that the facts were different from what they really are or were when you signed the voluntary declaration.

The following reasons apply only to voluntary declarations filed before January 1, 2020, or if you did not sign the declaration.

(4) Check this box if any of the following statements describes what happened at the time you signed, were unable to sign, or failed to sign the voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity:

- You misunderstood the facts;
- You ignored what would happen if you signed or failed to sign the voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity, and your lack of attention could not have been avoided with reasonable care and good sense;
- You were unexpectedly placed in the situation of not being able to sign or failing to sign the voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity, and you could not have avoided this with reasonable care and good sense; or
- You were unable to or failed to sign the voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity because of your neglect, and you could not have avoided this by using reasonable care and good sense.

(5) Check this box if you have other reasons why the court should cancel (set aside) the voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity, and state the reasons.

Item 10b. Check this box if you believe the voluntary declaration is void (invalid) under Family Code section 7573.5, and tell the court the reason why in the space provided.

Item 10c. You must fully explain all of the reasons that you checked in item 10a or 10b of the request. Explain any delay in filing your request and why you believe it would be reasonable and fair to cancel (set aside) the voluntary declaration despite the delay. If you need more space, you may attach additional sheets and check the box next to "Contained in the attached declaration."

Your request must be filed within the time frame that applies to you:

- For all declarations filed before January 1, 2020:
  (1) Before the child's second birthday, or (2) within six months of the entry of a court order or judgment for child custody, visitation, or support based on the declaration.

- For declarations filed on or after January 1, 2020, that you did NOT sign:
  (1) Within two years of the effective date* of the declaration, or (2) within six months of the entry of a court order or judgment for child custody, visitation, or support based on the declaration.

- For declarations filed on or after January 1, 2020, that you did sign:
  (1) Within two years of the effective date* of the declaration.

  (*If both parents were 18 years or older when they signed the declaration, the effective date is when the declaration was filed with the Department of Child Support Services.)

- There are no deadlines to assert that the declaration was void (invalid) when it was signed.

You must date the form, print your name, and sign the form under penalty of perjury. When you sign the form, you are stating that the information you have provided is true and correct.

If you need more help with this form, contact a lawyer or the family law facilitator in your county.

INFORMATION SHEET FOR COMPLETING RESPONSIVE DECLARATION TO APPLICATION TO CANCEL (SET ASIDE) VOLUNTARY DECLARATION OF PARENTAGE OR PATERNITY

If you do not have a lawyer representing you, please follow these instructions to complete page 1 of this form. If you do have a lawyer representing you, your lawyer should complete the form. If you are receiving services from the local child support agency, you should contact it right away.

After you complete page 1 of this form, you must file the form and any attachments with the court clerk at least nine court days before the hearing date stated in item 1 of form FL-280. The address of the court clerk is the same as the one shown on that form. If you need help completing this form, see a family law facilitator. Provide an original of this form plus three copies for filing. Use the three copies of the filed responsive declaration for service of process. The Information Sheet for Service of Process (form FL-611) explains what you must do to serve your responsive declaration. Serve one copy on the other person who signed the voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity, and be sure to file your Proof of Service form with the court clerk. Serve the second copy on the local child support agency if that office is providing services in your case. Keep the third copy for your records. Someone other than you, who is at least 18 years old, must serve the other party (and the local child support agency, if applicable) with the responsive declaration.

First box, top of form, left side. Print your name, address, telephone number, and e-mail address in this box.

Second box, left side. Print the same address for the court that is on form FL-280.

Third box, left side. Print the names of the petitioner and respondent in this box. Use the same names listed on form FL-280.

Instructions for Numbered Paragraphs

1. Check the box to tell the court if you agree or do not agree with the information listed about the voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity in item 7 of the Request for Hearing and Application to Cancel (Set Aside) Voluntary Declaration of Parentage or Paternity (form FL-280).

2. Check the box to tell the court if you agree or do not agree to the court canceling (setting aside) the voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity and ordering genetic testing, or if you do not agree that the voluntary declaration is void (invalid).

3. You must fully explain either the reasons you either agree or disagree with the requests made in form FL-280. If you need more space, you may attach additional sheets of paper. Check the box labeled “Contained in the attached declaration” if you are attaching a declaration or additional sheets explaining your reasons.

You must date the form, print your name, and sign the form under penalty of perjury. When you sign the form, you are stating that the information you have provided is true and correct.

If you need more help with this form, contact a lawyer or the family law facilitator in your county.

FL-300-INFO Information Sheet for Request for Order

1 USE Request for Order (form FL-300):

- To schedule a court hearing and ask the court to make new orders or to change orders in your case. The request can be about child custody, visitation (parenting time), child support, spousal or partner support, property, finances, attorney's fees and costs, or other matters.
- To change or end the domestic violence restraining orders granted by the court in Restraining Order After Hearing (form DV-130). See How Do I Ask to Change or End a Domestic Violence Restraining Order (form DV-400-INFO) for more information.

2 DO NOT USE Request for Order (form FL-300):

- Before you have filed a Petition to start your case (form FL-300 may be filed with the Petition).
- If you and the other party have an agreement. For information about how to write up your agreement, get it approved by the court, and filed in your case, see http://www.courts.ca.gov/selfhelp-agreeFL, talk to an attorney, or get help at your court's Self-Help Center or Family Law Facilitator's Office.
- When specific Judicial Council forms must be used to ask the court for orders. For example, to ask:
  - –For a domestic violence restraining order, use forms DV-100, DV-109, and DV-110.
  - –For an order for contempt, use form FL-410.
  - –To cancel a child support order, use form FL-360 or form FL-640.
  - –To cancel a voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity, use form FL-280.

3 Forms checklist

a. Form FL-300, Request for Order, is the basic form you need to file with the court. Depending on your request, you may need these additional forms:

b. To request child custody or visitation (parenting time) orders, you may need to complete some of these forms:
- ☐ FL-105, Declaration Under Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act
- ☐ FL-311, Child Custody and Visitation (Parenting Time) Application Attachment
- ☐ FL-312, Request for Child Abduction Prevention Orders
- ☐ FL-341(C), Children's Holiday Schedule Attachment
- ☐ FL-341(D), Additional Provisions—Physical Custody Attachment
- ☐ FL-341(E), Joint Legal Custody Attachment

c. If you want child support, you need:
- ☐ A current FL-150, Income and Expense Declaration. You may use form FL-155, Financial Statement (Simplified) instead of form FL-150 if you meet the requirements listed on page 2 of form FL-155.

d. If you want spousal or partner support or orders about your finances, you need:
- ☐ A current FL-150, Income and Expense Declaration
- ☐ FL-157, Spousal or Partner Support Declaration Attachment (if the request is to change a support judgment)

e. If you want attorney's fees and costs, you need:
- ☐ A current FL-150, Income and Expense Declaration
- ☐ FL-319, Request for Attorney's Fees and Costs Attachment (or provide the information in a declaration)
- ☐ FL-158, Supporting Declaration for Attorney's Fees and Costs Attachment (or provide the information in a declaration)

f. To request temporary emergency (ex parte) orders, you need:
- ☐ FL-305, Temporary Emergency Orders to serve as the proposed temporary emergency orders.
- ☐ Your declaration describing how and when you gave notice about the request for temporary emergency orders. You may use form FL-303, Declaration Regarding Notice and Service of Request for Temporary Emergency (Ex Parte) Orders.
- ☐ Other forms required by local courts. See item 9 on page 3 of this form for more information.

g. If you plan to have witnesses testify at the hearing, you need:
- ☐ FL-321, Witness List

h. If you want to request a separate trial (bifurcation) on an issue, you need:
- ☐ FL-315, Request or Response to Request for Separate Trial

4 Complete form FL-300 (Page 1)

Caption: In the top box, print or type your name, address, telephone number, and email address if you have one. In the second box, put the court address. In the third box, write the name of the Petitioner, Respondent, and Other Parent/Party (if there is one). (You must use the party names as they appear in the petition that was originally filed with the court).

In the fourth box, check "CHANGE" if you want to change an existing order. Check "TEMPORARY EMERGENCY ORDERS" if you are asking the court to make emergency orders that will be effective until the hearing date. Then, check all the boxes that apply to the orders you are requesting. In the box on the right, write the case number.

Item 1: List the name(s) of the other person(s) in your case who will receive your request. In some cases, this might include a grandparent who is joined as a party in the case, a local child support agency, or a lawyer who represents a child in the case.

Item 2: Leave this blank. The court clerk will fill in the date, time, and place of the hearing.

Item 3: This is a notice to all other parties.

Items 4–5: Leave these blank. The court will complete them if it orders a hearing.

Item 6: In some counties, the court clerk will check item 6 and provide the details for your required child custody mediation or recommending counseling appointment. Other courts require the party or the party's lawyer to make the appointment and then complete item 6 before filing form FL-300.
Ask your court's Family Law Facilitator or Self-Help Center to find out what your court requires.

Items 7–8: Leave these blank. The court will complete them, if needed.

5 Complete form FL-300 (pages 2–4)

6 Complete additional forms and make copies

Complete any additional forms that you need to file with the Request for Order. Make at least two copies of your full packet.

Note: You may file one form FL-150 to respond to items 3, 4, and 6.

7 File your documents

Give your paperwork and the copies you made to the court clerk to process. You may take them to the clerk's office in person, mail them, or, in some counties, you can e-file them.
The clerk will keep the original and give you back the copies you made with a court date and time stamped on the first page of the Request for Order. The procedure may be different in some courts if you are requesting temporary emergency orders.

8 Pay filing fees

A fee is due at the time of filing.
If you cannot afford to pay the filing fee, and you do not already have a valid fee waiver order in this case, you can ask the court to waive the fee by completing and filing form FW-001, Request to Waive Court Fees and form FW-003, Order on Court Fee Waiver.

9 Temporary Emergency (Ex Parte) Orders
(not domestic violence restraining orders)

Courts can make temporary orders in your family law case to respond to emergencies that cannot wait to be heard on the court's regular hearing calendar.

The emergency must involve an immediate danger or irreparable harm to a party or children in the case, or an immediate loss or damage to property.

To request these orders:

- Complete form FL-300. Describe the emergency and explain why you need the temporary emergency orders before the hearing.
- Complete form FL-305 to serve as your proposed temporary orders.
- Include a declaration describing how and when you notified the other parties (or why you could not give notice) about your request and the hearing (see form FL-303).
- Complete other forms if required by your local court rules.
- Follow your court's local procedures for reserving the day for the hearing, submitting your paperwork, and paying filing fees.

10 General information about "service"

"Service" is the act of giving your legal papers to all persons named as parties in the case so that they know what orders you are asking for and have information about the hearing.

If the other parties are NOT properly served, the judge cannot make the orders you requested on the date of the hearing.

11 Serve the Request for Order and blank forms

The other party must be "served" with a:

- Copy of the Request for Order and all the other forms and attachments filed with the court clerk.
- Copy of any temporary emergency orders granted.
- Blank form FL-320, Responsive Declaration to Request for Order.
- Blank form FL-150, Income and Expense Declaration (if you served form FL-150 or FL-155).

12 Who can be a "server"

You cannot serve the papers. Have someone else (who is at least 18 years old) do it. The "server" can be a friend, a relative who is not involved in your case, a sheriff, or a professional process server.

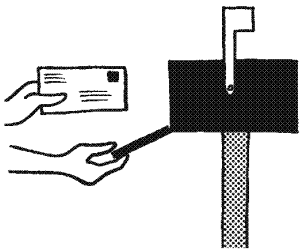
13 "Personal Service"

Personal service means that your "server" walks up to each person to be served, makes sure the right person is being served, and hand-delivers a copy of all the papers (and the blank forms). If the person served does not take the papers, the server may leave the papers near the person.

Note: Sometimes the papers may be personally served on the other party's lawyer (if he or she has one) in the family law case.

14 "Service by mail"

means that your "server" places copies of all the papers (including blank forms) in a sealed envelope and mails them to the address of each party being served (or to the party's lawyer, if the party has one).



The server must be 18 years of age or older and live or work in the county where the mailing took place.

Important! If you have questions about personal service or service by mail, talk to a lawyer or check with your court's Family Law Facilitator or Self-Help Center at http://www.courts.ca.gov/selfhelp-courtresources.htm.

15 When to use personal service or service by mail

Personal Service

Personal service is the best way to make sure the other adults in your case are correctly served. Sometimes you must use personal service.

You must use personal service when the court:

- ☑ Ordered personal service;
- ☑ Granted temporary emergency orders;
- ☑ Does not yet have the power to make orders that apply to the other party because he or she has either NOT previously:
  - Been served with a Summons and *Petition;

    OR
  - Appeared in the case by filing a:
    a. Response to a Petition;
    b. Appearance, Stipulations, and Waivers;
    c. Written notice of appearance;
    d. Request to strike all or part of the Petition; or
    e. Request to transfer the case.

*Note: A Request for Order may be served at the same time as the family law Summons and Petition.

1. After serving, the server must fill out a Proof of Personal Service (form FL-330) and give it to you. If the server needs instructions, the Information Sheet for Proof of Personal Service (form FL-330-INFO) can be provided.
2. Take the completed Proof of Personal Service form to the clerk's office (or e-file it, if available in your court) at least 5 court days before your hearing.

Deadline: The deadline for personal service is 16 court days before the hearing date, unless the court orders a different deadline.

Service by Mail

If you are not required to use personal service, you may use service by mail.

Important! Check with your court's Family Law Facilitator's Office or Self-Help Center, or ask a lawyer to be sure you are allowed to use service by mail in your case.

A Request for Order to change a judgment or final order on the issue of child custody, visitation (parenting time), or child support may be served by mail if:

- ☑ The documents do not include temporary emergency orders;
- ☑ The court did not order personal service; and
- ☑ You have verified the other party's current home or office address. (You may use Declaration Regarding Address Verification (form FL-334).)

To change a judgment or final order on any other issue, including spousal or domestic partner support, the Request for Order may need to be personally served on the other party.

1. After serving, the server must fill out a Proof of Service by Mail (form FL-335) and give it to you. If the server needs instructions, the Information Sheet for Proof of Service by Mail (form FL-335-INFO) can be provided.
2. Take the completed Proof of Personal Service form to the clerk's office (or e-file it, if available in your court) at least 5 court days before your hearing.

Deadline: Unless the court orders a different time, service by mail must be completed at least 16 court days PLUS 5 calendar days before the hearing date (if service is in California). Other time lines apply for service outside of California.

16 Get ready for your hearing

- Take at least two copies of your documents and filed forms to the hearing. Include a filed Proof of Service form.
- Find more information about preparing for your hearing at http://www.courts.ca.gov/1094.htm.
- For information about having the other party testify in court, go to http://www.courts.ca.gov/29283.htm.

17 After the hearing, the order made on form FL-340, Findings and Order After Hearing, must be filed and served.

18 Do you have questions or need help?

- Find a lawyer through your local bar association, the State Bar of California at http://calbar.ca.gov, or the Lawyer Referral Service at 1-866-442-2529.
- For free and low-cost legal help (if you qualify), go to http://www.lawhelpca.org.
- Contact the Family Law Facilitator or Self-Help Center for information and assistance, and referrals to local legal services providers. Go to http://www.courts.ca.gov/selfhelp-courtresources.htm.

The attached proposed Judgment Regarding Parental Obligations (form FL-630) names you and the other parent as parents of each child listed below and, if there is an amount stated in item 6 of the proposed Judgment, orders the obligor to pay support for these children. If you disagree with the proposed Judgment, you must file the attached Answer (form FL-610) form with the court clerk within 30 days of the date that you were served with this Complaint. If you do not file an Answer, the proposed Judgment will become a final determination that you are the parent and responsible for support. If you are required to pay child support, the payments may be taken from your pay or other property without further notice. See the attached statement of your rights and responsibilities for more information.

La agencia local que vigila la manutención de menores ha registrado la presente demanda contra usted. Esta demanda dice que usted y el otro padre son los padres de los hijos nombrados aqui y que el obligado deberá pagar manutención de menores. El propuesto FALLO RESPECTO A OBLIGACIONES PATERNAS (Gubernamental) (formulario FL-630) los nombra a usted y al otro padre como padres de cada uno de los hijos que figuran a continuación y, si se incluye una suma en el inciso ó, obliga al obligado a pagar manutención por estos hijos. Si no está de acuerdo con el FALLO propuesto, deberá registrar el formulario de RESPUESTA que se adjunta, presentándolo al actuario del tribunal dentro de 30 días después de haber recibido notificación de esta DEMANDA. Si usted no registra una RESPUESTA, el FALLO propuesto tomará efecto con una determinación final de paternidad. Si se le está exigiendo que pague manutención de menores, los pagos podrán ser deducidos de su salario o de otras pertenencias suyas sin necesidad de mandarle ninguna otra notificación. Hearing by Court Commissioner

This case may be referred to a court commissioner for hearing. By law, court commissioners do not have the authority to issue final orders and judgments in contested cases unless they are acting as temporary judges. The court commissioner in your case will act as a temporary judge unless, before the hearing, you or any other party objects to the commissioner acting as a temporary judge. You can object to the commissioner acting as a temporary judge in one of two ways: (1) by telling the commissioner in court, at the start of your hearing, that you object or (2) by delivering a written objection to the court clerk. You must object before the hearing in your case begins. You do not have to give a reason for your objection. The court commissioner may still hear your case to make findings and a recommended order. If you do not like the recommended order, you must object to it within 10 court days in writing (use Notice of Objection (form FL-666); otherwise, the recommended order will become a final order of the court). If you object to the recommended order, a judge will make a temporary order and set a new hearing.

Family Law Facilitator

Each superior court has a family law facilitator's office to provide education, information, and assistance to parents who have child support issues. The basic duties of the family law facilitator include:

- Providing educational materials;
- Distributing court forms;
- Providing assistance in completing forms;
- Preparing child support guideline calculations; and
- Providing referrals to the local child support agency, family court services, and other community agencies.

The family law facilitator is a neutral person whose services are available to any person who is NOT represented by an attorney. Both parties in the same case may receive assistance from the family law facilitator. There is no attorney-client privilege between the family law facilitator and any person assisted by the family law facilitator, and matters discussed with the family law facilitator are not confidential. No person can be represented by the family law facilitator.

STATEMENT OF RIGHTS AND RESPONSIBILITIES

NOTICE to the defendant/respondent: The proposed Judgment Regarding Parental Obligations will be entered against you unless you file your written Answer to Complaint or Supplemental Complaint Regarding Parental Obligations (form FL-610) with the court clerk within 30 days of the date you were served with the Complaint. The proposed Judgment will be entered whether or not you have a lawyer. If you were served with a form telling you the date of a court hearing, you should go to court on that date. An order may be entered without your input if you do not attend the hearing.

AVISO para el acusado: El FALLO propuesto entrará en efecto contra usted, a menos que dentro de 30 días desde cuando recibió notificación de la DEMANDA, usted registre por escrito una RESPUESTA A DEMANDA o DEMANDA SUPLEMENTAL RESPECTO A OBLIGACIONES PATERNAS (Gubernamental) (formulario 610). El FALLO propuesto entrará en efecto contra usted, tenga o no tenga usted un abogado. Si le dieron notificación con un formulario que especifica una fecha de audiencia, usted tiene que presentarse al tribunal en esa fecha. Si no asiste a la audiencia, una orden judicial podrá emitirse sin considerar su punto de vista.

PETITIONER/PLAINTIFF:	CASE NUMBER:
RESPONDENT/DEFENDANT:
OTHER PARENT:

NOTICE TO BOTH PARENTS

The local child support agency has sued both of you to determine whether you are the parents of the children listed and if one or both of you should be ordered to pay child support. The local child support agency does not represent any individual in this lawsuit, including either parent or the children. Carefully read this statement and the other papers that you received.

You have the right to be represented by a lawyer. If you dispute that you are the parent of the children listed in the Complaint and you do not have enough money for a lawyer, you may ask the court to appoint a lawyer to represent you on the issue of parentage.

☐ Other information about court-appointed lawyers (specify):

A blank Answer to Complaint or Supplemental Complaint Regarding Parental Obligations (form FL-610) is included in the papers that were served on you. If you did not receive an Answer form or if you would like another copy, you may get one from the local child support agency, the court clerk's office, or the family law facilitator. The family law facilitator can assist you in filling out the Answer form. You must file your Answer form with the court clerk within 30 days of the date you were served with the Complaint whether or not you obtain an attorney.

Settling Out of Court
You may contact the local child support agency to try to work out a settlement agreement. However, you must still file an Answer form within 30 days. If you and the local child support agency can reach an agreement regarding the requests made in the Complaint, you may sign a settlement agreement called a stipulation. By signing a stipulation, you are agreeing to give up your rights explained in this statement, you are agreeing that you are the parent of the children listed in the Complaint, and you are agreeing to obey all of the terms of the stipulation. The stipulation will become a court order that you must obey.

Going to Court
If you file your Answer form, you have the right to a court hearing, to subpoena witnesses, to ask questions of any witness against you, and to present evidence on your behalf. Genetic testing may be performed if the defendant questions parentage of the children listed in the Complaint. If the defendant refuses to cooperate in the genetic testing process, the issue of parentage may be resolved against the defendant. The costs of the genetic testing may be charged to one of you.

Earnings Assignment
All orders for support must contain an earnings assignment. If you are obligated to pay support, this assignment will require your employer or other payor to deduct support payments from your salary or earnings and send the payments to the local child support agency. Your employer may also be required to enroll your children in a health insurance plan and deduct the cost from your salary or earnings.

Any amounts you owe may be collected from your property, whether or not you are current in your payments toward past due support. Collection may be made by taking money owed to you by the state or federal government (such as tax refunds, unemployment and disability benefits, and lottery winnings), by taking property you own, by placing a lien on your property, or by any other lawful means. You may be fined or imprisoned if you fail to pay support as ordered.

If the local child support agency does not know how much money the obligor (parent asked to pay support) earns, the obligor is presumed to earn enough money to pay the amounts stated in item 6b of the proposed Judgment Regarding Parental Obligations (form FL-630).

PETITIONER/PLAINTIFF:	CASE NUMBER:
RESPONDENT/DEFENDANT:
OTHER PARENT:

Other Important Information
Both parents should tell the local child support agency everything they know about the other parent's earnings and assets.

The defendant is always a party to this action. If the other parent has requested or is receiving services from the local child support agency, that parent will become a party to the lawsuit filed by the local child support agency after the initial support order or medical support order is entered by the court. After the other parent has become a party to the lawsuit, either parent may then ask the court to decide issues concerning support, custody, visitation, and restraining orders (domestic violence). No other issues may be raised in this lawsuit. Either parent may go to court to modify the court order. The local child support agency cannot bring proceedings to establish or modify custody, visitation, or restraining orders.

After the other parent has become a party to the lawsuit, either parent may go to court to enforce the existing order against the other, but must first notify the local child support agency as required by law. The local child support agency is allowed 30 days to determine whether or not a parent will be permitted to proceed with the enforcement action against the other parent. The local child support agency may deny a parent permission to proceed if it is currently taking enforcement action or if the action by a parent would interfere with an investigation. If the local child support agency does not respond to the notice by the parent seeking enforcement within 30 days or if the local child support agency notifies the parent seeking enforcement that the enforcement action can proceed, the parent may then file the enforcement action as long as all support is paid through the local child support agency.

If the custodial person receives public assistance, the local child support agency may agree to settle any parentage or support issue in this lawsuit without providing advance notice to the custodial person. A child support agency may not settle any child support issue without the consent of any parent who is an applicant for child support services and who does not receive public assistance.

The local child support agency is required, under section 466(a)(13) of the Social Security Act, to place in the records pertaining to child support the social security number of any individual who is subject to a divorce decree, support order, or parentage determination or acknowledgment. This information is mandatory and will be kept on file at the local child support agency.

This case may be referred to a court commissioner for hearing. By law, court commissioners do not have the authority to issue final orders and judgments in contested cases unless they are acting as temporary judges. The court commissioner in your case will act as a temporary judge unless, before the hearing, you or any other party objects to the commissioner acting as a temporary judge. The court commissioner may still hear your case to make findings and a recommended order. If you do not like the recommended order, you must object to it within 10 court days in writing, (use Notice of Objection (Governmental), (form FL-666); otherwise, the recommended order will become a final order of the Court.) If you object to the recommended order, a judge will make a temporary order and set a new hearing.

INFORMATION SHEET FOR ANSWER TO COMPLAINT

Please follow these instructions to complete the Answer to Complaint or Supplemental Complaint Regarding Parental Obligations (form FL-610) if you do not have an attorney to represent you. Your attorney, if you have one, should complete this form.

You must file the completed Answer and attachments with the court clerk within 30 days of the date you received the Summons and Complaint (form FL-600). The address of the court clerk is the same as the one shown for the Superior Court on the Summons and Complaint (form FL-600). You may have to pay a filing fee. If you cannot afford to pay the filing fee, contact the court clerk to obtain forms to apply for a waiver of court fees. Keep two copies of the filed Answer form and its attachments. Serve one copy on the local child support agency and keep the other copy for your records. (See Information Sheet for Service of Process (form FL-611).)

Upon receipt of your filed Answer, the local child support agency will set a court hearing on this matter.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR COMPLETING THE ANSWER FORM (TYPE OR PRINT FORM IN BLACK INK):

Front page, first box, top of form, left side. Print your name, address, and telephone number in this box if they are not already there.

1. For each child listed on the Answer form, you must check the "yes" box if you agree that you are that child's parent, or check the "no" box if you do not think or are not sure whether you are that child's parent. You must write in the name of each child listed in the Summons and Complaint (form FL-600) if your Answer form does not include the names of any children.

   NOTE: Checking the "no" box does not satisfy the requirements needed to request the court cancel (set aside) any voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity which you may have signed or to request the court find a voluntary declaration is void (invalid) (Fam. Code, §§ 7573.5, 7576, 7577). To make this request, you must file a Request for Hearing and Application to Cancel (Set Aside) Voluntary Declaration of Parentage or Paternity (form FL-280).

2. If you have checked a "no" box in answer to number 1 above, you must request genetic testing to determine whether you or the other parent is the parent. The local child support agency will tell you when and where to go for the test. The local child support agency will pay for the cost of the test now. If the court decides the test shows parentage as pleaded in the Complaint, you may have to repay this cost to the local child support agency.

3. a. Check this box if you agree to pay the support asked for in the proposed Judgment Regarding Parental Obligations (form FL-630) that you received.

   b. You should check this box if you do not agree to pay the support asked for in the proposed Judgment Regarding Parental Obligations (form FL-630).

4. If you agree to pay the support asked for in the proposed Judgment Regarding Parental Obligations (form FL-630), but you disagree with the proposed judgment for another reason, you should check this box and write your reasons in this space. If you have documents that prove your reasons for disagreeing with the proposed Judgment, you should attach the documents to the Answer form.

5. You must list your address and phone numbers where you can receive all notices and court dates. You must let the court know whenever your address changes. If the court does not have your current address, you may not receive important notices that affect you.

You must date the Answer form, print your name, and sign the form under a penalty of perjury. When you sign the Answer form, you are stating that the information you have provided is true and correct.

Instructions for how to complete the Proof of Service section of the Answer form are in the Information Sheet for Service of Process (form FL-611). The person who serves the Answer and its attachments must fill out this section of the form. You cannot serve your own Answer.

a. ☐ By written stipulation without court appearance.

b. ☐ By court hearing, appearances as follows:

(1) Date: Dept: Judicial Officer:

(2) ☐ Petitioner/plaintiff present ☐ Attorney present (name):

(3) ☐ Respondent/defendant present ☐ Attorney present (name):

(4) ☐ Other parent/party present ☐ Attorney present (name):

(5) Local child support agency (Fam. Code, §§ 17400, 17406) by (name):

(6) ☐ Other (specify):

c. The parent ordered to pay support is the ☐ petitioner/plaintiff ☐ respondent/defendant ☐ other parent/party.

2. ☐ This order is based on the attached documents (specify):

3. The parties agree that:

a. The parent ordered to pay support has read and understands the Advisement and Waiver of Rights for Stipulation on page 5 of this form. The parent ordered to pay support gives up these rights and freely agrees that a judgment may be entered in accordance with this stipulation.

b. The amount of support payable by the party ordered to pay support as calculated under the guideline is: $ per month.

☐ We agree to guideline support.

☐ The guideline amount should be rebutted because of the following:

(1) ☐ We have been fully informed of the guideline amount of support; we agree voluntarily to child support in the amount of $ per month; the agreement is in the best interest of the children; the needs of the children will be met adequately by the agreed amount; the children are not receiving public assistance; no application for public assistance is pending; and application of the guideline would be unjust and inappropriate in this case. We understand that if the order is below the guideline, no change of circumstances need be shown for the court to raise this order to the guideline amount. If the order is above the guideline, a change of circumstances will be required to modify this order.

(2) ☐ Other rebutting factors (specify):

c. ☐ The computer printout attached shows the parents' incomes and percentage of time each parent spends with the children. The printout, which shows the calculation of child support payable, will become the court's findings.

NOTICE: Any party required to pay child support must pay interest on overdue amounts at the legal rate, which is currently 10 percent per year.

3. d. ☐ Petitioner/plaintiff ☐ Respondent/defendant ☐ Other parent/party are the parents of the children named in item 3e below.

e. The parent ordered to pay support must pay current child support as follows:

Name of child	Date of birth	Monthly support amount

(1) ☐ Mandatory additional child support.

(a) The parent ordered to pay support must pay additional monthly support for reasonable child-care costs, as follows:

☐ one-half or ☐ % or ☐ (specify amount): $ per month of the costs.

Payments must be made to the ☐ other parent ☐ State Disbursement Unit ☐ child-care provider.

(b) The parent ordered to pay support must pay reasonable uninsured health-care costs for the children, as follows:

☐ one-half or ☐ % or ☐ (specify amount): $ per month of the costs.

Payments must be made to the ☐ other parent ☐ State Disbursement Unit ☐ health-care provider.

(2) ☐ Other (specify):

(3) ☐ For a total of: $ payable on the: day of each month beginning (date):

(4) ☐ The low-income adjustment applies.
☐ The low-income adjustment does not apply because (specify reasons):

(5) Any support ordered will continue until further order of court, unless terminated by operation of law.

f. ☐ The parent ordered to pay support ☐ The parent receiving support must (1) provide and maintain health insurance coverage for the children if available at no or reasonable cost, and keep the local child support agency informed of the availability of the coverage (the cost is presumed to be reasonable if it does not exceed 5 percent of gross income to add a child); (2) if health insurance is not available, provide coverage when it becomes available; (3) within 20 days of the local child support agency's request, complete and return a health insurance form; (4) provide to the local child support agency all information and forms necessary to obtain health-care services for the children; (5) present any claim to secure payment or reimbursement to the other parent or caretaker who incurs costs for health-care services for the children; and (6) assign any rights to reimbursement to the other parent or caretaker who incurs costs for health-care services for the children. The parent ordered to provide health insurance must seek continuation of coverage for the child after the child attains the age when the child is no longer considered eligible for coverage as a dependent under the insurance contract, if the child is incapable of self-sustaining employment because of a physically or mentally disabling injury, illness, or condition and is chiefly dependent upon the parent providing health insurance for support and maintenance.

(2) ☐ For a total of $ payable: $ on the: day of each month beginning (date):

(3) ☐ Interest accrues on the entire principal balance owing and not on each installment as it becomes due.

h. If this is a judgment on a Supplemental Complaint, it does not modify or supersede any prior judgment or order for support or arrearages, unless specifically provided.

i. No provision of this judgment may operate to limit any right to collect the principal (total amount of unpaid support) or to charge and collect interest and penalties as allowed by law. All payments ordered are subject to modification.

j. All payments, unless specified in item 3e(1) above, must be made to the State Disbursement Unit at the address listed below (specify address):

k. An earnings assignment order is issued.

l. In the event that there is a contract between a party receiving support and a private child support collector, the party ordered to pay support must pay the fee charged by the private child support collector. This fee must not exceed 33 1/3 percent of the total amount of past due support nor may it exceed 50 percent of any fee charged by the private child support collector. The money judgment created by this provision is in favor of the private child support collector and the party receiving support, jointly.

m. If "The parent ordered to pay support" box is checked in item 3f, a health insurance coverage assignment must issue.

n. The parents must notify the local child support agency in writing within 10 days of any change in residence or employment.

o. The Notice of Rights and Responsibilities (Health-Care Costs and Reimbursement Procedures) and Information Sheet on Changing a Child Support Order (form FL-192) is attached.

ADVISEMENT AND WAIVER OF RIGHTS FOR STIPULATION

1. RIGHT TO BE REPRESENTED BY A LAWYER. I understand that I have the right to be represented by a lawyer of my choice at my expense. If I cannot afford a lawyer to represent me, I can ask the court to appoint one to represent me free of charge only if I dispute that I am the parent of the children named in this action and only on the issue of parentage. I understand that the attorney for the local child support agency does not represent me.
2. RIGHT TO A TRIAL. I understand that I have a right to have a judicial officer (1) determine if I am the parent of the children named in the stipulation, (2) decide how much child support I must pay, and (3) decide how much I owe for arrearages (unpaid support).
3. RIGHT TO CONFRONT AND CROSS-EXAMINE WITNESSES. I understand that in a trial any allegations made against me must be proved. At the trial I may be present with a lawyer when witnesses testify, and I may ask them questions. I may also present evidence and witnesses.
4. RIGHT TO HAVE GENETIC TESTING WHERE THE LAW PERMITS. I understand that, where the law permits, I have the right to have the court order genetic testing. The court will decide on the testing. The court could order that I pay none, some, or all of the costs of the genetic testing.
5. ADMISSION AND WAIVER OF RIGHTS. I understand that by agreeing to the terms of this stipulation, I am admitting that I am the parent of the children named in the stipulation and I am giving up the rights stated above.
6. WHERE THE STIPULATION INCLUDES CHILD SUPPORT.
   a. I understand that I will have the duty to obey the support order for the children named in the stipulation until the order is changed by the court or ended by law.
   b. I also understand that the court will order any support payments to be paid directly from my wages or other earnings and sent to the local child support agency if one is assigned to collect the support.
   c. I have been advised of the amount of guideline child support and how the proposed child support amount was determined.
7. WHERE THE STIPULATION INCLUDES A PROVISION FOR HEALTH INSURANCE. I understand that I must keep health insurance coverage for the minor children if insurance is available or becomes available to me at no or reasonable cost. A health insurance coverage assignment/National Medical Support Notice may be ordered to get health insurance for my children.
8. I agree to the terms of this stipulation freely and voluntarily.
9. I understand that the local child support agency is required by state law to enforce the duty of support.
10. I UNDERSTAND THAT IF I WILLFULLY FAIL TO SUPPORT MY CHILDREN, CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS MAY BE INITIATED AGAINST ME.
11. COLLECTION OF SUPPORT. I understand that any support I owe may be collected from any of my property. This collection may be made by intercepting money owed to me by the state or federal government (such as tax refunds, unemployment and disability benefits, and lottery winnings), by taking property I own, by placing a lien on my property, or by any other lawful means.
12. IF I AM REPRESENTED BY AN ATTORNEY, MY ATTORNEY HAS READ AND EXPLAINED TO ME THE TERMS OF THE STIPULATION AND THIS ADVISEMENT AND WAIVER OF RIGHTS, AND I UNDERSTAND THESE TERMS.

	Commenter	Position	Comment	Committee Response
1.	Hon. Diana C. Baker, Superior Court of California, County of Monterey and County of San Benito	N	Regarding the new set-aside rules for Voluntary Declarations of Paternity (VDOP), my comments concern the statement that there are "three separate classes of would-be filers: signatories of a voluntary declaration signed before January 1, 2020; signatories of a voluntary declaration signed on or after January 1, 2020; and nonsignatories." (Invitation to Comment pages 5-6.) Current Family Code section 7575(c)(1) which allows signatories to use Code of Civil Procedure section 473 as a basis for a set aside is inoperative on January 1, 2020. There is nothing in the new legislation that continues that option for signatories before January 1, 2020. In fact, in the Bill Analysis for the Senate Judiciary Committee dated June 18, 2018, the sponsors of the new legislation rejected a request from the Family Law Section of the California Lawyers Association (FLEXCOM) to continue to include Code of Civil Procedure section 473 for signatories. To be eligible to receive federal child support enforcement funds, California's VDOP provisions need to comply with 42 U.S.C.	The committee discussed the treatment of voluntary declarations of parentage or paternity filed before January 1, 2020 and whether the new set-aside or old set-aside rules will apply to these declarations. While acknowledging the difficulty of this question, the committee recommends that the relevant forms should indicate that the old set-aside rules will continue to apply to these declarations.

			section 666. Among other things, federal law expressly provides that, after the 60-day rescission period has elapsed, a signed VDOP may be challenged "only on the basis of fraud, duress, or material mistake of fact." The language in proposed new Section 7576 directly tracks this federal requirement. Also, to be clear, this language is drawn directly from the UPA (2017). As stated in the comment to the Act, the VDOP Article of the "UPA (2017) was drafted in close consultation with the federal Office of Child Support Enforcement (OCSE) to be consistent with Title IV-D requirements." Current California law as expressed in current 7575(c)(1) is out of compliance with federal law, as it allows for challenges in a wider array of circumstances. Accordingly, FLEXCOM's requested amendment to the bill likewise would render the bill to be out of compliance with the requirements of 42 U.S.C. section 666. Bill Analysis to the Senate Judiciary Committee at page 10. The intent of the bill is to conform to federal law. The new law makes no distinction between signatories who sign before and those who sign after January 1, 2020. To carve out an exception for pre-January 1, 2020 signatories would mean that hundreds of thousands of signatories would continue to be out of compliance with federal law. When I queried the Forms Committee staff as to why they thought there were different rules for VDOP signatories who signed prior to January 1, 2020, the response was that the VDOP forms signed before January 1, 2020 contain the old warning language regarding set aside rules so those signatories should have the old set aside rules apply. However, at least as of 2008, the old forms do not include any reference to Code of Civil Procedure section 463. The Declaration of Paternity- Notice (12/08) states: "A Declaration of Paternity may be challenged in court only in the first two years after the child's birth by using blood and genetic tests that prove that the man is not the biological father. It also may be overturned if the father or mother is able to prove that he/she signed the form because of fraud, duress, or material mistake of fact." In other words, the old forms track the new statutory language.

			To summarize, there appears to be no prejudice to signatories who signed before January 1, 2020 and excluding them from the new legislation will continue California's noncompliance with federal law. If there is any doubt, I urge the Forms Committee to consult the sponsors of the legislation to determine their intent.

The Invitation presumes that the rules for setting aside a VDOP signed prior to 1/1/2020 are those that existed at the time of signing. Generally, however, the new law applies as of the operative date of that new law, subject to limited exceptions. (Cal. Fam. Code § 4(c)). The new law applies "…to all matters governed by the new law, regardless of whether an event occurred or circumstance existed before, on, or after the operative date…" (supra). 			Here, the Legislature did not express its intent to save the prior set aside rules of FC § 7575, so we must assume that they did not intend to save the prior law. Absent express intent to prevent the application of the new set aside rules to existing VDOPs, DCSS believes that the forms as drafted invite confusion for parties. To the extent a party wishes to argue that application of the new set aside rules to a VDOP signed prior to 1/1/2020 would be inequitable under FC § 4(h), this could be accomplished by adding an "Other" box for reasons to set aside, on the FL-273 and FL-280 forms. FL-273 Declaration in Support of Motion to Cancel (Set Aside) Judgment of Parentage Statement between items 4(c)(4) and 4(c)(5) should read: I believe there is a legal error in the balance of the form. I have interpreted the statutes to mean that post 1/1/2020 when a motion to set aside a judgment or a VDOP is filed it is governed by the new statue and its more restricted grounds for set aside. The test is not when the VDOP was signed (or signed and filed = effective date), but when the motion to set aside is granted. [See Family Code § 4]. 			December 31, 2019 to set aside a voluntary declaration signed prior to January 1, 2020, others may argue that the repeal of the previous version of the statute eliminated those defenses. Due to the uncertainty regarding the resolution of that issue, the committee suggests those defenses not be specifically identified as being available on the form, but merely included in the catchall "other (specify)" so that the form not influence a particular result nor confuse litigants. Furthermore, the reasons for someone who is not a signatory to a voluntary declaration to set it aside may also be included in the "other (specify)" section. Based on that analysis, the Committee recommends modifying the language as follows:" In item 4.c., delete the sentence after 4.c.(4) which reads "The following reasons apply only to voluntary declarations signed before January 1, 2020 or if you did not sign the declaration." In item 4.c., delete item 4.c.(5). In item 4.c., delete item 4.c.(6). In item 4.c.(7), renumber (7) to (5). In item 4. Add item 4.d. "Explain the facts that support your request:" (This would be consistent with the FL- 280 language) (See attached FL-273 draft example)	The committee discussed the treatment of voluntary declarations of parentage or paternity filed before January 1, 2020 and whether the new set-aside or old set-aside rules will apply to these declarations. While acknowledging the difficulty of this question, the committee recommends that the relevant forms should indicate that the old set-aside rules will continue to apply to these declarations.

			Yes, this language should be changed.
			Should forms FL-200, FL-220, FL-260 and FL-270 require parties to attach a copy of the voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity when submitting the form to the court? No, judicial officer generally do not ask to see this. Parties frequently do not have a copy. If the other party wants to challenge that one was signed, then it could be ordered produced, and the burden would fall on the parties to produce the evidence.	The committee agrees with this analysis and recommends that FL200 and FL-220 not require the submission of a voluntary declaration of parentage. However, the basis for jurisdiction for using the Petition for Custody and Support (FL-260) and the Response to that Petition (FL-260) is that parentage has already been established by the signing and filing of an official declaration of paternity or parentage under the Parental Opportunity Program, not merely a stipulation drafted for that purpose. Attaching a copy will help ensure that the court truly has jurisdiction. If a copy is not easily available, the petitioner can file a Petition to Determine Parentage (FL-200).

			Should form FL-200, item 1b, and form FL-220, item 2b, be changed to state, "Petitioner wants to be determined ~~to be~~ a parent of the child"?
			Yes, but the second "to be" is not (and need not be) included on those forms.	Thank you, after review, the committee has determined to modify to refer to "wants to be determined as a parent of the child."
			Should forms FL-200, FL-220, FL-260 and FL-270 require parties to attach a copy of the voluntary declaration of parentage or paternity when submitting the form to the court?	Given the difficulties for parents in obtaining voluntary declarations of parentage, particularly from other states, and issues such as parents not being aware that they should redact the social security number remain a problem, the committee recommends that the attachments not be mandatory for these initial filings.
			Yes. Additionally, it may be helpful to add language in this section indicating that the social security numbers on the VDOP should be redacted before it is attached.

The committee recommends that the caption remain as solely the Petitioner and Respondent.
			It appears that the only reference to "Other Parent/Party" on the FL-170 is in the case caption. It seems odd to include additional parties in the case caption on this form, when they are not included on the Petition (FL-100) or Judgment (FL-180). In addition, the equivalent form used in parentage actions (FL-230) does not include "Other Parent/Party" in the case caption.	The committee recommends that the section for "Other" on the Petition be used for this scenario.
			It seems beneficial to add or modify language regarding child support payable for children who are not minors, but for whom child support is still due under FC § 3901. Additionally, a spot on the Petition where such child could be listed might be helpful.	The committee does not recommend this change and recommends that the section for "Other" on the Petition be used for this scenario.

			Form FL-200
			Comment: Consideration should be given to requiring the petitioner to file one form FL-200 for each child if there is more than one child in the case. As currently drafted, the form does not allow the court to make differing parentage, custody, and visitation orders for individual children in multi-child families when it is appropriate to do so (see items 7 and 8). If this requirement is adopted, many of the suggested changes below will not be necessary, e.g., changing "child" to "child(ren)." Alternatively, consider whether the information requested in item 8 should instead be provided on form FL-341, Child Custody and Visitation (Parenting Time) Order Attachment.	The committee is concerned that this will increase difficulty by requiring multiple filings and filing fees, and thus, will not make this suggestion at this time. Such a significant change would also require public comment.

Executive Summary

The Family and Juvenile Law Advisory Committee recommends amending a rule of court and revising two Judicial Council forms for use in family law custody proceedings. These changes are necessitated by Assembly Bill 2296 (Stats. 2018, ch. 389), which added to Family Code section 3110.5(c)(5) an additional category of licensed child custody evaluator to those qualified to provide court-connected and private child custody evaluations.

Recommendation

The Family and Juvenile Law Advisory committee recommends that the Judicial Council, effective January 1, 2020:

1. Amend rule 5.225 of the California Rules of Court to add "Professional clinical counselor qualified to assess couples and families" to the category of evaluators; and

2. Revise item 4a on Declaration of Court-Connected Child Custody Evaluator Regarding Qualifications (form FL-325) and on Declaration of Private Child Custody Evaluator

Regarding Qualifications (form FL-326) to include "professional clinical counselor qualified to assess couples and families."

The text of the amended rule and the revised forms are attached at pages 4–8.

Relevant Previous Council Action

Rule 5.225 of the California Rules of Court was adopted on January 1, 2002, to establish the education, experience, and training requirements for child custody evaluators. The rule was amended effective January 1, 2005, to further clarify the education, training, and experience requirements and certification procedures for court-appointed child custody evaluators. In addition, forms FL-325 and FL-326 were adopted at that time to implement the rule. The rule and forms were further amended effective January 2007, to better assist the courts and evaluators in understanding and complying with all the appointment requirements for child custody evaluators.

Analysis/Rationale

This recommendation to amend rule 5.225 and revise forms FL-325 and FL-326 is needed to respond to a recent change in the law (passage of AB 2296) to ensure that our rules and forms reflect the statutory change. It would add one additional category of child custody evaluator, "professional clinical counselor qualified to assess couples and families," to those licensed evaluators qualified to provide court-connected and private child custody evaluations. The proposal would benefit the judicial branch, along with attorneys and self-represented litigants who use the forms, by making the forms current with recent law.

Policy implications

This proposal does not raise any policy implications; it simply ensures that Judicial Council forms remain consistent with current law.

Comments

This proposal circulated for comment as part of the spring 2019 invitation-to-comment cycle from April 11 to June 11, 2019, to the standard mailing list for family and juvenile law proposals. Included on the list were appellate presiding justices, appellate court administrators, trial court presiding judges, trial court executive officers, judges, court administrators and clerks, attorneys, family law facilitators and self-help center staff, social workers, probation officers, Court Appointed Special Advocate programs, and other juvenile and family law professionals.

The committee received four comments on this proposal. Three of the four commenters agreed with the proposal and one did not state a position. None of the commenters provided additional comments.

Alternatives considered

No alternatives were considered because the proposed changes are now statutorily required by Family Code section 3110.5(c)(5).

Fiscal and Operational Impacts

Implementation requirements, costs, and operational impacts will be minimal because the only change to the rule and the forms is the addition of one new category of child custody evaluator.

Executive Summary

Family Code section 4007.5, which currently provides that any money judgment or order for child support is automatically suspended and set to zero ($0.00) when an obligor is incarcerated or involuntarily institutionalized for more than 90 consecutive days, is due to sunset January 1, 2020. Legislation was proposed this session to remove the sunset date and make the measure permanent. However, the bill[1] unexpectedly lost support and is now inactive, meaning that this statute will expire as of January 1, 2020. The Family and Juvenile Law Advisory Committee recommends making the necessary corrections to certain forms to avoid causing confusion for court users, clerks, and judicial officers.

Recommendation

The Family and Juvenile Law Advisory Committee recommends that the Judicial Council, effective January 1, 2020:

1. Revise the following forms to remove references to relief currently available to child support obligors under Family Code section 4007.5, which will sunset effective January 1, 2020:

    - Child Support Information and Order Attachment (form FL-342),
    - Stipulation to Establish or Modify Child Support and Order (form FL-350),
    - Application to Determine Arrears (form FL-490),
    - Judgment Regarding Parental Obligations (form FL-530),
    - Stipulation and Order (form FL-625),
    - Judgment Regarding Parental Obligations (form FL-630),
    - Findings and Recommendation of Commissioner (form FL-665),
    - Request for Determination of Support Arrears or Adjustment of Child Support Arrears Due to Incarceration or Involuntary Institutionalization (form FL-676),
    - Information Sheet: Request for Determination of Support Arrears or Adjustment of Child Support Arrears Due to Incarceration or Involuntary Institutionalization (form FL-676-INFO),
    - Order After Hearing (form FL-687),
    - Short Form Order After Hearing (form FL-688), and
    - Minutes and Order or Judgment (form FL-692).

2. Make additional, minor technical changes to forms FL-342, FL-350, FL-490, FL-530, FL-625, FL-676, and FL-676-INFO as detailed below.

The revised forms are attached at pages 5–35.

Relevant Previous Council Action

Effective July 1, 2011, the Judicial Council revised forms FL-530, FL-615, FL-625, FL-630, FL-665, FL-676, FL-676-INFO, FL-687, and FL-692 in response to Senate Bill 1355 (Wright; Stats. 2010, ch. 495), which enacted Family Code section 4007.5[2] (see Link A) and provided a process for formerly incarcerated or involuntarily institutionalized obligors to petition the court for forgiveness of child support arrears that accrued during their incarceration or involuntary institutionalization. Section 4007.5 contained a sunset date and expired accordingly on June 30, 2015.

Effective January 1, 2017, the Judicial Council revised forms FL-342, FL-350, FL-490, FL-530, FL-615, FL-625, FL-630, FL-665, FL-676, FL-676-INFO, FL-687, FL-688, and FL-692 in response to Assembly Bill 610 (Jones-Sawyer; Stats. 2015, ch. 629), which enacted a new version of section 4007.5 that revived and expanded the relief previously available to child support obligors.

Analysis/Rationale

Removing references to section 4007.5

The changes to these forms are technical in nature and necessary to remove references to section 4007.5, which unexpectedly will sunset and be repealed effective January 1, 2020. Ten forms for child support orders or judgments reference this provision: FL-342, FL-350, FL-530, FL-615,[3] FL-625, FL-630, FL-665, FL-687, FL-688, and FL-692. Specifically, these forms all contain the following verbiage:

> When a person who has been ordered to pay child support is in jail or prison or is involuntarily institutionalized for any period of more than 90 days in a row, the child support order is temporarily stopped. However, the child support order will not be stopped if the person who owes support has the financial ability to pay that support while in jail, prison, or an institution. It will also not be stopped if the reason the person is in jail, prison, or an institution is because the person didn't pay court ordered child support or committed domestic violence against the supported person or child. The child support order starts again on the first day of the month after the person is released from jail, prison, or an institution.

The committee recommends removing this paragraph from these forms.

Additionally, three other forms used in connection with requesting a court hearing to determine support arrears—FL-490, FL-676, and FL-676-INFO—include language regarding the relief available under section 4007.5. The committee recommends that this language and references to the statute be removed from the support arrears forms.

Other technical changes

As mentioned above, the committee also recommends other minor technical changes to certain forms, including:

- Add a checkbox for "Judgment (form FL-250)" to page 1 of form FL-342;
- Add signature lines for "Other Parent" and "Attorney for Other Parent" to page 2 of form FL-350 and change the signature line for "Judge" to "Judicial Officer" because this form can also be approved by a child support commissioner[4];

[3] A concurrent report, Family Law: Changes to Parentage Rules and Forms (SPR19-32), www.courts.ca.gov/documents/spr19-32.pdf, recommends further revisions to form FL-615 and includes the revisions proposed herein. Thus, form FL-615 is not a part of this proposal.

[4] While the committee recognizes that this form currently uses the gendered terms "mother" and "father," revising this form to be gender inclusive would require substantive changes and the committee believes public comment should be sought before such revisions are made.

- Revise the checkbox for "Attorney" to "Other Parent/Party" on form FL-490 as a party, not an attorney, would sign this form;
- Correct references to renumbered statutes on form FL-530, from section 4921 to 5700.307 and section 5002 to 17404.1;
- Revise the interpreter declaration on page 4 of form FL-625 to be gender inclusive; and
- Change the titles of forms FL-676 and FL-676-INFO to remove references to the relief that will no longer be available, specifically removing "or Adjustment of Child Support Arrears Due to Incarceration or Involuntary Institutionalization."

Policy implications

This proposal has no major implications to any policies. It aligns with the Judicial Council's policy to keep forms consistent with related statutes.

Comments

These proposals were not circulated for public comment because they are noncontroversial, involve technical revisions, and are therefore within the Judicial Council's purview to adopt without circulation. (See Cal. Rules of Court, rule 10.22(d)(2).)

Alternatives considered

The alternative not to make changes to the forms was not considered because the changes remove references to relief currently available under section 4007.5, which will sunset effective January 1, 2020.

Fiscal and Operational Impacts

Operational impacts are expected to be minor. The proposed revisions may result in reproduction costs if courts provide hard copies of any of the forms recommended for revision. Because the proposed changes are technical corrections, case management systems are unlikely to need updating to implement them.

7. Health-care expenses

a. Health insurance coverage for the minor children of the parties must be maintained by the ☐ petitioner/plaintiff ☐ respondent/defendant ☐ other parent/party if available at no or reasonable cost through their respective places of employment or self-employment. Both parties are ordered to cooperate in the presentation, collection, and reimbursement of any health-care claims. The parent ordered to provide health insurance must seek continuation of coverage for the child after the child attains the age when the child is no longer considered eligible for coverage as a dependent under the insurance contract, if the child is incapable of self-sustaining employment because of a physically or mentally disabling injury, illness, or condition and is chiefly dependent upon the parent providing health insurance for support and maintenance.

b. ☐ Health insurance is not available to the ☐ petitioner/plaintiff ☐ respondent/defendant ☐ other parent/party at a reasonable cost at this time.

c. ☐ The party providing coverage must assign the right of reimbursement to the other party.

8. Earnings assignment

An earnings assignment order is issued. Note: The payor of child support is responsible for the payment of support directly to the recipient until support payments are deducted from the payor's wages and for payment of any support not paid by the assignment.

(5) Any support ordered will continue until further order of court, unless terminated by operation of law.

c. ☐ The parent ordered to pay support ☐ The parent receiving support must (1) provide and maintain health insurance coverage for the children, if available at no or reasonable cost, and keep the local child support agency informed of the availability of the coverage (the cost is presumed to be reasonable if it does not exceed 5 percent of gross income to add a child); (2) if health insurance is not available, provide coverage when it becomes available; (3) within 20 days of the local child support agency's request, complete and return a health insurance form; (4) provide to the local child support agency all information and forms necessary to obtain health-care services for the children; (5) present any claim to secure payment or reimbursement to the other parent or caretaker who incurs costs for health-care services for the children; and (6) assign any rights to reimbursement to the other parent or caretaker who incurs costs for health-care services for the children. The parent ordered to provide health insurance must seek continuation of coverage for the child after the child attains the age when the child is no longer considered eligible for coverage as a dependent under the insurance contract, if the child is incapable of self-sustaining employment because of a physically or mentally disabling injury, illness, or condition and is chiefly dependent upon the parent providing health insurance for support and maintenance.

d. ☐ The parent ordered to pay support must pay child support for the past periods and in the amounts set forth below:

Name of child	Date of birth	Period of support	Amount

(1) ☐ Other (specify):

6. d. (2) ☐ For a total of: $ payable: $ on the: day of each month beginning (date):

(3) ☐ Interest accrues on the entire principal balance owing and not on each installment as it becomes due.

e. No provision of this judgment operates to limit any right to collect the principal (total amount of unpaid support) or to charge and collect interest and penalties as allowed by law. All payments ordered are subject to modification.

f. All payments, unless specified in item 6b(1) above, must be made to the State Disbursement Unit at the address listed below (specify address):

g. An earnings assignment order is issued.

h. In the event that there is a contract between a party receiving support and a private child support collector, the party ordered to pay support must pay the fee charged by the private child support collector. This fee must not exceed 33 1/3 percent of the total amount of past due support nor may it exceed 50 percent of any fee charged by the private child support collector. The money judgment created by this provision is in favor of the private child support collector and the party receiving support, jointly.

i. If "The parent ordered to pay support" box is checked in item 6c, a health insurance coverage assignment must issue.

j. The parents must notify the local child support agency in writing within 10 days of any change in residence or employment.

3. The parties agree that
   a. All orders previously made in this action remain in full force and effect except as specifically modified below.
   b. The amount of support payable by the parent ordered to pay support as calculated under the guideline is: $ per month.
      ☐ We agree to guideline support.
      ☐ The guideline amount should be rebutted because of the following:
      (1) ☐ We have been fully informed of the guideline amount of support; we agree voluntarily to child support of: $ per month; the agreement is in the best interest of the children; the needs of the children will be met adequately by the agreed amount; the children are not receiving public assistance; no application for public assistance is pending; and application of the guideline would be unjust and inappropriate in this case. We understand that if the order is below the guideline, no change of circumstances need be shown for the court to raise this order to the guideline amount. If the order is above the guideline, a change of circumstances will be required to modify this order.
      (2) ☐ Other rebutting factors (specify):

   c. ☐ The attached computer printout shows the parents' incomes and percentage of time each parent spends with the children. The printout, which shows the calculation of child support payable, will become the court's findings.

This case may be referred to a court commissioner for hearing. By law, court commissioners do not have the authority to issue final orders and judgments in contested cases unless they are acting as temporary judges. The court commissioner in your case will act as a temporary judge unless, before the hearing, you or any other party objects to the commissioner's acting as a temporary judge. If you or the other party objects, the court commissioner may still hear your case to make findings and a recommended order to a judge. If you do not like the recommended order, you must object to it within 10 court days in writing (use Notice of Objection (Governmental) (form FL-666)); otherwise, the recommended order will become a final order of the court. If you object to the recommended order, a judge will make a temporary order and set a new hearing.

INFORMATION SHEET: REQUEST FOR DETERMINATION OF SUPPORT ARREARS

Please follow these instructions to complete a Request for Determination of Support Arrears (form FL-676). If you need free help completing form FL-676, you can contact the Family Law Facilitator's Office in your county. For more information on finding a family law facilitator, see the California Courts Online Self-Help Center at www.courts.ca.gov/selfhelp.

Form FL-676 should be used only if you disagree with the past due support payments (arrears) that the local child support agency says are owed and you cannot reach an agreement with the local child support agency. Child support includes the basic amount plus any additional amounts for child care costs related to employment, or training needed to get job skills and reasonable uninsured health care costs for the children. Form FL-676 cannot be used if you want to change your child support order.

When you have completed form FL-676, file the original and attachments with the court clerk. The court clerk's address is listed in the telephone directory under "County Government Offices" or online at www.courts.ca.gov/find-my-court.htm. Keep three copies of the filed form and its attachments. Serve one copy on the local child support agency, one copy on the other parent, and keep the other for your records. (See Information Sheet for Service of Process (form FL-611).)

Front page, second box, left side: Print your county's name and the court's address in the box. Use the same address for the court that is on your most recent support order or judgment. If you do not have a copy of your most recent support order or judgment, you can get one from either the court clerk or the local child support agency.

Front page, third box, left side: Print the names of the Petitioner/Plaintiff, Respondent/Defendant, and Other Parent/Party in this box. Use the same names listed in your most recent support order or judgment. If no name is listed for the Other Parent/Party, leave that line blank.

Front page, second box, right side: Print your case number in this box. This number is also listed on your most recent support order or judgment.

1.a.–b You must contact the court clerk's office and ask that a hearing date be set for this motion. The court clerk will give you the information you need to complete this section.

2. This section states that the local child support agency is handling your support case.

3a. This section requires you to attach the statement or other document from the local child support agency that tells the amount of support arrears owed.

3b. This section requires you to attach your own statement of the amount of support arrears owed. Your statement must show a monthly breakdown of the amount of support ordered and the amount paid each month. You may use Declaration of Payment History (form FL-420) and Payment History Attachment (form FL-421) to complete your statement of arrears.

You must date the request, print your name, and sign the form under penalty of perjury. When you sign the form, you are stating that the information you have provided is true and correct.

Top of second page, box on right side: Print your case number in this box. Use the same number as the one on the front page. Instructions for how to complete the Proof of Service section of the Request form are in the Information Sheet for Service of Process (form FL-611). The person who serves the request and its attachments must fill out this section of the form. You cannot serve your own form FL-676.

Approved by RUPRO: October 19, 2018
Project description from annual agenda: Develop a rule of court to (1) require a declaration in support of a petition under Probate Code section 2628 for waiver of an accounting in a guardianship or conservatorship to disclose whether the ward or conservatee owns a home and, if so, (2) require the declarant to attach documents showing current payments of the mortgage or other loan guaranteed by the home, all property taxes, and home insurance premiums. In the alternative, consider proposing an amendment to section 2628 to require the declaration supporting the petition to include that documentation. If this requirement is adopted, it will save the homes of many conservatees from being lost through foreclosure, tax sale, or an uncompensated fire loss.

Executive Summary

The Probate and Mental Health Advisory Committee recommends amending one rule of the California Rules of Court and approving one form to clarify existing requirements, provide guidance on submitting original account statements when they are issued and received electronically, and require submission of specified information about a ward's or conservatee's personal residence in support of a request for a waiver of an otherwise required periodic accounting. The amendments are needed to facilitate implementation of statutory accounting requirements and to protect a personal residence from loss or foreclosure by verifying that the fiduciary is using ordinary care and diligence.

Recommendation

The Probate and Mental Health Advisory Committee recommends that the Judicial Council, effective January 1, 2020:

1. Amend rule 7.575 of the California Rules of Court to:

    - Restructure the existing provisions of the rule to clarify the distinction between standard and simplified accountings and the requirements for each;

- Add subdivision (b) to provide guidance on submitting original account statements in paper form in support of a court accounting; and

- Add subdivision (f) to require submission of specific documents regarding a conservatee's or ward's personal residence in support of a request for a waiver of an otherwise required accounting; and

2. Approve Request and Order for Waiver of Accounting (Guardianships and Conservatorships) (form GC-410) for optional use.

The text of the amended rule and the form are attached at pages 8–15.

Relevant Previous Council Action

The Judicial Council adopted rule 7.575 of the California Rules of Court, effective January 1, 2008, in response to the mandate in Assembly Bill 1363 (Stats. 2006, ch. 493, § 24), part of the Omnibus Conservatorship and Guardianship Reform Act of 2006.[1]

Analysis/Rationale

Probate Code section 2620 requires a conservator or guardian of the estate to file periodic accountings with the court at regular intervals beginning one year from the date of the fiduciary's appointment and establishes requirements governing those accountings.[2] Rule 7.575 implements section 2620(a)'s mandate to develop standard accounting forms, simplified accounting forms, and rules specifying when the simplified forms could be used.[3] The committee recommends clarifying the rule and expanding its scope to address challenges to compliance with accounting requirements in statute and the existing rule.

Standard and simplified accountings

First, the committee recommends reorganizing and rewriting the rule to address confusion reported by courts, fiduciaries, and attorneys regarding the distinction between standard and simplified accountings and the use of the Judicial Council form sets for each type. The preamble to the rule is amended to place conservatorship and guardianship accounting requirements more clearly in context. After amendment, subdivision (a) clarifies the information required in every accounting, standard or simplified. Subdivisions (c) and (d) outline the requirements for standard and simplified accountings, respectively; subdivision (d)(1) explains the circumstances in which a fiduciary is authorized to file a simplified accounting. Subdivision (e) describes the Judicial

Original statements in support of accountings

Second, the committee recommends adding a new subdivision (b) to provide guidance on submission of financial statements in support of conservatorship and guardianship accountings. As amended by Assembly Bill 1286 (Stats. 2001, ch. 563, § 6), section 2620(c) requires a fiduciary to file original statements, not copies. This requirement was enacted, at least in part, to prevent fiduciaries from committing accounting fraud by altering original paper statements, photocopying the statements to conceal the alterations, and submitting the photocopies to the court.[5] Since 2001, it has become common practice for banks and other financial institutions to issue and deliver statements to accountholders in electronic form. The fiduciaries who receive financial statements in electronic form have encountered both legal and practical problems trying to submit "original" electronic statements in support of accountings.

Neither section 2620(c) nor the Assembly Judiciary Committee's analysis of AB 1286 addresses the conditions required for a statement, electronic or paper, to qualify as an original, except to note that a photocopy would not.[6] The statutes and rules of court governing court filings allow documents to be submitted or filed electronically and in paper form, and set standards for filing in each form.[7] But the electronic filing statute and rules focus on filing electronic copies of paper originals.[8] Determining when a document issued or delivered electronically to a filer constitutes an original is beyond their current scope.

Fiduciaries also face practical difficulties filing electronic statements. Filing the statements electronically, in the same form as they were received, depends on local e-filing rules that vary widely among courts. Many courts do not permit any electronic filing.[9] Some courts that permit or require electronic filing in probate proceedings do not permit financial documents to be filed in electronic form.[10] In courts that do permit e-filing, fiduciaries may be unable to comply with the format requirements in rule 2.256(b) or local rules without altering the electronic statements.[11] Fiduciaries who submit paper printouts of electronically delivered statements have found that courts may reject those filings because they, too, are not originals.

Both fiduciaries and courts have requested assistance in addressing these difficulties. Amended rule 7.575(b) does this by authorizing a court to accept a computer-generated printout of a statement submitted by a fiduciary who received the statement in electronic form under certain conditions. To avoid running afoul of section 2620(c), the rule requires that the printout meet Evidence Code section 255's definition of "original." (Evid. Code, § 255.) Section 255 provides that, "[i]f data are stored in a computer or similar device, any printout or other output readable by sight, shown to reflect the data accurately, is an original."[12] Rather than separately defining an electronic original, section 255 provides the flexibility needed to treat a paper printout of an electronic document as an original.

The rule also requires the fiduciary to verify under penalty of perjury that the submitted statement was received electronically and printed without alteration. The committee is sensitive to the need to prevent fiduciary fraud and has therefore clarified that the rule is not intended to create an exception to the requirement in section 2620(c). Rule 7.575(b) clarifies the statutory term "original statement"; it does not authorize submission of a copy of a statement.

Waiver of an accounting

Third, the committee recommends adding a new subdivision (f) to address waiver of an accounting and approving an optional form for use to request and order those waivers. Section 2628(a) authorizes a court to make an order "that the conservator need not present the accounts otherwise required by this chapter" if certain specified conditions are met. (Prob. Code, § 2628(a).) These conditions include a cap on the value of the estate, but exclude from that cap the value of the residence of the ward or conservatee.

As amended, rule 7.575(f) requires a conservator or guardian who requests a waiver of an otherwise required accounting to submit, in addition to information establishing that the conditions required by section 2628(a) have been met, specific information about the support and maintenance of the ward's or conservatee's personal residence, if the estate includes one. The additional information will assist the court to perform its oversight function (see Prob. Code, [12] Evid. Code, § 255. Section 255 was added to the Evidence Code in 1977. (Stats. 1977, ch. 708, § 1.) Based on the absence of a definition of original in section 2620 or elsewhere in the Probate Code or the Code of Civil Procedure and the Legislature's presumptive awareness of existing law (see In re Greg F. (2012) 55 Cal.4th 393, 407), the committee interprets Evidence Code section 255's definition of "original" to apply to account statements filed in satisfaction of section 2620(c)'s requirements.

§ 2102) more effectively and to prevent the loss of a personal residence because of a fiduciary's failure to use ordinary care and diligence.

Finally, the committee recommends approving Request and Order for Waiver of Accounting (Guardianship and Conservatorship) (form GC-410) for optional use by a conservator or guardian to request a court order waiving an otherwise required accounting. The form will serve as a checklist, ensuring that the fiduciary has addressed all the elements required by section 2628(a) and included the information and documents required by amended rule 7.575(f). The order block at the end of the form will simplify the process of granting a waiver and reduce paperwork.

Policy implications

The recommendation promotes at least three Judicial Council policy objectives. First, it will help modernize the rules of court by addressing an ambiguity arising from advances in technology. Second, it will promote access to the courts by clarifying the rule and providing a form to ensure the court receives the information needed to determine a request for waiver. Third, the proposal will improve the quality of justice and service to the public by giving the court more information to allow it to exercise its oversight of fiduciary relationships more effectively.

Comments

The proposed recommendation was circulated for public comment to the regular list of persons interested in probate and mental health proposals from April 12 to June 10, 2019, as part of the regular spring comment cycle. The proposal received ten comments from individuals and organizations. Four commenters—including three superior courts and the Joint Rules Subcommittee of the Trial Court Presiding Judges Advisory Committee and the Court Executives Advisory Committee—agreed with the proposal as circulated; four commenters agreed with the proposal and suggested modifications; and one commenter did not indicate a position, but generally agreed with the proposal. One commenter did not agree with the proposal.[13] A chart with the full text of the comments received and the committee's responses is attached at pages 16–25.

The committee considered all comments received and made several modifications to its recommendation in response. Several commenters interpreted proposed rule 7.575(b) to authorize a fiduciary to submit copies of electronic statements in support of court accountings. That is not the committee's intent. As noted above, section 2620(c) requires submission of original statements. A rule authorizing submission or acceptance of copies would be inconsistent with the statute and therefore beyond the Judicial Council's rule-making authority. The committee instead added language to clarify that the rule is not intended to authorize the submission or acceptance of copies. In addition, and for similar reasons, the committee declined to add a reference to section 1552 of the Evidence Code to subdivision (b) because section 1552 appears to authorize the submission of copies of electronic documents in certain circumstances.

[13] The commenter who did not agree with the proposal predicted that its adoption would effectively do away with the requirement to submit original statements and would interfere with courts' ability to detect accounting fraud, but did not provide any basis for these predictions. The committee does not believe that its recommendation will have either of these predicted effects.

Commenters also suggested that the committee add language to the rule to specify the type of evidence that would be required to verify the accuracy of a printed statement's content. The committee elected not to address this issue because it is beyond the scope of the proposal. The rule, like the statute, leaves to the court to determine what, if any, further evidence is sufficient to verify the accuracy of the statement's content. The court is in the best position to determine the credibility of the fiduciary in that regard. The committee did, however, modify the recommendation to specify more clearly the conditions for the court's acceptance, as an original, of a computer-generated printout of an electronic statement.

Finally, commenters suggested that the committee add express references in rule 7.575 and form GC-410 to rule 7.903, which applies the accounting requirements in section 2620 to accountings filed by trustees of specific trusts funded by court order. (See Cal. Rules of Ct., rule 7.903(c)(6).) The committee does not recommend this addition. Rule 7.575 was adopted effective January 1, 2008, three years after the Judicial Council adopted rule 7.903. The council is presumed to have known that section 2620, which rule 7.575 implemented, applied to trusts within the scope of rule 7.903. Yet the council did not then incorporate a reference to those trusts into rule 7.575, there has been no indication that the absence of such a reference has caused confusion or delay in the twelve years since rule 7.575 was adopted, and the committee is not aware of changed circumstances warranting its inclusion now.[14]

Alternatives considered

The committee considered not recommending amendments to rule 7.575 or approval of form GC-410. But the ongoing challenges for conservators and guardians who receive electronic account statements for the estate and must file original statements in support of accountings and the need for courts to protect a conservatee's or ward's interest in their personal residence in light of the statewide housing crisis persuaded the committee that the rule amendments are needed.

The committee also considered recommending the adoption of form GC-410 for mandatory use, both before circulation and again in response to comments received. The committee decided to recommend the form's approval for optional use, in large part because several courts have already developed local forms that serve the same purpose. The committee does not wish to preempt effective local practices, but does hope to facilitate their expansion to other courts. Committee members who represent court staff suggested that an optional form would be useful to courts that had not already adopted a local form for requesting a waiver.

[14] The council may have chosen to forgo a blanket reference to rule 7.903 because that rule precludes the application of section 2620 to trusts with total assets of $20,000 or less after funding. (See id., rule 7.903(d).)

Fiscal and Operational Impacts

The proposal would clarify certain accounting requirements for guardians and conservators, facilitate the filing of accountings that comply with statutory requirements, provide the court with more information to review filed accountings, and thereby reduce continuances and other delays in reviewing accountings. The requirement to submit documentation of activity to maintain a personal residence would impose a burden on the fiduciary, but that duty would be far less onerous than requiring the fiduciary to complete and file the full accounting of which the fiduciary seeks a waiver. Courts will need to integrate form GC-410 into their case management systems. Some courts already have procedures in place to address requests to waive an accounting in a conservatorship or guardianship. This proposal is not intended to displace any of those procedures.

Rule 7.575 of the California Rules of Court is amended, effective January 1, 2020, to read:

Rule 7.575. ~~Accounts~~ Accountings of conservators and guardians

~~This rule defines standard and simplified accountings filed by conservators and guardians under Probate Code section 2620(a), provides when each type of accounting must or may be filed, and prescribes the use of Judicial Council accounting forms in both types of accountings.~~

Unless waived by the court under Probate Code section 2628, a conservator or guardian of the estate must file accountings in the frequency, manner, and circumstances specified in Probate Code section 2620. The court may order accountings to be filed more frequently than required by the statute. An accounting must be filed as a standard accounting unless this rule authorizes filing a simplified accounting.

(a) ~~Standard and simplified~~ Information required in all accountings

~~A standard accounting lists receipts and disbursements in subject-matter categories, with each receipt and disbursement category subtotaled. A simplified accounting lists receipts and disbursements chronologically, by receipt or payment date, without subject-matter categories.~~

Notwithstanding any other provision of this rule or the Judicial Council accounting forms, each accounting filed with the court must include:

(1) All information required by Probate Code section 1061 in the Summary of Account—Standard and Simplified Accounts (form GC-400(SUM)/GC-405(SUM));

(2) All information required by Probate Code sections 1062–1063 in the supporting schedules; and

(3) All information required by Probate Code section 1064 in the petition for approval of the accounting or the report accompanying the accounting.

(b) Supporting documents

Each accounting filed with the court must include the supporting documents, including all original statements, specified in section 2620(c) of the Probate Code.

(1) If a conservator or guardian receives a statement from the issuing institution in electronic form but not in paper form, the court has discretion to accept a computer-generated printout of that statement as an original in satisfaction of the requirements in section 2620(c) if,

(A) The fiduciary submitting the printout verifies under penalty of perjury that the statement was received in electronic form and printed without alteration, and

(B) The printout is an "original," as defined in Evidence Code section 255.

(2) This rule does not authorize a fiduciary to submit, or a court to accept, a copy of a statement in support of an accounting filed under section 2620.

(~~b~~c) Standard accounting ~~authorized or required~~

~~A conservator or guardian may file any accounting required or authorized by Probate Code section 2620 as a standard accounting under this rule and must file a standard accounting if:~~

~~(1) The estate contains income real property;~~

~~(2) The estate contains a whole or partial interest in a trade or business;~~

~~(3) The appraised value of the estate is $500,000 or more, exclusive of the conservatee's or ward's personal residence;~~

~~(4) Except as provided in (c)~~(d)~~, Schedule A (receipts) or Schedule C (disbursements) prepared in a simplified accounting format exceeds five pages in length; or~~

~~(5) The court directs that a standard accounting be filed.~~

A "standard accounting" reports receipts and disbursements in subject-matter categories, with each category subtotaled on a separate form. A conservator, guardian, or trustee must file each accounting as a standard accounting unless a simplified accounting is authorized in (d)(1).

(~~e~~d) Simplified accounting ~~authorized~~

~~A conservator or guardian may file a simplified accounting in all cases not listed in (b). If required by this rule to file a standard accounting only because a receipts or disbursements schedule is longer than five pages under (b)(4), a conservator or guardian may file a simplified accounting, except for that schedule, which must be prepared in a standard accounting format.~~

A "simplified accounting" reports individual receipts and disbursements chronologically, by receipt or payment date, without separating them into subject-matter categories.

(1) A conservator, guardian, or trustee may file a simplified accounting only if all the following requirements are met:

(A) The estate or trust does not contain any income-generating real property;

(B) The estate or trust does not contain either a whole or a partial interest in a trade or business;

(C) The appraised value of the estate or trust, excluding the value of the conservatee's or ward's personal residence, is less than $500,000; and

(D) The court has not directed the fiduciary to file a standard accounting.

(2) If the requirements in (1) are met, but either Schedule A, Receipts—Simplified Account (form GC-405(A)) or Schedule C, Disbursements—Simplified Account (form GC-405(C)) would be longer than five pages, the fiduciary must use the standard forms for Schedule A, Receipts (forms GC-400(A)(1)–(6)) or Schedule C, Disbursements (forms GC-400(C)(1)–(11)) as applicable, but may otherwise file a simplified accounting.

(dc) ~~Standard and simplified accounting~~ Judicial Council forms

~~Judicial Council forms designated as GC-400 are standard accounting forms. Forms designated as GC-405 are simplified accounting forms. Forms designated as GC-400/GC-405 are forms for both standard and simplified accountings. Each form is also designated by a suffix following its accounting designator that identifies the form's intended use, based either on the form's schedule letter as shown in the Summary of Account (form GC-400(SUM)/GC-405(SUM)) or the form's subject matter.~~

The Judicial Council has approved two separate, overlapping sets of forms for accountings in conservatorships and guardianships.

(1) Forms intended for use in standard accountings are numbered GC-400.

(2) Forms intended for use in simplified accountings are numbered GC-405.

(3) Forms intended for use in both accounting formats bear both numbers.

(4) Each form number is followed by a suffix—for example, GC-405(A)—further to specify that form's intended use. The suffix indicates either the letter or subject matter of the form's schedule.

(5) The Summary of Account—Standard and Simplified Accounts (form GC-400(SUM)/GC-405(SUM)) must be used in all accountings.

(6) Except for the Summary of Account, all standard accounting forms are optional. A fiduciary who files a standard accounting and elects not to use the Judicial Council forms must:

(A) Report receipts and disbursements in the same subject-matter categories specified in the Judicial Council standard accounting forms for receipts and disbursements schedules;

(B) Provide the same information about any asset, property, transaction, receipt, disbursement, or other matter that is required by the applicable Judicial Council standard accounting form; and

(C) Provide the information in the same general format as the applicable Judicial Council standard accounting form, except that instructional material and material contained or requested in the form's header and footer may be omitted.

(7) Schedule A, Receipts—Simplified Account (form GC-405(A)) and Schedule C, Disbursements—Simplified Account (form GC-405(C)) must be used in all simplified accountings unless (d)(2) requires use of the standard forms for Schedule A or Schedule C.

(8) A fiduciary filing a simplified accounting must use the appropriate form in the GC-405 series whenever the accounting covers an asset, a transaction, or an event to which that form applies.

~~(c)~~ ~~Mandatory and optional forms~~

~~(1) Judicial Council accounting forms adopted as mandatory forms must be used by standard and simplified accounting filers. Judicial Council accounting forms approved as optional forms may be used by all accounting filers. Judicial Council accounting forms designated as GC-400/GC-405 that are approved as optional forms may be used by standard accounting filers but must be used by simplified accounting filers.~~

~~(2) Standard accounting filers electing not to use optional Judicial Council accounting forms must:~~

~~(A) State receipts and disbursements in the subject-matter categories specified in the optional Judicial Council forms for receipts and disbursements schedules;~~

~~(B) Provide the same information about any asset, property, transaction, receipt, disbursement, or other matter that is required by the applicable Judicial Council accounting form; and~~

~~(C) Provide the information in the same general layout as the applicable Judicial Council accounting form, but instructional material contained in the form and material contained or requested in the form's header and footer need not be provided.~~

~~(f) Required information in all accounts~~

~~Notwithstanding any other provision of this rule and the Judicial Council accounting forms, all standard and simplified accounting filers must provide all information in their accounting schedules or their Summary of Account that is required by Probate Code sections 1060–1063 and must provide all information required by Probate Code section 1064 in the petition for approval of their account or the report accompanying their account.~~

(f) Order waiving an accounting

The court may make an order waiving an otherwise required accounting if all the conditions in Probate Code section 2628(a) are met. If the conservatee or ward owns a personal residence, the request for an order waiving the accounting must include, in addition to the information needed to verify that all the conditions in section 2628(a) are met, the following information and documents regarding the personal residence:

(1) The street address of the residence;

(2) A true copy of the most recent residential property tax bill;

(3) A true copy of the declarations page from the homeowner's insurance policy covering the residence;

(4) A true copy of the most recent statement for any mortgage or loan secured by the residence; and

(5) A true copy of the most recent fee or dues statement for any homeowners' association or similar association.

1.	Michael Acker, Research Attorney Superior Court of Santa Barbara County Santa Maria	N	The proposed changes would essentially nullify any need to produce original statements and extremely attenuate, if not absolutely destroy, the court's ability to detect fraudulent activity in accountings.	The committee appreciates the commenter's concern. The committee does not intend its recommendation to modify Probate Code section 2620(c)'s requirement to produce original statements or to make it more difficult for a court to detect accounting fraud and does not believe the recommendation will have those effects. The committee notes that its recommendation is similar to local rule 1743 of the Superior Court of Santa Barbara County.
2.	Orange County Bar Association by Deirdre Kelly, President Newport Beach	AM	The OCBA believes that this proposal approximately addresses its stated purposes provided the following amendments are made: (1) the proposed language at Rule 7.575(b)(1) on page 5 is confusing in that it only applies if the institution "stores financial information in electronic form" and "delivers original statements electronically" to the conservator/guardian; no conservator/ward would know anything about how an institution stores its data so that condition should be removed; the condition that the institution deliver "original" statements defeats the entire purpose of this rule change to make copies of computer statements and print-outs admissible in accordance with Evidence Code §255 and §1552; even if the amendments to Probate Code §2620(c) reference the use of "original account statements" and "original escrow closing statements" it should be presumed that the legislature understood the meaning of "original" in accordance with Evidence Code §255 and §1552;	The committee does not intend the proposed amendments to rule 7.575(b) to authorize the submission of copies of account statements in satisfaction of Probate Code section 2620(c) and has redrafted the rule to clarify its intent. The committee reads Evidence Code section 255 to treat a computer-generated printout of an electronic writing to be an original writing if it meets the criteria specified in that section. Therefore, a computer-generated printout of a statement transmitted and received electronically would qualify as an original statement as long as it met the statutory criteria because, as the commenter points out, the Legislature is deemed to have been aware of section 255 when it amended section 2620(c) in 2001 to require submission of original statements. In addition, the committee has redrafted rule 7.575(b)(1) to remove the condition that the bank or other institution store the financial information in electronic form and to focus instead on the bank's issuance of statements in electronic form

			(2) at the same section a reference should be added to Evidence Code §1552 as additional support; and	and the fiduciary's receipt of statements in that form. The committee does not recommend adding a reference to Evidence Code section 1552 to the rule. The Legislature added section 1552 in 1998 (SB 177 [Stats. 1998, ch. 100]) as part of replacing the "best evidence rule," which required an original writing to be offered in evidence, with the "secondary evidence rule," which allows the content of a writing to be proved by admissible evidence other than the original document. Section 1552 states: "A printed representation of computer information or a computer program is presumed to be an accurate representation of the computer information or computer program that it purports to represent." That language appears to treat a "printed representation" as a copy, or secondary evidence, of the original "computer information." By contrast, section 255 treats a "computer-generated printout" that meets specified criteria as an original document. Three years later, with both those provisions in place, the Legislature amended section 2620(c) to replace the requirement to submit copies of account statements with the requirement to submit originals. (SB 1286 [Stats. 2001, ch. 563].) This amendment is best read as an exception to the secondary evidence rule. The Legislature required originals instead of copies to make it harder for a fiduciary to file fraudulent accounts. The committee does not recommend incorporating Evidence Code section 1552's exception to that

The committee does not recommend adoption of form GC-410 for mandatory use. Probate Code section 2628(a) and rule 7.575(f) establish sufficiently uniform statewide conditions for waiver of an accounting. Several courts have created forms that already incorporate these conditions. The committee does not intend to supersede these local forms. Furthermore, adopting a mandatory form may not be necessary to establish the uniformity desired by the commenter. Under rule 1.35(a), forms approved by the Judicial Council for optional use may, whenever applicable, be used by parties and must be accepted for filing by all courts.
3.	Michelle Rowe, Court Attorney Superior Court of San Luis Obispo County	AM	As to the original statement versus electronic statement changes under proposed rule 7.575(b)(2), it appears a declaration would typically be sufficient to establish the authenticity and accuracy of the electronic statements. Based on the current status on this issue and what is being	The committee does not intend to distinguish original statements from electronic statements. It intends, rather, to distinguish electronic statements from paper statements and address a fiduciary's reported difficulty in complying with section 2620(c) when statements are transmitted or received only in electronic form. Amending the rule to clarify that a computer-generated printout of an electronic statement is an "original" if it meets the definition in Evidence Code section 255 provides another method with which a fiduciary may comply with section 2620(c). The committee has modified the draft rule as suggested by the commenter below to require that the fiduciary verify that the statement was received electronically and was printed without seen in our Court, I suspect most guardians and conservators (and court supervised SNT trustees per Cal. The printout must also meet the definition in Evidence Code section 255 for treatment as an original statement for purposes of section 2620(c). The rule, like the statute, leaves to the court to determine what, if any, further evidence is sufficient to verify the accuracy of the statement's content. The court is in the best position to determine the credibility of the fiduciary in that regard.

			This possible interpretation appears to circumvent the original purpose of the statute. In other words, there seems to be a conflict with the guardian/conservator/court supervised SNT trustee declaring the authenticity and accuracy of the data, when the Court is trying to confirm the same person has not altered data. It would be helpful if the rule indicated the guardian/conservator/court supervised SNT trustee, attorney for or employee of the either, could not be the party executing a declaration to show that authenticity and accuracy of the data (absent perhaps compelling circumstances as determined by the Court). If possible, the rule may need to reflect an agent from the institution, etc., should be the declarant, absent "compelling circumstances" as determined by the Court.	The committee has revised the draft rule to limit its scope more clearly to determining whether a computer-generated printout of an electronic statement may be deemed an original. Nothing in the rule would prevent the court from seeking verification of the statement's content in the event that doubts arose in the course of examination or audit. The scope of the court's authority in this regard is intended to be identical to the scope of its authority under section 2620(c)–(e).
			It is also noted subsection (B) only cites to guardians and conservators, but it appears this rule would also apply to SNT trustees for trusts subject to Cal. Rules of Court, rule 7.903. It would be helpful if the new rule of Court	The committee does not recommend adding a reference to a trust funded by court order to rule 7.575 without some indication that the absence of such a reference has caused confusion or delay in the twelve years since rule 7.575 was adopted.

I think requiring the fiduciary (and/or attorney) to verify—i.e., declare under penalty of perjury—that the attached account statements were received electronically, were printed without alteration, and constitute original records consistent with Evidence Code section 255, would provide assurances of authenticity and ensure the fiduciary understands the import and importance of submitting original records as conceived by the legislature.	The committee appreciates the commissioner's comments. The committee agrees with the suggestion and has modified recommended rule 7.575(b) to require a fiduciary who submits a computer-generated printout of an electronic statement to verify, as conditions of the court's accepting the statement, that the statement was received electronically and printed without alteration. The statement must also meet the criteria in Evidence Code section 255 for treatment as an original.
5.	Superior Court of Los Angeles County	AM	Form GC-410 Sections 2 and 5b: "Personal Residence" is not defined or clear. Does it mean rented residence or ownership? Section 4, 6 and 7: A line at the end of text to initial required information will lead to a lot of missed initials, incomplete forms, and therefore lost court resources to reject and reprocess submissions. Section 5b:	The committee does not recommend defining "personal residence," though it understands the desire for a definition. Personal residence is not defined in the Probate Code or the probate rules. In addition, the form applies only to a personal residence that is part of the estate. Only a residence owned by the ward or conservatee would be part of the estate. The committee has revised its recommendation to align the spaces for initials to the left end of the text to be verified.

The waiver, if granted, would apply to the previous accounting period. Any change in the estate's income would be addressed at the end of the next accounting period. In addition, if the court learns of any concerns, it has the authority to order an accounting before the end of the regular period. Executive Summary

The Probate and Mental Health Advisory Committee recommends that the Judicial Council amend one rule and repeal one rule of the California Rules of Court to remove references to a graduated filing fee in estate administration proceedings. The statute that imposed a graduated filing fee in estate administration proceedings based on the value of the estate was held unconstitutional in 2008. The council repealed two other rules implementing the graduated filing fee scheme, effective January 1, 2015, but did not repeal or amend the rules addressed in this proposal.

Recommendation

The Probate and Mental Health Advisory Committee recommends that the Judicial Council, effective January 1, 2020:

1. Amend California Rules of Court, rule 7.550 to repeal subdivision (b)(10), which requires the report mandated by Probate Code section 10954(c)(1) when an account is waived to include the information required by former rule 7.552(a) and (b); and

2. Repeal rule 7.151.

The text of the amended and repealed rules is attached at pages 5–6.

Relevant Previous Council Action

The Judicial Council adopted rules 7.151, 7.550(b)(10), and 7.552 of the California Rules of Court, effective January 1, 2004, to implement the legislative establishment of a graduated filing fee in estate administration proceedings.[1]

Effective March 1, 2008, the Judicial Council adopted rule 7.553 and amended rules 7.151 and 7.552 in response to further legislative direction.

Effective January 1, 2015, the Judicial Council repealed rules 7.552 and 7.553, but did not repeal, or consider repealing, the rules in this proposal.

Analysis/Rationale

The Probate and Mental Health Advisory Committee recommends repealing rule 7.151 and amending rule 7.550 to repeal paragraph 10 of subdivision (b) of that rule to complete the repeal of all rules that implemented the graduated estate administration filing fee declared unconstitutional in Estate of Claeyssens (2008) 161 Cal.App.4th 465 (Burkey).

In 2003, the Legislature amended former Government Code section 26827 to impose a graduated filing fee on first petitions in estate administration proceedings.[2] The filing fee was based on the value of the estate: the greater the value, the higher the fee.[3] Later that year, the Legislature further amended section 26827(d) to require a subsequent petitioner who had not been required to pay the graduated filing fee but was appointed as personal representative to reimburse the original petitioner the difference between the value-based fee and the basic fee.[4]

In response to these statutory amendments, the Judicial Council adopted rules 7.151, 7.550(b)(10), and 7.552 to provide mechanisms for adjusting the graduated filing fee in decedents' estates proceedings and for a successful subsequent petitioner to reimburse an unsuccessful original petitioner.[5]

Rep., Probate Rule Concerning Reimbursement of Graduated Filing Fee Paid by Unsuccessful Petitioner (Nov. 3, 2003) (recommending adoption of rule 7.151).

Effective July 19, 2005, Government Code section 26827 was amended and renumbered as section 70650. (Assem. Bill 145; Stats. 2005, ch. 75, § 61.) In response, the Judicial Council adopted rule 7.553 and amended rules 7.151 and 7.552.[6]

Since California voters approved Proposition 6 in 1982, section 13301 of the Revenue and Taxation Code has—except for authorizing recoupment of certain federal estate tax credits attributable to California property—prohibited the State of California from taxing decedents' estates; that is, gifts, inheritances, and other transfers that occur because of a person's death.[7] On March 27, 2008, the California Court of Appeal determined that the statutory graduated filing fee operated as an ad valorem tax on decedents' estates. (Burkey, supra, 161 Cal.App.4th at pp. 468, 472.) Because Proposition 6 did not authorize the Legislature to repeal or amend its ban on estate taxes without voter approval, the court held the statutory graduated filing fee unconstitutional under article II, section 10(c) of the California Constitution. (Id., at p. 473.)

In response to Burkey, the Legislature amended Government Code section 70650, effective January 1, 2009, to repeal the graduated filing fee in trust and estate administration proceedings and replace it with a single uniform filing fee.[8]

Effective January 1, 2015, the Judicial Council repealed rules 7.552 and 7.553, but did not repeal, or consider repealing, the rules in the current proposal.[9] Adopting this recommendation completes the repeal process.

Policy implications

The recommended amendment and repeal promote at least two Judicial Council policy objectives—modernization of the rules of court and promotion of access to the courts—by eliminating misleading rules.

Comments

The proposed recommendation was circulated for public comment to the regular list of persons interested in probate and mental health proposals from April 12 to June 10, 2019, as part of the regular spring comment cycle. Three trial courts and the Orange County Bar Association submitted comments. All commenters agreed with the proposal as circulated.[10]

[10] A chart with the full text of the comments received and the committee's responses is attached at pages 7–8.

Alternatives considered

The committee did not consider any alternatives to the recommended action because the underlying statutory authority for the provisions was held unconstitutional in 2008. The statutes were amended, effective January 1, 2009, to repeal the unconstitutional fees that the rules implemented.

Fiscal and Operational Impacts

This proposal should not have any fiscal or operational impact on courts or litigants. The trial courts have not had authority to charge a graduated filing fee in estate administration proceedings since January 1, 2009.

Executive Summary

The Probate and Mental Health Advisory Committee recommends adopting one mandatory form and revising one mandatory form to solicit information and give advisements required by statute in a notice of hearing on a petition filed under Probate Code section 850 and a notice of hearing on a report of status of estate administration filed under Probate Code section 12201. These revisions have been requested by courts and stakeholders. They are needed to conform to existing law, promote access to the courts, and reduce delays to hearings.

Recommendation

The Probate and Mental Health Advisory Committee recommends that the Judicial Council, effective January 1, 2020:

1. Adopt Notice of Hearing on Petition to Determine Claim to Property (form DE-115/GC-015) to give the required notice of a hearing on a petition under Probate Code section 850; and

2. Revise Notice of Hearing—Decedent's Estate or Trust (form DE-120) to add a required advisement, update instructions, and make technical corrections.

The revised forms are attached at pages 5–8.

Relevant Previous Council Action

The Judicial Council approved Notice of Hearing of Petition (Probate) for optional use, effective July 1, 1977. The form was renamed Notice of Hearing (Probate) and given the number DE-120, effective July 1, 1988. It was adopted for mandatory use, effective January 1, 2000, and renamed Notice of Hearing—Decedent's Estate or Trust, effective July 1, 2005.

Analysis/Rationale

The Probate and Mental Health Advisory Committee recommends adopting form DE-115/GC-015 and revising form DE-120 to implement statutory requirements, promote access to the courts, and reduce delays in the distribution of the proceeds of decedents' estates.

Notice of Hearing on Petition to Determine Claim to Property (form DE-115/GC-015)

Effective January 1, 2002, Senate Bill 669 (Stats. 2001, ch. 49) consolidated various provisions in the Probate Code dealing with determination of property claims involving estates of decedents, conservatees, minors, and trusts into sections 850–859.[1] The bill authorized the probate court to resolve questions of title affecting property and any related claims by or against a fiduciary acting on behalf of an estate or other person.[2]

Effective January 1, 2018, Assembly Bill 308 (Stats. 2017, ch. 32, § 1) amended section 851 to require a notice of hearing on a petition under section 850 to include a (1) description of the property at issue, (2) description of any relief sought under section 859 for bad-faith conduct or financial abuse, and (3) statement that any person interested in the property may file a response to the petition. Adopting form DE-115/GC-015 ensures that notice of a hearing on a petition filed under section 850 will include all the elements required by section 851.

Notice of Hearing—Decedent's Estate or Trust (form DE-120)

Form DE-120 is used to give notice of hearings in most proceedings under the Probate Code except for guardianships and conservatorships.[3] Since January 1, 1991, and operative July 1 of that year, section 12201 has required that notice of a hearing on a report of the status of estate administration filed under section 12200 include "a statement in not less than 10-point boldface type or a reasonable equivalent thereof if printed, or in all capital letters if not printed, in substantially the following words: 'YOU HAVE THE RIGHT TO PETITION FOR AN ACCOUNT UNDER SECTION 10950 OF THE CALIFORNIA PROBATE CODE.'" (Stats. 1990, ch. 79, § 14.)

[3] Notice of Hearing—Guardianship or Conservatorship (form GC-020) must be used to give notice of a hearing in a guardianship or conservatorship proceeding.

The revisions to form DE-120 provide space to indicate whether the subject of the noticed hearing is a report of status of decedent's estate administration under section 12200 and add the required statement advising interested persons of their right to petition for an accounting. The revisions also update the instructions for requesting an accommodation under the Americans with Disabilities Act, update statutory references in the form footer, and make minor technical corrections.

Policy implications

The recommended revisions promote access to the courts by providing mechanisms for petitioners and fiduciaries to give notice of hearings in compliance with law.

Comments

The proposed recommendation circulated for public comment to the regular list of persons interested in probate and mental health proposals from April 12 to June 10, 2019, as part of the regular spring comment cycle. The committee received eight comments, including responses from the Joint Rules Subcommittee of the Trial Court Presiding Judges Advisory Committee and Court Executives Advisory Committee, five trial courts, the Trusts and Estates section of the California Lawyers Association, and the Orange County Bar Association. Three commenters agreed with the proposal as circulated, and five agreed while suggesting additional revisions.[4]

The commenters suggested mostly minor modifications to the forms' captions, titles, cross-references, and formatting. The committee considered all comments and made several revisions in response.

Alternatives considered

The committee considered not recommending any revisions to form DE-120, given that the statutes seem to place the burden on the filing parties to provide the requested information. However, in light of requests from courts and stakeholders—as well as the judicial branch's interests in providing access to the courts, giving all interested persons notice and an opportunity to be heard, and resolving cases efficiently—the committee elected to recommend these revisions.

The committee also considered recommending incorporation of the notices and advisements required by section 851 into form DE-120 and not recommending a separate form for notice of hearing on a section 850 petition. The committee determined, however, that resolving a claim to specific property implicated rights that are sufficiently independent of an underlying estate proceeding to warrant a dedicated notice form; that a crossover form was needed because a section 850 petition may also be filed in a guardianship or conservatorship estate proceeding; and that adding the required elements to form DE-120 would make that form confusing and difficult to use properly.

[4] A chart with the full text of the comments received and the committee's responses is attached at pages 9–15.

Fiscal and Operational Impacts

The proposal would require courts to develop processes for using form DE-115/GC-015, replace current inventories of form DE-120, and possibly enter one or more new data elements into their case management systems. Based on the requests and comments from courts, the revisions will probably reduce the frequency with which petitioners and fiduciaries need to correct deficiencies in notices of hearings on section 850 petitions or reports of status of administration. This reduction will, in turn, reduce the frequency of continued hearings and increase the efficiency of case processing.

1.	Orange County Bar Association by Deirdre Kelly, President Newport Beach	AM	The OCBA believes this proposal appropriately addresses its stated purpose if modified as follows: (1) the new form DE-115/GC–015 should add references to Probate Code §17200.1 at paragraph 1 and at the citation string at the bottom of the form in order to specify that the trust interested parties are also entitled to file these Probate §850 petitions; (2) the new form DE-115/GC–015 should add a box #5 to be checked if the petitioner is seeking costs and attorneys' fees under Probate Code §17211 for any bad faith opposition; and [DE-120] (3) the new "NOTICE" box to cover the Probate Code §10950 accounting rights should reference that it is applicable only if the filing is a report of status "under Probate Code §12200" since that statute and Probate Code §12201 are the only authority for this notice and the reciprocal right to accounting.	The committee appreciates the bar association's comments. The committee does not recommend the suggested change to item 1. Section 17200.1 simply states that a proceeding concerning the transfer of trust property must be conducted under section 850 et seq. Section 850(a)(3) provides the authority for an interested person's petition. The committee does not recommend the suggested change to the citation footer. The statutes listed set forth notice requirements, including the applicable statute for notice in trust proceedings, section 17203. Section 17200.1 does not establish notice requirements and, therefore, does not belong in the footer. The committee does not recommend the suggested change. Section 859 provides remedies, including an award of attorney's fees and costs, for specified bad faith conduct related to property of, among other things, a trust. Section 17211 authorizes the award of fees and costs in accounting contests brought or opposed in bad faith. These are outside the scope of this proposal. The committee agrees with the suggestion and has modified the form accordingly.

2.	Superior Court of Monterey County by Christopher Haug, Research Attorney	AM	Monterey County proposes a change to form DE-115/GC-015. In the Proof of Service section on page 2, we recommend changing the name of the document in items 3 and 5 to reflect the true name of the document. The Proof of Service currently refers to a "Notice of Hearing—Petition to Determine Claim of Property Ownership" but the new notice is named "Notice of Petition to Determine Claim to Property." If the proof of service is stating what is being served, then the name of the document served should be precise.	The committee agrees that items 3 and 5 on page 2 should reflect the correct title of the form and has modified those items accordingly.
			In addition, Monterey County asks that you consider a change to form DE-120. At the bottom of page 1 of the form is a caution not to use the form for noticing a petition to administer estate or noticing guardianship/conservatorship hearings. In light of the new DE-115/GC-015 notice for 850-petitions, should this new notice also be added to the caution? Possible new caution language: "Do not use this form to give notice of a petition to administer an estate (see Prob. Code, § 8100 and use form DE-121), or notice of a hearing in a guardianship or conservatorship case (see Prob. Code, §§ 1511 and 1822 and use form GC-020), or notice of a petition to determine a claim to property (see Prob. Code, § 851 and use form DE-115/GC-115)."	The committee agrees with the suggestion and has modified the form accordingly.

4.	Superior Court of Riverside County by Susan Ryan, Chief Deputy, Legal Services	A	Riverside Superior Court is in support of this proposed mandate. The specific Notice of Hearing forms for each statutory requirement will streamline the process in estate administration. For the Notice of Hearing on the petition filed under Probate Code 850, recent legislation requires the moving party to make statutory allegations in the notice. A new form for this purpose specifically addresses the statutory requirements. In addition, the modification to the Notice of Hearing (DE-120) will also streamline the process when the petitioner files a Report of Status of Administration under Probate Code 12201 in that the form will provide the statutory allegations within the notice. There will be no costs to the court for each of the new forms. There will only be minor operational adjustments so staff is aware how to file each of the new forms in our case management system.	The committee appreciates the court's comments. No further response is required.

Executive Summary

The Probate and Mental Health Advisory Committee recommends repealing one rule of court and adopting five rules to update the minimum qualifications and annual education required for counsel to be appointed by the court under Probate Code sections 1470 and 1471 to represent wards and conservatees in proceedings under division 4 of the Probate Code. The committee also recommends revising one form for attorneys to certify their eligibility for appointment, approving the revised form for optional use, and revoking a second certification form. The amendments and revisions respond to suggestions from courts, stakeholders, and advocates to tailor the required qualifications and education more closely to statute, ensure the knowledge and experience needed for effective representation, and simplify the certification process.

Recommendation

The Probate and Mental Health Advisory Committee recommends that the Judicial Council, effective January 1, 2020:

1. Repeal rule 7.1101 of the California Rules of Court;

2. Adopt rule 7.1101 to specify the scope of the chapter, define the terms used in the chapter, and establish general qualifications for appointed counsel;

3. Adopt rule 7.1102 to specify minimum qualifications and annual education related to guardianships required for an attorney to be appointed under Probate Code section 1470 to represent a ward or proposed ward in a guardianship or other proceeding under division 4 of the Probate Code;

4. Adopt rule 7.1103 to specify minimum qualifications and annual education related to conservatorships and legal capacity required for an attorney to be appointed under Probate Code section 1470 or 1471 to represent a conservatee, proposed conservatee, or person alleged to lack legal capacity in a conservatorship or other proceeding under division 4 of the Probate Code;

5. Adopt rule 7.1104 to affirm a court's authority to establish local procedures to administer appointment of qualified attorneys and authorize the court, on an express finding of necessity, to appoint an attorney who does not meet the minimum qualifications or annual education requirements in rule 7.1102 or 7.1103;

6. Adopt rule 7.1105 to specify initial and annual certification requirements;

7. Revise Certification of Attorney Concerning Qualifications for Court Appointment in Conservatorships or Guardianships (form GC-010) to conform to the amended certification requirements, incorporate annual certification, simplify the certification process, and approve the form for optional use; and

8. Revoke Annual Certification of Court-Appointed Attorney (form GC-011).

The text of the recommended rules, the revised form, and the revoked form are attached at pages 12–27.

Relevant Previous Council Action

The Judicial Council adopted rule 7.1101, effective January 1, 2008, in response to the mandate in section 1456 of the Probate Code and placed the rule in chapter 23 of the Probate Rules, title 7 of the California Rules of Court. Form GC-010 was adopted for mandatory use, effective March 1, 2008. Form GC-011 was adopted for mandatory use, effective January 1, 2009.

Analysis/Rationale

Probate Code section 1456(a) requires the Judicial Council to adopt a rule of court specifying the qualifications, number of hours of annual education "in classes related to conservatorships or guardianships," "particular subject matter" to be included in the required annual education, and reporting requirements for any attorney appointed by the court under Probate Code section 1470 or 1471.[1] Section 1470(a) authorizes the court to appoint private counsel for "a ward, a proposed ward, a conservatee, or a proposed conservatee" in any proceeding under division 4 of the Probate Code if the court determines the person is not represented and that the appointment "would be helpful to the resolution of the matter" or "is necessary to protect the person's interests." (Prob. Code, § 1470(a).) Section 1471 mandates court appointment of the public defender or private counsel to represent the interests of "a conservatee, proposed conservatee, or person alleged to lack legal capacity" at the person's request in specified conservatorship proceedings (id., § 1471(a)); in the absence of a request in those same proceedings if the person does not plan to retain counsel and appointment "would be helpful to the resolution of the matter" or "is necessary to protect the [person's] interests" (id., § 1471(b)); and immediately, whether requested or not, in any proceeding to establish a limited conservatorship if the proposed conservatee has not retained and does not plan to retain legal counsel. (id., § 1471(c)).[2]

Rule 7.1101 of the California Rules of Court[3] was adopted to implement the mandate in section 1456. In the years since its adoption, however, the rule has proven challenging to implement, burdensome on attorneys, and inadequate to ensure the protection of represented persons. The recommended repeal of existing rule 7.1101, reorganization of chapter 23 of title 7 into 5 separate rules, and amendment of the existing requirements are intended to address these issues and better implement the statute's requirements.

New rule 7.1101

The first recommended rule clarifies the scope of the chapter's application, defines certain terms as used in the rules, and establishes general qualifications. Subdivision (a) specifies that chapter 23 applies only to counsel appointed under sections 1470 and 1471. It does not, as some have interpreted, apply to counsel appointed under other statutory authority or to retained counsel. Subdivision (b) amends the definitions of several terms in existing rule 7.1101(a); deletes the definition of "counsel in private practice," which is no longer used in chapter 23; and adds a new

[1] Prob. Code, § 1456(a)(1), (3)–(5). Probate Code section 1456 was added by Assembly Bill 1363 (Stats. 2006, ch. 493, § 3), part of the Omnibus Conservatorship and Guardianship Reform Act of 2006. The Omnibus Act comprised four separate bills—Senate Bill 1116, Senate Bill 1550, Senate Bill 1716, and Assembly Bill 1363—enacted as Stats. 2006, chs. 490–493, respectively, to address perceived abuses of the conservatorship process by court-appointed conservators. All further statutory references are to the Probate Code unless otherwise specified.

[2] In addition to the proceedings specified in section 1471(a)(1)–(5), other sections of the Probate Code invoke the authority of section 1471 to require appointment of counsel. (See, e.g., Prob. Code, §§ 1852 (if the court determines that the conservatee wishes to petition the court to terminate the conservatorship or for other specified orders); 2356.5 (petition for order authorizing placement or medication of person with major neurocognitive disorder); 2357 (petition for order authorizing medical treatment); 3140 (petition to approve transaction, spouse alleged to lack capacity); 3205 (petition to determine patient's capacity to make health care decision).) Because these appointments depend on the authority of section 1470 or 1471, the requirements in recommended rules 7.1101–7.1105 apply.

Still other sections authorize or require appointment of counsel independent of the authority in section 1470 or 1471. (See, e.g., Prob. Code, §§ 1954 (petition for authority to consent to person's sterilization); 2620.2 (failure of appointed fiduciary to file accounting).) Neither section 1456 nor the rules in this proposal establish qualifications or education requirements for appointment under section 1954 or 2620.2. Courts are encouraged to establish local requirements for appointment under these provisions.

definition of "trial." The definition of "appointed counsel" clarifies that the term means an attorney appointed by the court who assumes direct, personal responsibility for representation.

Subdivision (c) establishes basic licensing, disciplinary status, and liability insurance requirements that all appointed attorneys must meet. Attempting to increase access to appointments for recently admitted attorneys, it no longer requires an attorney to have been an active bar member for three years before initial appointment and allows appointment of registered legal aid attorneys qualified to practice law in California under rule 9.45. Subdivision (c) also applies the same professional liability coverage requirements to all attorneys regardless of their practice setting, incorporates by reference the specific qualifications and education requirements in rules 7.1102 and 7.1103 for each type of appointment, and requires compliance with any local rules established by the appointing court. Subdivision (d) clarifies that a court has the authority to adopt additional, more rigorous requirements by local rule, and subdivision (e) states that the new rules do not apply retroactively, freeing an attorney who has already filed an initial certification of qualifications from the requirement to file a new one.

New rules 7.1102 and 7.1103

The second and third rules form the heart of chapter 23. Each establishes a distinct set of qualifications and education requirements to represent a distinct set of clients.

Rule 7.1102

This rule applies to attorneys available for appointment to represent wards or proposed wards in probate guardianships and related proceedings. Except for authorizing qualification by representation of three petitioners or objectors in addition to three proposed wards and requiring experience in at least one contested matter or trial, the experience-based qualifications in rule 7.1102(a) do not differ substantially from those in the existing rule. An attorney may still qualify by meeting the experience required for appointment in child welfare proceedings or family law custody proceedings, too.

Rule 7.1102(b) establishes alternative qualifications through which less-experienced attorneys may become eligible for appointment. The first alternative allows appointment of an attorney who works for an attorney, a firm, or a court-approved legal services organization to be appointed without the experience in subdivision (a) if the attorney is supervised by or working in close consultation with a qualified attorney who meets the experience requirements. The second alternative, intended to allow sole practitioners to qualify, allows appointment of an attorney who has completed, within the 12 months preceding initial availability for appointment, three hours of professional education in the subjects required for annual education (see below) if the attorney is working in close consultation with a qualified attorney who meets the experience requirements.

Subdivisions (c) and (d) require three hours of annual education in subjects directly related to guardianships and child representation. To ensure that an appointed attorney has adequate knowledge related to guardianships, the committee has separated these hours from the hours required for appointment related to conservatorships and narrowed the range of applicable subjects. To ensure that attorneys have access to education in these subjects, the rule authorizes completion of the required education using any method of education, including distance learning, approved by the State Bar. The committee is working with Judicial Council staff to develop and provide webinars and other online training that will enable attorneys to meet the requirements at no cost.

This rule applies to attorneys available for appointment to represent conservatees, proposed conservatees, and persons alleged to lack legal capacity in probate conservatorships and related proceedings. Rule 7.1103(a) narrows and consolidates the experience-based qualifications for these attorneys. In addition to having represented at least three conservatees or proposed conservatees in probate or mental health conservatorships, an attorney may now qualify for appointment by virtue of having represented three petitioners, objectors, persons alleged to lack legal capacity, or persons alleged to be gravely disabled in any proceedings under division 4 of the Probate Code or the Lanterman-Petris-Short (LPS) Act.[4] To simplify the requirements, no type of representation need be combined with any other type. The committee has also eliminated two existing avenues of experience-based qualification: representation of a fiduciary on a petition to approve an accounting and preparation of estate planning documents. The relevance of these types of experience to conservatorship proceedings is too attenuated to justify their continued inclusion.[5]

Like rule 7.1102(b), rule 7.1103(b) establishes alternative qualifications through which less-experienced attorneys may become eligible for appointment. The first alternative allows appointment of an attorney who works for an attorney, a firm, a public defender's office, or a court-approved legal services organization to be appointed without the experience in subdivision (a) if the attorney is supervised by or working in close consultation with a qualified attorney who meets the experience requirements.[6] The second alternative, intended to allow sole practitioners to qualify, allows appointment of an attorney who has completed, within the 12 months preceding initial availability for appointment, three hours of professional education in the subjects required for annual education (see below) if the attorney is working in close consultation with a qualified attorney who meets the experience requirements.

[4] Welf. & Inst. Code, §§ 5000–5556. The LPS Act authorizes involuntary detention, treatment, and conservatorship of persons who are gravely disabled as the result of a mental health disorder. In many superior courts, LPS proceedings are heard by the probate division.

[5] This conclusion is reinforced by the independence of the authority to appoint counsel for a conservatee when a conservator fails to file an account from the appointment authority in section 1470 or 1471. See Prob. Code, § 2620.2(c)(4)(A) and supra, note 2.

[6] These rules no longer expressly distinguish private counsel from deputy public defenders. The requirements needed to accommodate the differences in practice models, both public and private, have been retained in generally applicable rules. See, e.g., Cal. Rules of Court, rules 7.1101(c)(3) (insurance or self-insurance), 7.1103(b) (alternative qualifications).

Subdivisions (c) and (d) require three hours of annual education in subjects directly related to conservatorships and the representation of older adults or persons with disabilities. To ensure that an appointed attorney has adequate knowledge related to conservatorships, the committee has separated these hours from the hours required for appointment related to guardianships and narrowed the range of applicable subjects. To ensure that attorneys have access to education in these subjects, the rule authorizes completion of the required education using any method of education, including distance learning, approved by the State Bar. The committee is working with Judicial Council staff to develop and provide webinars and other online training that will enable attorneys to meet the requirements at no cost.

New rule 7.1104

This rule affirms local courts' authority to establish additional procedural requirements for appointment. It also replaces the existing exemption for courts with four or fewer authorized judges with a narrower exception that can apply to a court of any size. In consideration of the needs of both courts and persons to be represented, the committee recommends expanding the authority to make an exception to the qualifications and education requirements from courts with four or fewer authorized judges to all courts. At the same time, the committee recommends authorizing appointment under the exception only on an express finding of necessity. That necessity could include a lack of qualified attorneys available to accept appointment or the need to appoint an attorney with specific qualifications to meets the needs—including, for example, language access needs—or interests of the person to be represented.

New rule 7.1105

Rule 7.1105 amends the requirements in existing rule 7.1101(h) for initial and annual attorney certification of qualifications. The new rule separates certification of basic licensing, disciplinary status, and insurance requirements from certification of qualifications related to the type of representation for which the attorney wishes to be available for appointment and the annual education requirements. It also amends the requirement to notify the court of professional discipline, requiring notification in writing within five court days. The rule affirms a local court's authority to require documentation of any statement in the certification and requires the form to be kept confidential by the receiving court.[7]

Forms GC-010 and GC-011

The recommended revisions to Judicial Council form GC-010 conform to the requirements in the new rules, simplify the certification process by breaking the form into separate elements—licensing and discipline; insurance; initial qualifications; and annual education—and incorporating the elements needed for annual certification, giving clear instructions for completing each element required for either initial or annual certification, and providing [7] The transitional provisions in existing rule 7.1101(d) and the reporting provision in existing rule 7.1101(i) have been eliminated and not replaced. The reporting provision is not needed because certification to the appointing court is sufficient to ensure that attorneys comply with the requirements. The transitional provisions are not needed because the rules apply only prospectively.

sufficient blank space for additional information required by the rules, the form instructions, or local requirements. With the incorporation of the annual certification into form GC-010, form GC-011 is no longer needed and can be revoked without loss of function.

Policy implications

The recommendation implements a statutory mandate. In line with the statutory purpose, the recommendation also improves the quality of justice and service to the public by ensuring that wards and conservatees subject to judicial proceedings that affect their fundamental interests receive effective legal representation by qualified and well-trained attorneys.

Comments

The proposal was circulated for public comment to the standard list of persons and institutions interested in probate and mental health proceedings twice: once as a single rule in spring 2018 and again as five separate rules in winter 2019. Ten commenters, including three superior courts, three advocacy organizations, the Executive Committee of the Trusts and Estates section (TEXCOM) of the California Lawyers Association, and the Joint Rules Subcommittee (JRS) of the Trial Court Presiding Judges Advisory Committee and the Court Executives Advisory Committee, responded in spring 2018. A chart with the full text of all comments received in spring 2018 and the committee's updated responses is included as Attachment A.

Five commenters agreed with the proposal, four agreed and suggested modifications, and one, TEXCOM, did not agree. Most commenters, even those that agreed, offered suggestions for improving the proposal. The suggestions tended to reflect one of two opposed positions. TEXCOM and some courts thought the proposal went too far by requiring experience within the three years immediately preceding initial availability for appointment rather than the existing five; narrowing the types of qualifying experience and the subject matter of qualifying education; increasing the hours of annual education required to eight, and adding a requirement for initial education. They were concerned that the increased burden would discourage attorneys from making themselves available for appointment under sections 1470 and 1471. Other commenters thought the proposal did not go far enough, and suggested that the committee require more annual education in a wider variety of subjects and establish ethical and performance standards for attorneys appointed under sections 1470 and 1471. Committee members' views diverged along similar lines.

After deliberation, the committee circulated for public comment a significantly revised version of the proposal, separated into five proposed rules, to the same list of persons and institutions in winter 2019. The proposed rules separated the qualifications and education requirements for attorneys appointed to represent wards from those appointed to represent conservatees. They also returned the time frame for qualifying experience to five years before initial availability for appointment, reduced the hours of required education, and made other changes in response to the comments received.

Nine commenters, including three superior courts, TEXCOM, the JRS, and the Probate Committee of the California Judges Association (CJA), responded. Three commenters agreed with the proposal as circulated, four agreed and suggested modifications, one (TEXCOM) indicated no position but remained concerned, and one, CJA, did not agree. A chart with the full text of all comments received in winter 2019 and the committee's responses is attached at pages 28–48. The comments were again split between a majority that argued the requirements were too rigorous and would discourage attorneys from qualifying and making themselves available for appointment and a minority that argued the requirements were insufficient to ensure that appointed attorneys would be qualified to represent their clients effectively. Many of the committee's decisions discussed above regarding the recommended rules were made in response to issues raised in public comment. Additional responses to comments are discussed below.

Several commenters expressed concern that the education requirements would be too burdensome on attorneys. TEXCOM, in particular, suggested reducing the hours of required annual education to three for eligibility in one field and four—two in each—for eligibility in both fields. The committee does not recommend reducing these requirements any further. The knowledge required to represent a minor child in a guardianship proceeding is sufficiently distinct from the knowledge required to represent an adult in a conservatorship or capacity proceeding that separate education requirements covering distinct subject matter are appropriate. Three hours seems to be the minimum time required to cover each set of subjects in sufficient depth. The committee does not view six hours of education per year to be excessively burdensome for attorneys who want to be eligible for appointment to represent wards and conservatees. The committee recognizes that education meeting the subject matter requirements may be difficult to find. The committee has reduced the number of required subjects while keeping them focused on guardianships or conservatorships as required by statute, and has authorized delivery of qualifying education through any distance learning method approved by the State Bar. Finally, to increase the statewide availability of education that allows attorneys to meet the chapter's requirements, the committee is working with Judicial Council staff to develop applicable webinars and other online courses that will be available, at no cost, in time to permit their completion by January 1, 2021, the first deadline to complete annual education under these rules.

Two commenters expressed concern that the alternative qualifications in rules 7.1102(b) and 7.1103(b)—which, as circulated, required an inexperienced attorney to be "supervised by" an experienced attorney as a condition of qualification for appointment—would, in conjunction with rule 5.1(c)(2) of the Rules of Professional Conduct, impose a duty on the experienced attorney to remedy a known ethical violation by the inexperienced attorney.[8] The committee agrees that the requirement as circulated could have been interpreted to require the experienced attorney to have "direct supervisory authority" over the inexperienced attorney and, therefore, a duty to remedy a known ethical violation. The committee does not intend to require the experienced attorney to assume that duty as a condition of the inexperienced attorney's qualification for appointment under rule 7.1102(b) or 7.1103(b). To clarify this intent, the committee has revised the rules to allow an inexperienced attorney to meet the alternative qualifications in part by working in close professional consultation with or under the supervision of an experienced attorney. The committee intends "working in close professional consultation" to describe a professional relationship in which the inexperienced attorney receives the benefit of the experienced attorney's knowledge and skills and applies them to provide effective representation.[9] Consulting attorneys may wish to make clear from the outset the scope and limits of their relationship to avoid unanticipated ethical issues.

[8] See Rules Prof. Conduct, rule 5.1(c): "A lawyer shall be responsible for another lawyer's violation of these rules and the State Bar Act if: … (2) the lawyer … has direct supervisory authority over the other lawyer, whether or not a member or employee of the same law firm,* *and knows of the conduct at a time when its consequences can be avoided or mitigated but fails to take reasonable remedial action."* (Italics added.)

In response to the committee's request for specific comment, two commenters suggested expanding the authority to appoint an attorney who does not meet the qualifications and annual education requirements in the rules. The committee agrees that the exception to the requirement to appoint only qualified attorneys, currently available only to courts with four or fewer authorized judges, should be expanded to apply to all courts. The committee has not been able to draw a reasonable line between courts of different sizes for the purposes of an exception. The existing rule, authorizing an exemption for courts with four or fewer authorized judges, is not correlated to the number of guardianship or conservatorship filings in the court and is therefore somewhat arbitrary. Reported data for court filings appear to vary in completeness among courts, so an exception based on the number of annual filings would also be arbitrary. Furthermore, circumstances can arise in any court in which it may be necessary to appoint an attorney who is not certified under these rules but who has other special qualifications needed to serve the interests of a specific client. The committee has therefore modified its recommendation to authorize a court of any size to appoint an attorney who has not met the qualifications or annual education requirements in rule 7.1102 or 7.1103 on an express finding of necessity, which may include the lack of available qualified counsel or the need for special skills to serve a client's interests.

Alternatives considered

The committee considered not amending rule 7.1101. However, committee members, courts, and stakeholders across the state reported inconsistent and sometimes inadequate experience and education of counsel appointed under sections 1470 and 1471. In addition, the committee determined that the existing rule's authorization of experience and education in general estate planning and probate law was not fully consistent with the statute's express requirements regarding conservatorships and guardianships.

The committee considered amending rule 7.1101 as a single rule and circulated proposed amendments for public comment in spring 2018. In response to the wide range of opinion reflected in the comments received, some of which was based on a lack of clarity in the circulated rule, the committee divided the rule into several rules, each serving a specific purpose.

[9] For the inexperienced attorney to meet the alternative qualifications, the experienced attorney may, but need not, have direct supervisory authority over the inexperienced attorney. Whether the experienced attorney has that authority and the resulting duty to remedy a known ethical violation by the inexperienced attorney is a question of fact independent of whether the inexperienced attorney is qualified under these rules.

The comments generally approved of the division of the rules, but also reflected some misunderstandings based on continued complexity and lack of clarity. In response, the committee simplified the rules by restructuring them, reducing the complexity of some requirements, and addressing the ambiguity of others.

The committee also proposed or considered proposing several rule amendments that are not included in this final recommendation. First, the committee considered proposing a separate rule applying only to representation in limited conservatorships, but decided to address limited conservatorships with all probate conservatorships in rule 7.1103. This approach aligns with the structure of the Probate Code, which integrates limited conservatorships into its conservatorship provisions to the extent of authorizing the court to appoint a conservator or a limited conservator if a proposed limited conservatee lacks the capacity to perform all of the tasks necessary to provide properly for personal needs or manage finances. (Prob. Code, § 1828.5(d).)

Second, the committee considered whether to specify the role and duties of an attorney appointed by the court under section 1470 or 1471. However, it is generally the province of the Legislature (see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code, § 6068) and the Supreme Court (see, e.g., Rules of Prof. Conduct, rules 1.2–1.4 (eff. Nov. 1, 2018)) to specify the role and duties of an attorney and to authorize any exceptions in specific circumstances. When the Judicial Council has entered this arena, it has done so at the express direction of the Legislature and, doing so, has echoed the standard specified by the relevant statute. (See, e.g., Fam. Code, §§ 3150–3151; Cal. Rules of Court, rule 5.242(j) (court-appointed minor's counsel represents "the child's best interest".) Here, Probate Code section 1456 directs the council to adopt a rule that specifies the qualifications and the amount and subject matter of annual education related to guardianships and conservatorships required for appointed counsel, as well as reporting requirements to ensure compliance with the statute. Nothing in sections 1456, 1470, or 1471 specifies—or invites the council to specify—the role and duties of appointed counsel. The committee has therefore declined to specify those duties in the proposed rules.

Third, the committee proposed requiring an attorney to complete initial education, in addition to experience, to qualify for appointment. In response to comments, and recognizing that such a requirement would be a significant change from the existing rule that would leave many appointed attorneys no longer qualified, the committee removed that requirement from its recommendation. The committee also considered several different types and configurations of experience-based qualifications, especially related to conservatorships, but ultimately decided that experience representing any three parties in separate probate or LPS conservatorships or protective proceedings, including one contested matter or trial, would be adequate to enable an attorney to provide effective representation.

Fiscal and Operational Impacts

The recommendation should lead to more qualified attorneys available for appointment under section 1470 and 1471. Although the amendments have eliminated some options for qualification, such as completion of estate planning documents, they have given more weight to other qualifications, such as experience representing petitioners or objectors in conservatorship proceedings, and authorized alternative qualifications. The amended annual education hours and subject matter will impose a small burden on attorneys, but this will be alleviated by provision of online qualifying education at no cost through the Judicial Council, and will equip more attorneys with the knowledge they need to represent their clients effectively. The recommended revisions to form GC-010 and revocation of form GC-011 will reduce the time attorneys and courts spend completing and processing forms. The committee believes that the recommendation, taken as a whole, will lead to more counsel qualified for appointment, more effective representation of wards and conservatees, and better-informed judicial determinations.

Rules 7.1101, 7.1102, 7.1103, 7.1104, and 7.1105 of the California Rules of Court are adopted and rule 7.1101 is repealed, effective January 1, 2020, to read:

Chapter 23. ~~Court-~~Appointed Counsel ~~in Probate Proceedings~~

~~Rule 7.1101. Qualifications and continuing education required of counsel appointed by the court in guardianships and conservatorships~~

~~(a) Definitions~~

~~As used in this rule, the following terms have the meanings stated below:~~

~~(1) "Appointed counsel" or "counsel appointed by the court" are legal counsel appointed by the court under Probate Code sections 1470 or 1471, including counsel in private practice and deputy public defenders directly responsible for the performance of legal services under the court's appointment of a county's public defender.~~

~~(2) A "probate guardianship" or "probate conservatorship" is a guardianship or conservatorship proceeding under division 4 of the Probate Code.~~

~~(3) "LPS" and "LPS Act" refer to the Lanterman-Petris-Short Act, Welfare and Institutions Code section 5000 et seq.~~

~~(4) An "LPS conservatorship" is a conservatorship proceeding for a gravely disabled person under chapter 3 of the LPS Act, Welfare and Institutions Code sections 5350–5371.~~

~~(5) A "contested matter" in a probate or LPS conservatorship proceeding is a matter that requires a noticed hearing and in which written objections are filed by any party or made by the conservatee or proposed conservatee orally in open court.~~

~~(6) "Counsel in private practice" includes attorneys employed by or performing services under contracts with nonprofit organizations.~~

~~(b) Qualifications of appointed counsel in private practice~~

~~Except as provided in this rule, each counsel in private practice appointed by the court on or after January 1, 2008, must be an active member of the State Bar of California for at least three years immediately before the date of appointment, with no discipline imposed within the 12 months immediately preceding any date of availability for appointment after January 1, 2008; and~~

~~(1) Appointments to represent minors in guardianships~~

~~For an appointment to represent a minor in a guardianship:~~

~~(A) Within the five years immediately before the date of first availability for appointment after January 1, 2008, must have represented at least three wards or proposed wards in probate guardianships, three children in juvenile court dependency or delinquency proceedings, or three children in custody proceedings under the Family Code; or~~

~~(B) At the time of appointment, must be qualified:~~

~~(i) For appointments to represent children in juvenile dependency proceedings under rule 5.660 and the court's local rules governing court-appointed juvenile court dependency counsel; or~~

~~(ii) For appointments to represent children in custody proceedings under the Family Code under rule 5.242, including the alternative experience requirements of rule 5.242(g).~~

~~(C) Except as provided in (f)(2), counsel qualified for appointments in guardianships under (B) must satisfy the continuing education requirements of this rule in addition to the education or training requirements of the rules mentioned in (B).~~

~~(2) Appointments to represent conservatees or proposed conservatees~~

~~For an appointment to represent a conservatee or a proposed conservatee, within the five years immediately before the date of first availability for appointment after January 1, 2008, counsel in private practice must have:~~

~~(A) Represented at least three conservatees or proposed conservatees in either probate or LPS conservatorships; or~~

~~(B) Completed any three of the following five tasks:~~

~~(i) Represented petitioners for the appointment of a conservator at commencement of three probate conservatorship proceedings, from initial contact with the petitioner through the hearing and issuance of Letters of Conservatorship;~~

~~(ii) Represented a petitioner, a conservatee or a proposed conservatee, or an interested third party in two contested probate~~

~~or LPS conservatorship matters. A contested matter that qualifies under this item and also qualifies under (i) may be applied toward satisfaction of both items;~~

~~(iii) Represented a party for whom the court could appoint legal counsel in a total of three matters described in Probate Code sections 1470, 1471, 1954, 2356.5, 2357, 2620.2, 3140, or 3205;~~

~~(iv) Represented fiduciaries in three separate cases for settlement of a court-filed account and report, through filing, hearing, and settlement, in any combination of probate conservatorships or guardianships, decedent's estates, or trust proceedings under division 9 of the Probate Code; or~~

~~(v) Prepared five wills or trusts, five durable powers of attorney for health care, and five durable powers of attorney for asset management.~~

~~(3) Except as provided in (e)(2), private counsel qualified under (1) or (2) must also be covered by professional liability insurance satisfactory to the court in the amount of at least $100,000 per claim and $300,000 per year.~~

~~(c) Qualifications of deputy public defenders performing legal services on court appointments of the public defender~~

~~(1) Except as provided in this rule, beginning on January 1, 2008, each county deputy public defender with direct responsibility for the performance of legal services in a particular case on the appointment of the county public defender under Probate Code sections 1470 or 1471 must be an active member of the State Bar of California for at least three years immediately before the date of appointment; and either~~

~~(A) Satisfy the experience requirements for private counsel in (b)(1) for appointments in guardianships or (b)(2) for appointments in conservatorships; or~~

~~(B) Have a minimum of three years' experience representing minors in juvenile dependency or delinquency proceedings or patients in postcertification judicial proceedings or conservatorships under the LPS Act.~~

~~(2) A deputy public defender qualified under (1) must also be covered by professional liability insurance satisfactory to the court in the amount of at~~ least $100,000 per claim and $300,000 per year, or be covered for professional liability at an equivalent level by a self-insurance program for the professional employees of his or her county.

(3) A deputy public defender who is not qualified under this rule may periodically substitute for a qualified deputy public defender with direct responsibility for the performance of legal services in a particular case. In that event, the county public defender or his or her designee, who may be the qualified supervisor, must certify to the court that the substitute deputy is working under the direct supervision of a deputy public defender who is qualified under this rule.

(d) Transitional provisions on qualifications

(1) Counsel appointed before January 1, 2008, may continue to represent their clients through March 2008, whether or not they are qualified under (b) or (c). After March 2008, through conclusion of these matters, the court may retain or replace appointed counsel who are not qualified under (b) or (c) or may appoint qualified co-counsel to assist them.

(2) In January, February, and March 2008, the court may appoint counsel in new matters who have not filed the certification of qualifications required under (h) at the time of appointment but must replace counsel appointed under this paragraph who have not filed the certificate before April 1, 2008.

(e) Exemption for small courts

(1) Except as provided in (2) and (3), the qualifications required under (b) or (c) may be waived by a court with four or fewer authorized judges if it cannot find qualified counsel or for other grounds of hardship.

(2) A court described in (1) may, without a waiver, appoint counsel in private practice who do not satisfy the insurance requirements of (b)(3) if counsel demonstrate to the court that they are adequately self-insured.

(3) A court may not waive or disregard the self-insurance requirements of (c)(2) applicable to deputy public defenders.

(4) A court waiving the qualifications required under (b) or (c) must make express written findings showing the circumstances supporting the waiver and disclosing all alternatives considered, including appointment of qualified counsel from adjacent counties and other alternatives not selected.

~~(f) Continuing education of appointed counsel~~

~~(1) Except as provided in (2), beginning on January 1, 2008, counsel appointed by the court must complete three hours of education each calendar year that qualifies for Minimum Continuing Legal Education credit for State Bar certified specialists in estate planning, trust, and probate law.~~

~~(2) Counsel qualified to represent minors in guardianships under (b)(1)(B) and who are appointed to represent minors in guardianships of the person only may satisfy the continuing education requirements of this rule by satisfying the annual education and training required under rule 5.242(d) or the continuing education required under rule 5.660(d)(3).~~

~~(g) Additional court-imposed qualifications, education, and other requirements~~

~~The qualifications in (b) and (c) and the continuing education requirement in (f) are minimums. A court may establish higher qualification or continuing education requirements, including insurance requirements; require initial education or training; and impose other requirements, including an application by private counsel.~~

~~(h) Initial certification of qualifications; annual post-qualification reports and certifications~~

~~(1) Each counsel appointed or eligible for appointment by the court before January 1, 2008, including deputy public defenders, must certify to the court in writing before April 1, 2008, that he or she satisfies the qualifications under (b) or (c) to be eligible for a new appointment on or after that date.~~

~~(2) After March 2008, each counsel must certify to the court that he or she is qualified under (b) or (c) before becoming eligible for an appointment under this rule.~~

~~(3) Each counsel appointed or eligible for appointment by the court under this rule must immediately advise the court of the imposition of any State Bar discipline.~~

~~(4) Beginning in 2009, each appointed counsel must certify to the court before the end of March of each year that:~~

~~(A) His or her history of State Bar discipline and professional liability insurance coverage or, if appointed by a court with four or fewer authorized judges under (e)(2), the adequacy of his or her self-~~

~~insurance, either has or has not changed since the date of his or her qualification certification or last annual certification; and~~

~~(B) He or she has completed the continuing education required for the preceding calendar year.~~

~~(5) Annual certifications required under this subdivision showing changes in State Bar disciplinary history, professional liability insurance coverage, or adequacy of self-insurance must include descriptions of the changes.~~

~~(6) Certifications required under this subdivision must be submitted to the court but are not to be filed or lodged in a case file.~~

~~(i) Reporting~~

~~The Judicial Council may require courts to report appointed counsel's qualifications and completion of continuing education required by this rule to ensure compliance with Probate Code section 1456.~~

Rule 7.1101. Scope, definitions, and general qualifications

(a) Scope

The rules in this chapter establish minimum qualifications, annual education requirements, and certification requirements that an attorney must meet as conditions of court appointment as counsel under Probate Code section 1470 or 1471 in a proceeding under division 4 of that code.

(1) The rules in this chapter apply to an appointed attorney regardless of whether the attorney is a sole practitioner or works for a private law firm, a legal services organization, or a public defender's office.

(2) The rules in this chapter do not apply to:

(A) Retained counsel; or

(B) Counsel in any proceeding—including a proceeding under the Lanterman-Petris-Short Act (Welf. & Inst. Code, §§ 5000–5556)—in which appointment is not governed by Probate Code section 1470 or 1471.

(b) Definitions

For purposes of this chapter, the following terms are used as defined below:

(1) "Appointed counsel" or "appointed attorney" means an attorney appointed by the court under Probate Code section 1470 or 1471 who assumes direct personal responsibility for representing a ward or proposed ward, a conservatee or proposed conservatee, or a person alleged to lack legal capacity in a proceeding under division 4 of the Probate Code.

(2) "Probate guardianship" means any proceeding related to a general or temporary guardianship under division 4 of the Probate Code.

(3) "Probate conservatorship" means any proceeding related to a conservatorship or limited conservatorship, general or temporary, under division 4 of the Probate Code.

(4) "LPS Act" refers to the Lanterman-Petris-Short Act (Welf. & Inst. Code, §§ 5000–5556), which provides for involuntary mental health treatment and conservatorship for persons who are gravely disabled as the result of a mental health disorder.

(5) A "contested matter" is a matter that requires a noticed hearing and in which an objection is filed in writing or made orally in open court by any person entitled to appear at the hearing and support or oppose the petition.

(6) "Trial" means the determination of one or more disputed issues of fact by means of an evidentiary hearing.

(c) General qualifications

To qualify for any appointment under Probate Code section 1470 or 1471, an attorney must:

(1) Be an active member in good standing of the State Bar of California or a registered legal aid attorney qualified to practice law in California under rule 9.45;

(2) Have had no professional discipline imposed in the 12 months immediately preceding the date of submitting any initial or annual certification of compliance; and

(3) Have demonstrated to the court that the attorney or the attorney's firm or employer:

(A) Is covered by professional liability insurance with coverage limits no less than $100,000 per claim and $300,000 per year; or

(B) Is covered for professional liability at an equivalent level through a self-insurance program;

(4) Have met the applicable qualifications and annual education requirements in this chapter and have a current certification on file with the appointing court; and

(5) Have satisfied any additional requirements established by local rule.

(d) Local rules

The rules in this chapter establish minimum qualifications and requirements. Nothing in this chapter prohibits a court from establishing, by local rule adopted under rule 10.613, additional or more rigorous qualifications or requirements.

(e) Retroactivity

The amendments to this chapter adopted effective January 1, 2020, are not retroactive. They do not require an attorney who submitted an initial certification of qualifications under this chapter as it read on or before December 31, 2019, to submit a new initial certification.

Rule 7.1102. Qualifications and annual education required for counsel appointed to represent a ward or proposed ward (§§ 1456, 1470(a))

Except as provided in rule 7.1104(b), an attorney appointed for a ward or proposed ward must have met the qualifications in either (a) or (b) and, in every calendar year after first availability for appointment, must meet the annual education requirements in (c).

(a) Experience-based qualifications

An attorney is qualified for appointment if the attorney has met the experience requirements described in either (1) or (2).

(1) Within the five years immediately before first availability for appointment, the attorney has personally represented a petitioner, an objector, a respondent, a minor child, or a nonminor dependent in at least three of any combination of the following proceedings, at least one of which must have been a contested matter or trial:

(A) A probate guardianship proceeding;

(B) A juvenile court child welfare proceeding; or

(C) A family law child custody proceeding.

(2) At the time of first availability for appointment, the attorney meets the experience requirements:

(A) In rule 5.660(d) and any applicable local rules for appointment to represent a minor child or nonminor dependent in a juvenile court child welfare proceeding; or

(B) In rule 5.242(f) for appointment to represent a minor child in a family law child custody proceeding.

(b) Alternative qualifications

An attorney who does not yet meet the experience-based qualifications in (a) may, until the attorney has gained the necessary experience, qualify for appointment if the attorney meets the requirements in (1) or (2).

(1) At the time of appointment, the attorney works for an attorney, a private law firm, or a legal services organization approved by the court for appointment under Probate Code section 1470 to represent wards or proposed wards, and the attorney is supervised by or working in close professional consultation with a qualified attorney who has satisfied the experience requirements in (a); or

(2) In the 12 months immediately before first availability for appointment, the attorney has completed at least three hours of professional education approved by the State Bar of California for Minimum Continuing Legal Education (MCLE) credit in the subjects listed in (d) and, at the time of appointment, the attorney is working in close professional consultation with a qualified attorney who has satisfied the experience requirements in (a).

(c) Annual education

Each calendar year after first availability for appointment, an attorney appointed by the court to represent a ward or proposed ward must complete at least three hours of professional education approved by the State Bar for MCLE credit in the subjects listed in (d).

(d) Subject matter and delivery of education

Education in the following subjects—delivered in person or by any State Bar-approved method of distance learning—may be used to satisfy this rule's education requirements:

(1) State and federal statutes—including the federal Indian Child Welfare Act of 1978 (25 U.S.C. §§ 1901–1963)—rules of court, and case law governing probate guardianship proceedings and the legal rights of parents and children;

(2) Child development, including techniques for communicating with a child client; and

(3) Risk factors for child abuse and neglect and family violence.

Rule 7.1103. Qualifications and annual education required for counsel appointed to represent a conservatee, proposed conservatee, or person alleged to lack legal capacity (§§ 1456, 1470(a), 1471)

Except as provided in rule 7.1104(b), an attorney appointed to represent the interests of a conservatee, proposed conservatee, or person alleged to lack legal capacity must have met the qualifications in (a) or (b) and, in every calendar year after first availability for appointment, must meet the annual education requirements in (c).

(a) Experience-based qualifications

An attorney is qualified for appointment if, within the five years immediately preceding first availability for appointment, the attorney has personally represented a petitioner, an objector, a conservatee or proposed conservatee, or a person alleged to lack legal capacity or be gravely disabled in at least three separate proceedings under either division 4 of the Probate Code or the LPS Act, including at least one contested matter or trial.

(b) Alternative qualifications

An attorney who does not yet meet the experience-based qualifications in (a) may, until the attorney has gained the necessary experience, qualify for appointment if the attorney meets the requirements in (1) or (2).

(1) At the time of appointment, the attorney works for an attorney, a private law firm, a public defender's office, or a legal services organization (including the organization designated by the Governor as the state protection and advocacy agency, as defined in section 4900(i) of the Welfare and Institutions Code) approved by the court for appointment to represent conservatees, proposed conservatees, and persons alleged to lack legal capacity, and the attorney is supervised by or working in close professional consultation with a qualified attorney who has satisfied the experience requirements in (a); or

(2) In the 12 months immediately before first availability for appointment, the attorney has completed at least three hours of professional education approved by the State Bar of California for Minimum Continuing Legal Education (MCLE) credit in the subjects listed in (d), and, at the time of appointment, the attorney is working in close professional consultation with a qualified attorney who has satisfied the experience requirements in (a).

(c) Annual education

Each calendar year after first availability for appointment, an attorney appointed by the court to represent a conservatee, proposed conservatee, or person alleged to lack legal capacity must complete at least three hours of professional education approved by the State Bar for MCLE credit in the subjects listed in (d).

(d) Subject matter and delivery of education

Education in the following subjects—delivered in person or by any State Bar-approved method of distance learning—may be used to satisfy this rule's education requirements:

(1) State and federal statutes—including the federal Americans with Disabilities Act (42 U.S.C. §§ 12101–12213)—rules of court, and case law governing probate conservatorship proceedings, capacity determinations, and the legal rights of conservatees, persons alleged to lack legal capacity, and persons with disabilities;

(2) The attorney-client relationship and lawyer's ethical duties to a client under the California Rules of Professional Conduct and other applicable law; and

(3) Special considerations for representing an older adult or a person with a disability, including:

(A) Communicating with an older client or a client with a disability;

(B) Vulnerability of older adults and persons with disabilities to undue influence, physical and financial abuse, and neglect;

(C) Effects of aging, major neurocognitive disorders (including dementia), and intellectual and developmental disabilities on a person's ability to perform the activities of daily living; and

(D) Less-restrictive alternatives to conservatorship, including supported decisionmaking.

Rule 7.1104. Local administration

(a) Procedures

(1) A local court may create and maintain lists or panels of certified attorneys or approve the public defender's office and one or more legal services organizations to provide qualified attorneys for appointment under Probate Code sections 1470 and 1471 to represent specific categories of persons in proceedings under division 4 of that code.

(2) A court may establish, by local rule adopted under rule 10.613, procedural requirements, including submission of an application, as conditions for approval for appointment or placement on a list or panel.

(b) Exception to qualifications

A court may appoint an attorney who is not qualified under rule 7.1102 or 7.1103 on an express finding, on the record or in writing, of circumstances that make such an appointment necessary. These circumstances may include, but are not limited to, when:

(1) No qualified attorney is available for appointment; or

(2) The needs or interests of the person to be represented cannot be served without the appointment of an attorney who has other specific knowledge, skills, or experience.

Rule 7.1105. Certification of attorney qualifications

(a) Initial certification

Before first availability for appointment under Probate Code section 1470 or 1471, an attorney must certify to the court that the attorney:

(1) Meets the licensing, disciplinary status, and insurance requirements in rule 7.1101(c)(1)–(3); and

(2) Meets the qualifications in rule 7.1102 for appointment to represent wards or the qualifications in rule 7.1103 for appointment to represent conservatees, or both, depending on the appointments the attorney wishes to be available for.

(b) Annual certification

To remain eligible for appointment under Probate Code section 1470 or 1471, an attorney who has submitted an initial certification must certify to the court, no later than March 31 of each following year, that:

(1) The attorney meets the licensing, disciplinary status, and insurance requirements in rule 7.1101(c)(1)–(3); and

(2) The attorney has completed the applicable annual education—in rule 7.1102, 7.1103, or both—required for the previous calendar year.

(c) Notification of disciplinary action

An appointed attorney must notify the court in writing within five court days of any disciplinary action taken against the attorney by the State Bar of California. The notification must describe the charges, disposition, and terms of any reproof, probation, or suspension.

(d) Documentation

A court to which an attorney has submitted a certification under this rule may require the attorney to submit documentation or other information in support of any statement in the certification.

(e) Confidentiality

The certifications required by this rule and any supporting documentation or information submitted to the court must be maintained confidentially by the court. They must not be filed or lodged in a case file.

	Commenter	Position	Comment	Committee Response
1.	California Judges Association Probate Committee by Erinn Ryberg, Legislative Director	N	The Committee members are very concerned about changing the current qualification rules in a way that make it more difficult to attract attorneys to serve on the panel of Court Appointed Attorneys (CAAs). The committee members noted that CAAs generally are compensated by their respective counties at a fraction of their usual hourly rate. In some counties, they have to make long drives to meet with their clients. They are obliged to take mandatory training, which can be expensive. Even under the existing requirements, it is a continuing struggle to have sufficient numbers of attorneys on the panels.	The committee appreciates CJA's comments. The committee appears to agree with CJA on the significant policy issues raised in the comments. The committee does not intend to make it more difficult overall to qualify for appointment under sections 1470 and 1471. The committee's goal in the proposed rules is to tailor the requirements better to comply with the mandates in section 1456 to establish qualifications and annual education related to conservatorships and guardianships, to modify the rule to focus on the qualifications and education most needed by attorneys appointed under sections 1470 and 1471, and to present the requirements more clearly than in the existing rule.
			The Committee was also concerned about attracting and retaining foreign-language attorneys to serve as CAAs.	The committee supports efforts to attract attorneys who speak languages other than English to increase access to the courts for persons with limited English proficiency. Though addressing this issue is largely beyond the scope of this proposal, the committee has modified its recommendation to authorize a court to appoint an attorney who is not certified or on its list or panel if necessary to serve the client's special needs and interests, which may include language access.
			The Committee agrees that training of CAAs is desirable, but the proposal does not improve on the present situation, in which training is conducted by the counties ad hoc. Some counties have bar groups individually lack the resources to put on an annual training program	The committee believes that, under section 1456(a)(3), training is not only desirable, but required. The committee shares CJA's concern that ad hoc training on a county-by-county basis is insufficient to ensure a consistently high level of representation across the state. To address this that present the training as a service to the court. The courts individually lack the resources to put on an annual training program. Generally, the Committee is in favor of doing whatever it can do to make taking on these cases more attractive to the many qualified lawyers who might be willing to take on these cases, especially given the low level of compensation.	issue, the committee has proposed amendments to clarify that attorneys may apply education delivered by any State Bar–approved distance learning method to satisfy the chapter's education requirements. To increase the statewide availability of education that allows attorneys to meet the chapter's requirements, the committee is working with Judicial Council staff to develop applicable recorded webinars and other online courses that will be available, at no cost, in time to allow their completion before January 1, 2021.

2.	Joint Rules Subcommittee of the Trial Court Presiding Judges Advisory Committee and the Court Executives Advisory Committee	A	The JRS notes that some courts have struggled with the adequacy of representation for limited conservatees, particularly when private counsel in appointed. The amount of training/experience of some appointed counsel has been insufficient, thereby impacting the limited conservatees. Several opinions have been published in the various legal newspapers that are critical of how conservatorships are handled throughout the state. The Probate and Mental Health Advisory Committee (PMHAC) spent extensive time examining the current rules to develop the proposed changes contained herein that would address the necessary training/experience for appointed counsel.	The committee appreciates the JRS's comments. The committee intends the amendments to these rules to improve the quality of representation by attorneys appointed under sections 1470 and 1471. Although the recommendation increases the amount of annual education required somewhat, it is intended more to ensure that appointed attorneys have experience and education relevant to the knowledge and skills attorneys they need to provide effective representation for minors, conservatees, and persons alleged to lack legal capacity.
3.	William Lenehan Deputy Public Defender Office of the Ventura County Public Defender	AM	First I want to commend the committee on its efforts to fix the requirements and the forms. [I]t is very difficult to find educational opportunities (CLE) that are probate conservatorship, LPS conservatorship and/or guardianship specific. Therefore, narrowing the qualifying educational and/or practice requirements may be overly burdensome.	The committee appreciates Mr. Lenehan's comments. To increase the statewide availability of education that allow attorneys to meet the chapter's requirements, the committee is working with Judicial Council staff to develop applicable recorded webinars and other online courses that will be available, at no cost, in time to allow their completion before January 1, 2021.

Positions: A = Agree; AM = Agree if modified; N = Do not agree; NI = Not indicated

	Commenter	Position	Comment	Committee Response
			Further, I think the committee should take into account the uniqueness that the public defenders offices present. Specifically: 1) that they perform much of this type of work in our state; 2) that they rotate their attorneys; and 3) that they typically have numerous attorneys to supervise and answer questions of less experienced attorneys. As such, I would suggest treating them differently. Specifically, that the education and practice requirements be waived (or reduced) as long as the attorney is on a team with or being supervised by a fully qualifying attorney.	The committee recognizes and appreciates the conservatorship defense work performed by public defenders across California. Rule 7.1103(b)(1) and its counterpart for guardianships, rule 7.1102(b)(1), seek to account for frequent rotation of attorneys by allowing an attorney to qualify for appointment if the attorney works for a public defender's office or a legal services organization approved by the court and is supervised by or works in close consultation with an attorney who has met the experience-based qualifications.
4.	Orange County Bar Association by Deirdre Kelly, President Newport Beach	A	OCBA is concerned that the proposed qualifications and education requirements will discourage individuals from serving as court appointed counsel, especially given the low hourly rates paid. The Courts need these individuals to serve and there are serious concerns the pool of counsel available for appointment will diminish significantly if these qualifications and education requirements are implemented. 1. Does the proposal appropriately address the stated purpose? Yes 2. Should proposed rules 7.1102(b)(1)(B) and 7.1103(b)(1)(B) specify minimum amounts of professional liability insurance coverage? Yes 3. Should proposed rules 7.1102(b)(1)(A) and 7.1103(b)(1)(A) be expanded to authorize appointment of legal-services attorneys registered under rule 9.45? Yes	The committee recognizes the bar association's concern, and does not intend to discourage individual attorneys from making themselves available for appointment under Probate Code sections 1470 and 1471. The recommended qualifications and annual education requirements reflect the committee's determination of the minimum needed to ensure adequate representation by appointed counsel. No response required. The committee agrees with the comment and has amended the rules to specify minimum coverage limits. The committee agrees and has amended rule 7.1101(c) to authorize appointment of a registered legal-aid attorney qualified to practice law in California under rule 9.45 who meets the other requirements in the rules.

5.	Probate Attorneys of San Diego (PASD) by Hilary Vrem, President	AM	It is our opinion that should the proposed rules be enacted as currently written, San Diego will face the challenge of attracting new CAAs but may lose current CAAs who will no longer qualify to serve. Rule 7.1101(a) and Rule 7.1101(b)(1) reference to division 4 of the Probate Code. This definition applies to all judicial proceedings conducted in California, whether adjudicated under California law or some other jurisdiction's laws.	The committee does not intend the amended rules to discourage individual attorneys from making themselves available for appointment under Probate Code sections 1470 and 1471 and has modified its recommendation to mitigate the burden on attorneys while maintaining requirements sufficient to promote effective representation by appointed counsel. The committee does not recommend the suggested change. The rules in this proposal respond to the mandate in Probate Code section 1456(a), which directs the Judicial Council to adopt rules that specify the qualifications and annual education requirements for attorneys appointed under sections 1470 and 1471 of that code. Sections 1470 and 1471, in turn, authorize or mandate appointment of counsel only in proceedings under division 4 of the code. Appointments authorized by other statutory provisions or in proceedings outside division 4 are beyond the scope of this proposal. The committee has removed the term "counsel of record" and its definition from the proposed rules. No further response is necessary.

			Suggested Language: "Trial" means the determination of one or more disputed issues of fact or law by means of an evidentiary hearing.	"trial," as used in these rules, to encompass resolution of issues of law.
			Rule 7.1102(b)(2) states that an attorney's failure to meet the requirements in the new rule 7.1105 is good cause to terminate the attorney's existing appointments and remove the attorney from the panel.	The committee has modified its recommendation to remove the language stating that an attorney's failure to meet the requirements in the rules is good cause to terminate the attorney's appointment and remove the attorney from the panel. The committee nevertheless believes that statement to be accurate as a matter of law.
			PASD believes there should be a grandfather clause to allow attorneys already on the panel prior to the effective date of this new rule to remain on the approved attorney panel. There are currently-qualified attorneys on the panel who may not have the requisite education or experience to re-qualify now. For example, many experienced attorneys may no longer handle trials and they wouldn't be eligible to re-qualify to be on the panel under these new rules. The Court can ill afford to lose the expertise of these attorneys who are already assisting the Court on a regular basis.	The committee has modified its recommendation to add rule 7.1101(e), which makes clear that the amended rules are not retroactive, and that an attorney who has submitted an initial certification of qualifications under the existing rule need not submit a new initial certification under the amended rules to maintain eligibility for appointment. Those attorneys will continue to be eligible for appointment if they continue to meet licensing, disciplinary status, and insurance requirements, complete the annual education requirements, and submit the annual certification under rule 7.1105(b).
			In particular, this rule would adversely affect probate courts with more than four authorized probate judges, as those courts cannot use Rule 7.1104 to make an exception to keep these experienced attorneys on the panel.	Although no exception is needed to keep experienced attorneys on the panel, the committee has modified its recommendation to authorize a court of any size to appoint an attorney who has not met the qualifications in rule 7.1102 or 7.1103 on an express finding of necessity.
			Rule 7.1102(c)(1) states: Within the five years immediately before first accepting appointment after January 1, 2021, the attorney must have represented a petitioner or an objector at the beginning of at least three	The committee agrees and has modified its recommendation to delete the suggested language.

This requirement is virtually impossible to meet as the Court only appoints panel attorneys to represent minors, and an attorney can't get on the panel unless the attorney has previously been on the panel and appointed by the Court. Suggested Language: Delete Rule 7.1102 (c)(2).	The committee does not recommend deleting this qualification. Allowing an attorney to qualify to for appointment to represent minors in guardianship proceedings only by representing minors on appointment in guardianship proceedings would indeed appear calculated to reduce the size of the pool of eligible attorneys. Yet that is not what the rule requires. An attorney may also meet the child representation experience requirement by representing minors in child welfare or child custody proceedings. And, as the commenter recognizes above, an attorney may also qualify for appointment by representing petitioners or objectors. Finally, an attorney may qualify for appointment simply by virtue of having sufficient experience to qualify under the rules for appointment in child welfare or child custody proceedings.

			Rule 7.1102(d) By requiring attorneys to meet both (d)(1) and (d)(2) to qualify to be a CAA, Rule 7.1102(d)(1) unnecessarily discriminates against solo practitioners who don't "work for an attorney or for a law firm". This Rule would make more sense if the attorney was only required to meet either (d)(1) or (d)(2).	The committee has modified its recommendation to combine these two alternative qualifications into a single qualification that applies to an attorney who works for a firm or legal services organization. It has also added a separate alternative qualification to allow a sole practitioner or an attorney working for a small firm to qualify for appointment by completing applicable education and working in close consultation with an attorney who has met the experience-based qualifications.
			Furthermore, "supervision" of an attorney raises serious issues as to (a) the supervising attorney's liability for the acts of the supervised attorney;	The committee understands this comment to implicate the requirements of rule 5.1 of the Rules of Professional Conduct, which places a duty on an attorney with direct supervisorial authority over another attorney to take reasonable remedial action to avoid or mitigate the consequences of the other attorney's know ethical violations. In response to this concern, the committee has revised the rule to require either close professional consultation or supervision of the inexperienced attorney. This change is intended to clarify that the rule does not require the experienced attorney to have any supervisory authority over the inexperienced attorney. For more detail, please see the response to TEXCOM's comment below, at pages 46–47.
			(b) issues regarding the attorney-client privilege and the supervised attorney's duty of client confidentiality; and	Regarding the attorney-client privilege, the committee believes that Evidence Code section 912(d) adequately addresses the professional consultation contemplated by the proposed rules by authorizing confidential disclosure of client communications when "reasonably necessary for the accomplishment of the purpose for which the lawyer … was consulted" without that disclosure waiving the privilege.

			Rule 7.1103(a) refers to division 4 of the Probate Code. Sections 1470 and 1471, in turn, authorize or mandate appointment of counsel only in proceedings under division 4 of the code. Appointments authorized by other statutory provisions or in proceedings outside division 4 are beyond the scope of this proposal.
			Rule 7.1103(c) should include limited conservatorships and Rule 7.1103(d) should be deleted so there isn't a difference in qualification requirements between a general or a limited conservatorship.	The committee agrees with this suggestion and has modified its recommendation accordingly.
			There is the greatest need for attorneys to assist with Limited Conservatorships but it is not likely that an attorney would represent a proposed conservatee, unless the attorney was appointed by the Court.	The committee has amended the definition of "probate conservatorship" in rule 7.1101(b)(3) to expressly include a general or temporary limited conservatorship within its scope.

PASD suggests that only (A) or (B) should be required. Suggested Language: Within the five years immediately before . . .the attorney must have completed either (A) ~~and~~ or (B) as follows:	The committee does not recommend the suggested change. However, it has revised rule 7.1103(b) to provide two separate alternative methods of qualifying for appointment. One requires that the attorney work for an attorney, law firm, public defender's office, or legal services organization. The other requires that the attorney have completed three hours of applicable professional education. Both of these methods require working in close consultation with an attorney who has met the experience-based qualifications.
			Rule 7.1103(c)(2)(A) The experience requirements for guardianship and conservatorship appointments should be consistent. There should be no difference between general and limited conservatorships. Suggested Language: Represented a petitioner, ~~or~~ an objector to the petition, conservatee, proposed conservatee, limited conservatee, proposed limited conservatee, or person alleged to lack legal capacity in ~~at the beginning of~~ at least three ~~two~~ probate conservatorship proceedings, including at least one contested matter or trial~~, from initial contact with the client through the conclusion of the hearing on the petition.~~	The committee agrees generally with the suggestion and has incorporated limited conservatorships into the definition of "probate conservatorship" in rule 7.1101(b) so that all references to the latter term include the former. The committee notes, however, that representation of proposed limited conservatees with alleged developmental disabilities requires knowledge of a different, overlapping legal framework and is also likely to raise distinct issues of fact, including which less-restrictive alternatives need to be considered. The committee intends the required annual education to address the crucial differences between general and limited conservatorships.
			Rule 7.1103(c)(2)(B) The Rule should be revised to refer to only LPS conservatorships and should be consistent with conservatorship requirements.	The committee does not recommend limiting this category to experience representing a person in a proceeding under the LPS Act. The committee has

But neither the rule that was circulated for comment nor the proposed rule is so limited. First, both the statutes and the rules contemplate that an attorney could acquire qualifying experience when retained to represent a proposed conservatee. Second, the proposed rule authorizes an attorney to qualify with experience representing petitioners and objectors as well as conservatees or proposed conservatees. Third, the rule authorizes an attorney to qualify using alternatives to experience. The committee does not, therefore, recommend the suggested change.
			Rule 7.1103(d) By requiring attorneys to meet both (d)(1) and (d)(2) to qualify to be a CAA, Rule 7.1103(d)(1) unnecessarily discriminates against solo practitioners who don't "work for an attorney or for a law firm". This Rule would make more sense if the attorney was only required to meet either (d)(1) or (d)(2).	The committee agrees that the rule should provide an avenue for sole practitioners to be appointed under sections 1470 and 1471. The committee has addressed this issue by adding a provision to subdivision (b) to allow sole practitioners to qualify for appointment by completing three hours of applicable professional education and working in consultation with an attorney who meets the experience requirements in the rule.

The language in the rule tracks the general language in sections 1456, 1470, and 1471, which applies to limited conservatees. In addition, rule 7.1101(b)(3) defines a probate conservatorship to include a limited conservatorship.
			Rule 7.1104(a) This Rule discriminates against large courts (courts with more than four authorized probate judges) by only allowing small courts to waive the appointment requirements. The committee has not been able to draw a reasonable line between courts of different sizes for the purposes of these rules. The current rule, authorizing an exemption for courts with four or fewer authorized judges, is not correlated to the number of guardianship or conservatorship filings in those courts and is therefore somewhat arbitrary. Reported data for filings appear to vary in completeness from court to court, so an exemption based on the number of annual filings would also be arbitrary. Furthermore, circumstances can arise in any court in which it may be necessary to appoint an attorney who is not certified under these rules but

The committee has therefore modified its recommendation to authorize a court to appoint a an attorney who has not met the qualifications and annual education requirements in rule 7.1102 or 7.1103 on an express finding of necessity, which may include the lack of available qualified counsel or the need for special skills to serve a client's interests.
			Rule 7.1104(b) This Rule is too onerous on the Probate Courts and requires a court to make express written findings when exercising a Rule 7.1104(a) waiver. It may also improperly invade a court's thought process or require the disclosure of confidential information.	The committee does not recommend the suggested change. The probate courts have been required to make express written findings since 2008, when rule 7.1101 took effect. Nevertheless, to reduce the burden on the court without diminishing the importance of the findings, the committee has replaced the requirement of written findings with a requirement to make express findings either in writing or orally on the record.
			Rule 7.1105(a) This Rule is internally inconsistent and ambiguous as written. An attorney appointed using a rule 7.1104 waiver may not be able to certify that he or she meets all the requirements in rules 7.1102(b)–(c) or 7.1103(b)–(c). Paragraph 6 of the form GC-010 adequately provides appropriate language for attorney certification, including an attorney appointed under a 7.1104 waiver. Suggested Language: Unless appointed under rule 7.1104, before accepting an appointment under Probate Code section 1470 or 1471 after January 1, 2021, an attorney must certify on form GC-010 that the attorney meets the requirements to be appointed by the court. ~~in rule 7.1102(b) or 7.1103(b) and, unless appointed under rule 7.1104, all applicable~~	The committee agrees that the rule was misleading and has modified its recommendation to require all attorneys who wish to be available for appointment to certify each year that they meet the licensing, disciplinary history, and professional liability coverage requirements in rule 7.1101(c)(1)–(3). 6.	Spectrum Institute by Thomas F. Coleman Palm Springs	A	Attorneys appointed to represent seniors and people with disabilities in probate conservatorship proceedings have special challenges because their clients have special needs. In some places in California, such as Sacramento, the superior court does not even appoint an attorney to represent a significant number of conservatees or proposed conservatees. Some of these litigants must represent themselves. Obviously, improved training of attorneys will not help these involuntary litigants because they do not have an attorney. In other places, like Los Angeles, the court appoints private counsel. The court operates a PVP legal services program. It farms out the training to the local bar association. We have monitored these trainings and have found them sorely lacking. Hopefully, when these new rules go into effect, the training program will improve. But there is no guarantee unless the State Bar requires pre-clearance of the content before it approves MCLE credits for these trainings. The local bar cannot be counted on to conduct good trainings without monitoring from the State Bar or some other outside entity. In places where the public defender is appointed, such as Alameda County, the PD's office does not have a training program or performance standards. So this is another problem that needs to be addressed.	The committee appreciates Spectrum Institute's comments. The specific issues raised by the comments are beyond the scope of this proposal. No further response is required.

			To our knowledge, no court-appointed attorney program in California has performance standards or monitoring of the quality of services. This is yet another problem that needs to be dealt with. Having said all of this, it is time to move forward with these proposals. They are an improvement over what exists now. The time for study has ended. It is time to implement the new rules and take this to the next level. Courts and court-appointed attorneys—whether public defenders or private counsel—have obligations under the Americans with Disabilities Act to ensure that seniors and people with disabilities have effective communication and meaningful participation in probate conservatorship proceedings. This should not be left to chance. Adopting these new mandatory educational requirements is a step forward, but still falls short of ensuring compliance with the ADA. Hopefully, the Judicial Council will adopt [these rules] soon. Then the real work begins for the bench and bar to make sure the spirit of these proposals gets translated into effective legal services for clients in conservatorship proceedings.
7.	Superior Court of Riverside County by Susan Ryan, Chief Deputy of Legal Services	AM	We believe the requirements for representing conservatees are too onerous and should be revised in a way similar to what has been provided for counsel for wards. For wards, counsel can qualify by experience in three cases representing either the minor child or "a petitioner or an objector." One of the cases must be a contested matter or trial.	The committee agrees generally with the comment and has modified its recommendation to allow counsel to qualify for appointment to represent the interests of conservatees et al. by representing three petitioners, objectors, or persons alleged to be gravely disabled as well as conservatees, proposed conservatees, or persons alleged to lack legal capacity.

			For conservatorship, counsel can qualify by either (1) three cases representing conservatees with at least one contested matter or trial, or (2) a combination of two cases representing conservatees and two cases representing petitioners / objectors with at least one of each being a contested matter or trial. It is our recommendation that we mirror the requirements for wards in the requirements for conservatees. For either wards or conservatees, it is nearly impossible to represent them without being court-appointed. Thus, requiring someone to have previously represented conservatees in order to be qualified to represent conservatees does not provide a path for new attorneys to become qualified. There is a new "alternative experience requirement" for both wards or conservatees that allows someone who works for "an attorney, a private law firm, a qualifying legal services provider, or a government agency" that does meet the experience requirements and is supervised by an attorney who qualifies to qualify. This is helpful. But, we do not believe that working for someone who qualifies should be the only means of becoming qualified to represent conservatees. There should be a path to qualify by representing petitioners or objectors alone, like there is for wards. This would allow solo practitioners a reasonable path to qualify. We believe that experience representing petitioners or objectors is at least as valuable, if not more valuable, than working under the supervision an attorney who qualifies under the rule.

			Q: How well would this proposal work in courts of different sizes? It may be difficult for attorneys to meet these qualifications in smaller counties.	The committee intends the alternative qualifications in rules 7.1102(b) and 7.1103(b), the exceptions authorized under rule 7.1104(b), and its efforts with Judicial Council staff to provide applicable education via distance learning to address the difficulties faced by attorneys, including those practicing in smaller counties, to meet the experience-based qualifications and annual education requirements.
			GC-010: The current version of the form has the following statement at 3.e. and #4.d., "I will, if requested, provide the case names and numbers, courts and parties I represent in the court proceedings identified above and, if item 3c(2)(E) is checked, redacted copies of the estate planning documents prepared." This should be included in the revised version of the form. Items #3.a, 4.a, and 5.a: for the second checkbox listed in each section, there should be a line provided for the applicant to list the name of the attorney, law firm, qualifying legal services provider, or government agency who has been approved by the Presiding or Supervising Judge.	The committee does not recommend the suggested changes. The committee instead proposes streamlining form GC-010 and revoking form GC-011 to simplify the certification process and make it compatible with variations in local processes. Rule 7.1105(d) authorizes a court to require the attorney to submit documentation in support of any statement made on the certification. Rule 7.1101(c)(5) & (d) and rule 7.1104(a) authorize a court to impose additional requirements, including substantive qualifications and procedural requirements, as conditions for appointment or placement on a list or panel. Item 7 on form GC-010 is intended to provide space for a certifying attorney to supply any additional information required by the form or local rule.

			representation with the need to encourage less experienced attorneys to enter the field." We recognize that striking the proper balance requires the consideration of numerous factors. Notwithstanding the changes made in the revised proposal, TEXCOM remains concerned that the proposed rules will discourage attorneys from applying for court appointed panels, significantly reducing the number of attorneys available to serve in this important role. We note that PMHAC has revised the proposed rules to reduce the annual education requirement to three hours by dividing the experience requirement into two separate rules, those for wards and proposed wards, and those for conservatees and proposed conservatees. While acknowledging the marked reduction in educational requirements, TEXCOM is concerned that by giving "attorneys the opportunity to focus on one type of representation without increasing the educational burden," it will still be overly restrictive since it may prevent a broader pool of attorneys that qualify for both, thus creating a larger number of attorneys that qualify to represent conservatees and proposed conservatees than wards and proposed wards, or vice versa. Perhaps the annual education requirement should be three hours where an attorney only applies for one category but four hours in the instances where an attorney wishes to qualify for both, two hours in each category.	The committee does not recommend reducing the annual education requirements any further. The specific knowledge required to represent a minor child in a guardianship proceeding is sufficiently distinct from the knowledge required to represent an adult client in a conservatorship proceeding to justify separate education requirements covering distinct subject matter. Three hours seem to be the minimum time required to cover each set of subjects in sufficient depth. The committee does not view six hours of education per year to be excessively burdensome for attorneys who want to be eligible for appointment to represent wards and conservatees. The committee recognizes that education meeting the subject matter requirements may be difficult to find. The committee has reduced the number of required subjects while keeping them focused on guardianships or conservatorships as required by statute, and has authorized delivery of qualifying education through any distance learning method approved by the State Bar. Finally, to increase the statewide availability of education that allow attorneys to meet the chapter's requirements, the committee is working with Judicial Council staff to develop applicable recorded webinars and other online courses that will be available, at no cost, in time to allow completion before January 1, 2021.

			TEXCOM also acknowledges PMHAC's revisions found in rule 7.1102(d) and rule 7.1103(d) such that the supervising attorney is not required to work at the same firm or organization as the attorney being supervised. However, given California's recently enacted rules of professional conduct, specifically rule 5.1, TEXCOM is concerned that attorneys not in the same firm will be hesitant to supervise or act as a mentor to new or inexperienced attorneys. While an ethical violation by a supervising attorney under rule 5.1 calls for ratification or knowledge coupled with a failure to remediate, we anticipate that the risk alone will likely deter experienced attorneys from acting as supervisors to attorneys outside their firm or organization.	The committee agrees that the requirement as circulated could have been interpreted to require the experienced attorney to have "direct supervisory authority" over the inexperienced attorney and, therefore, a duty to remedy a known ethical violation. The committee does not intend to require the experienced attorney to assume that duty as a condition of the inexperienced attorney's qualification for appointment under rule 7.1102(b) or 7.1103(b). To clarify this intent, the committee has revised the rules to allow an inexperienced attorney to meet the alternative qualifications in part by working in close professional consultation with or under the supervision of an experienced attorney. The committee intends "working in close professional consultation" to describe a professional relationship in which the inexperienced attorney receives the benefit of the experienced attorney's knowledge and skills and applies them to provide effective representation. Consulting attorneys may wish to make clear from the outset the scope and limits of their relationship to avoid unanticipated ethical issues.
			Finally, the Request for Specific Comments in the Invitation to Comment asks: "Should the exemption for small courts be expanded to include courts with more than four authorized judgeships? If so, what would be the appropriate upper limit?" TEXCOM believes the issue of the experience requirement could be resolved by expanding the scope of the exemption for small courts. In fact, TEXCOM suggests that the rules expand the court's discretion such that any court, without limitation, can waive any of the requirements in rule 7.1102(c)–(g) or 7.1103(c)–(g) if it cannot find qualified counsel, there is other hardship, or good cause is found.	The committee agrees that the exception to the requirement to appoint only qualified attorneys should be expanded to apply to all courts. The committee has not been able to draw a reasonable line between courts of different sizes for the purposes of these rules. The current rule, authorizing an exemption for courts with four or fewer authorized judges, is not correlated to the number of guardianship or conservatorship filings in the court and is therefore somewhat arbitrary. Reported data for filings appear to vary in completeness from court to court, so an exemption based on the number of annual filings would also be arbitrary. Furthermore, circumstances can arise

			The rules could also provide courts with the discretion to adjust but not completely waive certain requirements. As one example only, this would allow a court to create an internal supervision or mentoring program with the public defender's office or a local law school. Vesting discretion with the court familiar with the needs of its population would serve to minimize the impact of any unduly restrictive or prohibitive experience requirement.	in any court in which it may be necessary to appoint an attorney who is not certified under these rules but who has other special qualifications to meet the needs or interests of a specific client. The committee has therefore modified its recommendation to authorize a court of any size to appoint a noncertified attorney on an express finding of necessity, which may include the lack of available qualified counsel or the need to serve a client's special needs or interests.

1.	California Advocates for Nursing Home Reform (CANHR) by Anthony Chicotel, Staff Attorney San Francisco	AM	The rule should promote zealous advocacy by court-appointed attorneys where it can. CANHR certainly understands the desire to ensure the competence of attorneys who a court-appointed to represent conservatees. However, if the goal of the Rule is to improve conservatorship defense, the Judicial Council would best be served by promoting zealous advocacy from the attorneys who represent conservatees. In CANHR's experience, attorneys who represent conservatees often serve their own notion of the conservatee's best interests, foregoing their client's wishes and fulfilling a role akin to a guardian ad litem's. While the committee unfortunately decided not to propose standards of representation for court-appointed counsel, zealous advocacy could still be a component of the education and experience requirements at the heart of the Rule. We believe this could be done in two ways: Add zealous advocacy to the subject matters listed in the Rule's subsection (g) that may be used to satisfy the MCLE requirements specified in subsection (f);	The committee appreciates CANHR's comment and agrees that clear specification of the role and duties of counsel retained or appointed to represent a (proposed) ward or conservatee is desirable. The committee does not, however, recommend that these rules serve that purpose, as it is beyond the scope of the proposal. Generally speaking, it is the province of the Legislature (see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code, § 6068) and the Supreme Court (see, e.g., Rules Prof. Conduct, rules 1.2–1.4 (eff. Nov. 1, 2018)) to specify the role and duties of an attorney and to authorize any exceptions. When the Judicial Council has entered this arena, it has done so at the express direction of the Legislature and, in doing so, has echoed the standard specified by the relevant statute. (See, e.g., Fam. Code, §§ 3150–3151; Cal. Rules of Court, rule 5.242(j) (duties of court-appointed minor's counsel).) Here, Probate Code section 1456 directs the council to specify the qualifications and the amount and subject matter of annual education related to guardianships and conservatorships required for appointed counsel, as well as reporting requirements to ensure compliance with the statute. Nothing in sections 1456, 1470, and 1471, however, specifies, or invites the council to specify, the role and duties of counsel. The committee believes that the role and duties of an attorney to a client are best covered in the general legal ethics training required of all attorneys. Nevertheless, the committee has modified its recommendation to add the attorney-client relationship and a lawyer's ethical duties to a client to the subjects included in rule 7.1103's annual education requirements.

			Add the representation of a conservatee in a conservatorship trial to the list of experience requirements in subsections (d) or (e). Representing a conservatee in a conservatorship trial is a good proxy for zealous advocacy and something that should be encouraged in state policy.	The committee agrees that experience representing a conservatee or proposed conservatee in at least one contested matter or trial is important and has clarified that requirement in rule 7.1103.
			Add other important subjects to the options for required education. In our experience, conservatees are often unnecessarily moved from their homes, drugged, and institutionalized. We would therefore like to see the subject matter listed in subsection (g) expanded to include 1) the long-term care continuum with an emphasis on less restrictive and community based options, and 2) non-pharmacological behavioral interventions.	The committee agrees that knowledge of less-restrictive options to conservatorship, including supported decisionmaking, is important and has added them to the subjects included in rule 7.1103's annual education requirements.
			Clarify that the education and experience requirements do not apply to retained counsel. The Rule applies to court-appointed counsel. Unfortunately, courts sometimes require attorneys who are retained by conservatees to complete Judicial Council form GC-010 in order to represent them. In such a case, the conservatee may be denied the right to choose	The committee agrees that the rules, as authorized by section 1456, apply only to counsel appointed by the court under section 1470 or 1471, and has modified its recommendation to clarify the scope of the rules.

			their own counsel. We therefore recommend that subsection (b) include an express statement that the qualification, education, and certification requirements do not apply to attorneys who are retained or chosen by a conservatee or proposed conservatee.
			Provide an experience exemption for attorneys with a demonstrated proficiency in conservatorship cases. Under the current and proposed rules, I would not qualify for court appointment to represent a proposed conservatee. I have represented approximately 25 conservatees, including two trials (though none in the last three years), authored the CANHR conservatorship defense guide, review and comment on proposed legislation regarding conservatorships (including sponsorship of SB 938 (Jackson, 2016)), and routinely handle calls from people all around the state with conservatorship questions.	The committee believes that the temporal proximity of an attorney's experience to the attorney's appointment is important, but it also recognizes that three years may be too short a time for an attorney to acquire the necessary experience. The committee has modified its recommended requirements to increase their flexibility by returning the time frame in which qualifying experience may be acquired to five years, tailoring the subject matter more narrowly to conservatorship proceedings, and requiring experience in only one contested proceeding or trial.
			The experience requirement looks as though it was written by probate attorneys for probate attorneys, creating a possible Catch-22. The only way one can get the experience "necessary" to represent conservatees is either to represent conservatees without the benefit of court appointment, represent conservators, or take other kinds of probate cases. Attorneys who are just interested in representing conservatees may find it impossible to do so.	The committee has revised the proposed alternative qualifications in rules 7.1102(b) and 7.1103(b) to authorize an attorney who has not personally met the experience requirements to accept appointments if supervised by or working in close consultation with an attorney who has met the experience requirements.

			We therefore recommend the rule include some process by which attorneys can petition the court for an exemption from the experience requirement if they can demonstrate proficiency in conservatorship defense attained through other work.	The committee does not recommend authorizing an exemption based on "demonstration of proficiency" without more specificity. Instead, the committee has amended rules 7.1102(b) and 7.1103(b) to specify alternative qualifications for appointment that do not depend on the appointed attorney's personal experience. An attorney who works for a court-approved organization and is supervised by or working in close consultation with an experienced attorney may qualify for appointment. In addition, an attorney who has completed three hours of applicable education in the same subjects required for annual education and is working in close consultation with an experienced attorney may also qualify for appointment.

In 1978, the Governor's office designated Disability Rights California as California's protection and advocacy agency pursuant to Section 4901.	The committee appreciates DRC's comment. 			Disability Rights California is the recipient of a special grant from the federal government to represent individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities. Disability Rights California is also the recipient of a contract from the California Department of Developmental Services to our Office of Client's Rights Advocacy to represent consumers served by the State's 21 regional centers. For these reasons, attorneys with Disability Rights California have special expertise in representing people with intellectual and developmental disabilities, and would be well-suited for court appointments in conservatorship proceedings. However, as a state-wide organization, DRC generally and the Office of Client's Rights Advocacy in particular may be unable to meet the direct supervision requirements in proposed Rule 7.1101(e)(2). 			(b) disability and sexuality, especially as those issues pertain to the topics of rights, abuse, and capacity. There is a growing interest, indeed a movement, in California and throughout the nation to require serious exploration of alternatives to guardianship and conservatorship in the pre-planning and judicial review process. Well educated court-appointed attorneys are an integral part of that process. They should receive training on that subject matter. The issue of sexuality of seniors and people with developmental disabilities is delicate and is often avoided altogether or handled in the most superficial manner in conservatorship proceedings. Therefore, it is important to have this topic specifically mentioned in training requirements. Assuming that the matter will be covered in other general categories runs contrary to human nature. The natural reaction of most people is to avoid the topic of disability and sexuality.	The committee does not recommend adding the suggested topic to the subjects included in rule 7.1103's annual education requirements. The committee anticipates that the education on the rights of conservatees and persons with disabilities under rule 7.1103(d) will address these issues.

			*Excerpts from Thomas F. Coleman, "Proposed Rule Aims to Improve Legal Advocacy in Conservatorship Proceedings," Daily Journal (Apr. 13, 2018): This rule change would not ensure access to justice for people with disabilities in conservatorship proceedings. But the proposal is a step in the right direction. One good aspect is that the revision to Rule 7.1101 of the California Rules of Court would apply to attorneys appointed in general and limited conservatorships. This could have a beneficial effect on seniors as well as adults with developmental disabilities. Thus, more people could potentially benefit. Another positive aspect is the training requirements included in the committee's proposal. Among the most important training requirements are subject matters that are crucial to effective advocacy and defense practices for people who have serious cognitive and communication disabilities. According to the committee's proposal, subjects that must be covered in mandatory continuing education courses include the rights of persons with disabilities under state and federal law, like the Americans with Disabilities Act. Training on strategies for communicating with a client who has cognitive disabilities,	No further response is required.

			ascertaining the client's wishes, and presenting those wishes to the court is also required. The recognition, evaluation, and understanding of abuse of people with disabilities is a must. Training is required on the effects of physical, intellectual, and developmental disabilities on a person's capacity to function and make decisions. How to identify and effectively collaborate with experts from other disciplines is also part of the mandatory training. So far so good. But some significant problems remain. * * * One major omission in subject matter is the failure to require training on less restrictive alternatives to conservatorship, including the identification of community resources that would make such alternatives feasible. There is a growing movement for supported decision-making as an alternative to guardianship and conservatorship in California and throughout the nation. It is essential to have attorneys who are trained on such alternatives and that they insist that court investigators, petitioners, and judges consider them. This subject matter should be added to the committee's proposal. 			do to ensure access to justice for seniors and people with disabilities in conservatorship proceedings. Attorneys could sit through such trainings but not implement the principles in actual practice. Without detailed requirements for training contents, without performance standards, without adequate funding for legal services, and without effective monitoring mechanisms, the training components in the committee's proposal are only theoretically beneficial to these vulnerable clients. The State Bar of California needs to put flesh on the bones of this educational framework. Specific content needs to be required by the State Bar before authorizing CLE credits for any training program. There should not be a blanket authorization to local bar associations allowing them to include whatever they want in such trainings. That is what has been happening now and some of the training programs are sorely lacking. There should be performance standards to which the trainings relate. Attorneys need to know in no uncertain terms exactly what is expected of them in each of the areas of training. These should not be seminars on "best practices" which can be ignored. It may take legislation to specify performance standards, or the county governments that pay the attorneys	proposal.

			can attach performance standards to the money flow. However it occurs, performance standards are a must. Speaking of funding for legal services, it must be adequate enough to enable court-appointed attorneys to perform the legal services they are told they should deliver to these clients. It would be unfair for a court to authorize 10 hours of services in a case when, in fact, it would take 20 hours to do all of the things mentioned in the training program or detailed in the performance standards. Most of these clients cannot complain to the court or to the State Bar about ineffective assistance of counsel, conflicts of interest, or violations of ethical standards such as confidentiality and loyalty. The nature of their disabilities precludes them from understanding such things, much less filing formal complaints about deficiencies in legal services. In order to make the complaint process accessible to clients with such disabilities, there should be random audits of a sample of attorneys in each county. As the funding source for the legal services—and as the public entity responsible for ensuring ADA-compliant legal services—the county could contract with the State Bar to conduct such audits. Indeed, there is much more work to do in order for seniors and people with disabilities to have meaningful access to effective advocacy and defense services in conservatorship proceedings. The committee's proposal is an honorable first step. The next step is for the Probate and Mental Health Advisory Committee to adopt the modifications suggested here. But most importantly, once these changes go into effect on Jan. 1, 2019, advocates for conservatorship reform need to work closely with the State Bar, the Legislature, and boards of supervisors in all of the counties to implement the additional reforms upon which true access to justice depends.

Other than the concerns set forth below, LASC supports the proposed changes. 			authorization of additional local requirements for higher qualification and education requirements to subdivisions (d) and (g) of the proposed rules, the provision allowing for the court to impose other requirements, including an application by private counsel, has been deleted from the proposed subdivisions. The Los Angeles Superior Court (LASC) panel of court-appointed private counsel attorneys is approximately 200 attorneys each year. For the orderly review of the appropriate documentation submitted, based on the current rule, LASC relied specifically on the ability to have an application for the panel to be submitted along with the required documentation. By deleting that portion of the rule as to an application, it is unclear as to whether the court can impose the requirement of a separate application along with the mandatory Judicial Council forms, GC-010, the Initial Certificate of Qualification for Appointment as Counsel of Record along with mandatory GC-011, the Annual Certificate of Court Appointed Counsel. In addition, as a part of the application, LASC has in its application, provisions relating to the issues of attorney compensation, attorney conflicts and discretionary appointments of counsel which terms are all agreed to by the applicant. Thus, the proposals in both subdivisions (d) and (g) should read:	preclude a court from adopting local rules imposing additional requirements on attorneys seeking appointment under section 1470 or 1471. The committee has revised rules 7.1101(d) and 7.1104(a) to clarify that a local court has the authority to adopt additional requirements, including an application requirement.

			Although the court understands the proposal relates to establishing minimum guidelines for qualifications for attorney experience and education for court-appointed counsel in guardianship and conservatorship proceedings under the Probate Code, as it relates to subdivision i, which is the initial and annual attorney certification, future rules would need to be adopted to ensure that not only has the attorney met both the requirements for education and attorney experience, but that rules also be written to address issues of failure to meet the requirements of annual certification or meeting a performance standard in the role as court-appointed counsel. 			certification as appointed counsel, but for various reasons the bench officers are not comfortable appointing that attorney to cases before this county's Probate courts. A subsection to this Rule should be added providing a process for removal of qualified counsel from the list, with specificity regarding any required notice, hearing, or other process required as part of the removal procedure. Finally, the label for court-appointed counsel is not consistent throughout GC-010 and GC-011 as proposed. Specifically, sometimes the term "Counsel of Record" is used, while in other places it is stated as "Court-Appointed Attorney." Even the title of the two forms are inconsistent in this regard. LASC hopes to move away from the longstanding local use of the term "PVP counsel" or "Probate Volunteer Panel counsel" and instead to embrace a label such as "court-appointed counsel." Consistency with the state Rule and the Judicial Council forms would be helpful in this regard, both for LASC and the Bar. There is also the issue of hyphenation. Subsection (a)(1) of the proposed Rule 7.1101 defines "court appointed counsel" while the proposed GC-011 form states "Court-Appointed Counsel" in its title. LASC proposes a uniform use of the term "court-appointed counsel" throughout the Rule and JC forms.	authority to establish procedures for removal from a panel. Nothing in the rules provides that satisfaction of their requirements is sufficient to entitle an attorney to be placed on a panel or appointed as counsel. The committee believes that any such process should be developed at the local level, perhaps in conjunction with the county bar association, to ensure that it reflects the needs of the local legal culture. The committee has revised its recommendation to remove the term "counsel of record." The committee agrees that the term "court-appointed counsel" should be hyphenated wherever it occurs in the rule and forms.

6.	Superior Court of Riverside County by Susan Ryan, Chief Deputy, Legal Services	A	We welcome the several substantive changes made by this proposal. We note, however, that the committee's rationale includes language that seems inaccurate and may be cited by a county in the future in an effort to exert more authority over probate court-appointed counsel. We recommend that this rationale be removed or modified to prevent this result.	The committee appreciates the court's comment. No further response is required.

	Commentator	Position	Comment	Committee Response
			Specifically, the committee indicates that it decided not to prescribe ethical duties or standards of representation as has been done for family law due to the lack of a statutory mandate. We have no concerns with this. However, the committee goes on to opine that the court's authority to impose special standards of attorney conduct seems tied to the existence of a statutory financial relationship. In other words, because the money to compensate counsel does not flow through the court in probate as it does in family law, but instead flows from the county, the court lacks authority to impose standards for the representation. We are concerned with this rationale for several reasons. First, we believe it is incorrect. Appointment of counsel creates an attorney-client relationship by court order. It does so, because the client is someone who is either alleged to need a conservator or is a minor. Consequently, the client lacks the ability to select an attorney and initiate an attorney-client relationship. The court's authority to prescribe special ethical duties and standards of representation derives from its authority to appoint counsel and its duty to supervise the attorney-client relationship. Although the county's payment of fees may create some practical authority to direct some financial aspects of the attorney-	The committee no longer relies on the rationale discussed by the commenter. The committee recognizes that appointment of counsel creates a presumptive attorney-client relationship and that the rationale articulated in the invitation to comment may therefore be overbroad. The committee has revised its proposal to focus on the scope of the rulemaking mandate in section 1456 in comparison to analogous rulemaking mandates for counsel appointed in other types of proceedings. The committee has not found any legal authority for the position that a proposed conservatee necessarily lacks the ability to select an attorney or to establish an attorney-client relationship or for the position that lack of either of those abilities is a necessary condition of appointing counsel for a proposed conservatee under section 1470 or 1471. Indeed, the extent of a proposed conservatee's ability to manage personal affairs would seem, under sections 1800.3 and 1801, to be an issue of fact for the court's or jury's determination in a proceeding for appointment of a conservator. The court's decision to appoint counsel to represent a proposed conservatee does

Neither has the committee found any support for the position that a trial court, having created an attorney-client relationship, has the authority to modify the terms of the existing relationship—including ethical duties or standards of representation—set forth by the Legislature in statute (see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code, § 6068) or by the Supreme Court in the California Rules of Court (see, e.g., Cal. It is perhaps worth noting in this context that, of the 70 new or amended rules of professional conduct for which the State Bar requested Supreme Court approval in 2017, the Court declined to approve only one: proposed rule 1.14, regarding a lawyer's obligations in representation of clients with diminished capacity. The committee has modified its recommendation to separate the qualifications and annual education requirements into two rules: rule 7.1102, for attorneys who wish to be appointed under section 1470 to represent wards and proposed wards, and rule 7.1103, for attorneys who wish to be appointed under section 1470 or 1471 to represent conservatees and proposed conservatees. This separation will give attorneys the opportunity to focus on one type of representation without increasing their educational burden, but it will require additional education hours for an attorney who wishes to accept appointment to represent both categories of client. Each rule requires three hours of annual education in the area of representation that it covers. An attorney who wishes to be appointed to represent both wards and conservatees would need to meet the qualifications and complete the annual education requirements in both rules. The committee also recommends adopting an alternative to allow an attorney to qualify for appointment in either area by completing three hours of education in that area in the same subjects as required for annual education. 			same requirements as any other appointed counsel. • Permit an attorney who otherwise does not meet the experience requirements to qualify based on the experience of a supervising attorney who does qualify. • Strengthen the express authorization for local courts to impose broader education and experience requirements, as we have done. • Update the Judicial Council forms to conform to these changes. Other Considerations: The proposal seeks to mandate court operations/procedures that, instead, should be permissive/discretionary. The proposed rule should instead be in the form of guidelines or suggested practices. We note that the committee's rationale includes language that seems inaccurate and may be cited by a county in the future in an effort to exert more authority over probate court-appointed counsel. We recommend that this rationale be removed or modified to prevent this result.	As mandated by Probate Code section 1456, the rules establish, as rule 7.1101 has since its adoption in 2007, minimum qualifications, education requirements, and certification requirements for counsel appointed by the court under Probate Code sections 1470 and 1471. The rule leaves courts free to impose more stringent requirements. The Judicial Council would not fulfill the specific mandate in section 1456 if it did not set mandatory minimum standards in the rules.

			Specifically, the committee indicates that it decided not to prescribe ethical duties or standards of representation like has been done for family law due to the lack of a statutory mandate. We have no concerns with this. However, the committee goes on to opine that the court's authority to impose special standards of attorney conduct seems tied to the existence of a statutory financial relationship. In other words, because the money to compensate counsel does not flow through the court in probate like it does in family law but instead flows from the county, the court lacks authority to impose standards for the representation. We are concerned with this rationale for several reasons. Appointment of counsel creates an attorney-client relationship by court order. It does so, because the client is someone who is either alleged to need a conservator or is a minor. Consequently, the client lacks the ability to select an attorney and initiate an attorney-client relationship. The court's authority to prescribe special ethical duties and standards of representation derives from its authority to appoint counsel and its duty to supervise the attorney-client relationship. Although the county's payment of fees may create some	The committee no longer relies on the rationale discussed by the commenter. As noted above in the response to the similar comment submitted by the Superior Court of Riverside County, the committee recognizes that appointment of counsel creates a presumptive attorney-client relationship and that the rationale articulated in the invitation to comment may therefore be overbroad. The committee has revised its proposal to focus on the scope of the rulemaking mandate in section 1456 in comparison to analogous rulemaking mandates for counsel appointed in other types of proceedings. 	Executive Committee (TEXCOM) by Chris Carico, Attorney at Law Los Angeles		further consideration. TEXCOM would welcome the opportunity to work with the Probate and Mental Health Advisory Committee and other interested stakeholders on the development of an alternative proposal, in light of our concerns. As discussed below, we are concerned primarily with the following: 1. We are concerned that the proposed amendments will not promote more effective advocacy because, in the long run, they will tend to discourage advocates from joining the appointments panels. 2. Access to the proposed specialized area of law is unduly restricted. The experience requirements appear to create a situation in which the only attorneys qualified to be on appointment panels will be attorneys who are already on appointment panels.	Please see the committee's responses to the more detailed specific comments, below. The committee recognizes TEXCOM's concern and has revised the proposal to reduce the quantity of the requirements while focusing their content more closely to the experience and education needed by an attorney to provide effective representation to a client subject to a petition for appointment of a guardian or conservator. The committee does not intend to restrict entry into guardianship or conservatorship practice beyond the extent necessary to ensure that counsel appointed under section 1470 or 1471 are qualified to represent their clients' needs and interests, as required by section 1456. The committee has revised the proposal to expand the qualifying experience that may be gained as retained counsel, such as experience representing petitioners, and to establish alternative qualifications that allow less-experienced attorneys to be appointed if they either work for an approved organization and are supervised by or working closely with an experienced attorney or have completed introductory education requirements and are working closely with an

			3. While not all TEXCOM members agree, there is a concern that the requirement of six hours of specialized education per year may be excessive. The requirement seems onerous not only in relation to the normally required MCLE, but also because, like the experience requirement, it seems to unduly block access to the appointments list. As anecdotal evidence, several TEXCOM members with decades of experience in conservatorship and guardianship matters would not satisfy the rule's strict education and experience requirements to be on the panel.	In response to this and other comments, the committee has modified its recommendation to separate the qualifications and annual education requirements into two rules: rule 7.1102, for attorneys who wish to be appointed under section 1470 to represent wards and proposed wards, and rule 7.1103, for attorneys who wish to be appointed under section 1470 or 1471 to represent conservatees and proposed conservatees. This separation will give attorneys the opportunity to focus on one type of representation without increasing their educational burden, but it will require additional education hours for an attorney who wishes to accept appointment to represent both categories of client. Each rule requires three hours of annual education in the area of representation that it covers. An attorney who wishes to be appointed to represent both wards and conservatees would need to meet the qualifications and complete the annual education requirements in both rules. The committee also recommends adopting an alternative to allow an attorney to qualify for appointment in either area by completing three hours of education in that area in the same subjects as required for annual education.
			FACTUAL ASSUMPTIONS For purposes of our analysis, we have assumed the following facts to be true:

			advocates in the first place.
			2. An attorney who represents a proposed ward or conservatee under Probate Code sections 1470 and 1471 has an important job that deals with fundamental constitutional and personal rights. These attorneys must be trained to serve their clients properly.	The committee agrees with this assumption.
			3. Appointment to represent proposed conservatees and wards traditionally has been an entry point for attorneys (particularly young attorneys) to become involved in probate matters, particularly disputed matters. This has been an incentive for attorneys to make themselves available for appointment.	The committee takes no position on the accuracy of this assumption, but questions whether the assumed state of affairs is entirely desirable given the importance of the fundamental rights assumed in 2, above.
			4. A private attorney appointed under Probate Code sections 1470 and 1471 often is not paid, and frequently is paid at a "county rate" that is much lower than the rates generally charged by attorneys. Many of the more experienced attorneys approach the appointments calendar as a pro bono opportunity and do not seek payment from the County. It is their way to give back.	The committee has no basis to determine the accuracy of this assumption and notes that the compensation of counsel is beyond the scope of this proposal. The committee also notes, however, that sections 1470(b) and 1472(a)(1) require the court, at the conclusion of the matter, to "fix a reasonable sum for compensation and expenses of counsel. Sections 1470(c)(3) and 1472(b) provide that, if the court finds that the client or the client's estate is unable to pay all or part of that sum, the duty to pay the attorney falls on the county. Nothing in these statutes requires the court to consider the county rate when fixing reasonable compensation. For guidelines to assist the court in determining a person's eligibility for county payment, see Cal. Rules of Court, Appendix E.

			5. Work as an appointed attorney can be satisfying. However, it is not uncommon that parties are surprised by the insertion of an appointed attorney into their affairs, and they resist and resent the appointed attorney.	The committee takes no position on the accuracy of this assumption, but notes that the statutes authorize (section 1470) or require (section 1471) appointment of counsel for a proposed conservatee only after a determination, presumably informed by the investigator's report under section 1826, that the client is not otherwise represented by counsel and either has requested appointment of counsel or does not plan to retain counsel. The investigator's report, due no later than five days before the hearing on the petition, must discuss the conservatee's communications regarding representation by counsel. Even if a party's surprise at the appointment of counsel might be excused notwithstanding receipt of the report, the possibility of surprise would not relieve the court of its statutory authority or duty to appoint counsel for the person when the statutory criteria warrant it.
			6. Attorneys are consistently instructed that the best way to have a successful practice is to choose one's clients. Attorneys who are appointed cannot choose their clients, and they thereby increase the risks inherent in their practices.	The committee takes no position on this assumption, but has considered section 6068(h) of the Business and Professions Code, which provides that an attorney has a duty "[n]ever to reject, for any consideration personal to himself or herself, the cause of the defenseless or oppressed," in its deliberations.
			7. More than a few attorneys see service on the appointment panel as a thankless task, but agree to serve out of a sense of duty to the profession or to the community.	See response to the previous assumption.

			8. Probate Code section 1456, specifies education and other requirements for a. Court-employed staff attorneys b. Examiners c. Investigators d. Judges on probate assignments, and e. Attorneys appointed under Probate Code sections 1470 and 1471 Of the persons employed in these categories, only private attorneys pay for their own education, and only private attorneys are not paid regular salaries for their work with respect to guardianships and conservatorships. In many counties, the only attorneys commonly appointed under Sections 1470 and 1471 are private attorneys.	The committee does not question this assumption, but notes that the education requirements for probate court employees are set forth in rule 10.478 (Court Investigator: 18 hours within one year of start date; Court attorney: 18 hours within 6 months; Examiner: 30 hours within one year, including 18 hours on guardianships and conservatorships. All of the foregoing: 12 hours of annual education. For attorneys and examiners, six of the 12 hours must be in guardianships and conservatorships.). The education requirements for judicial officers are set forth in rule 10.468 (Initial: 6 hours in first 6 month; continuing: varies depending on size of court, 9 or 18 hours every three years). These requirements are much more demanding than those proposed for court-appointed counsel in rule 7.1101 as circulated for comment (8 hours of initial education and 6 hours of annual education) or in rules 7.1102 and 7.1103 as currently proposed (three hours of annual education in each). Nevertheless, the committee is working with Judicial Council staff to develop online education available statewide free of charge to enable attorneys to meet their annual education requirements.
			ANALYSIS 1. The Increase in the MCLE Requirement Is Likely to Discourage Attorneys from Making Themselves Available for Appointment	The committee shares TEXCOM's concern that the burden of the rule's educational requirements on attorneys not exceed their benefit to clients.

			Year is Excessive The rule proposes requiring attorneys to complete six hours of specified continuing education each year. Specifically, it proposes: Except as provided in (2) each calendar year an attorney must, as a condition of ongoing or further appointment, complete six hours of education approved for MCLE credit by the State Bar in one or more of the subjects specific in (g)(1). (Emphasis added.) Subdivision (g)(1) then lists education topics that are specific to guardianships and conservatorships. These range from statutes and rules of court applying to guardianships and conservatorships to special considerations in representing a child or an older adult.	under rule 7.1101. To balance the demand on attorneys' time and finances with the need for well-trained attorneys, the committee has modified its recommendation to separate the qualifications and annual education requirements into two rules: rule 7.1102, for attorneys who wish to be appointed to represent wards or proposed wards; and rule 7.1103, for attorneys who wish to be appointed to represent conservatees and proposed conservatees. The committee has reduced the number of hours required for each type of appointment to three hours annually and eliminated the initial education requirement. An attorney wishing to be appointed to represent clients in both categories would still be required to meet the requirements of both rules, that is, six hours of education annually. Even for these attorneys, the committee notes that six hours per year, though more than the 8 hours every three years required of appointed counsel in child welfare proceedings, is less than the 8 hours per year required of counsel appointed in juvenile justice proceedings or family law custody proceedings. The committee has also revised the proposal to separate the subjects applicable to attorneys appointed to represent wards or proposed wards (rule 7.1102(d)) from the subjects applicable to attorneys appointed to represent conservatees, proposed conservatees, or persons alleged to lack legal capacity (rule 7.1103(d)). 				in only one category may focus on training directly relevant to that representation.
			As noted in the Implementation discussion of the proposed rule, California attorneys generally must complete 25 hours of continuing education every three years, which education must include ethics and substance abuse. If an attorney who wishes to make himself or herself available for appointment is required to take 6 hours of specialized coursework each year, then he or she will have consumed much of his or her mandatory MCLE obligation (18 out of 25 hours) with the required specialized classes, and will still be required to take the ethics and substance abuse courses.	The State Bar's requirement of 25 hours every three years sets a minimum threshold. An attorney is encouraged to take as many additional hours as needed or desired to acquire and maintain competence in a chosen area of practice.
			The attorney who takes the required courses will be specialized for guardianship and conservatorship work, but if he or she wishes to take other course work—for example, courses in taxation, recent developments, litigation and discovery—he or she will be burdened in a way that attorneys specializing in other fields are not burdened.	The committee understands that counsel eligible for court appointment in other specialized areas of law are required to meet experience and education requirements equally or more demanding than the requirements proposed here. See, e.g., rules 5.242 (family law child custody: 12 hours of initial education; 8 hours of annual); 5.660 (child welfare: 8 hours initial education or recent experience; 8 hours ongoing every 3 years); 5.664 (12 hours initial education within previous 12 months or 50% of practice; 8 hours annual).
			Since guardianship matters infrequently involve substantial estates, and court-appointed counsel is generally compensated at the County Rate, there is a significant financial disincentive for	The committee understood from assumptions 4 and 7, above, that—notwithstanding the statutory requirement that the court, on conclusion of the matter, fix a reasonable sum for compensation

Counsel who serve under those expectations would seem likely to regard any compensation as a windfall. Nevertheless, the committee does not read section 1470 or 1472 to require or authorize the court to consider a county rate when fixing reasonable compensation.
			Highly qualified attorneys may choose to volunteer time on the panel as a service to the court and the public. But, the addition of substantial education requirements that the private attorney must personally pay for creates another large disincentive to their participation. In short, it makes the private attorneys pay to volunteer.	The committee has reduced the required number of hours of annual education to allow more attorneys to meet the requirement. The hours required would be consistent with or fewer than the hours required for attorneys specializing in other fields.
			Moreover, if we presume that the State Bar's requirement of 25 hours of MCLE in three years is reasonable, then the proposed rule's requirement of six hours of specialized education each year appears unreasonable.	The committee notes that the State Bar has established "Minimum Continuing Legal Education" requirements. Attorneys who practice in areas of law that require specialized knowledge are encouraged, and may be required, to complete additional hours of education to be able to provide competent representation to their clients. Statutory mandates to establish minimum education requirements in specific fields, such as that in section 1456, reflect the Legislature's determination that additional, focused education is especially important in those fields.

			in specialized MCLE required by the proposed rule will be a burden that will discourage attorneys from making themselves available for appointment. This applies especially to young attorneys who have traditionally assisted in filling the appointments lists. B. We Do Not Believe the Proposed Alternatives Solve the Problem The Probate and Mental Health Advisory Committee (Committee) acknowledges that, "The proposed amendments to the education requirements may lead to a short-term reduction in the number of qualified attorneys available for appointment." TEXCOM believes this is definitely the case, but seriously questions whether the reduction will be short-term only. The Committee suggests that this predicated short-term reduction in the number of qualified attorneys available for appointment will be counteracted by "the alternative experience requirements in rule 7.1101(e) and the transitional provisions in rule 7.1101(k)." However, the "alternative experience requirements in rule 7.1101(e)" will not minimize the effect of the new education requirements, because rule 7.1101(e) itself requires the appointed attorney to have "completed the education required in (d)." Moreover, the alternative experience	of education to reduce the burden on appointed attorneys. The hours required would be consistent with or fewer than the hours required for attorneys specializing in other fields, including juvenile justice and family law child custody proceedings. The committee has modified the recommendation to minimize any reduction in the number of available, qualified attorneys by making clear that the amendments are not retroactive; that an attorney who has submitted an initial certification of qualifications under existing rules need not submit a new initial certification; and that the annual education requirements apply to education completed after January 1, 2020. The committee has modified its recommendation to remove the initial education requirements and to expand the alternative qualifications. In addition to authorizing qualification by working for an approved organization supervised by or in close consultation with an experienced attorney, the committee has authorized a second alternative

			Similarly, the transitional provisions in rule 7.1101(k) will not have a real impact on the number of attorneys who make themselves eligible for appointment. At best, those rules state that an attorney qualified to be appointed before 2020 can remain on his or her cases even if he or she opts out of the new system. It seems likely that the new MCLE rules will have a sustained long-term effect of discouraging attorneys from making themselves available for appointment.	The committee has modified its recommendation to eliminate the transitional provisions. The reduction in the number of hours and subjects required for annual education, the availability of a year to complete the first set of new requirements, and the projected availability of free online education are intended to encourage attorneys to continue to make themselves available for appointment.
			2. The Experience Requirements Present a Potential Problem That May Slowly Reduce the Number of Attorneys Eligible for Appointment Under proposed rule 7.1101(d)(2)(A), an attorney can be qualified to be on the conservatorship appointment panel if, "within the three years immediately before the date of first availability," he or she "(A) represented at least three conservatees or proposed conservatees in either probate or LPS conservatorships." The problem is that the only realistic way to represent three proposed conservatees in three years is to be appointed by	The committee has modified its recommendation to allow an attorney to count experience in the five years before first availability for appointment and has simplified the experience requirement in rule 7.1103(a) to require representation of a petitioner, objector, or (proposed) conservatee in at least three conservatorships, including mental health conservatorships. 			We believe this entire rule should be re-evaluated as an experience qualification. Few young attorneys will be in on the "start" of a conservatorship case, and some conservatorship cases literally never end – depending on the lifespan of the conservatee. Not many attorneys have three conservatorship cases in three years, and even fewer have three contested conservatorship cases in three years. An attorney who wanted to get into the conservatorship field, and who wanted to make himself or herself available for appointment, would be hard pressed to obtain that experience. With the prevalence of revocable trusts, not many attorneys will do three complete court-filed accountings in three years. Finally, we believe the idea that preparation of a few estate planning documents (under proposed rule 7.1101(d)(2)(C)(ii), which would change the current requirement from five of the identified documents to three) would in any way prepare an attorney to represent a proposed conservatee in a real court case is an anomaly. In today's world of computerized forms, an	The committee agrees with the comment and has removed representation of a fiduciary on a petition to approve an accounting from the applicable qualifications. The committee also notes that appointment of an attorney to represent a ward or conservatee when a fiduciary fails to file an account is governed by section 2620.2, not by section 1470 (except for compensation) or 1471. The requirements of these rules, therefore, do not apply to those attorneys. The committee agrees that general estate planning experience does not prepare an attorney to represent a conservatee and, as suggested, has eliminated this element from the applicable experience requirements.

			attorney might meet this requirement within a week or two of passing the bar. Experienced conservatorship lawyers have serious concerns about including this as an experience requirement. We are also concerned about the idea that representing a fiduciary in an accounting proceeding could prepare an attorney to represent a proposed conservatee or ward. The tasks are very different. Illustrations If a medical doctor with a geriatrics specialty went to law school and took courses specializing in guardianship and conservatorship law and graduated first in her class, then hung up a shingle to practice as a solo attorney, she could not qualify to be on an appointments panel. As a solo with no in-house supervisor, she might never qualify to be on an appointments panel. If a 65-year old attorney with a great amount of litigation experience in the probate field, who had represented many proposed conservatees in the past, but not in the recent past, wished to go on the appointments panel to finish his or her career with some pro bono work, he or she would not qualify for the appointments panel. TEXCOM questions whether this is the policy we want and believes the requirements should	The committee agrees that preparing an accounting, without more, would not sufficiently prepare an attorney to represent a conservatee or ward. The committee has removed that requirement from the proposed rules. The committee has modified the alternative qualifications to allow a sole practitioner to qualify for appointment after three hours of applicable initial education if the attorney is working in close consultation with an experienced attorney. The committee recognizes that this attorney might not immediately qualify for appointment but, for reasons similar to those mentioned by TEXCOM, above, believes that at least some experience or education specific to conservatorships is appropriate before appointment. In response to the concerns raised by TEXCOM and other commentators, the committee has be more flexible, perhaps allowing the probate judges to exercise some discretion and permitting some variation based on different circumstances in the various counties.	relaxed the amount of experience and education required by the proposed rules while focusing their content more directly on conservatorships and guardianships. In addition, the amended rules authorize a court to appoint an attorney who does not meet the specific qualifications and annual education requirements on a finding of necessity.

			Alternative Work Experience We endorse the concept of "alternative work experience" but believe it should be expanded to include an arrangement that involves supervision by a more experienced lawyer in a different firm and not just the same law firm. Otherwise, attorneys in small firms or solo practitioners will have little to no ability to obtain the necessary work experience in the field.	The committee agrees with the suggestion and has modified the alternative qualifications to allow an attorney working in close consultation with an experienced attorney to qualify for appointment if other work or education requirements are met.
			As noted above, the attorney needs work experience to get on the panel, but the only way to get the experience as court-appointed counsel is to be on the panel and be appointed by the court. As an additional alternative, for courts that have the necessary resources, the combination of an in-depth multi-day training course for newer lawyers focusing on guardianships and conservatorships and assignment of an experienced attorney to serve as mentor to the newer attorney may provide newer attorneys with the necessary opportunity to get the required experience.	The committee has never intended that the rule require previous appointment as a condition for later appointment. The statutes and the existing rule assume that a proposed ward or conservatee may retain counsel in some circumstances. The committee has modified the amended rules to clarify that the required experience may be acquired by representing appropriate clients, regardless of whether the representation was initiated by appointment or retention. In addition, the alternative experience requirements in proposed rules 7.1102(d) and 7.1103(d) allow an attorney without the required experience to accept appointment if other conditions are met.

			To encourage older more experienced attorneys to serve as mentors without the risk of liability for the newer attorneys' mistake, it would need to be clear that the newer attorney alone is counsel for the client, with the associated malpractice risk. CONCLUSION Conservatorship and guardianship cases are important, and deal with some of the most fundamental rights. Proposed conservatees and wards deserve qualified counsel, who are prepared to represent them in cases that are crucial to their long-term care and well-being. Due process rights must be recognized, guarded and preserved. Advocates must understand the issues and be able to communicate with their clients.	The committee believes that the formal relationship between an attorney appointed under section 1470 or 1471 and an attorney with whom the appointed attorney consults is best left to an agreement between the attorneys themselves or their firms and organizations. Nothing in the proposed rules requires that a supervising or consulting attorney be named in an appointment order or have the authority to direct the appointed attorney necessary to establish a basis for liability under rule 5.1.
			It makes sense to design rules to do our best to ensure that attorneys representing proposed conservatees and wards are qualified. That is the purpose underlying Probate Code section 1456. On the other hand, we do not believe the State should impose education requirements that are so burdensome that qualified attorneys who are otherwise willing to make themselves available for appointment opt out, because the MCLE becomes too burdensome and expensive. We also do not believe the State should impose experience requirements that are difficult for	The committee agrees that the rules required by section 1456 must ensure that appointed attorneys are qualified. The comments on this proposal reveal a wide range of opinion regarding the nature and amount of experience and education that would be sufficient for that purpose. The committee intends the proposed rules to establish minimum requirements that ensure adequate qualification without being excessively burdensome or difficult to satisfy.

			many attorneys to reach. The proposed rule appears to be designed to establish a group of specialists who will be able to do the best possible job as appointed attorneys for proposed conservatees and wards. However, if the rule in fact creates specialists, the specialists will not find themselves compensated like other specialists in the trust and probate field, and they will be doing work that often is not satisfying. This suggests that, as time goes by, the rules will be self-defeating, and that good and experienced attorneys will leave the field. At the same time, young and eager attorneys will find it difficult to make themselves qualified to serve. Ultimately, there is a danger that the perfect is being made the enemy of the good.	The committee's intent in developing the rules in this proposal has been to fulfill the mandate of section 1456: to specify minimum qualifications, hours and subject matter of education, and reporting requirements to ensure adequate representation by attorneys appointed under section 1470 or 1471. The specification of any minimum standards will necessarily reduce the size of the pool of attorneys qualified to accept appointment. The committee has consistently borne this effect in mind and sought to mitigate it without abdicating its statutory duty.

Executive Summary

The Family and Juvenile Law Advisory Committee and Civil and Small Claims Advisory Committee jointly recommend revising 17 protective order forms: the request and order forms for continuances and accompanying information forms, where applicable, for several forms series. Changes to the order forms are recommended to ensure that these protective orders are properly entered into the California Law Enforcement Telecommunications System (CLETS), a California protective order database. Revisions are also needed to the domestic violence and gun violence series to implement recent changes in the law.

Recommendation

The Family and Juvenile Law Advisory Committee and Civil and Small Claims Advisory Committee jointly recommend that the Judicial Council, effective January 1, 2020:

1. Revise the Request to Continue Hearing form in each protective order form series (forms CH-115, DV-115, EA-115, GV-115, SV-115, and WV-115);

2. Revise the Order on Request to Continue Hearing form in each series (forms CH-116, DV-116, EA 116, GV-116, SV-116, and WV-116); and

3. Revise the information sheets How to Ask for a New Hearing Date (forms CH-115-INFO, DV-115-INFO, EA-115-INFO, SV-115-INFO, and WV-115-INFO) to reference correct items and to use the same plain language terms as used on forms 115 and 116.

The revised forms are attached at pages 9–43.

Relevant Previous Council Action

Effective July 1, 2016, forms 115 and 116 in the Civil Harassment Prevention (CH), Domestic Violence Prevention (DV), Elder or Dependent Adult Abuse Prevention (EA), School Violence Prevention (SV), and Workplace Violence Prevention (WV) series were revised to implement the provisions in Assembly Bill 1081 (Stats. 2015, ch. 411), which broadened and clarified the grounds for granting a continuance, excised the concept of "reissuance" of a protective order from the statutes, and clarified that a temporary restraining order (TRO) may be extended to a new hearing date without first having to be "dissolved by the court."

The council first adopted gun violence restraining order (GVRO) forms, including form GV-115 and form GV-116, effective July 1,2016. Effective January 1, 2019, the forms were revised to incorporate changes that were required by Senate Bill 1200 (Stats. 2018, ch. 898) to ensure that orders under Penal Code section 18100 et seq. be referred to as gun violence restraining orders and that the definition of ammunition include magazine, to prohibit a filing fee for GVRO forms and documents, to instruct a law enforcement officer to make a specific request when serving a gun violence restraining order, and to provide that parties do not need to pay the sheriff for service of a GVRO.

Analysis/Rationale

The committees began their work on this proposal to ensure that temporary restraining orders issued when a hearing is continued are properly entered into CLETS and to revise the DV and GV (Gun Violence Prevention) continuance forms to implement new laws. In addition, the committees looked for ways to simplify language and remove unnecessary items.

The current versions of the Order on Request to Continue Hearing (the forms numbered "116" in each series) are creating some confusion for individuals responsible for entering protective order information into CLETS. Specifically, each protective order entry requires information regarding the status of service (i.e., whether the restrained party has notice of the protective order or does not have notice and therefore needs to be served) so that law enforcement in the field know whether a restraining order has been served for enforcement purposes. Item 9, Service of Order, in the current 116 forms does not state whether service is required when the restrained party is the person seeking a continuance or when the restrained party agrees to a continuance. The revised 116 forms include this language at items 6a(1). The committees also reorganized this item to make the service requirements easier to understand for the party responsible for service.

Additional revisions to forms in the DV and GV series are needed to implement new laws.[1]

Domestic violence restraining orders

Revised form DV-116, at item 6, includes a reference to new form DV-117, Order Granting Alternative Service, which the court will complete upon granting a request to serve by alternative means.[2] This addition is needed to implement Assembly Bill 2694 (Stats. 2018, ch. 219), which allows a petitioner seeking a domestic violence restraining order to ask the court for permission to serve by alternative means when personal service has been unsuccessful after diligent efforts and there is reason to believe that the restrained party is avoiding (evading) service. See Family Code section 6340(a)(2).

Gun violence restraining orders

Revised forms GV-115 and GV-116 allow a court to continue the hearing that is required to be set within 21 days after a Gun Violence Emergency Protective Order (form EPO-002) has been issued. In these matters, courts may need to continue the initial hearing if there is good cause, including that law enforcement has not yet served the order. Forms GV-115 and GV-116 currently allow the court to continue a hearing set following the filing of a Petition for Gun Violence Restraining Order (form GV-100) and to extend the temporary restraining order, if one is in effect. The revised forms now also allow the court to continue a hearing set following issuance of an EPO-002 and to continue the EPO until the new hearing date.

The revisions to the language in what is now item 7 on form GV-116 clarify that, even though service by the sheriff or marshal is free, the litigant must provide the papers to the sheriff or marshal for service to occur (i.e., service by sheriff or marshal will not take place without action by the litigant).

The recommended revisions also include changes to the 115 and 116 forms to simplify the language and remove unnecessary items. These changes should make the forms easier to understand for all users, including self-represented litigants, judicial officers, and court staff. The principal changes are to:

[2] The proposal to adopt form DV-117 is in "Protective Orders: Alternative Service in Domestic Violence Prevention Act Cases (August 14, 2019)." If approved, it would become effective at the same time as this proposal.

- Remove the contact information of the requesting party on the 116 order forms;[3]
- Remove the contact information for the protected party on the 115 forms because the protected party's information is already required on the request for restraining order forms (the "100" forms);
- Limit the listed reasons for continuance to those that are expressly authorized under the law,[4] as follows: (1) one continuance by the responding party (with no good cause required), (2) a continuance on request by either party on a showing of good cause, and (3) a continuance on the court's own motion;
- Include a separate signature block for the party and the party's lawyer, if they have one;
- Move to the first page of the 116 forms the items that state that the TRO or EPO in effect (if any) will remain in effect until the new date of the hearing;
- Have a field on the 116 forms to enter the deadline for service rather than a field to enter the number of days before the hearing by which the order must be served; and
- Provide a field on the 116 forms to enter an expiration date for the TRO rather than having the TRO automatically expire at the next hearing. This change was requested by courts. In response to a commenter expressing concern that adding a field could produce unnecessary errors, the committees have included default language that, if the field is left blank, the TRO will automatically expire at the end of the hearing.

Differences across form types

Although the committees work hard to ensure that the protective order forms use consistent language and design across case types, it is not always possible. For this proposal, the committees note that forms GV-115 and GV-116 are different from the other 115 and 116 forms in two ways. First, the GVRO statutes do not provide for the restrained person to request and obtain a first continuance automatically. Therefore, this option is not listed under item 3 of GV-115 and item 5 of form GV-116. Second, as noted above, a hearing for a gun violence protective order must be set for within 21 days of issuance of an EPO. (No such automatic hearing is set following issuance of a Domestic Violence EPO.) Because that hearing may need to be continued, revisions to forms GV-115 and GV-116 are needed so that these forms may be used for continuances of those hearings as well as hearings after the filing of a petition (form GV-100).

Also, as noted above, the DV forms differ from the others in referencing orders for alternative means of service, which the law does not allow for other types of restraining orders.

[3] The removal of the contact information also requires minor changes to the information sheets in each series, because parties will complete only the first two, rather than the first three, items on the revised 116 forms. For this reason, the information sheets (the 115-INFO forms) each require a minor revision to the instructions to the party seeking a continuance. Because these are technical changes, the forms did not need to circulate for comment.

Comments
Twelve commenters responded to this proposal, including 5 courts and judges from two other courts (the Superior Courts of Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Diego, and Ventura Counties and judges from the Superior Courts of Alameda and Fresno Counties). Other commenters are the Joint Rules Subcommittee of the Trial Court Presiding Judges and Court Executives Advisory Committees; a manager from the Department of Justice, Bureau of Firearms; the Director of the Domestic Violence Clinic, University of California, Irvine, School of Law; the Family Violence Law Center; and the Executive Committee of the Family Law Section of the California Lawyers Association.

Three commenters agree with the proposal, six agree if modified, and three did not indicate a position but suggested modifications. No commenter opposed the proposal. Most modifications proposed by commenters were incorporated.

The committees sought specific comments on four questions. After consideration of the comments received, the committees further modified the recommended forms as detailed below.

1. Should the forms include the contact information for the requesting party?
The committees had removed the contact information of the requesting party from the 116 forms circulated for comment. Commenters were split on whether this information should be included on the order form. After considering the comments received, the committees continue to recommend removing the item from the 116 forms, concluding that the benefits of excluding the information outweigh the benefits of including the information.[5] Any time a victim/survivor is asked to provide contact information, there is a risk that the victim/survivor will unintentionally disclose information meant to be private. Litigants often do not understand that court documents are available to the public and to the opposing side.

One commenter suggested including the restrained party's contact information in the event that the restrained party is the one seeking the continuance as an oral request and has not formally appeared in the case. The committees believe that capturing the restrained party's contact information is unlikely even in this scenario because a court is unlikely to have the restrained party prepare the order. This is because the order continuing the hearing would also include any TRO granted by the court. This order would need to be completed immediately after the hearing to ensure that the protected party has proof that a TRO remains in effect and that the order is reflected in CLETS. In this situation, the court, self-help center staff, or protected party would likely complete the order after hearing.

[5] For the same reason, the committees have modified the 115 forms to require only a restrained party to provide contact information. A party seeking protection will already have provided contact information to the court.

2. Should an additional item be added to the* Request to Continue Hearing *(115 forms) to ask whether the other party received notice of the request for continuance?
Some commenters believed that this information would be useful to know. One commenter thought that the question should not be added to the form because notice is not required by statute. After considering all the comments, committee members decided not to include this item, in part because currently no statute or rule states what notice would be required, if any. The committees will in the future, as time and resources permit, consider whether to propose rules of court to address notice requirements for continuances in restraining order proceedings.

3. For gun violence restraining orders, should law enforcement agencies have the ability to request a continuance on an emergency protective order if the emergency protective order has not been served?
All commenters who responded to this question indicated that law enforcement should have the ability to request a continuance for lack of service. The Civil and Small Claims Advisory Committee agrees and recommends modifying forms GV-115 and GV-116 to allow for the continuance of the required hearing following issuance of an EPO based on lack of service of the EPO.

4. Are the forms easy for users to understand? Do you have any suggestions for improving their usability or readability?
This question generated several suggestions to improve the usability and readability of the 115 and 116 forms. The committees responded by making several further changes to the circulated forms, including reorganizing the service of order item (item 6 in the 116 forms), using terms that are easier to understand (see chart below), and using the terms consistently throughout the forms.

Words in Current Forms	Words in Revised Forms issued	granted
court hearing	court date
continue or change	reschedule

Other comments
In addition to responding to the specific comments requested, some commenters expressed concern over including a pending criminal case as one of the reasons for continuance. One commenter noted that asking for information on the criminal case may cause a party to unknowingly disclose information that could be used against the party. Another commenter strongly opposed the addition because it gives the impression that a continuance based on a pending criminal case is good cause when, in fact, appellate courts have stated that trial courts must undergo a balancing test in deciding whether to grant a continuance on this ground. Based on the comments received, the committees modified the proposed forms so that they do not list a "pending criminal case" as a reason for continuance on the 115 or 116 forms. Instead, the committees noted that this reason can be listed under "Other" reason where good cause must be shown.

Commenters also asked the committees to revise the proposed forms or create new forms that could be used for continuing a request to renew restraining orders. After considering these comments, the committees agreed that forms for this purpose would be helpful but disagreed with the suggestions to modify these forms for such a purpose. The committees concluded that such forms would be more useful as part of the 700 series of forms (relating to requests to renew restraining orders) and will consider developing them in a future cycle.

115 and 116 forms

The committees considered not revising the forms but rejected that alternative because of the need to clarify the service requirements for CLETS entry and the need to implement the new statutory provisions.

The committees also considered changing the titles of forms 115 and 116 to use the terms "reschedule" and "court date" instead of "continuance" and "hearing." The committees rejected this alternative because they would like public comment on these changes. The committees will consider revising the titles of forms 115 and 116 in a future cycle.

Alternative service in domestic violence restraining order cases

To implement new laws allowing for alternative service in domestic violence restraining order cases, the Family and Juvenile Law Advisory Committee considered including itemizing specific methods for alternative service on the Order on Request to Continue Hearing (form DV-116), separately circulated that option for comments, but rejected that alternative. The committee agrees with the commenter that alternative service is applicable in a minority of cases and concluded that including the items would make the form confusing. Instead, the committee recommends the creation of a separate attachment (form DV-117) that can be used when alternative service is granted by the court. Form DV-117 is included in a separate proposal to implement AB 2694.

Fiscal and Operational Impacts

Several courts commenting on this proposal noted that it will result in some costs to incorporate revised forms into their paper or electronic processes and to train court staff. One court also noted that there may be some savings over time for court staff entering information into CLETS.

This is not a Court Order.

1 You may need to ask for a new court date if:

- You are the person asking for protection and are unable to have form CH-109, Notice of Court Hearing, and other papers served in time before the court date.
- You are the person to be restrained making your first request to reschedule your court date.
- You have a good reason for needing a new court date. (The court may grant your request to reschedule your court date on a showing of good cause.)

2 What does form CH-115 do?

Use form CH-115 to ask the court to reschedule your court date. If your court date is rescheduled and a Temporary Restraining Order (TRO; form CH-110) was granted, the TRO will be extended until the end of your new court date unless the court decides to modify or terminate it. "Extend" means to keep any temporary orders in effect until the new court date.

3 Follow these steps:

- Fill out all of form CH-115.
- Fill out items 1 and 2 on form CH-116, Order on Request to Continue Hearing.
- The judge will need to review your papers. In some courts, you must give your papers to the clerk. Ask the court clerk for information on how you ask the judge to review your papers.
- After you turn in your forms as required by your local court, check with the clerk's office to see if the judge approved (granted) your request to reschedule your court date.
- If the judge signed form CH-116, you will have a new court date. If the judge did NOT sign the form,you should go to court at the date, time, and location on form CH-109.
- Next, file both forms CH-115 and CH-116 with the clerk. The clerk will make up to three file-stamped copies for you. Keep at least one copy to bring to your court date.
- The other party must be served a copy of the court papers as described in item 6 on form CH-116.
- Ask the person who serves the papers to complete a proof of service form and give it to you. If service was in person, use form CH-200, Proof of Personal Service. If service was by mail, use form POS-040, Proof of Service—Civil. Make two copies of the completed forms.
- File the completed and signed proof of service form with the clerk's office before your court date.
- If the court reschedules your court date and extends the TRO to the new court date, the clerk will send the TRO to law enforcement. It will be entered into a statewide computer system that lets police know about the order so that it can be enforced.

4 Go to your court date

- Take at least two copies of your documents and filed forms to your court date. Include a filed proof of service form. "Documents" may include exhibits, declarations, and financial statements, which the court may enter into evidence at its discretion.
- If you are the person seeking protection and you do not go to the court date, your TRO will expire at the end of your court date.
- If you are the person to be restrained and you do not go to your court date, the court can still make orders against you that can last for up to five years.

DV-115-INFO How to Ask for a New Hearing Date

DRAFT - not approved by the Judicial Council

1 You may need to ask for a new court date if:

- You are the protected party and are unable to have form DV-109, Notice of Court Hearing, and other papers served in time before your court date.
- You are the restrained party and it is your first time asking the court to reschedule your court date.
- You have a good reason for needing a new court date (the court may grant your request to reschedule your court date on a showing of "good cause").

2 What does form DV-115 do?

Use form DV-115 to ask the court to reschedule your court date. If your court date is rescheduled and a Temporary Restraining Order (form DV-110) was granted, that order will be extended until the end of your new court date, unless the court decides to modify or terminate it. "Extend" means to keep any temporary orders in effect until the new court date.

3 Follow these steps:

- Fill out all of form DV-115.
- Fill out items 1 through 2 on form DV-116, Order on Request to Continue Hearing.
- The judge will need to review your papers. In some courts, you must give your papers to the clerk. Ask the court clerk for information on how you ask the judge to review your papers.
- After you turn in your forms as required by your local court, check with the clerk's office to see if the judge approved (granted) your request to reschedule your court date.
- If the judge signed form DV-116, you will have a new court date. If the judge did NOT sign the form, you should go to court at the date, time, and location that is on form DV-109.
- Next, file both forms DV-115 and DV-116 with the clerk. The clerk will make up to three file-stamped copies for you. Keep at least one copy to bring to your court date.

  The other party must be served a copy of the court papers as described in item 6 on form DV-116.
- Ask the person who serves the papers to complete a proof of service form and give it to you. If service was in person, use form DV-200, Proof of Personal Service. If service was by mail, use form DV-250, Proof of Service by Mail. Make two copies of the completed forms.
- File the completed and signed proof of service form with the clerk's office before your court date.
- If the court reschedules your court date and extends the expiration date of the temporary restraining order to the end of your new court date, the clerk will send the restraining order to law enforcement or CLETS for you. CLETS is a statewide computer system that lets police know about the order.

4 Go to your court date

- Take at least two copies of your documents and filed forms to your court date. Include a copy of the filed proof of service form.Your documents may include exhibits, declarations, and financial statements, which the court may enter into evidence at its discretion.
- If the protected party does not go to the court date, the temporary domestic violence restraining orders will expire on the date and time of the court date. If the restrained party does not go to the court date, the court can still make orders against them that can last for up to five years.

5 Need help?

Ask the court clerk about free or low-cost legal help. For a referral to a local domestic violence or legal assistance program, call the National Domestic Violence Hotline: 1-800-799-7233 (TDD: 1-800-787-3224). It's free and private. They can help you in more than 100 languages.

EA-115-INFO How to Ask for a New Hearing Date

DRAFT - not approved by the Judicial Council

1 You may need to ask for a new court date if:

- You are the person seeking protection and are unable to have form EA-109, Notice of Court Hearing, and other papers served in time before your court date.
- You are the person to be restrained making your first request to reschedule your court date.

2 What does Form EA-115 do?

Use form EA -115 to ask the court to reschedule your court date. If your court date is rescheduled and a Temporary Restraining Order (TRO; form EA -110) was granted, the TRO will be extended until the end of your new court date unless the court decides to modify or terminate it."Extend" means to keep any temporary orders in effect until the new court date.

3 Follow these steps:

- Fill out all of form EA-115.
- Fill out items 1 to 2 on form EA-116, Order on Request to Continue Hearing.
- The judge will need to review your papers. In some courts, you must give your papers to the clerk. Ask the court clerk for information on how you ask the judge to review your papers.
- After you turn in your forms as required by your local court, check with the clerk's office to see if the judge approved (granted) your request to reschedule your court date.
- If the judge signed form EA-116, you will have a new court date. If the judge did NOT sign the form, you should go to court at the date, time, and location on form EA-109.
- Next, file both forms EA-115 and EA-116 with the clerk. The clerk will make up to three file-stamped copies for you. Keep at least one copy to bring to your court date.
- The other party must be served a copy of the court papers as described in item 6 on form EA-116.
- Ask the person who serves the papers to complete a proof of service form and give it to you. If service was in person, use form EA-200, Proof of Personal Service. If service was by mail, use form POS-040, Proof of Service—Civil. Make two copies of the completed forms.
- File the completed and signed proof of service form with the clerk's office before your court date.
- If the court reschedules your court date and extends the TRO to the new court date, the clerk will send the TRO to law enforcement. It will be entered into a statewide computer system that lets police know about the order so that it can be enforced.

4 Go to your court date

- Take at least two copies of your documents and filed forms to your court date. Include a filed proof of service form. "Documents" may include exhibits, declarations, and financial statements, which the court may enter into evidence at its discretion.
- If you are the person seeking protection and you do not go to your court date, your TRO will expire on the date and time of your court date.
- If you are the person to be restrained and you do not go to the court date, the court can still make orders against you that can last for up to five years.

SV-115-INFO How to Ask for a New Hearing Date

DRAFT - NOT APPROVED BY THE JUDICIAL COUNCIL

1 You may need to ask for a new court date if:

- You are the petitioner and are unable to have form SV-109, Notice of Court Hearing, and other papers served in time before your court date.
- You are the respondent making your first request to reschedule your court date.

2 What does form SV-115 do?

Use Form SV -115 to ask the court to reschedule your court date. If your court date is rescheduled and a Temporary Restraining Order (TRO; form SV -110) was granted, the TRO will be extended until the end of your new court date unless the court decides to modify or terminate it. "Extend" means to keep any temporary orders in effect until the new court date.

3 Follow these steps:

- Fill out all of form SV-115.
- Fill out items 1 through 2 on form SV-116, Order on Request to Continue Hearing.
- The judge will need to review your papers. In some courts, you must give your papers to the clerk. Ask the court clerk for information on how you ask the judge to review your papers.
- After you turn in your forms as required by your local court, check with the clerk's office to see if the judge approved (granted) your request to reschedule your court date.
- If the judge signed form SV-116, the court will give you a new court date. If the judge did NOT sign the form, you should go to court at the date, time, and location that is on form SV-109.
- Next, file both forms SV-115 and SV-116 with the clerk. The clerk will make up to three file-stamped copies for you. Keep at least one copy to bring to your court date.
- The other party must be served with a copy of the court papers as described in item 6 on form SV-116.
- Ask the person who serves the papers to complete a proof of service form and give it to you. If service was in person, use form SV-200, Proof of Personal Service. If service was by mail, use Form POS-040, Proof of Service—Civil. Make two copies of the completed forms.
- File the completed and signed proof of service form with the clerk's office before your court date.
- If the court reschedules your court date and extends the TRO to the new court date, the clerk will send the TRO to law enforcement. It will be entered into a statewide computer system that lets police know about the order so that it can be enforced.

4 Go to your court date

- Take at least two copies of your documents and filed forms to your court date. Include a filed proof of service form. "Documents" may include exhibits, declarations, and financial statements, which the court may enter into evidence at its discretion.
- If you are the petitioner and you do not go to your court date, the TRO will expire at the end of your new court date.
- If you are the respondent and you do not go to your court date, the court can still make orders against you that can last for up to three years.

WV-115-INFO How to Ask for a New Hearing Date

DRAFT - NOT APPROVED BY THE JUDICIAL COUNCIL

1 You may need to ask for a new court date if:

- You are the petitioner and are unable to have form WV-109, Notice of Court Hearing, and other papers served in time before your court date.
- You are the respondent making your first request to reschedule your court date.
- You have a good reason for needing a new court date. (The court may grant a request to reschedule your court date on a showing of good cause.)

2 What does form WV-115 do?

Use form WV-115 to ask the court to reschedule your court date. If your court date is rescheduled and a Temporary Restraining Order (TRO; form WV-110) was granted, the TRO will be extended until the end of your new court date unless the court decides to modify or terminate it. "Extend" means to keep any temporary orders in effect until the new court date.

3 Follow these steps:

- Fill out all of form WV-115.
- Fill out items 1 through 2 on form WV-116, Order on Request to Continue Hearing.
- The judge will need to review your papers. In some courts, you must give your papers to the clerk. Ask the court clerk for information on how you ask the judge to review your papers.
- After you turn in your forms as required by your local court, check with the clerk's office to see if the judge approved (granted) your request to reschedule your court date.
- If the judge signed form WV-116, the court will give you a new court date. If the judge did NOT sign the form, you should go to court at the date, time, and location on form WV-109.
- Next, file both forms WV-115 and WV-116 with the clerk. The clerk will make up to three file-stamped copies for you. Keep at least one copy to bring to your court date.
- The other party must be served a copy of the court papers as described in item 6 on form WV-116.
- Ask the person who serves the papers to complete a proof of service form and give it to you. If service was in person, use form WV-200, Proof of Personal Service. If service was by mail, use form POS-040, Proof of Service—Civil. Make two copies of the completed forms.
- File the completed and signed proof of service form with the clerk's office before your court date.
- If the court reschedules your court date and extends the TRO to the end of your new court date, the clerk will send the TRO to law enforcement. It will be entered into a statewide computer system that lets police know about the order so that it can be enforced.

4 Go to your court date

- Take at least two copies of your documents and filed forms to your court date. Include a filed proof of service form. "Documents" may include exhibits, declarations, and financial statements, which the court may enter into evidence at its discretion.
- If you are the petitioner and you do not go to your court date, the TRO will expire at the end of your court date.
- If you are the respondent and you do not go to your court date, the court can still make orders against you that can last for up to three years.

1.	California Lawyers Association, Executive Committee of the Family Law Section By Saul Bercovitch, Director of Governmental Affairs California Lawyers Association	A	In response to the request for specific comments, FLEXCOM believes the forms should include the address of the requesting party and believes the forms should have a box indicating whether the other party has received notice of the request for continuance. These comments are specific to forms DV-115 and DV-116.	For the order forms (116 in each series) the committees believe that the benefits of omitting the requester's contact information outweigh any potential benefit. The protected person's information will already be on file and the restrained person's contact information will be on file upon submission of any other filing. The committees have decided that the form should not include an item that queries whether notice has been provided to the other party at this time. The committees will consider whether a Rule of Court or other change should be made in the future to ensure that these requests are made with adequate notice as either side is entitled to make a request for continuance.
2.	Dosch, Jacqueline Staff Services Manager I Legislation, Regulations and Public Records Act Unit Bureau of Firearms	NI	The Department of Justice, Bureau of Firearms recommends you include a question regarding firearm ownership and then request information regarding firearms owned (such as serial number, make, model, etc.) The below Basic Firearm Eligibility Check (BFEC) is an example of a GVRO that hit as a potential triggering event (PTE) in the Armed Prohibited Persons System.* In the miscellaneous field (highlighted) the analyst entering the order included firearm information, which does not always occur with protective orders. The analyst likely used the firearm information section available in the GV-100 form (attached, page 2) to initiate the GVRO. It	This is outside of the scope of this proposal, but this will be considered by the Civil and Small Claims Advisory Committee in the next forms cycle. Staff has discussed this comment with the commenter.

			would be nice if all of the forms that initiate orders also included this information. But as it relates to the "Continue Hearing" forms in the attachment you provided, if there were also a section indicating the firearms including make/serial number/etc. and if they were seized/sold/transferred in order to have it identified as highlighted below that would also be beneficial for the Armed Prohibited Persons System unit, the BOF Enforcement team, and other LEAs so that a phone call could be made to verify by a CIS I (for example) versus sending agent or LEO. *(The form contents have been omitted but will be shared with the committee if the committee takes this on a proposal for a future rule cycle) the continuance, when explaining why they are or are not granting the continuance. 2. On page 4 of the Invitation to Comment document, it states a recommendation for the DV-115, to "Mov[e] the lawyer's information to the last item under 'My Information[.]' " If this is done for this form, this should be done for all DV forms (e.g., DV-100, 109, etc.). Basically, we want consistency between forms. 3. On this same page of the Invitation to Comment, it states a recommendation: "Giving examples of mailing addresses that could be used . . . ." This seems fine, but also there should be a box that can be checked to note the petitioner wants to keep their address confidential pursuant to Family Code section 6225; and actually, this box should really be added to all DV forms that ask for the petitioner's address. 4. This same page also states: "Providing space for the person . . . ." We note this space already exists on the DV-115.	2. The committees agree but cannot make those changes during this forms cycle. This revision will be proposed for other forms in the future. 3. The committees agree with the commenter's concern and have modified item 1 in the request forms (115 in each series) so that the contact information will only be completed if the requesting party is the restrained party. There is no need for the protected party to provide their contact information again because they would have already done so on form DV-100. This revision should address the commenter's concern for this form. As for the suggestion to include a checkbox to allow the petitioner (protected party) to note a confidential address pursuant to Family Code section 6225 on the forms, the committees will consider this request in a future cycle. 4. The committees agree that space does exist for showing good cause; similar space will be available on the revised forms.
3.	Family Violence Law Center By Cory Hernandez Staff Attorney	AM	Regarding the list of proposed changes found in dot-list format on page 3 of the Invitation to Comment document (beginning with "Remove item 3 . . . ."), we are generally in favor of all those proposed changes, although we have some disagreement with the proposed changes to the forms themselves. 1. Regarding whether to remove the information of "Party Seeking Continuance" (item 3) from DV-115, we agree removing that information is fine, because it is unnecessary to know that on the DV-116; if someone wants to know that information, they can look to the DV-115; but also, the judge may very well write who sought	1. The committees agree, and the 116 form will not contain the requester's contact information from the order form (116).

			5. This same page also asks: "The committees are seeking comment about whether to include an additional item that queries whether notice has been provided to the other party." We think not. If it's relevant to the request, the person making the request will indicate in there whether or not the other party has been served with the request. And in ruling on the request, the judge also has to make an order as to how and when the DV-116 must be served on the respondent, anyway, so it seems unnecessary to add to DV-115. Plus, notice is not required before making a request under DV-115, and we don't think the Judicial Council should add more requirements to the forms than are necessary to effectuate the statutory authority granted under the DVPA. If, however, the committee moves forward with this language, we would also recommend include 2 additional checkboxes along the following lines: 1. "Yes, we both have agreed to the continuance, as set forth in the attached declaration signed by both parties under penalty of perjury." 2. "No, I have not yet had the respondent personally served with my petition, notice of hearing, or temporary restraining order, and I need more time to get the respondent served."	5. The committees agree that the revised forms should not include an item that queries whether notice has been provided to the other party at this time. The committees will consider whether a rule of court or other provision should be developed in the future to ensure that these requests are made with notice.

			6. On page 5 of the Invitation to Comment, it states the "Civil and Small Claims Advisory Committee is seeking specific comment on whether law enforcement agencies should have the ability to request a continuance on an EPO if the EPO has not been served on the restrained party." We think yes. Most, if not all, law enforcement agencies in Alameda County refuse to even issue an EPO unless the respondent/defendant/abuser can be located for personal service, even though they can issue the EPO and try to serve later or serve verbally over the phone. Allowing law enforcement to request continuances of EPOs may help nudge them in the right direction of issuing more EPOs, even if they cannot immediately personally serve the respondent.	6. The committee agrees that a hearing set on the issuance of an EPO may be continued and the proposed forms will allow for this possibility.
			7. Now to the draft forms themselves. First the CH-115. As mentioned above, the items 1 and 2 on the forms, CH-115, DV-115, etc., should be consistent across the CHO, DV, and other forms.	7. The committees agree that consistency is the goal but cannot make changes to other forms not included in this proposal without first circulating them for comment. This revision will be proposed in a future rule cycle depending on time and resources.
			8. We are STRONGLY OPPOSED to adding (c) to item 4 on this form. There is no need to add "I have a pending criminal case that is based on the same allegations in this case." Nowhere in the CCP section 527.6, nor the CCP more generally, does it state a court should continue a hearing because of a pending criminal case. Nor does it say that anywhere in the CRC (rule 3.1332) that	8. The committees agree and have deleted the item regarding pending criminal case being a basis for a continuance. The forms have been revised so this item reflects only the three scenarios expressly provided in the statutes under which a continuance may be granted: (1) on a showing of good cause; (2) a first deal with what is "good cause" for granting a continuance. If this is added, courts will routinely—even more so than they are now—be trailing civil cases because of pending criminal cases. However, this is not what is supposed to happen when there is a simultaneous criminal case and civil case. Indeed, Gov. Code section 68607, subd. (g) states trial courts must "[a]dopt and utilize a firm, consistent policy against continuances." (See also County of San Bernardino v. Doria Mining & Engineering Corp. (1977) 72 Cal.App.3d 776, 781.) Rather, if a respondent wants to continue a case because of a pending criminal case, it is the respondent's burden to make the request and then the court must have a hearing on the request to go through a multi-factor test to determine whether the respondent's fears are well-founded and warrant a continuance, and if so, for how long. (See Fisher v. Gibson (2001) 90 Cal.App.4th 275, 285; In re Marriage of Sachs (2002) 95 Cal.App.4th 1144, 1155-1156; People v. Coleman (1970) 13 Cal.3d 867, 885; Federal Savings & Loan Ins. Corp. v. Cal. 1994) 857 F.Supp. 1384, 139.) After all, CHO proceedings	request by respondent to allow for more time to prepare; and (3) on the courts own motion.

	Commenter	Position	Comment	Committee Responses
			are meant to be expedited for the benefit of all parties, including especially the petitioner. (See Russell v. Douvan (2003) 112 Cal.App.4th 399, 403; Grant v. Clampitt (1997) 56 Cal.App.4th 586, 592.) Adding any language related to a pending criminal case, to these continuance forms, would seriously undermine the trial court's requirement to have a special hearing to go through the multiple-factor test, and instead, if adopted, the language would likely motivate many, if not most, courts to skip over that hearing and test and instead just rule on the request without a hearing, simply because the form allows them to do so. We have heard from multiple judges that they give great weight to whatever is stated in a JC form and how the JC interprets the law, and we don't think it's appropriate for the JC to basically state its position that trailing a criminal case is almost always "good cause" for granting a continuance in a restraining order proceeding. 9. If the committee, notwithstanding our strong objections to this, decides to keep this, we would recommend including additional language stating in no uncertain terms that this request still (1) requires a hearing, (2) is not guaranteed to be granted just because there is a pending criminal case, and (3) is always up to the discretion of the court as to whether this constitutes "good cause" in this case.	9. The committees agree and have modified the item. 10. Thank you for the comment.

			10. In reality, we think the items given for the reasons for the continuance request, on the CH-115, are already fine as is. It is unnecessary to list items c and d ("I need more time to hire a lawyer . . . .") because there simply needs to be items a and b (as already listed there) plus a third option to provide any additional explanation of "good cause." The statute allows for one continuance for the respondent, at the respondent's first request, and thereafter it always comes down to "good cause." This needs to be decided on a case-by-case basis, and not by some reasons given by the Judicial Council, even if the Council believes those are more likely to be given by certain judges or courts, or requested by certain parties.
			11. We think the CH-115 (and similar DV-115, etc.) should have an additional item (item 5 or so) that allows both parties (or their attorneys) to stipulate to a continuance ahead of time. This is particularly useful for when the parties are seeking a potential settlement/agreement, or when both cannot make a certain date, or something.	11. The committees note that a stipulation could be noted in item 4c "other reason." Additional revisions would be needed to allow DV-115 to be used as a written agreement, including a signature line for the opposing party. Such a modification would need to be circulated for public comment before the committees could make a recommendation. The committees will consider this suggestion in a future cycle.
			12. CH-116. Item 3(a)(1) should be amended to read (emphasis added to suggested edits/revisions): "Any Temporary Restraining Order (form CH-110) previously issued remains in full force and effect until the hearing."	12. The committees have simplified the language in this section to make it more easily understandable to self-represented litigants to state, "Any Temporary Restraining Order (CH-110) already granted stays in full force and effect until the next court date."

			13. . The "New Hearing Date" information under item 3(b) should be placed in a box, like on the CH-109.	13. The committees thank the commenter for the suggestion. The purpose of the box on forms 109 is to draw attention to the date of the hearing. The committees believe that removing the box in 116 makes the form cleaner (more white space) and so easier to read, while still drawing attention to the information for the next court hearing by bolding the text and placing a box around the words, "New Court Date."
			14. Item 4(c) should have a place for the date to note when they modified the TRO. Our suggestion would be amending the second sentence to read (emphasis added to suggested edits/revisions): "The court signed a new Temporary Restraining Order (form CH-110) on (date): [blank space]."	14. In this same section, the court will have to fill-in the expiration date of the newly modified TRO. The committees believe the expiration date is sufficient to identify the modified TRO.
			15. Item 5 should remove item (c) for the reasons outlined above. And should combine (e) and (f), because as it is is basically redundant. Except for the first continuance granted to the respondent as a matter of right under the law, every one thereafter is always premised on "good cause," so it's unnecessary to spell that out in (e).	15. The committees have revised this item to reflect the three scenarios in which a continuance may be granted: (1) on a showing of good cause; (2) first request by respondent to allow for more time to prepare; and (3) on the courts own motion. The committees note that the court may continue a hearing on its own motion without a showing of good cause (see Family Code section 245 and Code of Civ. Proc. section 527.6(p)(1).

			16. Item 6(a) should read, in the first sentence, "Restrained party or their attorney was at the court hearing." (Emphasis added to suggested edits/revisions.)	16. The committees have reorganized this item to make it more understandable. The modified items include this suggested revision (see items 6(a)(1) and (a)(2)) except did not add emphasis to the text (did not italicize).
			17. Item 6(c)(2) changes things to require the court to set the deadline for service, instead of just stating the service must be done no less than 5 days before the hearing, or something. We like this change.	17. The committees appreciate the comment. Service requirements are often hard for self-represented litigants to understand. Making the deadline clear should help increase understanding and compliance with service requirements. The specific deadline has been retained in the reorganized item 6.
			18. Item 6 should include a box that allows the Court to order service of the CH-116 to be by mail. Courts allow this when the petition, notice, and TRO have already been personally served on the other party, so there's no need to have the reissuance/continuance served personally again, and mail is sufficient.	18. The committees have included service by mail as an option in the reorganized item 6.
			19. DV-115. As noted above, for item 1(b) there should be a box allowing the petitioner to note they are keeping their address confidential. (Fam. Code, § 6225.)	19. See response provided in response #3 above.

			22. Suggested additional item (e) ("The court has ordered me to meet with a child custody mediator/recommending counselor and I have not been able to meet with one.") should be removed; we feel strongly about this. This is because the court already will have set out the custody/visitation review hearing far enough to allow the party to go to mediation. If for some reason the party does not within the allotted time, then the party needs to go back to court to talk with the judge about that, along with the other parent. The judge needs to hear from that parent to see why they didn't go through the mediation appointment. Is it because the parent couldn't get in touch with the mediator? Is it because the parent ignored their calls and letters? Is it because of a language barrier? Is it because the parent refuses to attend mediation altogether? This information is best gathered at a live hearing, and allows the other parent to state their case as well, in case they have evidence the other parent (who missed mediation) is simply trying to "play games" and avoid mediation for as long as possible, for whatever reason. Then the court may be able to set the parents for same-day mediation, or get the parent scheduled for mediation while they are still at the court hearing, before setting another review hearing. Keeping the status quo may cause negligible delays or more time for the courts, but ultimately we have seen enough cases where one parent—often the abusive parent—refuses to go to mediation, and the judge needs to know about that—and hear from the other parent as well—before deciding how to best move forward, whether that is making	be listed in item 4c as "other reason" on form DV-115.

			custody/visitation orders without visitation to the non-cooperative parent, until/unless they go to mediation, or setting another hearing, or admonishing that parent from the bench about the need/importance of mediation, or something else. Ultimately, though, the DV-115 and DV-116 forms are about reissuing a TRO and continuing the DVPA hearing to rule on the ROAH. Custody/visitation may be a part of the case, but they are ancillary issues; the DVRO hearing must be heard as soon as possible, under the law, and should not depend on mediation. Whatever happens at the DVRO hearing—whether the ROAH is granted or not—will impact custody/visitation, but not vice versa. Thus, a DVRO hearing should not be delayed just because one parent has not gone to mediation. DV-116. 23. Item 3(a)(1) should be amended to read (emphasis added to suggested edits/revisions): "Any Temporary Restraining Order (form DV-110) previously issued remains in full force and effect until the hearing." 24. The "New Hearing Date" information under item 3(b) should be placed in a box, like on the DV-109.	23. The committees have made this change the committees propose to use "granted" instead of "issued" and "court date" instead of hearing. 24. The committees appreciate the comment. The purpose of the box on form DV-109 and other council forms is to draw attention to the information on when the hearing is. The committees believe that removing the box in 116 makes the form cleaner (more white space), and so easier to understand, while still prioritizing the information for the next court hearing by bolding the text and placing a box around the words, "New Court Date."

			25. Item 4(c) should have a place for the date to note when they modified the TRO. Our suggestion would be amending the second sentence to read (emphasis added to suggested edits/revisions): "The court signed a new Temporary Restraining Order (form CH-110) on (date): [blank space]."	25. The committees have changed this section to read: The court changes the TRO previously granted and signs a new TRO (form CH-110).
			26. Item 5 should remove item (c) for the reasons outlined above. And should combine (e) and (f), because as it is is basically redundant. Except for the first continuance granted to the respondent as a matter of right under the law, every one thereafter is always premised on "good cause," so it's unnecessary to spell that out in (e).	26. The committees have revised this item to reflect the three scenarios in which a continuance may be granted: (1) on a showing of good cause; (2) first request by respondent to allow for more time to prepare; and (3) on the courts own motion. The committees note that the court may continue a hearing on its own motion without a showing of good cause (see Family Code section 245 and Code of Civ. Proc. section 527.6(p)(1).
			27. Item 6(a) should read, in the first sentence, "Restrained party or their attorney was at the court hearing." (Emphasis added to suggested edits/revisions.)	27. The committees have included appearance by the party's attorney as a reason why service would not be required on that party in the newly reorganized item 6.
			28. Item 6(c)(2) changes things to require the court to set the deadline for service, instead of just stating the service must be done no less than 5 days before the hearing, or something. We like this change.	28. The committees appreciate the comment. Service requirements are often hard for self-represented litigants to understand. Making the deadline clear should help increase understanding and compliance with service

				requirements, and it has been retained in the reorganized item.
			29. Item 6 should include a box that allows the Court to order service of the CH-116 to be by mail. Courts allow this when the petition, notice, and TRO have already been personally served on the other party, so there's no need to have the reissuance/continuance served personally again, and mail is sufficient. This is separate and distinct from the item (e) added to the form, regarding "substituted service," and item (f) regarding service by publication or posting.	29. The committees have included service by mail as an option in item 6.
			30. We would also like to extend our comments above, as appropriate, to the other forms, in the EA, GV, SV, and WV series.	30. Consistency across protective order form types helps service providers and the courts. The committees recommend making the same changes noted above for the other form types unless the change would be inconsistent with the law.
4.	Guerra, Amy K. (Hon.) Judge (Family Court) Superior Court of California, County of Fresno	AM	1. Under 1(b) - I believe the current language on form DV-115 better explains the option not to include specific contact information. The current language on the form is more succinct then the proposed language and notifies the party specifically that they do not have to include their phone number or e-mail (vs. the proposed language which just indicates the information is "optional"). Given the volatile nature of domestic violence cases, and specifically DVRO hearings, I think it's better to err on the side of caution and keep the language	1. The committee appreciates the comment. Since the petitioner (protected party) will already have their contact information on file, the committees have restructured this item so that only the restrained party would provide their contact information on form because the petitioner will already have provided contact information to the court.

			clear and concise as to the obligation to disclose additional contact information. 2. Under 4(c)-- my only concern is that, prior to asking parties additional details about any open criminal cases as part of a hearing, they are specifically advised of their rights under the 5th amendment. If the committee is inclined to have a party provide information about an open criminal case, it may be best to make it a close-ended inquiry rather than asking for them to give "any information they have" as to the requested topics. For example: Arrest date: _____ Next court date: _____ Case No: _____ Requesting information of this nature/manner shouldn't present a 5th amendment issue, but I do have some concerns that the inquiry on the proposed form is too broad as to open criminal charges. 3. Under 6(a)-(g): The language is a bit convoluted, understanding that most of it is for the court/clerk's purposes (rather than the public's). Not sure how feasible/realistic it is, but perhaps the language relating to substitute service could be separated on a separate form/page if and when it is authorized. I recognize that the suggestion may result in additional paperwork and/or forms, but substitute service is still a rare occasion and the	2. The committees have removed this sub-item from the request and order. If the court finds that there is good cause to grant a continuance based on a pending criminal case, this may be listed under "other" good cause on the order form (116). 3. The committees agree and have made revisions that should make service requirements clearer to the person responsible for service. Information regarding substituted service, if appropriate, will be provided on form DV-117. (See item 6a(4) on proposed DV-116.)

			vast majority of cases are still likely to involve personal service. If it is separated, perhaps it could include a portion or potential entry for why the court is authorizing it in lieu of personal service.
5.	Rodriguez, Victor (Hon.) Judge Superior Court of California, County of Alameda Hayward, California	A	I think the proposed changes will be very helpful. I have two comments. 1. First, I think it would also be beneficial to request information from the requestor concerning whether the opposing party has been notified of, and agrees to, the request for the continuance. There are instances where a matter has been continued several times already, and it would be helpful to the court if they knew whether the sides were in agreement about the need for a further continuance. 2. Second, the committee and the Judicial Council may want to consider whether DV-115 and DV-116 should be modified so they can be used when a party is seeking a continuance concerning a pending request to renew a restraining order (i.e., DV700). Currently, DV115 and 116 do not contemplate application to DV700, but there are no other forms that explicitly apply to that situation.	1. The committees appreciate the comments. The committees considered this comment and chose not to make this revision to the form because requesting this information may encourage parties to contact each other, potentially in violation of protective orders in place. 2. The committees appreciate the comment. The committees believe that having a set of continuance forms (request and order forms) for renewal hearings would be beneficial for litigants and courts. Preliminarily, the committees believe that having these forms in the 700 series would make the forms simpler and easier to find for self-represented litigants. The committees will consider developing new forms in the 700 series for civil harassment, domestic violence, elder abuse, workplace and restraining orders, as time and resources permit.

6.	Stoever, Jane K. Clinical Professor of Law Director, UCI Initiative to End Family Violence Director, Domestic Violence Clinic University of California, Irvine School of Law	NI	Thank you for the invitation to comment on judicial council forms regarding continuances and alternative service in domestic violence cases. I have taught domestic violence clinics for over 15 years, having taught at the law schools at Georgetown, American University, and Seattle University prior to being hired in 2013 to direct the Domestic Violence Clinic at the University of California, Irvine (UCI) School of Law, where I also teach Family Law, Domestic Violence Law, and Legal Ethics. The UCI Law Domestic Violence Clinic testified in favor of Assembly Bill 2694 (Stats. 2018, ch. 219) on behalf of multiple clients who were unable to receive legal protection when they could not achieve personal service in domestic violence restraining order cases. The recommendations in this Comment are based on my experience litigating cases in jurisdictions that have long permitted alternative service in domestic violence cases; my research, as reflected in my recently published article: Access to Safety and Justice: Service of Process in Domestic Violence Cases, 94 WASH. L. REV. 333 (2019); my clients' insights about service over many years; and my clinic interns' recommendations about the proposed forms. The form proposals in SPR19-39 and SPR19-37 implement the alternative service options that now appear in Family Code Section 6340(a)(2), increasing survivors' and their children's access to safety and justice. My Domestic Violence Clinic reviewed the proposed forms, being particularly mindful of the high percentage of pro per litigants in	The committees appreciate the comments.

			domestic violence cases in California. We have several recommendations to increase the understanding of legal options, all of which apply to the SPR19-37 packet. 1. Our first recommendation aims to increase knowledge of the new provisions in Family Code Section 6340(a)(2). We suggest that the DV-115, in the Instructions section or under 4(a), include the following language or similar language: "Read DV-205-INFO, What if the Person I Want Protection From Is Avoiding (Evading) Service if, after diligent effort, you have been unable to accomplish personal service." Cross-referencing the DV-205-INFO will increase knowledge of legal options and increase efficiency for courts and litigants, as petitioners may otherwise return to court numerous times without being aware that they can request alternative methods of service. 2. Our second set of recommendations seeks a streamlined way of requesting alternative service. The DV-205-INFO instructs, "If you believe you are eligible for alternative service, you can complete form DV-115, Request to Continue Hearing, to make this request." The proposed DV-115, however, does not include a question prompt for doing so. Based on page 5 of the SPR19-37, we understand that the Family and Juvenile Law Advisory Committee considered including an item in the DV-115 regarding alternative means of service but	1. The DV-115 is a form that can be used by either party to request a continuance. Because the new alternative service laws only apply to petitioners the committees did not include reference to form DV-205-INFO. If in the future the committee proposes a request for alternative service form, form DV-205-INFO can be referenced on that form. 2. Thank you for your comment. The committee has revised form DV-205-INFO to remove any references to form DV-115. Based on the comments submitted, the committee will consider whether to propose a new request for alternative service form in the future. The committee does not believe that form DV-115 should be revised to include the specific questions posed by commenter as the revisions to form DV-115 would be substantial and including the information may confuse petitioners that are not seeking determined that petitioners could instead use form FL-980 to request publication or posting. This determination is inconsistent with the instructions in DV-205-INFO to use the DV-115 to request alternative service; furthermore, the DV-115 does not guide litigants to the FL-980, and the FL-980 does not provide options for substituted service and other means beyond publication or posting. We recommend that the DV-115, at item 4, include the following option: "After diligent effort, I have been unable to accomplish personal service, and there is reason to believe that the restrained party is evading service. Explain:" An additional prompt should ask litigants to identify which of the following methods of service would be designed to "give reasonable notice of the action to the respondent: substituted service (mailing service and delivery to a person at the respondent's home, mailing address, or workplace), publication, posting, or other." These questions provide a clear way to request alternative service and prompt litigants to provide information the judicial officer needs, increasing judicial efficiency as the judge enters orders in the DV-116. 3. Finally, the DV-116, at item 6(e), could provide a brief explanation of what "substituted service" is, namely that it means leaving a copy and mailing a copy of papers to be served to the restrained person's home or mailing address or workplace. We recommend that 6(e) state as	alternative service which represent the majority of cases. 3. The committee has included this information, with minor edits, on form DV-117, Order Granting Alternative Service. Form DV-117 would be an attachment to form DV-116 and is being proposed in a separate proposal that

			Yes, for consistency the contact information should be included on the 116 numbered forms. The request and order for restraining order, 100 and 110-numbered forms currently include this information. The advisal listed on the current version of the 116 numbered forms (i.e. "If you do not have a lawyer and want to keep your home address private, you may give a different mailing address instead.") should be included.
			3. Q: Should an additional item be added to the Request to Continue Hearing (115-numbered forms) to ask whether the other party received notice of the request for continuance? Yes, at least for non-domestic violence restraining orders. The initial request forms (CH/EA/GV/SV/WV-100) include an item "Temporary Restraining Order" for the petitioning party to indicate whether or not the other party was notified that a TRO was being sought against them. This information will be useful to the reviewing judicial officer.	3. The committees have decided that the 115 forms should not include an item that queries whether notice has been provided to the other party at this time because the committee members were worried that this could confuse SRL's into possibly violating the exiting protective orders to contact the other party. The committees will consider whether a Rule of Court or other change should be made in the future to ensure that these requests are made with adequate notice as either side is entitled to make a request for continuance.
			4. Q: For gun violence restraining orders, should law enforcement agencies have the ability to request a continuance on an emergency protective order if the emergency protective order has not been served? Yes.	4. The committees agree and revised forms GV-115 and GV-116 may be used to continue hearings set after issuance of gun violence EPOs that have not been served.

			It appears that the proposal would work for courts of all sizes. GENERAL COMMENTS: 11. Proposed changes use different terminology for the same process, which could cause confusion among self-represented litigants. Request to Continue Hearing (CH-115) refers to the process as: • "Continue Hearing" (form title) • "Change the hearing" (Instructions) • "Reschedule the hearing" (Notice section & item 4) Order on Request to Continue Hearing (CH-116) refers to the process as: • "Continue Hearing" (form title) • "Change the hearing" (Instructions) • "Reschedule the hearing" (Items 3 & 5) • "Continuance" (Items 5b & d) Our court proposes using one term throughout the 115 & 116 series of forms to limit confusion. In invitation SPR19-28, the Family and Juvenile Law Advisory proposes replacing form FL-306 Request to Continue Hearing with a new FL-306 Request to Reschedule Hearing and to add "rescheduling the hearing" to rule 5.2 to assist self-represented litigants. Since family actions often	11. The committees agree that terminology should be used consistently. The committees have decided on the following terminology to use in the forms: "reschedule" instead of "continue," "court date" instead of "court hearing," and "granted" instead of "issued." Revising the form titles would require revising many cross-references to the form titles, and this change would need to go out for public comment and so will be deferred for consideration in a future rule making cycle as time and resources allow

Item 6c(2): Propose including the method of service (i.e., mail or personal) for restrained party to notify protected party. Form DV-115: 14. Item 1(b): Suggest editing and bolding the sentence, "If you have a lawyer give your lawyer's name, address and contact information below, not your own information." This should also result in eliminating item 1(d). 15. Item 2(b): Could lead to confusion regarding the next hearing regarding the DVTRO or general hearing. 16. Item 4: Although it was previously considered and rejected in the alternatives considered, it would be beneficial to either include a request for the party to serve by alternative means, or at the very least, include a box stating the litigant	12. The committees have revised this item to reflect the three scenarios in which a continuance may be granted: (1) on a showing of good cause; (2) first request by respondent to allow for more time to prepare; and (3) on the courts own motion. 13. The committees have included these options on the revised forms. 14. The committees thank the commenter for the suggestion but choose not to follow the suggestion because the form is clearer the way that it is. 15. The committees have left the language because the form is specific to continuing the hearing date listed in this section. 16. The Family and Juvenile Law Advisory Committee will consider whether a request for alternative service should be created in the future. Such a form would need to go out for public comment. 			is separately requesting to serve by alternative means and list the FL-980 and an "other section." This would assist the litigants and the court. Self-represented litigants often show up at the hearing and make the request to serve by alternative means. Also, the proposed form DV-205-INFO includes language on page 1 that if the litigant is eligible for alternative service, they can complete the DV-115 form to make this request.	form DV-115 for it to provide enough information for the court to grant a request for alternative service. This is not to say that form DV-115 could not be used together with other available forms. The committee has revised form DV_205 to remove any reference to form DV-115.

The committees thank the commenter for the suggestion but believe this level of detail is not needed for the item on service. If a court believes the information should be added, it could be noted in the reason for continuance section or on a minute order.

			information from the order forms, but after further discussion with court staff experienced in filing these forms, I believe this information should remain on the forms for the specific reason that an oral request to reschedule can be made by a responding party, who has not previously appeared in the case, at the time of the hearing on the temporary restraining order. In these circumstances the filing clerk must capture the address information of a self-represented respondent, or the information of the lawyer representing the respondent. This information must be present on the form in order for the clerk to enter the information into the court's case management system and is important in the event the court needs to send notice to the parties in the case. For these reasons, I ask that the Item 3 remain on the order forms.	committees believe that capturing the restrained party's contact information is unlikely even in the scenario provided by commenter because it is unlikely that a court would have the restrained party prepare the order. This is because the order continuing the hearing would also include any TRO granted by the court. This order would need to be completed immediately after the hearing to ensure that the protected party has proof that a TRO remains in effect and that the order is reflected in CLETS. In this situation, it is likely that the court, self-help center staff, or protected party would complete the order after hearing.
			2. Recommend that the wording in Item number 3 be modified. As currently written the denial of the request for continuance is not clearly stated and the wording "The hearing is NOT rescheduled. The court hearing will be on (date)" can be confusing to self-represented litigants. The order should more clearly state "The request to reschedule the hearing is DENIED. The court hearing will remain on (date)"	2. The committees agree and have revised this section to clearly state whether the request has been granted or denied.

			should more clearly state: The request to reschedule the hearing is GRANTED. The hearing is rescheduled for the day and time listed below. See additional orders in 4-8”
			4. To be consistent with the changes in SPR19-28, all of the forms in this invitation to comment should be revised to change the word “continue” in the title of the forms to “reschedule”. Not only will this make the forms consistent with the language changes to the FL-306, 307, 308 and 309 it will also make the title of these forms consistent with the wording in the body of the forms, which do use the word “rescheduled” and not “continued”.	4. The committees agree that consistency is the goal but cannot make changes to other forms without first circulating them for comment. This revision will be proposed in a future rule cycle depending on time and resources.
			5. Recommend that Items 4b and 4c on the 116 forms be revised to delete the requirement that the judicial officer fill in the new expiration date of any existing temporary restraining orders. By law the restraining order will remain in effect until the date of the rescheduled hearing and the extra time that it takes for the judicial officer to complete this additional information in light of the number of orders that are submitted far outweighs the number of cases that have more than one court date. The wording …expire at the end of the hearing in 3” should be inserted in place of the date field.	5. The committees considered this suggestion and in light of this suggestion the forms have been modified to include an option that the court can either write the date of the expiration of the temporary order or leave it blank “(If no date is listed, the TRO expires at the end of the court date listed in 3b).”
			6. Item 6 – Service of the Order – need clarification of Item 6b “Restrained party agreed (stipulated) to this order. Further service of this	6. The restrained person could agree to a continuance at the time of hearing or prior to the hearing. However, the goal of this item is order is not required for enforcement purpose." Is it anticipated that this item will be checked if the respondent appears at the hearing and enters into a written agreement to continue the hearing? If so, it seems Item 6a would be sufficient.	to indicate that further service on the restrained person is not needed for enforcement purposes. Instead of eliminating item 6b, the forms have been modified to combine items 6a and 6b.

			7. Recommend moving item 6d to the 6b position, move 6b to the 6d position. Most often the protected requests a continuance, so moving item 6d to 6b makes the flow of item 6 more user friendly.	7. This item has been reorganized to make it easier for the moving party to understand.
			8. Items 6c, d and e – instead of requiring entry of a date for service to be completed by, which leaves room for unnecessary errors, the form should be revised to replace the wording "no later than (date)" with the wording, "at least five days or ( )_____ before the hearing…"	8. The committees proposed this change to make the deadline for service easier to understand for self-represented litigants. The committees believe this is an important change as service requirements are often hard for self-represented litigants to understand.
			9. Page 3 – Instructions to Clerk – if no temporary orders were issued pending the hearing and box 4a is marked on Page 1 of the 116 forms then the order is not sent to law enforcement for entry into CLETS. The instructions in this box should be modified to read: If there is are temporary orders in effect and the hearing is rescheduled, the court is required to enter this order into CLETS or send this order to law enforcement to enter into CLETS. This must be done within one business day from the date the order is made.	9. The committees have revised the language to indicate that the order needs to be entered into CLETS only when a TRO is extended, modified or terminated.

			10. Although not included in this invitation to comment, it would be beneficial to the courts if the requirements for requesting a continuance of the hearing on the temporary restraining order for all these restraining order types was set forth in the appropriate code sections that speak to continuances. The code does not specify a party is required to give notice to the other side in the same manner as seeking ex parte orders if the request is made prior to the hearing date. This court is currently requiring that ex parte notice be given to the other side when a request is made prior to the hearing, in cases with temporary orders in effect and without temporary orders in effect. In addition, it would be helpful if a deadline for submitting a request to reschedule the hearing at least 5 days prior to the court hearing was implemented and specified in the code.	10. This comment is outside the scope of this proposal.

Executive Summary

The Family and Juvenile Law Advisory Committee and the Civil and Small Claims Advisory Committee jointly recommend that the Judicial Council adopt two information sheets to help litigants understand a new law that enables courts to make confidential certain information regarding a minor in civil harassment and domestic violence restraining order proceedings. The new law went into effect on January 1, 2018, under Assembly Bill 953 (Stats. 2017, ch. 384). New Judicial Council forms to implement this law went into effect January 1, 2019.

Recommendation

The Family and Juvenile Law Advisory Committee and the Civil and Small Claims Advisory Committee jointly recommend that the Judicial Council, effective January 1, 2020:

1. Adopt form CH-160-INFO, Privacy Protection for a Minor, in the Civil Harassment Prevention series; and

2. Adopt form DV-160-INFO, Privacy Protection for a Minor, in the Domestic Violence Prevention series.

Relevant Previous Council Action

Assembly Bill 953 added section 6301.5 to the Family Code and amended section 527.6(v) of the Code of Civil Procedure. Under the new law, a minor or minor's legal guardian may ask the court to make information relating to a minor confidential when issuing a domestic violence or civil harassment restraining order. In 2018, the Judicial Council approved a proposal to implement the new law by adopting rules 3.1161 and 5.382 of the California Rules of Court and eight new forms (a set of four in the DV series and a set of four in the CH series), effective January 1, 2019. During the comment period, a commenter suggested that an information sheet be created to provide information regarding this new law. The committees agreed and responded that an information sheet would be proposed in a future cycle to allow for public comment.

Analysis/Rationale

In civil harassment restraining order and domestic violence restraining order cases, the vast majority of litigants are self-represented. Understanding the court process, the law, and the steps involved in any case is a daunting task, especially if the litigant is in the middle of a crisis or suffering from trauma. The council has made many attempts to make the law more accessible, including providing protective order forms in plain language. Information sheets are an additional tool that courts can use to help provide access to litigants. Having information sheets to explain the process for this request is important because the law that governs these requests is complicated. Providing this information would advance the Judicial Council's goal of improving access to the court system.

The proposed forms contain the following information:

- An overview of the legal process for these requests;
- Actionable steps that litigants should take to make a request;
- Tips on how to understand and comply with the court's orders; and
- Actionable steps to accomplish legal service, when applicable.

The committees included icons to help individuals more quickly and accurately understand the information provided. The use of checklists and flowcharts on pages 2 through 4 make the forms more interactive and user-friendly.

Differences between form CH-160-INFO and form DV-160-INFO

Both proposed information forms have almost identical content. Differences between the forms include references to form numbers, information on filing fees, and outside agencies listed as resources.[1]

Unlike domestic violence proceedings, civil harassment proceedings require a filing fee unless the person qualifies for an income-based fee waiver[2] or the allegations include violence, threats of violence, stalking, or any event that placed the moving party in reasonable fear of violence.[3] Information regarding fees is on page 1 of both forms.

Several of the INFO forms in the Domestic Violence Prevention series provide information for the National Domestic Violence Hotline, as does the Judicial Council's website. The committees believe this information is important to include as a resource on DV-160-INFO, especially for individuals whose requests are denied. The hotline provides support for domestic violence victims 24 hours a day, seven days a week, including an advocate to speak to about safety planning.[4] On form CH-160-INFO, the committees recommend including the contact information for the National Sexual Assault Hotline, National Human Trafficking Hotline, and stalking hotline of the VictimConnect Resource Center (a program of the National Center for Victims of Crime), because these resources are more likely to be used by minors involved in these case types.

Policy implications

There are no policy implications for this proposal. The information sheets are to inform litigants of a new remedy created by recently enacted legislation.

Comments

This proposal went out for public comments from April 11 to June 10, 2019. The committees received comments from nine commenters including the Superior Courts of Los Angeles, Orange, San Bernardino, San Diego, and Ventura Counties; the Joint Rules Subcommittee (JRS) of the Trial Court Presiding Judges Advisory Committee (TCPJAC) and the Court Executives Advisory Committee (CEAC); the Family Violence Law Center; and a paralegal student from Washington, D.C. Nine commenters responded to the proposal. Four commenters agreed with the proposal, two commenters agreed with the proposal if modified, two commenters did not indicate a position, and one commenter opposed the proposal. The commenter that opposed the proposal did not directly comment on the substance of the proposal but shared their personal experience with the court system as a litigant in a domestic violence proceeding.

A few comments provided suggestions clarifying the role of self-help centers. One commenter suggested clearly stating that self-help staff do not help with redactions in a situation where a self-represented litigant is ordered by the court to prepare redacted documents. Two commenters suggested including that self-help centers provide legal information and not legal advice. The committees carefully considered these comments and decided to not accept these revisions. Self-help centers provide a variety of services, including preparing proposed orders. While some self-help centers may not prepare the redacted documents, staff can assist by explaining what redaction means, what the judge's orders are, and give examples of how a document can be redacted. The committees included the following language to clarify the role of self-help center staff: "Self-help center staff will not act as your lawyer but can give you information to help you decide what to do in your case."

One commenter suggested that it would be beneficial for the CH-160-INFO and DV-160-INFO forms to include information on what the party may do if the court denies their sealing request (request for confidentiality). The committees agree with the commenter and added the following language to the forms, "If the judge does not approve your request, you may have other legal options available to you. Visit your local court's self-help center or talk with a lawyer."

The committees posed specific questions in the Invitation to Comment, including the following: "Do you have any suggestions for improving the usability or readability?" There were several specific comments with suggestions for improving the readability of the forms. The specific comments and changes in the forms are noted on the comment chart. There were some changes made to lower the reading level in specific places, although there are some words, like "domestic violence restraining order," which bring the reading level up to a ninth-grade reading level.

Alternatives considered

As mentioned above, the committees considered whether to include self-help centers as a resource for help preparing redacted documents. The committees believe it is appropriate to list self-help centers as a resource.

While the draft forms in the Invitation to Comment did not include information regarding service of court papers, the committees decided to add this information to the proposal. Service of process is a particularly hard concept for litigants to understand. While including the information substantially lengthened the forms, the committees believe this information will help litigants comply with service requirements.

Fiscal and Operational Impacts

The advisory committees anticipate that any cost associated with implementation (e.g., printing costs) would be offset by cost savings associated with providing more readily available information for self-represented litigants.

CH-160-INFO Privacy Protection for a Minor (Person Under 18 Years Old) Civil Harassment Prevention

Can I keep information about a minor confidential?

Yes. In a civil harassment restraining order case, you can ask a judge to make information about a minor confidential. Confidential means that the public is unable to see the information, because the information is kept private. This is important because most papers in your court case are available for the public to see. This means anyone can view information on your papers, including information about a minor. If the judge grants your request, the public will not be able to see the minor's information on your paperwork.

Who can make this request?

Several people can make this request, including a minor's parent or legal guardian. Any minor protected by a restraining order can make this request, as well. Also, any person, including a minor, who is the accused person in a case may make this request.

A minor can make this request without the help of an adult. This depends on the minor's age, though. If the minor is 12 years old or younger, the judge may want an adult to help the minor make this request.

For more information on who can make this request, contact your local self-help center or a lawyer.

What information can I ask the judge to make confidential?

A judge can make any information about a minor confidential. That means that you can ask to make confidential, the minor's name, address, any statements about the minor's abuse, or any abuse the minor witnessed.

If you only want to protect the minor's address, you do not have to make this request. Instead, you can use a different address on your restraining order request, such as a mailing address that is not where the minor lives, a P.O. box, or someone else's address. If you use someone else's address, be sure to get their permission first.

Whatever address you use, make sure you will get your mail regularly. This is important, because the address you use is the address the court and other party will use to send you papers for your case.

Does this request cost money?

That depends on the type of harassment. If the person you want to restrain used or threatened to use violence against you or stalked you, you do not have to pay a filing fee. Otherwise, you must pay a filing fee.

If you cannot afford to pay the filing fee, ask the court clerk how to apply for a fee waiver. You will need to fill out form FW-001.

If the order is based on prior acts of violence, a credible threat of violence, or stalking, the sheriff or marshal must serve your order for free. Also, if you are eligible for a fee waiver, you can ask the sheriff or marshal to serve the order for free. If you are not eligible for free service, you must pay the sheriff or marshal to serve the order.

I need an interpreter. How can I get help?

You may use form INT-300 to request an interpreter. Ask court staff for information.

I have a disability. How can I get help?

You may use form MC-410 to request assistance. Contact the disability/ADA coordinator at your local court for more information.

Do I need a lawyer to make this request?

No, but this type of request can be hard to get through on your own. Free help may be available at your local court's self-help center. (See below.)

Where can I find a self-help center?

Find your local court's self-help center at www.courts.ca.gov/selfhelp. Self-help center staff will not act as your lawyer but can give you information to help you decide what to do in your case.

Where can I find other help?

For safety tips or other help, call or visit the following hotlines online:

National Human Trafficking Hotline, 1-888-373-788; TTY: 711, humantraffickinghotline.org;

National Sexual Assault Hotline, 1-800-656-4673, www.rainn.org; and Stalking Hotline, 1-855-484-2846, victimconnect.org/statistics/stalking/.

What do I have to do to make information about a minor confidential?

You can use these steps as a checklist.

◯ Step 1: Complete the forms

You will need to complete these forms to make your request:

◯ Form CH-160

◯ Form CH-165 (complete items 1 and 2 only)

You can find these forms online at www.courts.ca.gov/forms.

► See tips to complete the forms.

To request a restraining order, you need to complete different forms. See form CH-100-INFO for a list of forms you need to complete to request a restraining order.

◯ Step 2: Take the forms to your court clerk to file

Find out which courthouse to take your forms to by calling your local court or searching online at www.courts.ca.gov/find-my-court.htm.

◯ Step 3: Understand the judge's order

The judge will write your orders on form CH-165. The judge will grant or deny your request.

► See page 3 for what this means.

◯ Step 4: Give court papers to other parties

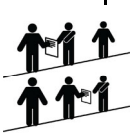
In some cases, you will need to have your server give court papers to the other parties in your case. This process is called service.

► See page 4 for tips to complete service.



Tips for Step 1: Complete the forms

I only want to protect the minor's address: If you only want to protect the minor's address, you do not have to make this request. See "What information can I make confidential?" on page 1 for more information.

I want to protect multiple minors. Only an adult who is the minors' parent or legal guardian may make a request to protect multiple minors' information.

My right to cancel my restraining order request: If you are the party asking for the civil harassment restraining order and the judge does not grant your confidentiality request, you have the right to cancel your civil harassment restraining order request.

To have your civil harassment restraining order request canceled, check the box on form CH-160, item 7(a), and form CH-160, item 8(d)(1), if it applies.

If you cancel your civil harassment restraining order request, you will not receive a civil harassment restraining order at this time.

If, after canceling your civil harassment restraining order request, you want to ask for a civil harassment restraining order based on the same facts, you must start the process over. See form CH-100-INFO for more information.

▶Tips for Step 3: Understand the judge's order

Look at form CH-165 to see what the judge decided.

What if the judge granted my request?

Look closely at form CH-165, pages 2–5, to see what information the judge made confidential in your case. If the judge granted your request to keep information confidential, the information the judge decided to keep confidential will not be available to the public. The information will only be available to the parties in the case.

At times, the judge may make information confidential from the other party in your case. If this happens, the judge will complete box 9(b) on form CH-165.

Now, take a close look at item 10 on form CH-165. This tells you who is responsible for redacting the information on your paperwork and deadline for filing it with the court.

Redacting means to hide (blacken or whiten out) information so it cannot be seen. If the judge makes you responsible for redacting the information, your local self-help center may be able to help you.

What if the judge did not grant (denied) my request?

This means that if you move forward with your case, the minor's information will not be confidential on your paperwork. This is important, because anyone can go to your local courthouse and ask to see the documents you filed in this case.

If the judge does not grant your request, you may have other legal options available to you. Visit your local court's self-help center or talk with a lawyer.

▷ What if I asked to cancel my restraining order request?

If you checked box 7(a) or 8(d)(1) on form CH-160 and the judge denied your request, the paperwork you turned in with this request will not be available to the public, except for page 1 of form CH-165. This includes form CH-100 and any proposed order forms. The court will either return these forms to you, destroy them, or delete them from their records unless you give the court permission to file the forms.

▷ What if I file documents with the court in the future?

If you file documents with the court in the future, be sure to use form CH-175 as a cover sheet and follow the instructions at the top of the form.

▷ Is there a penalty for disclosing confidential information?

Misusing or giving out confidential information can result in a fine of up to $1,000 or other court penalties. Confidential information may be given to the police to help them enforce the judge's order.

▶Tips for Step 4: Give court papers to all parties in your case

In some cases, the judge will order you to serve your court papers. Look at form CH-165 to see what the judge decided.

What did the judge decide in your case?

The judge granted my request to keep some of the minor's information confidential.

Your papers must be served. Follow steps 1–5 below.

The judge denied (did not grant) my request to keep some information confidential. I canceled my request for a restraining order and there is no other issue in this case for a judge to decide on.

Your papers do not need to be served. You may stop here.

The judge denied (did not grant) my request to keep some information confidential. I did not cancel my request for a restraining order. The case is still open.

If this is your situation, forms CH-160 and CH-165 must be served by mail or in-person. Follow steps 3–5 below.

◯ Step 1: Find out which papers you need to serve

The judge will check which papers you need to serve to the other parties in your case on form CH-165, item 13.

◯ Step 2: Find out whether you need to serve the other parties personally or by mail.

The judge will check how you need to serve your court papers to the other parties in your case on form CH-165, item 13.

If the judge checks item 13(a), you will need to have your server personally serve (give) your court papers to the other parties in your case.

If the judge checks item 13(b), you will need to have your server mail your court papers.

◯ Step 3: Choose a server

The person who serves your papers is called a server. Your server must be at least 18 years old, not protected by the restraining order, and not involved in your case. You are not allowed to serve your own court papers.

Some situations may be dangerous. Think about people's safety when deciding who you choose to serve your court papers.

A sheriff or marshal will serve your court papers for free. Another option is a process server.

A process server is a business you pay to deliver court papers. To hire a process server, look for "process server" on the internet or in the yellow pages.

◯ Step 4: Have your server give your court papers to all parties

For personal service, give your server your court papers as well as form CH-200.

For service by mail, give your server your court papers as well as form CH-250.

◯ Step 5: File proof with the court

The court needs proof that your papers were served. After your server completes form CH-200 or form POS-040, take it to the court to file in your case.

If the sheriff or marshal served your papers, they may use another form for proof instead of form CH-200. Make sure a copy is filed with the court and that you get a copy.

For more information, read form CH-200-INFO or ask your local court's self-help center for help.

1.	Family Violence Law Center By Cory Hernandez Staff Attorney	AM	1. We believe it would be beneficial for the CH-160-INFO and DV-160-INFO forms to include information on what the party may do if the court denies their sealing request.	1. The committees agree and have added the following language, "If the judge does not approve your request, you may have other legal options available to you. Visit your local court's self-help center or talk with a lawyer."
			2. We appreciate including contact information for various agencies and organizations providing social services and assistance.	2. No response required.
			3. In general, we like the drafted CH-160-INFO and DV-160-INFO forms. However, we have concerns that the average minor will not be able to fully understand the information. We believe the average reading level of an adult in this state is about 8th grade, and for a minor who's likely to go through this type of case, it'd be more like 5th grade. For instance, when discussing disability accommodations on page 2, we wonder whether the average minor would know what "accommodation" means.	3. The committees agree and have made changes to simplify the language. Most of the form is at a fourth-grade reading level. However, using the phrase "domestic violence restraining order" brings the reading level up to ninth grade. Given that the forms are referred to as "domestic violence restraining orders," the committees believe it is important to continue to use consistent terminology.
			4. On page 2, for both forms (CH-160-INFO & DV-160-INFO), in the paragraph, "My right to cancel restraining order," the forms should explain the consequences of cancelling the request.	4. The committees agree and have included this on the forms.

In civil harassment cases, there are filing fees unless fees are expressly waived. The committee added a detailed explanation of the options for litigants in this section. 2. Under the section, "Who can make the request?" there is information about the possibility of the judge requiring an adult to help the minor with the request. This keeps the language simpler and therefore more accessible to minors, who are the target audience. 3. The committees considered this comment but decided not to make this addition because California Rules of Court, rules 3.1161 and 5.382 expressly require the court to decide who should be responsible for redaction, which includes whether the requesting party has immediate access to a self-help center. The committees have revised this paragraph to the following, "Can I keep information about a minor confidential? Yes. In a domestic violence restraining order case, you can ask a judge to make information about a minor confidential." 2. In response to another comment, the committees have proposed new language in this paragraph. 3. Thank you. The committees have added language to make this point.

Executive Summary

The Family and Juvenile Law Advisory Committee recommends adopting two forms, approving one information form, and revising an information form and one other form to implement the provisions in Assembly Bill 2694 (Stats. 2018, ch. 219). The bill allows for alternative service for domestic violence restraining order requests when, after diligent efforts, personal service has not been accomplished and there is reason to believe that the person to be served is evading service.

Recommendation

The Family and Juvenile Law Advisory Committee recommends the following, effective January 1, 2020:

1. Adopt form DV-117, Order Granting Alternative Service, and form, DV-210, Summons (Domestic Violence Restraining Order);

2. Approve form DV-205-INFO, What if the Person I Want Protection From is Avoiding (Evading) Service?;

3. Revise form DV-200-INFO, What is "Proof of Personal Service"?; and

4. Revise form DV-250, Proof of Service by Mail.

The new and revised forms are attached at pages 7–15.

Relevant Previous Council Action

In 2016, form DV-200-INFO was revised to implement the provisions in AB 1081 (Stats. 2015, ch. 411), which broadened and clarified the grounds for granting a continuance, excised the concept of "reissuance" of a protective order from the statutes, and clarified that a temporary restraining order may be extended to a new hearing date without first having to be "dissolved by the court." No previous council action has been taken on the other three forms included in this proposal, which are being proposed for the first time.

Analysis/Rationale

This proposal implements newly enacted law by providing forms for the public and courts to use. These forms are necessary to ensure that litigants representing themselves have access to the relief provided under Family Code section 6340(a)(2), and to provide consistency in court processes and orders statewide.

Adopt form DV-210, Summons (Domestic Violence Restraining Order)

This form would serve as the summons that would be used when the court permits a method of alternative service that requires service of a summons. The goal of the summons is to stress to the person to be restrained the importance of acting on a request for restraining order either by going to the scheduled court hearing or going to the courthouse to find out more information about the request for restraining order. To this end, the summons includes:

- The name of the person requesting the restraining order;
- Information on what can happen if the person to be restrained does NOT go to the court hearing;
- The statement, "Having a restraining order against you may affect your life, including preventing you from having guns and ammunition";
- Where to go to see the request for the restraining order;
- Where to go to get help; and
- When and where to go for the court hearing.

Code of Civil Procedure section 412.20 requires that a summons contain specific elements, including what would happen if the "defendant" (in this case the person to be restrained) does nothing in an action brought against them. No other form in the Domestic Violence Prevention (DV) series could be used as a summons and comply with the code requirements. In addition, other forms in the DV series contain more information than what is needed for a summons, as defined by the code, such as the address for the person requesting the restraining order. Including additional information raises potential safety issues for the person seeking the restraining order if, for example, the information were widely distributed, such as posted in a courthouse or published in a newspaper.

Form DV-210 is designed to comply with section 412.20 by giving the person to be restrained the necessary information to act, should they choose to, while excluding sensitive information that is not required. The form is also completely bilingual in Spanish.

Adopt form DV-117, Order Granting Alternative Service

The committee recommends adopting form DV-117, a one-page attachment that would be used when a court grants a request for alternative service. In the Invitation to Comment, the committee recommended revising the continuance order (form DV-116) to include additional methods for service in the Service of Order section. One commenter suggested that this information be on a separate form since alternative methods of service will not apply in a majority of cases. The committee agrees with the commenter and recommends adopting form DV-117 for this purpose.

On form DV-117, the court would specify the (1) deadline for service, (2) papers to be served on the restrained party, and (3) method for service. The form, at item 2, also includes the findings required for the court to grant alternative service. The findings are included at item 2, instead of item 1, so that the specific orders relating to service are more prominent for the protected party.

Approve new information form DV-205-INFO

New form DV-205-INFO, What if the Person I Want Protection From Is Avoiding (Evading) Service?, would give the moving party in a domestic violence restraining order case information on the availability of alternative service, including:

- The type of service generally required for the court to issue a restraining order after hearing;
- What a litigant would need to show the court to qualify for alternative service; and
- Some examples of alternative methods of service.

Revise information form on personal service (form DV-200-INFO)

To comply with AB 2694, this information sheet needs to be revised to include alternative service as an option. Currently, the form states that personal service is required for all cases. The revised version would state that, although in most cases personal service would be required, in some cases alternative service may be allowed.

In addition to changing the service requirement, the committee also recommends:

- Reformatting the form so that the information is presented in two columns. This is consistent with the formatting used in other information forms and also makes the form easier to read by creating shorter lines of text.
- Including graphics to represent key concepts, like personal service and avoiding service.
- Using plain language.

- Reorganizing content into steps the litigant must take to accomplish service.
- Including an advisement on possible safety issues that could be present at the time of service.

The revisions are recommended to improve the usability of the form.

Revise form DV-250

At item 4, on form DV-250, the committee proposes a minor change to strike the following sentence, "Note: You cannot serve DV-100, DV-105, DV-109, or DV-110 by mail." This sentence is inconsistent with the new laws on alternative service which may involve service by mail of the DV-100, DV-109, DV-110, and any other attachments to these forms. This change was not proposed in the Invitation to Comment, but the committee believes that this change is a minor substantive change that is unlikely to generate controversy and proposes to make the change without public comment consistent with California Rules of Court, rule 10.22(d)(2).

Policy implications

There are no policy implications for this proposal.

Comments

Twelve commenters responded to this proposal, including five courts: the Superior Courts of Los Angeles, Orange, San Bernardino, San Diego, and Ventura Counties. Other commenters are the Joint Rules Subcommittee (JRS) on behalf of the Trial Court Presiding Judges Advisory Committee and the Court Executives Advisory Committee; the Director of Domestic Violence Clinic, University of California, Irvine School of Law; the Family Violence Law Center; the Executive Committee of the Family Law Section of the California Lawyers Association; the Harriett Buhai Center for Family Law; and the Orange County Bar Association.

Five commenters agreed with the proposal, five agreed if modified; and two did not indicate a position but suggested modifications. No commenter opposed the proposal. Most modifications proposed by commenters were incorporated. Some issues received more than one comment and are described below.

Whether to create a new request form or revise DV-115

One commenter suggested that a request for an alternative service form be created because form DV-115 is too general and should contain specific questions to elicit the information needed for the court to allow for service by alternative means. Another commenter suggested including more specific questions on form DV-115 to elicit information needed. The committee agrees that form DV-115 is not the right form to be used by itself to elicit the information needed for a request to serve by alternative means. In cases where a petitioner wants to serve by publication or posting, the committee notes that there are existing family law forms available for these requests that can be used in domestic violence restraining order proceedings, and form DV-205-INFO refers people to these forms. In the future as time and resources permit, the committee will consider whether to propose a request for an alternative service form.

Advisal regarding consequences of restraining order on Summons (form DV-210)

A few commenters suggested modifying the language regarding the consequences of a restraining order. Some suggested including more examples of the types of orders that could be included in a restraining order (stay away, no contact orders, spousal support, financial support, attorney's fees). One commenter stated that some of the language is unnecessary and that it may be suggesting that the respondent should fight the restraining order.

The committee decided against including more examples of potential orders because the committee believes that the language circulated for public comment does a good job of putting the restrained party on notice of the potential consequences of failing to appear for a restraining order hearing. The committee does not agree that the language may be suggesting that the respondent should fight the restraining order but believes that it is sufficient to put the restrained party on notice of the possible consequences for not going to their court date.

Bilingual Summons form

Two commenters made suggestions on the layout of the form and how it could be improved to provide access to the Spanish translations. One commenter suggested creating a separate Spanish version because the first page is hard to read with both English and Spanish. The other commenter suggested including both English and Spanish information on one page. Based on these comments, the committee reorganized the two-page form so that each side is fully bilingual while also creating more white space so the form is easier to read; the information that is most important is on page 1.

Alternatives considered

As noted above, committee considered a commenter's suggestion to have a separate Spanish version of form DV-210 and not include Spanish translations on the English version of form DV-210 because the translations made the form crowded and hard to read. The committee did not accept the suggestion but did reformat the form so that the content is easier to read.

Fiscal and Operational Impacts

The committee anticipates that this proposal will result in some costs incurred by courts to incorporate new forms into their paper or electronic processes and to train court staff. However, the committee also anticipates that the proposal will result in cost savings by creating a new summons form that would otherwise have to be created by local courts to use if publication or posting is ordered. The new information sheet (form DV-205-INFO) could also create cost savings by providing self-help centers and court staff with a tool to assist self-represented litigants and possibly decrease the number of hearings needed in cases where personal service has been unsuccessful.

DV-200-INFO What Is "Proof of Personal Service"?

What is "service"?

Service is the act of giving your court papers to the other party in your case. There are different ways to serve the other party: in person, by mail, and others.

Why do I have to serve my legal papers?

Before a judge can grant a domestic violence restraining order (that can last up to five years), the person you want a restraining order against must know about your request and have a chance to go to court to explain their side. Also, if a restraining order is in place, the police cannot arrest the restrained person for violating the restraining order until the restrained person is served with the order.

What is "personal service"?

Personal service is when someone, known as a server, personally delivers your court papers to the other party.

In most cases, these forms must be served to the other party by personal service:

- Form DV-109;
- Form DV-100;
- Form DV-110;
- Form DV-120 (leave this form blank);
- Form DV-120-INFO; and
- Form DV-250 (leave this form blank).

Who can serve?

Any adult who is not protected by the restraining order can serve your court papers. You cannot serve your own court papers.

Some situations may be dangerous. Think about people's safety when deciding who you want to serve your papers.

A sheriff or marshal will serve your court papers for free. A registered process server is a business you pay to deliver papers. To hire a process server, look for "process server" on the internet or in the yellow pages.

How do I have my court papers served?

◯ Step 1: Choose a server

The person who gives your court papers to the other party is called a server. Your server must be at least 18-years-old. They must not be protected by the restraining order or involved in your case. This means that you cannot serve your own court papers.

◯ Step 2: Have your server give your court papers to the other party

Give your server these instructions:

❶ Before you serve the forms, note which forms you have, including the name of the form and the form number. See form DV-200 for a list of forms.

❷ Find the person you need to serve. Make sure you are serving the right person by asking the person's name.

❸ Give the person the papers. If the person refuses to take the papers, put them on the ground or somewhere next to the person. The person doesn't have to touch or sign for the papers. It is okay if they tear them up.

❹ Fill out form DV-200 completely and sign.

❺ File form DV-200 with the court or give form DV-200 to the person who is asking for the restraining order so they can file it.

◯ Step 3: File proof with the court

The court needs proof that service happened and that it was done correctly. If your server was successful, have your server fully complete and sign form DV-200. The person you want restrained does not sign anything.

Take form DV-200 to the court to file in your case as soon as possible. This information will automatically go into a restraining order database that police have access to.

If the sheriff or marshal served your court papers, they may use another form for proof besides form DV-200. Make sure a copy is filed with the court and that you get a copy.

When is the deadline to serve my court papers?

It depends. To know the exact date, you need to look at two items on form DV-109. Follow these steps:

◯ Step 3: Look at a calendar. Subtract the number of days in 6 from the court date. That's the deadline to have your court papers served. It's okay to serve your court papers before the deadline.

If nothing is written in 6, you must have your court papers served at least five days before your court date.

What happens if I can't get my court papers served before the court date?

You will need to ask the court to reschedule (continue) your court date. Fill out and file form DV-115 and form DV-116. These forms ask the judge for a new court date and to make any temporary orders last until the end of the new court date.

If the judge gives you a new court date, the person you want restrained will have to be served with form DV-116, form DV-115, and the original papers you filed. You should keep a copy of form DV-115, form DV-116, and a copy of your original paperwork. That way, the police will know your orders are still in effect.

For more information on asking for a new court date, read form DV-115-INFO.

What if the other party is avoiding (evading) service?

If you've tried many times to serve the the restrained person, and you can show the judge that the restrained person is avoiding (evading) service, you may ask the court to allow you to serve another way. If you want to make this request, at your first court date tell the judge details about your attempts to have the restrained person served. The judge may require a written statement for this.

Read form DV-205-INFO, What if the Person I Want Protection From is Avoiding (Evading) Service?, for more information.

DV-205-INFO What if the Person I Want Protection From is Avoiding (Evading) Service?

Why do I have to serve the restrained person?

Before a judge can grant a domestic violence restraining order (that can last up to five years), the person you want a restraining order against must know about your request and have a chance to go to court to explain their side. In most cases, the judge will require that you have someone personally deliver the papers to the person you want restrained. This is called personal service. See form DV-200-INFO for more information.

What if I already have a domestic violence restraining order?

If a judge granted you a domestic violence restraining order on form DV-130, alternative service is not an option for you. Follow the orders for service on form DV-130. It is important to follow the orders for service because this is how the restrained person will find out about the restraining orders. Once you file proof that the restrained person was served, law enforcement and the court will have proof that the restrained person knows about the orders. If you have questions about what the judge ordered in your case, see page 3 for where to get legal help.

What if I can't personally serve the restrained person?

When you cannot personally serve the restrained person with a copy of form DV-100 and related papers, a judge may allow you to give, or serve, the restraining order papers another way. This is called alternative service. The judge could order you to have your server give the restrained person your court papers in more than one way. To qualify for alternative service, you must show the judge at least two things.

❶ You have tried many times (usually 3 or more times) to have someone personally serve the restrained person.

Some examples of ways you can try to have the restrained person personally served:

- Serve the restrained person at home, their workplace, or somewhere they go a lot.
- Search online for where they may be located.
- Check with their family and friends.

Make sure any attempts to find the restrained person are done safely.

If you have an address for the restrained person, you can ask the sheriff or marshal to serve your papers, and they will do it for free.

❷ You believe the restrained person is avoiding (evading) personal service.

Be ready to explain why you think the restrained person is avoiding service. If you have people who will help you prove this to a judge, bring them to your court hearing or have them write a statement that describes what they witnessed. Form MC-030 may be used for this purpose.

Alternative service may involve other people having access to your court papers.

This will mean they can see your name, the fact that you want a restraining order against the other party, and possibly your statements regarding the abuse. You may want to talk to an advocate about your safety and privacy concerns before you consider this request.

DV-205-INFO What if the Person I Want Protection From is Avoiding (Evading) Service?

What are some examples of alternative service?

Here are some examples of what a judge can order if the judge allows alternative service in your case.

❶ Leave a copy and mail a copy to the restrained person's home, mailing address, or workplace

If you have the restrained person's home, mailing (not a PO box), or workplace address, this type of service requires your server to follow these steps:

❶ Give the papers to someone 18 years or older who lives at the restrained person's home or mailing address, or who appears to be in charge at the restrained person's workplace;

❸ Mail the papers to the restrained person's home, mailing, or workplace address;

❹ Completely fill out form POS-010; and ❺ File form POS-010 with the court or give the completed form to the person asking for the restraining order so they can file it with the court.

This type of service is called "substituted service." Check with your local self-help center or a lawyer to find out how to make this request. Your court may have forms that you can complete to make this request.

❷ Publish in a newspaper

You would have to pay a newspaper to run a copy of form DV-210 at least once a week for at least four weeks in a row. The judge would approve a newspaper that would have the best chances of the restrained person seeing it. To make this request, complete the forms listed below and take them to the courthouse to file.

- Form FL-980; and
- Form DV-210, items 1 and 2.

If the judge grants your request, follow the orders made by the judge. Usually these orders are made on form FL-982.

After the newspaper publishes form DV-210, make sure you get a signed statement from the newspaper that includes a copy of what was published in the newspaper and when it was published. This statement is usually called "Proof of Publication." After you receive this statement, take it to the courthouse to file in your case.

❸ Post in courthouse

If you do not have money to pay a newspaper to publish your papers, you could ask the judge for permission to post a copy of form DV-210 in a courthouse. To be eligible, you have to qualify for a fee waiver. To make a request to post your court papers in a courthouse, complete the forms listed below. Take the completed forms to the courthouse to file.

- Form FW-001;
- Form FL-980; and
- Form DV-210, items 1 and 2.

If the judge allows you to serve the restrained person this way, you must find a server (an adult not protected by the restraining order or ask the court clerk) to post form DV-210 for you in the location approved by the judge for at least 28 days. After it has been posted for the required number of days, have your server completely fill out form FL-985 and form DV-250. Take both forms to the courthouse to file in your case.

DV-205-INFO What if the Person I Want Protection From is Avoiding (Evading) Service?

May I serve by email or electronically?

To serve someone electronically, like by email or text message, the person you are serving has to agree to being served electronically. In your situation, if the person is avoiding service, it is unlikely that they will agree to being served electronically. The judge could tell you to send your paperwork by email or electronically to the restrained person as a way to give the restrained person notice, but the judge would also tell you to serve the restrained person in another way, like one of the examples listed above.

Where can I find legal help?

Free legal information is available in every county at a court self-help center. Staff can provide you with your legal options but will not tell you what you should do in your case and will not provide you with legal representation. To find your local self-help center, go to www.courts.ca.gov/selfhelp.

1.	California Lawyers Association, Executive Committee of the Family Law Section By Saul Bercovitch, Director of Governmental Affairs California Lawyers Association 400 Capitol Mall, Suite 650 Sacramento, CA 95814 916-516-1704 saul.bercovitch@calawyers.org	A	FLEXCOM agrees with this proposal and offers the minor suggestions below for the Family and Juvenile Law Advisory Committee's consideration. 1. As to form DV-210, the Committee may wish to consider whether it would be advisable to augment the existing third bulleted paragraph under section (2), which currently reads "Having a restraining order against you may impact your life, including preventing you from having guns or ammunition." Our suggestion is to augment the sentence with the underlined language, so it would read, "Having a restraining order against you may impact your life, including preventing you from having guns or ammunition, or from obtaining or maintaining certain jobs or licenses." 2. As to form DV-205-INFO, we offer the suggestion of adding the parenthetical "(an adult not protected by the restraining order)" after the word "someone" in the first paragraph on page 1, entitled "Why do I have to serve the other party?" 3. In the language of enumerated paragraph 5 under the two sections that begins "Leave a copy and mail a copy…" we offer the suggestion of having the	1. The committee thanks the commenter for this response but does not believe this statement is appropriate without having a statutory basis for including it. While it may be harder for a person restrained by a protective order to obtain employment that requires the possession of a firearm, the Domestic Violence Prevention Act does provide an exemption for firearms for work purposes if certain criteria can be met. 2. The committee thanks the commenter for the suggestion. Because the purpose of the paragraph is to explain why service is needed the committee does not believe that the suggested language, which refers to a requirement for service, should be included. Instead, the committee proposes changing the last sentence to "See form DV-200-INFO for personal service requirements." 3. The committee has reorganized these sections so that some of the information is clearly directed at the server as instructions for the server.

			language read "File form POS-010 with the court or give the completed form to you so you can file it with the court." This is suggested because the rest of the instructions are already directed to the person seeking the restraining the restraining order, and use the term "you."
2.	Family Violence Law Center By Cory Hernandez Staff Attorney 470 27th St. Oakland, CA 94612 510-208-0220 chernandez@fvlc.org	AM	1. Since the Council is updating the DV-200-INFO form to discuss alternative methods of service, why not the DV-700-INFO form as well? While some of us believe the new law (AB 2694) applies only to the TRO/DVRO stage, and not renewals, we all still believe alternative methods of service are allowed for renewals. 2. We strongly believe all of these forms need to be available in Spanish and, if possible, other languages, as well. 3. For proposed DV-210 (Summons), we are generally agreeable to the idea of the form and most of its contents, and we appreciate the goal of complying with CCP section 412.20 while also excluding unnecessary and sensitive information of the case. We are split on whether to include a statement saying the restraining order may affect the respondent's life. Some of us think the language is unnecessary, unduly provocative (e.g., "the court could make orders that limit your time with your child"), and somewhat entering the territory of suggesting or recommending the respondent	1. The committee will consider this request in a future cycle. 2. The committee agrees. Forms are translated with available resources. Staff will look into the possibility of translating these forms. 3. Thank you for your comment. The committee does not agree that the language may be suggesting that the respondent should fight the restraining order. The committee believes the language, as proposed in the Invitation to Comment, does a good job of providing the restrained party with the possible consequences of not appearing at the court date.

			should fight the restraining order. Others like language along this line to make it clear the ramifications of having a restraining order against you. We would suggest being very cautious with this type of language, and really thinking about what statutory authority allows the Judicial Council to include such language, and the reasons the committee wants to add this. If the committee decides to keep some of this language, which on the Summons is the third dot in the dot-list under item 2, then we would suggest better, clearer language, like: "Having a restraining order against you may impact child custody and visitation, spousal support, and your right to possess guns and ammunition."
			4. The Spanish translations need to be on a separate form. As the draft stands now, the form is very hard to read with two languages, and can be very confusing very fast to unrepresented litigants.	4. The committee believes that having a fully bilingual summons form is important but agrees that the draft included in the Invitation to Comment is hard to read because it has too much information on the first page. The committee has revised the proposed form to include more information on the second page while including more important information on the first page.
			5. The fourth dot in the dot-list (dot-list is better than "bullet list" because it's less violent) under item 2 is missing a comma after "the judge to order."	5. The committee has made this revision.
			6. The fifth dot in item 2's dot-list should clarify that self-help centers do not provide legal advice	6. The committee does not believe that this level of detail is needed. The goal of this or representation, they just provide information and help with completing some forms.	form is notify the restrained person that someone wants a restraining order against them. In the event that they do not understand what the summons means, the summons refers them to a self-help center so that they can learn what the paperwork means. It is the practice of self-help center staff to inform customers of the center's ability to provide information and legal options only, and not advice. If the restrained person later decides that they want to hire a lawyer, the restrained person will be entitled to one continuance to do so.

			DV-205-INFO. 7. There should be added the same statement and information from the first page of the DV-200-INFO form under "Who can serve?" outlining, "Any adult who is not protected by the restraining order . . . ."	7. The committee thanks the commenter for the suggestion. Because the purpose of the paragraph is to explain why service is needed the committee does not believe that the suggested language, which refers to a requirement for service, should be included. Instead, the committee proposes changing the last sentence to "See form DV-200-INFO for personal service requirements."
			8. On the first page of this form, the penultimate sentence of the "How do I make a request for alternative service?" section should add "or attorney" after "an advocate."	8. The committee has made this revision.

	Commenter	Position	Comment	Committee Responses
			9. On the second page of this form, in the section of "What are some examples of alternative service?" the second sentence should be revised to read (emphasis added for revisions): "A judge could order service on the restrained party in more than one way."	9. Thank you for your comment. The committee has revised the sentence to "The judge could order you to have your server give the restrained person your court papers in more than one way" to make more clear that someone else, not petitioner, must serve the court papers.
			10. And third and fourth sentences should be added to state: "This service cannot be done by you or anyone listed on your restraining order. This service must be done by another adult of your choice." This way the person reading this doesn't think they are the one who can or will do the service, which is not allowed.	10. The committee agrees that the language on the form should make clear that service cannot be done by the party.
			11. On the third page of this form, in the section "Post in the courthouse," remove the sentence, "To be eligible, you have to qualify for a fee waiver." Because this is not true. We have used posting at a courthouse, and other methods of service, without needing to get a fee waiver first. And fees are not required in DVPA proceedings.	11. The committee acknowledges that filing fees are not required in domestic violence restraining order cases under Fam. Code section 6222. However, the council has previously adopted rule 5.72 which requires a determination of financial eligibility for service by posting. Because posting may provide less widespread notice than publication, posting is only available when the requesting party can prove an inability to pay. The method for determining financial eligibility for posting is the same as that for waiving court filing fees through submission of a fee waiver application (FW-001). Courts also have the discretion to order another form of service.

			12. On this same page, in this same section, the penultimate sentence should be revised (emphasis added): "After it is posted for the time ordered by the judge, have your server . . . ."	12. The committee accepts the suggestion but has used different language to convey the same meaning.
			13. On the third page of the form, in the "May I serve by e-mail or electronically?" we would recommend making this a broader question of "May I serve by other means, such as e-mail?" And we would recommend removing the first sentence, because we don't believe the person being served is first required to consent to being served by e-mail. Moreover, we have seen in our practice judges allowing other methods of service, usually with one of the types you've listed in the form (like posting and serving by mail), such as personal service on respondent's family who reside in the same home, or service by email.	13. The committee does not agree with this revision. This paragraph is only meant to explain that electronic service, without consent to receive notice electronically by the opposing party, would be insufficient service. See Code of Civil Procedure. 1010.6 and rule 2.251.
			DV-200-INFO. 14. On the first page of this form, under "What is 'personal service'?," the list seems to be missing DV-120 (blank), DV-120-INFO, the firearm relinquishment forms, etc.	14. The committee has added forms DV-120, DV-120-INFO and DV-250 to this list. These forms are required for service as listed on form DV-109, Notice of Court Hearing.
			15. On the second page of this form, the bottom of the page's section, "Instructions for Server," is easy to miss but very important, so maybe should be bolded more, larger font, boxed in,	15. The committee agrees and has made revisions to this section.

Fischer Staff Attorney 3250 Wilshire Boulevard, Ste 710 Los Angeles, California 90010 Telephone (713) 388-7505	AM	The Harriett Buhai Center for Family Law wholeheartedly supports modifying the rules and forms to address alternative service in DVPA cases. 1. Does the proposal appropriately address the stated process? In general, yes. 2. Are the forms easy for users, especially self-represented litigants, to understand? Yes, see comments below. 3. Do you have any suggestions for improving their usability or readability? DV-210 Summons: A clearer break between items 2 and 3 indicating the court will complete the form below the line 4. 				appearing for the court date. Because some litigants might use this as a strategy the committee did not include the suggested language.
			5. Should other information be included on the new forms (DV-205-INFO and DV-210)? DV-210 Summons: • N/A	5. No response required.
			6. DV-205-INFO: Clarify whether the alternative means of service listed on DV-205-INFO will be available as an option if a litigant has attempted personal service of a Restraining Order After Hearing (DV-130) as ordered in item 25(b)(2) and has been unable to do so or specifically state that the alternative means of service are only available for service of temporary restraining orders. Whether or not the Respondent was served with the temporary order by alternative means or was personally served, a litigant ordered to personally serve the Respondent with the ROAH may look to the DV-200-INFO form for instructions on personal service, and, if the Respondent is evading service at that stage, tum to the DV-205-INFO as suggested by the form. The forms should make it very clear when the alternative means of service are an acceptable alternative for personal service of restraining orders	6. This information is already included on the form on page 2.

			and when the alternative means of service cannot be used. Other comments: 7. If posting is listed as an option for an alternative means of service, it may be helpful to consider modifying the Judicial Council posting forms to recognize this potential use or provide an information sheet on applying for posting under these circumstances. 8. In addition, there seems to be an issue in requiring fee waiver eligibility for permission to serve by posting in a DVPA case. In a DVP A case, a litigant's indigence or ability to pay is not an issue considered for other means of service, such as personal service by a sheriff or marshal. There may be any number of litigants who do not qualify for a fee waiver, but cannot afford to publish in a newspaper. Requiring a litigant to save up money to serve a DVP A action by publication or requiring a hearing on the litigant's financial circumstances as contemplated by FL-982 runs contrary to the goals of the DVPA.	7. The committee will consider this suggestion in the future. 8. The committee acknowledges that filing fees are not required in domestic violence restraining order cases under Family Code section 6222 and service for DVPA matters is waived under Government Code section 6103.2(b)(4). However, under rule 5.72 a determination of financial eligibility for service by posting is required in family law matters. Because posting may provide less widespread notice than publication, posting is only available when the requesting party can prove an inability to pay. The method for determining financial eligibility for posting is the same as that for waiving court filing fees through submission of a fee waiver application (FW-001). The committee notes that courts also have the discretion to order other means of service.

5.	Janani Ramachandran Judicial Extern for Judge Tara Flanagan; Berkeley Law Student	AM	My name is Janani Ramachandran, judicial extern to Judge Tara Flanagan and student at Berkeley Law. I have conducted extensive research on the matter of alternative service in DVROs, and submitted by e-mail my report, including the sample forms I designed. If you have any questions about my comments, you can contact me at jananir92@berkeley.edu. I find that the new DV-210 Summons, the DV-205-INFO, and the edited DV-200-INFO are informative and helpful to the self-represented petitioner, but that those forms alone are insufficient to effectively implement alternative service. 1. My primary comment is that a motion for alternative service form is lacking, which I have created in my sample e-mailed forms. The proposed DV-205-INFO suggests that the DV-115, request to continue, could be instead used to make the request, but I believe that form is too general to be applied here. Having a form motion would enable petitioners be prepared to thoroughly express their arguments to a judge as to why alternative service is needed in their situation. A motion that details the various possible methods by which to try to identify the respondent's whereabouts may also provide petitioners inspiration to pursue those methods prior to seeking alternative service. The sample motion form I created encourages petitioners to attempt a variety of methods of locating the respondent before requesting	1. Thank you for your comment and research on this topic. The committee will consider whether a request for alternative service should be created in the future. Such a form would need to go out for public comment. The committee agrees that form DV-115 should not be revised so that it alone could be used to make a request for alternative service. This is not to say that form DV-115 could not be used together with other available forms.

			alternative service. This includes having the respondent contacted at their home, workplace, by phone or social media, or through friends and family. Ensuring that the petitioner has attempted a variety of methods to have the respondent personally served helps address fears that petitioners can use alternative service to bypass procedural safeguards to protect the respondent's due process rights. It also helps ensure that abusive partners, who file DVRO petitions against their victims as a tactic of litigation abuse, are not using alternative service to manipulate a victim's access to courts and thwart their opportunity to be heard. In addition, the form is written in relatively straightforward language in recognition of the fact that most DVRO petitioners are self-represented and may not have an understanding of fundamental legal processes. Below are additional comments about the proposed forms: 2. Comment on DV-210 Summons: The form should contain stronger language that informs the respondent what the consequences of their failure to appear at court can include. I suggest something along these lines: "NOTICE: A petition for a domestic violence restraining order has been filed against you. You must appear in family court on the date listed above. Failure to appear could result in the court issuing a domestic violence restraining order against you for up to five years. This will require you to stay away from and cease contact with Petitioner and other	2. The committee thanks you for your comment but does not agree with the suggested language. The committee believes that the language, as proposed, provides enough information to put the restrained party on notice of the possible consequences of not appearing at the court date and directs the person to the courthouse to find out about the details of their case.

			protected parties, and prohibit you from being present in certain areas. A restraining order may have a variety of other consequences for you including your rights to child custody and visitation, ability to remain in a home shared with Petitioner, obligations to pay Petitioner financial support and attorney's fees, ability to possess firearms, and requirement to attend batterer-intervention classes. Failing to appear can waive your constitutional right for an opportunity to be heard." 3. Comment on DV-205-INFO: Electronic service - Under the first table, "Am I eligible to serve in another way," I would add more exhaustive methods by which a petitioner can try to personally serve the respondent or identify their whereabouts. This can include using the Respondent's social security number and date of birth, if known, to run a Service Members Civil Relief Act (SCRA) web search to find out if Respondent is currently in the military at https://scra.dmdc.osd.mil/. It can also include running a search on the online Federal Bureau of Prisons Inmate Locator (https://www.bop.gov/inmateloc/) and the CDCR Inmate Locator (https://inmatelocator.cdcr.ca.gov/search.aspx) to find out if Respondent is currently incarcerated.	3. The committee thanks the commenter for the suggestion. In order to qualify for alternative service, the petitioner, in addition to making diligent efforts to serve, must also show that the person is avoiding (evading) service. If a person is incarcerated or in the military, it is unlikely that the petitioner would be able to show that the person is avoiding service. The committee also notes that while the petitioner must show diligent efforts, this does not mean that the petitioner must perform an exhaustive search for the respondent. The court will be best able to decide what satisfies due diligence on a case-by-case basis.

			2. Item 2, third bullet point – Add "…including preventing you from having guns, ammunition, and magazines", to be consistent with the current law.	2. The definition of ammunition includes magazines as well as other types of ammunition. To be consistent with the language in the other domestic violence forms, the committee proposes to keep the language as proposed.
			3. Item 2, third bullet we recommend making the following a stand-alone sentence. "If you have a child with the person in 1, the court could make orders that limit your time with your child."	3. The committee does not agree with suggestion but has reorganized this page so that the information regarding the consequences of failing to appear for a case is more visible.
			4. We suggest a thorough review of the Spanish translation and a separate Spanish version of this form.	4. The summons is a fully bilingual form and therefore a separate Spanish version will not be needed.
			5. Form DV-200-INFO Title: What is "Proof of Personal Service?" – Change to What is "Proof of Service?" Then Detail the different types of service that may be used to effectuate service in priority order. For example, (1) Personal Service, (2) Substitute Service, etc.	5. The committee would like public comment on this and will consider changing the title of the form in a future forms cycle.
			6. Section Title: "What if the other person is avoiding service? (Page 11) – Add "What if the other person is avoiding (evading) service?	6. The committee has added "(evading)" to the heading of the section.

What would the implementation requirements be for courts—for example, training staff (please identify position and expected hours of training), revising processes and procedures (please describe), changing docket codes in case management systems, or modifying case management systems? Implementation requirements would include training of staff from the Court, and Self-Help Centers; estimated time for training is two to three hours. For the Case Management System, it would require the addition of a new document code for form FL-210. 14. Would three months from Judicial Council approval of this proposal until its effective date provide sufficient time for implementation? Yes, three months would be sufficient. 15. 			public bulletin board in the court to post these filings, it would be helpful to reduce the summons to one page to alleviate the need for the court to purchase additional bulletin boards. 2. Is it the intent that the DV-210 will only be issued when the court grants a request for service of the TRO by posting and not every time a Request for Domestic Violence Restraining Order is filed? We recommend that the DV-210 be issued when the court orders service by posting. 3. When the court orders an alternative method of service by posting, how long must the court post the DV-210? Is it 28 days, or 28 days plus an additional 5 days for service requirement under Family Code 243? The code is silent on this issue and it would be beneficial not only to court staff, but to the public, if the number of days to post was set forth in Family Code 243. The same is needed when substitute service or service by publication is granted. 4. Because there are no filing fees required in Domestic Violence cases, the court has already been questioned on why a Request to Waive Court Fees is required when a party is asking the court to order service of the TRO by posting. It would be helpful if this requirement was clearly stated in the appropriate code section.	2. Yes, form DV-210 would only be needed when a method of alternative service requires service of a summons under the Code of Civil Procedure. 3. The timeframe for service is addressed by statute. The question is outside the scope of this proposal. 4. While filing fees are not required in domestic violence restraining order cases under Fam. Code section 6222, the committee notes that the council has previously adopted Rule 5.72 which requires a determination of financial eligibility for service by posting. The suggested revision to applicable statutes is outside the scope of this proposal.

			5. Form DV-205-INFO, last paragraph on Page 1, "How do I make a request for alternative service?" tells filers you can complete form DV-115 to make this request but this is the form to request a continuance of the hearing and does not have a place for the party to make a request for an alternative form of service. There are local and Judicial Council forms to request service by publication and posting that can be referenced. 6. Form DV-205-INFO, Page 3, paragraph one "Post in courthouse" can be confusing to filers as worded because it instructs the filer to find a server to post form DV-210 for you in the location approved by the judge. In many courts there is a designated location for posting and the court staff are the only persons who can post the documents and complete the proof of service. Perhaps this section can be revised to instruct the filer to contact the court to determine the requirements for posting. 7. Form DV-205-INFO – eliminate the paragraph titled "May I serve by e-mail or electronically" - it is highly unlikely that a restrained party will provide the necessary consent and file the appropriate Judicial Council consent form to agree to electronic service, so this writer feels this is information that may cause unnecessary confusion to filers.	5. The committee has removed references to form DV-115 and instead refers people to complete other judicial council forms for publication and posting and to check with their local self-help center on how to make a request for other means of alternative service. 6. The committee has added "or ask the court clerk to post" under this section. 7. The committee did not accept this suggestion. The committee believes that whether service by email or other electronic means would be sufficient service will be a common question that litigants will have given that many people use email as a primary means of communication. The committee agrees that electronic service is unlikely to be permitted as the method for alternative

I have taught domestic violence clinics for over 15 years, having taught at the law schools at Georgetown, American University, and Seattle University prior to being hired in 2013 to direct the Domestic Violence Clinic at the University of California, Irvine (UCI) School of Law, where I also teach Family Law, Domestic Violence Law, and Legal Ethics. The UCI Law Domestic Violence Clinic testified in favor of Assembly Bill 2694 (Stats. 2018, ch. 219) on behalf of multiple clients who were unable to receive legal protection when they could not achieve personal service in domestic violence restraining order cases. The recommendations in this Comment are based on my experience litigating cases in jurisdictions that have long permitted alternative service in domestic violence cases; my research, as reflected in my recently published article: Access to Safety and Justice: Service of Process in Domestic Violence Cases, 94 WASH. L. REV. 333 (2019); my clients' insights about service over many years; and my clinic interns' recommendations about the proposed forms. The form proposals in SPR19-39 and SPR19-37 implement the alternative service options that now appear in Family Code Section 6340(a)(2), increasing survivors' and their children's access to safety and justice. My Domestic Violence Clinic reviewed the proposed forms, being particularly mindful of the high percentage of pro per litigants in domestic violence cases in California. We have several recommendations to increase the understanding of legal options, all of which apply to the SPR19-37 packet. 1. Our first recommendation aims to increase knowledge of the new provisions in Family Code Section 6340(a)(2). We suggest that the DV-115, in the Instructions section or under 4(a), include the following language or similar language: "Read DV-205-INFO, What if the Person I Want Protection From Is Avoiding (Evading) Service if, after diligent effort, you have been unable to accomplish personal service." Cross-referencing the DV-205-INFO will increase knowledge of legal options and increase efficiency for courts and litigants, as petitioners may otherwise return to court numerous times without being aware	1. The DV-115 is a form that can be used by either party to request a continuance. Because the new alternative service laws only apply to petitioners the committee did not include reference to form DV-205-INFO. If in the future the committee proposes a request for alternative service form, form DV-205-INFO can be referenced on that form.

			that they can request alternative methods of service. 2. Our second set of recommendations seeks a streamlined way of requesting alternative service. The DV-205-INFO instructs, "If you believe you are eligible for alternative service, you can complete form DV-115, Request to Continue Hearing, to make this request." The proposed DV-115, however, does not include a question prompt for doing so. Based on page 5 of the SPR19-37, we understand that the Family and Juvenile Law Advisory Committee considered including an item in the DV-115 regarding alternative means of service, but determined that petitioners could instead use form FL-980 to request publication or posting. This determination is inconsistent with the instructions in DV-205-INFO to use the DV-115 to request alternative service; furthermore, the DV-115 does not guide litigants to the FL-980, and the FL-980 does not provide options for substituted service and other means beyond publication or posting. We recommend that the DV-115, at item 4, include the following option: "After diligent effort, I have been unable to accomplish personal service, and there is reason to believe that the restrained party is evading service. Explain:" An additional prompt should ask litigants to identify which of the following methods of service would be	2. Thank you for your comment. The committee has revised form DV-205-INFO to remove any references to form DV-115. Based on the comments submitted, the committee will consider whether to propose a new request for alternative service form in the future. The committee does not believe that form DV-115 should be revised to include the specific questions posed by commenter as the revisions to form DV-115 would be substantial and including the information may confuse petitioners that are not seeking alternative service which represent the majority of cases.

These questions provide a clear way to request alternative service and prompt litigants to provide information the judicial officer needs, increasing judicial efficiency as the judge enters orders in the DV-116.
			3. Finally, the DV-116, at item 6(e), could provide a brief explanation of what "substituted service" is, namely that it means leaving a copy and mailing a copy of papers to be served to the restrained person's home or mailing address or workplace. We recommend that 6(e) state as follows, with our addition underlined here: "The restrained party may be served by substituted service, with a copy of (1) this order, (2) a copy of all the documents indicated on form DV-109, item 6 and (3) a copy of form DV-210, Summons (Domestic Violence Restraining Order), no later than (date):_____, by leaving a copy with a person over age 18 and mailing a copy to the restrained party's ☐ home ☐ mailing address ☐ workplace." The proposed DV-	3. The committee has included this information, with minor edits, on form DV-117, Order Granting Alternative Service. Form DV-117 would be an attachment to form DV-116. A separate attachment was created in response to a suggestion by a commenter.[1]

[1] Judge Amy K. Guerra from the Superior Court of Fresno submitted a comment on another proposal which includes form DV-116. In her comment she suggests creating a separate form for alternative service because, in the vast majority of cases, alternative service will not apply.

			116 helpfully directs the protected party to the DV-205-INFO in the next sentence. We posit that briefly identifying the meaning of "substituted service" within the DV-116 will help protected parties understand and follow the court order. This Comment seeks to further the legislative purpose of domestic violence restraining orders by increasing the accessibility of this vitally important legal remedy for abuse survivors who are unable to accomplish personal service. Thank you for your consideration of these recommendations. I encourage you to contact me with any questions.

Executive Summary

The Information Technology Advisory Committee recommends the Judicial Council amend several rules of court relating to electronic filing and service that implement legislation that requires parties and other persons provide express consent to electronic service. In particular, the amendments (1) specify how notice of consent to electronic service is to be given, (2) provide example language for consent, and (3) require electronic filing service providers and electronic filing managers to transmit consent to the courts. In addition, the committee recommends amendments to the rule governing signatures on electronically filed documents. The amendments will reduce the reliance on paper for signatures and include other persons in addition to the parties within the scope of the rule.

Recommendation

The Information Technology Advisory Committee recommends the Judicial Council, effective January 1, 2020, amend the California Rules of Court as follows:

1. Amend rule 2.251 to specify how notice of consent to electronic service is to be given, and add an advisory committee comment on example language for consent;

2. Amend rule 2.255 to require electronic filing service providers and electronic filing managers to transmit a the consent to the court; and

3. Amend rule 2.257 to include requirements for electronic signatures on documents signed under penalty of perjury when the declarant and filer are not the same person, allow electronic signatures of opposing parties, include other persons in addition to the parties within the scope of the rule, and add an advisory committee comment about electronic signatures.

The text of the amended rules is attached at pages 8–11.

Relevant Previous Council Action

In 2017, the Judicial Council sponsored Assembly Bill 976 (Stats. 2017, ch. 319), which amended provisions of Code of Civil Procedure section 1010.6 (section 1010.6) to (1) authorize the use of electronic signatures for signatures made under penalty of perjury on electronically filed documents, (2) provide for a consistent effective date of electronic filing and service across courts and case types, (3) consolidate the mandatory electronic filing provisions, and (4) codify provisions that are currently in the California Rules of Court[1] on mandatory electronic service, effective date of electronic service, protections for self-represented persons, and proof of electronic service. The Legislature amended AB 976 to add a provision requiring that starting January 1, 2019, parties and other persons must provide express consent to permissive electronic service. Effective January 1, 2019, the Judicial Council amended rules 2.251 and 2.257 to account for these new requirements in section 1010.6.

Analysis/Rationale

Rules 2.251 and 2.255

In 2017, the Legislature amended section 1010.6 to require all persons to provide express consent to electronic service. Rule 2.251(b) had previously allowed the act of electronic filing alone to be evidence of consent to receive electronic service for represented persons, but the 2017 amendments to section 1010.6 eliminated this option. Section 1010.6 does, however, allow a person to provide express consent electronically by "manifesting affirmative consent through electronic means with the court or the court's electronic filing service provider, and concurrently providing the party's electronic address with that consent for the purpose of receiving electronic service." (Section 1010.6(a)(2)(A)(ii).)

The Legislature did not provide for what it means to "manifest affirmative consent through electronic means." To fill this gap, the Judicial Council amended rule 2.251(b), effective January 1, 2019, to provide a process for manifesting affirmative consent through electronic means by allowing a party to file a form or to consent through an electronic filing service provider (EFSP). One of the objectives of the EFSP option was to replicate the prior process of consenting by the act of electronic filing while also ensuring, consistent with legislative direction, that parties and other persons have expressly consented. Neither section 1010.6 nor the electronic filing and service rules of court detail how notice is to be given to the court, as well as to other parties or persons in the case, that a party or other person has provided express consent. The Information Technology Advisory Committee sought specific comments on these issues when the prior proposal to amend rule 2.251(b) circulated for comment in 2018. One superior court suggested the rules should be amended to create standard language for consent to service and include a provision requiring that if a person consents, that person is required to serve notice on all other parties. The committee found the court's suggestions helpful and added amending the rules to its annual agenda for 2019. The proposed amendments to rule 2.251 would require parties or other persons who have "manifested affirmative consent through electronic means" to serve notice of this consent on all parties and other persons. The proposal would also add an advisory committee comment citing an example of language for consenting to electronic service. The proposed amendments to rule 2.255 would require EFSPs and electronic filing managers (EFMs) to promptly transmit to the court a party's or other person's acceptance of consent to receive electronic service.

Rule 2.257

Effective January 1, 2019, consistent with the statutory requirement, the Judicial Council adopted an amendment to rule 2.257(b) to create a procedure for electronic signatures on electronically filed documents signed under penalty of perjury. Under that procedure, the declarant signs with an electronic signature and declares under penalty of perjury under the laws of the state of California that the information submitted is true and correct. (Rule 2.257(b)(1).)

The proposed amendments to rule 2.257(b) would add requirements for electronic signatures on electronically filed documents signed under penalty of perjury when the declarant is not the filer. Because electronic signatures are simple to create and not necessarily unique on their face, there is more of a concern about their validity if the filer and the signer are different people. Under the proposed requirements, the electronic signature must be (1) unique to the declarant, (2) capable of verification, (3) under the sole control of the declarant, and (4) linked to data in such a manner that if the data are changed, the electronic signature is invalidated. These requirements are designed to ensure that the application of the signatures is the act of the person signing, can be proven as such, and may be invalidated if the document is altered after being electronically signed. The requirements in the proposed rule are similar to those for digital signatures under Government Code section 16.5(a). A digital signature is a type of secure electronic signature that may be used in communications with public entities. (Gov. Code, § 16.5.) The requirements in the proposed rule are the largely the same as for a digital signature, but unlike a digital signature, the proposed rule does not require electronic signatures to conform to the Secretary of State's regulations, which prescribe the use of specific technologies. (See Gov. Code, § 16.5(a)(5); Cal. Code Regs., tit. 2, §§ 22000–22005.)

Even with the change to rule 2.257(b) to account for signatures under penalty of perjury, when an opposing party signature is needed, rule 2.257(d) still requires the use and retention of a printed document with ink signatures. According to the California Department of Child Support Services (DCSS), which suggested the committee address this issue, the requirement for the continued retention of paper is a challenge for local child support agencies and DCSS as more courts require electronic filing. Currently, local child support agencies generate thousands of stipulations in child support cases that either are physically signed at an in-person appointment or, more often, mailed out for the signing party to review, sign, and mail back to the caseworker. This can be a protracted process, particularly when the signing party resides out of state or multiple signatures are needed. DCSS suggested that the rule be amended because the ability to electronically file stipulations containing electronic signatures would drastically reduce the time it takes to obtain a filed stipulation and update the child support case based on the parties' agreement. For example, DCSS could send an email a link to an electronic signature application that would allow a party to view and sign documents electronically.

The proposed amendments strike the subdivision (d) heading that reads "Documents requiring signatures of opposing parties" and instead incorporate its requirements under (c), which governs documents not signed under penalty of perjury. Subdivision (d) would no longer be necessary for signatures of opposing parties under penalty of perjury as those requirements would be captured in subdivision (b). The proposal adds an option for electronic signatures when the electronic signature is unique to the person using it, capable of verification, under the sole control of the person using it, and linked to data in such a manner that if the data are changed, the electronic signature is invalidated. This option would allow for an entirely paperless process.

Finally, the proposed amendments include "other persons" within the scope of the rules. Section 1010.6 includes "other persons" in addition to parties within its scope. Accordingly, "other persons" has been added to rule 2.257 where appropriate.

Policy implications

The proposal advances the judicial branch goal of promoting rule changes that facilitate the use of technology.(Strategic Plan for Technology 2019–2022, pp. 14–15.) In particular, it advances an objective of ensuring "current rules and legislation do not inhibit the use of technology solutions." (Id. at p. 14.)

Comments

The proposal circulated for public comment from April 11 through June 10, 2019, as part of the regular spring comment cycle. The following six commenters responded to the invitation to comment:

1. Superior Court of San Diego County, which agreed with the proposal;
2. Superior Court of Orange County, Juvenile Court and Family Law Divisions, which did not take a position on the proposal;
3. JRS, which disagreed with the proposal;
4. Orange County Bar Association, which agreed with the proposal;
5. DCSS, which agreed with the proposal; and

6. Executive Committee of the Family Law Section of the California Lawyers Association, which agreed with the proposed amendments to rule 2.257, but took no position on the proposed amendments to rules 2.251 and 2.255.

JRS raised the most significant issues in detailed comments. The Joint Rules Subcommittee (JRS) of the Trial Court Presiding Judges Advisory Committee and Court Executives Advisory Committee raised several issues. With respect to the proposed amendments to rules 2.251 and 2.255, JRS raised concerns about the courts' ability to maintain records of parties' consent to electronic service transmitted through EFSPs. The committee considered these concerns, but determined that they relate more to issues with the requirements of section 1010.6 that went into effect on January 1, 2019, than with the proposed rule amendments, which are limited. Effectively, all that the proposed amendments do is ensure that parties, other persons, and the court receive notice that someone has, as stated in section 1010.6, "manifested consent [to electronic service] through electronic means with the court or the court's electronic filing service provider." The issues JRS raised with respect to rules 2.251 and 2.255 would amendments to section 1010.6's requirements for express consent to electronic service.

JRS also raised concerns about the amendments for electronic signatures of nonfilers under rule 2.257. JRS was concerned that courts would be expected to verify or technically validate electronic signatures on electronically filed documents that they accept for filing. This could present significant challenges for courts. The committee considered these concerns. The proposal was not intended to require the courts to validate or otherwise verify electronic signatures when they are filed. Rather, it was intended to ensure that the electronic signature was the act of the signer and not someone else, and verifiable if a dispute were to arise. Because electronic signatures are simple to create and not necessarily unique on their face, there is more of a concern about the validity of electronic signatures if the filer and the signer are different people.

The confusion may be with the proposed language as circulated for comment. That proposal provided that an electronic signature must be "linked to data in such a manner that if the data are changed, the electronic signature may be declared invalid by the court." The proposed language in italics injects a possible court decision about the signature, which JRS may be reading as necessitating court involvement in validating the electronic signature.

In developing the proposal, the committee had originally considered stating the electronic signature must be "linked to data in such a manner that if the data are changed, the electronic signature is invalidated." In the invitation to comment, the committee sought specific comments on the language "the electronic signature may be declared invalid by the court" versus "the electronic signature is invalidated." After discussing JRS's comments and the options to address the concerns, the committee decided to return to the language "the electronic signature is invalidated."

The benefit of the "is invalidated" language is that it is consistent with the attributes of digital signatures, codified in the Government Code and the California Code of Regulations. All digital signatures must be "linked to data in such a manner that if the data are changed, the digital signature is invalidated." (Gov. Code, § 16.5(a)(4).) The only difference between a digital signature under the Government Code and an electronic signature under the proposed rule, is that the rule would not require an electronic signature to adhere to the Secretary of State's digital signature regulations, which require the use of specific technologies. (Cal. Code Regs., tit. 2, §§ 22000–22005.)

The technical attributes and technology underpinning a compliant electronic signature should not impair the court's authority to resolve disputes about an electronic signature. The committee determined that this is best addressed in a clarifying advisory committee comment stating, "The requirements for electronic signatures that are compliant with the rule do not impair the power of the courts to resolve disputes about the validity of a signature."

Alternatives considered

The committee considered the alternative of continuing to require the retention of ink signatures on printed forms for rule 2.257(d), but determined that creating an option for an entirely paperless process would be preferable. In considering the requirements for electronic signatures by persons other than the filer, the committee considered and sought specific comments on two options that are discussed in detail in the "Comments" section, above.

Fiscal and Operational Impacts

JRS commented that the proposal may have significant fiscal impact, impact existing automated systems, increase court staff workload, and impact on local or statewide justice partners. In particular, JRS noted that it would take significant resources to enable some courts' systems to accept information transmitted from an EFSP to the court about a person's consent to electronic service through the EFSP. As discussed in the "Comments" section, above, some of the issues raised pertain more to requirements in the Code of Civil Procedure than the rules. As also discussed, to address issue JRS raised about staff and technical challenges related to validation of signatures, the committee revised the language in the rule amendment and added an advisory committee comment.

The Superior Court of San Diego County commented that implementation would include notifying and training staff and updating internal procedures.

DCSS commented that it is working on establishing statewide processes for electronic service for local child support agencies and that the amendments will improve the way it and local child support agencies do business with case participants and the courts.

Rules 2.251, 2.255, and 2.257 of the California Rules of Court are amended, effective January 1, 2020, to read:

Rule 2.251. Electronic service

(a) * * *

(b) Electronic service by express consent

(1) A party or other person indicates that the party or other person agrees to accept electronic service by:

(A) Serving a notice on all parties and other persons that the party or other person accepts electronic service and filing the notice with the court. The notice must include the electronic service address at which the party or other person agrees to accept service; or

(B) Manifesting affirmative consent through electronic means with the court or the court's electronic filing service provider, and concurrently providing the party's electronic service address with that consent for the purpose of receiving electronic service. A party or other person may manifest affirmative consent by serving notice of consent to all parties and other persons and either:

Subdivision (b)(1)(B). The rule does not prescribe specific language for a provision of a term of service when the filer consents to electronic service, but does require that any such provision be clear. Consent to Electronic Service and Notice of Electronic Service Address (form EFS-005-CV) provides an example of language for consenting to electronic service.

Rule 2.257. Requirements for signatures on documents

(a) Electronic signature

An electronic signature is an electronic sound, symbol, or process attached to or logically associated with an electronic record and executed or adopted by a person with the intent to sign a document or record created, generated, sent, communicated, received, or stored by electronic means.

(b) Documents signed under penalty of perjury

When a document to be filed electronically provides for a signature under penalty of perjury of any person, the document is deemed to have been signed by that person if filed electronically provided that either of the following conditions is satisfied:

(1) The declarant has signed the document using an electronic signature and declares under penalty of perjury under the laws of the state of California that the information submitted is true and correct. If the declarant is not the electronic filer, the electronic signature must be unique to the declarant, capable of verification, under the sole control of the declarant, and linked to data in such a manner that if the data are changed, the electronic signature is invalidated; or

(2) The declarant, before filing, has physically signed a printed form of the document. By electronically filing the document, the electronic filer certifies that the original, signed document is available for inspection and copying at the request of the court or any other party. In the event this second method of submitting documents electronically under penalty of perjury is used, the following conditions apply:

(A) At any time after the electronic version of the document is filed, any party may serve a demand for production of the original signed document. The demand must be served on all other parties but need not be filed with the court.

(B) Within five days of service of the demand under (A), the party or other person on whom the demand is made must make the original signed document available for inspection and copying by all other parties.

(C) At any time after the electronic version of the document is filed, the court may order the filing party or other person to produce the original signed document in court for inspection and copying by the court. The order must specify the date, time, and place for the production and must be served on all parties.

(D) Notwithstanding (A)–(C), local child support agencies may maintain original, signed pleadings by way of an electronic copy in the statewide automated child support system and must maintain them only for the period of time stated in Government Code section 68152(a). If the local child support agency maintains an electronic copy of the original, signed pleading in the statewide automated child support system, it may destroy the paper original.

(c) Documents not signed under penalty of perjury

(1) If a document does not require a signature under penalty of perjury, the document is deemed signed by the ~~party if the document is~~ person who filed it electronically.

~~(d) Documents requiring signatures of opposing parties~~

(2) When a document to be filed electronically, such as a stipulation, requires the signatures of opposing parties or persons other than the filer not under penalty of perjury, the following procedures ~~applies~~ apply:

~~(1)~~(A) ~~The party filing the document must obtain the signatures of all parties on a printed form of the document.~~ The opposing party or other person has signed a printed form of the document before, or on the same day as, the date of filing.

~~(2)~~ The ~~party filing the document~~ electronic filer must maintain the original, signed document and must make it available for inspection and copying as provided in ~~(a)~~(b)(2) of this rule and Code of Civil Procedure section 1010.6. The court and any other party may demand production of the original signed document in the manner provided in ~~(a)~~(b)(2)~~(A–C)~~(A)–(C).

~~(3)~~ By electronically filing the document, the electronic filer indicates that all parties have signed the document and that the filer has the signed original in his or her possession~~.~~; or

(B) The opposing party or other person has signed the document using an electronic signature and that electronic signature is unique to the person using it, capable of verification, under the sole control of the person using it, and linked to data in such a manner that if the data are changed, the electronic signature is invalidated.

~~(e)~~(d) Digital signature

A party or other person is not required to use a digital signature on an electronically filed document.

~~(f)~~(e) Judicial signatures

If a document requires a signature by a court or a judicial officer, the document may be electronically signed in any manner permitted by law.

Advisory Committee Comment

The requirements for electronic signatures that are compliant with the rule do not impair the power of the courts to resolve disputes about the validity of a signature.

California Department of Child Support Services By Lara Chandler Racine Attorney III	A	The California Department of Child Support Services (DCSS) has reviewed the proposal identified above for potential impacts to the child support program, the local child support agencies (LCSAs), and our case participants. DCSS is in support of the proposals made in this invitation. Rule 2.251 This rule requires the manifestation of affirmative consent to accept electronic service and specifies how notice of consent to electronic service is to be given as well as provides examples via the EFSP and EFM of language for consent. The proposal addresses the stated purpose and provides clarity to the affirmative consent process. The proposed changes are supported by the DCSS and our LCSAs. DCSS maintains the e-filing platform by which participating LCSAs e-file their legal documents. The local agency, however, is necessarily the party accepting service. While DCSS has not been advised that e-service is a widespread issue throughout our e-filing counties, it has been reported as problematic for those local agencies that have received some sort of e-service. DCSS has not yet established statewide protocols and electronic addresses for electronic service and so the counties getting e-served are receiving those documents inconsistently, i.e. individual staff email accounts, etc. The affirmative consent process will allow DCSS sufficient time to vet the protocol for e-service at LCSAs and establish a more consistent	The committee appreciates the support and comments.

			likely be a complicated change that involves the EFSP systems as well as the core CMS and will be a cost impact to the court. On the signature side of the proposal, if the court is required to validate signatures, besides the cost and challenges of implementing a technical solution to validate signature authentication and data integrity, we have concerns about the public understanding how to implement the digital protections that ensures no data is changed. Just doing research on the issue, we had to have an expert in the field of digital discovery explain to us step by step how this process would work. This rule change adds technical validation requirements for compliance that courts are not prepared to handle and puts courts in the position of rejecting documents for non-compliance for an issue that has other avenues of resolution. If a document's signature authenticity is challenged, the parties should be required to address these challenges through a motion process. Furthermore, the JRS believes that courts should not serve as the custodian of eService consent. If there is a dispute between the parties as to the consent to eservice between them, they can bring that dispute before the courts and submit their evidence of notice at that time without having the courts go through an onerous administrative process of receiving, storing and tracking electronic service consents between the parties that is rarely challenged.	As long as there has been electronic service, consent has been required. By statute, where electronic service is permitted, but not required, the court can only electronically serve documents issued by the court if the person being served has consented. (Code Civ. Proc, § 1010.6(a)(2)(A)(ii), (a)(3).) Unless electronic service is mandatory, the clerk should only be electronically serving parties and other persons that have consented to it. The proposed rule amendments do not change this process.

All comments are verbatim unless indicated by an asterisk (*).

	Commenter	Position	Comment	Committee Responses
			For courts that use eService, the requirement to track consent for each party on a case will increase workload. The clerk will need to review filings for each party to ensure a consent form is on file and only select eService for those parties, while mailing service to others. In cases with multiple parties, this will be cumbersome and time consuming for courts that routinely eService. Suggested modifications: It is important to note, that there is an option in the code, CCP 1010.6(d), to allow courts the option of implementing mandatory eService via local rule for Civil. As eService is critical for our day to day operations to serve court orders, our court has already received approval to implement such a local rule for Civil. The ability to have mandatory eService by local rule is NOT being impacted by this proposal. However, because the local rule option is not applicable to other case types such as Probate, the comments below are submitted for consideration, as the proposed process will impact staff workload. REQUESTED CLARIFICATION: 1) For Rule 2.251 §(b)(1)(B)—verbiage was added "a party or other person may manifest affirmative consent by serving notice of consent to all parties and other persons and either:…" Clarification is requested as to whether the EFSP, EFM, individual parties or their attorney(s) are required to provide electronic service.	Rule 2.251(b) concerns permissive electronic service, not mandatory electronic service. In that context, no one is required to use electronic service.

	Commenter	Position	Comment	Committee Responses
			2) For Rule 2.255 § (a)(c)(2)—clarification is requested. Is the intent of the transmittal to be a filed judicial council form document filed into each individual case or data transmitted back to the case management system for each individual case? Additionally, would attorneys be able to file consent at the attorney level or party level (for those with multiple cases) or will it be on a case by case basis?	Consent would be applicable to each individual case. It could be recorded on a Judicial Council form or in data transmitted from the EFSP. Attorneys cannot file consent at the attorney level or party level. Code of Civil Procedure section 1010.6 requires consent to be in the "specific action." (Code Civ. Proc., § 1010.6(a)(2)(A)(2).)
			3) For rule 2.251, clarification is needed to indicate if the filing portal should allow the party to proceed with an electronic filing if they do not consent to the terms requiring them to submit to "affirmative consent" for all documents.	This is outside the scope of the proposed amendment, but an important consideration to rule 2.251 in general. The proposal does not address this issue, but the committee will consider it for a future rule amendment.
			4) For rule 2.257(b)(1): Will clarification be provided on who will be expected to verify the electronic signature, if needed? The court does not currently verify signatures of documents it has received. Any ambiguity in the rule that could place a burden on the court to verify signatures should be clarified to indicate that it is not the court's responsibility to verify signatures on documents it accepts for filing. Any rule that requires the court to verify signatures will have a tremendous fiscal impact on the court. The rule should be modified to require the parties to maintain the metadata for the electronic signature and the court is not responsible for this process. 5) The requirements for signatures poses significant challenges because our case management system "flattens" documents when they are filed, so if I am correct, the court would likely be unable to	With respect to the electronic signature amendments, the proposal was not intended to require the court to validate or otherwise verify signatures when they are filed. The proposed amendment to Rule 2.257(b)(1) for documents signed under penalty of perjury reads in part: "If the declarant is not the electronic filer, the electronic signature must be unique to the declarant, capable of verification, under sole control of the declarant, and linked to data in such a manner that if the data are changed, the electronic signature may be declared invalid by the court." A court cannot verify a signature that simply reads "-s- "and the data behind it showing who signed it, when, and where, is not stored by the filing system. Also, if any electronically filed document is unsigned that is required to be signed under penalty of perjury, would the court simply assume that there is a wet-signed copy of the document under Rule 2.257(b)(2)? Please see comments in above-paragraph relating to court's inability to verify signatures. 6) The California's Uniform Electronic Signatures Act contains less stringent requirements for signatures under penalty of perjury than the proposed new rule and should be considered in modifying the signature requirements: Civil Code section 1633.11 subdivision (b) reads: In a transaction, if a law requires that a statement be signed under penalty of perjury, the addition to the electronic signature, all of the information as to which the declaration pertains together with a declaration under penalty of perjury by the person who submits the electronic signature that the information is true and correct.	this language is that it is identical to an attribute of a digital signature, which is a known standard in California. Digital signatures are codified in the Government Code and the Code of Regulations. All digital signatures must have the attribute of being "linked to data in such a manner that if the data are changed, the digital signature is invalidated." (Gov. Code, § 16.5(a)(4).) The only difference between a digital signature under the Government Code and an electronic signature under the proposed rule would be that the electronic signature would not have to adhere to the Secretary of State's digital signature regulations, which require the use of specific technologies. Executive Summary

The Information Technology Advisory Committee recommends the Judicial Council amend rule 2.540 of the California Rules of Court to add "county public administrator" and "county public conservator" to the list of government entities that may be granted remote access to certain court electronic records, and make a minor amendment to the good cause provision of the rule. These amendments will make the rule more comprehensive and remove a need to make a good cause finding for those entities.

Recommendation

The Information Technology Advisory Committee recommends the Judicial Council, effective January 1, 2020, amend rule 2.540(b)(1) to:

1. Add "county public administrator" to the list of government entities in the rule, and allow remote access to probate electronic records by county public administrators;
2. Add "county public conservator" to the list of government entities in the rule, and allow remote access to criminal, mental health, and probate electronic records by county public conservators; and

3. Change “statutory duties” to “legal duties” in the standard for good cause.

Relevant Previous Council Action

Rule 2.540 of the California Rules of Court[1] is one of several new rules addressing remote access to electronic records by government entities that the Judicial Council adopted effective January 1, 2019. Rule 2.540 identifies which government entities may have remote access to which types of electronic records. The rule includes a good cause provision under which a court may grant remote access to electronic court records to additional government entities and case types beyond those specifically identified in the rule.

Analysis/Rationale

During the public comment period in 2018 when rule 2.540 was first proposed, a commenter recommended that it include county public administrators and county public conservators. When drafted, rule 2.540 was intended to include state and local government entities with regular business before the courts. The Information Technology Advisory Committee determined that county public administrators and county public conservators fell within this scope and the rule should be amended to include them. Under the amendments, courts could permit (1) a county public administrator to have remote access to probate electronic records and (2) a county public conservator to have remote access to electronic criminal, mental health, and probate electronic records. Remote access for a county public administrator is tailored to electronic records relevant to administering decedents’ estates. Remote access for a county public conservator is tailored to electronic records relevant to serving as conservator of an estate or person.

In addition to the listed state and local government entities, rule 2.540 includes a good cause provision under which a court may grant remote access to electronic court records to government entities and case types beyond those specifically identified in the rule. The standard for good cause is “the government entity requires access to the electronic records in order to adequately perform its statutory duties or fulfill its responsibilities in litigation.” (Rule 2.540(b)(1)(O).) The committee received a suggestion to change “statutory duties” to “legal duties” to be more comprehensive, as legal obligations may stem from more than statute.

Policy implications

The proposed amendments are noncontroversial. No commenters raised policy issues with the proposal. The proposed amendments will facilitate remote access for government entities consistent with the intent of the rule.

Comments

This proposal was circulated for public comment from April 11 to June 10, 2019, as part of the regular spring comment cycle. Four commenters responded to the invitation to comment: the [1] All further references to “rule” or “rules” are to the California Rules of Court.

Superior Court of San Diego County, the Superior Court of Orange County, the Juvenile Court and Family Law Divisions of the Superior Court of Orange County, and the Orange County Bar Association (OCBA). Three commenters agreed that the proposal appropriately addressed its stated purpose. The San Diego County court and OCBA both agreed with the proposal. The Orange County court did not take a position, but the court's Juvenile Court and Family Law Divisions commented that they would be in agreement if and when the court is able to offer remote access.

Alternatives considered

The alternative would be to maintain the status quo, but the amendments would be preferable because they would make the rule more comprehensive.

Fiscal and Operational Impacts

Adding county public administrators and county public conservators to the list of government entities the court may allow to remotely access electronic records will remove a need to make a good cause finding for those entities. The proposed amendments are not expected to result in any costs.

Rule 2.540 of the California Rules of Court is amended, effective January 1, 2020, to read:

Rule 2.540. Application and scope

(a) Applicability to government entities

The rules in this article provide for remote access to electronic records by government entities described in (b). The access allowed under these rules is in addition to any access these entities or authorized persons working for such entities may have under the rules in articles 2 and 3.

(b) Level of remote access

(1) A court may provide authorized persons from government entities with remote access to electronic records as follows:

(A)–(M) * * *

(N) County public conservator: criminal electronic records, mental health electronic records, and probate electronic records.

(O) County public administrator: probate electronic records.

~~(N)~~(P) Federally recognized Indian tribe (including any reservation, department, subdivision, or court of the tribe) with concurrent jurisdiction: child welfare electronic records, family electronic records, juvenile justice electronic records, and probate electronic records.

~~(O)~~(Q) For good cause, a court may grant remote access to electronic records in particular case types to government entities beyond those listed in (b)(1)(A)–(P)~~(N)~~. For purposes of this rule, "good cause" means that the government entity requires access to the electronic records in order to adequately perform its ~~statutory~~ legal duties or fulfill its responsibilities in litigation.

~~(P)~~(R) All other remote access for government entities is governed by articles 2 and 3.

	Commenter	Position	Comment	Committee Responses
1.	Orange County Bar Association By Deirdre Kelly President	A	Does the proposal appropriately address the stated purpose? By adding remote electronic access to the public administrator for court probate records and to the public conservator (aka public guardian) for remote access to court probate, criminal, and mental health records, the proposal fulfills its stated purpose.	The committee appreciates the support.
2.	Superior Court of California, County of Orange By Denise Parker Program Coordinator/Specialist IMPACT Team – Criminal/Traffic Operations West Justice Center	NI	Request for Specific Comments: No significant change, adds the two entities listed in the summary to the list of entities that can access court records electronically. The court is still exploring alternatives to comply with the rule of court changes that were effective January 2019 governing access for justice partners. The proposal does appropriately address the stated purpose.	The committee appreciates the comments.
3.	Superior Court of California, County of Orange Juvenile Court and Family Law Divisions By Cynthia Beltrán Administrative Analyst Family Law and Juvenile Court	A	Currently, Orange County does not offer remote access to electronic records on Family Law or Juvenile case files. Executive Summary

The Tribal Court–State Court Forum and the Family and Juvenile Law Advisory Committee recommend adopting a new rule of court, amending 16 other rules, creating 3 new forms for Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA) proceedings, and revising 27 forms for ICWA and juvenile court dependency proceedings to comply with statutory changes in Assembly Bill 3176 (Waldron; Stats. 2018, ch. 833), as well as changes to governing federal regulations and guidelines. The proposal also addresses technical amendments and corrections and responds to several appellate court decisions regarding ICWA rules and forms.

Recommendation

The Tribal Court–State Court Forum and the Family and Juvenile Law Advisory Committee recommend that the Judicial Council, effective January 1, 2020:

1. Adopt rule 5.484 to create a rule related specifically to emergency proceedings in ICWA cases consistent with federal regulations and revised state law;

2. Amend rule 5.480 to reflect the four distinct proceedings set out in the federal regulations and AB 3176;

3. Amend rule 5.481 to implement changed inquiry and notice requirements;

4. Amend rule 5.482 to reflect the changes in ICWA noticing requirements;

5. Amend rule 5.483 to conform the jurisdictional and transfer provisions to the new language of Welfare and Institutions Code section 305.5;

6. Amend rules 5.484 and 5.485 to revise the analysis of placement preferences and active efforts to reflect the language of the new federal regulations and renumber as rules 5.485 and 5.486, respectively;

7. Amend rules 5.485 and 5.486 to reflect requirements regarding active efforts and compelling reasons not to terminate parental rights and renumber as rules 5.486 and 5.487, respectively;

8. Amend rule 5.550 to reflect the limitations on continuances and time requirements found in AB 3176;

9. Amend rule 5.570 to reflect the distinction between reasonable and active efforts;

10. Amend rule 5.668 to reflect the initial ICWA inquiry that must be made by the court;

11. Amend rule 5.674 to include the findings that revised Welfare and Institutions Code section 309(a)(3) requires the court make on the record at a detention hearing;

12. Amend rule 5.676 to reflect the detention requirements for an Indian child;

13. Amend rule 5.678 to reflect the specific requirements when the court knows or has reason to know the child is an Indian child, consistent with the requirements of AB 3176;

14. Amend rule 5.690 to reference the placement preference requirements and time requirements to get to disposition when the child is an Indian child;

15. Amend rule 5.725 to conform to the Court of Appeal decision in In re J.Y. (2018) 30 Cal.App.5th 712;

16. Renumber rule 5.487 as rule 5.488;

17. Revise form ICWA-005-INFO to reflect the revised requirements of AB 3176;

18. Revise form ICWA-020 to have the questions asked of parents more closely follow the inquiry required in the federal regulations and AB 3176;

19. Revise form ICWA-030 to add a section for information on direct lineal ancestors in response to the Court of Appeal decision in In re E.H. (2018) 26 Cal.App.5th 1058;

20. Revise form ICWA-040 to simplify the purpose of the form to designate a tribal representative;

21. Revise form ICWA-060 to conform the language to the requirements of AB 3176 concerning what is good cause not to transfer a case to tribal court;

22. Adopt forms ICWA-070, ICWA-080, and ICWA-090 to create a process to seek return of an Indian child removed on an emergency basis as mandated by AB 3176;

23. Revise forms JV-100, JV-110, and JV-600 to clarify the way ICWA inquiry is made and attested to;

24. Revise form JV-320 findings required by AB 3176 when a child is an Indian child;

25. Revise form JV-405 to include required inquiry and findings about Indian status;

26. Revise form JV-410 to include the required ICWA findings regarding inquiry, ICWA status, placement preferences, and active efforts;

27. Revise form JV-412 to reflect ICWA notice requirements;

28. Revise forms JV-415 and JV-418 to add findings related to active efforts;

29. Revise form JV-421 to reflect ICWA evidentiary requirements;

30. Revise forms JV-430 and JV-432 to add findings regarding active efforts;

31. Revise forms JV-433, JV-435, JV-437, JV-438, JV-440, JV-442, JV-443, JV-455, and JV-457 to add required ICWA findings and orders.

The text of the rules is attached at pages 10–36; the proposed forms are attached at pages 37–140.

Relevant Previous Council Action

The federal Indian Child Welfare Act (25 U.S.C. § 1901 et seq.; ICWA) was enacted in 1978 and establishes minimum federal standards that apply in all state court proceedings involving an Indian child where the child could be involuntarily placed in the custody of a nonparent, or where the parental rights of a parent could be terminated. The Judicial Council has acted numerous times to implement and improve compliance with the Indian Child Welfare Act, including:

- 1995 amendments to former rules 1431, 1432, and 1463 to assure proper notice consistent with ICWA and adopted former rule 1439;
- 1998 amendments to former rule 1439 and forms JV-100 and JV-110 to better identify Indian children and comply with ICWA; and
- 2000 and 2005 amendments to former rule 1439 and revisions to various juvenile and family law forms to clarify when and how notice should be given under ICWA.

In 2006, California enacted SB 678 to substantially incorporate provisions of ICWA into the Family Code, Probate Code, and Welfare and Institutions Code. Following enactment of SB 678, the Judicial Council adopted implementing rules of court and forms.[1]

The rules and forms have not been comprehensively amended or revised since that time. Some of the rules and forms have been updated, but only when necessary to comply with legislative changes or appellate court decisions. Other nonurgent suggestions for corrections or improvements to the rules and forms have been noted, following the practice that these nonurgent issues can be addressed when the rules and forms are being amended or revised for other reasons.

Analysis/Rationale

In 2016, the federal government for the first time since 1979 finalized comprehensive regulations and issued updated guidelines implementing ICWA.[2] In some areas, the regulations and guidelines were inconsistent with existing California law and practice. In addition, in 2017, the

California ICWA Compliance Task Force presented its report to Attorney General Xavier Becerra.[3] The task force report identified various concerns from tribes and tribal representatives about how ICWA was being interpreted and applied in California.

On September 27, 2018, Governor Brown signed AB 3176 to (1) address issues identified in the task force report and (2) conform California law to the requirements of the new federal ICWA regulations and guidelines. The bill makes important revisions to California law including clarifying "the specific steps a social worker, probation officer, or court is required to take in making an inquiry of a child's possible status as an Indian child" and revising "the various notice requirements that are mandated during an Indian child custody proceeding, including a proceeding for an emergency removal of an Indian child from the custody of his or her parents or Indian custodian."[4] The bill directs the Judicial Council to adopt any forms or rules of court necessary to implement these provisions.

While the new federal ICWA regulations and guidelines apply to all proceedings governed by ICWA, including those that may arise under the Family Code and Probate Code, AB 3176 only amends the Welfare and Institutions Code. In some instances, those provisions of the Welfare and Institutions Code are incorporated by reference in the Family Code and Probate Code. To avoid multiple rules amendments and forms revisions, this proposal includes changes to ICWA rules and forms that apply to all case types governed by ICWA required by the federal regulations and guidelines, as well as revisions to juvenile rules and forms that are specifically required by AB 3176. The proposal also encompasses amendments to rules and revisions to forms required by appellate decisions[5] and suggested by commenters since the rules and forms were last amended or revised.

Finally, while the identified rules and forms were being amended or revised, they were examined to determine whether amendments or revisions were appropriate in order to be more gender neutral consistent with the spirit of the Gender Recognition Act (Sen. Bill 179; Atkins, Stats. 2017, ch. 853). The questions about a child's sex found at item 1e of Juvenile Dependency Petition (Version One) (form JV-100), item 1b of Juvenile Dependency Petition (Version Two) (form JV-110), and Juvenile Wardship Petition (form JV-600) were identified as being high priority to assess whether it would be possible to change the term to "gender." The forum and committee concluded that these should be changed from sex to gender.

Policy implications

The proposal will benefit the judicial branch, justice partners, attorneys, and litigants by more clearly setting out the requirements of the Indian Child Welfare Act and conforming California practice to the requirements of federal and state law, thus reducing confusion and appeals.

Comments

The proposal circulated for public comment from April 11 through June 10, 2019, as part of the spring 2019 invitation-to-comment cycle. It was sent to the standard mailing list for family and juvenile law proposals that includes appellate presiding justices, appellate court administrators, trial court presiding judges, trial court executive officers, judges, court administrators and clerks, attorneys, family law facilitators and self-help center staff, legal services attorneys, social workers, probation officers, Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA) programs, and other juvenile and family law professionals. It was also sent to tribal leaders, tribal advocates, and tribal attorneys and distributed through the California Department of Social Services Office of Tribal Affairs listserve to reach those with an interest in the Indian Child Welfare Act and tribal issues.

Seventeen comments were received. None of the comments opposed the proposal. Six did not indicate whether they approved, four approved if amended, and seven approved of the proposal.

Among the commenters that approved the proposal without modification were the California Lawyers Association Executive Committee of the Family Law Section, the Joint Rules Subcommittee of the Trial Court Presiding Judges Advisory Committee and the Court Executives Advisory Committee, the Marin County Counsel's Office, and the Superior Court of San Bernardino County.

The invitation to comment sought specific input on several issues and revised the proposal based on comments in six broad categories:

- Inquiry and notice
- Proceedings after notice
- Jurisdiction and transfer
- Emergency removal and detention
- Active efforts
- Placement preferences

Many of the comments were technical corrections and grammatical suggestions. Many, but not all, were accepted. Many other suggestions that were not controversial and strengthened and clarified the proposal by better conforming it to the statutes were also accepted and incorporated into the proposal. The revisions made in response to the comments are consistent with rule 10.22(d)(2). Several of the comments were provided in red-line tracked changes to the original proposal and in other formats not easily copied verbatim into the comment chart. The full text of those comments is attached as Appendix A. The length of the comment chart makes it difficult to follow, so a summary of revisions in response to the comments, and the comments that were not followed, are arranged by topic and attached as Appendix B.

Inquiry and notice

The proposal was revised to clarify in rules 5.481 and 5.668 at which hearings, of whom, and what specific questions need to be asked as part of ICWA inquiry; when and how information on a child's status would be shared with tribes outside of formal notice; language regarding tribal determinations of membership issues; exemptions to notice timing that had inadvertently been removed from the rules were reinstated; and the findings options related to Indian status.

An Advisory Committee comment was added to rule 5.481 to reference the provisions in the federal regulations and the Welfare and Institutions Code that provide detailed recommendations for contacting tribes and fulfilling the obligations of inquiry, due diligence, information sharing, and notice to tribes.

Consideration was given to a comment about whether notices for continued hearings needed to be sent by registered mail, return receipt requested, and the forum and committee concluded that consistent with existing case law, notice by registered mail, return receipt requested, was only required for an initial hearing date.

The forum and committee considered the suggestion of one commenter that all relatives present in court should be ordered by the court to complete form ICWA-020 as part of the court's ICWA inquiry, but it was ultimately concluded that this was inconsistent with the statutory inquiry scheme and impractical. Similarly, another commenter suggested that the rules should require that tribes be re-noticed using form ICWA-030 whenever new information relevant to a child's Indian ancestry was received. The forum and committee concluded that this was inconsistent with the statutory changes that limited when formal ICWA notice using form ICWA-030 was required.

Forms JV-405 (item 12) and JV-410 (item 10) were revised to incorporate the statutorily mandated findings and orders regarding further inquiry and due diligence for ICWA inquiry.

Proceedings after notice

The proposal was revised to add back in to rule 5.482 several exceptions to the general timing requirements that had been removed from the rule. Commenters noted that the exceptions were still relevant notwithstanding the revisions of AB 3176. The proposal was also required to add reference to the statutory requirements for proof of notice and to incorporate the findings and orders on issues of adequacy of inquiry and notice, and the child's Indian status, authorized by the statute.

Jurisdiction and transfer

The proposal was revised by incorporating into rule 5.483 the requirement to notify a tribal court when a transfer petition related to that court is filed and asking the tribal court for a timely response. The proposal also incorporated the statutory language on factors that cannot be considered as good cause not to transfer to tribal court. Rule references in the Advisory Committee comment were updated to reflect the pending rule changes.

Order on Petition to Transfer Case Involving an Indian Child to Tribal Jurisdiction (form ICWA-060) was revised to reference the need for an evidentiary hearing on a contested transfer request.

Emergency removal and detention
The proposal was revised by incorporating into rules 5.483 and 5.678 the statutory language regarding findings required to support an emergency removal and detention of an Indian child.

Rule 5.484 was revised to refer to the relevant general civil rules that govern ex parte proceedings and apply in juvenile court to reduce confusion.

Revisions were made to rules 5.550 and 5.678 to incorporate the statutory time frames limiting emergency removals of an Indian child.

Rule 5.676 was revised to incorporate the statutory requirement that the court's findings to support detention of an Indian child must be made on the record.

Form JV-410 (item 15) was revised to incorporate the statutorily mandated court findings to support detention of an Indian child.

Active efforts
Revisions were made to rule 5.570 to incorporate the statutory requirement for active efforts findings instead of reasonable efforts findings to support termination of reunification services when the case involves an Indian child.

Revisions were made to rule 5.678 to reflect the statutory description of active efforts and to provide the court with the alternative to find that active efforts have been successful.

Forms JV-418 (item 3), JV-421 (item 5), JV-430 (item 11), JV-432 (item 7), JV-433 (item 7), JV-435 (item 11), JV-438 (item 3), JV-440 (item 12), JV-442 (item 3), JV-455 (item 12), and JV-457 (item 4) were revised to conform the description of active efforts to the language in the statute and to add an alternative finding that active efforts have been either successful or unsuccessful.

Placement preferences
Rules 5.484 and 5.678 were revised to incorporate statutory language regarding considerations and evidentiary standards governing the placement of an Indian child, and the ongoing nature of the placement preference considerations.

Forms JV-320 (item 17), JV-410 (item 16), JV-421 (item 12), JV-432 (item 5), JV-433 (item 5), JV-437 (item 5), JV-438 (item 8), JV-442 (item 8), JV-443 (item 5), and JV-457 (item 6) were revised to change the language regarding the extent of efforts that must be made to find a placement within the placement preferences for an Indian child from an "exhaustive" to a "diligent" search to conform to the statutory language and to incorporate language regarding the evidentiary standard required to find good cause to depart from the placement preferences.

Alternatives considered

The forum and committee carefully considered whether all of the proposed revisions were necessary and determined that they were important to reducing confusion with respect to ICWA requirements. The forum and committee carefully considered each of the comments received, accepted many of them and determined that the current proposal is appropriate to implement the requirements of AB 3176.

Fiscal and Operational Impacts

There will be fiscal and operational impacts as courts, justice partners, and litigants adjust to the new requirements and update their existing forms and practices. However, these changes are required to comply with federal and state law and cannot be avoided. The benefits of complying with the law and avoiding appellate reversals will outweigh the potential costs.

Rule 5.484 of the California Rules of Court is adopted, rules 5.480, 5.481, 5.482, 5.483, 5.550, 5.570, 5.668, 5.674, 5.676, 5.678, and 5.690 are amended, rules 5.484, 5.485, and 5.486 are amended and renumbered, and rule 5.487 is renumbered, effective January 1, 2020, to read:

Rule 5.480. Application

This chapter addressing the Indian Child Welfare Act (25 ~~United States Code section~~ U.S.C. § 1901 et seq.) as codified in various sections of the ~~California~~ Family Code, Probate Code, and Welfare and Institutions Code~~s~~, applies to most proceedings involving Indian children that may result in an involuntary foster care placement; guardianship or conservatorship placement; custody placement under Family Code section 3041; declaration freeing a child from the custody and control of one or both parents; termination of parental rights; preadoptive placement; or adoptive placement. This chapter applies to:

* * *

Rule 5.481. Inquiry and notice

(a) Inquiry

The court, court-connected investigator, and party seeking a foster-care placement, guardianship, conservatorship, custody placement under Family Code section 3041, declaration freeing a child from the custody or control of one or both parents, termination of parental rights, preadoptive placement, or adoption have an affirmative and continuing duty to inquire whether a child is or may be an Indian child in all proceedings identified in rule 5.480. The court, court-connected investigator, and party include the county welfare department, probation department, licensed adoption agency, adoption service provider, investigator, petitioner, appointed guardian or conservator of the person, and appointed fiduciary.

(1) The party seeking a foster-care placement, guardianship, conservatorship, custody placement under Family Code section 3041, declaration freeing a child from the custody or control of one or both parents, termination of parental rights, preadoptive placement, or adoption must ask the child, if the child is old enough, and the parents, Indian custodian, or legal guardians, extended family members, others who have an interest in the child, and where applicable the party reporting child abuse or neglect, whether the child is or may be an Indian child and whether the residence or domicile of the child, the parents, or Indian custodian is on a reservation or in an Alaska Native village, and must complete the Indian Child Inquiry Attachment (form ICWA-010(A)) and attach it to the petition unless the party is filing a subsequent petition~~,~~ and there is no new information.

(2) At the first appearance by a parent, Indian custodian, or guardian, and all other participants in any dependency case; or in juvenile wardship proceedings in which the child is at risk of entering foster care or is in foster care; or at the initiation of any guardianship, conservatorship, proceeding for custody under Family Code section 3041, proceeding to terminate parental rights, proceeding to declare a child free of the custody and control of one or both parents, preadoptive placement, or adoption proceeding; and at each hearing that may culminate in an order for foster care placement, termination of parental rights, preadoptive placement or adoptive placement, as described in Welfare and Institutions Code section 224.1(d)(1), or that may result in an order for guardianship, conservatorship, or custody under Family Code section 3041; the court must:

(A) Ask each participant present whether the participant knows or has reason to know the child is an Indian child;

(B) Instruct the parties to inform the court if they subsequently receive information that provides reason to know the child is an Indian child; and

(C) Order the parent, Indian custodian, or guardian, if available, to complete Parental Notification of Indian Status (form ICWA-020).

(3) * * *

(4) If the social worker, probation officer, licensed adoption agency, adoption service provider, investigator, or petitioner knows or has reason to know or believe that an Indian child is or may be involved, that person or entity must make further inquiry as soon as practicable by:

(A) Interviewing the parents, Indian custodian, and "extended family members" as defined in 25 United States Code sections ~~1901 and~~ 1903~~(2)~~, to gather the information listed in Welfare and Institutions Code section ~~224.2(a)(5)~~ 224.3(a)(5), Family Code section 180(b)(5), or Probate Code section 1460.2(b)(5)~~, which is required to complete the Notice of Child Custody Proceeding for Indian Child (form ICWA-030)~~;

(B) * * *

(C) Contacting the tribes and any other person ~~that~~ who reasonably can be expected to have information regarding the child's membership status or eligibility. These contacts must at a minimum include the contacts and sharing of information listed in Welfare and Institutions Code section 224.2(e)(3).

(5) The petitioner must on an ongoing basis include in its filings a detailed description of all inquiries, and further inquiries it has undertaken, and all information received pertaining to the child's Indian status, as well as evidence of how and when this information was provided to the relevant tribes. Whenever new information is received, that information must be expeditiously provided to the tribes.

~~(5) The circumstances that may provide reason to know the child is an Indian child include the following:~~

~~(A) The child or a person having an interest in the child, including an Indian tribe, an Indian organization, an officer of the court, a public or private agency, or a member of the child's extended family, informs or otherwise provides information suggesting that the child is an Indian child to the court, the county welfare agency, the probation department, the licensed adoption agency or adoption service provider, the investigator, the petitioner, or any appointed guardian or conservator~~

~~(B) The residence or domicile of the child, the child's parents, or an Indian custodian is or was in a predominantly Indian community; or~~

~~(C) The child or the child's family has received services or benefits from a tribe or services that are available to Indians from tribes or the federal government, such as the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Indian Health Service, or Tribal Temporary Assistance to Needy Families benefits.~~

(b) Reason to know the child is an Indian child

(1) There is reason to know a child involved in a proceeding is an Indian child if:

(A) A person having an interest in the child, including the child, an officer of the court, a tribe, an Indian organization, a public or private agency, or a member of the child's extended family informs the court the child is an Indian child;

(B) The residence or domicile of the child, the child's parents, or Indian custodian is on a reservation or in an Alaska Native village;

(C) Any participant in the proceeding, officer of the court, Indian tribe, Indian organization, or agency informs the court that it has discovered information indicating that the child is an Indian child;

(D) The child who is the subject of the proceeding gives the court reason to know he or she is an Indian child;

(E) The court is informed that the child is or has been a ward of a tribal court; or

(F) The court is informed that either parent or the child possesses an identification card indicating membership or citizenship in an Indian tribe.

(2) When there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, but the court does not have sufficient evidence to determine that the child is or is not an Indian child, the court must confirm, by way of a report, declaration, or testimony included in the record that the agency or other party used due diligence to identify and work with all of the tribes of which there is reason to know the child may be a member, or eligible for membership, to verify whether the child is in fact a member or whether a biological parent is a member and the child is eligible for membership. Due diligence must include the further inquiry and tribal contacts discussed in (a)(4) above.

(3) Upon review of the evidence of due diligence, further inquiry, and tribal contacts, if the court concludes that the agency or other party has fulfilled its duty of due diligence, further inquiry, and tribal contacts, the court may:

(A) Find there is no reason to know the child is an Indian child and the Indian Child Welfare Act does not apply. Notwithstanding this determination, if the court or a party subsequently receives information that was not previously available relevant to the child's Indian status, the court must reconsider this finding; or

(B) Find it is known the child is an Indian child, and that the Indian Child Welfare Act applies, and order compliance with the requirements of the act, including notice in accordance with (c) below; or

(C) Find there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, order notice in accordance with (c) below, and treat the child as an Indian child unless and until the court determines on the record that the child is not an Indian child.

(4) A determination by an Indian tribe that a child is or is not a member of, or eligible for membership in, that tribe, or testimony attesting to that status by a person authorized by the tribe to provide that determination, must be conclusive. Information that the child is not enrolled, or is not eligible for enrollment in, the tribe is not determinative of the child's membership status unless the tribe also confirms in writing that enrollment is a prerequisite for membership under tribal law or custom.

(c) Notice

(1) If it is known or there is reason to know ~~that~~ an Indian child is involved in a proceeding listed in rule 5.480, except for a wardship proceeding under Welfare and Institutions Code sections 601 and 602 et seq., the social worker, petitioner, or in probate guardianship and conservatorship proceedings, if the petitioner is unrepresented, the court, must send Notice of Child Custody Proceeding for Indian Child (form ICWA-030) to the parent or legal guardian and Indian custodian of an Indian child, and the Indian child's tribe, in the manner specified in Welfare and Institutions Code section ~~224.2~~ 224.3, Family ~~Law~~ Code section 180, and Probate Code section 1460.2 for all initial hearings that may result in the foster care placement, termination of parental rights, preadoptive placement, or adoptive placement, or an order of guardianship, conservatorship, or custody under Family Code section 3041. For all other hearings, and for continued hearings, notice must be provided to the child's parents, legal guardian or Indian custodian, and tribe in accordance with Welfare and Institutions Code sections 292, 293, and 295.

(2) * * *

(3) The circumstances that may provide reason to know the child is an Indian child include the circumstances specified in ~~(a)(5)~~(b)(1).

(4) * * *

Advisory Committee Comment

Federal regulations (25 C.F.R. § 23.105) and state law (Welf. & Inst. Code, § 224.2(e)) contain detailed recommendations for contacting tribes to fulfill the obligations of inquiry, due diligence, information sharing, and notice under the Indian Child Welfare Act and state law.

Rule 5.482. Proceedings after notice

(a) Timing of proceedings

(1) If it is known or there is reason to know ~~that~~ a child is an Indian child, ~~the~~ a court hearing that may result in a foster care placement, termination of parental rights, preadoptive placement, or adoptive placement must not proceed until at least 10 days after the parent, Indian custodian, the tribe, or the Bureau of Indian Affairs ~~have~~ has received notice, except as stated in sections (a)(2) and (3).

(2) The detention hearing in dependency cases and in delinquency cases in which the probation officer has assessed that the child is in foster care or it is probable the child will be entering foster care described by rule 5.480(2)(A)–(C) may proceed without delay, provided that:

(A) Notice of the detention hearing must be given as soon as possible after the filing of the petition initiating the proceeding; and

(B) Proof of notice must be filed with the court within 10 days after the filing of the petition.

(3) The parent, Indian custodian, or tribe must be granted a continuance, if requested, of up to 20 days to prepare for the proceeding, except for specified hearings in the following circumstances:

(A) The detention hearing in dependency cases and in delinquency cases described by rule 5.480(2)(A)–(C);

(B) The jurisdiction hearing in a delinquency case described by rule 5.480(2)(A)–(C) in which the court finds the continuance would not conform to speedy trial considerations under Welfare and Institutions Code section 657; and

(C) The disposition hearing in a delinquency case described by rule 5.480(2)(A)–(C) in which the court finds good cause to deny the continuance under Welfare and Institutions Code section 682. A good cause reason includes when probation is recommending the release of a detained child to his or her parent or to a less restrictive placement. The court must follow the placement preferences under rule 5.484 when holding the disposition hearing.

(b) Proof of notice

Proof of notice in accordance with this rule must be filed with the court in advance of the hearing, except for those excluded by (a)(2) and (3), and must include Notice of Child Custody Proceeding for Indian Child (form ICWA-030), return receipts, and any responses received from the Bureau of Indian Affairs and tribes.

(c) ~~When there is no information or response from a tribe~~ Determination of applicability of the Indian Child Welfare Act

(1) ~~If after notice has been provided as required by federal and state law and neither the tribe nor the Bureau of Indian Affairs has provided a determinative response within 60 days after receiving that notice, then the court may determine that the Indian Child Welfare Act does not apply to the proceedings, provided that the court must reverse its determination of the inapplicability of the act and must apply it prospectively if a tribe or the Bureau of Indian Affairs subsequently confirms that the child is an Indian child.~~ If the court finds that proper and adequate inquiry, further inquiry, and due diligence were conducted under Welfare and Institutions Code section 224.2 and, if applicable, notice provided under Welfare and Institutions Code section 224.3, and the court determines there is no reason to know the child is an Indian child, the court may make a finding that the Indian Child Welfare Act does not apply to the proceedings.

(2) ~~If at any time, based on the petition or other information, the court knows or has reason to know the child is an Indian child, the court must proceed as if the child were an Indian child.~~ The determination of the court that the Indian Child Welfare Act does not apply in (c)(1) is subject to reversal based on sufficiency of the evidence. The court must reverse its determination if it subsequently receives information providing reason to believe that the child is an Indian child and order the social worker or probation officer to conduct further inquiry under Welfare and Institutions Code section 224.3.

~~(3) The court is not required to delay proceedings until a response to notice is received.~~

(d) Intervention

The Indian child's tribe and Indian custodian ~~may~~ are entitled to intervene, orally or in writing, at any point in the proceedings~~.~~ ~~and~~ The tribe may, but ~~are~~ is not required to, file with the court the Notice of Designation of Tribal Representative ~~and Notice of Intervention~~ in a Court Proceeding Involving an Indian Child (form ICWA-040) to give notice of ~~their~~ its intent to intervene.

(e) * * *

(f) Consultation with tribe

Any person or court involved in the placement of an Indian child in a proceeding described by rule 5.480 must use the services of the Indian child's tribe, whenever available through the tribe, in seeking to secure placement within the order of placement preference specified in rule ~~5.484~~ 5.485.

Rule 5.483. Dismissal and transfer of case

(a) ~~Mandatory transfer of case to tribal court with~~ Dismissal when tribal court has exclusive jurisdiction

~~The court must order transfer of a case to the tribal court of the child's tribe if:~~ Subject to the terms of any agreement between the state and the tribe under 25 United States Code section 1919:

(1) ~~The Indian child is a ward of the tribal court;~~ If the court receives information at any stage of the proceeding suggesting that the Indian child is already the ward of the tribal court or ~~The Indian child~~ is domiciled or resides within a reservation of an Indian tribe that has exclusive jurisdiction over Indian child custody proceedings under 25 United States Code section 1911 or 1918 ~~of title 25 of the United States Code~~, the court must expeditiously notify the tribe and the tribal court that it intends to dismiss the case upon receiving confirmation from the tribe or tribal court that the child is a ward of the tribal court or subject to the tribe's exclusive jurisdiction.

(2) When the court receives confirmation that the child is already a ward of a tribal court or is subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of an Indian tribe, the state court must dismiss the proceeding and ensure that the tribal court is sent all information regarding the proceeding, including, but not limited to, the pleadings and any state court record. If the local agency has not already transferred physical custody of the Indian child to the child's tribe, the state court must order that the local agency do so forthwith and hold in abeyance any dismissal order pending confirmation that the Indian child is in the physical custody of the tribe.

(3) This section does not preclude an emergency removal consistent with 25 United States Code section 1922, 25 Code of Federal Regulations part 23.113, and Welfare and Institutions Code section 319 to protect the child from risk of imminent physical damage or harm and if more time is needed to facilitate the transfer of custody of the Indian child from the county welfare department to the tribe.

(b) * * *

(c) Documentation of request to transfer a case to tribal court

(1) * * *

(2) Upon receipt of a transfer petition, the state court must ensure that the tribal court is promptly notified in writing of the transfer petition. This notification may request a timely response regarding whether the tribal court wishes to decline the transfer.

(d) Cause to deny a request to transfer to tribal court with concurrent state and tribal jurisdiction

(1) ~~One or more~~ Either of the following circumstances constitutes mandatory good cause to deny a request to transfer:

(A) One or both of the child's parents objects to the transfer in open court or in an admissible writing for the record; or

~~(B) The child's tribe does not have a "tribal court" or any other administrative body as defined in section 1903 of the Indian Child Welfare Act: "a court with jurisdiction over child custody proceedings and which is either a Court of Indian Offenses, a court established and operated under the code or custom of an Indian tribe, or any other administrative body of a tribe which is vested with authority over child custody proceedings;" or~~

~~(C)~~(B) The tribal court of the child's tribe declines the transfer.

(2) ~~One or more of the following circumstances may constitute discretionary good cause to deny a request to transfer~~ In assessing whether good cause to deny the transfer exists, the court must not consider:

~~(A) The evidence necessary to decide the case cannot be presented in the tribal court without undue hardship to the parties or the witnesses, and the tribal court is unable to mitigate the hardship by making arrangements to receive and consider the evidence or testimony by use of remote communication, by hearing the evidence or testimony at a~~

~~location convenient to the parties or witnesses, or by use of other means permitted in the tribal court's rules of evidence or discovery;~~

~~(B) The proceeding was at an advanced stage when the request to transfer was received and the petitioner did not make the request within a reasonable time after receiving notice of the proceeding, provided the notice complied with statutory requirements. Waiting until reunification efforts have failed and reunification services have been terminated before filing a request to transfer may not, by itself, be considered an unreasonable delay;~~

~~(C) The Indian child is over 12 years of age and objects to the transfer; or~~

~~(D) The parents of a child over five years of age are not available and the child has had little or no contact with his or her tribe or members of the child's tribe.~~

(A) Socioeconomic conditions and the perceived adequacy of tribal social services or judicial systems;

(B) Whether the child custody proceeding is at an advanced stage if the Indian child's parent, Indian custodian, or tribe did not receive notice of the child custody proceeding until an advanced stage. It must not, in and of itself, be considered an unreasonable delay for a party to wait until reunification efforts have failed and reunification services have been terminated before filing a petition to transfer;

(C) Whether there have been prior proceedings involving the child for which no transfer petition was filed;

(D) Whether transfer could affect the placement of the child; or

(E) Whether the Indian child has cultural connections with the tribe or its reservation.

(3) * * *

~~(c) Evidentiary considerations~~

~~The court may not consider socioeconomic conditions and the perceived adequacy of tribal social services, tribal probation, or the tribal judicial systems in its determination that good cause exists to deny a request to transfer to tribal court with concurrent state and tribal jurisdiction.~~

~~(f)~~(e) Evidentiary burdens

(1) * * *

(2) If the court believes, or any party asserts, that good cause to deny the request exists, the reasons for that belief or assertion must be stated orally on the record or in writing, in advance of the hearing, and made available to all parties who are requesting the transfer, and the petitioner must have the opportunity to provide information or evidence in rebuttal of the belief or assertion.

~~(g)~~(f) Order on request to transfer * * *

~~(h)~~(g) Advisement when transfer order granted * * *

~~(i)~~(h) Proceeding after transfer * * *

Advisory Committee Comment

Once a transfer to tribal court is finalized as provided in rule 5.483~~(i)~~(h), the appellate court lacks jurisdiction to order the case returned to state court (In re M.M. (2007) 154 Cal.App.4th 897).

As stated by the Court of Appeal in In re M.M., the juvenile court has the discretion to stay the provisions of a judgment or order awarding, changing, or affecting custody of a minor child "pending review on appeal or for any other period or periods that it may deem appropriate" (Code Civ. Proc., § 917.7), and the party seeking review of the transfer order should first request a stay in the lower court. (See Nuckolls v. Bank of California, Nat. Assn. (1936) 7 Cal.2d 574, 577 [61 P.2d 927] ["Inasmuch as the [L]egislature has provided a method by which the trial court, in a proper case, may grant the stay, the appellate courts, assuming that they have the power, should not, except in some unusual emergency, exercise their power until the petitioner has first presented the matter to the trial court~~.~~"].) If the juvenile court should deny the stay request, the aggrieved party may then petition this court for a writ of supersedeas pending appeal. (Cal. Rules of Court, rule 8.112).

~~Subsection (h)~~ Subdivision (g) and this advisory committee comment are added to help ensure that an objecting party does not inadvertently lose the right to appeal a transfer order.

Rule 5.484. Emergency proceedings involving an Indian child

(a) Standards for removal

Whenever it is known or there is reason to know the case involves an Indian child, the court may not order an emergency removal or placement of the child without a finding that the removal or placement is necessary to prevent imminent physical damage or harm to the child. The petition requesting emergency removal or continued emergency placement of the child or its accompanying documents must contain the following:

(1) A statement of the risk of imminent physical damage or harm to the child and any evidence that the emergency removal or placement continues to be necessary to prevent such imminent physical damage or harm to the child;

(2) The name, age, and last known address of the Indian child;

(3) The name and address of the child's parents and Indian custodian, if any;

(4) The steps taken to provide notice to the child's parents, Indian custodian, and tribe about the emergency proceeding;

(5) If the child's parents and Indian custodian are unknown, a detailed explanation of what efforts have been made to locate and contact them;

(6) The residence and the domicile of the Indian child;

(7) If either the residence or the domicile of the Indian child is believed to be on a reservation or in an Alaska Native village, the name of the tribe affiliated with that reservation or village;

(8) The tribal affiliation of the child and of the parents or Indian custodian;

(9) A specific and detailed account of the circumstances that led to the emergency removal of the child;

(10) If the child is believed to reside or be domiciled on a reservation where the tribe exercises exclusive jurisdiction over child custody matters, a statement of efforts that have been made and are being made to contact the tribe and transfer the child to the tribe's jurisdiction; and

(11) A statement of the efforts that have been taken to assist the parents or Indian custodian so the Indian child may safely be returned to their custody.

(b) Return of Indian child when emergency situation has ended

(1) Whenever it is known or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child and there has been an emergency removal of the child from parental custody, any party who asserts that there is new information indicating that the emergency situation has ended may request an ex parte hearing by filing a request on Request for Ex Parte Hearing to Return Physical Custody of an Indian Child (form ICWA-070) to determine whether the emergency situation has ended.

(2) If the request provides evidence of new information establishing that the emergency placement is no longer necessary, the court must promptly schedule a hearing. At the hearing the court must consider whether the child's removal and placement is still necessary to prevent imminent physical damage or harm to the child. If the court determines that the child's emergency removal or placement is no longer necessary to prevent imminent physical damage or harm to the child, the court must order the child returned to the physical custody of the parents or Indian custodian.

(3) In accordance with rules 3.10 and 3.20, this procedure is governed by the provisions of division 6, chapter 3 and division 11, chapter 4 of title 3 of the California Rules of Court.

(c) Time limitation on emergency proceedings

An emergency removal must not continue for more than 30 days unless the court makes the following determinations:

(1) Restoring the child to the parent or Indian custodian would subject the child to imminent physical damage or harm;

(2) The court has been unable to transfer the proceeding to the jurisdiction of the appropriate Indian tribe; and

(3) It has not been possible to have a hearing that complies with the substantive requirements of the Indian Child Welfare Act for a foster care placement proceeding.

Rule 5.485.~~5.484~~. Placement of an Indian child

(a) * * *

(b) Standards and preferences in placement of an Indian child

(1) All placements of an Indian child must be in the least restrictive setting that most approximates a family situation and in which the child's special needs, if any, may be met.

~~(1)~~(2) Unless the court finds by clear and convincing evidence that there is good cause to deviate from them ~~the contrary~~, whenever it is known or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, all placements ~~of Indian children~~ in any proceeding listed in rules 5.480 and 5.484 must follow the specified placement preferences in Family Code section 177(a), Probate Code section 1459(b), and Welfare and Institutions Code section 361.31.

~~(2)~~(3) The court must analyze the availability of placements within the placement preferences in descending order without skipping. The court may deviate from the preference order only for good cause, which may include the following considerations:

(A) The requests of the parent or Indian custodian if they attest that they have reviewed the placement options, if any, that comply with the order of preference;

(B) The requests of the Indian child, when of sufficient age and capacity to understand the decision being made;

(C) The presence of a sibling attachment that can be maintained only through a particular placement;

~~(C)~~(D) The extraordinary physical, mental, or emotional needs of the Indian child, including specialized treatment services that may be unavailable in the community where families who meet the placement preferences live ~~as established by a qualified expert witness~~; or which the Indian child's parent or extended family members maintain social and cultural ties.

~~(3)~~(4) The placement preferences must be analyzed and considered each time there is a change in the child's placement. A finding that there is good cause to deviate from the placement preferences does not affect the requirement that a diligent search be made for a subsequent placement within the placement preferences.

(5) The burden of establishing good cause for the court to deviate from the preference order is on the party requesting that the preference order not be followed. A placement may not depart from the preferences based on the socioeconomic status of any placement relative to another or solely on the basis of ordinary bonding or attachment that flowed from time spent in a nonpreferred placement that was made in violation of the Indian Child Welfare Act.

~~(5)~~(7) * * *

~~(6)~~(8) When no preferred placement is available, active efforts must be made and documented to place the child with a family committed to enabling the child to have visitation with "extended family members," as defined in ~~rule 5.481(a)(4)(A)~~ 25 United States Code section 1903(2), and participation in the cultural and ceremonial events of the child's tribe.

(c) Active efforts

In addition to any other required findings to place an Indian child with someone other than a parent or Indian custodian, or to terminate parental rights, the court must find that active efforts have been made, in any proceeding listed in rule 5.480, to provide remedial services and rehabilitative programs designed to prevent the breakup of the Indian family, and must find that these efforts were unsuccessful. These active efforts must include affirmative, active, thorough, and timely efforts intended primarily to maintain or reunite the child with his or her family, must be tailored to the facts and circumstances of the case, and must be consistent with the requirements of Welfare and Institutions Code section 224.1(f).

(1) The active efforts must be documented in detail in the record.

~~(1)~~(2) The court must consider whether active efforts were made in a manner consistent with the prevailing social and cultural conditions and way of life of the Indian child's tribe.

~~(2)~~(3) Active efforts to provide services must include pursuit of any steps necessary to secure tribal membership for a child if the child is eligible for membership in a given tribe, as well as attempts to use the available resources of extended family members, the tribe, tribal and other Indian social service agencies, and individual Indian caregivers.

Rule 5.486.~~5.485.~~ Termination of parental rights

(a) * * *

(b) When parental rights may not be terminated

The court may not terminate parental rights to an Indian child or declare a child free from the custody and control of one or both parents if the court finds a compelling reason for determining that termination of parental rights would not be in the child's best interest. Such a reason may include:

(1) The child is living with a relative who is unable or unwilling to adopt the child because of circumstances that do not include an unwillingness to accept legal or financial responsibility for the child, but who is willing and capable of providing the child with a stable and permanent environment through legal guardianship, and the removal of the child from the custody of his or her relative would be detrimental to the emotional well-being of the child. For purposes of an Indian child, "relative" must include an "extended family member," as defined in the Indian Child Welfare Act (25 U.S.C. § 1903(2));

~~(1)~~(2) Termination of parental rights would substantially interfere with the child's connection to his or her tribal community or the child's tribal membership rights; or

~~(2)~~(3) The child's tribe has identified tribal customary adoption, guardianship, long-term foster care with a fit and willing relative, or another planned permanent living arrangement for the child.

Rule 5.487.~~5.486.~~ Petition to invalidate orders

(a) Who may petition

Any Indian child who is the subject of any action for foster-care placement, guardianship or conservatorship placement, custody placement under Family Code section 3041, declaration freeing a child from the custody and control of one or both parents, preadoptive placement, adoptive placement, or termination of parental rights; any parent or Indian custodian from whose custody such child was removed; and the Indian child's tribe may petition the court to invalidate the action on a showing that the action violated the Indian Child Welfare Act.

(b)-(c) * * *

Rule 5.550. Continuances

(a)–(b) * * *

(c) Continuances of detention hearings (§§ 319, 322, 635, 636, 638)

(1)–(2) * * *

(3) When the court knows or has reason to know the child is an Indian child, the detention hearing may not be continued beyond 30 days unless the court makes the findings required by section 319(e)(2).

(d) Continuances of a dispositional hearing when the court knows or has reason to know the child is an Indian child (§ 352(b))

(1) When the court knows or has reason to know that the case involves an Indian child, no continuance of a dispositional may be granted that would result in the hearing being held longer than 30 days after the hearing at which the minor was ordered removed or detained unless the court finds that there are exceptional circumstances requiring a continuance.

(2) The absence of an opinion from a qualified expert witness must not, in and of itself, support a finding that exceptional circumstances exist.

Rule 5.570. Request to change court order (petition for modification)

(a)–(d) * * *

(e) Grounds for grant of petition (§§ 388, 778)

(1)–(4) * * *

(5) For a petition filed under section 388(c)(1)(A), the court may terminate reunification services during the time periods described in section 388(c)(1) only if the court finds by a preponderance of evidence that reasonable services have been offered or provided, and, by clear and convincing evidence, that the change of circumstance or new evidence described in the petition satisfies a condition in section 361.5(b) or (e). In the case of an Indian child, the court may terminate reunification services only if the court finds by clear and convincing evidence that active efforts have been made to provide remedial services and rehabilitative programs designed to prevent the breakup of the Indian family within the meaning of sections 224.1(f) and 361.7 and that these efforts have proved unsuccessful. The court may grant the petition after following the procedures in (f), (g), and (h).

(6) For a petition filed under section 388(c)(1)(B), the court may terminate reunification services during the time periods described in section 388(c)(1) only if the court finds by a preponderance of evidence that reasonable services have been offered or provided, and, by clear and convincing evidence, that action or inaction by the parent or guardian creates a substantial likelihood that reunification will not occur. Such action or inaction includes, but is not limited to, failure to visit the child or failure to participate regularly and make substantive progress in a court-ordered treatment program. In determining whether the parent or guardian has failed to visit the child or to participate regularly or make progress in a court-ordered treatment plan, the court must consider factors including, but not limited to, the parent or guardian's incarceration, institutionalization, or participation in a residential substance abuse treatment program. In the case of an Indian child, the court may terminate reunification services only if the court finds by clear and convincing evidence that active efforts have been made to provide remedial services and rehabilitative programs designed to prevent the breakup of the Indian family within the meaning of sections 224.1(f) and 361.7 and that these efforts have proved unsuccessful. The court may grant the petition after following the procedures in (f), (g), and (h).

(7) * * *

(f)–(g) * * *

(h) Conduct of hearing (§ 388)

(1) * * *

(A) * * *

(B) If the request is for termination of court-ordered reunification services, the petitioner must show by clear and convincing evidence that one of the conditions in section 388(c)(1)(A) or (B) exists and must show by a preponderance of the evidence that reasonable services have been offered or provided. In the case of an Indian child, the court may terminate reunification services only if the court finds by clear and convincing evidence that active efforts have been made to provide remedial services and rehabilitative programs designed to prevent the breakup of the Indian family within the meaning of sections 224.1(f) and 361.7 and that these efforts have proved unsuccessful.

Rule 5.668. Commencement of hearing—explanation of proceedings (§§ 316, 316.2)

(a)–(b) * * *

(c) Indian Child Welfare Act inquiry (§ 224.2(c) & (g))

(1) At the first appearance in court of each party, the court must ask each participant present at the hearing whether:

(A) The participant knows or has reason to know the child is an Indian child;

(B) The residence or domicile of the child, the child's parents, or Indian custodian is on a reservation or in an Alaska Native village;

(C) The child is or has ever been a ward of a tribal court; and

(D) Either parent or the child possess an identification card indicating membership or citizenship in an Indian tribe.

(2) The court must also instruct all parties to inform the court if they subsequently receive information that provides reason to know the child is an Indian child, and order the parents, Indian custodian, or guardian, if available, to complete Parental Notification of Indian Status (form ICWA-020).

(3) If there is reason to believe that the case involves an Indian child, the court must require the agency to proceed in accordance with section 224.2(e).

(4) If it is known, or there is reason to know, the case involves an Indian child, the court must proceed in accordance with rules 5.481 et seq. and treat the child as an Indian child unless and until the court determines on the record after review of the report of due diligence described in section 224.2(g) that the child does not meet the definition of an Indian child.

Rule 5.674. Conduct of hearing; admission, no contest, submission

(a) * * *

(b) Detention hearing; general conduct (§ 319; 42 U.S.C. § 600 et seq.)

(1) * * *

(2) The findings and orders that must be made on the record are:

(A)–(B) * * *

(C) Reasonable efforts, or when it is known or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, active efforts, have been made to prevent removal; ~~and~~

(D) The findings and orders required to be made on the record under section 319; and

(E) When it is known or there is reason to know the case involves an Indian child, that detention is necessary to prevent imminent physical damage or harm to the child, and there are no reasonable means by which the child can be protected if maintained in the physical custody of his or her parent or parents or Indian custodian.

(c) Detention hearing; rights of child, parent, Indian custodian, or guardian (§§ 311, 319)

At the detention hearing, the child, the parent, Indian custodian, and the guardian have the right to assert the privilege against self-incrimination and the right to confront and cross-examine:

(1) * * *

(2) Any person examined by the court under section 319. If the child, parent, Indian custodian, Indian child's tribe, or guardian asserts the right to cross-examine preparers of documents submitted for court consideration, the court may not consider any such report or document unless the preparer is made available for cross-examination.

(d) No parent, Indian custodian, or Indian child's tribe or guardian present and not noticed (§ 321)

If the court orders the child detained at the detention hearing and no parent, Indian custodian, or Indian child's tribe or guardian is present and no parent, Indian custodian, or Indian child's tribe or guardian has received actual notice of the detention hearing, a parent, Indian custodian, or Indian child's tribe or guardian may file an affidavit alleging the failure of notice and requesting a detention rehearing. The clerk must set the rehearing for a time within 24 hours of the filing of the affidavit, excluding noncourt days. At the rehearing the court must proceed under rules 5.670–5.678.

(e) Hearing for further evidence; prima facie case (§ 321)

If the court orders the child detained, and the child, a parent, an Indian custodian, an Indian child's tribe, a guardian, or counsel requests that evidence of the prima facie case be presented, the court must set a prima facie hearing for a time within 3 court days to consider evidence of the prima facie case or set the matter for jurisdiction hearing within 10 court days. If at the hearing the petitioner fails to establish the prima facie case, the child must be released from custody.

Rule 5.676. Requirements for detention

(a) Requirements for detention (§ 319)

No child may be ordered detained by the court unless the court finds that:

(1) * * *

(2) Continuance in the home of the parent, Indian custodian, or guardian is contrary to the child's welfare; and

(3) * * *

(b) Additional requirements for detention of Indian child

If it is known, or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, the child may not be ordered detained unless the court also finds that detention is necessary to prevent imminent physical damage or harm to the child. The court must state the facts supporting this finding on the record.

~~(b)~~(c)* * *

(d) Additional evidence required at detention hearing for Indian child

If it is known, or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, the reports relied on must also include:

(1) A statement of the risk of imminent physical damage or harm to the Indian child and any evidence that the emergency removal or placement continues to be necessary to prevent the imminent physical damage or harm to the child;

(2) The steps taken to provide notice to the child's parents, Indian custodian, and tribe about the hearing under section 224.3;

(3) If the child's parents and Indian custodian are unknown, a detailed explanation of what efforts have been made to locate and contact them, including contact with the appropriate Bureau of Indian Affairs regional director;

(4) The residence and the domicile of the Indian child;

(5) If either the residence or the domicile of the Indian child is believed to be on a reservation or in an Alaska Native village, the name of the tribe affiliated with that reservation or village;

(6) The tribal affiliation of the child and of the parents or Indian custodian;

(7) A specific and detailed account of the circumstances that caused the Indian child to be taken into temporary custody;

(8) If the child is believed to reside or be domiciled on a reservation in which the tribe exercises exclusive jurisdiction over child custody matters, a statement of efforts that have been made and that are being made to contact the tribe and transfer the child to the tribe's jurisdiction; and

(9) A statement of the efforts that have been taken to assist the parents or Indian custodian so the Indian child may safely be returned to their custody.

Rule 5.678. Findings in support of detention; factors to consider; reasonable efforts; active efforts; detention alternatives

(a) Findings in support of detention (§ 319; 42 U.S.C. § 672)

The court must order the child released from custody unless the court makes the findings specified in section 319~~(b)~~(c), and where it is known, or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, the additional finding specified in section 319(d).

(b) In determining whether to release or detain the child under (a), the court must consider the factors in section 319~~(d)~~(f).

(c) Findings of the court—reasonable or active efforts (§ 319; 42 U.S.C. § 672)

(1) * * *

(2) Where it is known or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, whether the child is released or detained at the hearing, the court must determine whether active efforts have been made to provide remedial services and rehabilitative programs designed to prevent the breakup of the Indian family and whether those efforts have been successful. Those active efforts must be documented in detail in the record, and the court must make one of the following findings:

(A) Active efforts have been made and were successful; or

(B) Active efforts have been made and were not successful; or

(C) Active efforts have not been made; and

(D) The court orders the department to initiate or continue services in accordance with section 358.

~~(2)~~(3) The court must also determine whether services are available that would prevent the need for further detention.

~~(3)~~(4) The court must not order the child detained unless the court, after inquiry regarding available services, finds that there are no reasonable services, or where it is known or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, active efforts to provide remedial services and rehabilitative programs designed to prevent the breakup of the Indian family that would prevent or eliminate the need to detain the child or that would permit the child to return home.

~~(4)~~(5) If the court orders the child detained, the court must proceed under section 319~~(d)~~(g) ~~(e)~~(h) and where it is known, or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, subdivision (f) of this rule.

(d) Orders of the court (§ 319; 42 U.S.C. § 672)

If the court orders the child detained, the court must order that temporary care and custody of the child be vested with the county welfare department pending disposition or further order of the court and must make the other findings and orders specified in section 319~~(e)~~(g) and ~~(f)(3)~~(h)(3).

(e) Detention alternatives (§ 319)

The court may order the child detained as specified in section 319~~(f)~~(h).

(f) Additional requirements regarding detention of Indian child (§ 319)

(1) If it is known, or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, the child must be detained in a home that complies with the placement preferences in section 361.31 unless the court finds by clear and convincing evidence good cause exists not to follow the placement preferences in accordance with rule 5.485.

(2) If it is known, or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, the detention hearing may not be continued beyond 30 days unless the court finds all of the following:

(A) Restoring the child to the parent, parents, or Indian custodian would subject the child to imminent physical damage or harm;

(B) The court is unable to transfer the proceeding to the jurisdiction of the appropriate Indian tribe; and

(C) It is not possible to initiate an Indian child custody proceeding as defined in section 224.1.

(g) Hearing for return of custody of Indian child after emergency removal when emergency has ended (§ 319.4)

If it is known or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, a party may request a hearing under rule 5.484(b) for return of the child before disposition if the party asserts that there is new evidence that the emergency removal or placement is no longer necessary to prevent imminent physical damage or harm to the child.

Rule 5.690. General conduct of disposition hearing

(a) Social study (§§ 280, 309, 358, 358.1, 360, 361.5, 16002(b))

The petitioner must prepare a social study of the child. The social study must include a discussion of all matters relevant to disposition and a recommendation for disposition.

(1) The petitioner must comply with the following when preparing the social study:

(A) * * *

(B) If petitioner recommends removal of the child from the home, the social study must include:

(i) A discussion of the reasonable efforts made to prevent or eliminate removal, or if it is known or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, the active efforts to provide remedial services and rehabilitative programs designed to prevent the breakup of the Indian family, and a recommended plan for reuniting the child with the family, including a plan for visitation;

(ii)–(iii) * * *

(C) The social study must include a discussion of the social worker's efforts to comply with section 309(e) and rule 5.637, including but not limited to:

(i)–(ii) * * *

(iii) The number and relationship of those relatives described by item (ii) who are interested in ongoing contact with the child; ~~and~~

(iv) The number and relationship of those relatives described by item (ii) who are interested in providing placement for the child; and

(v) If it is known or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, efforts to locate extended family members as defined in section 224.1, and evidence that all individuals contacted have been provided with information about the option of obtaining approval for placement through the tribe's license or approval procedure.

(D)–(F) * * *

(2) * * *

(b)–(c) * * *

(d) Timing

Notwithstanding any other law, if a minor has been removed from the custody of the parents or Indian custodians or guardians, a continuance may not be granted that would result in the dispositional hearing, held under section 361, being completed more than 60 days, or 30 days in the case of an Indian child, after the hearing at which the minor was ordered removed or detained, unless the court finds that there are exceptional circumstances requiring a continuance. If the court knows or has reason to know that the child is an Indian child, the absence of the opinion of a qualified expert witness must not, in and of itself, support a finding that exceptional circumstances exist.

Rule 5.725. Selection of permanent plan (§§ 366.24, 366.26, 727.31)

(a)–(d) * * *

(e) Procedures—adoption

(1) * * *

(2) An order of the court terminating parental rights, ordering adoption under section 366.26 or, in the case of an Indian child, ordering tribal customary adoption under section 366.24, is conclusive and binding on the child, the parent, and all other persons who have been served under the provisions of section 294. Once a final order of adoption has issued, the order may not be set aside or modified by the court, except as provided in section 366.26(e)(3) and (i)(3) and rules 5.538, 5.540, and 5.542 with regard to orders by a referee.

INFORMATION SHEET ON INDIAN CHILD INQUIRY ATTACHMENTS AND NOTICE OF CHILD CUSTODY PROCEEDING FOR INDIAN CHILD

Form ICWA-010(A), Indian Child Inquiry Attachment, or page 5 of form GC-210(CA), Guardianship Petition—Child Information Attachment

You are responsible for helping to find out if the child is or may be an Indian child and filling out the information requested on ICWA-010(A), Indian Child Inquiry Attachment, or on page 5 of form GC-210(CA), Guardianship Petition—Child Information Attachment form. This is important because if the child is an Indian child, specific steps must be taken to prevent the breakup of the child's Indian family and to obtain for the child resources and services that are culturally specific to the child's family. The court will check to make sure that the child receives these resources and services.

Tips on how to fill out form ICWA-010(A), Indian Child Inquiry Attachment, or page 5 of form GC-210(CA), Guardianship Petition—Child Information Attachment

1. Try to find contact information for the child's parents or other legal guardian, the child's Indian custodian (if the child is living with an Indian person other than a parent), the child's grandparents and great-grandparents, and other available family members.
2. Contact the child's parents or other legal guardian and the child's Indian custodian and other available family members and ask them (and the child, if he or she is old enough) these questions:
   a. Is the child a member of a tribe, and if they think he or she might be, then which tribe or tribes?
   b. Are they members of a tribe, and if they think they might be, which tribes?
   c. Does the child or the child's parents live in Indian country, including a reservation, rancheria, Alaska Native village or other tribal trust land?
   d. Does the child or any of the child's relatives receive services or benefits from a tribe, and if yes, which tribe?
   e. Does the child or any of the child's relatives receive services or benefits available to Indians from the federal government?
3. If you are in touch with any of the child's relatives, ask them the same questions.

The court clerk's office cannot file your petition unless you have filled out and attached to the petition form ICWA-010(A), Indian Child Inquiry Attachment. This does not apply to a petition for appointment of a guardian in a probate guardianship or a petition filed in the juvenile court under Welfare and Institutions Code sections 601 or 602.

After taking the steps listed above to find out whether the child is an Indian child, if you have reason to believe that the child is an Indian child, you must contact the tribe or tribes that may have a connection with the child about your court case. You have reason to believe the child is an Indian child if any of the people you question answers yes to any of your questions. Tribes that learn of the case can investigate and advise you and the court whether the child is a tribal member or eligible to become a tribal member, and can then decide whether to get involved in the case or assume tribal jurisdiction.

Contacts with the tribe or tribes should include contacting the tribe's designated agent for service of notice under the Indian Child Welfare Act published in the Federal Register by telephone, facsimile, or email and sharing with the tribe or tribes information identified by the tribe as necessary to make a determination about the child's tribal membership or eligibility for membership, as well as information on the current status of the child and the case.

ICWA-030, Notice of Child Custody Proceeding for Indian Child

Following your inquiry about the child's Indian status and contacts with the child's tribe or tribes, if necessary, you must provide formal notice on form ICWA-030, Notice of Child Custody Proceeding for Indian Child, if you know or have reason to know the child is an Indian child.

Some tips to help you figure out if you have a reason to know the child is an Indian child. You have reason to know:

1. If the child, an Indian tribe, an Indian organization, an attorney, a public or private agency, or a member of the child's extended family says or provides information to anyone involved in the case that the child is an Indian child;
2. If the child, the child's parents, or an Indian custodian live in a predominately Indian community; or
3. If the child or the child's family has received services or benefits from a tribe or services that are available to Indians from tribes or the federal government, such as the Indian Health Service.

These are just a few of the facts that would give you reason to know that a child is an Indian child. There also may be other information that would give you reason to know that the child is an Indian child.

Who do you need to notify?

If you know or have reason to know that the child is an Indian child, you must send the Notice to the following:

1. Child's parents or other legal guardian, including adoptive parents;
2. Child's Indian custodian (if the child is living with an Indian person who has legal custody of the child under tribal law or custom, under state law, or if the parent asked that person to take care of the child);
3. Child's tribe or tribes; and
4. Sacramento Area Director, Bureau of Indian Affairs, Federal Office Building, 2800 Cottage Way, Sacramento, California 95825 (if the parents, Indian custodian, or tribe cannot be determined or located).

Tips on how to find the address for the child's tribe or tribes

The Secretary of the Interior periodically updates and publishes in the Federal Register (see 25 C.F.R. § 23.12), a list of tribe names and addresses. The Bureau of Indian Affairs also keeps a list. You can access to the Federal Register list, and other resources related to ICWA, on the Bureau of Indian Affairs website at www.bia.gov/bia/ois/dhs/icwa.

Copy to the Secretary of the Interior and the Area Director of the Bureau of Indian Affairs

If you know the identity and location of the parent, Indian custodian, and the tribe or tribes, when you send the Notice to the parent, Indian custodian, and the tribe or tribes, you must also send a copy to the Secretary of the Interior at 1849 C Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20240 and a copy to the Sacramento Area Director, Bureau of Indian Affairs, Federal Office Building, 2800 Cottage Way, Sacramento, CA 95825.

Copy to the Area Director of the Bureau of Indian Affairs

If you do not know the identity and location of the child's parents, Indian custodian, and tribe or tribes, you must send copies of the Notice and the other documents to the Sacramento Area Director, Bureau of Indian Affairs, Federal Office Building, 2800 Cottage Way, Sacramento, CA 95825. In order to help establish the child's tribal identity, provide as much information as possible, including the child's name, birthdate, and birth place; the name of the tribe or tribes; the names of all of the child's known relatives with addresses and other identifying information; and a copy of the petition in the case.

How do you send the Notice and prove to the court that you have done so?

If you have an attorney, he or she will complete the steps described below. If you are representing yourself without an attorney in a probate guardianship case, the court clerk will help you with steps 1 and 2 below, including doing the mailing and signing the certificate of mailing on page 9 of the Notice, but you must deliver copies of the Notice and other documents listed in step 1 below to the court in addressed envelopes ready for mailing and then do step 3.

1. Mail to the persons and organizations listed at the top of this page, by registered or certified mail, with return receipt requested, copies of the following filled-out and signed forms:
   a. Your petition;
   b. Form ICWA-010(A), Indian Child Inquiry Attachment or, in a probate guardianship case, form GC-210(CA), Guardianship Petition—Child Information Attachment; and
   c. Form ICWA-030, Notice of Child Custody Proceeding for Indian Child.
2. The person who does the mailing must fill out the information requested on page 10 of form ICWA-030, Notice of Child Custody Proceeding for Indian Child, and then date and sign the original form on page 9.
3. Go to the court and file with the clerk of the court proof that you have given notice to everyone listed above and on page 10 of form ICWA-030, Notice of Child Custody Proceeding for Indian Child. Your proof must consist of the following:
   a. The original signed Notice (form ICWA-030) and copies of the documents you sent with it (the petition and form ICWA-010(A) or form GC-210(CA));
   b. All return receipts given to you by the post office and returned from the mailing; and
   c. All responses you receive from the child's parents, the child's Indian custodian, the child's tribe or tribes, and the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Please note that you are subject to court sanctions if you knowingly and willfully falsify or conceal a material fact concerning whether the child is an Indian child or counsel a party to do so. (Welf. & Inst. Code, § 224.3(e).)

CASE NAME:	CASE NUMBER:

4. Under the Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA) and California law:
   a. The child's parents, Indian custodian, and the child's tribe have the right to be present at all hearings.
   b. The child's Indian custodian and the child's tribe have the right to intervene in the proceedings when ICWA applies.
   c. The child's parent, Indian custodian, or tribe may petition the court to transfer the case to the tribal court of the Indian child's tribe. The child's parent or tribe also have the right to refuse to have the case transferred to the tribal court.
   d. With the limited exceptions of the detention hearing in juvenile cases and the jurisdiction and disposition hearings in delinquency cases as identified in rule 5.482, the court will give up to 20 additional days from the time of the scheduled hearing if the child's parent, Indian custodian, or tribe request such time to prepare for the hearing.
   e. The proceedings could lead to the removal of the child from the custody of the parent or Indian custodian and possible termination of parental rights and adoption of the child.
   f. If the child's parents or Indian custodian have a right to be represented by a lawyer and if they cannot afford to hire one, a lawyer will be appointed for them.
   g. The information contained in this notice and all attachments is confidential. Any tribal representative or agent or any other person or entity receiving this information must maintain the confidentiality of this information and not reveal it to anyone who does not need the information in order to exercise the tribe's rights under the Indian Child Welfare Act (25 U.S.C. § 1901 et seq.).
   h. An Indian custodian is any Indian person who has legal custody of the child under tribal law or custom or state law, or to whom temporary physical custody, care, and control of the child has been transferred by a parent.

5. INFORMATION ON THE CHILD NAMED IN 1

   (If item 9 is checked, go to item 18.)

10. This case involves an Indian child. The parental rights of
    a. ☐ parent (name):
    b. ☐ parent (name):
    c. ☐ Indian custodians (names):
    d. ☐ alleged fathers (names):
    e. ☐ unknown mother ☐ all unknown fathers are modified in accordance with the tribal customary adoption order of the (specify): _____ tribe, dated _____ and comprising _____ pages, which is accorded full faith and credit and fully incorporated herein. The child is referred to the California Department of Social Services or a local licensed adoption agency for tribal customary adoptive placement in accordance with the tribal customary adoption order.

    (If item 10 is checked, go to item 18.)

11. ☐ The child is living with a relative who is unable or unwilling to adopt the child because of circumstances that do not include an unwillingness to accept legal or financial responsibility for the child, but who is willing and capable of providing the child with a stable and permanent environment through legal guardianship. Removal of the child from the custody of his or her relative would be detrimental to the emotional well-being of the child. (If item 11 is checked, go to item 15 or 16.)

12. ☐ Termination of parental rights would be detrimental to the child for the following reasons: (If item 12 is checked, check reasons below and go to item 15 or 16.)
    a. ☐ The parents or guardians have maintained regular visitation and contact with the child, and the child would benefit from continuing the relationship.
    b. ☐ The child is 12 years of age or older and objects to termination of parental rights.
    c. ☐ The child is placed in a residential treatment facility, adoption is unlikely or undesirable, and continuation of parental rights will not prevent a permanent family placement if the parents cannot resume custody when residential care is no longer needed.
    d. ☐ The child is living with a foster parent or Indian custodian who is unable or unwilling to adopt the child because of exceptional circumstances that do not include an unwillingness to accept legal or financial responsibility for the child, but who is willing and capable of providing the child with a stable and permanent environment. Removal of the child from the physical custody of the foster parent or Indian custodian would be detrimental to the emotional well-being of the child. This clause does not apply to any child who is either
       (1) under the age of 6; or
       (2) a member of a sibling group with at least one child under the age of 6 and the siblings are or should be placed together.

CHILD'S NAME:	CASE NUMBER:

12. e. ☐ There would be substantial interference with the child's sibling relationship.
f. ☐ The child is an Indian child, and there are compelling reasons for determining that termination of parental rights would not be in the best interest of the child, including, but not limited to:

(1) Termination of parental rights would substantially interfere with the child's connection to his or her tribal community or the child's tribal membership rights.

(2) The child's tribe has identified guardianship or another permanent plan for the child.

13. ☐ Termination of parental rights would not be detrimental to the child, but no adoptive parent has been identified or is available, and the child is difficult to place because the child (if item 13 is checked, check reasons below and go to item 14):

a. ☐ is a member of a sibling group that should stay together.
b. ☐ has a diagnosed medical, physical, or mental disability.
c. ☐ is 7 years of age or older.

14. a. ☐ Termination of parental rights is not ordered at this time. Adoption is the permanent plan, and efforts are to be made to locate an appropriate adoptive family. A report to the court is due by (date, not to exceed 180 days from the date of this order):

(Do not check in the case of a tribal customary adoption. If item 14a is checked, provide for visitation in items 14b and 14c as appropriate, and go to item 18.)

b. ☐ Visitation between the child and

15. ☐ The child's permanent plan is legal guardianship.

☐ (Name): is appointed legal guardian of the child, and Letters of Guardianship will issue. (Do not check in case of a tribal customary adoption. If item 15 is checked, provide for visitation in items 15a and 15b as appropriate, and go to item 15c or 15d.)

a. ☐ Visitation between the child and

☐ parent (name): ☐ Mother ☐ Father
☐ parent (name): ☐ Mother ☐ Father
☐ legal guardian (name):
☐ other (name):

is scheduled as follows (specify):

b. ☐ Visitation between the child and (names):
is detrimental to the child's physical or emotional well-being and is terminated.

c. ☐ Dependency ☐ Wardship is terminated.

d. ☐ Dependency ☐ Wardship is terminated. The likely date for termination of the dependency or wardship is (date): (If this item is checked, go to item 17.)

The juvenile court retains jurisdiction of the guardianship under Welfare and Institutions Code section 366.4.

CHILD'S NAME:	CASE NUMBER:

16. a. ☐ The child remains placed with (name of placement):
with a permanent plan of (specify):

(1) ☐ Returning home
(2) ☐ Adoption
(3) ☐ Tribal customary adoption
(4) ☐ Legal guardianship
(5) ☐ Permanent placement with a fit and willing relative
(6) ☐ Independent living with identification of a caring adult to serve as a lifelong connection

The child's permanent plan is likely to be achieved by (date):

(If item 16a is checked, provide for visitation in items 16b and 16c as appropriate, and go to item 18.)

b. ☐ Visitation between the child and is scheduled as follows (specify):

c. ☐ Visitation between the child and (names):
is detrimental to the child's physical or emotional well-being and is terminated.

17. ☐ The child is an Indian child. The court finds that the child's permanent plan complies with the placement preferences because:

a. ☐ The permanent plan is not adoption, and (choose one):

(1) ☐ The child is placed with a member of the child's extended family as defined by Welf. & Inst. Code, § 224.1(c); or
(2) ☐ A diligent search was made for a placement with a member of the child's extended family, the efforts are documented in detail in the record, and the child is placed in a foster home licensed, approved, or specified by the Indian child's tribe; or
(3) ☐ A diligent search was made for a placement with a member of the child's extended family, in a foster home licensed, approved, or specified by the Indian child's tribe, the efforts are documented in detail in the record, and the child is placed in an Indian foster home licensed or approved by an authorized non-Indian licensing authority; or
(4) ☐ A diligent search was made for a placement with a member of the child's extended family, in a foster home licensed, approved, or specified by the Indian child's tribe or an Indian foster home licensed or approved by an authorized non-Indian licensing authority, the efforts are documented in detail in the record, and the child is placed in an institution for children approved by an Indian tribe or operated by an Indian organization that has a program suitable to meet the Indian child's needs; or
(5) ☐ The child is placed in accordance with the preferences established by the tribe; or
(6) ☐ The court finds by clear and convincing evidence that there is good cause to depart from the placement preferences based on the reasons set out in the record.

b. ☐ The permanent plan is adoption (choose one):

(1) ☐ The child is placed with a member of the child's extended family; or
(2) ☐ A diligent search was made for a placement with a member of the child's extended family, those efforts are documented in detail in the record, and the child is placed with other members of the child's tribe; or
(3) ☐ An diligent search was made for a placement with a member of the child's extended family or other member of the child's tribe, those efforts are documented in detail in the record, and the child is placed with another Indian family; or
(4) ☐ The child is placed in accordance with the preferences established by the tribe; or
(5) ☐ The court finds by clear and convincing evidence that there is good cause to depart from the placement preferences based on the reasons set out in detail in the record.

CHILD'S NAME:	CASE NUMBER:

18. ☐ The child's placement is necessary.

19. ☐ The child's placement is appropriate.

20. ☐ The agency has complied with the case plan by making reasonable efforts, including whatever steps are necessary to finalize the permanent plan. If this case involves an Indian child, the court finds that the agency has made active efforts to provide remedial and rehabilitative programs designed to prevent the breakup of the Indian family and that these efforts have proven unsuccessful.

21. ☐ The child is an Indian child and the court finds that the agency has provided affirmative, active, thorough, and timely efforts to prevent the breakup of the Indian family and make it possible for the child to be returned home, and these efforts have proved unsuccessful. These efforts are documented in detail in the record.

22. ☐ The child is, or there is reason to know the child is, an Indian child. Notice has been provided as required by Welf. & Inst. Code, § 224.3, and proof of such notice has been filed with the court.

23. ☐ The child remains a ☐ dependent ☐ ward of the court. (If this box is checked, go to items 22 and 23 if applicable, and items 24 and 25.)

- the contents of the petition;
- the nature of and possible consequences of juvenile court proceedings;
- the reasons for the initial detention and the purpose and scope of the detention hearing if the child is detained;
- the right to have a child who is detained immediately returned to the home of the parent, legal guardian, or Indian custodian if the petition is not sustained;
- that if the petition is sustained and the child is removed from the care of the parent, legal guardian, or Indian custodian, the time for services will commence on the date the petition is sustained or 60 days from the date of the initial removal, whichever is earlier;
- that the time for services will not exceed 12 months for a child aged three years or over at the time of the initial removal; and
- that the time for services will not exceed 6 months for a child under the age of three years at the time of the initial removal or for the member of a sibling group that includes such a child if the parent, legal guardian, or Indian custodian fails to participate regularly and make substantive progress in any court-ordered treatment program.

c. The right to a hearing by the court on the issues presented by the petition.

d. The right to assert the privilege against self-incrimination; to confront and cross-examine the persons who prepared reports or documents submitted to the court by the petitioner and the witnesses called to testify against the parent, legal guardian; or Indian custodian; to subpoena witnesses; and to present evidence on his or her own behalf.

☐ presumed father ☐ alleged father ☐ Indian custodian
☐ other (specify):

of the following:

a. The right of the child and each parent, legal guardian, and Indian custodian to be present and to be represented by counsel at every stage of the proceedings. The court may appoint counsel subject to the court's right to seek reimbursement, if an individual is entitled to appointed counsel and the individual is financially unable to retain counsel.

b. The right to be informed by the court of the following:

- the contents of the petition;
- the nature of and possible consequences of juvenile court proceedings;
- the reasons for the initial detention and the purpose and scope of the detention hearing if the child is detained;
- the right to have a child who is detained immediately returned to the home of the parent, legal guardian, or Indian custodian if the petition is not sustained;
- that if the petition is sustained and the child is removed from the care of the parent, legal guardian, or Indian custodian, the time for services will commence on the date the petition is sustained or 60 days from the date of the initial removal, whichever is earlier;
- that the time for services will not exceed 12 months for a child aged three years or over at the time of the initial removal; and
- that the time for services will not exceed 6 months for a child under the age of three years at the time of the initial removal or for the member of a sibling group that includes such a child if the parent, legal guardian, or Indian custodian fails to participate regularly and make substantive progress in any court-ordered treatment program.

c. The right to a hearing by the court on the issues presented by the petition.

d. The right to assert the privilege against self-incrimination; to confront and cross-examine the persons who prepared reports or documents submitted to the court by the petitioner and the witnesses called to testify against the parent, legal guardian, or Indian custodian; to subpoena witnesses; and to present evidence on his or her own behalf.

13. ☐ The ☐ mother ☐ biological father ☐ legal guardian ☐ child

15. ☐ CHILD DETAINED

a. Services that would prevent the need for further detention are not available.

b. A prima facie showing has been made that the child comes within Welf. & Inst. Code, § 300.

c. Continuance in the parent's or legal guardian's home is contrary to the child's welfare AND (select at least one):

(1) ☐ there is a substantial danger to the physical health of the child or the child is suffering severe emotional damage, and there are no reasonable means by which the child's physical or emotional health may be protected without removing the child from the physical custody of the parent or legal guardian.

(2) ☐ there is substantial evidence that a parent, legal guardian, or custodian of the child is likely to flee the jurisdiction of the court, and in the case of an Indian child, fleeing the jurisdiction will place the child at risk of imminent physical damage or harm.

(3) ☐ the child has left a placement in which he or she was placed by the juvenile court.

(4) ☐ the child has been physically abused by a person residing in the home and is unwilling to return home.

(5) ☐ the child has been sexually abused by a person residing in the home and is unwilling to return home.

d. The child is detained, and temporary placement and care of the child is vested with the county child and family services agency pending the hearing under Welf. & Inst. Code, § 355 or further order of the court.

e. The initial removal of the child from the home was necessary for the reasons stated on the record.

f. The facts on which the court bases its decision to order the child detained are stated on the record.

g. The child is placed in

(1) ☐ the approved home of a relative.

(2) ☐ an emergency shelter.

(3) ☐ other suitable licensed place.

(4) ☐ a place exempt from licensure designated by the juvenile court.

(5) ☐ the approved home of a nonrelative extended family member as defined in Welf. & Inst. Code, § 362.7.

h. Services, including those set forth in item 17, are to be provided to the family as soon as possible to reunify the child with his or her family.

i. ☐ Reasonable efforts were made to prevent or eliminate the need for removal from the home.

j. ☐ Reasonable efforts were not made to prevent or eliminate the need for removal from the home.

k. ☐ There is a relative who is able, approved, and willing to care for the child.

l. ☐ A relative who is able, approved, and willing to care for the child is not available. This is a temporary finding and does not preclude later placement with a relative under Welf. & Inst. Code, § 361.3.

16. ☐ CHILD DETAINED AND THERE IS REASON TO KNOW CHILD IS AN INDIAN CHILD

a. ☐ The evidence includes all of the requirements of Welf. & Inst. Code, § 319(b).

b. ☐ The agency has made active efforts to provide remedial services and rehabilitative programs designed to prevent the breakup of the Indian family; or

☐ The agency has not made active efforts to provide remedial services and rehabilitative programs designed to prevent the breakup of the Indian family; and

The agency is ordered to initiate or continue active efforts.

CHILD'S NAME:	CASE NUMBER:

16. c. ☐ For the reasons stated on the record, detention is necessary to prevent imminent physical damage or harm to the child.

d. ☐ The child's placement complies with the placement preferences set forth in Welf. & Inst. Code, § 361.31. The child is placed:

☐ With a member of the child's extended family;

☐ In a foster home licensed, approved, or specified by the child's tribe;

☐ In an Indian foster home licensed or approved by an authorized non-Indian licensing authority; or

☐ In an institution for children approved by an Indian tribe or operated by an Indian organization that has a program suitable to meet the Indian child's needs.

OR

☐ For the reasons stated on the record, the court finds by clear and convincing evidence that there is good cause not to follow the placement preferences.

17. ☐ Provision of reunification services to the biological father ☐ will ☐ will not benefit the child.

18. ☐ The mother is incarcerated and is seeking to participate in the Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation community treatment program.
    a. ☐ Participation in the program ☐ is ☐ is not in the child's best interest.
    b. ☐ The program ☐ is ☐ is not suitable to meet the needs of the mother and child.

19. ☐ The following person is incarcerated:
    ☐ mother ☐ legal guardian ☐ other (specify):
    ☐ presumed father ☐ Indian custodian and reasonable reunification services are
    a. ☐ granted.
    b. ☐ denied, because, by clear and convincing evidence, providing reunification services would be detrimental to the child.

20. ☐ As provided in Welf. & Inst. Code, § 361.5(b), by clear and convincing evidence:
    a. The ☐ mother ☐ legal guardian ☐ other (specify):
    ☐ presumed father ☐ Indian custodian is a person described in Welf. & Inst. Code, § (specify):
    ☐ 361.5(b)(3) ☐ 361.5(b)(7) ☐ 361.5(b)(9) ☐ 361.5(b)(11) ☐ 361.5(b)(13) ☐ 361.5(b)(16) and reunification services are

    (1) ☐ granted, because, by clear and convincing evidence, reunification is in the best interest of the child.
    (2) ☐ denied.

CHILD'S NAME:	CASE NUMBER:

20. b. The ☐ mother ☐ legal guardian ☐ other (specify):
☐ presumed father ☐ Indian custodian is a person described in Welf. & Inst. Code, § 361.5(b)(1), and a reasonably diligent search has failed to locate the person. Reunification services are denied.

c. The ☐ mother ☐ legal guardian ☐ other (specify):
☐ presumed father ☐ Indian custodian is a person described in Welf. & Inst. Code, § 361.5(b)(2), and reunification services are
(1) ☐ granted.
(2) ☐ denied, because the person, even with the provision of services, is unlikely to be capable of adequately caring for the child within the statutory time limits.

d. The ☐ mother ☐ legal guardian ☐ other (specify):
☐ presumed father ☐ Indian custodian is a person described in Welf. & Inst. Code, § 361.5(b)(5), and reunification services are
(1) ☐ granted, because
(a) ☐ reunification services are likely to prevent reabuse or neglect.
(b) ☐ the failure to try reunification will be detrimental to the child because the child is closely and positively bonded to the person.
(2) ☐ denied.

e. The ☐ mother ☐ legal guardian
☐ presumed father ☐ Indian custodian
☐ other person who is a legal parent of the child (name):
is a person described in Welf. & Inst. Code, § 361.5(b)(6), and reunification services are
(1) ☐ granted, because, by clear and convincing evidence, reunification is in the best interest of the child.
(2) ☐ denied, because the child or the child's sibling suffered severe sexual abuse or the infliction of severe physical harm by the person, and it would not benefit the child to pursue reunification with that person.
(3) ☐ The factual basis for the findings in this item is stated on the record.

f. The ☐ mother ☐ legal guardian ☐ other (specify):
☐ presumed father ☐ Indian custodian is a person described in Welf. & Inst. Code, § 361.5(b)(14). The court advised the person of any right to services and the possible consequences of a waiver. The person executed the Waiver of Reunification Services (Juvenile Dependency) (form JV-195), and the court accepts the waiver, the person having knowingly and intelligently waived the right to services. Reunification services are denied.

g. The county agency must provide reunification services, and the following must participate in the reunification services stated in the case plan:
☐ Mother ☐ Biological father ☐ Legal guardian ☐ Presumed father ☐ Indian custodian ☐ Other (specify):

Advisements

34. ☐ Child under the age of three years or member of a sibling group as described in Welf. & Inst. Code, § 361.5(a)(1)(C). The court informed all parties present at the time of the hearing and further advises all parties that, because the child was under the age of three years on the date of initial removal or is a member of a sibling group:
    a. Failure to participate regularly and make substantive progress in court-ordered treatment programs may result in the termination of reunification services for all or some members of the sibling group at the hearing scheduled on a date within six months from the date the child entered foster care under Welf. & Inst. Code, § 366.21(e).

Six-month hearing date:

    b. At the six-month hearing under Welf. & Inst. Code, § 366.21(e), the court will consider the following factors in deciding whether to limit reunification services to six months for all or some members of the sibling group:
        • Whether the sibling group was removed from parental care as a group;
        • The closeness and strength of the sibling bond;
        • The ages of the siblings;
        • The appropriateness of maintaining the sibling group;
        • The detriment to the child if sibling ties are not maintained;
        • The likelihood of finding a permanent home for the sibling group;
        • Whether the sibling group is currently placed in the same preadoptive home or has a concurrent plan goal of legal permanency in the same home;
        • The wishes of each child whose age and physical and emotional condition permits a meaningful response; and
        • The best interest of each child in the sibling group.
    c. At the six-month hearing under Welf. & Inst. Code, § 366.21(e), if the child is not returned to the custody of a parent, the case may be referred to a selection and implementation hearing under Welf. & Inst. Code, § 366.26. The selection and implementation hearing may result in the termination of parental rights and adoption of the child and other members of the sibling group or, in the case of an Indian child for whom tribal customary adoption under section 366.24 is selected as the permanent plan goal, modification of parental rights and the adoption of the child and other members of the sibling group.

CHILD'S NAME:	CASE NUMBER:

35. ☐ Child three years of age or older who is not a member of a sibling group as described in Welf. & Inst. Code, § 361.5(a)(1)(C). The court informed all parties present at the time of the hearing and further advises all parties that, because the child was three years of age or older with no siblings under the age of three years at the time of initial removal, if the child is not returned to the custody of a parent at the Welf. & Inst. Code, § 366.21(f) permanency hearing set on a date within 12 months from the date the child entered foster care, the case may be referred to a selection and implementation hearing under Welf. & Inst. Code, § 366.26. The selection and implementation hearing may result in the termination of parental rights and adoption of the child or, in the case of an Indian child for whom tribal customary adoption under section 366.24 is selected as the permanent plan goal, modification of parental rights and the adoption of the child.

Twelve-month permanency hearing date:

36. ☐ a. The matter is ordered set for hearing under Welf. & Inst. Code, § 366.26 to select the most appropriate permanent plan for the child.

b. By clear and convincing evidence, the court found that reunification services were not to be provided to the child's parents, legal guardian, or Indian custodian under Welf. & Inst. Code, § 361.5(b).

c. The county agency and the licensed county adoption agency or the California Department of Social Services acting as an adoption agency will prepare and serve an assessment report as described in Welf. & Inst. Code, § 361.5(g).

d. The court advised all parties present in court that to preserve any right to review on appeal of this order, a party must seek an extraordinary writ by filing a notice of intent to file a writ petition and a request for the record, which may be submitted on Notice of Intent to File Writ Petition and Request for Record (form JV-820), and a petition for extraordinary writ, which may be submitted on Petition for Extraordinary Writ (form JV-825). A copy of each form is available in the courtroom. The court further advised all parties present in court that, as to them, a notice of intent to file a writ petition and request for record must be filed with the juvenile court clerk within seven days of the date of this hearing. The clerk of the court is directed to provide written notice as stated in rule 5.695(g)(10) of the California Rules of Court to any party not present.

e. ☐ The court orders that no notice of the hearing set under Welf. & Inst. Code, § 366.26 be provided to the person named below, who is a mother, a presumed father, or an alleged father and who had relinquished the child for adoption where the relinquishment has been accepted and filed with notice under Fam. Code, § 8700, or an alleged father who has denied paternity and has executed section 2 of Statement Regarding Parentage (Juvenile) (form JV-505).

Reunification services

7. ☐ The child is an Indian child or there is reason to know that the child is an Indian child, and as set out in detail in the record:

   a. Affirmative, active, thorough, and timely efforts ☐ have ☐ have not been made to provide remedial services and rehabilitative programs designed to prevent the breakup of the Indian family;

   b. These efforts ☐ did ☐ did not include assisting the parent(s) or Indian custodian through the steps of the case plan and with accessing or developing the resources necessary to satisfy the case plan;

   c. To the maximum extent possible, the efforts ☐ were ☐ were not provided in a manner consistent with the prevailing social and cultural conditions and way of life of the child's tribe; and

   d. These efforts and the case plan ☐ have ☐ have not been developed and conducted to the maximum extent possible in partnership with the Indian child, the parents, extended family member, Indian custodians, and the tribe, and utilized the available resources of the Indian child's extended family, tribe, tribal and other Indian social service agencies, and individual Indian caregiver service providers.

   e. The active efforts have proved ☐ successful ☐ unsuccessful.

8. For child under the age of three years at time of initial removal or a member of a sibling group

   a. ☐ Having considered the relevant evidence, including the following factors

      (1) ☐ Whether there has been significant progress in resolving the problems that led to the removal;

      (2) ☐ Whether the capacity and ability to complete the objectives of the treatment plan and to provide for the child's safety, protection, physical and emotional health, and special needs has been demonstrated; and

      (3) ☐ Whether there has been consistent and regular contact and visitation with the child.

      The court finds there is a substantial probability that the child may be returned to the ☐ mother ☐ biological father ☐ Indian custodian ☐ presumed father ☐ legal guardian ☐ other (specify):

      within six months of the date of this hearing or within 12 months of the date the child entered foster care, whichever is sooner.

Advisement

13. The court informed all parties present at the time of the hearing and further advises all parties that if the child is not returned to the home at the permanency hearing set on a date within 12 months from the date the child entered foster care, the case may be referred to a selection and implementation hearing under Welf. & Inst. Code, § 366.26 that may result in the termination of parental rights and adoption of the child and other members of the sibling group or, in the case of an Indian child for whom tribal customary adoption under section 366.24 is selected as the permanent plan, modification of parental rights and the adoption of the child and other members of the sibling group.

TWENTY-FOUR-MONTH PERMANENCY ATTACHMENT: REUNIFICATION SERVICES TERMINATED

(Welf. & Inst. Code, § 366.25)

1. By a preponderance of the evidence, the return of the child to his or her parent or legal guardian would create a substantial risk of detriment to the safety, protection, or physical or emotional well-being of the child. The factual basis for this conclusion is stated on the record.
2. The child's out-of-home placement is necessary.
3. Reunification services are terminated.
4. ☐ The child is an Indian child or there is reason to know that the child is an Indian child, and as set out in detail in the record:
   a. Affirmative, active, thorough, and timely efforts ☐ have ☐ have not been made to provide remedial services and rehabilitative programs designed to prevent the breakup of the Indian family;
   b. These efforts ☐ did ☐ did not include assisting the parent(s) or Indian custodian through the steps of the case plan and with accessing or developing the resources necessary to satisfy the case plan;
   c. To the maximum extent possible, the efforts ☐ were ☐ were not provided in a manner consistent with the prevailing social and cultural conditions and way of life of the child's tribe; and
   d. These efforts and the case plan ☐ have ☐ have not been developed and conducted to the maximum extent possible in partnership with the Indian child, the parents, extended family members, Indian custodians, and the tribe, and utilized the available resources of the Indian child's extended family, tribe, tribal and other Indian social service agencies, and individual Indian caregiver service providers.
   e. The active efforts have proved ☐ successful ☐ unsuccessful.
5. ☐ The child is an Indian child or ☐ there is reason to know that the child is an Indian child, and
   a. ☐ Qualified expert witness testimony was provided by (name): ; and
   b. ☐ Evidence regarding the prevailing social and cultural practices of the child's tribe was provided; and
   c. ☐ There was clear and convincing evidence that continued physical custody by the following person is likely to cause serious emotional or physical damage to the child:
      ☐ mother ☐ biological father ☐ legal guardian
      ☐ presumed father ☐ Indian custodian
      ☐ other (specify):
6. ☐ There has been a change in the child's placement, and the child is an Indian child or there is reason to know that the child is an Indian child. Currently (choose one):
   a. ☐ The child is placed with a member of the child's extended family as defined by 25 U.S.C. § 1903; or
   b. ☐ A diligent search was made for a placement with a member of the child's extended family, the efforts are documented in detail in the record, and the child is placed in a foster home licensed, approved, or specified by the Indian child's tribe; or
   c. ☐ A diligent search was made for a placement with a member of the child's extended family, in a foster home licensed, approved, or specified by the Indian child's tribe, the efforts are documented in detail in the record, and the child is placed in an Indian foster home licensed or approved by an authorized non-Indian licensing authority; or
   d. ☐ A diligent search was made for a placement with a member of the child's extended family, in a foster home licensed, approved, or specified by the Indian child's tribe, or in an Indian foster home licensed or approved by an authorized non-Indian licensing authority, the efforts are documented in detail in the record, and the child is placed in an institution for children approved by an Indian tribe or operated by an Indian organization that has a program suitable to meet the Indian child's needs; or
   e. ☐ The child is placed in accordance with the preferences established by the tribe; or
   f. ☐ The court finds by clear and convincing evidence that there is good cause to depart from the placement preferences based on the reasons set out in the record.
7. ☐ The child's current placement is appropriate.

1.	Agua Caliente Band of Cahuilla Indians By: Joanne Willis Newton Law Office of Joanne Willis Newton Escondido, CA	NI	*The entire comments are attached as appendix A: Throughout the rules it sometimes refers to Indian custodian (singular) and other times Indian custodians (plural) this should be consistent throughout the rules. Rule 5.480 - Conservatorships are for adults and therefore would not meet the definition of "child custody proceeding" in ICWA. It's true that ICWA can now apply pursuant to state law to an Indian child who is a non-minor dependent, but in a guardianship case arising under the WIC, the case would remain a guardianship; it would not become a probate conservatorship. Remove the words conservator and conservatorship throughout the rules. Rule 5.481(a)(4)(C) – The specific details on how to contact a tribe, as outlined in 25 CFR section 23.105 should be set out here to improve inquiry and notice compliance. This is one of	The proposal was revised in response to this comment. The Forum and Committee have considered this comment but decided to retain the conservatorship language consistent with section 1459.5 of the Probate Code. Although generally conservatorships apply to adults, an individual who has previously been married and whose marriage has been dissolved, is subject to conservatorship proceedings rather than guardianship proceedings under the Probate Code even if that individual is under the age of 18. Accordingly, section 1459.5(a)(3) of the Probate Code stipulates that ICWA requirements apply to these conservatorship proceedings if the proposed conservatee comes within the definition of "Indian child". The Forum and Committee considered this comment but concluded that, consistent with Judicial Council policy, not to repeat the text of the regulations in the rules of court. Instead the Forum

			the questions we most often get at Tribal STAR trainings from social workers. The word "tribe" should be capitalized throughout the rules, as it is in 25 CFR Part 23. Rule 5.481(b) – Add a subsection stating: Information that a child has Native American ancestry does not in and of itself provide reason to know the child is an Indian child. There must be some information suggesting that the child is an Indian child (i.e. a child who is a member of a federally-recognized Tribe or a child who is eligible for membership in a federally-recognized Tribe and has a parent who is a member of such a Tribe). 5.481(b)(3)(A) – remove the word that after "reason to know" in the first line. 5.481(b)(3)(B) – revise this section to apply when it is known that the child is an Indian child and add a new section (C) to apply when there "is reason to know" rather than it being known. Add a subsection (4) to rule 5.481(b) to specify that a tribe's determination of membership status is conclusive and to clarify that enrollment is not required unless the tribe confirms in writing that	and Committee have included an advisory committee comment. Generally the words state, federal, etc. are not capitalized when they are being referred to in a general manner (ie. state and federal rules…) and are only capitalized when they are part of a proper name (ie. State of California). Similarly the word tribe is generally not capitalized when used generally and not referring to a specific tribe. (see AMA Writing Style guide.) The Forum and Committee considered this comment, but concluded that it is not appropriate to create an evidentiary standard in the rule of court that is not expressly set out in the statute or the regulations. The proposal was revised in response to this comment. The proposal was revised in response to this comment. The proposal was revised in response to this comment.

			Rule 5.481(c)(1) – take out the word "that" after "reason to know" in the first line. Remove "and conservatorship" in fourth line. Change statutory reference in eighth line to 224.3 rather than 224.2.	The proposal was revised in response to this comment.
			Include language to require notice for every subsequent hearing. As drafted, the rule suggests that notice is only required for certain hearings, such as detention, disposition and the 366.26 hearing. It is required for every hearing held in an Indian child custody proceeding. The rule should make it clear that once notice is triggered, notice must be provided for all hearings in the proceeding.	The Forum and Committee considered this comment but concluded that the proposal to require formal ICWA notice for each hearing is inconsistent with the requirements of the federal regulations and the Welf. & Inst. Code as amended by AB 3176. As revised, Welf. & Inst. Code 224.3(a) & (b) require ICWA notice only for hearings that may culminate in an order for foster care placement, termination of parental rights, preadoptive placement, or adoptive placement. However, the proposal was revised to clarify that the where a tribe has been identified, the tribe is entitled to notices for other hearings in accordance with section 224.3(g).
			Rule 5.482(a)(1) – remove word "that" after reason to know in first line.	The proposal was revised in response to this comment.
			Why are (a)(2) and (3) referenced as exceptions to the 10-day rule but shown as deleted below? Language consistent with WIC 224.3(d) provisions regarding exception to 10-day rule and continuances should be reflected in (a)(2) and (3).	This error has been corrected. Subsection subsections (a)(2) and (3) were reinstated in response to this comment.
			Revise subsection (f) to add to existing language the specific examples of "active efforts" set out in 25 CFR section 23.2 that involve consultation	Subsections (e) and (f) address requirements related to the placement of a child and do not relate to active efforts, so the Forum and Committee

			Rule 5.483(a)(1) – add the word "already" before "a ward of a tribal court…" in first line	The proposal was revised in response to this comment.
			It would be helpful to clarify whether a "ward" is a child who is the subject of any tribal court custody orders or only custody orders vesting custody with the tribe for protective reasons.	The Forum and Committee considered this comment but determined that it was not appropriate to create this legal standard through rule of court when it was not established in the federal or state statutes or regulations.
			Revise subsection (a)(3) as follows: This section does not preclude an emergency removal pursuant to Welfare and Institutions Code section 319 if emergency removal is necessary to protect the child from imminent physical damage or harm and if more time is needed to facilitate the transfer of custody of the Indian child from the local agency to the tribe.	The proposal was revised in response to this comment to add references to the emergency removal provisions in the federal statute and regulations and the Welfare and Institutions Code.
			Revise subsection (c) to reflect the requirements of 25 CFR Section 23.116 by adding the following to the end of the existing text: Upon receipt of a transfer petition, the court must ensure that the Tribal court is promptly notified in writing of the transfer petition. The notification may request a timely response regarding whether the Tribal court wishes to decline the transfer."	The proposal was revised in response to this comment.

Similarly AB 3176 revised WIC 305.5 (e) by removing previous subsection (1)(B) which had discussed the existence of a tribal court.

The Forum and Committee declined to follow this stylistic recommendation.
			Revise rule 5.486 to add "Removal" to the title.	The Forum and Committee declined to follow this recommendation because rule 5.486 does not apply to removals.
			Revise rule 5.486(a) [to add various requirements concerning evidentiary standards for removal and placement of an Indian child. See specific recommended language in the attachment].	The Forum and Committee declined to follow this recommendation because the issue of evidentiary standards for placement of an Indian child are addressed in Rule 5.485 (Formerly 5.484).
			Revise subsection (b)(3) by adding the words "tribal customary adoption without termination of parental rights," immediately following "the child's tribe has identified…"	The proposal was revised in response to this comment.

This reflect 25 CFR section 23.133.	The Forum and Committee have considered this comment and acknowledge that it is consistent with the federal regulations, however, the Forum and Committee have concluded that it is not appropriate to implement this through rule of court when there is no statutory basis in the WIC or other California statute for this provision.

			Delete subsection (f)(2) of rule 5.678. WIC does not permit detention hearings to be continued for 30 days. 25 CFR section 23.113(e) is inconsistent with state law in this regard. This subsection of the rule should be deleted.	Notwithstanding this comment, WIC 319(e)(2) specifies what is required to continue a detention hearing beyond 30 days. The rule is consistent with the statutory language.
			Delete subsection (f)(2)(C). An Indian child custody proceeding is initiated by the filing of the 300 petition (or other petition in probate or family court). There is never a scenario in which a 300 petition could not be filed within 30 days.	The Forum and Committee do not agree that filing a petition is sufficient to "initiate an Indian child custody proceeding…" WIC 224.1(l) defines an emergency proceeding as the initial petition hearing held pursuant to section 319. Under the Guidelines issued by the BIA the initiation of a child custody proceeding requires a proceeding "…to which the full set of ICWA protections would apply." (see page 25) In California this is generally not until the dispositional hearing at which a QEW would testify.

			Page 17, Rule 5.481(c)(1) Notice – currently 5.481(b)(1) The current and proposed rule both state that notice requirements under ICWA are triggered for probate if it is known or there is reason to believe that an Indian child is involved in the proceedings. However, the proposed language states that notice must be given for all hearing that may result in the foster care placement, termination of parental rights, preadoptive placement, or adoptive placement. The new language fails to provide an option under which notice would be triggered for probate court because probate proceedings do not result in foster care placement, termination of parental rights, preadoptive placement or adoptive placement. To include probate, the Judicial Council may want to consider amending their new proposed language to read as follows: "for all hearings that may result in the foster care placement, termination of parental rights, preadoptive placement, appointment of guardian or adoptive placement. As probate guardianship is one of the many available child custody options, we think inclusion of such information in this form offers judges and court personnel consistent and clear information to better ensure ICWA compliance.	The proposal was revised in response to this comment. A guardianship of the person under the California Probate Code comes within the definition of "foster care placement" under the Indian Child Welfare Act and California law if the case involves and Indian child. Under 25 U.S.C. §1903(1)(i) a foster care placement includes "…any action removing an Indian child from its parent or Indian custodian for temporary placement in a foster home or institution or the home of a guardian or conservator where the parent or Indian custodian cannot have the child returned upon demand, but where parental rights have not been terminated. This definition is incorporated into the California Probate Code at section 1449 (c). The ICWA notice requirements are applied to probate proceedings through Rule 7.1015 (c).

4.	California Tribal Families Coalition Per: Delia Sharpe, Executive Director	A	The California Tribal Families Coalition (CTFC), a non-profit organization dedicated to protecting Indian children, families and tribes, submits these comments on behalf of its member tribes to the Invitation to Comment regarding the "Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA): Implementation of AB 3176 for Indian Children." CTFC was the sponsor of AB 3176 and seeks through these comments to ensure the intent of the legislation is carried forward through implementing regulations, rules and forms. To that end, we find the proposed rules and forms closely mirror the language of AB 3176, and where appropriate, incorporate language of the 2016 federal ICWA regulations as additional guidance. In order to achieve consistency in the application of ICWA, this mirroring state and federal law and regulations is critical. We strongly recommend retaining the language of the rules and forms as proposed, limiting wherever possible interpretation of applicable laws and regulations. Specific comments: Rule 5.481 Inquiry The December 2016 – Guidelines for Implementing the Indian Child Welfare Act (BIA ICWA Guidelines) provide the following guidance regarding how often inquiry must occur: Inquiry each proceeding. 			within a proceeding; but, if a new child-custody proceeding (such as a proceeding to terminate parental rights or for adoption) is initiated for the same child, the court must make a finding as to whether there is "reason to know" that the child is an Indian child. In situations in which the child was not identified as an Indian child in the prior proceeding, the court has a continuing duty to inquire whether the child is an Indian child. (citing In re Isaiah W., 1 Cal.5th 1 (2016).) As stated in Rule 5.481, the California standard includes additional language making inquiry an affirmative and continuing duty. We recommend adding clarifying language that a finding on the record regarding inquiry must be made at each proceeding. Rule 5.690 General conduct of disposition hearing We recommend adding the language regarding continuances from amended WIC § 352(b): "a continuance shall not be granted that would result in the dispositional hearing, held pursuant to Section 361, being completed longer than 60 days, or 30 days in the case of an Indian child…" Do the proposed findings and orders set out in forms JV-405 and JV-410 correctly reflect the distinction between "reason to believe" and "reason to know," and the obligations triggered by each level of information? Regarding Inquiry and the "Reason to Know" standard, the BIA ICWA Guidelines state the following:	The Forum and Committee recognize the need to address the specific requirements governing continuances in cases governed by ICWA. The Forum and Committee have addressed these by revising Rule 5.550 governing continuances, in addition to revising rule 5.690.

			The regulation lists factors that indicate a "reason to know" the child is an "Indian child." State courts and agencies are encouraged to interpret these factors expansively. When in doubt, it is better to conduct further investigation into a child's status early in the case; this establishes which laws will apply to the case and minimizes the potential for delays or disrupted placements in the future. States or courts may choose to require additional investigation into whether there is a reason to know the child is an Indian child. The proposed findings and orders in forms JV-405 and JV-410 reflect the intention of AB 3176 in both distinction between "reason to believe" and "reason to know" and the obligations each trigger. However, we recommend the important guidance from the BIA be added to the forms. Additionally, the following guidance from the BIA ICWA Guidelines would be useful guidance in the forms: Treating the Child as an Indian Child, unless and Until Determined Otherwise This requirement (triggered by a "reason to know" the child is an "Indian child") ensures that ICWA's requirements are followed from the early stages of a case and that harmful delays and duplication resulting from the potential late application of ICWA are avoided. For example, it makes sense to place a child that the court has reason to know is an Indian child in a placement that complies with ICWA's placement preferences from the start of a proceeding, rather than having to consider a change a placement later in the proceeding once the court confirms that the child actually is an Indian child. Notably, the early application of ICWA's	The Forum and Committee have considered this comment but concluded that it is not appropriate to include this lengthy language in the forms.

			requirements—which are designed to keep children, when possible, with their parents, family, or Tribal community—should benefit children regardless of whether it turns out that they are Indian children as defined by the statute. If, based on feedback from the relevant Tribe(s) or other information, the court determines that the child is not an "Indian child," then the State may proceed under its usual standards. Can the rights and protections under the Indian Child Welfare Act be waived through the use of forms JV-419 and JV-419(A)? It is the strong position of CTFC that the use of forms JV-419 and JV-419(A) do not waive the rights and protections of the Indian Child Welfare Act. Neither federal nor state law provide for such a wavier of ICWA's protections. ICWA is often called the "gold standard" of child welfare because of the protections it provides to children, families and their tribes in difficult, often vulnerable, situations. We are hopeful the implementation of AB 3176 will serve to increase ICWA compliance in California, thereby protecting and promoting the health, safety and welfare of Indian children, families and their tribes. The commitment of state agencies is necessary and appreciated. Thank you for allowing us an opportunity to submit these comments.	No response required. No response required.

The Forum and Committee did revise the proposal in response to this comment, but not in the exact language set out in the comment. The comment would require all information to be provided to a tribe or tribes on form ICWA-030, however, under the regulations and revised California statute, ICWA Notice in form ICWA-030 is only required when there is "reason to know" and only for specified hearings. The federal regulations and California statute otherwise allow the information to be provided to tribes by email, fax or phone. So long as there is sufficient evidence that all relevant information has been provided to the tribe(s), it does not need to be on the ICWA-030 form. This language makes it in compliance with the WIC section 224.3 and the previous rule of court.	The statutory reference was corrected in response to this comment, however, the Forum and Committee declined to add the word "or" as suggested because it would have altered the meaning inconsistent with the statute. The proposal has been revised to follow the language in WIC 305.5(e)(2)(A) through (E). The Forum and Committee have considered this comment but concluded that it is unnecessary to duplicate statutory language regarding social worker duties into the rule of court. The proposed rule of court reflects the requirements of WIC 319 regarding the court duties and requirements. Further, this rule (and other ICWA rules) apply to family and probate proceedings governed by ICWA and therefore do not reference all of the requirements of the WIC. A placement ~~may~~ shall not depart from the placement preferences based on the socioeconomic status of any placement relative to another. A placement shall not depart from the placement preferences solely on the basis of ordinary bonding or attachment that flowed from time spent in a nonpreferred placement that was made in violation of the Indian Child Welfare Act. • Add a new subsection (6) as follows:	The clear and convincing language was added. The sections have been renumbered. The Forum and Committee declined to follow this recommendation as unnecessary. The Forum and Committee added language to subsection (4) in response to this comment.

			(6) If the court knows or has reason to know that the child is an Indian child and the court finds at the hearing held pursuant to section 319 of the Welfare and Institutions Code that there is good cause to deviate from the placement preferences set forth in Section 361.31 of the Welfare and Institutions Code, this finding does not affect the requirement that a diligent search be made for a subsequent placement within the placement preferences. This is a very important part that was left out because it discusses their ongoing duty to find a compliant placement (WIC sec. 319(h)(1)(C).) • Add the following language to the end of subsection 5.485(c)(2) In considering if active efforts were taken the court shall consider if the agency utilized the available resources of the Indian child's extended family, tribe, tribal or other Indian social service agencies, and individual Indian caregiver service providers. Active efforts shall include the pursuit of any steps necessary to secure tribal membership for a child if the child is eligible for membership in a given tribe. It is important to have this language here so it ties in with the active efforts requirement. • Remove the discussion of obtaining tribal membership in subsection (c)(3); • Include the following at the end of	The Forum and Committee declined to follow this recommendation. The substance of the recommended language is already included as 5.485(c)(3).

This is a very important provision which was not part of the active efforts provision. Rule 5.570 • Revise subsection (h)(1)(B) as follows: (B) If the request is for termination of court-ordered reunification services, the petitioner must show by clear and convincing evidence that one of the conditions in section 388(c)(1)(A) or (B) exists and must show by a preponderance of the evidence that reasonable services have been offered or provided. In the case involving an Indian child, the petitioner must show by clear and convincing evidence that active efforts have been made to provide remedial services and rehabilitative programs designed to prevent the breakup of the Indian family within the meaning of sections 224.1(f) and 361.7 of the Welfare and Institutions Code and that these efforts have proved unsuccessful. 6.	Joint Rules Subcommittee of TCPJAC/CEAC By: Cory Rada, Senior Analyst Sacramento, CA	A	The proposal is required to conform to a change of law. The Joint Rules Subcommittee notes the following impact to court operations: • Impact on local or statewide justice partners. Local justice partners will be required to use updated and modified forms to address compliance with ICWA. These forms are regularly updated over the years in response to changes in the law. These updates are no different. The cost impact is minimal and not significant. Ultimately, the forms are a cost saver to the justice partners and the Court. Compliance with ICWA is a major appellate issue and non-compliance results in delayed permanency for children and prolonged litigation. The forms are intended and should make it easier for the parties and the Court to comply with ICWA. Requests for Specific Comments, SPR19-42 Q. Does the proposal appropriately address the stated purpose? Answer: Yes. The changes and modifications to the Rules of Court and the Judicial Council forms are necessary because of changes in federal and state law. Q. Are the questions about Indian status in the proposed revision to form ICWA-020, Parental Notification of Indian Status Form, broad enough to ensure that Indian children are identified?	No response required. No response required. No response required. No response required. No response required.

			Answer: Yes. Q. Do the proposed findings and orders set out in item 12c of form JV-405 and item 9 of form JV-410 correctly reflect the distinction between "reason to believe" and "reason to know," and the obligations triggered by each level of information? Answer: Yes. Q. Can the rights and protections under the Indian Child Welfare Act be waived through the use of forms JV-419 and JV-419(A)? Answer: Yes and No. Yes, all parties may waive their statutory rights if the waiver is knowing, intelligent and voluntary. ICWA, however, serves the purposes of not just the parties but also the Native American tribal communities. Thus, the Child Welfare Agency has a non-delegable and non-waivable duty to provide notice and to make active efforts if required, which the Tribe may deem satisfied by an express waiver. Q. Should item 1e on form JV-100 and item 1b on form JV-110 be modified either to remove the question altogether, or to ask about gender rather than sex and add an instruction that gender can include nonbinary? Answer: The question should be directed at "gender" and not the sex of the child so that the Court can properly address the child in Court which is required by law. The child's biological sex is not as relevant to the Court as the child's gender under the law. Q. Would the proposal provide cost savings? If so, please quantify.	No response required. No response required. The proposal references "gender". No response required.

			Answer: The more the Judicial Council forms bring clarity to Findings and Orders of the Court, the greater the cost savings to the Branch in reduced appeals. This is true when updating the forms on ICWA issues and gender identity issues. Q. What would the implementation requirements be for courts—for example, training staff (please identify position and expected hours of training), revising processes and procedures (please describe), changing docket codes in case management systems, or modifying case management systems? Answer: No cost to the Court. These are standard forms and are being updated in regular course. Q. Would 3 months from Judicial Council approval of this proposal until its effective date provide sufficient time for implementation? Answer: Yes. Q. How well would this proposal work in courts of different sizes? Answer: There would be no difference to courts of varying sizes.	No response required. No response required. No. response required.
7.	Los Angeles County Counsel By: Alyssa Skolnick Principal Deputy County Counsel	AM	There is very little if any guidance on how juvenile courts are expected to proceed in the absence of a tribal response now that the 60 day rule has been eliminated. Without the 60 day rule when we do not hear back from a tribe, we will need to proceed as if the ICWA applies, including applying the heightened standards and needing expert testimony before removal or termination of parental rights. Without the 60-day rule, the ICWA will be applied to many non-Indian children.	The Forum and Committee cannot give practice advice, but note that there is nothing in ICWA, the federal regulations or state law that mandates a tribal response or puts a time limit on a tribe's ability to make a determination of a child's status, respond to a notice, or intervene in a case. A court or agency's duty to apply ICWA depends upon the totality of the evidence concerning Indian status. Section 224.2(i)(2) authorizes the court to make a finding at any time that ICWA does not apply after review of evidence of further inquiry and due diligence based on an evaluation of the totality of the evidence before the court and whether there is or continues to be evidence supporting a "reason to know".

An option for the person to describe their gender preference/identification should be included, e.g. preferred gender: male/female/nonbinary.	The Forum and Committee considered the comment, but decided to leave the current "gender' language as is to be broad enough to cover instances when the child is too young to express a preference regarding gender identification.

This would be a new measure where historically we've used "due diligence" regarding search efforts. Agencies and Court are familiar with "due diligence" and its application whereas exhaustive search has no established level of effort. Item 17 also states that "permanent plan complies with placement preferences". I'm unclear regarding the relationship of permanent plan to placement preference as my understanding is they are mutually exclusive. Would the following wording achieve the same purpose? I have asked whether the child is or may be a member of an Indian tribe, eligible for membership or a biological child of a member. Based on information from this inquiry, the Indian Child Inquiry Attachment (form ICWA-010(A)) has been completed and attached. Orange County wishes to thank you for the opportunity to respond to the proposed changes in Court Rules and Forms as they pertain to ICWA. Should you have question, feel free to contact me.	The proposal has been revised in response to this comment, but not exactly as suggested. This proposed revision of the form reflected comments that in some counties the petition is not completed and filed by the social worker or other individual who is responsible for conducting inquiry, but instead by county counsel or some other party. The proposal has been revised to have these as two separate options. The same change has been made on the JV-110 and JV-600 forms.

11.	Sacramento County Counsel By: Christopher S. Costa Deputy County Counsel	AM	Question 1: Does the proposal address the stated purpose? -Overall, yes, the proposal addresses the stated purpose. However, the following areas should be included or clarified, as applicable, to provide juvenile court participants additional practical guidance. (1) Addressing Continuances of Hearings/Indian Child Custody Proceedings that Require Initial Formal Notice under WIC section 224.3. As the law is currently written, it appears that all continued hearings, that qualify as Indian child custody proceedings, require compliance with WIC section 224.3 (e.g., certified mail with return receipt). The Rules of Court should clarify that subsequent notifications for continued hearing dates, following the initial formal notice of the proceedings, can be by first class mail. a. WIC section 224.1(d)(1) defines an "Indian child custody proceeding" as "a hearing during a juvenile court proceeding…that may culminate in…foster care placement", etc. WIC section 224.3(a)(1) indicates that "[n]otice shall be sent by registered or certified mail with return receipt requested…Additional notice by first class mail is recommended, but not required." WIC section 224.3(b) says "[n]otice shall be sent whenever it is known or there is reason to know that an Indian child is involved, and for every hearing that may culminate in an order for foster care placement…" [emphasis added]. WIC section 224.3(b) goes on to say that "[a]fter a	 The proposal has been revised in response to this comment. The Forum and Committee agree with the commenter, that the federal regulations and state law are both silent on the issue of tribal notice when a hearing for which ICWA notice is required is continued. The federal regulations (25 CFR §23.111(a)) stipulate that notice by registered mail, return receipt requested must be sent at the commencement of each "proceeding". The Forum and Committee conclude that similar to the law concerning a parent's right to notice of a continued hearing under Welf. & Inst. Code §366.26 and the specific noticing requirements set out in section 366.23 concerning this hearing, the more stringent noticing requirements apply only to the initial hearing. If the stringent noticing requirements were complied with for the initial hearing and the party is present in court when the hearing is continued that satisfies the parties right to notice of the continued hearing. (In re Malcolm D., (1996) 42 Cal.App.4th 904 at p.913) If the party does not participate in the original hearing they are entitled to receive notice of the continued date that tribe acknowledges that the child is a member of, or eligible for membership in, that tribe, or after a tribe intervenes in a proceeding, the information set out in subparagraphs (C), (D), (E), and (H) of paragraph (5) of subdivision (a) need not be included with the notice." b. The above cited subsections of WIC sections 224.1 and 224.3 imply that all continued hearings that qualify as Indian child custody proceedings should meet the requirements of WIC section 224.3(a), unless the tribe intervenes or acknowledges that the child is a member or eligible for membership. However, 25 USC section 1912(a) and 25 CFR section 23.2, subd. (2) (under the definition of "Child-custody proceeding"), indicate that each action (e.g., an action for foster care placement) is a separate child custody proceeding. Thus, under federal law/regulation, an action for a foster care placement is one child custody proceeding (that requires registered or certified mail) and, an action for termination of parental rights is a separate child custody proceeding. c. Therefore, the Rules of Court (and the proposed JV-405 at section 16) should clarify that, after the initial formal noticing under WIC section 224.3 is accomplished (e.g., certified mail with return receipt and all required information included) for a tribe, all subsequent notification for continued hearing dates can be by first class mail. This would alleviate unnecessary burden and costs on child welfare agencies and tribes, given that federal law/regulation only requires that the initial notice of a particular child custody proceeding comply with formal noticing requirements.	is reasonably calculated under all the circumstances to apprise them of the hearing and afford them an opportunity to present any objections (Id. at pp. 258-259). Such notice does not need to be by certified mail, return receipt requested.

			(2) Providing Guidance to the Court and Child Welfare Agencies after Completion of Further Inquiry when There is/has Only ever been "Reason to Believe". The Rules of Court should clarify whether WIC section 224.2(i)(2) applies when there has not been a "reason to know" at any previous point in the proceeding. a. WIC section 224.2(g) provides that, "[i]f there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, but the court does not have sufficient evidence to determine that the child is or is not an Indian child, the court shall confirm…" [emphasis added] that the agency has been duly diligent in working with the tribes to verify whether the child is an Indian child. WIC section 224.2(i)(2) indicates that "[i]f the court makes a finding that proper and adequate further inquiry and due diligence as required in this section have been conducted and there is no reason to know that the child is an Indian child, the court may make a finding that…" [emphasis added] the federal ICWA does not apply. b. WIC section 224.2(i)(2), by its reference to the "due diligence as required in this section", appears to be referring back to WIC section 224.2(g) – a subsection that applies only when a "reason to know" has been established. Further, WIC section 224.2(i)(2) follows WIC section 224.2(i)(1), which starts with the phrase "[w]hen there is reason to know that the child is an Indian child…." Thus, without clarification, it appears that WIC section 224.2(i)(2) applies only after a "reason to know" has been established at some previous point in the proceeding.	The Forum and Committee considered this comment, but determined that the revision was not necessary because under the statutes and the rule the requirement to apply ICWA to the case only arises when there is information providing "reason to know". The Forum and Committee believe that the statute and rules are clear that the only duty that is triggered by "reason to believe" is the duty to conduct further inquiry under WIC section 224.2(e).

			c. The Rules of Court should clarify that, when there is a "reason to believe" and the Child Welfare Agency has been diligent in its further inquiry efforts, and the Court does not have sufficient evidence to find there is a "reason to know" (e.g., because the tribes have not responded or have refused to respond informally), that WIC section 224.2(i)(2) would allow the court to find that (subject to reversal/further information) that the ICWA does not apply to the proceedings. d. This clarification would be consistent with the proposed JV-405 at section 12c(2)(a), where the court is given the option to choose that the agency has complied with WIC section 224.2(e) and there is not a reason to know (and thus, ICWA does not apply). Question 2: Are the questions about Indian status in the proposed revision to form ICWA-020, Parental Notification of Indian Status Form, broad enough to ensure that Indian children are identified? -Overall, yes, the questions about Indian status in the proposed revision are broad enough. However, it may be helpful to add an additional category under section 3 to assist with further inquiry: "One or more of my parents, grandparents, or other lineal ancestors is or was domiciled on a reservation or in an Alaska Native Village. (Include Name and relationship of ancestor(s) and name and location of reservation or Alaska Native Village)." Question 3: Do the proposed findings and orders set out in item 12c of form JV-405 and item [10] of form JV-410 correctly reflect the distinction	The Forum and Committee considered this comment, but determined that the questions on the ICWA-020 should remain closely related to the information that would give the court or agency "reason to know" as defined in the federal regulations and California statutes. Residence or domicile of an ancestor on a reservation or Alaska Native Village is not among the listed factors.

			between "reason to believe" and "reason to know," and the obligations triggered by each level of information? -Overall yes, with exception of the JV-410, item 10b(1), which, without further clarification from the Rules of Court, does not correctly distinguish the "reason to believe" and "reason to know" standards (see number (6) below). The following changes are recommended. (1) JV-405, item 12c(1). Item c(1) would be easier to understand if the words "reason to" were also added before the word "know" so the sentence reads: "The court finds that there is no reason to believe or reason to know that the child is an Indian child. ICWA does not apply…." (2) JV-405, item 12c(2). There should be separate checkboxes for subdivision (a) and subdivision (b) to clearly identify whether the agency has complied with WIC section 224.2(e) or whether the agency is now ordered to comply with WIC section 224.2(e). Therefore, it is recommended that checkboxes be added next to the (a) and (b) under this section. (3) JV-405, item 12c(3)(b). This item reads that "[n]otice has been provided as required by law". This item should clarify that notice complies with WIC section 290.1 or 290.2 to avoid confusion about whether formal noticing under WIC section 224.3 has somehow been accomplished at this stage in the proceeding. (4) JV-410, item 10a. Item 10a would be easier to understand if the words "reason to" were also added before the word "know" so the	The proposal was revised in response to this comment. 			sentence reads: "The court finds that there is no reason to believe or reason to know that the child is an Indian child. ICWA does not apply…."
			(5) JV-410, item 10b. Item 10b uses the words "may be" instead of "is" regarding the Indian child. The word "is" should replace "may be" to be consistent with WIC section 224.2(e) ("…an Indian child is involved in the proceeding" [emphasis added]. The word "is" is also used in the proposed JV-405, item 12c(1), and these items should be consistent.	The proposal has been revised in response to this comment.
			(6) JV-410, item 10b(1). See response number (2) to Question 1 on page 2 of this document. Unless clarified in the Rules of Court, the "due diligence" standard discussed in item 10b(1), based on WIC sections 224.2(g) and 224.2(i)(2), appears to only apply when there has been a "reason to know" at some point in the proceeding. Therefore, without clarification that WIC section 224.2(i)(2)'s due diligence standard is independent of the due diligence standard referred to in WIC section 224.2(g) (which requires that there is a "reason to know"), this reference to due diligence as it relates to working with the tribes, seems misplaced in item 10b(1)'s references to "reason to believe". To this end, item 10b(1) of the JV-410 should be consistent with item 12c(2)(a) of the JV-405 (which does not refer to due diligence in working with the tribe at the "reason to believe" stage).	The proposal has been revised in response to this comment.
			Question 4: Can the rights and protections under the Indian Child Welfare Act be waived through the use of forms JV-419 and JV-419(A)?	No response required.

			-Probably not. The definition of an "Indian child custody proceeding" in WIC section 224.1(d)(1)(A) includes situations where the child is removed from the home of a parent and placed in the "home of a guardian". This language is consistent with 25 USC section 1912 and 25 USC section 1903(1)(i) (definition of "foster care placement"). Technically, in an upfront guardianship under WIC section 360(a) the child is never legally removed from the parent under WIC section 361 (and it is more akin to a voluntary placement). However, this technicality does not appear to be consistent with the spirit of the ICWA since the hearing that will result in an upfront guardianship likely began, and was likely first scheduled, as an involuntary child custody proceeding (a disposition hearing where the agency recommended removal and placement in foster care). In essence, the term "removal" under the ICWA does not necessarily mirror the legal removal requirement under California law; and, ultimately, a tribe(s)' rights (nor the parents' or child's rights) should not be hindered since the proceeding very likely was initiated as an involuntary child custody proceeding. To that end, this waiver process also would not be consistent with the definition of a "voluntary proceeding" under WIC section 224.1(q) or the requirements of WIC section 16507.4 Question 5: Should item 1e on form JV-100 and item 1b on form JV-110 be modified either to remove the question altogether, or to ask about gender rather than sex and add an instruction that gender can include nonbinary?	The form has been modified to use the word gender instead of sex.

			-The modification to remove the word “sex” and replace it with the word “gender” seems most instructive to court participants.
12.	Marin County Counsel’s Office Deidre K. Smith, Deputy County Counsel	A	I wholeheartedly agree with the proposed ICWA 020 form. The proposed form appropriately narrows the inquiry to align with the statutory definition of "reason to know." Having conducted hundreds of these inquiries, I can confidently state that parents know when they and their child are members or citizens of an Indian tribe. There is no confusion about this. The previous practice, which required the court to ask parents about "Indian ancestry" was far too vague, and had nothing to do with a parent or child's actual citizenship/membership in a tribe (the crux of ICWA). Moreover, with genetic ancestry testing widely available online, many people can now attest that they have "Indian ancestry," resulting in more confusion in court. The prior overly-broad inquiry wasted time, resources, and resulted in the needless mailing of thousands of notices containing highly confidential ICWA 030 information (petitions, birth certificates, dates of birth and death, addresses, mother's maiden names) to thousands of tribes. ICWA is a political, not a race-based, statute and the proposed ICWA 020 reflects this. Please adopt the new ICWA 020 in order to tailor the court's inquiry toward the proper statutory factors. Thank you for all of your work on this issue.	No response required.

14.	San Diego Office of County Counsel, Juvenile Dependency Division By: Evangelina Woo Senior Deputy County Counsel	A	Rules of Court 5.481(b): if we have "reason to know" do you still recommend conducting investigation/due diligence before the court orders notice? Courts in my county are ordering notice based on the mere hint of ancestry (which is a separate problem) but I'm wondering if attorneys should be asking the court to hold off on the making the order for notice until we can try to narrow down which tribes to notice?	The Forum and Committee cannot give practice advice, but note that an agency's duty to do further inquiry under section 224.2 (e) arises when a social worker has "reason to believe" that a child may be an Indian child. The duty to send notice arises under 224.2 (f) whenever there is "reason to know" as defined by 224.2 (d) and the duty to use due diligence to identify and work with tribes under 224.2 (g) arises when there is "reason to know". None of these suggest the agency's obligations depend on an order from the court. Section 224.2

				(g) clearly anticipates that the agency has an obligation to conduct due diligence prior to a court hearing and prior to any findings by the court about ICWA status.

			Also: how that there is no more 60-day rule, how do you propose we proceed? We're still setting out ICWA specials to ensure follow up is done with the tribes we noticed so they can make a determination regarding membership/eligibility but are there any proposed guidelines? Particularly since the mandate is to "treat the child like an Indian child" when there's reason to know until we hear otherwise: what constitutes a reasonable amount of time to wait? What about those situations where we make attempts and can't get a response?	The Forum and Committee cannot give practice advice, but note that there is nothing in ICWA, the federal regulations or state law that mandates a tribal response or puts a time limit on a tribe's ability to make a determination of a child's status, respond to a notice, or intervene in a case. A court or agency's duty to apply ICWA depends upon the totality of the evidence concerning Indian status. Section 224.2(i)(2) authorizes the court to make a finding at any time that ICWA does not apply after review of evidence of further inquiry and due diligence based on an evaluation of the totality of the evidence before the court and whether there is or continues to be evidence supporting a "reason to know".

The Forum and Committee have considered the comment, but feel that the language "without skipping" adds clarity consistent with the federal Guidelines for Implementing the Indian Child Welfare Act[1] issued by the U.S. Department of the Interior Office of the Assistant Secretary – Indian Affairs Bureau of Indian Affairs in December 2016. Implementing 25 CFR §23.130 at page 56 of the guidelines it specifically states that preferences should be considered without being skipped.

			General question: what do you want Agencies to do when a paternity finding is still pending, but the alleged father claims ancestry and provides contact for relatives/lineal ancestors? Do we include that information in item #6d? Or wait and file an amended 030 once a paternity finding is made? The 030 is also framed in terms of the child's biological father, but dependency also recognizes presumed fathers as well, and the advice we've been giving to our client is to put the presumed father on the 030 if he claims heritage, even if we're not 100% sure he is the biological father.	The Forum and Committee cannot give practice advice.

If so, perhaps some of the language in #5 can be added or amended to state that the case shall be transferred and dependency petition dismissed upon confirmation of receipt, as opposed to "jurisdiction has been terminated?" I'm not sure if it's just a distinction without a difference, but 305.5(c) specifically uses the word "dismissed" and not "terminated."	court in "child custody proceeding" governed by ICWA. Prior California law (prior WIC 305.5(a)) specified that such cases should be transferred to the tribal court. The federal regulations published in 2016 clarified that, subject to any agreement between the state and tribe under 25 U.S.C. §1919, the proper procedure was for the state court to expeditiously notify the tribe and dismiss the case based on the tribe's exclusive jurisdiction (see 25 C.F.R. §23.110).

			JV 405(c)(3)(C) I understand the mandate to "treat the child like an Indian child" until a determination has been made that we no longer have reason to know, but what do you suggest in terms of finding a QEW or a tribally approved home where there is no identified tribe yet and/or where ICWA doesn't apply yet and a tribally approved home is not RFA approved? I am not aware of any authority allowing the Agency to place a child in a tribally approved, but non-RFA/ERFA approved home unless ICWA applies.	The Forum and Committee cannot give practice advice in a comment chart.
			JV 410(15)(g)(6)-(7)	The proposal was revised in response to this comment.

			These options appear to be covered under 16(d), which is precipitated by the finding that the child is an Indian child or that there is reason to know. Is there any reason the 361.31 placement preferences need to be in the section that doesn't seem to pertain to children who are Indian, or for whom we have reason to know are Indian? JV 412 (5) The tribe has the right to intervene "if the child is a member of a federally recognized tribe or is eligible for membership and the biological child of a member of a federal y recognized tribe" right? Is it possible to add that into the language?	The Forum and Committee declined to follow this recommendation.

Throughout the country, "Indian country" is referred to by different names: reservation, rancheria, pueblo, etc. The Forum and Committee did not want to appear to set out a comprehensive list of names and instead chose to include all tribal trust land. The proposal was revised in response to this and other similar comments.

The Forum and Committee have considered this comment and acknowledge the general preference not to needlessly repeat statutory language in the rules. However, because the ICWA rules cover case types generally governed by the Family and Probate codes as well as those governed by the Welf. & Inst. Code, the Forum and Committee determined that there was value in repeating the statutory language from the federal regulations and Welf. & Institutions Code here in the rules. See response above. The Forum and Committee declined to follow this recommendation. Although AB 2684 did add the term “genetic parent” to some sections of the Uniform Parentage Age and replace the term biological father with genetic father or genetic parent in several places, the terms biological and biological father are still used throughout the Family Code including in the provisions recently revised by the Family Law Omnibus, AB 1817.

The Judicial Council cannot, through rules of court, create a definition that was not provided in the statute. Nor can a rule of court reorder or reword the statute.

17.	Trial Court Presiding Judges Advisory Committee/Court Executives Advisory Committee Joint Rules Subcommittee	A	The proposal is required to conform to a change of law. The JRS notes the following impact to court operations: • Impact on local or statewide justice partners. Page 20 of 21 Local justice partners will be required to use updated and modified forms to address compliance with ICWA. These forms are regularly updated over the years in response to changes in the law. These updates are no different. The cost impact is minimal and not significant. Ultimately, the forms are a cost saver to the justice partners and the Court. Compliance with ICWA is a major appellate issue and non-compliance results in delayed permanency for children and prolonged litigation. The forms are intended and should make it easier for the parties and the Court to comply with ICWA. Requests for Specific Comments, SPR19-42 Q. Does the proposal appropriately address the stated purpose? Answer: Yes. The changes and modifications to the Rules of Court and the Judicial Council forms are necessary because of changes in federal and state law. Q. Are the questions about Indian status in the proposed revision to form ICWA-020, Parental Notification of Indian Status Form, broad enough to ensure that Indian children are identified? Answer: Yes. Q. Do the proposed findings and orders set out in item 12c of form JV-405 and item 9 of form JV-410 correctly reflect the distinction between “reason to believe” and “reason	No response required.

			to know," and the obligations triggered by each level of information? Answer: Yes. Q. Can the rights and protections under the Indian Child Welfare Act be waived through the use of forms JV-419 and JV-419(A)? Answer: Yes and No. Yes, all parties may waive their statutory rights if the waiver is knowing, intelligent and voluntary. ICWA, however, serves the purposes of not just the parties but also the Native American tribal communities. Thus, the Child Welfare Agency has a non-delegable and non-waivable duty to provide notice and to make active efforts if required, which the Tribe may deem satisfied by an express waiver. Q. Should item 1e on form JV-100 and item 1b on form JV-110 be modified either to remove the question altogether, or to ask about gender rather than sex and add an instruction that gender can include nonbinary? Answer: The question should be directed at "gender" and not the sex of the child so that the Court can properly address the child in Court which is required by law. The child's biological sex is not as relevant to the Court as the child's gender under the law. Q. Would the proposal provide cost savings? If so, please quantify. Answer: The more the Judicial Council forms bring clarity to Findings and Orders of the Court, the greater the cost savings to the Branch in reduced appeals. This is true when updating the forms on ICWA issues and gender identity issues. Q. What would the implementation requirements be for courts—for example, training staff (please identify position and expected hours of training), revising processes and procedures (please describe), changing docket codes in case management systems, or modifying case management systems? Answer: No cost to the Court. These are standard forms and are being updated in regular course. Q. Would 3 months from Judicial Council approval of this proposal until its effective date provide sufficient time for implementation? Answer: Yes. Q. How well would this proposal work in courts of different sizes?

Rule 5.480. Application

This chapter addressing the Indian Child Welfare Act (25 United States Code section 1901 et seq.) as codified in various sections of the California Family, Probate, and Welfare and Institutions Codes, applies to most proceedings involving Indian children that may result in an involuntary foster care placement; guardianship ~~or conservatorship~~ placement; custody placement under Family Code section 3041; declaration freeing a child from the custody and control of one or both parents; termination of parental rights; preadoptive placement or adoptive placement. This chapter applies to:

Commented [J1]: Conservatorships are for adults and therefore would not meet the definition of "child custody proceeding" in ICWA. It's true that ICWA can now apply pursuant to state law to an Indian child who is a non-minor dependent, but in a guardianship case arising under the WIC, the case would remain a guardianship; it would not become a probate conservatorship.

Rule 5.481. Inquiry and notice

(a) Inquiry

The court, court-connected investigator, and party seeking a foster-care placement, guardianship~~, conservatorship~~, custody placement under Family Code section 3041, declaration freeing a child from the custody or control of one or both parents, termination of parental rights, or adoption have an affirmative and continuing duty to inquire whether a child is or may be an Indian child in all proceedings identified in rule 5.480. The court, court-connected investigator, and party include the county welfare department, probation department, licensed adoption agency, adoption service provider, investigator, petitioner, and appointed guardian ~~or conservator~~ of the person~~, and appointed fiduciary~~.

(1) The party seeking a foster-care placement, guardianship~~, conservatorship~~, custody placement under Family Code section 3041, declaration freeing a child from the custody or control of one or both parents, termination of parental rights, or adoption must ask the child, if the child is old enough, and the parents, Indian custodian, or legal guardians, extended family members, others who have an interest in the child, and where applicable the party reporting child abuse or neglect whether the child is or may be an Indian child and whether the residence or domicile of the child, the parents, or Indian custodian is on a reservation or Alaska Native Village, and must complete the Indian Child Inquiry Attachment (form ICWA-010(A)) and attach it to the petition unless the party is filing a subsequent petition, and there is no new information.

(2) At the first appearance by a parent, Indian custodian, ~~or~~ guardian, ~~and all~~or other participants in any dependency case; or in juvenile wardship proceedings in which the child is at risk of entering foster care or is in foster care; or at the initiation of any guardianship~~, conservatorship~~, proceeding for custody under Family Code section 3041, proceeding to terminate parental rights proceeding to declare a child free of the custody and control of one or both parents, or adoption proceeding; the court must:

(A) Ask each participant present whether the participant knows or has reason to know ~~that~~ the child is an Indian child;

(B) Instruct the parties to inform the court if they subsequently receive information that provides reason to know the child is an Indian child; and

(C) ~~o~~Order the parent, Indian custodian, or guardian, if available, to complete Parental Notification of Indian Status (form ICWA-020).

(3) * * *

(4) If the social worker, probation officer, licensed adoption agency, adoption service provider, investigator, or petitioner knows or has reason to ~~know~~ believe that an Indian child is or may be involved, that person or entity must make further inquiry as soon as practicable by:

(A) Interviewing the parents, Indian custodian, and "extended family members" as defined in 25 United States Code sections 1901 and 1903(2) , to gather the information listed in Welfare and Institutions Code section 224.2(a) (5), Family Code section 180(b) (5), or Probate Code section 1460.2(b) (5)~~, which is required to complete the Notice of Child Custody Proceeding for Indian Child (form ICWA-030)~~;

(B) * * *

(C) Contacting the tribes and any other person that reasonably can be expected to have information regarding the child's membership status or eligibility. These contacts must at a minimum include the contacts listed in Welfare and Institutions Code section 224.2 (e)(3).

The petitioner must include in its filings a detailed description of all inquiries, further inquiries it has undertaken, and all information received pertaining to the child's Indian status.

~~(5) The circumstances that may provide reason to know the child is an Indian child include the following:~~

Commented [J2]: The specific details on how to contact a tribe, as outlined in 25 CFR section 233.105 should be set out here to improve inquiry and notice compliance. This is one of the questions we most often get at Tribal STAR trainings from social workers.

~~(A) The child or a person having an interest in the child, including an Indian tribe, an Indian organization, an officer of the court, a public or private agency, or a member of the child's extended family, informs or otherwise provides information suggesting that the child is an Indian child to the court, the county welfare agency, the probation department, the licensed adoption agency or adoption service provider, the investigator, the petitioner, or any appointed guardian or conservator~~

~~(B) The residence or domicile of the child, the child's parents, or an Indian custodian is or was in a predominantly Indian community; or~~

~~(C) The child or the child's family has received services or benefits from a tribe or services that are available to Indians from tribes or the federal government, such as the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Indian Health Service, or Tribal Temporary Assistance to Needy Families benefits.~~

(b) Reason to know the child is an Indian child

(1) The court has reason to know the child is an Indian child~~-~~ if: ~~22~~

(A) A person having an interest in the child, including the child, an officer of the court, a tribe, an Indian organization, a public or private agency, or a member of the child's extended family informs the court that the child is an Indian child;

(B) The residence or domicile of the child, the child's parents, or Indian custodian is on a reservation or in an Alaska Native Village;

(C) Any participant in the proceeding, officer of the court, Indian tribe, Indian organization, or agency informs the court that it has discovered information indicating that the child is an Indian child;

(D) The child who is the subject of the proceeding gives the court reason to know he or she is an Indian child;

(E) The court is informed that the child is or has been a ward of a tribal court; or

(F) The court is informed that either parent or the child possess an identification card indicating membership or citizenship in an Indian tribe.

(2) Information that a child has Native American ancestry does not in and of itself provide reason to know the child is an Indian child. There must be some information suggesting that the child is an Indian child (i.e., a child who is a member of a federally-recognized Tribe or a child who is eligible for membership in a federally-recognized Tribe and has a parent who is a member of such a Tribe).

(~~2~~3) When there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, but the court does not have sufficient evidence to determine that the child is or is not an Indian child, the court must confirm, by way of a report, declaration, or testimony included in the record that the agency or other party used due diligence to identify and work with all of the tribes of which there is reason to know the child may be a member, or eligible for membership, to verify whether the child is in fact a member or whether a biological parent is a member and the child is eligible for membership. Due diligence must include the further inquiry and tribal contacts discussed in (a)(4) above.

(3) Upon review of the evidence of due diligence, further inquiry, and tribal contacts, if the court concludes that the agency or other party has fulfilled its duty of due diligence, further inquiry, and tribal contacts, the court may:

(A) Find that there is no reason to know ~~that~~ the child is an Indian child and that the Indian Child Welfare Act does not apply. Notwithstanding this determination, if the court or a party subsequently receives information that was not previously available relevant to the child's Indian status, the court must reconsider this finding.

(B) Find that it is known the child is an Indian child, find that the Indian Child Welfare Act does apply, and order compliance with the requirements of the Act, including notice in accordance with (c) below.

(C) Find that ~~or~~ there is reason to know ~~that~~ the child is an Indian child, order notice in accordance with (c) below, and treat the child as an Indian child unless and until the court determines on the record that there is no reason to know the child is ~~not~~ an Indian child and that the Indian Child Welfare Act does not apply. ~~27~~

(4) A determination by an Indian tribe that a child is or is not a member of, or eligible for membership in, that tribe, or testimony attesting to that status by a person authorized by the tribe to provide that determination, shall be conclusive. Information that the child is not enrolled, or is not eligible for enrollment in, the tribe is not determinative of the child's membership status unless the tribe also confirms in writing that enrollment is a prerequisite for membership under tribal law or custom.

(1) If it is known or there is reason to know ~~that~~ an Indian child is involved in a proceeding listed in rule 5.480, except for a wardship proceeding under Welfare and Institutions Code sections 601 and 602 et seq., the social worker, petitioner, or in probate guardianship ~~and conservatorship~~ proceedings, if the petitioner is unrepresented, the court must send Notice of Child Custody Proceeding for Indian Child (form ICWA-030) to the parent or legal guardian and Indian custodian of an Indian child, and the Indian child's tribe, in the manner specified in Welfare and Institutions Code section ~~224.2~~224.3, Family Law Code section 180, and Probate Code section 1460.2 for all ~~hearings~~ proceedings that may result in the foster care placement, termination of parental rights, preadoptive placement, or adoptive placement and every subsequent hearing. ~~41~~

(2)–(4) * * *

Commented [J4]: As drafted, the rule suggests that notice is only required for certain hearings, such as detention, disposition and the 366.26 hearing. It is required for every hearing held in an Indian child custody proceeding. The rule should make it clear that once notice is triggered, notice must be provided for all hearings in the proceeding.

Rule 5.482. Proceedings after notice

(a) Timing of proceedings

(1) If it is known or there is reason to know ~~that~~ a child is an Indian child, the court hearing that may result in a foster care placement, termination of parental rights, preadoptive placement, or adoptive placement must not proceed until at least 10 days after the parent, Indian custodian, the tribe, or the Bureau of Indian Affairs have received notice, except as stated in sections (a)(2) and (3).

~~(2) The detention hearing in dependency cases and in delinquency cases in which the probation officer has assessed that the child is in foster care or it is probable the child will be entering foster care described by rule 5.480(2) (A) – (C) may proceed without delay, provided that:~~

~~(A) Notice of the detention hearing must be given as soon as possible after the filing of the petition initiating the proceeding; and~~

~~(B) Proof of notice must be filed with the court within 10 days after the filing of the petition.~~

~~(3) The parent, Indian custodian, or tribe must be granted a continuance, if requested, of up to 20 days to prepare for the proceeding, except for specified hearings in the following circumstances:~~

~~(A) The detention hearing in dependency cases and in delinquency cases described by rule 5.480(2) (A) – (C);~~

~~(B) The jurisdiction hearing in a delinquency case described by rule 5.480(2) (A) – (C) in which the court finds the continuance would not conform to speedy trial considerations under Welfare and Institutions Code section 657; and~~

~~(C) The disposition hearing in a delinquency case described by rule 5.480(2) (A) – (C) in which the court finds good cause to deny the continuance under Welfare and Institutions Code section 682. A good cause reason includes when probation is recommending the release of a detained child to his or her parent or to a less restrictive placement. The court must follow the placement preferences under rule 5.484 when holding the disposition hearing.~~

Commented [J5]: Why are (a)(2) and (3) referenced as exceptions to the 10-day rule but shown as deleted below? Language consistent with WIC 224.3(d) provisions regarding exception to 10-day rule and continuances should be reflected in (a)(2) and (3).

(b) Proof of notice

* * *

~~(c) When there is no information or response from a tribe~~

~~(1) If after notice has been provided as required by federal and state law and neither the tribe nor the Bureau of Indian Affairs has provided a determinative response within 60 days after receiving that notice, then the court may determine that the Indian Child Welfare Act does not apply to the proceedings, provided that the court must reverse its determination of the inapplicability of the act and must apply it prospectively if a tribe or the Bureau of Indian Affairs subsequently confirms that the child is an Indian child.~~

~~(2) If at any time, based on the petition or other information, the court knows or has reason to know the child is an Indian child, the court must proceed as if the child were an Indian child.~~

~~(3) The court is not required to delay proceedings until a response to notice is received.~~

(d) Intervention

The Indian child's tribe and Indian custodian may intervene, orally or in writing, at any point in the proceedings. ~~and~~ The tribe may, but ~~are~~ is not required to, file with the court the Notice of Designation of Tribal Representative and Notice of Intervention in a Court Proceeding Involving an Indian Child (form ICWA-040) to give notice of their intent to intervene.

(f) Consultation with Tribe

Rule 5.483. Dismissal and transfer of case

(a) ~~Mandatory transfer of case to tribal court with~~ Dismissal when tribal court has exclusive jurisdiction

~~The court must order transfer of a case to the tribal court of the child's tribe if:~~
Subject to the terms of any agreement between the state and the tribe pursuant to 25

United States Code section 1919:

(1) If the court receives information suggesting that the Indian child is already a ward of ~~the~~ a tribal court or is domiciled or resides within a reservation of an Indian tribe that has exclusive jurisdiction over Indian child custody proceedings under section 1911 or 1918 of title 25 of the United States Code, the court must expeditiously notify the tribe and the tribal court ~~that~~ it intends to dismiss the case upon receiving confirmation from the tribe or tribal court that the child is a ward of the tribal court or subject to the tribe's exclusive jurisdiction.

(2) When the court receives confirmation that the child is already a ward of a tribal court or is subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of an Indian tribe, the state court shall dismiss the proceeding and ensure that the tribal court is sent all information regarding the proceeding, including, but not limited to, the pleadings and any state court record. If the local agency has not already transferred physical custody of the Indian child to the child's tribe, the state court shall order that the local agency do so forthwith and hold in abeyance any dismissal order pending confirmation that the Indian child is in the physical custody of the tribe.

(3) This section does not preclude an emergency removal pursuant to Welfare and Institutions Code section 319~~.~~ if emergency removal is necessary to protect the child from imminent physical damage or harm and if more time is needed to facilitate the transfer of custody of the Indian child from the locl agency to the tribe.~~19~~

(b) ~~(c)~~ *** * ***

(c) [Add to end of existing text:] Upon receipt of a transfer petition, the court must ensure that the Tribal court is promptly notified in writing of the transfer petition. The notificiation may request a timely response regarding whether the Tribal court wishes to decline the transfer.

Commented [J7]: This reflects the requirements of 25 CFR section 23.116.

(d) Cause to deny a request to transfer to tribal court with concurrent state and tribal jurisdiction

(1) ~~One or more~~ Either of the following circumstances constitutes mandatory good cause to deny a request to transfer:

(A) One or both of the child's parents objects to the transfer in open court or in an admissible writing for the record; or

~~(B) The child's tribe does not have a "tribal court" or any other administrative body as defined in section 1903 of the Indian Child Welfare Act: "a court with jurisdiction over child custody proceedings and which is either a Court of Indian Offenses, a court established and operated under the code or custom of an Indian tribe, or any other administrative body of a tribe which is vested with authority over child custody proceedings;" or~~

~~(B) The proceeding was at an advanced stage when the request to transfer was received and the petitioner did not make the request within a reasonable time after receiving notice of the proceeding, provided the notice complied with statutory requirements. ~~(C) The Indian child is over 12 years of age and objects to the transfer; or~~

(5) If the child's parents and Indian custodians are unknown, a detailed explanation of what efforts have been made to locate and contact them;

(6) The residence and the domicile of the Indian child;

(7) If either the residence or the domicile of the Indian child is believed to be on a reservation or in an Alaska Native Village, the name of the tribe affiliated with that reservation or village;

(8) The tribal affiliation of the child and of the parents or Indian custodians;

(9) A specific and detailed account of the circumstances that led to the emergency removal of the child;

(10) If the child is believed to reside or be domiciled on a reservation where the tribe exercises exclusive jurisdiction over child custody matters, a statement of efforts that have been made and are being made to contact the tribe and transfer the child to the tribe's jurisdiction; and

(11) A statement of the efforts that have been taken to assist the parents or Indian custodian so the Indian child may safely be returned to their custody.

(b) Return of Indian child when emergency situation has ended

Whenever it is known or there is reason to know ~~that~~ the child is an Indian child and there has been an emergency removal of the child from parental custody, any party who asserts that there is new information indicating that the emergency situation has ended may request an ex parte hearing by filing a request in form ICWA-070 to determine whether the emergency situation has ended;

If the request provides evidence of new information establishing that the emergency placement is no longer necessary, the court shall promptly schedule a hearing. At the hearing the court shall consider whether the child's removal and placement is still necessary to prevent imminent physical damage or harm to the child. If the court determines that the child's emergency removal or placement is no longer necessary to prevent imminent physical damage or harm to the child, the court shall order the child returned to the physical custody of the parent(s) ~~or parents~~ or ~~of~~ Indian custodian(s). ~~40~~

An emergency removal shall not continue for more than 30 days unless the court makes the following determinations:

(1) Restoring the child to the parent or Indian custodian would subject the child to imminent physical damage or harm;

(2) The court has been unable to transfer the proceeding to the jurisdiction of the appropriate Indian tribe, if applicable; and ~~9~~

(3) It has not been possible to have a hearing that complies with the substantive requirements of the Indian Child Welfare Act for a foster care placement proceeding.

(b) Standards and preferences in placement of an Indian child

~~(1) Unless the court finds good cause to deviate from them the contrary,~~

~~w~~Whenever it is known or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, all placements ~~of Indian children~~ in any proceeding listed in rules 5.480 and 5.484 must follow the specified placement preferences in Family Code section 177(a), Probate Code section 1459(b), and Welfare and Institutions Code section 361.31, unless the court finds good cause to deviate from those placement preferences. ~~26~~

(2) The court must analyze the availability of placements within the placement preferences in descending order without skipping. The court may deviate from the preference order only for good cause, which may include the following considerations:

(A) The requests of the parent or Indian custodian if they attest that they have reviewed the placement options, if any, that comply with the order of preference;

(B) The requests of the Indian child, when of sufficient age and capacity to understand the decision being made;

(C) The presence of a sibling attachment that can be maintained only through a particular placement;

community where families who meet the placement preferences live ~~as established by a qualified expert witness~~; or

(~~D~~E) The unavailability of suitable families within the placement preferences based on a documented diligent effort to identify families meeting the preference criteria. The standard for determining whether a placement is unavailable shall conform to the prevailing social and cultural standards of the Indian community in which the Indian child's parent or extended family resides or with which the Indian child's parent or extended family members maintain social and cultural ties.

(3) The placement preferences shall be analyzed and considered each time there is a change in the child's placement.

(4) The burden of establishing good cause for the court to deviate from the preference order is on the party requesting that the preference order not be followed. A placement may not depart from the preferences based on the socioeconomic status of any placement relative to another or solely on the basis of ordinary bonding or attachment that flowed from time spent in a nonpreferred placement that was made in violation of the Indian Child Welfare Act.

(4~~5~~)–(~~6~~7) * * *

(c) Active efforts

In addition to any other required findings to place an Indian child with someone other than a parent or Indian custodian, or to terminate parental rights, the court must find that active efforts have been made, in any proceeding listed in rule 5.480, to provide remedial services and rehabilitative programs designed to prevent the breakup of the Indian family, and must find that these efforts were unsuccessful. These active efforts must include affirmative, active, thorough, and timely efforts intended primarily to maintain or reunite the child with his or her family, must be tailored to the facts and circumstances of the case, and must be consistent with the requirements of section 224.1(f) of the Welfare and Institutions Code.

(1) The active efforts must be documented in detail in the record.

(~~1~~2) The court must consider whether active efforts were made in a manner consistent with the prevailing social and cultural conditions and way of life of the Indian child's tribe.

(~~2~~3) Efforts to provide services must include pursuit of any steps necessary to secure tribal membership for a child if the child is eligible for membership in a given tribe, as well as attempts to use the available resources of extended family members, the tribe, tribal and other Indian social service agencies, and individual Indian caregivers.

Rule 5.48~~5~~6. Removal; Termination of parental rights

(a) ~~* * *~~Evidentiary Burdens

(1) Where the court knows or has reason to know an Indian child is involved, the court may not order removal of the child from the physical custody of a parent or Indian custodian pursuant to Welfare and Institutions Code section 361, Family Code section 3041, or the Probate Code, or order continued removal under Welfare and Institutions Code sections 366.21(e)(1), (f)(1), 366.22(a)(1) or 366.25(a)(1), unless clear and convincing evidence is presented, including the testimony of one or more qualified expert witnesses, demonstrating that the child's continued custody by the child's parent or Indian custodian is likely to result in serious emotional or physical damage to the child.

[Make existing text a new paragraph (2) and subparagraphs (A) and (B).]

(3) For removal, continued removal, or termination of parental rights, the evidence must show a causal relationship between the particular conditions in the home and the likelihood the continued custody of the child will result in serious emotional or physical damage to the particular child who is the subject of the proceeding.

(4) Without a causal relationship identifie in (3), evidence that shows only the existence of community or family poverty, isolation, single parenthood, custodian age, crowded or inadequate housing, substance abuse, or nonconforming social behavior does not by itself constitute clear and convincing evidence or evidence beyond a reasonable doubt that continued custody is likely to result in serious emotional or physical damage to the child.

(b) When parental rights may not be terminated

The court may not terminate parental rights to an Indian child or declare a child free from the custody and control of one or both parents if the court finds a compelling reason for determining that termination of parental rights would not be in the child's best interest. Such a reason may include:

(1) The child is living with a relative who is unable or unwilling to adopt the child because of circumstances that do not include an unwillingness to accept legal or financial responsibility for the child, but who is willing and capable of providing the child with a stable and permanent environment through legal guardianship, and the removal of the child from the custody of his or her relative would be detrimental to the emotional well-being of the child. For purposes of an Indian child, "relative" shall include an "extended family member," as defined in the federal Indian Child Welfare Act of 1978 (25 U.S.C. § 1903(2));

(~~1~~2) Termination of parental rights would substantially interfere with the child's connection to his or her tribal community or the child's tribal membership rights; or

(~~2~~3) The child's tribe has identified tribal customary adoption without termination of parental rights, guardianship, long-term foster care with a fit and willing relative, or another planned permanent living arrangement for the child.

Rule 5.531. Appearanc by telephone

(d) Nothwithstanding (c), if it possesses the capability, the court should allow alternative methods of participation in child custody proceedings involving an Indian child, such as participation by telephone, videoconferencing, or other methods.

Commented [J8]: This reflect 25 CFR section 23.133.

Commented [J9]:

(5) For a petition filed under section 388(c)(1)(A), the court may terminate reunification services during the time periods described in section 388(c)(1) only if the court finds by a preponderance of evidence that reasonable services have been offered or provided, and, by clear and convincing evidence, that the change of circumstance or new evidence described in the petition satisfies a condition in section 361.5(b) or (e). In the case of an Indian child, the court may terminate reunification services only if the court finds by clear and convincing evidence that active efforts have been made to provide remedial services and rehabilitative programs designed to prevent the breakup of the Indian family within the meaning of sections 224.1(f) and 361.7 of the Welfare and Institutions Code and that these efforts have proved unsuccessful. The court may grant the petition after following the procedures in (f), (g), and (h).

(6) For a petition filed under section 388(c)(1)(B), the court may terminate reunification services during the time periods described in section 388(c)(1) only if the court finds by a preponderance of evidence that reasonable services have been offered or provided, and, by clear and convincing evidence, that action or inaction by the parent or guardian creates a substantial likelihood that reunification will not occur. Such action or inaction includes, but is not limited to, failure to visit the child or failure to participate regularly and make substantive progress in a court-ordered treatment program. In determining whether the parent or guardian has failed to visit the child or to participate regularly or make progress in a court-ordered treatment plan, the court must consider factors including, but not limited to, the parent or guardian's incarceration, institutionalization, or participation in a residential substance abuse treatment program. In the case of an Indian child, the court may terminate reunification services only if the court finds by clear and convincing evidence that active efforts have been made to provide remedial services and rehabilitative programs designed to prevent the breakup of the Indian family within the meaning of sections 224.1(f) and 361.7 of the Welfare and Institutions Code and that these efforts have proved unsuccessful. The court may grant the petition after following the procedures in (f), (g), and (h).

(c) Indian Child Welfare Act inquiry (§ 224.2(c) & (g))

(1) The court must ask each participant present at the hearing whether:

(A) The participant knows or has reason to know ~~that~~ the child is an Indian child;

(B) The residence or domicile of the child, the child's parents, or Indian custodian is on a reservation or in an Alaska Native Village;

(C) The child is or has ever been a ward of a tribal court; and

(D) Either parent or the child possess an identification card indicating membership or citizenship in an Indian tribe.

(2) The court must also instruct all parties to inform the court if they subsequently receive information that provides reason to know the child is an Indian child, and order the parent(s), Indian custodian, or guardian, if available, to complete Parental Notification of Indian Status (form ICWA-020).

(3) If it is known~~,~~ or there is reason~~,~~ to know that case involves an Indian child, the court shall proceed in accordance with rules 5.481 et seq.

(d) Additional evidence required at a detention hearing for an Indian child

If it is known, or there is reason to know ~~that~~ the child is an Indian child, the reports relied upon must also include:

(1) A statement of the risk of imminent physical damage or harm to the Indian child and any evidence that the emergency removal or placement continues to be necessary to prevent the imminent physical damage or harm to the child;

(2) The steps taken to provide notice to the child's parents, Indian custodians, and tribe about the hearing pursuant to ~~this section~~the Welfare and Institutions Code section 224.3;

Rule 5.678. Findings in support of detention; factors to consider; reasonable efforts; active efforts; detention alternatives

(a) Findings in support of detention (§ 319; 42 U.S.C. § 672)

The court must order the child released from custody unless the court makes the findings specified in section 319(~~b~~c), and where it is known, or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, the additional finding specified in section 319(d).

(c) Findings of the court—reasonable or active efforts (§ 319; 42 U.S.C. § 672)

(1) * * *

(2) Where it is known or there is reason to know ~~that~~ the child is an Indian child, whether the child is released or detained at the hearing, the court must determine whether active efforts have been made to prevent or eliminate the need for removal, and that those active efforts are documented in detail in the record, and must make one of the following findings:

(A) Active efforts have been made and were successful;

(B) Active efforts have been made and were not successful; or ~~8~~

(B) Active efforts have not been made; and

(C) The court orders the department to initiate or continue services in accordance with Welfare and Institutions Code section 358.

(~~3~~4) The court must not order the child detained unless the court, after inquiry regarding available services, finds that there are no reasonable services~~,~~ or, where it is known or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, active efforts that would prevent or eliminate the need to detain the child or that would permit the child to return home.

(~~4~~5) If the court orders the child detained, the court must proceed under section 319(~~d~~g)–(~~e~~h).

(d) Orders of the court (§ 319; 42 U.S.C. § 672)

If the court orders the child detained, the court must order that temporary care and custody of the child be vested with the county welfare department pending disposition or further order of the court and must make the other findings and orders specified in section 319(~~e~~g) and (~~f~~h)(3).

(e) Detention alternatives (§ 319)

The court may order the child detained as specified in section 319(~~f~~h).

(f) Additional requirements regarding detention of an Indian child (§ 319)

(1) If it is known, or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, the child must be detained in a home that complies with the placement preferences in section 361.31 unless the court finds good cause exists not to follow the placement preferences.

Commented [J11]: This rule should address what the court must do if it finds that the active efforts requirement has not been met, i.e., order the child returned and that active efforts be made.

Comments from the Children's Law Center

Rule 5.481. Inquiry and notice

(a) Inquiry

The court, court-connected investigator, and party ~~seeking~~ requesting a foster-care placement, guardianship, conservatorship, custody placement under Family Code section 3041, declaration freeing a child from the custody or control of one or both parents, termination of parental rights, pre-adoptive placement, or adoption have an affirmative and continuing duty to inquire whether a child is or may be an Indian child in all proceedings identified in rule 5.480. This imposes a duty on the court, court-connected investigators, county welfare departments, probation departments, licensed adoption agencies, adoption service providers, investigators, petitioners, appointed guardian or conservators of the person, and appointed fiduciaries. ~~The court, court-connected investigator, and party include the county welfare department, probation department, licensed adoption agency, adoption service provider, investigator, petitioner, appointed guardian or conservator of the person, and appointed fiduciary.~~

(1) The party seeking a foster-care placement, guardianship, conservatorship, custody placement under Family Code section 3041, declaration freeing a child from the custody or control of one or both parents, termination of parental rights, pre-adoptive placement, or adoption must ask the child, if the child is old enough, and the parents, Indian custodian, or legal guardians, extended family members, others who have an interest in the child, and where applicable the party reporting child abuse or neglect whether the child is or may be an Indian child and whether the residence or domicile of the child, the parents, or Indian custodian is on a reservation or Alaska Native Village, and must complete the Indian Child Inquiry Attachment (form ICWA-010(A)) and attach it to the petition unless the party is filing a subsequent petition, and there is no new information.

(2) At the first appearance by a parent, Indian custodian, or guardian, and all other participants in any dependency case; or in juvenile wardship proceedings in which the child is at risk of entering foster care or is in foster care; or at the initiation of any guardianship, conservatorship, proceeding for custody under Family Code section 3041, proceeding to terminate parental rights proceeding to declare a child free of the custody and control of one or both parents, pre-adoption, or adoption proceeding; the court must:

(A) Ask each participant present whether the participant knows or has reason to know that the child is an Indian child;

(B) Instruct the parties to inform the court if they subsequently receive information that provides reason to know the child is an Indian child; and

(C) Order the parent, Indian custodian, guardian or any other relative present in court to complete the Parental Notification of Indian Status Form (ICWA-020). ~~oO~~rder the parent, Indian custodian, or guardian if available, to complete Parental Notification of Indian Status (form ICWA-020).

(3) * * *

(4) If the social worker, probation officer, licensed adoption agency, adoption service provider, investigator, or petitioner knows or has reason to ~~know~~ believe that an Indian child is or may be involved, that person or entity must make further inquiry as soon as practicable by:

(A) Interviewing the parents, Indian custodian, and "extended family members" as defined in 25 United States Code sections 1901 and 1903(2) , to gather the information listed in Welfare and Institutions Code section 224.2(a) (5), Family Code section 180(b) (5), or Probate Code section 1460.2(b) (5)~~, which is required to complete the Notice of Child Custody Proceeding for Indian Child (form ICWA-030)~~;

(B) * * *

(C) Contacting the tribes and any other person that reasonably can be expected to have information regarding the child's membership status or eligibility. These contacts must at a minimum include the contacts listed in Welfare and Institutions Code section 224.2 (e)(3).

The petitioner must include in its filings a detailed description of all inquiries, further inquiries it has undertaken, and all information received pertaining to the child's Indian status. Any information obtained by the petitioner must be documented in the ICWA-020 form. If the petitioner had previously sent notices and the information obtained is new information which was not previously provided in the ICWA-020 or inaccurate information was previously provided in the ICWA-020 then the petitioner must complete a new ICWA-020 with all the information and re-notice all the identified Tribes.

~~(5) The circumstances that may provide reason to know the child is an Indian child include the following:~~
~~(A) The child or a person having an interest in the child, including an Indian tribe, an Indian organization, an officer of the court, a public or private agency, or a member of the child's extended family, informs or otherwise provides information suggesting that the child is an Indian child to the court, the county welfare agency, the probation department, the licensed adoption agency or adoption service provider, the investigator, the petitioner, or any appointed guardian or conservator~~
~~(B) The residence or domicile of the child, the child's parents, or an Indian custodian is or was in a predominantly Indian community; or~~
~~(C) The child or the child's family has received services or benefits from a tribe or services that are available to Indians from tribes or the federal government, such as the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Indian Health Service, or Tribal Temporary Assistance to Needy Families benefits.~~

(b) Reason to know the child is an Indian child

(1) The court has reason to know a child involved in a proceeding is an Indian child if: ~~the child is an Indian child if:~~

(A) A person having an interest in the child, including the child, an officer of the court, a tribe, an Indian organization, a public or private agency, or a member of the child's extended family informs the court that the child is an Indian child;

(B) The residence or domicile of the child, the child's parents, or Indian custodian is on a reservation or in an Alaska Native Village;

(C) Any participant in the proceeding, officer of the court, Indian tribe, Indian organization, or agency informs the court that it has discovered information indicating that the child is an Indian child;

(D) The child who is the subject of the proceeding gives the court reason to know he or she is an Indian child;

(E) The court is informed that the child is or has been a ward of a tribal court; or

(F) The court is informed that either parent or the child possess an identification card indicating membership or citizenship in an Indian tribe.

(2) When there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, but the court does not have sufficient evidence to determine that the child is or is not an Indian child, the court must confirm, by way of a report, declaration, or testimony included in the record that the agency or other party used due diligence to identify and work with all of the tribes of which there is reason to know the child may be a member, or eligible for membership, to verify whether the child is in fact a member or whether a biological parent is a member and the child is eligible for membership. Due diligence must include the further inquiry and tribal contacts discussed in (a)(4) above.

Commented [JM1]: It is important to ensure this language is included because it is the most common ground in which ICWA reversals come down from the COA.

(3) Upon review of the evidence of due diligence, further inquiry, and tribal contacts, if the court concludes that the agency or other party has fulfilled its duty of due diligence, further inquiry, and tribal contacts, the court may:

(A) Find that there is no reason to know that the child is an Indian child and that the Indian Child Welfare Act does not apply. Notwithstanding this determination, if the court or a party subsequently receives any information required by section 224.3 that was not previously available or included in the notice issued under Section 224.3, the court must order the party seeking placement shall provide the additional information to any tribes entitled to notice under section 224.3 and to the Secretary of the Interior's designated agent and the court must reconsider the previous ICWA finding.

(B) Find that it is known or there is reason to know that the child is an Indian child, order notice in accordance with (c) below, and treat the child as an Indian child unless and until the court determines on the record that the child is not an Indian child.

(c) Notice

(1) If it is known or there is reason to know that an Indian child is involved in a proceeding listed in rule 5.480, except for a wardship proceeding under Welfare and Institutions Code sections 601 and 602 et seq., the social worker, petitioner, or in probate guardianship and conservatorship proceedings, or if the petitioner is unrepresented, the court must send Notice of Child Custody Proceeding for Indian Child (form ICWA-030) to the parent or legal guardian and Indian custodian of an Indian child, and the Indian child's tribe, in the manner specified in Welfare and Institutions Code section 224.~~2~~3, Family Law Code section 180, and Probate Code section 1460.2 for all hearings that may result in the foster care placement, termination of parental rights, pre-adoptive placement, or adoptive placement.

Rule 5.482. Proceedings after notice

(a) Timing of proceedings

(1) At a court hearing that may result in a foster care placement, termination of parental rights of one or both parents, pre-adoptive placement, or adoptive placement, the court may not proceed with the hearing until at least 10 days after the parent, Indian custodian, the Tribe, or the Bureau of Indian Affairs have received notice of the proceedings except in a hearing held pursuant to section 319 of the Welfare and Institutions Code. ~~if it is known or there is reason to know that a child is an Indian child, the court hearing that may result in a foster care placement, termination of parental rights, pre-adoptive placement, or adoptive placement must not proceed until at least 10 days after the parent, Indian custodian, the tribe, or the Bureau of Indian Affairs have received notice, except as stated in sections (a)(2) and (3).~~

(2) With the exception of the hearing held pursuant to Section 319 of the Welfare and Institutions Code, the parent, Indian custodian, or tribe shall, upon request, be granted up to twenty (20) additional days to prepare for that hearing or proceeding.

(2) ~~The detention hearing in dependency cases and in delinquency cases in which the probation officer has assessed that the child is in foster care or it is probable the child will be entering foster care described by rule 5.480(2) (A)–(C) may proceed without delay, provided that:~~

~~(A) Notice of the detention hearing must be given as soon as possible after the filing of the petition initiating the proceeding; and~~

Commented [MJ2]: The changes the JC made would strike through an important provision regarding the detention hearing. Their language keeps in section (1) a reference to (a)(2)&(3) but they delete it from the language. I put it together in one paragraph which includes all the language.

~~(B) Proof of notice must be filed with the court within 10 days after the filing of the petition.~~

~~(3) The parent, Indian custodian, or tribe must be granted a continuance, if requested, of up to 20 days to prepare for the proceeding, except for specified hearings in the following circumstances:~~

~~(A) The detention hearing in dependency cases and in delinquency cases described by rule 5.480(2) (A) –(C);~~

~~(B) The jurisdiction hearing in a delinquency case described by rule 5.480(2)(A) –(C) in which the court finds the continuance would not conform to speedy trial considerations under Welfare and Institutions Code section 657; and~~

~~(C) The disposition hearing in a delinquency case described by rule 5.480(2) (A) –(C) in which the court finds good cause to deny the continuance under Welfare and Institutions Code section 682. A good cause reason includes when probation is recommending the release of a detained child to his or her parent or to a less restrictive placement. The court must follow the placement preferences under rule 5.484 when holding the disposition hearing.~~

(b) Proof of notice

Proof of compliance with the notice provisions must be filed with the court in advance of the hearing except for a hearing held pursuant to Section 319 of the Welfare and Institutions Code and must include:

(1) Notice of Child Custody Proceedings for Indian Child (form ICWA-030),

(2) Copies of the notices sent to all parties, tribes, parents, and Indian Custodians, and

(3) All return receipts and responses received to the notices.

(c) Determination the ICWA Is Not Applicable ~~When there is no information or response from a tribe~~

(1) If the court makes a finding that proper and adequate inquiry and due diligence were conducted pursuant to section 224.2 and 224.3 of the Welfare and Institutions Code and the court determines there is no reason to know the child is an Indian child, the court may make a finding that the federal Indian Child Welfare Act of 1978 (25 U.S.C. Section 1901 et seq.) does not apply to the proceedings. ~~If after notice has been provided as required by federal and state law and neither the tribe nor the Bureau of Indian Affairs has provided a determinative response within 60 days after receiving that notice, then the court may determine that the Indian Child Welfare Act does not apply to the proceedings, provided that the court must reverse its determination of the inapplicability of the act and must apply it prospectively if a tribe or the Bureau of Indian Affairs subsequently confirms that the child is an Indian child~~.

(2) The determination of the court that the Indian Child Welfare Act of 1978 does not apply in subsection (c)(1) is subject to reversal based on sufficiency of the evidence. The court shall reverse it's determination if it subsequently receives information providing reason to believe that the child is an Indian child and order the social worker or probation officer to conduct further inquiry pursuant to Section 224.3 of the Welfare and Institutions Code. ~~If at any time, based on the petition or other information, the court knows or has reason to know the child is an Indian child, the court must proceed as if the child were an Indian child.~~

(3) ~~The court is not required to delay proceedings until a response to notice is received.~~

(d) Intervention

Commented [MJ3]: This language makes it in compliance with the WIC section 224.3 and the previous rule of court.

Commented [MJ4]: I do not think they can take out this section without guidance as to what to do when you have done everything and there is no response because it is a common situation. Since tribes get over 20,000 inquires a day sometimes they are not always timely to respond to inquiries and it would delay proceedings without some direction.

The Indian child's tribe and Indian custodian have an absolute right to intervene in the proceedings. The tribe or Indian custodian may intervene, orally or in writing, at any point in the proceedings. ~~and~~ The tribe, at it's own discretion may, ~~but are is not required to,~~ file with the court the Notice of Designation of Tribal Representative and Notice of Intervention in a Court Proceeding Involving an Indian Child (form ICWA-040) to give notice of their intent to intervene.

Commented [MJ5]: I think it is good to clearly state this since some court are confused if they have the absolute right to intervention

Rule 5.483. Dismissal and transfer of case

(a) ~~Mandatory transfer of case to tribal court with~~ Dismissal when tribal court has exclusive jurisdiction.

~~The court must order transfer of a case to the tribal court of the child's tribe if:~~

Subject to the terms of any agreement between the state and the tribe pursuant to 25 United States Code section 1919:

(1) At any stage of the proceeding as defined under Section 224.1 of the Welfare and Institutions Code, if ~~if~~ the court receives information suggesting that the Indian child is a ward of ~~the~~ a tribal court or is domiciled or resides within a reservation of an Indian tribe that has exclusive jurisdiction over Indian child custody proceedings under section 1911 or 1918 of title 25 of the United States Code, the court must expeditiously notify the tribe and the tribal court that it intends to dismiss the case upon receiving confirmation from the tribe or tribal court that the child is a ward of the tribal court or subject to the tribe's exclusive jurisdiction.

(2) When the court receives confirmation that the child is already a ward of a tribal court or is subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of an Indian tribe, the state court shall dismiss the proceeding and ensure that the tribal court is sent all information regarding the proceeding, including, but not limited to, the pleadings and any state court record. If the local agency has not already transferred physical custody of the Indian child to the child's tribe, the state court shall order that the local agency do so forthwith and hold in abeyance any dismissal order pending confirmation that the Indian child is in the physical custody of the tribe.

(3) This section does not preclude a state court from ordering an Indian child detained on an emergency basis pursuant to Section 319 of the Welfare and Institutions Code if emergency removal is necessary to protect the child from imminent physical damage or harm and if more time is needed to facilitate the transfer of custody of the Indian child from the county welfare department to the tribe. ~~an emergency removal.~~

(d) Cause to deny a request to transfer to tribal court with concurrent state and tribal jurisdiction

(1) ~~One or more~~ Either of the following circumstances constitutes mandatory good cause to deny a request to transfer:

(A) One or both of the child's parents objects to the transfer in open court or in an admissible writing for the record; or

~~(B) The child's tribe does not have a "tribal court" or any other administrative body as defined in section 1903 of the Indian Child Welfare Act: "a court with jurisdiction over child custody proceedings and which is either a Court of Indian Offenses, a court established and operated~~

~~under the code or custom of an Indian tribe, or any other administrative body of a tribe which is vested with authority over child custody proceedings;" or~~

(B~~C~~) The tribal court of the child's tribe declines the transfer.

(2) ~~One or more of the following circumstances may constitute discretionary good cause to deny a request to transfer~~ In assessing whether good cause to deny the transfer exists, the court shall ~~must~~ not consider:

~~(A) The evidence necessary to decide the case cannot be presented in the tribal court without undue hardship to the parties or the witnesses, and the tribal court is unable to mitigate the hardship by making arrangements to receive and consider the evidence or testimony by use of remote communication, by hearing the evidence or testimony at a location convenient to the parties or witnesses, or by use of other means permitted in the tribal court's rules of evidence or discovery;~~

~~(B) The proceeding was at an advanced stage when the request to transfer was received and the petitioner did not make the request within a reasonable time after receiving notice of the proceeding, provided the notice complied with statutory requirements. ~~(C) The Indian child is over 12 years of age and objects to the transfer; or~~

~~(D) The parents of a child over five years of age are not available and the child has had little or no contact with his or her tribe or members of the child's tribe.~~

(A) Whether the foster care, child custody, pre-adoptive placement, adoptive placement. or termination-of-parental-rights proceeding is at an advanced stage if the Indian child's parent, Indian custodian, or tribe did not receive notice of the child custody proceeding until an advanced stage. It shall not, in and of itself, be considered an unreasonable delay for a party to wait until reunification efforts have failed and reunification services have been terminated before filing a petition to transfer;

Rule 5.484. Emergency proceedings involving an Indian child

Commented [MJ6]: I made a lot of changes to this section to reflect the actual code section language and ensure that it matches with the federal as well as state codes.

(a) Standards for removal

Whenever it is known or there is reason to know that the case involves an Indian child, the court may not order an emergency removal or placement of the child without a finding that the removal or placement is necessary to prevent imminent physical damage or harm to the child.

Before taking a child into custody, a social worker shall consider whether the child may remain safely in his or her residence. The consideration of whether the child may remain safely at home shall include, but not be limited to, the following factors:

(1) Whether there are any reasonable services available to the worker which, if provided to the child's parent, guardian, caretaker, or to the child would eliminate the need to remove the child from the custody of his or her parent, guardian, Indian custodian, or other caretaker.

(2) Whether a referral to public assistance pursuant to Chapter 2 (commencing with Section 11200) of Part 3, Chapter 7 (commencing with Section 14000) of Part 3, Chapter 1 (commencing with Section 17000) of Part 5, and Chapter 10 (commencing with Section 18900) of Part 6, of Division 9 would eliminate the need to take temporary custody of the child. If those services are available, they shall be utilized.

(3) Whether a nonoffending caretaker can provide for and protect the child from abuse and neglect and whether the alleged perpetrator voluntarily agrees to withdraw from the residence, withdraws from the residence, and is likely to remain withdrawn from the residence.

(4) If it is known or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, the county social worker shall make active efforts to provide remedial services and rehabilitative programs designed to prevent the breakup of the Indian family prior to removal from the custody of a parent or parents or Indian custodian unless emergency removal is necessary to prevent imminent physical damage or harm to the Indian child.

(b) Agency Report Shall Contain

The social worker shall report to the court on the reasons why the child has been removed from the parent's, guardian's, or Indian custodian's, physical custody, the need, if any, for continued detention, the available services and the referral methods to those services that could facilitate the return of the child to the custody of the child's parents, guardians, or Indian custodian, and whether there are any relatives who are able and willing to take temporary physical custody of the child. If it is known or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, the report shall also include all of the following:

(1) A statement of the risk of imminent physical damage or harm to the Indian child and any evidence that the emergency removal or placement continues to be necessary to prevent the imminent physical damage or harm to the child.

(2) The steps taken to provide notice to the child's parents, custodians, and tribe about the hearing pursuant to this section.

(3) If the child's parents and Indian custodians are unknown, a detailed explanation of what efforts have been made to locate and contact them, including contact with the appropriate Bureau of Indian Affairs regional director.

(4) The residence and the domicile of the Indian child.

(5) If either the residence or the domicile of the Indian child is believed to be on a reservation or in an Alaska Native village, the name of the tribe affiliated with that reservation or village.

(6) The tribal affiliation of the child and of the parents or Indian custodians.
(7) A specific and detailed account of the circumstances that caused the Indian child to be taken into temporary custody.
(8) If the child is believed to reside or be domiciled on a reservation in which the tribe exercises exclusive jurisdiction over child custody matters, a statement of efforts that have been made and that are being made to contact the tribe and transfer the child to the tribe's jurisdiction.
(9) A statement of the efforts that have been taken to assist the parents or Indian custodians so the Indian child may safely be returned to their custody.

~~Whenever it is known or there is reason to know that the case involves an Indian child, the petition requesting emergency removal or continued emergency placement of the child or its accompanying documents must contain the following:~~

~~(1) A statement of the risk of imminent physical damage or harm to the child and any evidence that the emergency removal or placement continues to be necessary to prevent such imminent physical damage or harm to the child;~~
~~(2) The name, age, and last known address of the Indian child;~~
~~(3) The name and address of the child's parents and Indian custodians, if any;~~
~~(4) The steps taken to provide notice to the child's parents, custodians, and tribe about the emergency proceeding;~~
~~(5) If the child's parents and Indian custodians are unknown, a detailed explanation of what efforts have been made to locate and contact them;~~
~~(6) The residence and the domicile of the Indian child;~~
~~(7) If either the residence or the domicile of the Indian child is believed to be on a reservation or in an Alaska Native Village, the name of the tribe affiliated with that reservation or village;~~
~~(8) The tribal affiliation of the child and of the parents or Indian custodians;~~
~~(9) A specific and detailed account of the circumstances that led to the emergency removal of the child;~~
~~(10) If the child is believed to reside or be domiciled on a reservation where the tribe exercises exclusive jurisdiction over child custody matters, a statement of efforts that have been made and are being made to contact the tribe and transfer the child to the tribe's jurisdiction; and~~
~~(11) A statement of the efforts that have been taken to assist the parents or Indian custodian, so the Indian child may safely be returned to their custody.~~

(c~~b~~) Return of Indian child when emergency situation has ended

Whenever it is known or there is reason to know that the child is an Indian child and the child has been ordered detained pursuant to Section 319 of the Welfare and Institutions Code ~~there has been an emergency removal of the child from parental custody~~, any party may request an ex parte hearing prior to disposition to present evidence to the court that the emergency placement is no longer necessary to prevent imminent physical damage or harm to the child by ~~who asserts that there is new information indicating that the emergency situation has ended may request an ex parte hearing by~~ filing a Request for Ex Parte Hearing to Return Physical Custody of an Indian Child ~~request in~~ (form ICWA-070) to determine whether the emergency situation has ended;
If the request provides evidence ~~of new information~~ establishing that the emergency placement is no longer necessary, the court shall promptly schedule a hearing. At the hearing the court shall consider whether the child's removal and placement is still necessary to prevent imminent physical damage or harm to the child. If the court determines that the child's emergency removal or placement is no longer necessary to prevent imminent physical damage or harm to the child, the court shall order the child returned to the physical custody of the parent or parents o~~f~~r Indian custodian.

(d~~e~~) Time limitation on emergency proceedings

An emergency removal shall not continue for more than 30 days unless the court makes the following determinations:

(1) Restoring the child to the parent or Indian custodian would subject the child to imminent physical damage or harm;

(2) The court has been unable to transfer the proceeding to the jurisdiction of the appropriate Indian tribe; and

(3) It has not been possible to have a hearing that complies with the substantive requirements of the Indian Child Welfare Act for a foster care placement proceeding.

Rule 5.484~~5~~. Placement of an Indian child

(a) * * *

(b) Standards and preferences in placement of an Indian child

(1) Whenever it is known, or the court has reason to know that a child is an Indian child in a proceeding listed under rule 5.480, the child's placement shall be in compliance with the specified placement preference in Welfare and Institutions Code section 361.31, Family Code section 1777(a), and Probate Code section 1459(b) unless the court finds good cause to deviate from the placement preference by clear and convincing evidence. ~~Unless the court finds good cause to deviate from them the contrary, whenever it is known or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, all placements of Indian children in any proceeding listed in rules 5.480 and 5.484 must follow the specified placement preferences in Family Code section 177(a), Probate Code section 1459(b), and Welfare and Institutions Code section 361.31.~~

Commented [MJ7]: It is very important to put in the language of clear and convincing evidence standard as this was in dispute prior to the codification in the code

(2) The court must analyze the availability of placements within the placement preferences in descending order without skipping. The Indian child shall be in the least restrictive setting that most approximates a family situation and in which the child's special needs, if any, may be met.

(3) The court may deviate from the placement preference order only if the court finds by clear and convincing evidence there is good cause, which may include the following considerations:

(A) The requests of the parent or Indian custodian if they attest that they have reviewed the placement options, if any, that comply with the order of preference;

(B) The requests of the Indian child, when of sufficient age and capacity to understand the decision being made;

(C) The presence of a sibling attachment that can be maintained only through a particular placement;

(~~C~~D)The extraordinary physical or emotional needs of the Indian child including specialized treatment services that may be unavailable in the community where families who meet the placement preferences live ~~as established by a qualified expert witness~~; or

(~~D~~E) The unavailability of suitable families within the placement preferences based on a documented diligent effort to identify families meeting the preference criteria. The standard for determining whether a placement is unavailable shall conform to the prevailing social and cultural standards of the Indian community in which the Indian child's parent or extended family resides or with which the Indian child's parent or extended family members maintain social and cultural ties.

(4~~3~~) The placement preferences shall be analyzed and considered each time there is a change in the child's placement.

(5~~4~~) The burden of establishing good cause for the court to deviate from the preference order is on the party requesting that the placement preference order not be followed. A placement ~~may~~ shall not depart from the placement preferences based on the socioeconomic status of any placement relative to another. A placement shall not depart from the placement preferences solely on the basis of ordinary bonding or attachment that flowed from time spent in a nonpreferred placement that was made in violation of the Indian Child Welfare Act.

(6) If the court knows or has reason to know that the child is an Indian child and the court finds at the hearing held pursuant to section 319 of the Welfare and Institutions Code that there is good cause to deviate from the placement preferences set forth in Section 361.31 of the Welfare and Institutions Code, this finding does not affect the requirement that a diligent search be made for a subsequent placement within the placement preferences.

Commented [MJ8]: I think this is a very important part that was left out because it discusses their ongoing duty to find a compliant placement (WIC sec. 319(h)(1)(C).)

~~(45) (67)~~ (7)-(9)* * *

(c) Active efforts

In addition to any other required findings to place an Indian child with someone other than a parent or Indian custodian, or to terminate parental rights, the court must find that active efforts have been made, in any proceeding listed in rule 5.480, to provide remedial services and rehabilitative programs designed to prevent the breakup of the Indian family and must find that these efforts were unsuccessful.

These active efforts must include affirmative, active, thorough, and timely efforts intended primarily to maintain or reunite the child with his or her family, must be tailored to the facts and circumstances of the case, and must be consistent with the requirements of section 224.1(f) of the Welfare and Institutions Code.

(1) The active efforts must be documented in detail in the record.

(~~1~~2) The court must consider whether active efforts were made in a manner consistent with the prevailing social and cultural conditions and way of life of the Indian child's tribe. In considering if active efforts were taken the court shall consider if the agency utilized the available resources of the Indian child's extended family, tribe, tribal or other Indian social service agencies, and individual Indian caregiver service providers. Active efforts shall include the pursuit of any steps necessary to secure tribal membership for a child if the child is eligible for membership in a given tribe.

Commented [JM9]: I think it is important to have this language here so it ties in with the active efforts requirement.

(~~2~~3) ~~Efforts to provide services must include pursuit of any steps necessary to secure tribal membership for a child if the child is eligible for membership in a given tribe, as well as attempts to use the available resources of extended family members, the tribe, tribal and other Indian social service agencies, and individual Indian caregivers~~. The court shall not order a foster care placement or guardianship in a proceeding described in rule 5.480 absent a determination by clear and convincing evidence including the testimony of a qualified expert witness as defined by Section 224.6 of the Welfare and Institutions Code, that continued custody by the parent or Indian custodian is likely to result in serious emotional or physical damage to the child.

Commented [JM10]: This is a very important provision which was not part of the active efforts provision so I added

Rule 5.48~~5~~6. Termination of parental rights

(a) * * *

(b) When parental rights may not be terminated
The court may not terminate parental rights to an Indian child or declare a child free from the custody and control of one or both parents if the court finds a compelling reason for determining that termination of parental rights would not be in the child's best interest. Such a reason may include:

(1) The child is living with a relative who is unable or unwilling to adopt the child because of circumstances that do not include an unwillingness to accept legal or financial responsibility for the child, but who is willing and capable of providing the child with a stable and permanent environment through legal guardianship, and the removal of the child from the custody of his or her relative would be detrimental to the emotional well-being of the child. For purposes of an Indian child, "relative" shall include an "extended family member," as defined in the federal Indian Child Welfare Act of 1978 (25 U.S.C. § 1903(2));

(~~1~~2) Termination of parental rights would substantially interfere with the child's connection to his or her tribal community or the child's tribal membership rights; or

(~~2~~3) The child's tribe has identified guardianship, long-term foster care with a fit and willing relative, or another planned permanent living arrangement for the child.

(e) Grounds for grant of petition (§§ 388, 778)
(1)–(4) * * *

(5) For a petition filed under section 388(c)(1)(A), the court may terminate reunification services during the time periods described in section 388(c)(1) only if the court finds by a preponderance of evidence that reasonable services have been offered or provided, and, by clear and convincing evidence, that the change of circumstance or new evidence described in the petition satisfies a condition in section 361.5(b) or (e). In the case of an Indian child, the court may terminate reunification services only if the court finds by clear and convincing evidence that active efforts have been made to provide remedial services and rehabilitative programs designed to prevent the breakup of the Indian family within the meaning of sections 224.1(f) and 361.7 of the Welfare and Institutions Code and that these efforts have proved unsuccessful. The court may grant the petition after following the procedures in (f), (g), and (h).

(6) For a petition filed under section 388(c)(1)(B), the court may terminate reunification services during the time periods described in section 388(c)(1) only if the court finds by a preponderance of evidence that reasonable services have been offered or provided, and, by clear and convincing evidence, that action or inaction by the parent or guardian creates a substantial likelihood that reunification will not occur. Such action or inaction includes, but is not limited to, failure to visit the child or failure to participate regularly and make substantive progress in a court-ordered treatment program. In determining whether the parent or guardian has failed to visit the child or to participate regularly or make progress in a court-ordered treatment plan, the court must consider factors including, but not limited to, the parent or guardian's incarceration, institutionalization, or participation in a residential substance abuse treatment program. In the case of an Indian child, the court may terminate reunification services only if the court finds by clear and convincing evidence that active efforts have been made to provide remedial services and rehabilitative programs designed to prevent the breakup of the Indian family within the meaning of sections 224.1(f) and 361.7 of the Welfare and Institutions Code and that these efforts have proved unsuccessful. (h) Conduct of hearing (§388)

(B) If the request is for termination of court-ordered reunification services, the petitioner must show by clear and convincing evidence that one of the conditions in section 388(c)(1)(A) or (B) exists and must show by a preponderance of the evidence that reasonable services have been offered or provided. In the case involving an Indian child, the petitioner must show by clear and convincing evidence that active efforts have been made to provide remedial services and rehabilitative programs designed to prevent the breakup of the Indian family within the meaning of sections 224.1(f) and 361.7 of the Welfare and Institutions Code and that these efforts have proved unsuccessful.

(1) A statement of the risk of imminent physical damage or harm to the Indian child and any evidence that the emergency removal or placement continues to be necessary to prevent the imminent physical damage or harm to the child;

(2) The steps taken to provide notice to the child's parents, custodians, and tribe about the hearing pursuant to this section;

(3) If the child's parents and Indian custodians are unknown, a detailed explanation of what efforts have been made to locate and contact them, including contact with the appropriate Bureau of Indian Affairs regional director;

(4) The residence and the domicile of the Indian child;

(5) If either the residence or the domicile of the Indian child is believed to be on a reservation or in an Alaska Native Village, the name of the tribe affiliated with that reservation or village;

(6) The tribal affiliation of the child and of the parents or Indian custodians;

(7) A specific and detailed account of the circumstances that caused the Indian child to be taken into temporary custody;

(8) If the child is believed to reside or be domiciled on a reservation in which the tribe exercises exclusive jurisdiction over child custody matters, a statement of efforts that have been made and that are being made to contact the tribe and transfer the child to the tribe's jurisdiction; and

(9) A statement of the efforts that have been taken to assist the parents or Indian custodians so the Indian child may safely be returned to their custody.

Rule 5.678. Findings in support of detention; factors to consider; reasonable efforts; active efforts; detention alternatives

(a) Findings in support of detention (§ 319; 42 U.S.C. § 672)

The court must order the child released from custody unless the court makes the findings specified in section 319(~~b~~c), and where it is known, or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, the additional finding specified in section 319(d).

(b) * * *

(c) Findings of the court—reasonable or active efforts (§ 319; 42 U.S.C. § 672)

(1) * * *

(2) Where it is known or there is reason to know that the child is an Indian child, whether the child is released or detained at the hearing, the court must determine whether active efforts have been made to prevent or eliminate the need for removal, and that those active efforts are documented in detail in the record, and must make one of the following findings:

(A) Active efforts have been made; or

(B) Active efforts have not been made; and

(C) The court orders the department to initiate or continue services in accordance with Welfare and Institutions Code section 358.

(~~2~~3) The court must also determine whether services are available that would prevent the need for further detention.

(~~3~~4) The court must not order the child detained unless the court, after inquiry regarding available services, finds that there are no reasonable services. If ~~where~~ it is known or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, the court shall determine if the county agency made active efforts to provide remedial services and rehabilitation programs that would prevent or eliminate the need to detain the child or that would permit the child to return home.

(~~4~~5) If the court orders the child detained, the court must proceed under section 319(~~d~~g)–(~~e~~h).

(d) Orders of the court (§ 319; 42 U.S.C. § 672)

If the court orders the child detained, the court must order that temporary care and custody of the child be vested with the county welfare department pending disposition or further order of the court and must make the other findings and orders specified in section 319(~~e~~g) and (~~f~~h)(3).

(e) Detention alternatives (§ 319)

The court may order the child detained as specified in section 319(~~f~~h).

(f) Additional requirements regarding detention of an Indian child (§ 319)

(1) If it is known, or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, the child must be detained in a home that complies with the placement preferences in section 361.31 unless the court finds by clear and convincing evidence good cause exists not to follow the placement preferences pursuant to rule 5.485.

(2) If it is known, or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, the detention hearing may not be continued beyond 30 days unless the court finds all of the following:

(A) Restoring the child to the parent, parents, or Indian custodian would subject the child to imminent physical damage or harm;

(B) The court is unable to transfer the proceeding to the jurisdiction of the appropriate Indian tribe; and

(C) It is not possible to initiate an Indian child custody proceeding as defined in section 224.1.

(g) Hearing for return of custody of Indian child after emergency removal when emergency has ended

If it is known or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, a party may request a hearing under rule 5.484(b) for return of the child prior to disposition if the party asserts that there is new evidence that the emergency removal or placement is no longer necessary to prevent imminent physical damage or harm to the child.

Rule 5.690. General conduct of disposition hearing

(a) Social study (§§ 280, 358, 358.1, 360, 361.5, 16002(b))
The petitioner must prepare a social study of the child. The social study must include a discussion of all matters relevant to disposition and a recommendation for disposition.
(1) The petitioner must comply with the following when preparing the social study:
(A) * * *
(B) If petitioner recommends removal of the child from the home, the social study must include:
(i) A discussion of the reasonable efforts made to prevent or eliminate removal, or if it is known or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, the active efforts to provide remedial services and rehabilitative programs designed to prevent the breakup of the Indian family, and a recommended plan for reuniting the child with the family, including a plan for visitation;

(ii)–(iii) * * *

(C) The social study must include a discussion of the social worker's efforts to comply with § 309(e) and rule 5.637, including but not limited to:

(i)–(ii) * * *

(iii) The number and relationship of those relatives described by item (ii) who are interested in ongoing contact with the child; and

(iv) The number and relationship of those relatives described by item (ii) who are interested in providing placement for the child; and

(v) If it is known or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, efforts to locate extended family members as defined in section 224.1, and evidence that all individuals contacted have been provided with information about the option of obtaining approval for placement through the tribe's license or approval procedure.

(D)–(F) * * *

(2) * * *

(b)–(c) * * *

Rule 5.725. Selection of permanent plan (§§ 366.24, 366.26, 727.31)

(a)–(d) * * *

(e) Procedures—adoption

(1) * * *

(2) An order of the court terminating parental rights, ordering adoption under section 366.26 or, in the case of an Indian child, ordering tribal customary adoption under section 366.24, is conclusive and binding on the child, the parent, and all other persons who have been served under the provisions of section 294. Once a final order of adoption has issued, t~~T~~he order may not be set aside or modified by the court, except as provided in section 366.26(e)(3) and (i)(3) and rules 5.538, 5.540, and 5.542 with regard to orders by a referee.

Item SPR19-42 Response Form

Title: Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA): Implementation of AB 3176 for Indian Children

☐ Agree with proposed changes

☒ Agree with proposed changes if modified

☐ Do not agree with proposed changes

Comments:

1. Does the proposal appropriately address the stated purpose? Yes.

2. Are the questions about Indian status in the proposed revision to form ICWA-020 broad enough to ensure that Indian children are identified? The committee might wish to consider adding "federal trust land, rancheria, allotment" to items 3d and 3e, which inquire about residence or domicile on a reservation or in Alaska Native Village. (See form ICWA-030, p. 7.)

3. Do the proposed findings and orders set out in item 12c of form JV-405 and item 9 [Is "item 10" is intended?] of form JV-410 correctly reflect the distinction between "reason to believe" and "reason to know," and the obligations triggered by each level of information? Yes, but as noted below, on form JV-405, checkboxes are needed for the text in items 12c(2)(a) and 12c(2)(b) so that the court can indicate which statement applies.

4. Can the rights and protections under the Indian Child Welfare Act be waived through the use of forms JV-419 and JV-419(A)? Good question. Is it clear whether the tribe's authorized representative has the legal authority to waive the tribe's rights under ICWA? More generally speaking, are ICWA rights waiveable at all? These questions must be answered.

5. Should item 1e on form JV-100 and item 1b on form JV-110 be modified either to remove the question altogether, or to ask about gender rather than sex and add an instruction that gender can include nonbinary? It should ask about gender (because this is important information for the court) with a note that "nonbinary" can be entered.

6. Would the proposal provide cost savings? Unknown.

7. What would the implementation requirements be for courts? Informing bench officers, court staff, county agencies, probation departments, and attorneys of changes. Making changes as appropriate to information provided to the public on each court's website.

8. Would three months provide sufficient time for implementation? Unknown. This proposal contains a large number of revisions.

9. How well would this proposal work in courts of different sizes? Unknown.

Rule 5.480

Paragraph 1: Insert semicolon after "preadoptive placement."

Rule 5.481

Subd. (a)(1): Delete comma before "and there is no new information."

… unless the party is filing a subsequent petition~~,~~ and there is no new information.

Subd. (a)(2): Insert comma before "proceeding to declare a child free of the custody and control…"

Subd. (a)(4)(A): Replace "sections 1901 and 1903(2)" with "section 1903" because there are no definitions in section 1901; the definitions are in § 1903(2), (6), and (9). Change "224.2" to "224.3." Delete spaces in statutory citations.

… as defined in 25 United States Code section~~s 1901 and~~ 1903~~(2)~~, to gather the information listed in Welfare and Institutions Code section 224.~~2~~3(a)(5), Family Code section 180(b)(5), or Probate Code section 1460.2(b)(5)~~, which is required to complete the Notice of Child Custody Proceeding for Indian Child (form ICWA-030)~~;

Subd. (a)(4)(C): Change "any other person that" to "any other person who." Delete space in statutory citation, "224.2(e)(3).

Subd. (b)(1): Suggested change to match language in WIC § 224.2(d). Also, the court is not the only entity who might have "reason to know" triggering ICWA provisions (e.g., the social worker or probation officer can have reason to know as well.)

~~The court has~~ There is reason to know the child is an Indian child if:

Comment: Previous proposals to amend the California Rules of Court have deleted language that mirrors the applicable statutory text and replaced it with a reference to the statute. Consideration might be given to the following change to subd (b)(1) and the deletion of subparagraphs (A) through (F) –

~~The court has~~ There is reason to know the child is an Indian child if any of the circumstances listed in Welfare and Institutions Code section 224.2(d) exist:

Subd. (b)(3)(A): Delete "Notwithstanding this determination," as unnecessary.

Subd. (c)(1): Change "224.2" to "224.3" and make other suggested changes –

… "to the parent, ~~or~~ legal guardian, or ~~and~~ Indian custodian of an Indian child, and the Indian child's tribe, in the manner specified in Welfare and Institutions Code section 224.~~2~~3, Family ~~Law~~ Code section 180, and Probate Code section 1460.2

Subds. (c)(2)-(3): Change citations ==

(2) If it is known or there is reason to know that an Indian child is involved in a wardship proceeding under Welfare and Institutions Code sections 601 and 602 et seq., the probation officer must send Notice of Child Custody Proceeding for Indian Child (form ICWA-030) to the parent or legal guardian, Indian custodian, if any, and the child's tribe, in accordance with Welfare and Institutions Code section ~~727.4(a)(2)~~ 224.3 in any case described by rule 5.480(2)(A)-(C).

(3) The circumstances that may provide reason to know the child is an Indian child include the circumstances specified in ~~(a)(5)~~(b).

Rule 5.482

Subd. (a): Delete "(1)" (because (a)(2) and (3) are being deleted) and delete ", except as stated in sections (a)(2) and (3)" because those sections are being deleted).

~~(1)~~ If it is known or there is reason to know that a child is an Indian child, the court hearing that may result in a foster care placement, termination of parental rights, preadoptive placement, or adoptive placement must not proceed until at least 10 days after the parent, Indian custodian, the tribe, or the Bureau of Indian Affairs have received notice~~, except as stated in sections (a)(2) and (3)~~.

Subd. (d): Reletter as "(c)" because previous (c) was deleted. Change "their" to "its" in second sentence.

~~(d)~~(c) Intervention

The Indian child's tribe and Indian custodian may intervene, orally or in writing, at any point in the proceedings. The tribe may, but is not required to, file with the court the … (form ICWA-040) to give notice of ~~their~~ its intent to intervene.

Subd. (f): Change "5.484" to "5.485" because that rule is being renumbered.

Rule 5.483

Subd. (d)(2): Comment: Previous proposals to amend the California Rules of Court have deleted language that mirrors the applicable statutory text and replaced it with a reference to the statute. Consideration might be given to the following change to subd (b)(1) and the deletion of subparagraphs (A) through (E) –

In assessing whether good cause to deny the transfer exists, the court must not consider any of the factors listed in Welfare and Institutions Code section 305.5(e)(2).

Comment: If paragraphs (A)-(E) remain in subd. (d)(2), wouldn't it make more sense to match the order of the factors as they are listed in WIC § 305.5(e)(2)? That is, change (A) to (B), (B) to (C), (C) to (D), (D) to (E), and (E) to (A).

Subd. (d)(2)(A): Suggest changing "foster care or termination-of-parental-rights proceeding" to "child custody proceeding" for two reasons:

[1] to match statutory text (see WIC § 305.5(e)(2)(B), and
[2] to ensure that this rule also applies to preadoptive placements and adoptive placements (see WIC § 224.1(d)(1).)

Whether the ~~foster care or termination of parental rights~~ child custody proceeding is at an advanced stage if the Indian child's parent, Indian custodian, or tribe did not receive notice of the child custody proceeding until an advanced stage;

Subd. (d)(2)(D): If the suggestion above regarding (d)(2) is not adopted, insert "Whether" to match statutory text. (See WIC § 305.5(e)(2)(E).)

~~Whether T~~the Indian child's cultural connections with the tribe or its reservation; or

Advisory Committee Comment: Due to the relettering of subds. (f) through (i), the first and third paragraphs need to be changed as follows:

Once a transfer to tribal court is finalized as provided in rule 5.483(~~i~~h), the appellate court lacks jurisdiction to order the case returned to state court (In re M.M. (2007) 154 Cal.App.4th 897).

Subsection (~~h~~g) and this advisory committee comment are added to help ensure that an objecting party does not inadvertently lose the right to appeal a transfer order.

Rule 5.484

Subd. (b): Insert name of form and change semicolon to period. Change "of" to "or."

Whenever it is known or there is reason to know that the child is an Indian child and there has been an emergency removal of the child from parental custody, any party who asserts that there is new information indicating that the emergency situation has ended may request an ex parte hearing by filing a request ~~in~~ on Request for Ex Parte Hearing to Return Physical Custody of an Indian Child (form ICWA-070) to determine whether the emergency situation has ended~~;~~.

… the court shall order the child returned to the physical custody of the parent or parents ~~of~~ or Indian custodian.

Rule 5.485

Subd. (b)(2)(D): Insert “mental” and comma after “child” to match WIC § 361.31(j)(4).

The extraordinary physical, mental, or emotional needs of the Indian child, including specialized treatment services that may be unavailable in the community …

Subd. (b)(2)(E): Suggested changes to match WIC § 361.31(j)(5) –

The unavailability of a suitable ~~families~~ placement ~~within the placement preferences based on a documented~~ after a determination by the court that a diligent ~~effort to identify families meeting the preference criteria~~ search was conducted. The standard for determining …

Subd. (b)(7): Suggested change –

(~~6~~7) When no preferred placement is available, active efforts must be made and documented to place the child with a family committed to enabling the child to have visitation with "extended family members," as defined in ~~rule 5.481(a)(4)(A)~~ 25 United States Code section 1903(2), and participation in the cultural and ceremonial events of the child's tribe

Subd. (c): Suggested change –

In addition to any other ~~required~~ findings required to place an Indian child with someone other than a parent or Indian custodian, or to terminate parental rights,

Rule 5.486

No comment.

Rule 5.487

Subd. (a): Suggested changes for consistency with CRC 5.480.

Any Indian child who is the subject of any action for foster-care placement, guardianship or conservatorship placement, custody placement under Family Code 3041; declaration freeing a child from the custody and control of one or both parents, ~~or~~ termination of parental rights, preadoptive placement, or adoptive placement; any parent or Indian custodian from whose custody such child was removed; and the Indian child's tribe may petition the court to invalidate the action on a showing that the action violated the Indian Child Welfare Act.

Subd. (b): Suggested change –

If the Indian child is a dependent child or ward of the juvenile court or the subject of a pending petition, the juvenile court is a court of competent jurisdiction with the authority to hear the request to invalidate the ~~foster placement or termination of parental rights~~ child custody proceeding.

Subd. (c)(2): Delete “s” from “sections.”

… where the court may consider all placement options as stated in Welfare and Institutions Code section~~s~~ 361.31(b), (c), (d), and (h).

Rule 5.570

Subd. (h)(1)(B): Change for consistency with proposed changes to subd. (e)(5) & (6).

If the request is for termination of court-ordered reunification services, the petitioner must show by clear and convincing evidence that one of the conditions in section 388(c)(1)(A) or (B) exists and must show by a preponderance of the evidence that reasonable services have been offered or provided or, in the case of an Indian child, clear and convincing evidence that active efforts have been made to provide remedial services and rehabilitative programs designed to prevent the breakup of the Indian family within the meaning of sections 224.1(f) and 361.7 of the Welfare and Institutions Code and that these efforts have proved unsuccessful.

Rule 5.668

Subd. (c)(1)(D): Change "possess" to "possesses" to correct grammar.

Subd. (c)(3): Delete first two commas and insert "the."

If it is known~~,~~ or there is reason~~,~~ to know that the case involves an Indian child, the court shall proceed in accordance with rules 5.481 et seq.

Suggest adding subd. (c)(4):

If there is reason to believe that the case involves an Indian child, the court shall proceed in accordance with Welfare and Institutions Code section 224.2(e).

Subd. (d): Query – Should "Indian custodian" be added? (Note: WIC § 16010(f) uses "parent" only.)

The court must order each parent, ~~and~~ guardian, and Indian custodian present either to complete Your Child's Health and Education (form JV-225) or to provide the information necessary …

Rule 5.674

Subds. (c)-(e): Query – Should "Indian custodian" be added wherever "parent or guardian" appears? E.g., "If the court orders the child detained at the detention hearing and no parent, ~~or~~ guardian, or Indian custodian is present and no parent, ~~or~~ guardian, or Indian custodian has received actual notice of the detention hearing, …" (See amendments to WIC § 319 made by AB 3176.)

Rule 5.676

Subd. (a)(2): Add "or Indian custodian."

Continuance in the home of the parent, ~~or~~ guardian, or Indian custodian is contrary to the child's welfare; and Subd. (b): Delete first comma. Suggest breaking text into two sentences.

If it is known~~,~~ or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, the child may not be ordered detained unless the court also finds that detention is necessary to prevent imminent physical damage or harm to the child.~~, and t~~The court must state~~s~~ the facts supporting this finding on the record.

Subd. (c)(1): Add ", guardian's, or Indian custodian's."

A statement of the reasons the child was removed from the parent's, guardian's, or Indian custodian's custody;

Subd. (c)(5): Add ", guardian, or Indian custodian." Query: Should "extended family member" (see WIC § 319(h)(1)(A)(i)) be added?

If continued detention is recommended, information about any parent, ~~or~~ guardian, or Indian custodian of the child with whom the child was not residing at the time the child was taken into custody and about any relative or nonrelative extended family member as defined under section 362.7 or, if the child is an Indian child, extended family member as defined under section 224.1 with whom the child may be detained.

Subd. (d)(3): Suggest inserting "the whereabouts of" –

If the whereabouts of the child's parents and Indian custodians are unknown, a detailed explanation of what efforts have been made to locate and contact them, …

Rule 5.678

Subd. (a): Move second comma as indicated.

The court must order the child released from custody unless the court makes the findings specified in section 319(c), and, where it is known~~,~~ or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, the additional finding specified in section 319(d).

Subd. (b): Query – Should this be deleted (and the subsequent subdivisions be relettered)? There are no longer any factors to be considered in § 319(d).

Subd. (c): Query – Should a citation to 25 U.S.C. § 1912(d) be added to the subtitle?

Subd. (c)(2): Change for consistency with § 319(f)(2).

Where it is known or there is reason to know that the child is an Indian child, whether the child is released or detained at the hearing, the court must determine whether active efforts have been made to ~~prevent or eliminate the need for removal~~ provide remedial services and rehabilitation programs designed to prevent the breakup of the Indian family, and that those active efforts are documented in detail in the record, and must make one of the following findings:

Subd. (c)(4): Change for consistency with § 319(f)(2).

The court must not order the child detained unless the court, after inquiry regarding available services, finds that there are no reasonable services~~, or where it is known or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, active efforts~~ that would prevent or eliminate the need to detain the child or that would permit the child to return home, or where it is known or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, no active efforts that would provide remedial services and rehabilitation programs designed to prevent the breakup of the Indian family.

Subd. (c)(5): Suggest changing "(h)" to "(j)." Subd. (i) pertains specifically to emergency removals under ICWA. Subd. (j) authorizes orders regarding temporary educational or developmental services decisionmaking.

If the court orders the child detained, the court must proceed under section 319 (g)-(~~h~~j).

Subd. (f)(1) & (2): Delete first comma. (See, e.g., WIC § 319(e)(2), (h)(1)(C); CRC 5.678(g).)

If it is known~~,~~ or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, …

Subd. (g): Add citation to WIC § 319.4 to title.

After taking the steps listed above to find out whether the child is an Indian child, if you have reason to believe that the child is an Indian child, you must contact the tribe or tribes that may have a connection with the child about your court case. (You have reason to believe the child is an Indian child if any of the people you question answers yes to any of your questions.) Tribes that learn of the case can investigate and advise you and the court whether the child is a tribal member or eligible to become a tribal member, and can then decide whether to get involved in the case or assume tribal jurisdiction. ~~You have reason to believe the child is an Indian child, if any of the people you ask these questions to answers yes to any of your questions.~~

Proposed Amendment to rule 5.480 Application

This is a minor technical amendment intended to reflect the four distinct proceedings set out in the federal and state laws to which the ICWA requirements apply. As currently drafted, the rule does not include "preadoptive placements" that are specifically discussed in ICWA.

Comments declined to follow:

- Remove the word conservatorship from this rule and throughout the rules because conservatorships apply to adults: Decline to follow because conservatorships also apply to formerly married persons under the age of 18 and are therefore governed by ICWA per the probate code;
- Add subsection stating that information of native American ancestry does not in and of itself provide reason to know, there must be information related to membership in a federally recognized tribe: Decline to follow because it is not appropriate to single one factor and create an evidentiary standard for it in the rules. Currently the rules conform to the factors discussed in the regulations and statute;
- Include language requiring ICWA notice for every hearing: Decline to follow because not consistent with the regulations or statute that require ICWA notice only for specified hearings, but do clarify that tribes, parents, Indian custodian entitled to notice of all other hearings in same manner as other parties;
- Change the word seeking to requesting: Decline as unnecessary;
- Revise the language in (a) concerning the nature of the duty of inquiry: Decline as unnecessary; and
- Revise the language of (2)(C) to require that the court order all relatives present in court to complete the ICWA-020 Parental Notification of Indian Status form: Decline to follow this recommendation. Consistent with the statute, the court is required to ask relatives present in court if they know of have reason to know the child is an Indian child. Ordering non-parties to complete the ICWA-020 is burdensome and leads to problems of possible contempt, etc. for non-compliance.

Proposed Amendment to rule 5.481 Inquiry and Notice

The proposed amendments implement changes to ICWA inquiry and notice requirements made by the federal ICWA regulations and AB 3176 amendments to Welfare and Institutions Code section 224.2. The proposed amendments:

- Add in paragraph (1) extended family members and others who have an interest in the child, including a party reporting child abuse or neglect, to those who must be asked whether the child may be an Indian child[1];

[1] Welf. & Inst. Code, § 224.2(b), as amended by AB 3176.

- Add to paragraph (2) a question about whether the residence or domicile of the child, parents, or Indian custodian is on a reservation or Alaska Native Village;[2]
- Clarify that at the first appearance all participants to a case must be asked whether they know or have reason to know the child is an Indian child, and the court must instruct them to inform the court if they subsequently receive information that provides reason to know;
- Set out the obligation to conduct further inquiry when there is "reason to believe" the child is an Indian child; [3]
- Amend what gives the court "reason to know" the child is an Indian child;[4]
- Set out the evidence that must be provided concerning efforts to work with the child's tribe(s) to determine the child's status when the petitioner had reason to know the child is an Indian child;
- Authorize the court to find that the child is not an Indian child if—based on the evidence of the efforts to work with the child's tribe(s)—the court is able to conclude that there is no "reason to know" the child is an Indian child;[5] and
- Clarify that notice by registered or certified mail (return receipt requested) is only required for specified hearings that may result in the foster care placement, termination of parental rights, preadoptive placement, or adoptive placement of the child when it is known or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child.[6]

Revisions based on comments:

- Add to the end of rule 5.481(a)(2) language clarifying that inquiry must take place at each hearing that may culminate in an order for foster care placement, termination of parental rights, preadoptive placement or adoptive placement rather than just at the initial hearing in the case, as recommended by the California Tribal Families Coalition consistent with the ongoing duty of inquiry as set out in the federal ICWA regulations and WIC 224.1(d);
- Update and correct the statutory references in 5.481(a)(4)(A) as recommended by the Superior Court of San Diego;
- Revise 5.481(a)(4)(C) to add the requirement to share information with tribes as part of further inquiry and due diligence, provide new information to the tribes as it is obtained, and to provide the court with evidence of these efforts on an ongoing basis. These

[2] Id.

[3] Note that AB 3176 creates two different levels of knowledge about Indian status, with different obligations attaching to each of them. Section 224.2(e) of the Welf. & Inst. Code states that if there is "reason to believe" that an Indian child is involved, there is a duty of "further inquiry." The specific steps of further inquiry include interviewing parents and extended family members and contacting the Bureau of Indians Affairs and potential tribes or others to gather information. Further inquiry must include sharing with tribes information identified by the tribe as necessary for the tribe to make a membership or eligibility determination. The level of information that provides "reason to believe" is not defined in the statute. "Reason to know" is defined at § 224.2(d) and essentially tracks the language in 25 C.F.R. § 23.107(c). Only when there is "reason to know" as set out in § 224.2(d) is formal ICWA notice required under § 224.2(f).

4 Welf. & Inst. Code, § 224.2(d), as amended by AB 3176.

5 Welf. & Inst. Code, § 224.2(i)(2).

6 Section 224.3(a) states that formal ICWA notice need be only for these specified hearings, rather than for every hearing, when it is known or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child.

changes reflect the ongoing nature of the duty of inquiry and the requirements of WIC 224.2(e)(3) and (j) to share information with tribes;

- Revise rule 5.481(b)(3) to provide additional alternative findings options to the court upon review of the evidence of further diligence and further inquiry. As revised it separates out a finding that the court "knows" the child is an Indian child from a finding that the court "has reason to know" the child is an Indian child;
- Add to rule 5.481(b) a subdivision (4) to clarify that a tribe's determination on membership is conclusive, and to clarify that lack of enrollment does not mean the child is not a member or eligible for membership unless the tribe confirms that enrollment is required for membership;
- Revise rule 5.481(c)(1) regarding notice to add the word "initial" with respect to the hearings for which formal ICWA notice must be provided and add language at the end consistent with WIC 224.2(g) clarifying that a tribe, Indian custodian and parents are entitled to the same notice as all other parties for hearings that do not require ICWA notice by registered mail, return receipt requested and for continued hearings. The word initial and the reference to continued hearings is added in response to the recommendation from the Sacramento County Counsel's Office that once ICWA notice of a hearing has been provided, if that hearing is continued, notice of the continued hearing date does not need to be by registered mail return receipt requested should not be required. As discussed in the comment chart this situation is similar to the law concerning a parent's right to notice of a continued hearing under Welf. & Inst. Code §366.26 and the specific noticing requirements set out in section 366.23 concerning this hearing, the more stringent noticing requirements apply only to the initial hearing. If the stringent noticing requirements were complied with for the initial hearing and the party is present in court when the hearing is continued that satisfies the parties right to notice of the continued hearing. (In re Malcolm D., (1996) 42 Cal. App.4th 904 at p.913) If the party does not participate in the original hearing they are entitled to receive notice of the continued date that is reasonably calculated under all the circumstances to apprise them of the hearing and afford them an opportunity to present any objections (Id. At pp. 258-259). Such notice does not need to be by certified mail, return receipt requested; and
- Add an advisory committee comment referencing the provisions of the federal regulations that specify how to contact tribes and WIC 224.2(e) that sets out the minimum requirements of tribal contacts as part of the obligations of further inquiry and due diligence. One comment recommended adding detailed language from the federal regulations into the rule itself. Staff propose this advisory comment in lieu of repeating the lengthy language from the regulations and statute in the rule.

Comments that were not followed:

- Capitalize the word "tribe" throughout the rules: Decline to follow because just like state or city, rules of grammar dictate that the word tribe be capitalized when it is part of a proper name (ie. State of California, Cherokee Tribe of Oklahoma), but not when being used in a general manner;
- Add subsection stating that information of native American ancestry does not in and of itself provide reason to know, there must be information related to membership in a federally recognized tribe: Decline to follow because it is not appropriate to single out one factor and create an evidentiary standard for it in the rules. Currently the rules conform to the factors discussed in the regulations and statute;

- Include language requiring ICWA notice for every hearing: Decline to follow because not consistent with the regulations or statute that require ICWA notice only for specified hearings, but do clarify that tribes, parents, Indian custodian entitled to notice of all other hearings in same manner as other parties;
- Revise the language of (2)(C) to require that the court order all relatives present in court to complete the ICWA-020 Parental Notification of Indian Status form: Decline to follow this recommendation. Consistent with the statute, the court is required to ask relatives present in court if they know of have reason to know the child is an Indian child. Ordering non-parties to complete the ICWA-020 is burdensome and leads to problems of possible contempt, etc. for non-compliance;
- Add to 5.481(a)(4)(C) a requirement that if notice has previously been sent and new information is obtained, that new information must be provided on an ICWA-030 form and all tribes re-noticed: do not require re-noticing on the ICWA-030 form, but do include a requirement that all new information be expeditiously provided to the tribes; and
- Revise the language of 5.481(b)(3)(A): decline because section is already clear enough and proposed language is very lengthy.

Proposed Amendment to rule 5.482 Proceedings after Notice

To implement the amendments to provisions governing ICWA notice in AB 3176 at section 7 (Welf. & Inst. Code, § 224.3):

- Clarify that formal ICWA notice, including the requirement to wait 10 days until after receipt of such notice, is only required for hearings, other than "emergency proceedings" that could result in an order for the foster care placement, termination of parental rights, preadoptive placement, or adoptive placement of the child;[7]
- Remove reference to the detention hearing in a dependency case, as this is now dealt with under rule 5.668; and
- Remove subdivision (c) authorizing a finding that the child is not an Indian child if proper notice has been given and no determinative response is received within 60 days, as the code provision that authorized this finding has been repealed by AB 3176.

Revisions based on comments:

- Revise rule 5.482(a) governing the proceedings after ICWA notice has been provided by reinstating the exceptions contained in 5.482(a)(2) and (3), to the general rule that no hearing can take place until 10 days after notice has been received. These had been removed on the assumption that they were no longer necessary due to the unique requirements for detention hearings now set out in WIC 309. Several comments pointed out that these exceptions may still be relevant;

7 See amended § 224.3(a) and (d).

- Revise rule 5.482(b) regarding proof of ICWA notice to clarify that the exceptions contained in subsection (a)(2) and (3) also apply to the requirement to file proof of notice in advance of the hearing;
- Revise rule 5.482(c) to reflect the authority to find ICWA does not apply found in WIC 224.2(i)(2) rather than deleting the subsection. The proposal had deleting subsection (c) because it implemented the 60-day provision in former WIC 224.2(e)(3) which has now been deleted. However, as a commenter pointed out, WIC 224.2(i)(2) provides a new basis for the court to make a finding that ICWA does not apply and that authority should be reflected in the rule; and
- Revise rule 5.482(d) to clarify that a tribe and Indian custodian's right to intervene is not discretionary.

Comments that were not followed:

- Revise subsection (f) to add specific examples of active efforts set out in the federal regulations: decline to follow because this subsection relates to placement, not active efforts.

Proposed Amendment to rule 5.483 Dismissal and transfer of case

The proposed amendments, which are required by the federal regulations and complementary changes in AB 3176 found in the amended section 305.5 of the Welfare and Institutions Code:

- Clarify that where a tribe has exclusive jurisdiction, the state court proceedings must be dismissed, rather than being transferred to the tribal court, subject only to the terms of any agreement that may have been reached between the state and the tribe under section 1919 of ICWA;
- Clarify the court's duty to notify the tribe and tribal court of its intention to dismiss a case due to the tribe's exclusive jurisdiction; and
- Amend what constitutes good cause to deny a request to transfer a case to tribal court when there is concurrent jurisdiction.

Revisions based on comments:

- Revise subdivision 5.483(a)(1) to clarify that the requirements regarding cases that may be under exclusive jurisdiction of a tribal court are of an ongoing nature and must be followed when information is received "at any stage of the proceeding" suggesting the child may be under the exclusive jurisdiction of a tribe;
- Revise subdivision 5.483(a)(3) to add clarifying language with respect to the exception to the dismission requirement for emergency situations. The added language is consistent with WIC 305.5(c);
- Revise subdivision 5.483(d) to add the requirement that the court ensure that the tribal court is promptly notified when a petition is received requesting a transfer to that tribal court, and authorizing the state court to request a timely response from the tribal court about whether it would accept or decline the transfer;
- Revise rule 5.483(d)(2)'s list of factors that can and cannot be considered as part of the assessment of whether there is good cause not to transfer a case to tribal court to more closely follow the precise language of the regulations and statute.

Comments there were not followed:

- Revise 5.483(a) to clarify whether ward refers to any tribal court custody order or only custody orders related to protective reasons: Decline to follow because it is not appropriate to establish a legal standard by rule of court that is not set out in the statute; and
- Revise (d)(1)(B) to add refence to the tribe not having a tribal court as a reason to decline to transfer: Decline to follow because this language was removed by 25 CFR 23.117 and WIC 305.5(e). Current rule language tracks federal regulation and California statute.

Proposed Adoption of rule 5.484 Emergency proceedings involving an Indian child

The new federal regulations, as set forth in 25 Code of Federal Regulations part 23.113 and implemented in AB 3176,[8] necessitate adoption of a new rule that will replace rule 5.484 and require that current rules 5.484 through 5.487 be renumbered. The proposed new rule addresses the specific requirements related to emergency proceedings and emergency removals of an Indian child set out in the new federal regulations at 25 Code of Federal Regulations part 23.113 and implemented in AB 3176 through various amendments to the Welfare and Institutions Code. Because the requirements of 25 Code of Federal Regulations part 23.113 apply generally to all cases governed by ICWA, the proposal is to add this to the ICWA rules, in addition to making specific changes (see below) to the juvenile rules governing detentions.

The proposed rule 5.484 addresses the requirements of the federal regulations and AB 3176, including:

- Clarifying the standards and required court findings for detention of a child when it is known or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child;
- Clarifying the specific evidence that must be presented to the court to support a removal or detention when it is known or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child;
- Establishing a process for requesting a hearing to seek return of the child when there is new information indicating that the emergency situation that justified initial removal has ended; and
- Addressing the limitations on how long an emergency proceeding can last.

Revisions based on comments:

- The name of the form to request the ex parte hearing was added to subdivision 5.484(b)(1);
- One commenter requested further clarity on the procedures governing the ex parte application created by this rule and specifically whether notice must be given. Subdivision 5.484(b)(3) was added in response to this comment referring to the procedures set out in the division 3 civil rules governing ex parte procedures. Per rule 3.10 those standards including notice provisions apply to juvenile cases.

[8] See amended Welf. & Inst. Code, § 224.1(l) defining "emergency proceeding" to include an initial hearing under § 319 as well as amended § 306(c), including temporary custody by an agency as an "emergency removal," and the requirements contained in amended § 319(b)–(e).

Comments that were not:

- Revise and restructure this rule to more closely follow the language contained in the statute (see comments of Children's Law Center in appendix): decline to follow this recommendation because it unnecessarily duplicates statutory language regarding social worker duties in the rule of court. The proposed rule of court reflects the requirements of WIC 319 regarding the court duties and requirements. Further, this rule (and other ICWA rules) apply to family and probate proceedings governed by ICWA and therefore do not reference all of the requirements of the WIC.

Proposed Amendment and renumbering of former rule 5.484 to rule 5.485 Placement of an Indian child

In addition to renumbering, the following changes must be made for conformity with the updated federal guidelines:

- Amendments to how the court must analyze whether there has been compliance with the placement preferences and whether there is good cause, as defined in 25 Code of Federal Regulations parts 23.130–23.132, to deviate from those preferences; and
- Amendments to the requirements and analysis of "active efforts" to reflect the definition of active efforts contained in 25 Code of Federal Regulations part 23.2 and the requirements of documenting active efforts set out in 25 Code of Federal Regulations part 23.120.

Revisions based on comments:

- Revise rule 5.485(b) to add the language specifying that all placements must be in the least restricting setting that most approximates a family situation and in which the child's special needs if any may be met, and the "clear and convincing" standard of evidence for a finding that there is good cause to deviate from the placement preferences; and
- Add to rule 5.485(b)(4) language that a finding that there is good cause to deviate from the placement preferences does not affect the requirement for a diligence search for a subsequent placement within the placement preferences.

Proposed Amendment and renumbering of former rule 5.485 to rule 5.486 Termination of parental rights

In addition to renumbering, the proposed amendment to former rule 5.485 addresses comments from the California Department of Social Services and other practitioners suggesting that the existing rule was not consistent with ICWA and state law. The proposed amendments include:

- The requirement that evidence must show not only that active efforts were made but also that those active efforts were unsuccessful before parental rights can be terminated, consistent with the requirements of ICWA and state law; and

- Recognition of additional circumstances set out in state law that may constitute a compelling reason to determine that termination of parental rights is not in an Indian child's best interest.

Comments that were not followed:

- Add "removal" to the title and add various evidentiary standards to subsection (a) concerning placement of an Indian child – Decline to follow because this rule does not apply to removals and standards for placement are dealt with in rule 5.485 (formerly 5.484)

Proposed Renumbering of former rule 5.486 to rule 5.487 and former rule 5.487 to rule 5.488

The proposal would only renumber these rules and not make any substantive amendments.

Revisions to rule 5.487 based on comments:

- Revise subdivision (a) of the rule to include all of the categories of case type that may constitute an "Indian child custody proceeding" under California law.

Proposed Amendment to rule 5.570 Request to change court order (petition for modification)

After the most recent amendment to rule 5.570 in spring 2009, a commenter noted that the rule, as amended, was not consistent with the requirements of ICWA and California law, by failing to draw a distinction between the requirements for reasonable efforts generally and active efforts when the case involves an Indian child. The commenter was correct. However, the change was not made at the time because it was a substantive change that required the rule to circulate for comment.

Revisions based on comments:

- Revise subdivision (h)(1)(B) regarding a request to terminate reunification services to specify that where the case involves an Indian child the court must find by clear and convincing evidence that active efforts have been provided and have proved unsuccessful before reunification services may be terminated.

Proposed Amendment to rule 5.668 Commencement of [initial] hearing – explanation of proceedings

The federal regulations and AB 3176 at amended section 224.2 of the Welfare and Institutions Code require certain specific steps to be taken to determine a child's Indian status at the commencement of each "proceeding." Rule 5.668 governs the commencement of the initial hearing, and the explanation of the proceedings. It includes requirements concerning inquiry about parentage. The proposal would add to the rule the specific requirements on ICWA inquiry language that sets forth what is required at an initial hearing on a juvenile petition.

Revisions due to comments:

- Revise proposed subsection (c) concerning ICWA inquiry by adding the language "At the first appearance in court of each party" at the beginning of subsection (c)(1);
- Further revise subsection (c) to clarify the distinct requirements when there is "reason to believe" the case involves an Indian child as opposed to "reason to know" by creating a new 5.668(c)(3) and additional language to 5.668(c)(4).

Proposed Amendment to rule 5.674 Conduct of hearing; admission, no contest, submission

This rule governs the conduct of the detention hearing and includes the findings and orders that must be made on the record. Welfare and Institutions Code section 309(a)(3), as amended by AB 3176, requires a modified detention finding on the record when the child is, or there is reason to know the child is, an Indian child. To implement this amendment to section 309(a)(3), it is proposed the rule be amended to require the court to find that detention is necessary to prevent imminent physical damage or harm to the child, and there are no reasonable means by which the child can be protected without detention. This reflects the new requirements enacted by the new federal ICWA regulations and AB 3176.

Revisions based on comments:

- Revise subsections (c), (d) and (e) to add Indian custodian and Indian child's tribe to the parties who may assert the rights specified.

Proposed Amendment to rule 5.676 Requirements for detention

Rule 5.676 governs the requirements for the court to order a child detained. The proposed amendment adds to the requirements for detention when it is known, or there is reason to know, the child is an Indian child. These requirements are set out in Welfare and Institutions Code sections 309 and 319, as amended by AB 3176.

Revisions based on comments:

- Add Indian custodian to subsection 5.676(a)(2);
- Revise subsection 5.676(b) to add the requirement that the court must state on the record the facts supporting a finding that detention of an Indian child is necessary to prevent imminent physical damage or harm to the child.

Comments not followed:

- Revise (d)(8) by adding that the child is believed to be a ward of a tribal court in addition to resides or domiciled on a reservation where the tribe exercises exclusive jurisdiction: Decline to follow because it does not align with the language of WIC 319(b)(8) or the regulations.

Proposed Amendment to rule 5.678 Findings in support of detention; factors to consider; reasonable efforts; active efforts; detention alternatives

Rule 5.678 governs the findings that must be made to support a detention order, the factors the court must consider, whether the agency has made appropriate efforts, and any alternatives to detention that should be considered. To comply with the requirements of AB 3176, the following amendments are proposed:

- Include the additional findings now required by Welfare and Institutions Code section 319(c)(2) and (d) to support detention if the child is, or there is reason to know that the child is, an Indian child;
- Include the requirements for active efforts findings to support detention when it is known or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, consistent with Welfare and Institutions Code sections 306(e)(4), 319(f)(2), and 361.7;
- Include reference to the placement preferences that must be followed when an Indian child is removed, even on an emergency basis, consistent with amended section 319(h)(C) of the Welfare and Institutions Code;
- Include reference to the time limitations that apply to a removal when it is known or there is reason to know the child is an Indian child, consistent with Welfare and Institutions Code section 319; and
- Include a provision for a hearing to return custody of the child if the emergency that supported initial removal has ended, as required by Welfare and Institutions Code section 319.4.

Revisions based on comments:

- Revise subsection 5.678(c)(2) and (4) to augment the language of active efforts "…to provide remedial services and rehabilitative programs designed to prevent the breakup of the Indian family…" and to require under 5.678(c)(2) an assessment of whether those efforts have been successful;
- Revise subsection 5.678(c)(5) reference the additional requirements when the case involves and Indian child; and
- Revise subsection 5.678(f) to reference the clear and convincing standard of evidence required to deviate from the placement preferences and to reference the requirements of rule 5.485.

Comments not followed:

- Delete subsection (f) concerning time limitation because a detention hearing can never be continued for more than 30 days and an Indian child custody proceeding is started by the filing of a petition which can always be done within 30 days: decline to follow because WIC 319(e)(2) specifies what is required to continue a detention hearing beyond 30 days. The rule is consistent with the statutory language. Not clear that filing a petition is sufficient to "initiate an Indian child custody proceeding…" WIC 224.1(l) defines an emergency proceeding as the initial petition hearing held pursuant to section 319. Under the Guidelines issued by the BIA the initiation of a child custody proceeding requires a proceeding "…to which the full set of ICWA protections would apply." (see page 25) In California this is generally not until the dispositional hearing at which a QEW would testify.

Proposed Amendment to rule 5.690 General Conduct of a Dispositional Hearing

This rule governs the general conduct of a disposition hearing. The proposed amendments respond to changes in Welfare and Institutions Code section 309 and 352 resulting from AB 3176: specifically, the provision mandating evidence that efforts have been made to locate extended family as that term is specifically defined for an Indian child under Welfare and Institutions Code section 224.1; and to locate placements through the tribe as discussed in amended section 309(e)(1) and (e)(1)(B) of the Welfare and Institutions Code; and adding a subdivision (d) in response to 352(b) confirming that a dispositional hearing cannot be continued if it would result in the dispositional hearing being completed longer than 60 days, or 30 days in the case of an Indian child, after the hearing at which the minor was ordered removed or detained, unless the court finds that there are exceptional circumstances requiring a continuance. If the court knows or has reason to know that the child is an Indian child, the absence of the opinion of a qualified expert witness shall not, in and of itself, support a finding that exceptional circumstances exist.

Revisions based on comments:

- Add subdivision (d) concerning limitations on continuances consistent with Welfare and Institutions Code section 352(b) in response to comments received from the California Tribal Families Coalition, who advocated on behalf of tribal communities for AB 3176.

Forms revisions based on comments:

- Expand the language used to ask about and reference residence and domicile from in ICWA-005-INFO 2.c and ICWA-020 3 d. and e., to include “a reservation, Rancheria, Alaska Native Village or other tribal trust land.” instead of just saying “Indian country”;
- Revise item 5.d.(3) of the ICWA-060 which sets out the required findings and orders when the court finds that there is good cause to deny a request for transfer to tribal court to clarify that there must have been an evidentiary hearing on the issue;
- Revise the inquiry language at item 2 of the JV-100 and JV-110 and item 4 of the JV-600 to allow separate options for when the individual signing the petition has completed the ICWA inquiry themselves, and when someone else has completed the ICWA inquiry. In some counties the social worker will complete the inquiry and provide that information to county counsel, but county counsel is the one who completes and signs the petition;
- Revise item 17 of the JV-320 concerning where the placement fits within the ICWA placement preferences by replacing “exhaustive search…” with “diligent search…”. The language used in the federal regulations and guidelines requires a diligent search for a placement within the placement preferences, not an exhaustive search. This same change has been made in all the forms that contain these placement preference findings; and
- Revise JV-320 item 17.s.(6) by adding the clear and convincing evidence standard that is required for the court to find good cause to deviate from the placement preferences.

Suggested forms revisions not accepted:

- Add language to the JV-405 and JV-410 forms from the federal guidelines on treating the child as an Indian child when status is uncertain: decline to follow because the language is too lengthy to include in the forms. Consider incorporating into information sheets and trainings instead.

Suggested revision to Rule 5.531 Appearance by telephone that was not part of original proposal:

- Add a subdivision (d) mandating that the court allow alternative methods of participation in ICWA cases if the court has the capacity: Decline to follow because although consistent with the federal regulations, it is not consistent with the WIC code.

Executive Summary

Various members of the judicial branch, members of the public, and Judicial Council staff have identified errors in the California Rules of Court and Judicial Council forms resulting from typographical errors and changes resulting from legislation, and previous rule amendments and form revisions. Judicial Council staff recommend making the necessary corrections to avoid causing confusion for court users, clerks, and judicial officers.

Recommendation

Judicial Council staff recommend that the council, effective January 1, 2020:

1. Amend rule 8.380(a) to update the reference to Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus (form MC-275), which was relettered and renumbered as form HC-001;
2. Amend rule 8.384(a)(1) to update the reference to form MC-275 to form HC-001;

3. Amend the Advisory Committee Comments to rules 8.851, 8.866(a), 8.868, 8.917, and 8.919 to update the reference to Defendant's Financial Statement on Eligibility for Appointment of Counsel and Reimbursement and Record on Appeal at Public Expense (form MC-210), which was relettered and renumbered as form CR-105;
4. Revise form APP-013 to refer to the correct rule of court in the footer;
5. Revise form CR-131-INFO, items 14a and 14b, to update the references to form MC-210 to form CR-105;
6. Revise Request for Entry of Default (form CIV-100) and Request for Entry of Default (Fair Debt Buying Practices Act) (form CIV-105) to update to update the statutory;
7. citation in the declaration of nonmilitary status on each form. This revision will
8. implement the changes enacted in Assembly Bill 3212, which amended Military and
9. Veterans Code section 400 et seq.
10. Revise form CR-132, item 4b, to update the reference to form MC-210 to form CR-105;
11. Revise form CR-133, item 2b, to update the references to form MC-210 to form CR-105;
12. Revise form CR-134, items 5a(3)(b), 5b(2)(b), and 5c(2)(b), to update the references to form MC-210 to form CR-105;
13. Revise form CR-141-INFO, items 13b and 13c, to update the references to form MC-210 to form CR-105;
14. Revise form CR-142, items 5b(2), 5c(2), and 5d(4), to update the references to form MC-210 to form CR-105;
15. Revise Petition for Transfer Orders (form GC-363) to add a box below the case number box in the form header to indicate the date, time, and place of the initial hearing on the petition;
16. Revise Petition for Orders Accepting Transfer (form GC-366) to add a box below the case number box in the form header to indicate the date, time, and place of the initial hearing on the petition; and
17. Revise Proof of Service-Civil (form POS-040), to correct the time frame in the Declaration of Messenger on page 2, to conform to the recently-amended time frame for leaving documents at a party's residence permitted in Code of Civil Procedure section 1011.

The text of the amended rules and the revised forms are attached at pages 4–50.

Relevant Previous Council Action

Although the Judicial Council has acted on these rules and forms, this proposal recommends only minor corrections unrelated to any prior action.

Analysis/Rationale

The changes to these rules and forms are technical in nature and necessary to correct inadvertent omissions and incorrect references.

Policy implications None.

Comments
These proposals were not circulated for public comment because they are noncontroversial, involve technical revisions, and are therefore within the Judicial Council's purview to adopt without circulation. (See Cal. Rules of Court, rule 10.22(d)(2).)

Alternatives considered
None.

Fiscal and Operational Impacts

Operational impacts are expected to be minor. The proposed revisions may result in reproduction costs if courts provide hard copies of any of the forms recommended for revision. Because the proposed changes are technical corrections, case management systems are unlikely to need updating to implement them.

      (3) That the plaintiff is EITHER the sole owner of the debt OR has the authority to assert the rights of all owners of the debt;
      (4) The debt balance at charge-off and an explanation of the amount and nature of, and reason for, all post-charge-off interest and fees, if any, imposed by the charge-off creditor or any subsequent purchasers of the debt;
      (5) The date of the default OR the date of the last payment;
      (6) The name and address of the charge-off creditor at the time of charge-off in sufficient form so as to reasonably identify the charge-off creditor, and the charge-off creditor's account number associated with the debt;

Plaintiff/Petitioner: Defendant/Respondent:	CASE NUMBER:

4. a. (7) The name and last known address of the debtor as they appeared in the charge-off creditor's records prior to the sale of the debt;

   (8) The names and addresses of all persons or entities that purchased the debt after charge-off, including the plaintiff debt buyer, in sufficient form so as to reasonably identify each such purchaser; and

   (9) That the plaintiff has complied with Civil Code section 1788.52.

   b. A copy of the contract or other document described in Civil Code section 1788.52(b) is attached to the complaint.

5. Documentation requirements for default judgment. ALL of the following documents are submitted with this request for default judgment (Civ. Code, § 1788.60(a)–(c)):

   a. A copy of the contract or other document evidencing the debtor's agreement to the debt, authenticated through a sworn declaration. See Civil Code section 1788.52(b) regarding documentation, including for revolving credit accounts.

   b. Business records, authenticated through a sworn declaration, to establish:

      (1) That the plaintiff is EITHER the sole owner of the debt OR has the authority to assert the rights of all owners of the debt;

      (2) The debt balance at charge-off, and an explanation of the amount and nature of, and reason for, all post-charge-off interest and fees, if any, imposed by the charge-off creditor or any subsequent purchasers of the debt;

      (3) The date of the default OR the date of the last payment;

      (4) The name and address of the charge-off creditor at the time of charge-off in sufficient form so as to reasonably identify the charge-off creditor, and the charge-off creditor's account number associated with the debt;

      (5) The name and last known address of the debtor as they appeared in the charge-off creditor's records prior to the sale of the debt; and

      (6) The names and addresses of all persons or entities that purchased the debt after charge-off, including the plaintiff debt buyer, in sufficient form so as to reasonably identify each such purchaser.

CR-131-INFO Information on Appeal Procedures for Misdemeanors

1 What does this information sheet cover?

This information sheet tells you about appeals in misdemeanor cases. It is only meant to give you a general idea of the appeal process, so it does not cover everything you may need to know about appeals in misdemeanor cases. To learn more, you should read rules 8.800–8.816 and 8.850–8.890 of the California Rules of Court, which set out the procedures for misdemeanor appeals. You can get these rules at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/rules.

For information about appeal procedures in other cases, see:

- Information on Appeal Procedures for Infractions (form CR-141-INFO)
- Information on Appeal Procedures for Limited Civil Cases (form APP-101-INFO)

You can get these forms at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/forms.

2 What is a misdemeanor?

A misdemeanor is a crime that can be punished by jail time of up to one year, but not by time in state prison. (See Penal Code sections 17 and 19.2. You can get a copy of these laws at at http://leginfo.legislature.ca.gov/faces/codes.xhtml.) If you were also charged with or convicted of a felony, then your case is a felony case, not a misdemeanor case.

3 What is an appeal?

An appeal is a request to a higher court to review a decision made by a lower court. In a misdemeanor case, the court hearing the appeal is the appellate division of the superior court and the lower court—called the "trial court" in this information sheet—is the superior court.

It is important to understand that an appeal is NOT a new trial. The appellate division will not consider new evidence, such as the testimony of new witnesses or new exhibits. The appellate division's job is to review a record of what happened in the trial court and the trial court's decision to see if certain kinds of legal errors were made in the case:

- Prejudicial error: The party that appeals (called the "appellant") may ask the appellate division to determine if an error was made about either the law or court procedures in the case that caused substantial harm to the appellant (this is called "prejudicial error"). Prejudicial error can include things like errors made by the judge about the law, errors or misconduct by the lawyers, incorrect instructions given to the jury, and misconduct by the jury that harmed the appellant. When it conducts its review, the appellate division presumes that the judgment, order, or other decision being appealed is correct. It is the responsibility of the appellant to show the appellate division that an error was made and that the error was harmful.
- No substantial evidence: The appellant may also ask the appellate division to determine if there was substantial evidence supporting the judgment, order, or other decision being appealed. When it conducts its review, the appellate division only looks to see if there was evidence that reasonably supports the decision. The appellate division generally will not reconsider the jury's or trial court's conclusion about which side had more or stronger evidence or whether witnesses were telling the truth or lying.

The appellate division generally will not overturn the judgment, order, or other decision being appealed unless the record clearly shows that one of these legal errors was made.

4 Do I need a lawyer to appeal?

You do not have to have a lawyer; you are allowed to represent yourself in an appeal in a misdemeanor case. But appeals can be complicated, and you will have to follow the same rules that lawyers have to follow. If you have any questions about the appeal procedures, you should talk to a lawyer.

If you are representing yourself, you must put your address, telephone number, fax number, and e-mail address (if available) on the cover of every document you file with the court and let the court know if this contact information changes so that the court can contact you if needed.

5 How do I get a lawyer to represent me?

The court is required to appoint a lawyer to represent you if you are indigent (you cannot afford to pay for a lawyer) and:

- Your punishment includes going to jail or paying a fine of more than $500 (including penalty and other assessments) or
- You are likely to suffer other significant harm as a result of being convicted.

The court may, but is not required to, appoint a lawyer to represent you on appeal in other circumstances if you are indigent. You are automatically considered indigent if you were represented by the public defender or other court-appointed lawyer in the trial court. You will also be considered indigent if you can show that your income and assets are too low to pay for a lawyer.

If you think you are indigent, you can ask the court to appoint a lawyer to represent you for your appeal. You may use Request for Court-Appointed Lawyer in Misdemeanor Appeal (form CR-133) to ask the court to appoint a lawyer to represent you on appeal in a misdemeanor case. You can get form CR-133 at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/forms.

If you want a lawyer and you are not indigent or if the court turns down your request to appoint a lawyer, you must hire a lawyer at your own expense. You can get information about finding a lawyer on the California Courts Online Self-Help Center at www.courts.ca.gov /selfhelp.htm at the "Getting Started" tab.

6 Who can appeal?

Only a party in the trial court case can appeal a decision in that case. You may not appeal on behalf of a friend, a spouse, a child, or another relative.

The party that is appealing is called the APPELLANT; in a misdemeanor case, this is usually the party convicted of committing the misdemeanor. The other party is called the RESPONDENT; in a misdemeanor case, this is usually the government agency that filed the criminal charges (on court papers, this party is called the People of the State of California).

7 Can I appeal any decision that the trial court made?

No. Generally, you may appeal only the final judgment —the decision at the end that decides the whole case. The final judgment includes the punishment that the court imposed. With the exception listed below, rulings made by the trial court before final judgment generally cannot be separately appealed, but can be reviewed only later as part of an appeal of the final judgment. In a misdemeanor case, the party convicted of committing a misdemeanor usually appeals that conviction or the sentence (punishment) ordered by the trial court. In a misdemeanor case, a party can also appeal:

- Before the trial court issues a final judgment in the case, from an order granting or denying a motion to suppress evidence (Penal Code section 1538.5(j))
- From an order made by the trial court after judgment that affects a substantial right of the appellant (Penal Code section 1466(2)(B))

You can get a copy of these laws at http://leginfo.legislature.ca.gov/faces/codes.xhtml.

8 How do I start my appeal?

First, you must file a notice of appeal. The notice of appeal tells the other party in the case and the trial court that you are appealing the trial court's decision. You may use Notice of Appeal (Misdemeanor) (form CR-132) to prepare and file a notice of appeal in a misdemeanor case. You can get form CR-132 at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/forms.

9 Is there a deadline for filing my notice of appeal?

Yes. Except in the very limited circumstances listed in rule 8.853(b), in a misdemeanor case, you must file your notice of appeal within 30 days after the trial court makes ("renders") its final judgment in your case or issues the order you are appealing. (You can get a copy of rule 8.853 at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/rules) The date the trial court makes its judgment is normally the date the trial court issues its order saying what your punishment is (sentences you). This deadline for filing the notice of appeal cannot be extended. If your notice of appeal is late, the appellate division will not be able to consider your appeal.

10 How do I file my notice of appeal?

To file the notice of appeal in a misdemeanor case, you must bring or mail the original notice of appeal to the clerk of the trial court that made the judgment or issued the order you are appealing. It is a good idea to bring or mail an extra copy to the clerk and ask the clerk to stamp it to show that the original has been filed.

There is no fee for filing the notice of appeal in a misdemeanor case. You can ask the clerk of that court if there are any other requirements for filing your notice of appeal.

After you file your notice of appeal, the clerk will send a copy of your notice of appeal to the office of the prosecuting attorney (for example, the district attorney, county counsel, city attorney, or state Attorney General).

11 If I file a notice of appeal, do I still have to go to jail or complete other parts of my punishment?

Filing the notice of appeal does NOT automatically postpone your punishment, such as serving time in jail, paying fines, or probation conditions.

If you have been sentenced to jail in a misdemeanor case, you have a right to be released either with or without bail while your appeal is waiting to be decided, but you must ask the court to set bail or release you. If the trial court has not set bail or released you after your notice of appeal has been filed, you must ask the trial court to set bail or release you. If the trial court denies your release or sets the bail amount higher than you think it should be, you can apply to the appellate division for release or for lower bail.

Other parts of your punishment, such as fines or probation conditions, will be postponed ("stayed") only if you request a stay and the court grants your request. If you want a stay, you must first ask the trial court for a stay. You can also apply to the appellate division for a stay, but you must show in your application to the appellate division that you first asked the trial court for a stay and that the trial court unjustifiably denied your request. If you do not get a stay and you do not pay your fine or complete another part of your punishment by the date ordered by the court, a warrant may be issued for your arrest or a civil collections process may be started against you, which could result in a civil penalty being added to your fine.

12 What do I need to do after I file my appeal?

You must tell the trial court (1) whether you have agreed with the respondent ("stipulated") that you do not need parts of the normal record on appeal, and (2) whether you want a record of what was said in the trial court (this is called a record of the "oral proceedings") sent to the appellate division and, if so, what form of that record you want to use. You may use Notice Regarding Record on Appeal (Misdemeanor) (form CR-134) for this notice. (You can get form CR-134 at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/forms) You must file this notice either:

(1) within 20 days after you file your notice of appeal, or, if it is later

(2) within 10 days after the court decides whether to appoint a lawyer to represent you (if you ask the court to appoint a lawyer within 20 days after you file your notice of appeal).

13 In what cases does the appellate division need a record of what was said in the trial court?

You do not have to send the appellate division a record of what was said in the trial court. But if you want to raise any issue in your appeal that would require the appellate division to consider what was said in the trial court, the appellate division will need a record of these oral proceedings. For example, if you are claiming that there was not substantial evidence supporting the judgment, order, or other decision you are appealing, the appellate division will need a record of the oral proceedings. Since the appellate division judges were not there for the proceedings in the trial court, an official record of these oral proceedings must be prepared and sent to the appellate division for its review.

Depending on what form of the record you choose to use, you will be responsible for paying to have the official record of the oral proceedings prepared (unless you are indigent) or for preparing an initial draft of this record yourself. If you do not take care of these responsibilities, a record of the oral proceedings in the trial court will not be prepared and sent to the appellate division. If the appellate division does not receive this record, it will not be able to consider what was said in the trial court in deciding whether a legal error was made and it may dismiss your appeal.

(14) What are the different forms of the record?

There are three ways a record of the oral proceedings in the trial court can be prepared and provided to the appellate division in a misdemeanor case:

a. If a court reporter was there during the trial court proceedings, the reporter can prepare a record called a "reporter's transcript."

b. If the proceedings were officially electronically recorded, the trial court can have a transcript prepared from that recording; or if the court has a local rule permitting this and you and the respondent (the prosecuting agency) agree ("stipulate") to this, you can use the official electronic recording itself as the record, instead of a transcript.

c. You can use a statement on appeal.

Read below for more information about these options.

a. Reporter's transcript

When available: In some misdemeanor cases, a court reporter is there in the trial court and makes a record of the oral proceedings. If a court reporter made a record of your case, you can ask to have the court reporter prepare a transcript of those oral proceedings, called a "reporter's transcript." You should check with the trial court to see if a court reporter made a record of your case before you choose this option. Some courts also have local rules that establish procedures for deciding whether a statement on appeal or a transcript of only some of the oral proceedings will be a good enough record to consider the issues you are raising on appeal. You should check whether the court has such a local rule.

Cost*:* Ordinarily, the appellant must pay for preparing a reporter's transcript. The court reporter will provide the clerk of the trial court with an estimate of the cost of preparing the transcript and the clerk will notify you of this estimate. If you want the reporter to prepare a transcript, you must deposit this estimated amount or one of the substitutes allowed under rule 8.866 with the clerk within 10 days after the clerk sends you the estimate. However, under rule 8.866 you can decide to use a different form of the record or take other action instead of proceeding with a reporter's transcript.

If, however, you are indigent (you cannot afford to pay the cost of a reporter's transcript), you may be able to get a free transcript. If you were represented by the public defender or another court-appointed lawyer in the trial court, you are automatically considered indigent. If you were not represented by a court-appointed lawyer in the trial court, you can complete and file Defendant's Financial Statement on Eligibility for Appointment of Counsel and Reimbursement and Record on Appeal at Public Expense (form CR-105), to show that you are indigent. You can get form CR-105 at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/forms. The court will review this form to decide whether you are indigent.

If the court finds that you are indigent, a court reporter made a record of your case, and you show that you need a transcript, the court must provide you with a free transcript. Whether you need a transcript depends on the issues you are raising on appeal. If the issues you are raising on appeal include that there was not substantial evidence supporting the judgment, order, or other decision you are appealing or that there was misconduct in your case that harmed you, that is generally enough to show that you need a transcript. If you ask for a reporter's transcript, the court may ask you what issues you are raising on appeal and may decide that a statement on appeal or a transcript of only some of the oral proceedings will be a good enough record to consider the issues you are raising.

If the court finds that you are not indigent, it will send you a notice and you will have a chance to pick another form of the record or take other actions listed in rule 8.866.

Completion and delivery: Once you deposit the estimated cost of the transcript or one of the substitutes allowed under rule 8.866 or show the court you are indigent and need a transcript, the clerk will notify the reporter to prepare the transcript. When the reporter completes the transcript, the clerk will send the reporter's transcript to the appellate division along with the clerk's transcript.

b. Official electronic recording or transcript from an official recording

When available: In some misdemeanor cases, the trial court proceedings are officially recorded on approved electronic recording equipment. If your case was officially recorded, you can ask to have a transcript prepared from that official electronic recording. You should check with the trial court to see if your case was officially electronically recorded before you choose this option. As with reporter's transcripts, some courts also have local rules that establish procedures for deciding whether a statement on appeal or a transcript of only some of the oral proceedings will be a good enough record to consider the issues you are raising on appeal. You should check whether the court has such a local rule.

If the court has a local rule for the appellate division permitting this and all the parties agree ("stipulate"), a copy of the official electronic recording itself can be used as the record of the oral proceedings instead of preparing a transcript. You should check with the trial court to see if your case was officially electronically recorded and check to make sure there is a local rule permitting the use of the recording itself before choosing this option. If you choose this option, you must attach a copy of your agreement with the other parties (called a "stipulation") to your notice regarding the oral proceedings.

Cost: Ordinarily, the appellant must pay for preparing a transcript or making a copy of the official electronic recording. The court will send you an estimate of the cost for this transcript or the copy of the electronic recording. If you still want this transcript or recording, you must deposit this amount with the court. However, you can also choose to use a statement on appeal instead, or take one of the other actions listed in rule 8.868.

If, however, you are indigent (you cannot afford to pay the cost of the transcript or recording), you may be able to get a free transcript or recording. If you were represented by the public defender or another court-appointed attorney in the trial court, you are automatically considered indigent. If you were not represented by a court-appointed lawyer in the trial court, you can complete and file Defendant's Financial Statement on Eligibility for Appointment of Counsel and Reimbursement and Record on Appeal at Public Expense (form CR-105) to show that you are indigent. You can get form CR-105 at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/forms. The court will review this form to decide whether you are indigent.

If you are indigent, an official electronic recording of your case was made, and you show that you need a transcript, the court must provide you with a free transcript. As with reporter's transcripts, whether you need a transcript depends on the issues you are raising on appeal. If the issues you are raising on appeal include that there was not substantial evidence supporting the judgment, order, or other decision you are appealing or that there was misconduct in your case that harmed you, that is generally enough to show that you need a transcript. If you ask for a transcript, the court may ask you what issues you are raising on appeal and may decide that a statement on appeal or a transcript of only some of the oral proceedings will be a good enough record to consider the issues you are raising.

If the court finds that you are not indigent, it will send you a notice and you will have a chance to use a statement on appeal instead or take one of the other actions listed in rule 8.868.

Completion and delivery: Once you deposit the estimated cost of the transcript or the official electronic recording with the clerk or show the court you are indigent and need a transcript, the clerk will have the transcript or copy of the recording prepared. When the transcript is completed or the copy of the official electronic recording is prepared, the clerk will send the transcript or recording to the appellate division along with the clerk's transcript.

c. Statement on appeal

Description: A statement on appeal is a summary of the trial court proceedings approved by the trial court judge who conducted those proceedings (the term "judge" includes commissioners and temporary judges).

When available: If the trial court proceedings were not recorded either by a court reporter or by official electronic recording equipment, or if you do not want to use either of these forms of the record, you can choose ("elect") to use a statement on appeal as the record of the oral proceedings in the trial court (please note that it may take more of your time to prepare a statement on appeal than to use either a reporter's transcript or electronic recording, if they are available).

Contents: A statement on appeal must include:

- A statement of the points you (the appellant) are raising on appeal;
- A summary of the trial court's rulings and judgment; and
- A summary of the testimony of each witness and other evidence that is relevant to the issues you are raising on appeal.

(See rule 8.869 of the California Rules of Court for more information about what must be included in a statement on appeal and the procedures for preparing a statement. You can get this rule at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/rules.htm)

Preparing a proposed statement: If you choose to use a statement on appeal, you must prepare a proposed statement. If you are not represented by a lawyer, you must use Proposed Statement on Appeal (Misdemeanor) (form CR-135) to prepare your proposed statement. You can get form CR-135 at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/forms.

Serving and filing a proposed statement: You must serve and file your proposed statement in the trial court within 20 days after you file your notice regarding the record of the oral proceedings. "Serve and file" means that you must:

- Have somebody over 18 years old who is not a party to the case—so not you—mail or deliver ("serve") a copy of the proposed statement to the prosecuting attorney and any other party in the way required by law.
- Make a record that the proposed statement has been served. This record is called a "proof of service." Proof of Service (Appellate Division) (form APP-109) can be used to make this record. The proof of service must show who served the proposed statement, who was served with the proposed statement, how the proposed statement was served (by mail or in person), and the date the proposed statement was served.
- File the original proposed statement and the proof of service with the trial court. You should make a copy of the proposed statement you are planning to file for your own records before you file it with the court. It is a good idea to bring or mail an extra copy of the proposed statement to the clerk when you file your original and ask the clerk to stamp this copy to show that the original has been filed.

You can get more information about how to serve court papers and proof of service from What Is Proof of Service? (form APP-109-INFO) and on the California Courts Online Self-Help Center at www.courts.ca.gov/selfhelp-serving.htm.

Review and modifications: The prosecuting attorney and any other party have 10 days from the date you serve your proposed statement to serve and file proposed changes (called "amendments") to this statement. The trial court judge then reviews both your proposed statement and any proposed amendments filed by the prosecuting attorney and any other party. The judge will then make or order you to make any corrections or modifications to the statement needed to make sure that the statement provides a complete and accurate summary of the relevant testimony and other evidence.

Completion and certification: If the judge makes or orders you to make any corrections or modifications to the proposed statement, the corrected or modified statement will be sent to you, the prosecuting attorney, and any other party for your review. If you disagree with anything in the judge's statement, you will have 10 days from the date the statement is sent you to serve and file objections to the statement. The judge then reviews any objections, makes any additional corrections to the statement, and certifies the statement as a complete and accurate summary of the relevant testimony and other evidence.

Sending the statement to appellate division: Once the trial court judge certifies the statement on appeal, the trial court clerk will send the statement to the appellate division along with the clerk's transcript.

15 Is there any other part of the record that needs to be sent to the appellate division?

Yes. There are two other parts of the official record that need to be sent to the appellate division:

- Documents filed in the trial court: The trial court clerk is responsible for preparing a record of the written documents filed in your case, called a "clerk's transcript," and sending this to the appellate division. (The documents the clerk must include in this transcript are listed in rule 8.861 of the California Rules of Court. You can get a copy of this rule at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/rules)

- Exhibits submitted during trial: Exhibits, such as photographs, that were admitted in evidence, refused, or lodged (temporarily placed with the court) in the trial court are considered part of the record on appeal. If you want the appellate division to consider such an exhibit, however, you must ask the trial court clerk to send the original exhibit to the appellate division within 10 days after the last respondent's brief is filed in the appellate division. (See rule 8.870 of the California Rules of Court for more information about this procedure. You can get a copy of this rule at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/rules.) Sometimes, the trial court returns an exhibit to a party at the end of the trial. If the trial court returned an exhibit to you or another party and you or the other party ask for the exhibit to be sent to the appellate division, the party who has the exhibit must deliver that exhibit to the appellate division as soon as possible.

16 What happens after the record is prepared?

As soon as the record of the oral proceeding is ready, the clerk of the trial court will send it to the appellate division along with the clerk's transcript. When the appellate division receives this record, it will send you a notice telling you when you must file your brief in the appellate division.

17 What is a brief?

A brief is a party's written description of the facts in the case, the law that applies, and the party's argument about the issues being appealed. If you are represented by a lawyer in your appeal, your lawyer will prepare your brief. If you are not represented by a lawyer in your appeal, you will have to prepare your brief yourself. You should read rules 8.880–8.891 of the California Rules of Court, which set out the requirements for preparing, serving, and filing briefs in misdemeanor appeals, including requirements for the format and length of those briefs. You can get copies of these rules at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/rules.

Contents: If you are the appellant (the party who is appealing), your brief, called the "appellant's opening brief," must clearly explain what you believe are the legal errors made in the trial court. Your brief must refer to the exact places in the clerk's transcript and the reporter's transcript (or other record of the oral proceedings) that support your argument. Remember that an appeal is not a new trial. The appellate division will not consider new evidence, such as the testimony of new witnesses or new exhibits, so do not include any new evidence in your brief.

Serving and filing: You must serve and file your brief in the appellate division by the deadline the court set in the notice it sent you, which is usually 30 days after the record is filed in the appellate division. "Serve and file" means that you must:

- Have somebody over 18 years old who is not a party to the case—so not you—mail or deliver ("serve") the brief to the respondent (the prosecuting agency) and any other party in the way required by law.
- Make a record that the brief has been served. This record is called a "proof of service." Proof of Service (Appellate Division) (form APP-109) can be used to make this record. The proof of service must show who served the brief, who was served with the brief, how the brief was served (by mail or in person), and the date the brief was served.
- File the original brief and the proof of service with the appellate division. You should make a copy of the brief you are planning to file for your own records before you file it with the court. It is a good idea to bring or mail an extra copy of the brief to the clerk when you file your original and ask the clerk to stamp this copy to show that the original has been filed.

You can get more information about how to serve court papers and proof of service from What Is Proof of Service? (form APP-109-INFO) and at www.courts.ca.gov/selfhelp-serving.htm.

If you do not file your brief by the deadline set by the appellate division, the court may dismiss your appeal.

18 What happens after I file my brief?

Within 30 days after you serve and file your brief, the respondent (the prosecuting agency) may, but is not required to, respond by serving and filing a respondent's brief. If the respondent does not file a brief, the appellant does not automatically win the appeal. The court will decide the appeal on the record, the appellant's brief, and any oral argument by the appellant.

If the respondent serves and files a brief, within 20 days after the respondent's brief was served, you may, but are not required to, serve and file another brief replying to the respondent's brief. This is called a "reply brief."

19 What happens after all the briefs have been filed?

Once all the briefs have been served and filed or the time to serve and file them has passed, the court will notify you of the date for oral argument in your case.

20 What is oral argument?

"Oral argument" is the parties' chance to explain their arguments to the appellate division judges in person. You do not have to participate in oral argument if you do not want to; you can notify the appellate division that you want to "waive" oral argument. If all parties waive oral argument, the judges will decide your appeal based on the briefs and the record that were submitted. But if one party waives oral argument and another party or parties does not, the appellate division will hold oral argument with the party or parties who did not waive it.

If you choose to participate in oral argument, you will have up to 10 minutes for your argument, unless the court orders otherwise. Remember that the judges will already have read the briefs, so you do not need to read your brief to the judges. It is more helpful to tell the judges what you think is most important in your appeal or ask the judges if they have any questions you could answer.

21 What happens after oral argument?

After the oral argument is held (or the date it was scheduled passes if all the parties waive oral argument), the judges of the appellate division will make a decision about your appeal. The appellate division has 90 days after the date scheduled for oral argument to decide the appeal. The clerk of the court will mail you a notice of that decision.

22 What should I do if I want to give up my appeal?

If you decide you do not want to continue with your appeal, you must file a written document with the appellate division notifying it that you are giving up (this is called "abandoning") your appeal. You can use Abandonment of Appeal (Misdemeanor) (form CR-137) to file this notice in a misdemeanor case. You can get form CR-137 at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/forms.

If you decide not to continue your appeal and it is dismissed, you will (with only very rare exceptions) permanently give up the chance to raise any objections to your conviction, sentence, or other matter that you could have raised on the appeal. If you were released from custody with or without bail or your sentence or any probation conditions were stayed during the appeal, you may be required to start serving your sentence or complying with your probation conditions immediately after your appeal is dismissed.

CR-132 Notice of Appeal (Misdemeanor)

Information About Your Appeal

(2) On (fill in the date): _____ I/my client filed a notice of appeal in the trial court case identified in the box on page 1 of this form.

Your Choices About the Record on Appeal

Stipulation for Limited Record

(3) ☐ The respondent and I/my client have agreed ("stipulated") under rule 8.860 that parts of the normal record on appeal are not required for proper determination of this appeal. A copy of our stipulation identifying those parts of the record that are not required is attached.

Record of Oral Proceedings

You do not have to provide the appellate division with a record of what was said in the trial court (this is called a record of the "oral proceedings"). But, if you do not, the appellate division will not be able to consider what was said during the trial court proceedings in deciding whether a legal error was made in those proceedings.

(4) I elect (choose)/My client elects to proceed (check a or b):

a. ☐ WITHOUT a record of the oral proceedings in the trial court (skip item (5); sign and date this form). I understand that if I proceed without a record of the oral proceedings, the appellate division will not be able to consider what was said in the trial court during those proceedings in deciding whether a legal error was made.

(Write initials here): _____

b. ☐ WITH a record of the oral proceedings in the trial court (complete item (5) below). I understand that if I elect (choose) to proceed WITH a record of the oral proceeding in the trial court, I have to choose the record I want to use and take the actions described below to make sure this record is provided to the appellate division. I understand that if I do not take the actions described below and the appellate division does not receive this record, I am not likely to succeed in my appeal.

(Write initials here): _____

5 I want to use the following record of what was said in the trial court proceedings in my case (check and complete only one—a, b, c, or d):

a. ☐ Reporter's Transcript. This option is available only if there was a court reporter in the trial court who made a record of what was said in court. Check with the trial court to see if there was a court reporter in your case before choosing this option. Some courts also have local rules that establish procedures for determining whether only a portion of a reporter's transcript or a different form of the record will be sufficient for an effective appeal. Check with the trial court to see if it has such a local rule. (Check and complete (1), (2) or (3).)

(1) ☐ Within 10 days of when I receive the court reporter's estimate of the cost of this transcript, I will file a certified transcript of all the proceedings required by rule 8.865 that complies with rule 8.144.

(2) ☐ I will pay the trial court clerk's office for the reporter's transcript myself within 10 days of when I receive the court reporter's estimate of the costs of this transcript. Alternatively, I will pay the reporter directly and file with the trial court a written waiver of deposit signed by the reporter. I understand that if I do not pay for this transcript, it will not be prepared and provided to the appellate division.

(3) ☐ I am asking that the reporter's transcript be prepared at no cost to me because I cannot afford to pay this cost.

(a) ☐ I was represented by the public defender or another court-appointed lawyer in the trial court proceedings in this case.

(b) ☐ I was not represented by the public defender or another court-appointed lawyer in the trial court proceedings in this case, but I have completed and attached Defendant's Financial Statement on Eligibility for Appointment of Counsel and Reimbursement and Record on Appeal at Public Expense (form CR-105). (You can get form CR-105 at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/forms. The court will review this form to decide if you are eligible for a reporter's transcript at no cost to you.)

OR

b. ☐ Transcript From Official Electronic Recording. This option is available only if an official electronic recording was made of what was said in the trial court. Check with the trial court to see if an official electronic recording was made in your case before choosing this option. Some courts also have local rules that establish procedures for determining whether only a portion of a transcript or a different form of the record will be sufficient for an effective appeal. Check with the trial court to see if it has such a local rule. (Check and complete (1) or (2).)

(1) ☐ I will pay the trial court clerk's office for this transcript myself. I understand that if I do not pay for this transcript, it will not be prepared and provided to the appellate division.

(2) ☐ I am asking that this transcript be provided at no cost to me because I cannot afford to pay this cost.

(a) ☐ I was represented by the public defender or another court-appointed lawyer in the trial court proceedings in this case.

(b) ☐ I was not represented by the public defender or another court-appointed lawyer in the trial court proceedings in this case, but I have completed and attached Defendant's Financial Statement on Eligibility for Appointment of Counsel and Reimbursement and Record on Appeal at Public Expense (form CR-105). (You can get form CR-105 at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/forms. The court will review this form to decide if you are eligible for a transcript at no cost to you.)

5 (continued)

OR

c. ☐ Copy of Official Electronic Recording. This option is available only if an official electronic recording was made of what was said in the trial court, the court has a local rule for the appellate division permitting the use of the official electronic recording itself as the record of the court proceedings, and you and the respondent (the prosecuting agency) have agreed (stipulated) that you want to use the recording itself as the record of what was said in your case. Check with the trial court to see if an official electronic recording was made in your case before choosing this option. You must attach a copy of your agreement (stipulation) with the respondent to this notice. (Check and complete (1) or (2).)

(1) ☐ I will pay the trial court clerk's office for this official electronic recording myself. I understand that if I do not pay for this recording, it will not be prepared and provided to the appellate division.

(2) ☐ I am asking that this official electronic recording be provided at no cost to me because I cannot afford to pay this cost.

(a) ☐ I was represented by the public defender or another court-appointed lawyer in the trial court proceedings in this case.

(b) ☐ I was not represented by the public defender or another court-appointed lawyer in the trial court proceedings in this case, but I have completed and attached Defendant's Financial Statement on Eligibility for Appointment of Counsel and Reimbursement and Record on Appeal at Public Expense (form CR-105). (You can get form CR-105 at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/forms. The court will review this form to decide if you are eligible for a copy of the official electronic recording at no cost to you.)

OR

d. ☐ Statement on Appeal. A statement on appeal is a summary of the trial court proceedings approved by the trial court. See form CR-131-INFO for information about preparing a proposed statement. (Check and complete (1) or (2).)

(1) ☐ I have attached my proposed statement on appeal to this notice. (If you are not represented by a lawyer in this appeal, you must use Proposed Statement on Appeal (Misdemeanor) (form CR-135) to prepare and file this proposed statement. You can get form CR-135 at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/forms.)

(2) ☐ I have NOT attached my proposed statement on appeal to this notice. I understand that I must serve and file this proposed statement in the trial court within 20 days of the date I file this notice. I understand that if I do not serve and file the proposed statement on time, and if I am represented by a court-appointed lawyer, the court may appoint a new lawyer. If I represent myself or hire a lawyer to represent me, and I do not serve and file the proposed statement on time, the court may dismiss my appeal.

1 What does this information sheet cover?

This information sheet tells you about appeals in infraction cases. It is only meant to give you a general idea of the appeal process, so it does not cover everything you may need to know about appeals in infraction cases. To learn more, you should read rules 8.900–8.929 of the California Rules of Court, which set out the procedures for infraction appeals. You can get these rules at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/rules.

2 What is an infraction?

Infractions are crimes that can be punished by a fine, traffic school, or some form of community service but not by time in jail or prison. (See Penal Code sections 17, 19.6, and 19.8. You can get a copy of these laws at http://leginfo.legislature.ca.gov/faces/codes.xhtml.) Examples of infractions are many traffic violations for which you can get a ticket or violations of some city or county ordinances for which you can get a citation. If you were also charged with or convicted of a misdemeanor, then your case is a misdemeanor case, not an infraction case.

3 What is an appeal?

An appeal is a request to a higher court to review a ruling or decision made by a lower court. In an infraction case, the court hearing the appeal is the appellate division of the superior court, and the lower court—called the "trial court" in this information sheet—is the superior court.

It is important to understand that an appeal is NOT a new trial. The appellate division will not consider new evidence, such as the testimony of new witnesses or new exhibits. The appellate division's job is to review a record of what happened in the trial court and the trial court's decision to see if certain kinds of legal errors were made in the case:

- Prejudicial error: The party that appeals (called the "appellant") may ask the appellate division to determine if an error was made about either the law or court procedures in the case that caused substantial harm to the appellant (this is called "prejudicial error"). Prejudicial error can include things like errors made by the judge about the law or errors or misconduct by the lawyers that harmed the appellant. When it conducts its review, the appellate division presumes that the judgment, order, or other decision being appealed is correct. It is the responsibility of the appellant to show the appellate division that an error was made and that the error was harmful.

- No substantial evidence: The appellant may also ask the appellate division to determine if there was substantial evidence supporting the judgment, order, or other decision being appealed. When it conducts its review, the appellate division only looks to see if there was evidence that reasonably supports the decision. The appellate division generally will not reconsider the trial court's conclusion about which side had more or stronger evidence or whether witnesses were telling the truth or lying.

The appellate division generally will not overturn the judgment, order, or other decision being appealed unless the record clearly shows that one of these legal errors was made.

- Information on Appeal Procedures for Limited Civil Cases (form APP-101-INFO)

You can get these forms at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/forms.

4 Do I need a lawyer to appeal?

You do not have to have a lawyer; you are allowed to represent yourself in an appeal in an infraction case. But appeals can be complicated, and you will have to follow the same rules that lawyers have to follow. If you have any questions about the appeal procedures, you should talk to a lawyer. You will need to hire a lawyer yourself if you want one. You can get information about finding a lawyer on the California Courts Online Self-Help Center at www.courts.ca.gov/selfhelp-lowcosthelp.htm.

➔

If you are representing yourself, you must put your address, telephone number, fax number (if available), and e-mail address (if available) on the cover of every document you file with the court and let the court know if this contact information changes so that the court can contact you if needed.

5 Who can appeal?

Only a party in the trial court case can appeal a decision in that case. You may not appeal on behalf of a friend, a spouse, a child, or another relative.

The party that is appealing is called the APPELLANT; in an infraction case, this is usually the party convicted of committing the infraction. The other party is called the RESPONDENT; in an infraction case, this is usually the government agency that filed the criminal charges (on court papers, this party is called the People of the State of California).

6 Can I appeal any decision that the trial court made?

No. Generally, you may appeal only a final judgment of the trial court—the decision at the end that decides the whole case. The final judgment includes the punishment that the court imposed. Other rulings made by the trial court before final judgment cannot be separately appealed, but can be reviewed only later as part of an appeal of the final judgment. In an infraction case, the party that was convicted of committing an infraction usually appeals that conviction or the sentence (the fine or other punishment) ordered by the trial court. In an infraction case, a party can also appeal from an order made by the trial court after judgment that affects a substantial right of the appellant (Penal Code section 1466(2)(B). You can get a copy of this law at http://leginfo.legislature.ca.gov/faces/codes.xhtml.)

7 How do I start my appeal?

First, you must file a notice of appeal. The notice of appeal tells the other party in the case and the trial court that you are appealing the trial court's decision. You may use Notice of Appeal and Record on Appeal (Infraction) (form CR-142) to prepare and file a notice of appeal in an infraction case. You can get form CR-142 at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/forms.htm.

8 Is there a deadline for filing my notice of appeal?

Yes. In an infraction case, you must file your notice of appeal within 30 days after the trial court makes ("renders") its judgment in your case or issues the order you are appealing. The date the trial court makes its judgment is normally the date the trial court orders you to pay a fine or orders other punishment in your case (sentences you). This deadline for filing the notice of appeal cannot be extended. If your notice of appeal is late, the appellate division will not be able to consider your appeal.

9 How do I file my notice of appeal?

To file the notice of appeal in an infraction case, you must bring or mail the original notice of appeal to the clerk of the trial court in which you were convicted of the infraction. It is a good idea to bring or mail an extra copy to the clerk and ask the clerk to stamp it to show that the original has been filed.

There is no fee for filing the notice of appeal in an infraction case. You can ask the clerk of that court if there are any other requirements for filing your notice of appeal.

After you file your notice of appeal, the clerk will send a copy of your notice to the office of the prosecuting attorney (for example, the district attorney, county counsel, city attorney, or state Attorney General).

10 If I file a notice of appeal, do I still have to pay my fine or complete other parts of my punishment?

Filing the notice of appeal does NOT automatically postpone the deadline for paying your fine or completing any other part of your sentence. To postpone your sentence, you must ask the trial court for a "stay" of the judgment. If you want a stay, you must first ask the trial court for a stay. You can also apply to the appellate division for a stay, but you must show in your application to the appellate division that you first asked the trial court for a stay and that the trial court unjustifiably denied your request. Your fine or other parts of your punishment will not be postponed unless the trial court or appellate division grants a stay. If you do not get a stay and you do not pay your fine or satisfy another part of your sentence by the date ordered by the court, a warrant may be issued for your arrest or a civil collections process may be started against you, which could result in a civil penalty being added to your fine.

11 Is there anything else I need to do when I file my notice of appeal?

Yes. When you file your notice of appeal, you must tell the trial court (1) whether you have agreed with the respondent ("stipulated") that you do not need parts of the normal record on appeal, and (2) whether you want a record of what was said in the trial court (this is called a record of the "oral proceedings") sent to the appellate division and, if so, what form of that record you want to use. Notice of Appeal and Record on Appeal (Infraction) (form CR-142) includes boxes you can check to tell the court whether and how you want to provide this record.

12 In what cases does the appellate division need a record of the oral proceedings?

You do not have to send the appellate division a record of what was said in the trial court. But if you want to raise any issue in your appeal that would require the appellate division to consider what was said in the trial court, the appellate division will need a record of these oral proceedings. For example, if you are claiming that there was not substantial evidence supporting the judgment, order, or other decision you are appealing, the appellate division will need a record of the oral proceedings. Since the appellate division judges were not there for the proceedings in the trial court, an official record of these proceedings must be prepared and sent to the appellate court for its review.

Depending on what form of the record you choose to use, you will be responsible for paying to have the official record of the oral proceedings prepared (unless you are indigent) or for preparing an initial draft of the record yourself. If you do not take care of these responsibilities, a record of the oral proceedings in the trial court will not be prepared and sent to the appellate division. If the appellate division does not receive the record, it will not be able to consider what was said in the trial court in deciding whether a legal error was made and it may dismiss your appeal.

13 What are the different forms of the record?

There are three ways a record of the oral proceedings in a trial court can be prepared and provided to the appellate division in an infraction case:

a. You can use a statement on appeal.

b. If the proceedings were officially electronically recorded, the trial court can have a transcript prepared from the recording or, if the court has a local rule permitting this and all the parties agree ("stipulate"), you can use the official electronic recording itself as the record, instead of a transcript.

c. If a court reporter was there during the trial court proceedings, the reporter can prepare a record called a "reporter's transcript."

Read below for more information about these options.

a. Statement on appeal

Description: A statement on appeal is a summary of the trial court proceedings approved by the trial court judge who conducted the trial court proceedings (the term "judge" includes commissioners and temporary judges).

When available: If the trial court proceedings were not recorded either by a court reporter or by official electronic recording equipment or if you do not want to use either of these forms of the record, you can choose ("elect") to use a statement on appeal as the record of the oral proceedings in the trial court (please note that it may take more of your time to prepare a statement on appeal than to use either a reporter's transcript or electronic recording, if they are available).

Contents: A statement on appeal must include:

- A statement of the points you (the appellant) are raising on appeal;
- A summary of the trial court's rulings and judgment; and

- A summary of the testimony of each witness and other evidence that is relevant to the issues you are raising on appeal.

(See rule 8.916 of the California Rules of Court for more information about what must be included in a statement on appeal and the procedures for preparing a statement. You can get a copy of this rule at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/rules.)

Preparing a proposed statement: If you choose to use a statement on appeal, you must prepare a proposed statement. If you are not represented by a lawyer, you must use Proposed Statement on Appeal (Infraction) (form CR-143) to prepare your proposed statement. You can get form CR-143 at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/forms.

Serving and filing a proposed statement: You must serve and file your proposed statement within 20 days after you file your notice of appeal. "Serve and file" means that you must:

- Have somebody over 18 years old mail, deliver, or electronically send ("serve") the proposed statement to the prosecuting attorney and any other party in the way required by law. If the proposed statement is mailed or personally delivered, it must be by someone who is not a party to the case—so not you. If the prosecuting attorney did not appear in your case, you do not need to serve the prosecuting attorney.
- Make a record that the proposed statement has been served. This record is called a "proof of service." Proof of Service (Appellate Division) (form APP-109) or Proof of Electronic Service (Appellate Division) (form APP-109E) can be used to make this record. The proof of service must show who served the proposed statement, who was served with the proposed statement, how the proposed statement was served (by mail, in person, or electronically), and the date the proposed statement was served.
- File the original proposed statement and the proof of service with the trial court. You should make a copy of the proposed statement you are planning to file for your own records before you file it with the court. It is a good idea to bring or mail an extra copy of the proposed statement to the clerk when you file your original and ask the clerk to stamp this copy to show that the original has been filed.

You can get more information about how to serve court papers and proof of service from What Is Proof of Service? (form APP-109-INFO) and on the California Courts Online Self-Help Center at www.courts.ca.gov/selfhelp-serving.htm.

Review and modifications: The prosecuting attorney and any other party have 10 days from the date you serve your proposed statement to serve and file proposed changes (called "amendments") to this statement. The trial judge then reviews both your proposed statement and any proposed amendments filed by the prosecuting attorney and any other party. The judge will then make or order you to make any corrections or modifications to the proposed statement that are needed to make sure that the statement provides a complete and accurate summary of the relevant testimony and other evidence.

Completion and certification: If the judge makes or orders you to make any corrections or modifications to the proposed statement, the corrected or modified statement will be sent to you, the prosecuting attorney, and any other party for your review. If you disagree with anything in the judge's statement, you will have 10 days from the date the statement is sent to you to serve and file objections to the statement. The judge then reviews any objections, makes any additional corrections to the statement, and certifies the statement as a complete and accurate summary of the relevant testimony and other evidence.

Sending the statement to the appellate division: Once the trial judge certifies the statement on appeal, the trial court clerk will send the statement to the appellate division along with the clerk's transcript.

b. Official electronic recording or transcript from official recording

When available: In some infraction cases, the trial court proceedings are officially recorded on approved electronic recording equipment. If your case was officially recorded, you can ask to have a transcript prepared for the appellate division from the official electronic recording of the proceedings. You should check with the trial court to see if your case was officially electronically recorded before you choose this option. Some courts also have local rules that establish procedures for deciding whether a statement on appeal or a transcript of only some of the oral proceedings will be a good enough record to consider the issues you are raising on appeal. You should check whether the court has such a local rule.

If the court has a local rule for the appellate division permitting this and all the parties agree ("stipulate"), a copy of the official electronic recording itself can be used as the record of these oral proceedings instead of preparing a transcript. You should check with the trial court to see if your case was officially electronically recorded and check to make sure that there is a local rule permitting the use of the recording itself before choosing this option. If you choose this option, you must attach a copy of your agreement with the other parties (called a "stipulation") to your notice regarding the oral proceedings.

Cost: Ordinarily, the appellant must pay for preparing the transcript or making a copy of the official electronic recording. The court will send you an estimate of the cost for this transcript or the copy of the electronic recording. If you still want this transcript or recording, you must deposit this amount with the court. However, you can also choose to use a statement on appeal instead, or take one of the other actions listed in rule 8.917.

If, however, you are indigent (you cannot afford to pay the cost of the transcript or electronic recording), you may be able to get a free transcript or official electronic recording. You can complete and file Defendant's Financial Statement on Eligibility for Appointment of Counsel and Reimbursement and Record on Appeal at Public Expense (form CR-105) to show that you are indigent. You can get form CR-105 at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/forms. The court will review this form to decide whether you are indigent.

If you are indigent, an official electronic recording of your case was made, and you show that you need a transcript, the court must provide you with a free transcript. Whether you need a transcript depends on the issues you are raising on appeal. If the issues you are raising on appeal include that there was not substantial evidence supporting the judgment, order, or other decision you are appealing or that there was misconduct in your case that harmed you, that is generally enough to show that you need a transcript. If you ask for a transcript, the court may ask you what issues you are raising on appeal and may decide that a statement on appeal or a transcript of only some of the oral proceedings will be a good enough record to consider the issues you are raising.

If the court finds that you are not indigent, it will send you a notice and you will have a chance to use a statement on appeal instead or take one of the other actions listed in rule 8.917.

Completion and delivery: Once you deposit the estimated cost of the transcript or official electronic recording with the clerk or show the court you are indigent and need a transcript, the clerk will have the transcript or copy of the recording prepared. When the transcript is completed or the copy of the official electronic recording is prepared, the clerk will send the transcript or recording to the appellate division along with the clerk's transcript.

c. Reporter's transcript

When available: In some infraction cases, a court reporter is there in the trial court and makes a record of the oral proceedings. If a court reporter made a record of your case, you can ask to have the court reporter prepare a transcript of those oral proceedings, called a "reporter's transcript." You should check with the trial court to see if a court reporter made a record of your case before you choose this option. Some courts also have local rules that establish procedures for deciding whether a statement on appeal or a transcript of only some of the oral proceedings will be a good enough record to consider the issues you are raising on appeal. You should check whether the court has such a local rule.

Cost: Ordinarily, the appellant must pay for preparing a reporter's transcript. The court reporter will provide the clerk of the trial court with an estimate of the cost of preparing the transcript, and the clerk will notify you of this estimate. If you want the reporter to prepare a transcript, you must deposit this estimated amount or one of the substitutes allowed under rule 8.919 with the clerk within 10 days after the clerk sends you the estimate. However, under rule 8.919 you can decide to use a different form of the record or take other action instead of proceeding with a reporter's transcript.

If, however, you are indigent (you cannot afford to pay the cost of the reporter's transcript), you may be able to get a free transcript. You can complete and file Defendant's Financial Statement on Eligibility for Appointment of Counsel and Reimbursement and Record on Appeal at Public Expense (form CR-105) to show that you are indigent. You can get form CR-105 at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/forms. The court will review this form to decide whether you are indigent.

If the court finds that you are indigent, a court reporter made a record of your case, and you show that you need a transcript, the court must provide you with a free transcript. Whether you need a transcript depends on the issues you are raising on appeal. If the issues you are raising on appeal include that there was not substantial evidence supporting the judgment, order, or other decision you are appealing or that there was misconduct in your case that harmed you, that is generally enough to show that you need a transcript. If you ask for a reporter's transcript, the court may ask you what issues you are raising on appeal and may decide that a statement on appeal or a transcript of only some of the oral proceedings will be a good enough record to consider the issues you are raising.

If the court finds that you are not indigent, it will send you a notice and you will have a chance to pick another form of the record or take other actions listed in rule 8.919.

Completion and delivery: Once you deposit the estimated cost of the transcript or one of the substitutes allowed under rule 8.919 or show the court you are indigent and need a transcript, the clerk will notify the reporter to prepare the transcript. When the reporter completes the transcript, the clerk will send both the reporter's transcript and clerk's transcript to the appellate division.

14 Is there any other part of the record that needs to be sent to the appellate division?

Yes. There are two other parts of the official record that need to be sent to the appellate division:

- Documents filed in the trial court: The trial court clerk is responsible for preparing a record of the written documents filed in your case, called a "clerk's transcript," and sending this to the appellate division. (The documents the clerk must include in this transcript are listed in rule 8.912 of the California Rules of Court. You can get a copy of this rule at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/rules.)
- Exhibits submitted during trial: Exhibits, such as photographs or maps, that were admitted in evidence, refused, or lodged (temporarily placed with the court) in the trial court are considered part of the record on appeal. If you want the appellate division to consider an exhibit, however, you must ask the trial court clerk to send the original exhibit to the appellate division within 10 days after the last respondent's brief is filed in the appellate division. (See rule 8.921 of the California Rules of Court for more information about this procedure. You can get a copy of this rule at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/rules.)

  Sometimes, the trial court returns an exhibit to a party at the end of the trial. If the trial court returned an exhibit to you or another party and you or the other party ask for the exhibit to be sent to the appellate division, the party who has the exhibit must deliver that exhibit to the appellate division as soon as possible.

15 What happens after the record is prepared?

As soon as the record of the oral proceeding is ready, the clerk of the trial court will send it to the appellate division along with the clerk's transcript. When the appellate division receives this record, it will send you a notice telling you when you must file your brief in the appellate division.

16 What is a brief?

A brief is a party's written description of the facts in the case, the law that applies, and the party's argument about the issues being appealed. If you are represented by a lawyer in your appeal, your lawyer will prepare your brief. If you are not represented by a lawyer in your appeal, you will have to prepare your brief yourself. You should read rules 8.927–8.928 of the California Rules of Court, which set out the requirements for preparing, serving, and filing briefs in infraction appeals, including requirements for the format and length of these briefs. You can get these rules at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/rules.

Contents: If you are the appellant (the party who is appealing), your brief, called the "appellant's opening brief," must clearly explain what you believe are the legal errors made in the trial court. Your brief must refer to the exact places in the clerk's transcript and the statement on appeal (or other record of the oral proceedings) that support your argument. Remember that an appeal is not a new trial. The appellate division will not consider new evidence, such as the testimony of new witnesses or new exhibits, so do not include any new evidence in your brief.

Serving and filing: You must serve and file your brief in the appellate division by the deadline the court set in the notice it sent you, which is usually 30 days after the record is filed in the appellate division. If you do not file your brief by the deadline set by the appellate division, the court may dismiss your appeal.

"Serve and file" means that you must:

- Have somebody over 18 years old mail, deliver, or electronically send ("serve") the brief to the respondent (the prosecuting agency) and any other party in the way required by law. If the brief is mailed or personally delivered, it must be by someone who is not a party to the case—so not you.
- Make a record that the brief has been served. This record is called a "proof of service." Proof of Service (Appellate Division) (form APP-109) or Proof of Electronic Service (Appellate Division) (form APP-109E) can be used to make this record. The proof of service must show who served the brief, who was served with the brief, how the brief was served (by mail, in person, or electronically), and the date the brief was served.
- File the original brief and the proof of service with the appellate division. You should make a copy of the brief you are planning to file for your own records before you file it with the court. It is a good idea to bring or mail an extra copy of the brief to the clerk when you file your original and ask the clerk to stamp this copy to show that the original has been filed.

You can get more information about how to serve court papers and proof of service from What Is Proof of Service? (form APP-109-INFO) and at www.courts.ca.gov/selfhelp-serving.htm.

17 What happens after I file my brief?

Within 30 days after you serve and file your brief, the respondent (the prosecuting agency) may, but is not required to, respond by serving and filing a respondent's brief. If the respondent does not file a brief, the appellant does not automatically win the appeal. The court will decide the appeal on the record, the appellant's brief, and any oral argument by the appellant.

If the respondent serves and files a brief, within 20 days after the respondent's brief was served, you may, but are not required to, serve and file another brief replying to the respondent's brief. This is called a "reply brief."

18 What happens after all the briefs have been filed?

Once all the briefs have been served and filed or the time to serve and file them has passed, the court will notify you of the date for oral argument in your case.

19 What is oral argument?

"Oral argument" is the parties' chance to explain their arguments to the appellate division judges in person.

You do not have to participate in oral argument, if you do not want to; you can notify the appellate division that you want to "waive" oral argument. If all parties waive oral argument, the judges will decide your appeal based on the briefs and the record that were submitted. But if one party waives oral argument and another party or parties does not, the appellate division will hold oral argument with the party or parties who did not waive it.

If you do choose to participate in oral argument, you will have up to five minutes for your argument, unless the court orders otherwise. Remember that the judges will already have read the briefs, so you do not need to read your brief to the judges. It is more helpful to tell the judges what you think is most important in your appeal or ask the judges if they have any questions you could answer.

20 What happens after oral argument?

After oral argument is held (or the date it was scheduled passes if all the parties waive oral argument), the judges of the appellate division will make a decision about your appeal. The appellate division has 90 days after the date scheduled for oral argument to decide the appeal. The clerk of the court will mail you a notice of that decision.

21 What should I do if I want to give up my appeal?

If you decide you do not want to continue with your appeal, you must file a written document with the appellate division notifying it that you are giving up (this is called "abandoning") your appeal. You can use Abandonment of Appeal (Infraction) (form CR-145) to file this notice in an infraction case. You can get form CR-145 at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/forms.

If you decide not to continue your appeal and it is dismissed, you will (with only very rare exceptions) permanently give up the chance to raise any objections to your conviction, sentence, or other matter that you could have raised in the appeal. If your punishment was stayed during the appeal, you may be required to start complying with your punishment immediately after your appeal is dismissed.

CR-142 Notice of Appeal and Record on Appeal (Infraction)

Clerk stamps date here when form is filed.

Instructions

- This form is only for appealing in an infraction case, such as a case about a traffic ticket. You can get other forms for appealing in a civil or misdemeanor case at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/forms.
- Before you fill out this form, read Information on Appeal Procedures for Infractions (form CR-141-INFO) to know your rights and responsibilities. You can get form CR-141-INFO at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/forms.
- You must file this form no later than 30 days after the trial court issued the judgment or order you are appealing (see rule 8.902(b) of the California Rules of Court for very limited exceptions). If your notice of appeal is late, the court will not take your appeal.
- Fill out this form and make a copy of the completed form for your records.
- Take or mail the completed form to the clerk's office for the same trial court that issued the judgment or order you are appealing. It is a good idea to take or mail an extra copy to the clerk and ask the clerk to stamp it to show that the original has been filed.

You fill in the name and street address of the court that issued the judgment or order you are appealing:

Your Choices About the Record on Appeal

Stipulation for Limited Record

(3) ☐ The respondent and I/my client have agreed ("stipulated") under rule 8.910 that parts of the normal record on appeal are not required for proper determination of this appeal. A copy of our stipulation identifying those parts of the record that are not required is attached. (At the top of each page write "CR-142, item 3.")

Record of Oral Proceedings

You do not have to provide the appellate division with a record of what was said in the trial court (this is called a record of the "oral proceedings"). But, if you do not, the appellate division will not be able to consider what was said during the trial court proceedings in deciding whether an error was made in those proceedings.

(4) I elect (choose)/My client elects to proceed (check a or b):

a. ☐ WITHOUT a record of the oral proceedings in the trial court (skip item (5); sign and date this form). I understand that if I proceed without a record of the oral proceedings, the appellate division will not be able to consider what was said in the trial court during those proceedings in deciding whether a legal error was made.

(Write initials here): _____

b. ☐ WITH a record of the oral proceedings in the trial court (complete item (5) below). I understand that if I elect (choose) to proceed with a record of the oral proceedings in the trial court, I have to choose the record I want to use and take the actions described below to make sure this record is provided to the appellate division. I understand that if I do not take the actions described below and the appellate division does not receive this record, I am not likely to succeed in my appeal.

(Write initials here): _____

(5) I want to use the following record of what was said in the trial court proceedings in my case (check and complete only one—a, b, c, or d):

a. ☐ Statement on Appeal. A statement on appeal is a summary of the trial court proceedings approved by the trial court. See form CR-141-INFO for information about preparing a proposed statement. (Check and complete (1) or (2).)

5 (continued)

(1) ☐ I have attached my proposed statement on appeal to this notice. (If you are not represented by a lawyer in this appeal, you must use Proposed Statement on Appeal (Infraction) (form CR-143) to prepare and file this proposed statement. You can get form CR-143 at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/forms.)

(2) ☐ I have NOT attached my proposed statement on appeal to this notice. I understand that I must serve the prosecuting attorney if the prosecuting attorney appeared in the case and file this proposed statement in the trial court within 20 days of the date I file this notice and that if I do not file the proposed statement on time, the court may proceed on the clerk's transcript only.

OR

b. ☐ Transcript From Official Electronic Recording. This option is available only if an official electronic recording was made of what was said in the trial court. Check with the trial court to see if an official electronic recording was made in your case before choosing this option. Some courts also have local rules that establish procedures for determining whether only a portion of a transcript or a different form of the record will be sufficient for an effective appeal. Check with the trial court to see if it has such a local rule. (Check and complete (1) or (2).)

(1) ☐ I will pay the trial court clerk's office for this transcript myself. I understand that if I do not pay for this transcript, it will not be prepared and provided to the appellate division.

(2) ☐ I am asking that this transcript be provided at no cost to me because I cannot afford to pay this cost. I have completed and attached Defendant's Financial Statement on Eligibility for Appointment of Counsel and Reimbursement and Record on Appeal at Public Expense (form CR-105). (You can get form CR-105 at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/forms. The court will review this form to decide if you are eligible for a free transcript.)

OR

c. ☐ Copy of Official Electronic Recording. This option is available only if an official electronic recording was made of what was said in the trial court, the court has a local rule for the appellate division permitting the use of the official electronic recording itself as the record of the court proceedings, and you and the respondent (the prosecuting agency) have agreed (stipulated) that you want to use the recording itself as the record of what was said in your case. Check with the trial court to see if an official electronic recording was made in your case before choosing this option. You must attach a copy of your agreement (stipulation) with the respondent to this notice. (Check and complete (1) or (2).)

(1) ☐ I will pay the trial court clerk's office for this official electronic recording myself. I understand that if I do not pay for this recording, it will not be provided to the appellate division.

(2) ☐ I am asking that this official electronic recording be provided at no cost to me because I cannot afford to pay this cost. d. ☐ Reporter's Transcript. This option is available only if there was a court reporter in the trial court who made a record of what was said in court. Check with the trial court to see if there was a court reporter in your case before choosing this option. Some courts also have local rules that establish procedures for determining whether only a portion of the reporter's transcript or a different form of the record will be sufficient for an effective appeal. Check with the trial court to see if it has such a local rule.

Within 10 days of receiving the court reporter's estimate of the cost of preparing the reporter's transcript, I will (check and complete one of the following):

(1) ☐ File with the trial court a certified transcript of all the proceedings required by rule 8.918.

(2) ☐ Pay for the transcript myself by depositing with the trial court an amount equal to the estimated cost of the transcript.

(3) ☐ Pay the reporter directly and file with the trial court a written waiver of the deposit that is signed by the reporter.

(4) ☐ Request a reporter's transcript at no cost. I am asking that this transcript be provided at no cost to me because I cannot afford to pay this cost. I have completed and attached Defendant's Financial Statement on Eligibility for Appointment of Counsel and Reimbursement and Record on Appeal at Public Expense (form CR-105). (You can get form CR-105 at any courthouse or county law library or online at www.courts.ca.gov/forms*. The court will review this form to decide if you are eligible for a reporter's transcript at no cost to you.)*

I understand that if I do not pay for this transcript and I am not eligible for a reporter's transcript at no cost, the reporter's transcript will not be prepared and provided to the appellate division.

INFORMATION SHEET FOR PROOF OF SERVICE—CIVIL

(This information sheet is not part of the official proof of service form and does not need to be copied, served, or filed.)

USE OF THIS FORM

This form is designed to be used to show proof of service of documents by (1) personal service, (2) mail, (3) overnight delivery, (4) messenger service, or (5) fax.

This proof of service form should not be used to show proof of service of a summons and complaint. For that purpose, use Proof of Service of Summons (form POS-010).

Also, this proof of service form should not be used to show proof of electronic service. For that purpose, use Proof of Electronic Service (form POS-050).

Certain documents must be personally served. For example, an order to show cause and temporary restraining order generally must be served by personal delivery. You must determine whether a document must be personally delivered or can be served by mail or another method.

GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS

A person must be over 18 years of age to serve the documents. The person who served the documents must complete the Proof of Service. A party to the action cannot serve the documents.

The Proof of Service should be typed or printed. If you have Internet access, a fillable version of this proof of service form is available at www.courts.ca.gov/forms.htm.

Complete the top section of the proof of service form as follows:

First box, left side: In this box print the name, address, and telephone number of the person for whom you served the documents.

Second box, left side: Print the name of the county in which the legal action is filed and the court's address in this box. The address for the court should be the same as the address on the documents that you served.

Third box, left side: Print the names of the plaintiff/petitioner and defendant/respondent in this box. Use the same names as are on the documents that you served.

Fourth box, left side: Check the method of service that was used. You should check only one method of service and should show proof of only one method on the form. If you served a party by several methods, use a separate form to show each method of service.

First box, top of form, right side: Leave this box blank for the court's use.

Second box, right side: Print the case number in this box. The case number should be the same as the case number on the documents that you served.

Third box, right side: State the judge and department assigned to the case, if known.

Complete items 1–6:

1. You are stating that you are over the age of 18.
2. Print your home or business address.
3. If service was by fax service, print the fax number from which service was made.
4. List each document that you served. If you need more space, check the box in item 4, complete the Attachment to Proof of Service—Civil (Documents Served) (form POS-040(D)), and attach it to form POS-040.
5. Provide the names, addresses, and other applicable information about the persons served. If more than one person was served, check the box on item 5, complete the Attachment to Proof of Service—Civil (Persons Served) (form POS-040(P)), and attach it to form POS-040.
6. Check the box before the method of service that was used, and provide any additional information that is required. The law may require that documents be served in a particular manner (such as by personal delivery) for certain purposes. Service by fax generally requires the prior agreement of the parties.

You must sign and date the proof of service form. By signing, you are stating under penalty of perjury that the information that you have provided on form POS-040 is true and correct.
